Institute Requests Sewer System

Unanimously Pass Resolution Urging Action by Village—Donations to Hospital and Fall Fair Prize List.

The June meeting of Creston and District Women's Institute was held on Friday afternoon. Mrs. T. M. Edmondson, president, was in charge of proceedings and 12 members present, with one new member enrolled.

A donation of $5 was promised by the Farmers' Institute towards the flower show prize list, and the meeting voted a donation of $15 toward the prize money of reston Valley Agricultural Association fall fair, as well as a sum of money to purchase towelling for the hospital.

The hospital committee reported having had two sewing meetings in the past month. Donations have been received from Mrs. Dibben, Sirdar; Mrs. Craig, and Mrs. Maxwell. Creston Valley Agricultural Association wrote asking that the Institute arrange a display for the table of canned goods at the 1932 fall fair, budgeting for a family of five. It was decided to undertake the work, and Mrs. Hayes consented to take charge.

Committees for the flower show on Saturday were named as follows: Kitchen—Mrs. E. Martin and Mrs. Jas. Cook. Cooking table—Mrs. Maxwell and Mrs. Goodwin. Decorations—Mrs. Lowther. Tea—Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. W. H. Crawford. Flowers—Mrs. Cherrington and Mrs. C. Murrell.

The following resolution was submitted on motion of Mrs. Murrell and Mrs. Lowther, and carried unanimously: "In view of the unsatisfactory conditions now existing in the village of Creston with regard to sewerage disposal, and the very serious menace to public health which might arise from this condition, be it resolved, that the Women's Institute urge the village council and Creston Board of Trade to do all in their power to bring about the installation of an adequate and up to date sewer system at the earliest possible moment." Copies of the resolution to be sent the village council and board of trade.

After adjournement tea was served by Mrs. Maxwell, Mrs. McLaren, and Mrs. Crawford.

Kitchener

Mrs. B. Bentley and daughter, Irene, of Kimberley, were guests of Mrs. G. A. Hunt one day last week.

Mrs. R. S. Brown of Beaverdell was a guest of her sister, Mrs. B. Johnson, last week. She left on Monday for Kimberley, where she will visit with relatives.

W. C. Slean of Corbin was a weekend visitor here with his family, returning on Monday.

B. Johnson was a Kimberley visitor on Monday.

Dr. Henderson of Creston was here on a professional visit on Saturday.

Mrs. Geo. Young of Creston spent the weekend here, a guest of her sister, Mrs. E. Driffil.

Erickson baseball team played here on Wednesday evening last against the Kitchener nine, and beat the locals by a 10-7 score.

Mrs. M J. Beninger and Mrs. W B. Martin of Creston were visitors with Mrs. W. L. Nowlin last Thursday.

Mrs. A. Lepage and daughter, Louise, left on Monday for Cranbrook, where they are visiting with her sisters, Misses Laura and Mildred Andeen.

C. H. Robinson of Nelson, the Kootenay fishery inspector, planted 80,000 cutthroat eyed eggs in Goat River over the weekend, leaving for home on Monday.

Porthill baseball team w s here for a league game on Sunday and trimmed Kitchener by a 6-2 score. It is announced that the return game will be played at Huscroft at 11 a.m. Sunday.

A number of boys were hosts at a party at Mrs. L. Nowlin's on Saturday with quite a large number in attendance Creston, Wynndel, Lister and Huscroft were well represented. Cards add dancing were the features. Everyone reports a most enjoyable evening.

Wynndel

Vic. Johnson was a Nelson visitor a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Andestad are visiting with Nelson friends.

Vic. Johnfon, Paul Ofner and Fred Hagen were auto visitors to Slocan last week.

Miss Madison of Blairmore, Alberta, is renewing acquaintances in the district.

The hot weather toward the end of the week brought the strawberries on and shipping is now in progress. There was a shipment of 50 crates on Sunday.

The K.K Klub hospital benefit dance on June 10th was not as successful as anticipated. Music was by Creston Commanders orchestra and the supper by the club committee.

A meeting of the shippers through the Co-Operative Fruit Growers was held on Thursday last. Reduction in the price of tickets was discussed and it was decided to reduce pickers tickets to $1.25 and packers to $2.50. Manager E. Uri reported on his trip to prairie points. He said prevailing conditions on the prairie did not indicate high prices.

Lister

C F. Williamson of Penticton, federal inspector of weights and measures, was here on an official visit on Thursday last.

Col. Fred Lister was at Robson a few days last week attending the convention of the West Kootenay central of the Farmers' Institute. He is a Nelson visitor this week.

Several of the adults as well as some of the children from Lister-Huscroft district went to Wynndel this week to help with the harvest of the strawberry crop.

C. R Ward of Cranbrook was in the area the latter part of the week on business with the Great West Life Assurance Company.

Miss Webster along with the pupils of the junior room and some of the senior division children were at the recreation grounds at Huscroft for a picnic lunch and sports on Saturday afternoon last; an outing the children much enjoyed.

R. V. Willcox of Salmon Arm, the R.O.P. poultry inspector, made his usual monthly visit at the Fred Powers poultry farm on Saturday.

J. W. Bell of Kimberley was here on a motor visit at his ranch Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Andreason of Potlach, Idaho, are visitors this week at the home of the latter's parents, Col. and Mrs. Lister.

Clara Domke, a pupil of the senior grade of Lister school, has just been notified by the Canadian Forestry Association of her appointment as junior fire warden for this district. In qualifying for such a position a number of practical tests have to be passed and these Clara has accomplished with considerable success.

A picnic outing is arranged for Sunday at the Huscroft recreation field, at which there will be the usual line of races, etc., along with a league baseball game at 11 a.m. between Porthill and Kitchener and in the afternoon Porthill and Copeland will also clash at baseball.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Lotoille and daughter, Irene, who left on Monday for Quesnel, were guests at a farewell reception in their honor put on by the Community Society at the schoolhouse on Saturday evening, at which bridge was the feature and other items included a solo by Mrs. H. Langston, clog dance by John Finlay, and a recitation by Mrs. Frank Baker. A delightful lunch was served, and the departing guests were presented with a clock. They are making the tr p to their new home by Ford truck, which Alf. recently purchased.

Council Refuses Street Sprinkling

Cost Would be Prohibitive—Electrical Inspection By-Law to be Enforced—Send Reeve to Municipalities Convention.

The June meeting of the village council on Monday night was uneventful, correspondence of various sorts that had accumulated in the past four weeks providing the chief business. Reeve L. C. McFarland presided, and Councillors Henderson and Jackson were in attendance.

Backing up a petition sent the council by fourteen local merchants asking for a change in the Saturday hours of closing—from 10 to 9 p.m.—A. E. French and Vic. Mawson were in attendance. The matter was discussed at some length and was disposed of by motion to consult barrister L. W. Bell and if he found that the Shops Regulating Act gave the council power to so amend the by-law and the petition was otherwise in order, that the request be granted.

The request of the board of trade that the council abate the dust nuisance on Canyon street by sprinkling from the Bank of Commerce to the office of Long, Allan & Long, Limited, was not favorably considered, the council figuring the expense would be too great. Merchants interested will be invited to use the hose on the street in front of their premises to cope with the situation.

There was a letter from Chas. Moore finally accepting the council's original offer of $25 for 25 feet of 10-foot-deep frontage on the lot on Canyon street alongside Dr. McKenzie's dental parlor. For the schools' track meet held at Exhibition Park at the middle of May the council received a nicely worded letter of thanks for the use of the grounds.

A letter from the Union of B.C. Municipalities telling of the annual convention at Nelson commencing June 25th, was favorably acted upon. Payment of the $10 membership fee was authorized and Reeve McFarland was named to attend, but should he be unable he will name some member of the council to substitute for him. The accounts for May, totalling $374, were ordered paid.

Payment of $25 to the board of trade, being half the cost of the Creston page in the red trail pamphlet, was authorized. If a suitable piano can be had at rock bottom price the same will be purchased for use at Park pavilion. For the fire and light committee report was made that the fire truck was now fully equipped with extra tanks and that the supply of hose was now on one reel. The chairman was authorized to purchase an extinguisher to fully complete the truck equipment.

Thanks for their resolution and assurance of serious consideration thereof was accorded a request, from the Women's Institute that the council act as speedily as possible in providing the village with a sewerage system. Agents from outside points who sell insurance direct, the village will in future insist on the payment of the usual license fee.

J. P. Coates of Nelson, the village electrical inspector, waited on the council asking that the by-law be very rigidly enforced. He asked that the inspection fee of $4 on installations be collected at the time the village clerk issues the permit for the work, and property owners are advised that in the case of alterations, repairs or additions a permit must be required for which a very nominal charge is made. Mr. Coates agreed that where premises were ready to connect up for the "juice" if it were not possible for him to be here to make an immediate inspection a temporary permit would be issued subject to final inspection.

Another feature to the by-law to which attention is directed is in case of a house being wired only, with the intention of taking the "juice" at some future date, permission to light up could not be given until the fixtures to be used had been inspected, this being necessary to make sure the fixtures were not of a size to overload the circuit.

Parties contemplating electric light or power installation will do well to familiarize themselves with the by-law, which is most stringent in many details, even in respect to the quality of the material that may be used. Failure to observe the by-law's requirements may bring serious consequences in case of fire, and the onus of conforming to the by-law enacments is upon the property owner solely.

Canyon City

United Church Ladies' Aid enjoyed a cash intake of $15 at their annual ice cream social on King's birthday.

This week saw commencement of thinning operations on the early fall varieties of apples. In some orchards the cover spray is being applied this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Searle were visiting with Cranbrook friends at the end of the week, leaving on Friday.

Wednesday, July 6th, has been agreed upon as the date of Canyon's annual picnic, which will be held at the new baseball field.

Bob Clayton of Kimberley was here at the weekend on a visit with his parents. Miss Kathleen Clayton, who hrs been at Kimberley for some time, returned with him.

E. Nouguier returned at the end of the week from a business visit at Calgary and Carstairs, Alberta. He states that prospects right now are for a bumper crop in that province.

Frank Putnam commenced cutting his corner ten acres of alfalfa on Monday, and as per usual there was a nice rainstorm the same night, though not heavy enough to do much damage.

A party of six Canyon young men have been active for the past ten days panning for gold at some of the likely spots along Goat river above the can on To date we have not heard of any of them striking it rich.

H. H. Harrison, local manager for Scott Fruit Company, in company with H. C. Stockton, who is at the head of the National Fruit Company, were here at the end of th week, sizing up the tree fruit and vegetable crops of many of their growers.

Are we downhearted? No. At least one would not think so judging by the way the many local ranchers are hard at it making improvements of various sorts on their properties. Huygens & Van-Ackeran are painting their residence. Martin Nelson is erecting a new barn. Messrs. Blair, Rogers and Wickholm have improved the appearance of their places witn new front fences. At other places the roads on the ranches are being gravelled, and there is much other painting and general repair work to houses and barns receiving attention.

Erickson

Mrs. R. Thurston is a Cranbrook visitor this week, where she is a guest of Mrs. C. B. Twigg.

Russell Leveque of Medicine Hat, Alberta, is a visitor here at present, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Leveque.

Gerald and Eric Craigie, Dick Penson Jack Dodds were Lumberton visitors during the past week.

R. M. Telford, Lloyd Cartwright and Edward Clark were among the Knights of Pythias members who were at Bonners Ferry on Saturday for the big international encampment that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Moore and daughter, Jean, of Lumberton, were Wednesday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Putnam.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bundy left by auto for a few days visit at Calgary, Alberta. Tom expects to be back to resume work today.

Mrs. Chisholm of Edmondton, Alberta, is a visitor here this month, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Leveque.

Erickson branch of Christ Church Guild remind of the lawn social at W. H. Kemp's on Wednesday afternoon next, June 22nd. Strawberries and cream and all other refreshments, as well a a sale of cookery.

Mrs. Wells and two sons, of Nebraska, arrived last week on a visit with her sister, Mrs. Frank Putnam.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Allan, who have been residents here for the past nine months, have taken up residence in Creston, in the house just vacated by J. S. Clowes.

Erickson Christ Church Ladies' Guild entertained on Monday at the home of Mrs. John Hall at a miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Jim Dodd (nee Emily Nygaard), whose marriage took place a couple of weeks ago. Canyon and Erickson friends of the bride attended the function and she was remembered with many attractive gifts. The afternoon was most enjoyable, Mrs. L. W. Stephens, Mrs. Nygaard and Miss Frances Knott favoring with several vocal numbers. A delightful lunch was served.

Canned Goods Fall Fair Feature

List of Awards Published to Expedite Exhibitors' Efforts—Women's Institute will Stage Practical Educational Exhibit

Someone has said that exhibitions create and intensify a love of the beautiful and contribute to the life of the community. However true that may be we can say that in the canning sections the ladies have not only staged the largest exhibits of any of the fairs in the interior, but given us a vision of the job. With these fine displays of summer greens, vegetables and fruit for winter use, they succeed in stimulating our interest in a varied and helpful diet, and so contribute in no small measure to the standards of our community life.

This year the Women's Institute is undertaking an educational exhibit to illustrate the quantities of various canned foods that should be provided for a family of five during the eight months when gardens are not producing. It will be a central feature in the canning section and everyone should make a point of seeing it. The rules and details of the competition approved by the board, are as follows :

1. Except where otherwise stated exhibits to be in pint containers. Points to be observed—Uniformity of size, color, appearance and flavor. The sections in this class are:

Two jars each of canned Apricots, Peas, Peaches, Raspberries, Plums, Strawberries, Cherries, Blackberries, Loganberries. Jam, assorted, 3 jars. Marmalade, assorted, 3 jars. Jelly, assorted, 3 half-pint jelly glasses. Conned meats, assorted, 3 jars.

Two jars each of canned Greens, Beans, Peas, Tomatoes, Beets, Corn. Catsup, assorted, 3 bottles. Relishes, assorted, 3 jars. Pickles, assorted, 3 jars. Crystallized fruit, 3 jars.

HAY FOR SALE—Alfalfa, in field. John Bird, Camp Lister.

Nationalism, Good And Bad

If nationalism is destroyed, mankind will be reduced to a helplessly dead level, declared Dr. A. N. Whitehead, of Harvard, representing the British Academy at the Royal Society of Canada meeting in Ottawa. Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council of Canada, and former president of the University of Alberta, supplemented this declaration by saying: "No nation has qualified to take its place in the international arena until it has firmly established itself on national grounds. Canada has men of capacity to do this. It is up to us to provide them with the opportunity."

They are quite right, comments the Border Cities Star, if they are speaking of nationalism in the sense of a strong but sensible national pride, which impels scientists and statesmen to achieve greater things than their colleagues in other countries, so that mankind as a whole may benefit, and glory redound to the nation which originates the discoveries or the measure of progress. And it is to such a type of nationalism that one may readily believe men like Dr. Whitehead and Dr. Tory refer.

But there is another sort of nationalism. It is ruining nations; it is stifling mankind. It has brought about the present depression. It is causing unemployment, ruin and suffering. It is heading this war-scarred old world inevitably toward a grimmer conflict than any in history; a conflict which, unless it is avoided, may witness the destruction of civilization as we know it.

It is that kind of nationalism which is based in a false conception of racial superiority, where one people look down upon other peoples, where racial color lines are drawn, where differences in language and religion are emphasized to the supposed advantage of one group of people over other groups. Nationalism founded in false pride and pretensions, based upon purely selfish considerations and an utter disregard of all other peoples and nations, nationalism which would seek glory and aggrandizement for itself at the expense of all others, does not qualify any nation for a place in the international arena, does not lift a nation above other nations, does not raise mankind to a higher level, but reduces all to a lower level and takes the glory that should be in life out of it.

When, following the Great War, the League of Nations was brought into being, it had for its object the uplifting of all nations, the development in action of a brotherhood of mankind. In keeping with that aspiration the Peace Treaty made provision for the self-determination of races and nations. It provided for a larger liberty for oppressed minorities, and for the world as a whole. But, unfortunately, these newly created smaller nations, as well as many of the older nations, became imbued with the idea that they must first and foremost establish and develop a strong national spirit and consciousness, and this found expression in that narrow form of nationalism to which reference has been made.

This narrow nationalism fostered suspicions of other nations, was built and thrived upon fear of others. It impelled nations, not to remove existing barriers to international intercourse, but to erect new and even more insurmountable barriers. It resulted in a mad race of still greater armaments, the spending of untold billions in preparation for future wars. It led governments the world over to spend and spend madly without due regard to the national income or even of the economic and financial capacities of all nations combined.

Thus narrow nationalism developed at the outset at such a rate and to such an extent that it largely smothered the League of Nations ideal of a true internationalism founded upon a sane nationalism which only desired such glory and power for itself as grew out of the fact that it was making a larger and finer contribution to mankind at large than other nations were making.

Until this narrow nationalistic spirit is destroyed there can be no permanent peace, progress and prosperity in the world. In its destruction lies the only hope for mankind.

Bird's-Eye Maple In Demand

Used Extensively On Account Of Strength and Wearing Qualities

All kinds of furniture are manufactured from Canada's sugar maple, from solid to veneer while the figured veneer of bird's-eye maple is particularly in demand, according to the forest service, Department of the Interior. The strength and wearing qualities of the wood assure it a place in the vehicle industry, where it is used for heavy axles, frames, sleigh runners, factory trucks, bicycle wheel rims, etc. Because of its toughness it is made into baseball bats, hockey sticks, billiard cues, paddles, croquet balls, mallets, etc. The sugar maple is a leading wood for flooring, and its strength and stiffness suits it for the great variety of tool handles that are made from it.

Chivalry On the Road

Something More Than "Reasonable Care" Required From Drivers

Legislation works no charm on the roads or elsewhere. It can only create the conditions in which safety can thrive. Ultimately we must protect ourselves. But when that is said, we can only return to an appeal frequently made in this column. As drivers of machines of lethal possibilities, motorists should not be content in the crowded conditions of today with what is called "reasonable care." Pedestrians are not all so young as they were. The Highway Code has not cured the short-sighted or the hard of hearing. It has not given good legs to the lame. There is a child at every crossing. Nothing short of chivalry is demanded, and from our modern charioteers it is not too much to ask.—Daily Herald, Glasgow.

All Her Children Were Troubled With Diarrhœa

Mrs. J. J. Bickert, R.R. 1, Enderby, B.C., writes:—"Last Summer all my children were troubled with diarrhoea, and were so bad I did not know what to do. A friend told me to give them Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I got a bottle, and after a couple of doses you should have seen the change. The children were soon well again, and I am very thankful to your wonderful remedy. I find it the only one that relieves so easily and quickly."

A Grand Old Scot

Late "Sandy" McIntosh Of Aberdeenshire Was Great Athlete

The late Alexander McIntosh, of Crathie, Aberdeenshire, may not be written into the annals of Scotland, but he was a grand old Scot just the same.

"Sandy" McIntosh has just died at the age of 81. For sixty-five years he was an annual competitor in the field of sports at the Braemar gathering, near Balmoral Castle. A son of the glens, he was a man of superb physique, standing over six feet in height. Grey-bearded and possessed of a massive frame, the veteran Highlander headed the Farquharson clan in the annual parades bearing the standard, and his appearance in the arena invariably aroused the admiration of the gatherings round the ring.

The Braemar gathering was the event of the year for "Sandy," awakening as it did memories of the 'sixties of last century when first he took his place among the competitors in the ring. At 21 he was beginning to make a name for himself as a heavyweight athlete, winning several of the principal awards at Braemar.

At 72, fifty-one years later, he took third place in the caber tossing competition, although his opponents this time included some of the best-known heavyweights in Scotland.

A caber is a shapen piece of a tree about twenty feet long and weighing enough to be a strenuous lift off the ground for the average man. The tosser has to hoist it up to the palms of his hands, take a short run and then heave the pole so that it will turn over its own length in the air before falling. "Sandy" McIntosh thought that was sport at the age of 72.

Most of the young men of today would be baffled to lift the thing off the ground at all.

Mysterious Cities Of Southern Arabia

German Explorer Found Skyscrapers Built Entirely Of Clay

Stories of skyscrapers in the remote wastes of Southern Arabia are told by Herr Hans Helfritz, a young German explorer. He claims to have visited places which no other white man has ever seen. He found cities there which are not shown on any map. Tribes of Hamitic, Indian, and Mongolian origin populated them, and the civilization he describes as being "a remnant of the Middle Ages." Yet in all these mysterious cities he found buildings ten storeys high built of clay, without even a framework of wood. "I had many rather disagreeable encounters with some of the wild tribes of the desert," Herr Helfritz declares, "but I have brought home a splendid collection of photographs and gramophone records."

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

Realizes His Ambition

Swiss Watchmaker Has Brought To Perfection An Electric Watch

A retired watchmaker of Geneva, Switzerland, has just fulfilled his twelve-year ambition to perfect an electric watch. Driven by a fly-power motor, it needs no connection with outside wires. The case itself contains a storage battery no larger than the winding mechanism of most timepieces, which is declared to hold its charge for a year, and which may be recharged when necessary. Electricity actually operates the watch and does not merely wind a spring, as is the case in self-winding clocks.

British Scientists Go North

Will Endeavor To Probe the Mystery Of the Northern Lights

Equipped to send up sounding balloons to an altitude of 10 miles to test weather conditions and also to probe the mystery of northern lights, members of the British Polar Expedition are on their way to their base at Fort Rae, on Great Slave Lake.

The band of scientists is headed by Dr. J. M. Stagg, of the British Meteorological office.

Plans provide for the party remaining at Fort Rae until September, 1933, for the purpose of studying weather conditions in the far north.

The work is part of an international arrangement which is also being participated in by Canada, United States, Denmark, Russia and a number of other countries.

To carry on its investigations in the north, the British party brought six tons of instruments from the Old Country. It also has brought here 10 tons of foodstuffs donated by British and Canadian manufacturers.

Canadian Film

First Canadian Drama-Talkie Is Produced In Toronto

First Canadian drama-talkie, "The Bells," has been produced in Toronto by George Thorne Booth, with Dickson-Konwin, Canadian actor, in the title role. The two-reel film was based on a script used long ago by Sir Henry Irving.

To produce this all-Canadian product many difficulties had to be overcome. It was made in the main gallery of the Fine Arts Building and the cast were all Torontonians. Lack of sound-proof equipment made remote orchestral control very difficult and even sleigh bells had to be faked with an ash tray and a tumbler because real bells refused to register as bells at all.

The movie-tone has been shown privately.

These sap the strength of infants so that they are unable to maintain the battle for life and succumb to weakness. This preparation gives promise of health and keeps it.

Has Long Extension

London Firemen Communicate By Phone On Rescue Ladder

So tall is a rescue ladder recently put into service by firemen of London, England, that a telephone is used to maintain communication between those at the top and bottom. Fully extended, it is 104 feet, and is said to reach twenty feet higher than the types now in use. The men at the base may follow the progress of the rescue work by phone.

Sun Spots and Rain

Plenty Of Moisture For Western Grain Fields Is Predicted

Western Canada may expect fairly generous rains for some time to come if sun-spot data collected by the Dominion Observatory runs true to form. According to observatory officials, Canada is now approaching a "sun-spot period," which should produce plenty of moisture for the western grain fields.

The effect of sun-spots, it was explained, is to increase the rainfall over a long period.

A sun-spot period lasts for 11 to 11½ years. This does not mean that tremendous quantities of rain will fall for a short period, but rather that over a long period the precipitation will be higher than when the sun-spots are not in evidence.

Heavy rains in different parts of the world at present were hardly attributed to sun-spots.

To begin with, in the absence of accurate world data, scientists were unwilling to agree that the rainfall over the world has been exceptionally heavy.

While precipitation has been great in certain countries, it was not so in others.

Certain parts of Canada, for instance, had been exceptionally dry during May, while others had experienced generous rains.

Officials made it clear that a few weeks' heavy rain cannot be explained by sun-spots. Their effect is over a much longer period.

Women and Asthma. Women are numbered among the sufferers from asthma by the countless thousands. In every climate they will be found, helpless in the grip of this relentless disease unless they have availed themselves of the proper remedy. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought new hope and life to many such. Testimonials, sent entirely without solicitation, show the enormous benefit it has wrought among women everywhere.

SHOULD AVOID THE DUPLICATION OF TAXATION

Ottawa, Ont.—Recommending that the Dominion, provinces and municipalities should get together in order to reach an understanding respecting fields of taxation, and thus avoid duplication, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association passed resolutions dealing with taxation and also unemployment.

The resolution dealing with taxation called upon the association to co-operate by asking members and employees, as well as the public throughout Canada, to refrain from asking for public expenditures except those immediately necessary.

It urged members to assist their provincial and municipal governments in curtailing expenditures, thereby lessening the burden of taxpayers. This would release large sums for use in agriculture and other basic industries.

The resolution was moved by F. C. Brown, Vancouver.

Mr. Brown also moved a resolution on unemployment, urging co-operation in reducing unemployment. It favored land settlement and supported controlled direct relief for those who cannot get work.

The election of officers at the concluding session of the association resulted as follows: President, W. C. Coulter, Toronto; first vice-president, George Henderson, Montreal, and L. E. Anthes, Toronto, second vice-president. T. F. Monypenny, Toronto, is treasurer.

The executive council includes:

Major E. G. Rogers, J. W. Ackland, H. B. Lyall, W. G. Fraser, W. J. Bulman, Winnipeg; J. D. Rosenberry, The Pas, Man.; George Leach, Regina; Howard Jones, Saskatoon; T. George Wood, Raymond, Alberta; C. A. Graham, Edmonton; H. Hutchings, Calgary; W. G. Armstrong, Medicine Hat, Alberta; R. Bell-Irving, J. B. Thompson, J. H. Rolphe, T. S. Dickson, H. MacLaren, G. E. Hermann, J. A. McFarlane, Vancouver; J. H. McDonald, New Westminster.

Chairmen of standing committees include: Tariff, J. O. Thorn, Toronto; transportation, W. S. Campbell, Toronto; commercial intelligence, W. R. Drynan, Hamilton, and publishing, A. Ross Robertson, Toronto.

Death Of Joynson-Hicks

First Lord Brentford Dies At Age Of 66 Years

London, Eng.—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, first Lord Brentford, died at the age of 66 years. Congestion of the lungs complicated by heart weakness, which developed from a severe chill he sustained during a visit to the West Indies, in February, brought an end to a noted political career. Lord Brentford was also one of the leading laymen in the Church of England and took a prominent part in the parliamentary battle over the revised book of common prayer.

Centenary Of Great Reform Bill Celebrated

Viscount Halifax Who Attended Personally Knew the Reformer

Newcastle, England.—Celebrations opened here June 7, to commemorate the centenary of the great reform bill, attended by Viscount Halifax and his son, Lord Irwin, former viceroy of India. Viscount Halifax, now 93 years of age, is probably the only living person who personally knew the reformer, the second Earl Grey, Prime Minister, who secured passage of the bill, and whose family is still actively associated with this area.

May Attend Conference

Victoria, B.C.—While no official statement has been made, it is probable that Premier S. F. Tolmie will attend the conference of the four western provinces at Regina June 20, as the representative of British Columbia. The government has already accepted the invitation of Premier J. T. M. Anderson, of Saskatchewan, to attend the meeting, which is to discuss the viewpoint of the west on empire trade.

Quebec Forest Fires

Fears Expressed That Prospectors May Be Trapped In Burning Bush

Amos, Que.—Far in Quebec's hinterland, forest fires are blazing across a wide area. Fears that some prospectors may be trapped in a country where there is little water to offer them safety are prevalent. Four buildings fell in flames as the fire spread into the little settlement of Taschereau. And fugitives from the district are telling a tragic story. The fire started several days ago near the Dome and Hollinger mines after settlers had been burning slash. Fanned by a 40-mile wind, the blaze had assumed huge proportions in a few minutes. It spread over miles of brush.

Scorched heads and burned shirts were displayed as the settlers rushed down water-courses and dropped into creeks to avoid the flames. The Abaska Lake and Bell River provided sanctuary for them after a hurried scramble through slash and muskeg.

Miles inland, far from safety, many prospectors were working. There are few lakes there. Whether they managed to outdistance the flames is problematical. No search can be conducted until the fire moderates.

Epoch In History

Imperial Conference To Mark Period Of Great Moment To Empire

Ottawa, Ont.—While the coming Imperial Conference may not produce a miracle, it will constitute an epoch in history. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association is doing everything in its power to contribute to the success of the conference.

Thus W. C. Coulter, president of the Association, indicated the attitude of his organization to the coming meeting of empire statesmen in Ottawa next month.

"It is sometimes said that there will be a great diversity of interests at the conference," declared Mr. Coulter. "That is quite true, and it is always the case when great issues are at stake; but compromise and conciliation are familiar British traits of character, and solutions can be found for most problems."

The president's reference to the conference was made in the course of an address to the association at the final dinner closing the 61st annual convention here.

Gold Receipts Heavy

Value Of Shipments To Mint In May Over Five Million

Ottawa, Ont.—Gold receipts at the Royal Canadian Mint during May were in excess of $5,000,000 for the third time in history, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

The gold content of the shipments received at Ottawa was 242,428 fine ounces, the value of this quantity at $20.67 per ounce, the fixed price of gold, being $5,011,425.

Relief Taker Well Fixed

Toronto, Ont.—While J. J. McQuade and his wife were obtaining food and coal from relief officials here, McQuade had a bank account of $2,000, a mortgage on a local house and was able to purchase a farm at Malto, it was alleged by police who arrested the McQuades on their farm. They face charges of obtaining food by false pretences.

Northern Air Mail

Prince Albert.—With 40,000 letters aboard the new regular monthly air mail service between here and northern Saskatchewan points was inaugurated recently. Two planes were required to carry mail from Emma Lake, the air base here, to Lac La Ronge, and Montreal Lake, points of call. Most of it was prepared by stamp collectors.

Saved From Hanging

Kamloops, B.C.—Saved from hanging when the British Columbia court of appeal granted him a new trial on appeal following his conviction of murdering two companions in the Trembleur Lake district in northern British Columbia, in June, 1930, Karl Fredericks, 32-year-old trapper and prospector, was acquitted by an assize court jury here at his third trial.

The fire department of Leyton, England, recently had to fight a blaze at the waterworks.

WOMAN DELEGATE RETRUNS

Miss Winnifred Kydd, Canada's woman delegate to the Armament Conference at Geneva, has returned to Canada with the self-imposed task of informing the women of the Dominion of the results of the Conference and its prospects toward a final conclusion.

James Bay Railway

Official Opening To Take Place On July 15th

Toronto, Ont.—Official opening of the railway line from Cochrane to Mooseonee on James' Bay, will take place July 15, it was definitely announced, following a conference between Premier George S. Henry and George W. Lee, chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. Premier Henry is to drive the last spike on the line amid an elaborate ceremony.

Premier R. B. Bennett and Chief Justice F. R. Latchford, who drove the first spike in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario line in 1902, are to be invited to attend.

Ruling Favors Indians

Alberta Game Act Allows Them Certain Privileges

Calgary, Alberta.—Indians have an unrestricted right to hunt for food on unoccupied lands regardless of the Alberta Game Act, the Alberta Court of Appeals ruled.

Mr. Justice McGillivray, who handed down the court's decision, said this ruling in no way implied that the provincial game act was ultra vires, but merely that it did not apply to Indians hunting for food on unoccupied government or other lands.

To Discuss Wheat Bonus

Regina, Sask.—Discussion of asking for an extension of the five-cent per bushel bonus on wheat for export, paid by the Federal Government this year, will come up at the inter-provincial conference of the western provinces in Regina on June 20. The primary purpose of the conference will be to draft a memorandum setting forth the west's interest in the coming Imperial Conference.

New Stamp Issue

Postage Stamps To Commemorate Imperial Conference

Ottawa, Ont.—Commemorative postage stamps will be issued in connection with the Imperial Conference. Announcement to this effect was made from the office of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

The statement reads:

"Authority has been given for the issue of three commemorative postage stamps in connection with the Imperial Conference to be held in Ottawa next month.

"These stamps will be in the denominations of three, five and 13 cents.

"The three-cent stamp will bear a portrait of the king; the five-cent stamp of the Prince of Wales; and the 13-cent will be a double-sized pictorial stamp.

"These stamps are now in course of preparation, and will be issued on a date to be set after manufacture has been completed.

"There will also be an issue of overprinted air mail stamps for the conference, these stamps being the current five-cent issue of air mail stamps, over printed six cents, together with other printed stamps relating to the Imperial Conference.

"The denominations in which these stamps will be issued will ensure their use on mail matter going to all parts of the Empire, as well as to many other countries."

Memorial To Queen Alexandra Unveiled

King George Officiates At Ceremony Outside Marlborough House

London, England.—In the presence of the Queen, the Prince of Wales and most other members of the royal family, the King unveiled the memorial to Queen Alexandra, erected by public subscription outside Marlborough House, where Alexandra as Princess of Wales spent her married life prior to the accession of Edward VII. and where she returned after his death.

The ceremony coincided with the annual Alexandra rose day instituted under the late queen's auspices 21 years ago. She died in 1925.

New Governing System

Something Is Needed To Take the Place Of Party Politics

Winnipeg, Man.—Government partisanship breaks down in the face of economic difficulties and some new system must be devised, J. W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, told delegates to the third Canadian conference on social work here.

A new conception of the state in relation to the individual was taking possession of the mind of the people, Mr. Dafoe said. It was not generally appreciated how revolutionary this conception was, nor were its ultimate consequences known.

IT ISN'T WISE TO ARGUE WITH A CRICKET BALL

Lieutenant Wazir Ali, member of the All India Cricket Team, at present touring the British Isles, is shown being assisted off the field after he got hit on the head by a rising ball in the match at Lord's Cricket Ground, London, England. The injured player was taken to a nursing home, where he stayed for four days.

SEE PLOT TO WRECK OTTAWA CONFERENCE

London, England.—The Daily Express says there is a "world plot against the Ottawa conference.

The newspaper, chief organ of Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born peer and Empire free-trade crusader, declared evidence was accumulating on all sides that there was a definite world plot to wreck the conference, to which all nations of the British Commonwealth look to help solve their joint economic problems.

Foreign nations, the Express said, are using every means of direct and indirect propaganda to sow seeds of discord between the Mother Country and the Dominions.

The Express quoted an article in a Canadian magazine by Lieut.-Col. J. B. McLean, about alleged attempts to create discord between Canada and Great Britain. It said while the Dominions were being told Great Britain will go to the conference ready to give nothing and ask everything, an attempt is being made to create a breach between the Dominions themselves on the suggestion each ought to profit at the expense of the others.

No United Ireland

North Would Never Be a Party To Separation From Britain

London, England.—Reports in London that present negotiations between the Free State and Britain would be widened, on the Free State side, by attempts to re-open the question of union between the Free State and Northern Ireland, met with a prompt rebuttal from Viscount Craigavon, Premier of Northern Ireland.

Lord Craigavon said union was quite out of the question. "A long time ago," he declared, "we in Ulster made up our minds that we have no change to make. I would never be a party to separation from Great Britain or severance of the Imperial connection. . . . The present British Government and I see eye to eye."

Opinion here is that President de Valera proposes, if he has not indeed already done so, reference of the whole dispute to either an Imperial or international tribunal. His bill for abolition of the oath, regarded by the British Government as the root of the present differences, is deadlocked in the Irish senate, shorn of most of its teeth by an opposition majority.

Favor Empire Trade

B.C. Industries Would Give United Support To Policy

Victoria, B.C.—Co-operation of Empire trade for the benefit of British countries, and development of an Empire currency as a medium through which this trade could be carried on, would have the united support of British Columbia industries if considered at the Imperial Economic Conference opening next month in Ottawa, according to information received by the British Columbia Government.

Brutal Murder

Lotbiniere, Que.—Aroused over the most brutal murder here in years, the citizenry of Lotbiniere are aiding provincial police in seeking two men who caused the death of Simeon Bernard, well known and popular notary. He had been beaten over the head when he resisted efforts of the intruders to make him aid them in robbing a branch of La Banque Provinciale.

Object To New System

Shanghai, China.—Chinese telephone workers employed by the Shanghai Telephone Company, which serves in international settlement and the French concession, went out on strike in opposition to the installation of an automatic system which resulted in the dismissal of hundreds of operators.

Health Plan Rejected

Saskatoon, Sask.—Intended for submission to the convention of the Saskatchewan Union of Urban Municipalities, a resolution suggested by Dr. Arthur Wilson, health officer, proposing immunization against communicable disease of all persons applying for relief was turned down by the city council by an unanimous vote.

Your Telephone . . . .

Better Marketing Plans Devised

Poultrymen of West Kootenay in Business Session at Nelson Act to Stabilize Prices—D. Bradley Re-Elected Local Director.

With saner marketing methods and closer co-operation between marketing agencies there is every reason to expect more satisfactory returns to the poultrymen, particularly in West Kootenay and Grand Forks, according to Chas. Murrell, who represented Creston valley at the semi-annual meeting of the Kootenay Poultry Association at Nelson last week. In a statement Mr. Murell is preparing for the Farmers' Institute grading station patrons Mr. Murell says:

After the reading of the minutes of the organization meeting held last fall one was considerably surprised when the chairman got up and expressed the opinion that they would be able to accomplish very little more in the future than had been accomplished up to the present time, and that it seemed that the wise thing to do was to wind it up. A lengthly discussion followed and it was early apparent that there was a discordant factor somewhere and which was brought to a head by the accusation that the Grand Forks Co-Operative had been cutting prices to the detriment of the Robson and Arrow Lake shippers. Messrs. Megitt and Morrison from Grand Forks were able to give a satisfactory explanation of the incident and it was entirely due the support that these two gentlemen gave Creston's representative that it was possible to eventually get the bureau of information appointed.

The convention was handicapped by having two marketing organizations hostile to each other and the Nelson district absolutely without an organization and every producer trying to get ahead of the other. During the discussion a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. McKim and Buchanan to interview the managers of Burns & Co. and Swift Canadian Co. to get them to co-operate with the growers in controlling prices and the committee was able to report that these gentlemen are quite willing to help stabilize prices in Nelson and Trail. Just before adjourning for lunch the Creston delegate moved that the association carry on which was carried.

After lunch discussion centered on an information bureau and those wishing to have this service had certainly many objections to overcome. It wa- pointed out that it should not be an impossible task to get the retailer to combine with the association and have one selling price to the stores in Nelson and Trail, and the opinion was freely expressed that a uniform price would be welcomed and with this point cleared up the way seemed open.

Several delegatesnow expressed the opinion that the limited funds at our disposal rendered such a service impossible and Mr. Buchanan was asked to state what he thought would be the cost. He stated that in his opinion that until we knew just what work his service entailed that it was quite impossible to estimate the cost. Creston delegate then moved that Robson Co-Operative, Grand Forks Co-Operative, Creston Grading Station, with Mr. McKim acting on behalf of the Nelson producers affiliated with the association this service. This was seconded by Mr. Morrisson of Grand Forks and carried.

Every Saturday these organizations will send to Robson a report of the prices and stocks of eggs on hand in their districts as nearly as can be estimated, with suggestions as to what they think the price should be. The manager of the Robson Co-Operative, Mr. Buchanan will then arrange with the retailers in Trail what the price is to be and Mr. McKim will perform a similar service for the Nelson poultrymen. As Creston producers do not ship very heavily into Trail this service will only be useful to those who ship privately to these markets and if any producer wishes to avail himself of this information it will be available from the grading station on payment of a fee of $1.00 to the funds of the Poultry Association.

It was decided that those who paid their subscriptions last fall will not be asked to pay a further subscription until the end of the year, or unless a general meeting decides that more funds are necessary to carry on the work. Mr. Bishop stated that he considered that now we had started to do something a number of individuals would join up who had been undecided whether it was worth while joining. The old officers were put back, and D. Bradley is again the director in charge of this district.

While the need of storage was freely admitted, and it was also agreed that storage facilities at Nelson and Creston would have to be developed, the matter of ways and means was never properly discussed and, indeed, there was no time to go into this important matter, but it was clearly demonstrated that if Creston wants this storage Creston must go ahead and organize its own. Were there some place to put the surplus of March and April not a case need have been sent out at less than the prevailing price.

The conditions prevailing on the Nelson and Trail markets, where two marketing associations and individual growers were all competing promiscuosly, proved conclusively the need of organization and left no doubt that the grading station is doing very valuable work in marketing the eggs in this district, and that it is in the best interests of the producers of the Creston Valley to support the Institute in the endeavor to provide orderly marketing. Also quality is necessary if local products are to hold their place on present markets. It ahould be remembered that price cutting and pannicy marketing by individuals make the task of marketing harder and render the task of keeping the price steady at the highest possible figure well nigh impossible.

Potato Bug Control

All potato growers will be pleased to hear that the provincial department of agriculture is again this year supplying poison dust free for the control of the Colorado potato beetle, or potato bug. It is sincerely hoped that all growers will avail themselves of this opportunity of freeing their potato patches, or acreage, of this pest, by dusting with the poison supplied, as it is only by co-operation of all that complete control can be obtained.

Pick off all adult beetles as soon as they emerge from the ground when potato tops first start growth, using a can to drop them in and destroy. Don't use the fingers for squashing as the job will prove disagreeable. Later on watch out for the first hatching out of the egg masses and start dusting right after. Don't wait till the bugs get large or your work may be continued indefinitely.

Use sufficient dust to make a uniform bloom on the foliage, but don't whitewash your plants as this will merely cause the bugs to remove to greener feeding.

The control of the potato beetle in East Kootenay the last few years has been most successful and it is only by thorough attention at the right time that it can remain so. Remember France lost $60,000,000 worth of their potato crop last year by depredations of the Colorado beetle, which made its first appearance in that country after the great war.

Dust will be on hand, as usual, at all convenient centres. For further information during the summer of 1932, write to F. A. Marsack, field inspector, Box 206, Cranbrook.

OUR K.B.O. BROADCAST

The first carload of 1932 spring lambs was shipped from Penticton on June 3rd.

500 people attended a barn dance under Gyro Club auspices at Cranbrook on King's birthday.

For allowing his cattle to roam in the Rossland cemetery, Noble Armstrong has just been fined $10.

Provincial police are now in charge of the enforcement of law at Kelowna. Three men will be employed.

Kelowna has 20 acres in head lettuce this season. It will move in three seasons—June, August and early fall.

At Kaslo Mrs. John Keen, the town's woman alderman, has been named to head the council's finance committee.

Armstrong will ship only the No. 1 grade of lettuce, at a price of $2.25 per crate. A year ago this grade brought $3.25.

The initial crop report indicates that the Okanagan will have more cherries and peaches than last year, but less apricots.

Now final payment has been made the Herald asserts that net returns to Penticton growers for last year's McIntosh apples were 89 cents a box. Jonathans netted 44 cents, Spitzenbergs 64¼, and Delicious 81½ cents.

According to the Herald final returns indicate that Penticton orchardists have received from 10 to 20 cents per box less for the 1931 apple crop, than prices that prevailed in 1930.

The improvement in this year's water-supply at Cranbrook can be guaged from the fact that in 1931 it took 124 hours to fill the swimming pool. This year it filled in 58 hours.

Berry Crop Now On the Move

Rather Cool Weather Slows up Monement - Wynndel Biggest Day 200 Crates Yesterday— —Pickers' Pay Reduced.

The 1932 strawberry shipping season is getting under way, and if the expected hot weather makes its appearance before the week is out a' considerable volume will be moving by the mid le of next week, with Wynndel counting on loading out its first straight carload not later than the 27th. Since Tuesday the weather has been cool and rather cloudy and the berries are slow in maturing.

Wynndel had its first crate moving on June 7th, and two days later the Reed & Mather ranch at Alice Siding had a day's export of 11 crates. Early this week small quantities were also moving out of Erickson.

At Wynndel shipping had increased to 200 crates yesterday, all of which was being handled at points as far east as Medicine Hat. Due to the poor buying power on the prairie strawberries are not expected to be as profitable as 1931. At Wynndel the crop looks promising and with the right kind of weather the output there might exceed 1932 by 20 per cent., according to officials of the Wynndel Co-Operative Fruit Growers Association.

Long, Allan & Long, Limited, report a berry tonnage in excess of last year. As in 1931 the firm is shipping from Wynndel, Reed & Mather's, Creston and Erickson. In addition to berries they report gooseberries also on the move.

Some reduction has this year been made on the pay of pickers and packers. At Wynndel the agreement entered into is for payment of 30 cents per crate for picking and 12½ cents per crate for packing Up to the present there is no shortage of help, all districts in the valley as well as a larger than usual in flux of prairie people solving the labor problem much more satiafactorily than in previous years.

Alice Siding

Thinning of the apple crop has commenced and the work will be heavy. So far the June drop has been very light.

P. Argyle is now doing his travelling by auto. He secured a rebuilt Ford at the end of the week.

Mrs. Paul Hagen and Mrs. Victor Johnson of Wynndel were here at the weekend guests of Mr. and W. A. Pease.

Mr. and Mrs. Scotty Todd and family of Trail, were visitors the past week at the home of Mrs. John Marshall.

The Reed & Mather racch was the first to start strawberry shipping this season, with a first shipment on Thursday last of 11 crates. With cooler weather prevailing shipping is quite light so far.

Alfalfa cutting is general in this district, harvesting operations getting under way at the first of the week.

Rudolf Carr is again in charge of strawberry shipping for Long, Allan & Long, Limited, at Beed & Mather siding, commencing Thursday last.

Mrs. Ostendorf and two children, accompanied by her brother, arrived at the end of the week from Rosthern, Sask., to join Mr. Ostendorf, and to reside here permantly.

Sirdar

Mrs. F. Parento and daughter, Miss Mary, were visitors at Creston last Monday.

Arthur Lombardo, who has been a visitor in Cranbrook for the past two weeks, is expected to arrive home the former part of the week.

J. MacDiarmid was a weekend visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson, returnlng to Nelson on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Blumaneaur was a motor visitor at Creston on Thursday last. She was accompanied by Charlie Lombardo, who went to receive medical aid.

Father Choinel conducted mass at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Pascuzzo Sunday morning.

A representative from Saskatchewan of the B & B Union, was a business visitor at Kootenay Landing on Friday last.

Frank Parento of Tye spent Saturday visiting at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson and family, and J. MacDiarmid of Nelson, spent Sunday at Canyon, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. VanAckeran.

The water guage at slough bridge stands at 16.56. This is a rise of 1.01 for the week.

Mrs. J. Lundy entertained a number of friends for her house guest, Mrs. Byington of Revelstokk, at a tea and bridge on Tuesday afternoon last. Everyone present having a most enjoyable time.

Local and Personal

At the June meeting of the Women's Institute on Friday the ladies passed a very practical resolution asking the council to install a sewer system in the village at the earliest possible date, which has been sent the council for official consideration.

Norman Moore, for many years in charge of the forestry office, and now foreman for th B.C. Spruce Company, Lumberton, was renewing acquaintances in Creston at the middle of the week, accompanied by Mrs. Moore and daughter, Jean.

Everyone will be interested in seeing the school pupils' display of posters and plastacine work at the Women's Institute Flower Show at the United Church hall on Saturday afternoon, 18th. The admission is free. There will be afternoon tea and sale of cooking.

Strawberry shipping commenced on Thursday of last week, with the Reed & Mather being the first to move this fruit this year, with an export of 11 cases that day. They had 50 crates on Sunday but with the cooler weather prevailing the outgo is not heavy as yet.

About 30 members of Wild Rose Lodge Knights of Pythias were at Bonners Ferry for an outdoor encampment at a point about a mile west of that town, Saturday. Many knights from Sandpoint, Spokane and other points were also in attendance.

With the heavy flooding of the flats in front of Creston the mosquitoes are more numerous and, consequently, more hungry than usual. They appear to have less body to them as they are getting through the finest of the fine netting used in window screens and porches.

Manager H. H. Harrison of Crestland Fruit Company, Limited, who was here last week from Vernon, calling on the firm's growers in the Creston Valley, will this year supervise the firm's operations at three points in the Okanagan—Oliver, Penticton and Summerland.

In his fortnightly crop report, issued at June 6th, C. B. Twigg states orchards are looking well. The growth of the young apple is backward and it will be toward the end of the month before the June drop is over. All varieties, except Northern Spy and Spitzenberg apples, and Flemish Beauty pears give promise of a heavy crop.

The hottest touch of the summer was encountered on Sunday when the mercury got up to 84 in the shade. It was 82 on Monday, but since then has cooled off again. Monday night produced a rain that was not wanted by the alfalfa cutters who had commenced work that day.

In connection with the K.P. athletic tournament on Dominion Day annoucement is made that children under 16 will be admitted free. Creston Commanders orchestra will play for the dance in the evening, to which the admission is 75 and 25 cents, supper included.

The local teams got an even break in the league baseball games on Snnday. The Intermediates, playing at Creston, were trimmed by Eastport 12-7, but the Frothblowers, playing at Canyon, trimmed their opponents 17-7. In the other fixture at Kitchener, Porthill won by a 4-0 margin.

The warmer weather at the weekend put the Kootenay River at the highest flood stage of the year, and early Wednesday morning it went over the dyke at the north end of the Reclamation farm, all of which is now under water, and a considerable acreage of growing wheat will be a total loss.

R B. McLeod of Kimberley, and formerly on the Speers' store sales staff, accompanied by Mrs. McLeod were visitors here on Wednesday. Mr. McLeod is now manager of the company store at Kimberley and was on a visit booking the season's supply of strawberries at Wynndel.

The june meeting of the fall fair directors was held on Thursday evening last. Various matters were dealt with, among which was the decision to send a truck to Camp Lister and Wynndel to bring in exhibits provided entries warranted this service. Canned goods will be shown in pint sealers and jellies in half-pint jelly glasses, which can be procured at local stores.

Creston dance band filled an out-of-town engagement at Crawford Bay on Saturday night when they played at a dance winding up the season for the Ping Pong club at that point. Creston and Boswell sent along delegations that gave the affair a large attendance. Members of the orchestra are Miss Edith Crawford, piano; Bob Marshall, drums; Tom Lacey, banjo, and G. H. Kelly, axaphone.

Wynndel Women's Institute

One of the finest meetings of the year of Wynndel Women's Institute was held in the annex of the community hall on Thursday afternoon last. The president, Mrs. F. C. Robinson, was in charge of proceedings and 25 members were present.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Paul Hagen for the use of her orchard for the apple blossom tea. The fall fair committee report indicated that the committee had been quite active since the last meeting Splendid donations of money and other prizes have been received from various points in the district and outside points have been equally generous It was decided to add poultry to the line of exhibits this year.

It was decided to have ice cream and strawberries and cream for refreshments at the dance on June 25th. A committee was named to take charge.

After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Robinson read a paper on the glacerizing of nuts. Mrs. A. Joy prepared the paper and also donated a box of nuts to the institute. A guessing contest on the number of nuts in the box was won by Mrs. C. O. Ogilvie.

Mrs. E. Stevens entertained most enjoyably with a number of pianoforte selections, and a dainty lunch was served by he hostesses.

Armstrong expects to market most of its 1932 crop of head lettuce in eastern Canada.

Kaslo has no civic improvements to undertake and is forced to give its unemployed direct relief.

The Gazette hears that a two man force of Mounted police will be established at Grand Forks next month.

A new 65-foot flag pole has just been erected in front of Cranbrook city hall. It was cut from a stick 95 feet long.

The Herald has information that leads it to assure its readers that the new bridge across the Kootenay River at Bonners Ferry will be under construction immediately after 1932 high water.

Kaslo council is so hard up that it will not be able to afford calcium chloride to abate the dust nuisance this year.

At Penticton all city employees are having their salary cut 10 per cent., and the school teachers are facing a 5 per cent. reduction.

Cranbrook is reducing its school teaching staff as well as cutting salaries from 10 to 5 per cent. according to stipend received.

Waterworks Supt. Murfitt at Penticton tells the cauncil that if all users were on meters just about half the present amount of water would be used.

Later reports from the Okanagan indicate that the 1932 cherry crop will not be as heavy as the bloom indicated. The same thing applies to McIntosh Red apples. Delicious will be heavy.

Ainsworth will vote on the beer parlor question on June 22nd.

Empire Shopping Week

Proposal Is Made To set Aside Week For This Purpose This Fall

An "Empire Shopping Week" for Canada will be arranged during the autumn, probably while the economic conference is underway in Ottawa, if the hopes of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association are realized. This was intimated in the report of the commercial intelligence committee presented at the 61st annual general meeting of the association at Ottawa. Empire shopping weeks were held in 1928 and 1929 and its revival has been urged upon the minister of trade and commerce.

Cars Replace Camels

The conquering of the desert by automobile has had a disastrous effect on the camel market. In the annual camel sale at Marrekech, good animals were sold at from 550 to 1,000 francs. Automobiles now carry the freight loads that were once trekked across the desert by camels.

Contract Bridge

By Hamlin B. Hatch, Olympic Champion, Cavendish Club, Toronto

In my last article the salient features of the Approach-Forcing System were given. Today I will review the Official System. This system was devised by the united efforts of several bridge experts to remedy what they considered were defects in the Approach-Forcing System. Added to this was the idea that the conventional part of the game could be made easier for the average player.

The Official System differs from the Approach-Forcing System only slightly. The chief differences are noted below.

1st. The Opening Bid of One.

In the Official System the opening bid of one is made on a hand containing from two to three and one-half quick tricks, and guarantees that in the declared suit the bidding hand will take from four to five tricks. This is practically the same as the minimum opening bid of one in the Approach-Forcing System.

2nd. The Opening Bid of Two.

The opening bid of two is made on a hand containing from three and one-half to six honor tricks and guarantees that in the declared suit the hand will take at least six tricks. The bid is called the intermediate two bid and this declaration constitutes the chief difference between the Approach-Forcing and Official Systems. This two bid does not demand a response if partner's hand contains one honor trick or strong distributional values. It is true that on certain types of hands this bid gives good results but opponents of this bid maintain that it gives too much information to the opposing side and therefore tends to nullify the chance of making penalty doubles. It is generally believed by experts that its disadvantages outweigh its advantages. On the other hand it gives precision of information to one's partner and amongst average players this precision of information is a very valuable asset. But if it is conceded that the present day game of contract is a battle of wits, with the main battle being fought before the cards go on the table, then it is logical to think that the use of any bidding method which gives too much information to the opposing side is bad strategy if not bad contract. Personally I am of the opinion that applied to certain types of hands, the bid is valuable but I do not think this certain type of hand comes often enough to warrant the inclusion of this bid in any system. For on the average it may be said that in the Official System over eighty per cent. of the opening bids are bids of one.

The opening bid of three in the Official System is similar in its application to the opening bid of two in the Approach-Forcing System. It is a demand bid and guarantees game for the particular deal in which it is made.

Except then for the variations in the opening bid convention, the Official and the Approach-Forcing Systems are practically aligned. The Jump-Shift bids are forcing in both systems and methods of overcalling used are alike. The weak no trump response by partner to an opening bid of one is identical in both systems. The no trump original bid is used more frequently in the Official System than in the Approach-Forcing simply because the bids made on four card suits in the Official System must have a stronger honor trick four card suit than is required by the Approach Forcing.

However, both systems are easy to play and it is not a hard matter for any player to familiarize himself thoroughly with the salient differences between them, so that he can play whichever system his partner desires him to play.

In the next article the One Over One and the Vanderbilt Club will be discussed.

Yukon Is Land Of Flowers

Yukon Territory, Canada, is a land of flowers. Hundreds of types of flowers, plants and shrubs grow wild on every hill and valley. Nature responds generously where flowers are cultivated and one of the lasting impressions left with the visitor is the variety and beauty of the flowers which decorate the homes and beautify the grounds of Dawson, the capital.

LOST 20 LBS. FAT

Without Altering Diet

To reduce weight without any attention to diet is rather more than anyone should expect. That the Kruschen method should have succeeded in this case, is a great tribute to its effectiveness.

"When I started taking Kruschen for reducing weight, I weighed 170 lbs. That was seven months ago. I decided I was too heavy, and now, thanks to the half teaspoonful of Kruschen every morning, I tip the scale at 150 lbs. I have been that weight for nearly four months. I may say I feel much better. I did not diet myself in any way whatever."—E. C.

Kruschen Salts do not reduce you overnight—like so many products claim to do. But taken regularly over a period of time—with a modified diet and gentle exercise, half a teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast will take away unhealthy flesh and restore your figure to its normal weight. Yet at the same time—build up health with a great increase in vigor and energy for you!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JACOB THE AGED FATHER

Golden Text: "Honor thy father and thy mother."—Exodus 20.12.

Lesson: Genesis 46.1-7, 28-30; 47.7.

Devotional Reading: Luke 2.41-52.

Explanations and Comments

Jacob and His Family Journey To Goshen, 46.1-27.—The moving scene in our last week's lesson closed with all barriers down. Joseph and his brothers were united in peace and love, and Joseph planned with them for their speedy settlement in Egypt.

Laden with presents—raiment and silver and all the good things of Egypt—the eleven brothers returned to Jacob. "Joseph is yet alive, and is ruler over all the land of Egypt!" was the astounding news they brought to their father, who had so long mourned for Joseph as dead. No wonder he could not believe them at first. When he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to transport his household, he cried: "It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die."

At last all were ready for the journey to Egypt—Jacob and his sons and their households, their cattle and their goods. At Beersheba, on the border of the sand waste which lay between them and Egypt, the caravan halted and offered sacrifice. Everything reminded Jacob of his early life there. In a vision that night Jacob received God's assurance that the journey to Egypt was for the best, and the promise that his descendants should become a great nation was repeated. The prospect of any greatness still seemed remote at this time. These wandering clans needed just such a place as Goshen in which to increase in numbers undisturbed by hostile neighbors; a place, too, where they could learn from the Egyptians something of the arts of life. Therefore it was God's plan for them to find in Egypt an asylum where they could live a settled life. The bringing of Jacob and his sons into Egypt brought about that consummation.

The Meeting Of Jacob and Joseph, Genesis 46.28-34.—On the confines of Egypt they were met by Joseph. Like a king Joseph had sent for his father, and like a king he came to meet him in his imperial chariot drawn by Egyptian horses, but like a son he fell on his father's neck and wept.

"It may be a grand thing to sit on a high stool and wait till the old man comes upstairs. But it is an infinitely grander thing, a 'lordlier chivalry,' to come off the stool and go away to meet him a mile or two on the road. Your home will be a better home—I do not care how poor the cot—if you have a little sentiment in you, a little tenderness and nice feeling. These are things that sweeten life."—Joseph Parker.

Britain and Europe

Entangling Alliances Have Caused Nothing But Trouble In the Past

Great Britain's troubles lie in and proceed from Europe which has drained her through the centuries of how many millions of lives and what uncountable wealth. The British people mean to be free of this incubus. They mean to regain their liberty of action and to conduct themselves with friendship towards all nations, and to engage in entangling alliances and agreements with none. And they mean to take their own measure of their liabilities and to provide against them as they think fit. The first step to the recovery of our political freedom must be to make an end of this farce of conference after conference at Geneva and Lausanne—futile political tea parties that end in nothing but strife, distract our statesmen from the Empire, and are proving the dearest investment we ever made.—London Express.

Queen Victoria's Letters Published In London

Name Of Former German Kaiser Occupies Prominent Place

The final volume of Queen Victoria's letters, covering the last five years of her life, has been published in London, England, disclosing that she once wrote "It wouldn't do" to give former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany "a good snub."

The letters revealed that the last years of the octogenarian sovereign were marked among other things, by less caustic criticism of national and international events.

The name of the former kaiser occupies a prominent place in the letters, in which the late queen is revealed as an advocate of forbearance when his doings aroused hostility.

This was particularly noticeable at the time of the Boer War when the kaiser sent a telegram to President Krueger of the Transvaal in South Africa, which excited indignation on the part of the British nation. Queen Victoria shared in the indignation, but kept her restraint.

"It wouldn't do," she wrote, "to give him a good snub. Sharp, cutting answers and remarks only irritate and do harm, and in sovereigns and princes should most carefully be guarded against.

"William's faults come from impetuousness, as well as conceit, and calmness and firmness are the most powerful weapons in such cases."

The latest letters furnish evidence of a weariness and longing for rest, but a sense of duty prevailed over that weariness, and up to within a few days of her death she signed documents and attended to business.

New Type Of Cement

Alkali In Western Soils Will Not Destroy It

A short address by Dr. T. Thorvaldson, chemical professor, University of Saskatchewan, marked the closing session of the fifteenth annual convention of the Canadian Chemical Association which was held in Hamilton, Ontario. A distinct Canadian achievement, the invention of a new type of cement which would resist the destruction wrought by the alkali present in western soils, was discussed by Dr. Thorvaldson. The new invention is expected to save millions of dollars a year, the western professor said, to builders, roadmakers and waterworks systems.

"No," he said slowly. "No. The boiling over part is done with—finished. . . . . I'm going to take her away from him."

He spoke with a curious precision. It frightened Jean far more than any impetuous outburst of anger could have done. She made no answer for a moment, but her mind worked rapidly. She did not doubt the absolute sincerity of his intention. This was no mere reckless boast of an angry lover, but the sane, considered aim and object of a man who has come, by way of some long agony of thwarting, to a set determination.

"Do you mean that, Nick?" she asked at last, to gain time.

"Do I mean it?" he laughed. Then his hands gripped the arms of the chair and he leaned forward. I saw her—last evening after dinner. . . . . Her shoulder was black."

A sharp cry broke from Jean's lips.

"Not—not—he hadn't——"

Nick nodded.

"He had struck her. There was one of the usual scenes when they got back from the Moor—and he struck her. . . . It's the first time he has ever actually laid hands her. It's going to be the last"—grimly.

Jean was silent. Her whole soul was in revolt against the half-mad, drug-ridden creature who was making of Claire's life a daily martyrdom; the instinct to protect her, to succour her in some way, asserting itself with almost passionate force. And yet——She knew that Nick's way was not the right way.

"Yes, it must be the last time," she agreed. "But—but, Nick, your plan won't do, you know."

Nick stiffened.

"Think not?" he said curtly. "Can you suggest a better?" Then, as Jean remained miserably silent: "Nor can I. And one thing I swear—I won't leave the woman I love in the hands of a man who is practically a maniac, to be tortured day after day, mentally and physically, just whenever he feels like it."

It struck Jean as curious that Nick had been able, more or less, to keep himself in hand whilst Sir Adrian inflicted upon Claire whatever of mental and spiritual torture seemed good in his distorted vision. It was the fact that he had hurt her physically, laid his hand upon her in actual violence, which had scattered Nick's self-control to the four winds of heaven. To Jean herself, it seemed conceivable that the mental anguish of Claire's married life had probably far outstripped any mere bodily pain. Half tentatively she gave expression to her thoughts.

"God God!" he exclaimed. "If you were a man, you'd understand! I see ren when I think of that damned brute striking the woman I love. It—it was sacrilege!"

"And won't it be—another kind of sacrilege—if you take her away with you, Nick?" asked Jean very quietly.

He flushed dully.

"He'll divorce her, and then we shall marry," he answered.

"Even so"—steadily—"it would be doing evil that good may come."

"Then we'll do it—savagely. "It's easy enough for you to sit there moralizing, perfectly placid and comfortable. Claire and I have borne all we can. It has been bad enough to care as we care for each other, and to live apart. But when it means that Claire is to suffer unspeakable misery and humiliation while I stand by and look on—why, it's beyond human endurance. You're not tempted. You've no conception what you're talking about."

Jean sat very still and silent while Nick stormed out the bitterness of soul, recognizing the truth of every word he uttered — even the gibes which, in the heediessness of his own pain, he flung at herself.

Presently she got up and moved rather slowly across to his side.

"Nick," she said, and her eyes, looking into his, were very bright and clear and steady. Somehow for Nick they held the semblance of two flames, torches of pure light, burning unflickeringly in the darkness. "Nick, every word you say is true. I'm not tempted as you and Claire have been, and so it seems sheer cheek my interfering. But I'm only asking you to do what I pray I'd be strong enough to do myself in like circumstances. I don't believe any true happiness can ever come of running away from duty. And if ever I'm up against such a thing—a choice like this—I hope to God I'd be able to hang on . . . . to run straight, even if it half killed me to do it."

The quick, impassioned utterance ceased, and half shrinkingly Jean realized that she had spoken out of the very depths of her soul, crystallizing in so many words the uttermost ideal and credo of her being. In some strange, indefinable fashion it was borne in on her that she had reached an epoch of her life. It was as when a musician, arrived at the end of a musical period, strikes a chord which holds the keynote of the ensuing passage.

She faltered and looked at Nick beseechingly, suddenly self-conscious, as we most of us are when we find we have laid bare a bit of our inmost soul to the possibly mocking eyes of a fellow human being.

But Nick's eyes were not in the least mocking.

Instead of that, some of the hardness seemed to have gone out of them, and his voice was very gentle, as taking Jean's two hands in his, he answered:

"I believe you would run straight, little Jean—even if it meant tearing your heart out of your body to do it. But, you know, you're always on the side of the angels—instinctively. I'm only a man—just an average earthy man"—smiling ruefully—"and my ideals all tumble down-and sit on the ground in a heap when I think of what my girl's enduring as Latimer's wife. I believe I might stick my part of the business—but I can't stick it for her."

"And yet," urged Jean, "if you go away together, Nick, it's she who'll pay, you know. The woman always does. Supposing—supposing Sir Adrian doesn't divorce her—and refuses to? It would be just like him to punish her that way. What about Claire—then?"

"He would divorce her," protested Nick harshly.

Jean shook her head.

"I don't think so. Honestly, I believe he would get undiluted satisfaction out of the fact that, as long as he lived, he could stand between Claire and everything that a normal woman wants—home, and a sheltered life, and the knowledge that no one can 'say things' about her. Oh, Nick, Nick! Between you—you and Sir Adrian—you'd make an outcast of Claire, make her life a worse hell with you than it is without you." She paused, then went on more quietly: "Have you said anything to her about this—told her what you want her to do?"

"No, not yet—not definitely."

Jean breathed a quick sigh of relief.

"Then don't! Promise me you won't, Nick?"

"She might refuse, after all," he suggested, evading a direct answer.

"Refuse! You know her better than that. If you wanted Claire to make a burnt-offering of herself for your benefit tomorrow, you know she'd do it! And—and"—laughing a little hysterically—"pretend, too, that she enjoyed the process of being grilled! No, Nick, it's up to you to—to just go on helping to make her life bearable, as you have done for the last two years."

"It's asking too much of me, Jean."

Nick spoke a little thickly. He was up against one of man's most primitive instincts—the instinct to protect and comfort and cherish the woman he loved.

"I know. It's asking everything of you."

Jean waited. She felt that she had gained a certain amount of ground—that Nick's resolution had weakened a little in response to her pleading, but she feared to drive him too far. She fancied she could hear steps crossing the hall below. If someone should come upstairs and disturb them now, while things were still trembling in the balance——

"See, Nick," she began to speak again hurriedly. "You believe I'm your pal—your and Claire's?"

"I know it," he replied quietly.

"And—and you do care a bit about me?"—smiling a little.

"You're the third woman in my world, Jean. After Claire and my mother."

Vocabulary Of the Crow

Birds Belonging To Tribe Are Very Versatile

E. W. Hendy, writing in London Nineteenth Century, says: "One would expect the crow tribe, whose members are so full of brains and wickedness, to have a large vocabulary. The raven, who is perhaps the wisest and most mischevious of them all, is, indeed, very versatile in his language. I have written more fully elsewhere of some of his notes, so eloquent of his many-coloured moods; it will suffice here to say that he can proclaim anger, alarm, humour, pleasure, roguery, and even, by a kind of snort, disdain. Rooks are almost equally loquacious; they are credited with from thirty to forty different notes, and are even said to have evolved several "words." That they have a large and heterogeneous glossary anyone can testify who has listened to the extraordinary babel of sound which accompanies their going to roost and their nesting operations."

Times Have Changed

World Goes Far In Sanitation During Last Twenty Years

A catalogue issued by a school for the nobility of Saint Cyr, France, 20 years ago, was discovered recently. It shows how far we have come in the matter of personal cleanliness and sanitation since that time. Pupils at this school were entitled to one suit of underwear, one pair of stockings and two handkerchiefs a month. One towel had to last a week without laundering. One foot bath monthly and three complete baths yearly, one each in May, June and July, were prescribed.

Earl Of Egmont Estate Valued At Two Hundred Thousand Pounds

The London Daily Telegraph says the Earl of Egmont, former Priddis, Alta., rancher who was fatally injured in an automobile crash near Southampton, left an estate of £282,522.

The newspaper estimated the net value of the estate, after deduction of succession and other state levies, at £211,400.

The earl, who lived with his son in the kitchen of Avon Castle, left no will, and letters of administration, until further representation shall be granted, are in the name of the Royal Bank of Scotland at Edinburgh.

The earl's direct heir is his son, Viscount Perceval, a young man of 17 who could rope and brand a calf with the best of the hands on his father's ranch at Priddis.
