Music Pupils Feature Recital

Pupils of Mrs. J. E. Johnston in Nicely Arranged Programme Instrumental and Elocutionary Numbers—Large Turnout.

Parents and friends of the elocution and piano pupils of Mrs. J. E. Johnston were out in large numbers on Saturday afternoon for the annual recital at the Parish Hall. The pupils performed unusually well, reflect ng great credit on their teacher who, undoubtedly, takes a great interest in developing the musical sense of the pupils. Iris Taylot should have assumed the duties of chairman but was unable to attend, and here place was nicely taken by Molly Moore.

Mrs. Johnston opened proceedings with a few appropriate remarks, the class favored with O Canada, with Betty Speers at the piano. Senior pupils, assisted by Elizabeth and Margaret Armitage, gave two well rendered songs, "The Bells of St. Mary" and "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac Time." Miss Margaret Crawford feelingly rendered "Sing Me to Sleep," and was recalled; singing "Absent" for an encore.

Lorraine Olivier was particularly clever in her reading of Mozart's life, showing great possibilities as as elocutionist. Ka hleen Bundy followed the reading, playing, Mozart's Sonata No. 17. Lorraine also recited "Dreams," again showing a very earnest style with good phrasing.

Louis Johnston gave a little story of the Pedlar Mouse in his own inimitable style which caught the fancy of the audience. Edith Johnston recited "Old Fashioned People," breathing life and inspiration into the poem. Goldie Walker and Margnerite Grant sang "Early One Morning." While a bit nervous they caught the mood of the song nicely.

Mrs. Johnston gave "The Singers," from Longfellow, in a clear reading style. The pupils who favored with piano selections were Lillian Johnson and Leah Abbott of Wynndel, Marguerite Grant, Goldie Walker, Edith Johnston, Hughene McCreath, Margaret Henderson, Molly Moore, Kathleen Bundy, each playing well according to their different style of theme.

Mrs. Johnston and her pupils were complimented on the artistic decoration of the hall, lilacs being the flower decoration and the stage setting was particularly effective, Margaret Henderson seeing that each person received a sprig of lilac on entering the hall. The singing of the national anthem brought the programme to a close. Lunch was served by a committee of Women's Institute members and this feature added much to the afternoon's pleasure. The accompanists for the recital were Misses Marguerite Crawford and Betty Speers, and Mrs. Johnston.

Sirdar

Arthur Lombardo returned to his home last week after spending a brief holiday at Tye with his brother Frank.

Miss Ruth Cummings of Boswell was a visitor at Sirdar on Monday, making the trip with Tom Kuntz.

On Sunday many of the children and a good number of adults hiked to Kuskanook for a picnic which was much enjoyed by all.

A grader from Boswell has been out again as far as Atbara, leaving the roads in pretty good condition.

J. MacDiarmid of Nelson was a Monday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson.

Mrs. J. Talarico was a visitor at Creston on Thursday, A. North was a visitor on Friday and Tony Lombardo was there Monday.

Fishing is exceptionally good. Many char were caught at Slough bridge, Atbara, over the weeke d.

The water guage at Slough bridge stands at 14.45. This is a drop of 0.15 for the week. While a drop has been apparent in the water during the last few days, this cannot be regarded as any criterion as to the ultimate height the water will reach. The cold of the past several days is entirely responsible for the lowering of the water. There is one thing noted, the flow seems to be faster than usual, which is another factor of preventing high water.

Five of the younger folks motored to Boswell on the 24th of May to attend the donce that evening there. Everyone reported a good time.

The W. M. Archibald aeroplane made several excellent practice landings and take offs from Duck Lake on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. E. Martin was a visitor at Creston on Monday.

Many tourist cars are passing through, and it is noted that women drivers predominate.

Everyone is busy on their land, taking advantage of the moisture so plentiful this month. Good crops are expected.

V. Z. Manning, school inspector, made an official visit to Sirdar public school on Monday.

Miss Frances Talarico was a visitor at the home of her parents over the 24th of May holiday, returning the following day.

T. Rogers was a business visitor at Creston last Monday, also Jas. S. Wilson.

A. C. Whitehouse, water engineer of Jaffray, was a business visitor at Kootenay Landing last Monday, proceeding to Nelson the same day.

On May 24th Principal Roy Johnston and the school children hiked to the Mannarino place for a picnic. Owing to the stormy weather it had to be cut short, but everyone enjoyed the hike.

A noted fact in this district is not only the large number of birds but the variety of same. Birds never seen before in the district being among the many. Canaries are not as plentiful as usual.

It was found necessary to double strengthen the boom for catching drift wood at the river, Kootenay Landing, and it is now in operation with a crew on the job to deal with the large amount of driftwood coming down stream.

Canyon City

Canyon baseball team evened the count with Creston by taking Sunday afternoon's game by a margine of 11-7, with Niblow and Hale as the local battery. Canyon will play at Creston again on Sunday.

Miss Nissie McRobb, accompanied by two of her nieces, who have been holidaying here, left at the end of the week for a short visit with her sister, Mrs. Houle, at Kimberley.

Canyon witnessed unusal activity in the spraying line on Friday last. It was the first real good day to put on the calyx spray, and every machine in Canyon was busy.

Orchardists are freely predicting the largest yet crop in the winter varieties of apples, as well as the McIntosh Red. Their is also a wonderful cherry crop in sight.

Mrs. Niblow, who has been a patient in Creston hospital, returned home at the first of the week, much mproved in health.

Goat River is now running clear and falling rapidly, much to the delight of those who have taken out angler's licenses.

The outlook for the first utting of alfalfa is just about the best Canyon has ever known and acsording to reports the crop is even superior to the Lister-Huscroft area. Cutting will not commence for at least two weeks.

About 60 of the Canyon friends of Mrs. Marshall (nee Margaret Nygaard) were guests at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. A. Halstead on Thursday last, when sociability, wedding gift remembrances and lunch were happily combined to provide a most enjoyable evening. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Manfred Samuelson and Mrs. Roy Browell.

Form Six-Club Baseball League

Eastport, Porthill, Canyon, Kitchener and 2 Creston Teams Comprise Circuit—Play Ten Games—Season End July 26th

International league baseball will be in evidence agafn this year, with six teams in the circuit, two of which are from Creston, thus assuring local fans a game every Sunday.

All arrangements for the league's operation were completed at a meeting at Erickson last week, at which representatives were present from Porthill, Kitchener, Canyon, and Creston Frothblowers and Intermediates. Eastport was not represented but a letter was received from that town stating that whatever arrangements were agreeable to the other five towns would suit them.

To expedite league operations it was agreed to have affairs directed by a secre ary, and for this position R. M. Telford was the unanimous choice. Wherever possible double umpires will work in every game. The schedule that has been adopted gives each team ten games—five at home and five abroad—and the season will close at the end of July.

It was agreed that from each game one dollar of the cash intake will go into a centra. fund, which will be used as a prize for the winning team in a playoff series at the close of the season. The balance of the intake at the games will be split 50-50.

The league season opened on Sunday with Porthill at Creston where they took their first defeat of the season from the Frothblowers 18-11. Fortin, Schade and Romano did battery work for locals, and King and Hawks for Porthill. Creston Intermediates made their first appearance at Canyon, and came out on t e shortend of a 12-7 score. The batteries were Niblow and Hale for Canyon, and "Bud" Miller, Art Couling and L. Spencer for Creston. With steady pitching by Louis Anderson, excellent backstop support by Claude Simpson and some nifty hitting Kitchener won ts first league fixture by a 5-1 margin against Eastport.

Louis Luke New Indian Chief

New Chief Succeees Brother Dominic Heads of All East Kootenay Reserves Here for Election and Installation.

Creston was favored with quite a large influx of indians from the various reserves in East Kootenay, and a much larger delegation from the reserve at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, on the occasion of the election and installation of a new chief for the Creston tribe, which took place last Wednesday and Thursday with agent Fred Ryckman, of Cranbrook, here to superintend the election and have a part in the installation.

Chief Paul David of Tobacco Plains, chief Louis Abell of Columbia Lake, second chief Louis Joseph of Windermere, first and second chief Adrian and Eustace of St. Mary's Cranbrook; acting chief Louis Stowekan of the Stuswaps, Athalmer; chief Charles Isadore, Bonners Ferry, chief Frank Joseph of Arrow Lakes, and acting chief Louis Abell of the Creston reserve were the notables in attendance

The election was by secret ballot with the polling place at Abell's house, Agent Fred Ryckman was in charge of the ballot box and there were the usual two scrutineers. So far as can be learned the vote was almost unaimous for Louis Luke, a son of old Luke, and who is also a brother of the deceased chief, Dominic Luke, and both of these are nephews of the former chief, Alexander.

As soon as the election was formally announced and received with considerable acclaim, the aforementioned chiefs took charge of the installation exercises, and with these completed they and Agent Ryckman gave the new head of the tribe some good and wholesome instruction for his new labors

The date for the exercises was admirably chosen as it came at the feast of Corpus Christii and Father Patterson of Cranbrook, who has charge of ndian mission work, was here to conduct the solemn yet colorful religious rites in connection with the great feast.

So far as can be learned the population of the Creston reserve is now above the 100 mark, which is an increase after an epidemic in 1916 and the flu outbreak in 1918, which took a considerable toll, including the former chief Domnic. Twenty years ago the population was about 170. What early records are available would indicate that it was about 1868 when the first indians located in this section of the Kootenay Valley.

The "Y" store ice cream parlor opened for business last week, and is in charge of Miss Dorothy Marshall of Creston.

Lister

Huscroft ladies trimmed the Copeland nine 20-4. In the men's game Copeland was winner by a margin of 17-11. There was the usual lot of sports for the children and a very fine picnic spread of good eats.

Best for Baby — Best for You

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

To economize in League of Nations expenses a measure proposed by Great Britain has been sent to the supervisory committee.

A bill amending and consolidating the fisheries act was put through the committee stage and given third reading in the House of Commons. There was little discussion.

Millers of north and central Italy are now allowed to use 75 per cent of import grain, south Italy 95 per cent. while in Sardinia and Sicily restrictions have been entirely lifted.

To take possession of a fortune of about $180,000,000, a white-haired Armenian woman, Marianne Djanikian, 80, has gone to India with her two sons.

Hope that 1932 would prove historic in drawing together all citizens of the British Empire was expressed by J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary, in an Empire Day address.

Shanghai was completely isolated from the rest of the world as far as mail is concerned, when the indoor postal workers joined the outdoor workers in a strike.

Attempts to find the abandoned Hudson's Bay Company fur ship "Baychimo," and the salvaging of a rich fur cargo believed to be aboard, have been given up by William R. Graham and Mrs. Edna Christofferson.

Several thousand feet above the city of Chicago a youth killed himself in an aeroplane recently, because his dreams of becoming an aviator had come to naught. He shot himself to death.

In the first case of its kind ever brought in district courts, Angus D. Graham paid $5.25 in county uolice court at London, Ontario, because he is said to have forgotten to put a stamp on a cheque.

New Earl Of Egmont

Has Inherited All His Father's Troubles In Connection With Estate

The new Lord Egmont is a pitiable figure. He made friends with no one but his father, and now there can be hardly any lonelier boy in the world than this 18-year-old earl. He avoids all society, and has a terror of publicity.

He will have all his father's troubles and more, for death duties must again be paid on the Egmont estates. His father was staggered to find the estates reduced in apparent value from $2,500,000 to $1,500,000, due to death duties and settlements on two dowager countesses.

Father and son shot rabbits and pheasants on the castle estate and sold them to neighboring villages to help meet expenses. The boy, who never had a mother's influence, had practically no education or experience of the world, and who has been embittered by the cruel disappointments encountered since reaching England, is left to cope with the problems of a large though impoverished estate.

Canada's Newest Metal

Latest Addition To Many Refined Products Is Selenium

Selenium is the latest addition to the numerous refined metal products now being produced in Canada. It is obtained as a by-product in copper refining and was produced for the first time in Canada early in 1931 at Copper Cliff, Ontario.

Canada is now in a position to produce selenium in large quantities but the market for any output is at present restricted, according to Mr. Arthur Buisson of the Dominion Department of Mines, Ottawa. Further researches to develop new uses will undoubtedly create a wider market for this relatively new commercial product.

Selenium is not very abundant in nature, although fairly widely distributed. It is found associated with sulphur compounds and often accompanies the sulphides of heavy metals in the form of selenides. In the electrolytic refining of copper it remains in the slime or residue from which it is afterwards extracted. In its metallic form it is characterized by a unique action toward light, which has made possible the development of the photo-electric cell or "electric eye."

Selenium finds its present chief market in the glass industry where it is used as a colorizer and for neutralizing other colors; it is also used in the pottery industry for the same purpose. In the manufacture of rubber products it serves as a vulcanizing and accelerating agent, and because of its reputed properties of increasing the resistance to abrasion of rubber up to as much as eighty per cent., it may have a large potential market in that industry. One of the most important potential uses is in the production of selenium cells for television transmission and reception.

Disastrous Economy

Demand For Products Ceases When Advertising Is Stopped

The most advertised manufactures are the ones most asked for. Stores which advertise the most are the most frequented and prosperous. Their prices are no higher than at the other stores. Often they are lower for the precise reason that their advertisements bring them a bigger clientele and, as their sales are therefore far more, they are in a position to be content with a smaller profit on each sale. It was never so important to make sure that we do not become discouraged, and to go ahead with our business and keep money in circulation. How can we expect to succeed if we cut down on our advertisements which create the demand for the products of industry and commerce? This would be a false economy, an economy which would be disastrous.—Le Droit, Ottawa.

Forgotten Soldiers

War Office Evidently Over-Looked Some Detailed For Special Duty

There must have been more than one case similar to the story told by Mr. Cedric Hardwicke in his recently-published autobiography, of the two British soldiers who, detailed to look after a rifle range at Havre in 1914, remained there forgotten until the end of the war, when they reported themselves and claimed five years' back pay, states Candide in the Sunday Pictorial, who himself came across one man in a similar position at Innsbruck, the chief town of the Austrian Tyrol, three years after the war had ended. Dining in a hotel there, he was surprised to see at a nearby table a British captain in uniform. They got into conversation, and he said that he had been sent there in 1918 and was convinced he had been forgotten by the War Office. "Why don't you get in touch with London?" asked the writer. "Why should I?" was his answer. "This is a cheap place in which to live."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JOSEPH THE WORKER

Golden Text: "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings."—Proverbs 22.29.

Lesson: Genesis 39 to 41.

Devotional Reading: Luke 19.11-23.

Explanations and Comments

Joseph's Work During the Years Of Plenty, verses 16-49.—"What a position for a man to attain at thirty years of age! Sold as a slave when seventeen, grand vizier of Egypt when thirty! God took thirteen years to make this man; and this man was the benefactor, and, under God, the saviour of the nation."

Joseph was Pharaoh's vizier. What that position meant Professor Breasted explains: "The supreme position occupied by Pharaoh meant a very active participation in the affairs of the government. He was accustomed every morning to meet the vizier, to consult with him on all the interests of the country and the current business which necessarily came under his eye. The chief treasurer, through the local officials, collected all taxes; he was, however, under the authority of the vizier, to whom he made a report every morning. In the administration of justice the vizier was supreme. He was the motive power behind the organization. In his office we discern the complete centralization of all local government in all its functions."

No grass grew under the feet of Joseph during the seven years of plenty as he went throughout all the land of Egypt travelling from city to city, personally overseeing the conservation of grain. Royal granaries had to be built and stored with one-fifth of the harvests, so marvelously plentiful that they were "as the sands of the sea." In the beginning all was carefully registered but at length Joseph had to "leave off numbering," for his scribes could not keep up with the work.

"Take no thought for the morrow," Jesus counseled, but he meant take no anxious thought, have such trust in God's help that you will not be over-anxious about what the morrow may bring forth. Anxiety, worry, about the future, is unchristian; prudent preparation for the possible, probable, or inevitable, is Christian. "Fore-sorrow is very foolish, but forethought is very wise."

A Hundred Point Man

Is True To Every Trust and Safe Person To Deal With

"A Hundred Point Man" is one who is true to every trust; who keeps his word; who is loyal to friends and to those who employ him; who does not listen for insults nor look for slights; who carries a civil tongue in his head; who is polite to strangers, and is never "fresh"; who is considerate towards employees; moderate in eating and drinking; who is always willing to learn; who is cautious and yet courageous.

Hundred-point men are safe men to deal with, whether they be chauffeurs, motor men, clerks, cashiers, engineers, teachers or presidents of this and that.

Repair Vessels At Esquimalt

Summer Overhaul Of C.P.R. Pacific Steamers To Be Made In Canada

Summer overhaul of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Empress liners which ply out of Vancouver, will be done at Esquimalt instead of at Hongkong in future, it is announced by Capt. E. Aikman, general superintendent of Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd.

The general overhaul, which takes place every winter, will still be done in the Orient.

The decision, which will bring additional employment for British Columbia workmen, has been reached by agreement with the Dominion Government.

The government has made concessions regarding dock dues and the Canadian Pacific Railway has undertaken to pay the additional costs of labor, which is nearly five times as expensive as that in the Orient.

The new policy will become effective with S.S. Empress of Russia which will go into drydock on July 15. She will be followed in turn by S.S. Empress of Japan, S.S. Empress of Asia and S.S. Empress of Canada.

One Of Canada's Largest Lakes

Great Bear Lake, the fourth largest on the North American Continent, has an area, according to the best information available, of 11,663 square miles. The Topographical Survey Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has recently issued a map on the scale of eight miles to an inch including the whole lake.

The city of Bahia, in Brazil, has a 240 foot elevator tower which carries pedestrians from the streets by the bay up to the streets on the hill.

WHERE TO SPEND AN ENJOYABLE VACATION

Canada-This Year

SINCE the annual vacation has become a definite part of modern life, the decision as to where it will be spent is of considerable importance. Canada has a particular appeal to the vacationist, for it has an unusual variety of attractions, which may be enjoyed at reasonable cost.

For most people, the summer vacation is limited to a few weeks and is really shortened by the time used in travelling to and from the locality selected. Canada has an extensive system of good roads and excellent railway services, which greatly facilitate travel between provinces.

Canada presents a striking diversity of natural features—the rugged and picturesque Atlantic Coast; the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes, the world's greatest inland waterway; the Laurentian Mountains, land of forest and stream; the prairies; the majestic Rockies; and the beautiful Pacific Coast. Each of these areas has its own attractions of scenic beauty and opportunities for enjoyable recreation. Fishing, hunting, camping, canoeing, and mountain-climbing may all be enjoyed under ideal conditions, while golf and tennis may be played practically everywhere. Accommodation includes everything from camp site to luxurious hotel. Those to whom economy is a matter of concern may spend a pleasant vacation close to nature, at surprisingly small cost.

The National Development Bureau, Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, has prepared a series of automobile road maps, showing the main routes from one province to another, also a number of interesting booklets, including "Vacations in Canada," which describe the tourist attractions of each province. These will be sent to any of our readers planning a vacation. Applicants should state the areas in which they are interested.

AS SLIM AS AT 20

Still Fit and Active at 55

"I have been taking the small dose of Kruschen Salts every morning for the last three years. I wouldn't be without them in the house. I used to suffer with constipation and piles, but am never troubled in that way now. I am 55 years, and as slim as when I was 20. I have to work very hard, as I have my family and an invalid father to attend to, and I always say it's the Kruschen that keeps me fit."—M. S.

There's nothing like hard work and activity for keeping superfluous fat away. The trouble with most folks is finding the necessary energy. That is where Kruschen comes in.

After you have had your daily supply of Kruschen every morning for a couple of weeks you'll get what is known the world over as "That Kruschen Feeling."

The urge for activity will fill your entire being—you'll not be content to sit in the old arm chair after your day's work is done.

You'll feel the spirit of youth within you—what a joyous feeling—you'll want to take long walks, play games and your work will cease to be a hardship—it will become a pleasure.

CHAPTER XXII.

"Willing Or Unwilling!"

It was over. A bare twenty yards from the brow of the hill the man had won, and now the mare was standing swaying between the shafts, shaking in every limb, her flanks heaving and the sweat streaming off her sodden coat in little rivulets.

Burke was beside her, patting her down and talking to her in a little intimate fashion much as though he were soothing a frightened child.

"You're all in, aren't you, old thing?" he murmured sympathetically. Then he glanced up at Jean, who was still sitting in the cart, feeling rather as though the end of the world had occurred and, in some surprising fashion, left her still cumbering the earth.

"She's pretty well run herself out," he remarked. "We shan't have any more trouble going home"—smiling briefly.

"I hope not," answered Jean a trifle flatly.

"You all right?"

She nodded.

"Yes, thank you. You must be an excellent whip," she added. "I thought the mare would never stop."

Probably even Jean hardly realized the fineness of the horsemanship of which she had just been a witness — the judgment and cooiness Burke had evinced in letting the mare spend the first freshness of her strength before he essayed to check her mad pace; the dexterity with which he had somehow contrived to keep her straight; and finally, the consummate skill with which, that last half-mile, he had played her mouth, rejecting the dead pull on the reins—the instinctive error of the mediocre driver —which so quickly numbs sensation and neutralizes every effort to bring a runaway to a standstill.

"Yes. I rather thought our number was up," agreed Burke absently. He was passing his hands feelingly over the mare to see if she were all right, and suddenly, with a sharp exclamation, he lifted one of her feet from the ground and examined it.

"Cast a shoe and torn her foot rather badly," he announced. "I'm afraid we shall have to stop at the next village and get her shod. It's not a mile further on. You and I can have tea at the inn while she's at the blacksmith's."

With a final caress of the steaming chestnut neck, he came back to the side of the cart, reins in hand.

"Can you drive her with a torn foot?" queried Jean.

"Oh, yes. We'll have to go carefully down this hill, though. There are such a confounded lot of loose stones about."

He climbed into the dog-cart and very soon they had reached the village, where the chestnut, tired and subdued, was turned over to the blacksmith's ministrations while Burke and Jean made their way to the inn.

Tea was brought to them upstairs in a quaint, old-fashioned parlour fragrant of bygone times. Oaken beams, black with age, supported the ceiling, and on the high chimneypiece pewter dishes gleamed like silver, while at either end an amazingly hideous spotted dog, in genuine old Staffordshire, surveyed the scene with a satisfied smirk. Through the leaded diamond panes of the window was visible a glimpse of the Moor.

"What an enchanting place!" commented Jean, as, tea over, she made a tour of inspection, pausing at last in front of the window.

Burke had been watching her as she wandered about the room, his expression moody and dissatisfied.

"It's a famous resort for honeymooners," he answered. "Do you think"—enquiringly—"it would be a good place in which to spend a honeymoon?"

"That depends," replied Jean cautiously. "If the people were fond of the country, and the Moor, and so on —yes. But they might prefer something less remote from the world."

"Would you?"

"I?"—with detachment. "I'm not contemplating a honeymoon."

Suddenly Burke crossed the room to her side.

"We might as well settle that point now," he said quietly. "Jean, when will you marry me?"

She looked at him indignantly.

"I've answered that question before. It isn't fair of you to reopen the matter here—and now."

"No," he agreed. "It isn't fair. In fact, I'm not sure that it isn't rather a caddish thing for me to do, seeing that you can't get away from me just now. But all's fair in love and war. And it's both love and war between us two"—grimly.

"The two things don't sound very compatible," fenced eJan.

"It's only war till you give in—till you promise to marry me. Then"— a smouldering light glowed in his eyes —"then I'll show you what love means."

She shook her head.

"I'm afraid," she said, attempting to speak coolly, "that it means war indefinitely then, Geoffrey. I can give you no different answer."

"You shall!" he exclaimed violently. "I tell you, Jean, it's useless your refusing me. I won't take no. I want you for my wife—and, by God, I'm going to have you!"

She drew away from him a little, backing into the embrasure of the window. The look in his eyes frightened her.

"Whether I will or no?" she asked, still endeavouring to speak lightly. "My feelings in the matter don't appear to concern you at all."

"I'd rather you came willingly—but, if you won't, I swear I'll marry you, willing or unwilling!"

He was standing close to her now, staring down at her with sombre, passion-lit eyes, and instinctively she made a movement as though to elude him and slip back again into the room. In the same instant his arms went round her and she was prisoned in a grip from which she was powerless to escape.

"Don't struggle," he said, as she strove impotently to release herself. "I could hold you from now till doomsday without an effort."

There was a curious thrill in his voice, the triumphant, arrogant leap of possession. He held her pressed against him, and she could feel his chest heave with his labouring breath.

"You're mine—mine! My woman —meant for me from the beginning of the world—and do you think I'll give you up? . . . . Give you up? I tell you, if you were another man's wife I'd take you away from him! You're mine—every inch of you, body and soul. And I want you. Oh, my God, how I want you!"

"Let me go . . . Geoffrey . . ."

The words struggled from her lips. For answer his arms tightened round her, crushing her savagely, and she felt his kisses burning, scorching her face, his mouth on hers till it seemed as though he were draining her very soul.

When at last he released her, she leant helplessly against the woodwork of the window, panting and shaken. Her face was white as a magnolia petal and her eyes dark-rimmed with purple shadow.

A faint expression of compunction crossed Burke's face.

"I suppose—I shall never be forgiven now," he muttered roughly.

With an effort Jean forced her tongue to answer him.

"No," she said in a voice out of which every particle of feeling seemed to have departed. "You will never be forgiven."

A look of deviltry came into his eyes. He crossed the room and, locking the door, dropped the key into his pocket.

"I think," he remarked coolly, "in that case, I'd better keep you a prisoner here till you have promised to marry me. It's you I want. Your forgiveness can come after. I'll see to that."

The result of his action was unexpected. Jean turned to the window, unlatched it, and flung open the casement.

"If you don't unlock that door at once, Geoffrey," she said quietly, "I shall leave the room—this way" — with a gesture that sufficiently explained her meaning.

Her voice was very steady. Burke looked at her curiously.

"Do you mean—you'd jump out?" he asked, openly incredulous.

Her eyes answered him. They were feverishly bright, with an almost fanatical light in them, and suddenly Burke realized that she was at the end of her tether, that the emotional stress of the last quarter of an hour had taken its toll of her high-strung temperament and that she might even do what she had threatened. He had no conception of the motive behind the threat—of the imperative determination which had leaped to life within her to endure or suffer anything rather than stay locked in this room with Burke, rather than give Blaise, the man who held her heart between his two hands, ground for misunderstanding or mistrusting her anew.

Contract Bridge

By Hamlin B. Hatch, Cavendish Club Toronto

(Article No. 1.)

The greatest asset any contract bridge player can possess is the ability to play partnership. The basis of success in the game is good partnership. The first thing, therefore, for the contract player to learn is partnership methods. The essence of partnership is, primarily, partnership language, and the basis of language is conventions. In other words, it is necessary for partnership purposes, that certain precise meanings be given to the language used in the contracting. These meanings are known as conventions and the difference in these conventions, is the basis of the difference in all the so-called contract systems now being put before the contract player. It must be understood that any system is an attempt to make easy to learn the methods the good card player has used for many years, and that the fundamental differences in all these systems are slight.

Besides conventions a good partner must make it a habit to study, whenever the opportunity arises, the temperament, morale, and technique of his partner. By temperament is meant the way a partner reacts. Does he lose his poise when the breaks are against him and does this loss of poise affect his game, or does he remain calm and collected in the face of adversity? If your partner never loses his poise then half the battle of partnership is won. By morale is meant how your partner's courage is affected by adversity and what effect does adversity have on your partner's intellectual processes? If your partner has bad breaks does he underbid or overbid? Or is he not affected apparently in any way. If your partner thinks that every time he holds an Ace Queen, that the King is over him, that everytime he holds a King Jack that the Ace Queen is over him, then, this may affect him to such an extent that he will consistently underbid. A good partner, under these circumstances, when playing with a partner who is suffering from the complex outlined above will offset these conditions by overbidding his own hand.

By technique is meant your partner's actual ability in the play of the cards. Does he or does he not get all the tricks possible? If he consistently drops a trick in the play of the hand, then a good partner when playing with a poor technician will underbid his hands, when the poor technician is the contractor. If on the other hand, your partner is a good technician bid your cards to their value limit.

A good player must always adapt himself to his partner. And adaptability is one of the strongest assets of any player. If you have an unskilled partner, you must not try to lift him up by his bootstraps to your level. You must sing to his. No partnership is better than its weakest member and to have successful partnership, the partners must meet on the same intellectual plane.

Further be pleasant and affable. Do not "rag" your partner. Keep the entente cordial established. Never, if possible, lose your poise. And if your partner has a set system of playing the game, then for that particular partnership, play the game your partner plays and do not try to cram down his throat any of your own pet idiosyncrasies.

If then, you will realize that the theme song of contract bridge is partnership and more partnership, and that winning depends on partnership as outlined above, you will be well on the road to success, and even if your own technique is weak, you will be seventy-five per cent. good player provided you play good partnership.

A commonplace life we say, and we sigh;
But why should we sigh as we say?
The commonplace sun in the commonplace sky
Make up the commonplace day:
The moon and the stars are commonplace things,
And the flower that blooms, and the bird that sings;
But dark were the world and sad our lot,
If the flowers failed and the sun shone not;
And God, who studies each separate soul,
Out of commonplace lives makes His beautiful whole.

—Susan Coolidge.

The course of life is a thousand trifles, then some crisis, and again a thousand trifles and a crisis; nothing but green leaves under common sun and shadow; and then a storm or a rare June day. And far more than the storm or the perfect day the common sun and common shadow do to make the autumn rich. It is the "every days" that count. They must be made to tell, or the years have failed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Canyon Development

Editor Review:

Sir,—I write with reference to the power situation in this Valley, a matter to which your columns have given repeated attention of recent months and one which has been receiving the more than passing attention of the Village Commissioners and the Board of Trade for some considerable time. I hold no brief for any special interest neither do I have any personal axe to grind, and I ask for some small space to frankly and without feeling or bias outline a situation which apart from the stress of the times is operating much to the disadvantage of town and district. My pretext must be that while meetings and correspondence have taken place the rock bottom of the situation with respect to power development in in this Valley has not yet been reached, and it is with the hope that this communication may do so and thereby help at least to better the picture that I venture into it.

As a premise I must take you back to the applications which were filed to acquire the waters of Goat River for power purposes by the Creston Power, Light & Telephone Co., Ltd., and the South Kootenay Power Co., for convenience referred to hereafter as the West Kootenay. When the minister decided these conflicting applications in favor of the West Kootenay, and I write in no spirit of criticsm of his decision, a second power company proposing a distribution throughout the length and breadth of this Valley was created. Except under one special circumstance one of these companies must be eliminated and that at the expense of the consumers of power and light within the town and the potential consumers in the district, that excepted circumstance being if the West Kootenay wholesaled their power, developed either at Canyon or stepped down from a high line running by way of this Valley to East Kootenay.

Now what is the position at the Goat River Canyon? The comptroller of water rights speaking at a meeting this last week outlined the position that they were at this time receiving a revenue from the West Kootenay Co. with respect to the Canyon, that they were not prepared to effect a cancellation, but were ready to consider any application of responsible parties adequately financed, to acquire power rights at Goat River. The West Kootenay position was that at the expense of some thousands of dollars they have investigated a major development at Goat Canyon and have found the same to be uneconomic as the Valley is constituted at this time, that if any responsible interests thought they could handle the situation better than they could, they were prepared, upon reimbursement, to relinquish their rights. Whether the two statements are the same only differently expressed can only be determined by an application to acquire rights off the government and learning the conditions, but if they are the same then the power rights at Canyon are open to anyone but with a price tag attached. The cost to the consumer of these tags, which in the last analysis are directly reflected in the rates, has already commenced, and while in the aggregate such costs bear only a small relation to the costs of a major development they will be a much greater percentage in their relation to the cost of developing any partial head at Goat Canyon.

And what of the position of the power companies? One has a distribution system and no water power, the other a water power determined as being uneconomical of development in a major way at this time. The one may be making a profit in operation, if so perhaps it may continue for the mere shekels in the business to hold the sack; if losing, with no future before it, may drop the bag and cut the losses.

Under such circumstances what of the position of the town and district? They might make, as an improement area under the Water Act, some temporary arrangement pending a minor development at the Canyon or await the working out of something by the West Kootenay. Truly a position of insecurity, one which has developed or at worst created inadvertently by the government, but none the less none of the seeking of the people: a position which has and is at this time operating much to the disadvantage of town and district, and if the people desire to have that position corrected, these disadvantages removed without costs to themselves in subsequent rates, it would properly seem that they should be entitled to secure the same. I do not assert for the purposes of this communication that such feeling exists, but undoubtedly the representations of Village Commissioners and Board of Trade unanimously passed mean something.

While the recent meeting between the Board of Trade committee and the comptroller of water rights, at which officials of the West Kootenay were present, failed to get to the rock bottom of the situation and was productive of nothing concrete, there was this, that the West Kootenay will proceed forthwith to investigate the economic feasibility of a minor development at Goat Canyon such as the utilization of the first head at a much reduced cost of construction, and a pregnant note was struck that all should get together to work the situation out in the interests of all concerned.

GUY CONSTABLE.

CANYON POWER CONFERENCE

By E. C. MURRELL

The Canyon Power Committee of the Board of Trade had a conference with Major MacDonald, water comptroller, and Lorne Campbell, president of the West Kootenay Power Company, in the council chamber on Thursday evening last.

The reeve and F. H. Jackson represented the village commissioners, with Col. Lister, Guy Constable, Jas. Cherrington, Rev. A. Walker, T. M. Edmondson and J. F. Murrell also present. The comptroller told the committee the present holders of the franchise paid an annual assessment to the provincial government as long as they held the same, whether they proceeded with development or not, and it would be fo lish to cancel the franchise. He also stated quite definitely, and with no reservations, that should the village, or anyone else, wish to proceed with development, pro vided proper financial arrangements were made no obstacle would be placed in the way by his board. To this Mr. Campbell agreed, and added that the plans and engineering data prepared by his company were available. He also stated that owing to the present financial stringency his company was unable to proceed with the scheme as a major development, but that he would look into partial development with a rockfilled timber dam and some generators they had at their Bonnington plant.

Various phases of the situation were discussed, and it was clearly demonstrated that if the district wishes to have the most favorable rates and development in the near future the logical thing to do is for the Valley to form an Improvement District under the Water Act and operate their own plant for the benefit of the citizens.

The comptroller stated that his board looked forward to a provincial-wide hook-up controlled by government supervision, and operated by some big company practically as a monopoly. His reasons for this were that competition in power and telephone construction was costly and that the consumer always paid in the end.

Truly a nice state of things to look forward to when one considers that so many of our troubles at the present time are due to monopolies held by big interests, both in money and commerce, and it is obvious the citizens of this province should think long and seriously before agreeing to such a proposition.

The committee are now investigating the matter from the community angle and will submit a report to the next meeting of the board of trade. It is evident that a large number of citizens are of the opinion tha tcommunity development is the right road to follow and when a decision has to be made the pros and cons should be given very careful consideration.

From every angle it is most desirable that such a plant should be owned and operated by the citizens of the valley. From an economic point of view it would seem that now is a good time to proceed with such an undertaking rather than in boom times. Labor is cheap and plentiful, the price of machinery down and the building of a plant would provide a much needed payroll and something that would pay dividends while taking a number of workers off relief.

While it must be admitted that there are difficultie in the way, both financial and otherwise, it must also be admitted that as yet no effort has been made to overcome them. The water rights on Goat River belong to the residents of this valley, and if even this small portion is to be rescued from the rapacious maw of monopoly control no time should be lost.

When the insecurity of our position in regard to electric light and power is considered, and it must be remembered that at the present time there is no evidence that in the near future the system will be extended over the agricultural portion of the valley, it is evident that the time is ripe for a determined effort to overcome what difficulties appear in the way. Light and power for all, cheap rates, and a job for some of our employed, surely these are worth a combined effort. Mr. Pearson's letter to the Review pointed out that we should look after our own affairs. Here is a good chance to begin.

Due to the recent imposition of a sales tax by the federal authorities on wrapped bread Rossland bakers have advanced the price to seven cents a loaf. Unwrapped is four loaves for 25 cents.

The 40th Anniversary of "SALADA" TEA

For 40 years SALADA has given the finest quality in tea. Present prices are the lowest in 15 years.

Cellophane.

Notwithstanding the present state of financial and economic uncertainty prevailing throughout the world, resulting, as it does, in huge business losses, unemployment, and much suffering, which, in turn, leads to general discouragement, the fact remains that the world continues to progress, and when we overcome our present difficulties, and proceed to profit by the lessons of this experience through which we are now passing, the world will be a better place than ever before.

The work of the scientists proceeds apace, important discoveries which will have a far-reaching effect throughout the years to come are being made, new inventions are developed, and brought to a high state of efficiency, — all of which will add to the sum total of human comfort, convenience and prosperity in future years.

Let us take just one example, and it is one in which Canada should be especially interested and from which it will unquestionably largely benefit.

Canada enjoys vast forest wealth. It is one of the richest countries in the world in this respect. For many years the forests of Canada were looked upon as yielding wealth in only one form, namely, lumber. And even in this crude form billions of wealth were produced. Later, the value of our forests as a source of supply for the making of pulp, out of which paper is manufactured, came to be realized, and inasmuch as there are great rivers and waterfalls adjacent to many of our great forest areas, Canada in a few short years became one of the largest manufacturers of newsprint paper in the world, and is today the largest exporter of that everyday article of use.

Scientific men kept on working, and now the spruce trees of Canada not only supply us with lumber, and the countries of the world with paper, but from these same trees comes rayon silk, now manufactured in such quantities that silk hosiery, silk underwear, silk blouses, and many other articles of wearing apparel are worn by the masses of the people, instead of being a luxury only for the rich.

Nowadays when you buy a cigar you find it wrapped up in a little humidor all its own, in a smooth, glossy, transparent, but tough kind of material, which is both moisture and dust proof. Candies, cakes, razor blades, cosmetics, articles of clothing, fruits and spices, in a word, almost everything where it is vitally important that the article should be kept clean, fresh and sanitary, comes to you wrapped in this substance, called cellophane.

And what is cellophane, which has almost over night come into such general use? It is the old spruce tree in a new form. In fact, cellophane and rayon silk is one and the same thing, the only difference resulting from the methods of manufacture. The magazine of Canadian Industries Limited, manufacturers of both rayon and cellophane, explains, as follows:

"Basically, cellophane is the same as artificial silk differing from it only in the form it takes when it reaches the casting stage, where cellophane is cast in a sheet while the silk takes the shape of fine threads.

Not only is cellophane light in weight, sanitary in that it is dust proof and moisture proof, but because of its transparency it shows off the goods so wrapped, and thus becomes a sales agent. Tests have demonstrated that articles and products cellophaned-wrapped command a much larger sale than the same articles when not so wrapped.

The use of cellophane is still in its infancy, but Canadian Industries Limited have such faith in it that they have just erected a million and a quarter dollar cellophane plant in the Province of Quebec. Women's hats are now made of braided, colored cellophane as one new use of the article, but what does the future hold? Will heavier, tougher grades ultimately replace glass in our windows? Will it be developed so that we can write on it with indelible inks and thus enable us to preserve records far beyond the life of ordinary paper? Who can tell, but without a doubt it will be used for many purposes at present unknown to us.

Thus does the world progress, even during times when seemingly things are slipping backward. There are always reasons for encouragement and confidence if we take the trouble to look for them. Cellophane is but an illustration, but in itself it means an entirely new industry, putting to more profitable use one of Canada's great natural resources.

Altar For St. Patrick

On a high hill within a mile of the spot where St. Patrick landed from Rome 1,500 years ago, Ireland is to erect a great open-air altar. The altar will cost £50,000. The money is being raised among villages. The first sod was turned on St. Patrick's day during the celebrations of the 15th centenary.

The job of being wife to a genius is not all lavender, as witness the rejoinder of a notable victim to a gushing young thing who gurgled:

"Well," said the wife, "he's just as hard to get along with as any other darned fool!"

Mountain Pilgrimage

Yearly Pilgrimage To Shrine Of St. Patrick On West Coast Of Ireland

Perhaps the most unusual of all pilgrimages is that made annually to the mountain-top shrine of St. Patrick on the high, bare, cone-shaped mountain which bears his name and which overlooks Clew Bay, County Mayo, on the west coast of Ireland.

Additional interest is lent to the pilgrimage this year because the ceremonies to be held on Sunday, July 31st, will celebrate in honor of the 1500th anniversary of the arrival of St. Patrick in Ireland.

The pilgrimage is made yearly by many Canadians and Americans—so many in fact that the Cunard Line for several seasons has devoted a special sailing to this purpose, the ship calling at Galway, a short distance from Westport, the starting point for the gruelling, rocky climb up the mountain, long known as Croagh Patrick, whose peak stands 2,510 feet above the level of the sea.

According to tradition it was from this mountain that St. Patrick drove all the serpents from Ireland into the sea, never to return.

The pilgrimage up the side of the holy mountain, where St. Patrick spent the forty days of Lent in penance, fasting and prayer, 1500 years ago, begins on Saturday evening any time between six o'clock and midnight, daylight lasting close up to this time. Young people make the ascent in three hours or less, while the older people take much longer, resting frequently during the journey. Torchlights are carried by many to light the way and guard against precipitous falls. Often the crowd breaks into a hymn to make the walking easier or to help them to forget the difficulty of trudging over the stony paths. For the climb up the last two hundred yards before reaching the summit the pilgrims remove their shoes and finish the journey barefooted. Many of the more religious make the entire climb without foot protection.

St. Patrick was seventy years old when he first climbed the mountain. Now many a pilgrim of the same age makes the journey, taking a keen pride in this imitation of a part of the rigid Lenten penance of the patron saint of Ireland. There is still a thrill for them in kneeling where St. Patrick knelt fifteen centuries ago.

An odd thing about the pilgrimage is that rarely does any one turn back. Men and women using crutches finally reach the summit, taking five or more hours to make the ascent. Old folks go hand-in-hand, one helping the other. Girls with tender feet start the climb with old shoes to guard against the thousands of pieces of chipped stones, which cover hundreds of acres of the mountain side. These shoes are worn to shreds long before the summit is reached. Yet no one ever falters. Everybody goes on, just as if there was to be no returning back.

By six o'clock in the morning the half-acre summit of the mountain is crowded and so are the slopes, especially the protected side, should a chill wind be blowing. The masses begin at 6 a.m. and continue to be repeated until noon. As a rule about thirty priests celebrate the services in the oratory or little church, that tips the summit of the mountain. As many as six thousand receive communion.

Although the climb up Croagh Patrick is considered the most strenuous pilgrimage in the world, it is generally agreed that the views from the top are so superb that the visitor, as well as the pilgrim, feels that the journey is well worth the effort.

Wise mothers who know the virtues of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator always have it at hand, because it proves its value.

New Industry For Canada

Plant For Production Of Cellophane Operating In Quebec

Canadian materials and Canadian labor are employed in an industry new to Canada at the Canadian Industries cellophane plant which recently commenced production at Shawinigan Falls, Quebec.

Sulphite pulp from Canadian forests form the basic raw material for the manufacture of the transparent wrapping substance now being made for the first time in Canada. Hitherto all the cellophane used in the Dominion has been imported.

The new plant, built by Canadian workmen through Canadian capital and enterprise, is the newest industry in Canada and the latest addition to the industrial life of this little manufacturing town.

Substitute For Human Voice

Left speechless as the result of an operation some years ago, Dr. J. B. Bogart of New York, addressed the Annapolis Valley Medical Association through an instrument which provides a substitute for the human voice. He spoke for twenty minutes. The instrument is a curved tube-like appliance, one of which is held against the throat, the other held lightly in the mouth. A small tube leads to a box held in the hand. It is from the box that the sound issues. He told the association he had invented it himself after his vocal cords had been removed in an operation for cancer. Dr. Bogart, who is a native of Nova Scotia, practises surgery in New York.

FARM MARKETING PROBLEMS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Ottawa, Ont.—Agricultural marketing problems will be investigated by a federal commission. This announcement was made in the House of Commons by Hon. Robert Weir, a few minutes before the collapse of an attack led by the only woman in the House, Miss Agnes MacPhail, against the agrarian record of the government.

In one of the smallest divisions of the session, the House turned down, 47 to 17, a non-confidence motion against the government, which criticized it for lack of an active farm policy, and enumerated several proposed remedies, including currency inflation.

Two of the major questions to be considered by the commission will be price spreads and the creation of an export marketing board, said the agricultural minister. In view of the approaching Imperial Economic Conference, the government felt the necessity of approaching other Empire countries before setting up a marketing board with its attendant bonusing system.

West More Hopeful

Facing Present Summer With Greater Optimism

Winnipeg, Man.—"Farmers of western Canada are facing the present summer with cheerfulness and optimism with moisture conditions more favorable than for several years." This was the observation of Grant Hall, senior vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway who returned from an inspection tour of the prairies.

"Practically ideal conditions prevail in the northern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan," Mr. Hall stated. "Present indications are that the drouth areas will show great improvement over last year. Grain has shown good germination and even growth in all three prairie provinces.

"This year's crop probably is the cheapest sown since the war," Mr. Hall declared. "The farmer realized that he must cut his expenses to the bone to make profits. He has replaced much of his expensive machinery with horses and has worked harder himself.

"The western farmer has the right spirit," Mr. Hall thought. "He is no fool optimist, and he takes nothing for granted. However, he has the resiliency to recover quickly from hard knocks and the determination to keep his hand to the plow. He may be broke, but he's the backbone of the country."

The Real Reason

Amelia Earhart Wanted To Demonstrate Capability Of Women Pilots

London, England.—The real reason Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam flew the Atlantic alone was to stop all those nasty things men say about women aeroplane pilots and women automobile drivers.

She herself revealed this while enjoying to the utmost an enthusiastic reception accorded by London to her as the first woman ever to make a solo flight across the Atlantic.

"When there is a traffic jam on Fifth Avenue, men always comment, 'Oh, it's a woman driving,'" Mrs. Putnam said.

"And I have gone up in the air with a mechanic who didn't know the controls from an altimeter, and when I came down I heard people say he did most of the flying.

"So I determined to show them. Outside of demonstrating that a woman can fly the Atlantic alone, I don't see that I have added anything to the science of aviation or anything else."

Lengthy Search Ended

New York.—Capt. Fritz Joubert Duquesne, former Boer rebel, wanted by British authorities for the sinking of a British ship by explosion off the Brazil coast during the war, has been re-arrested. He escaped in 1919. The charge against him is murder.

Trade Restrictions

All Countries Should Unite in Resistance To Undue Isolation

Vancouver, B.C.—People of all countries should unite in resistance to undue isolation and the restriction of international trade; James A. Farrell, former president of United States Steel Corporation and now a member of its directorate, said in an address to the Vancouver Board of Trade. He has just returned from the Orient.

By resisting further national movements tending toward isolation, "trade will not be jeopardized and the standard of living which we have learned to enjoy will not diminish," he said.

"Canada and the United States must look across the Pacific," he declared.

"Across, around and through this area there flow already vast currents of international trade, to the Antipodes, the Orient and the Indies. Progress in the means of transportation and communication has lessened the time and distance between the people of this area; at the same time it has fostered and expanded their acquaintance with one another. Each has gain in the knowledge of the products of each other and consumer demand has resulted.

"This demand is now temporarily suspended by causes beyond the power of the producer and consumer — causes in the most part political. Commerce is not so much suffering from over-production as it is from under-consumption.

"With world trade free of unnecessary restrictions, these potential markets are open to the industrial nations of the world, and the possible rise in living standards and the resulting power of consumption is sufficient to blot out the present anomaly of one-half of the world suffering from a surplus of goods while the other half is subject to extreme deprivation. This is indeed a heavy price to pay for nationalistic desire for self-containment.

"It is apt to be forgotten," he continued, "when viewing the current cessation of trade, that the Pacific area is perhaps the most rapidly developing market in the world. Even during the decline of the past two years the interchange of goods between the countries bordering on the Pacific has continued to increase in volume, even though declining in value. All other trade areas have declined in both volume and value."

B.C. Vegetables

Expect Sales To the Prairies Will Be Doubled This Year

Victoria, B.C.—British Columbia sales of vegetables to the prairies will be doubled this year, it was anticipated in advices at the Department of Agriculture here.

At Armstrong, four packing houses have installed the most modern machinery for packing and washing their vegetables for prairie shipment. All cars will be government-inspected, and an all-round general improvement in production, packing and shipping facilities as well as sales organization is noted.

Radio Commission

Chairman To Receive Salary Of $10,000 Per Year

Ottawa, Ont.—The chairman of the Canadian radio broadcasting commission will receive a salary of $10,000 per year, and the two commissioners $8,000 each, according to the provisions of the act respecting radio broadcasting which passed final stages in the House of Commons. The bill, based on the report of a special committee on radio, provides the machinery for the nationalization of radio broadcasting in Canada which will be operated under a system of public ownership.

Railway Report Delayed

Ottawa, Ont.—The report of the royal commission on transportation will not be completed for several months yet, the Prime Minister told the House of Commons in answer to a question by Mackenzie King. Whether it will be made public before being submitted to parliament was a matter that would still have to be decided, Mr. Bennett added.

WANTED—A THRONE!

Known as the most persistent kingdom hunter on record, Abbas Hilmi Pasha, former Khedive of Egypt, has indicated from his exile near Paris, France, that he is willing to take on any job in the kinging line. He is 58 years old and held his last job until Great Britain deposed him in 1914. He is negotiating to become ruler of Syria when the French Government releases its mandate.

To Aid Agriculture

Preference For Western Agricultural Products Is Necessary

Calgary, Alberta.—Necessity for preference being given western agricultural products through channels to be decided at the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa in July, was emphasized in a memorandum issued by the Calgary Board of Trade. The memorandum was prepared by the board at the request of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and will be forwarded to the chamber executive and Premier J. Brownlee of Alberta.

Through all discussions at the conference, the Calgary board suggested, the welfare of Canadian agriculture should be the uppermost thought. As exports to be considered, the memorandum suggested wheat and other grains, livestock and similar farm products.

Woman Aviator Honored

Mrs. Putnam Receives Congratulations From British Royalty

Washington.—The U.S. senate passed a bill to authorize President Hoover to award the distinguished flying cross to Amelia Earhart Putnam, for her trans-Atlantic solo flight.

London, England.—The king and queen sent a message of congratulation to Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam on her trans-Atlantic flight from Harbor Grace, Nfld., to Ireland.

Miss Earhart said the real reason she crossed the Atlantic alone was to "show the men" women could do things as well as they.

Fight In Prussian Diet

Political Passions Break Loose and Rough House Ensues

Berlin, Germany. — Smouldering political passions in the new Prussian diet broke out in hand-to-hand fighting between National Socialists and Communists with a violence unprecedented in the parliamentary history of Germany.

The legislative hall was wrecked and at least half a dozen members, including neutrals, were injured. Deputy Juergensen, a leader of the Social Democrats, who took no part in the fray, was carried unconscious to a hospital with one side of his face ripped open.

With fists, inkwells, chair legs and water bottles, the legislators fought their battle to the bitter end without police interference, General Karl Litzmann, senior member of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party, having declined the services of the police several days ago.

The trouble started after Hans Kerrl, a National Socialist, had been elected president of the diet and Ernst Wittmaack, a Social Democrat, had been elected first vice-president.

Wilhelm Pieck, a Communist deputy, rose to a point of order and at the top of his voice shouted there were murderers on the Nazi benchs. The Nazis jumped up and made a mass attack on the Communist members, whom they outnumbered 162 to 57.

Tops were broken off desks, drawers were pulled out and upholstering was ripped. Piles of books, card indexes and fragments of furniture blocked the entrances from the lobbies after the air cleared over the Communist sector, where most of the damage was done.

The Communists were forced out of the hall during the battle, at the conclusion of which numerous deputies on each side were lying on the floor, bleeding profusely.

Three Communist deputies, Kraemer, Kuntz, Anlgohlke, were seriously hurt.

Thousands Greet Airliner

DO-X Reaches Germany Safely After Trans-Atlantic Journey

Berlin, Germany.—The German flying boat, "DO-X," largest heavier-than-air craft, completed its trans-Atlantic travels with a mad spurt through storm areas over northern Germany, alighting at Mueggel Lake, on the outskirts of Berlin, without incident.

Thousands gathered along the wooded lake shores in the southeastern environs of Berlin cheered wildly when the airliner appeared against the evening sky to complete a voyage of approximately 16,000 miles, in which it visited both South and North America, as well as Africa.

The huge seaplane described a circle around the lake and alighted as easily as a feather, while roars of greeting came from surrounding motor craft of all descriptions.

DOMINIONS' SECRETARY ATTENDS OLYMPIC TRIALS

NO SEVERANCE WITH THE EMPIRE SAYS DE VALERA

Dublin, Irish Free State.—President Eamon de Valera told the Irish Free State senate the object of his government's bill abolishing the parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British Crown was no severance of this country from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Mr. de Valera, pleading that the senate give the bill consideration on its merits, declared its purpose was to prevent the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 from being a fundamental domestic law, and to put it in its proper place as an international instrument.

From a vehement beginning in which he told the Upper House only a threat of war with Great Britain induced the Free State people to accept terms of the treaty, the president got down to an earnest and detailed exposition of what the bill was intended to bring about.

Not a seat in the senate was vacant as he began to defend the measure which has already been subject to verbal attacks by senators whose political attitudes are more conservative than those of the Republican administration.

Duty Has Been Raised

New Tariff Affects Strawberries and Tomatoes From Outside Empire

Ottawa, Ont.—In two important tariff bulletins, the duty on tomatoes when entered from the United States or other countries outside the Empire, shall be three cents a pound above the invoice price in Canadian funds.

As the dumping duty is imposed on the difference between the invoice price and the fixed value for duty purposes, the effect will be that the dumping duty will be three cents a pound regardless of the invoice price. In regard to strawberries it will be two cents a pound.

The new regulations stay in effect in the case of tomatoes until October 31, and in the case of strawberries until July 31. The regular rate for tomatoes from June 1 to Oct. 31 under the general tariff is 2 cents a pound as a minimum and the rate on strawberries from June 1 to July 31 not less than three cents a pound. The dumping duty will be in addition to these rates.

Vancouver, B.C.—Interest in the resources and opportunities of British Columbia is responsible for a large and diversified party of British business and professional men which sailed from Liverpool recently on the "Duchess of Bedford." The tour is under the direction of W. A. McAdam, secretary of the London office of the British Columbia Government. It is a government experiment to make the province better known, and members of the group are coming from all parts of the British Isles, with one from South Africa.

Former Premier Lang To Seek Re-Election In New South Wales

Sydney, New South Wales.—Undeterred by his dismissal from office about two weeks ago by executive authority of Governor-General Sir Philip Game, former Premier J. T. Lang will seek re-election to the New South Wales House of Assembly in the general elections which take place June 11.

Along with 301 other candidates, Mr. Lang was nominated for one of the legislature's 87 seats.

Mr. Lang is contesting the constituency of Auburn, which he has represented in the House for 12 years.
