S.S. Pupils Stage Trip to Holland

Life and Times, Manners and Customs of the Netherlands is Told in Music, Dance, Story—Clog Dance Very Popular.

A glimpse into the history and customs of the Dutch was given in pleasing and accomplished fashion at the community hall, Canyon, on Friday by the pupils of the United Church Sunday school at that point, who in song, story and musical selections presented what has been aptly termed "A Trip Through Holland." There was a splendid attendance. The chair was occupied by Rev. A. Walker, who contributed a short talk on the king, and what he represents.

The stage settings were good, and in keeping with the evening there was an abundance of tulips, donated by Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Knott and L. Littlejohn of Erickson. Canyon children, who have a district-wide reputation for outstanding ability in an effort of this sort, presented a variety programme that is voted to be the best yet, and full credit for the excellent performance must be given Miss Frances Knott, who generally supervised the programme, assisted by Mrs. L. W. Stephens, Mrs. Solheim, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Nygaard and others, while the generous contributions of musical numbers by Canyon orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Stephens, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. The different numbers were of such uniform excellence that it would be unfair to single out any particular item for special mention. The curtain raiser was "Trisgian" given in spirited style by the orchestra, and was followed in happy fashion by the following items:

Dutch national anthem—Orchestra.
Chorus, "Dance of the Wooden Shoes"—Junior pupils.
Drill, "Jolly Overalls"—Nine Boys.
Recitation, 'Dream of Holland" Mary Nygaard.
Folk Dance, "Mountain March,"—Mrs. L. W. Stephens, director.
Reading, "Manners and Customs of Holland"—O. M. Samuelson.
March, "Wooden Shoes."—Orchestra.
Terschling Reel—Mrs. Nygaard, director.
Piano duett—Mrs. Niblow, Miss F. Knott.
Dutch Drill—Primary pupils.
Song, "Dutch Dolls"—Eight girls.
Address, "Geography of Holland"—Miss F. Knott.
Folk Dance—Mrs. L. W. Stephens, director.
Dutch National Hymn—Orchestra.
Reading, "History of Holland,"—Mrs Bond.
Drill, "Tiptoe Through the Tulips"—Six senior girls.
Clog dance—John Finlay.
Shadow play—Mrs. Bond, director.

The big hit of the evening was the clog dance by John Finlay of Lister who, although not resembling the conventiona Hollander by any means overcame this defect in large measure by the energy and technique of his much-applauded number. At the close refreshments were served by a committee directed by Mrs. O. M. Samuelson.

Alice Siding

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hamilton, who have been occupying the house on the Ostendorf place, have moved into the house vacated by Mr. Bourne.

Jas. Eddy of Burmis, Alberta, paid the valley another business visit last week, and was a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pease.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis and family have moved from Creston and are occupying the former Midford ranch residence.

Miss Gladys Webster and party of young people were motor visitors from Michel to spend the Queen's birthday (Tuesday) with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webster.

W. A. Pease is busy with the erection of a spacious hay shed on the Alberta ranch.

A marriage of great interest here was solemnized at the United Church manse, Creston, on Monday afternoon, when Rev. A. Walker united in holy wedlock, Margaret Nygaard of Canyon with Robert Miller Marshall of Alice Siding. The bride was assisted by her sister Miss Clara Nygaard, while Harry Miller supported the groom. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple and their attendants drove to the home of the bride's father at Canyon City where many of the friends of the bride and groom assembled for the reception which was a most enjoyable affair. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are to reside at Alice Siding and the good wishes of all are extended for a happy and prosperous future.

Jim Taylor is a patient at Creston Valley public hospital at present, suffering from injuries to his face and quite a bad shaking up, sustained when he fell off the running board of an auto returning home from the wedding dance on Tuesday night.

H. E. Ostendorf of Rosthern, Sask., arrived at the end of the week, and is spending a few days looking after spring work on his ranch. His health has greatly improved and it is possible he may return to again make his home here.

Alice Si ng's newest newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Marshall, got a royal welcome home on Tuesday when they were guests at a reception at the home of Mrs. Marshall, sr., at which dancing was the chief feature, and a large company of friends were in attendance.

F. B. McConnell of Winnipeg, Man., who was in charge of the Canada Colonization Associated work when many of the German residents took up the land at Lister, was here during the past week, interviewing a number of settlers in whom the association is interested.

Land clearing operations have been occupying the attention of Bert Hobden the past few weeks and he now has an additional five acres ready to seed to alfalfa. To the better handle the 1932 cut of feed he is now busy erecting a new hay shed 20 x 40 feet.

John Huscroft is another resident of the Huscroft district who is extending his alfalfa production effort. He has just seeded down another ten acres of it and is planning to erect another hay shed of 20 x 50 feet size and will probably follow with the construction of still another similar size building, and will then be able to handle most of his alfalfa crop under cover. In the past he has he has suffered some loss by having to stack part of it.

A unique feature of school exercises on Wednesday was the observance of Goodwill Day the feature of which is to install into the pupils the great advantages of international amity. In the senior division Miss Curtis gave a very practical talk along this line and in the junior room Miss Webster followed suit by having several of the pupils represent different countries and recite specially selected numbers breathing the same spirit.

Fire Destroys Gardiner Home

Blaze Late an Sunday Evening Completely Destroys House and Contents Origin of Fire Hard to Understand.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gardiner had the great misfortune to lose their home and its contents in a fire late Sunday night the blaze having gained such headway before help arrived that it was impossible to save a solitary thing. The house was located on Fifth street, just below Park Road, and was of frame construction. Just how the fire originated is a mystery. Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner and the children were spending the evening with Mrs. Gardiner's mother, Mrs. Evans, where they had gone early in the afternoon, at which time some wood had been placed in the heater to keep things comfortable. Mr. Gardiner was back at the house shortly after five and there was no indication of the outbreak which was noticed about 10.30, when the alarm was promptly turned in and the firemen with chemical engine and hose were quite prompt to reach the blaze, but too late to be of any service. Mr. Gardiner, who reached the scene ahead of the brigade, made an effort to enter the house to get out a trunk but with the opening of the door the flames burst out driving him back. Mr. Gardiner had recently acquired the house from George Scott, and carried a limited amount of insurance.

New District Elects Trustees

Improvement District Now Fully Incorporated—Will Install Irrigation System—Keen Contest in Election of Three Trustee

About 40 growers attended the meeting on Thursday last for the purpose of electing three trustees for the newly-formed Wynndel Improvement District, and after some expression of dissatisfaction with the way the project had been pushed ahead without meetings to inform those affected of its progress, or the territory to be served. Several questions were asked, which only brought the stated opinion of the chairman, A. Spencer, that as the district was now incorporated the landowners would have to pay for the water whether they wanted it or not

The meeting then proceeded with the business for which it was called and E. Uri, R. C. Eakin, John Wigen, W. G. Greig, sr., J. G. Abbott and John Bathie were nominated, and on the ballots being counted it was found E. Uri was elected for a three-year term; R. C. Eakin for two years, and a tie existed as between John Wigen and J. G. Abbott for the one year term. Chairman Spencer cast his vote in favor of Mr. Wigen, and he was declared elected for one year.

After expressing his thanks for the attendance and consideration by the growers and wishing them success with the venture, Mr. Spencer declared the meeting adjourned, and a suggestion that the newly-elected trustees hold a meeting and answer any questions that might be asked not being acted upon the gathering dispersed.

It was decided to have the June meeting on Thursday, 9th, on account of the berry season. An interesting talk and demonstration on crystallization of fruits was given by Mrs. M. Young of Creston.

One of the most delightful teas of the season was that on Wednesday afternoon last at Mrs. Paul Hagen's. It was under the auspices of Wynndel Women's Institute and was appropriately styled a apple blossom tea, being held in the orchard at the Hagen home. The tables, prettily decorated with tea cloths in t e institute colors and centred with vases of tulips and blossoms, were placed under the apple trees. While tea was being served appropriate gramaphone music was provided, and an added enjoyable feature was the teacup reading by Mrs. O. Davidge. Under the direction of Mrs. F. H. Robinson freezers of ice cream donated by the members were sold by the cone or dishes to realize quite a nice profit, while the proceeds of the silver tea amounted to about $12. The fine spirit that animated all attending the tea was a great encouragement to the committee in charge, and there is talk of a strawberry tea to be held later.

Sirdar has been experiencing cool weather and an abundance of rain the past week.

Planning Already for Exhibition Rivalling 1931 Successful Fair—Apple Blossom Tea Success—Appoint New Secretary.

May meeting of Wynndel Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon last in the community hall annex, with 32 members and four visitors present. The resignation of Mrs. A. Martell as secretary was accepted and Miss Olga Hagen was named to carry on the duties of secretary-treasurer for the balance of the year. The June meeting of the institute will be held on the second Thursday of the month in order to have it clear of the strawberry season rush.

The Institute's 1932 fall fair was fully discussed and it was decided to hold it on Wednesday, September 21st. The report of the ways and means committee on the apple blossom tea indicated that it had been a social as well as financial success. $11.75 was realized from the silver collection. The president, Mrs. F. H. Robinson, thanked the members for the splendid spirit of co-operation and also for their help.

Mrs. C. Gregory gave a brief report on her trip to the Solarium. She stated that while Lillian was better, it would be a matter of some five years or more before the jacket could be taken off her body.

After the meeting adjourned Mrs. M. Young of Creston gave an interesting demonstration on candying, or crystallizing, fruit and quite a good sized box containing crystallized apples, cherries, plums, peaches, apricots, etc., was shown. Mrs. Young explained how and why different varieties of fruit were best done up in this way. Yellow Transparent and Wagener apples proving the best for this purpose. Everyone very much appreciated Mrs. Young's effort and she was given a very hearty vote of thanks for her work and also for donating the box of fruit for a raffle, with Miss D. Payette holding the lucky ticket.

Canadian Banking System

U.S. Senator Praises System Here In Comparision With That Of United States

The happy position of Canada's banking system as compared with that of the United States was dramatically placed before the United States senate by Carter Glass, of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury.

Glass was pressing his revision of the banking laws to permit branch banking in the United States.

Canada, he said, had not had one single bank failure "during this frightful depression" while in the United States 5,000 banks had gone under with losses during the past twe years to depositors of $5,500,000,000.

For years treasury and currency experts have been attempting to get congress to permit branch banking. Their efforts have been so far successfully opposed by representatives of smaller communities and farming areas who believe in individual and personal banking.

You should know this about oil, says mechanic

The proper oiling of household devices presents a problem different from any other form of lubrication. Sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, the electric motors of washers, fans, refrigerators and similar devices have a tendency to collect dirt and rust when not in service. Consequently oil intended for general household use should clean and protect as well as lubricate.

3-in-One Oil will do these three things. For, unlike ordinary oil, it is really three high quality oils in one—animal, mineral and vegetable. It penetrates quickly, cleans the metal surfaces, "stays put," reduces wear and saves repairs. It also prevents rust and tarnish.

Don't make the mistake of thinking "any kind of oil will do." Play safe; insist on 3-in-One Oil. Sold everywhere, by good grocery, hardware, drug and general stores. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

Plan Trade Drive

Ontario To Place Sales Representatives In Winnipeg, Montreal and Maritime Provinces

As part of an intensive drive to secure a greater share of the Canadian market, the Ontario Department of Agriculture is placing sales representatives in Winnipeg, Montreal and Maritime Provinces, it was announced by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture. The duties of these representatives, who will work through the agricultural council, will be to keep the department informed as to conditions in the various provinces, the volume of sales of Ontario agricultural products and the best means of increasing those sales.

Col. Kennedy declared that the government was launching a drive for more markets and that up till now much of the effort had been directed toward securing a better foothold in the British market. There was a big field for Ontario products in the other provinces of Canada, the minister believed. As to the British market, the Ontario Government already had a representative in London and at the present time W. B. Somerset, chairman of the agricultural board, was in the Old Country in the interests of Ontario trade.

Explanations and Comments

Joseph's Troubles With His Half-Brothers, verses 1-4.—The phrase "These are the generations of Jacob," means, "Here begins the history of Jacob's descendants (especially of Joseph). Jacob was living quietly at Hebron. Joseph, the elder son of Jacob and Rachel, is a lad of seventeen when he comes into the picture. Joseph was "a lad with the sons of Bilhah and with the sons of Zilpah," an expression which Delitzsah understands as meaning that he was their attendant, their subordinate. Of course trouble would arise, for Bilhah and Zilpah were bondswomen and naturally jealous of Rachel, and their sons would, just as naturally, be jealous of Rachel's son. Joseph's task was to help these half-brothers feed the flock, for whose pasturage they were obliged to wander far and wide.

Joseph brought his father an evil report of these men. "We are not obliged to suppose that Joseph was a gratuitous tale-bearer, or that when he carried their evil report to his father he was actuated by an unworthy spirit. That he very well knew how to hold his tongue no man ever gave more adequate proof; but he that understands that there is 'a time to keep silence' necessarily sees also that there is 'a time to speak.' And no one can tell what torture that pure young soul may have endured in the remote pastures, when left alone to withstand, day after day, the outrage of these coarse and unscrupulous men."—Marcus Dods.

Another cause of trouble was the father's favoritism. Jacob had good reason to prefer Joseph to his brothers. Joseph was "a goodly person and well-favored," he was affectionate, bright and quick, ever ready to do his father's bidding. His brohters were fierce, sour, sordid men. Jacob could not help loving Joseph the most, but he could have kept from showing his preference. All children have equal claim upon a parent's care. Duty, common sense, reason should have guided Jacob in the treatment of his childen; instead he was guided by his heart alone.

Jacob showed his partiality by giving Joseph a coat of many colors, thought to have been a sort of magisterial robe, such as was worn by those in authority, or by the rich who did no manual work, and in that case a virtual sign that Joseph, the next to the youngest of twelve sons, was given the birthright, the position belonging to the eldest. This lordly attire was always in evidence, and the brothers hated him and could not speak peaceably unto him.

"From bitterness preserve me, Lord;
From jealous thoughts protect my day;
Against the stroke of envy's sword
Help me to hold my way.

And grant my soul sufficient grace
To gladden at another's prize,
And look upon his eager face
With sympathetic eyes."

Diet Announced As Cure

Celiac, a Childhood Disease, Requires Only Good Food As Treatment

A cure for celiac disease without a drop of medicine was reported to the American Medical Association at New Orleans. Diet alone does it.

This disease is one of the pitiful ills of childhood, causing retarded growth, serious stomach disorders, growing weakness and, when too long neglected, almost certain death.

Predisposition to relapse had made it difficult to cope with. Dr. Sidney V. Haas of New York City, said there has not been one recurrence.

The new treatment is an example of the rapidly-developing science of finding in two or three commonplace articles of food a regulator that enables the body to convert the entire diet into its natural "medicine."

One cause of celiac disease is a peculiar form of sugar starvation. No matter how much sugar a child eats the system cannot assimilate it, and the sweet only makes them worse. Dr. Haas found the sugar in ripe bananas can be eaten freely and that in the children's bodies it converts ordinary sugars into an agreeable form.

IN BED WITH BACKACHE

"Two years ago I suffered with severe pains in the small of my back, and could with difficulty hold myself upright. At times I had to go to bed for a week at a time. I went to and from hospital for 8 months, and they certainly did me good, but they told me they could not keep giving me medicine, but that I needed complete rest for 6 months, away from the children. I could not bring myself to be parted from the children, so I did not go to hospital any more. I started using Kruschen Salts and have had no trouble with my back since."—Mrs. W.

Kruschen contains vital salts that go right down to the root cause of backache. Soon after you start on Kruschen, the sharpest pains of backache cease. As you persevere with the "little daily dose" the twinges become less and less frequent, until finally you hardly know what an ache or pain is. Then, if you're wise, you'll prevent the possibility of a relapse by continuing the tiny, tasteless pinch of Kruschen every morning.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

She did not tell him why. But within herself she knew that no woman would ever be afraid with Geoffrey Burke. Afraid of him, possibly, but never afraid that he would not be entire master of any situation wherein physical strength and courage were the paramount necessities.

She reflected a little grimly to herself that it was this very forcefulness which gave the man his unquestionable power of attraction. There is always a certain fascination in sheer, ruthless strength—a savour of magnificence about it, something tentatively heroic, which appeals irresistibly to that primitive instinct somewhere hidden in the temperamental make-up of even the most ultra-twentieth-century feminine product.

And Jean was quite aware that she herself was not altogether proof aginst the attraction of Burke's dynamic virility.

There was another kind of strength which appealed to her far more. She knew this, too. The still, quiet force that was Tormarin's—deep, and unfathomable, and silent, of the spirit as well as of the body. Contrasted with the savage power she recognized in Burke, it was like the fine, tempered steel of a rapier compared with a heavy bludgeon.

"A penny for your thoughts!"

Jean came out of her reverie with a start. She smiled.

"Don't get conceited. I was thinking about you."

"Nice thoughts, I hope, then?" suggested Burke. "It's better" — audaciously—"to think well of your future husband."

The old gipsy's words flashed into Jean's mind:

"You'm bound together so fast and firm as weddin'-ring could bind 'ee," and her face flamed scarlet.

It was true—at least as far as she was concerned—that no wedding-ring could bind her more firmly to Blaise than her own heart had already bound her.

The instinct to flirt with Burke was in abeyance. It was an instinct only born of heartache and unhappiness, and now that Blaise's mood was so much less cool and distant than it had been, the temptation to play with unexploded bombs had correspondingly lost much of its charm.

"Don't be tiresome, Geoffrey," she said vexedly. "If only you would make up your mind to be—just pals, I should think much better of you."

"Then I'm afraid you'll have to think worse," he retorted.

Just at that moment they encountered a flock of sheep, ambling leisurely along towards them and blocking up the narrow roadway, and Jean was spared the necessity of replying by the fact that Burke immediately found his hands full, manoeuvring a path for the mare between the broad, curly backs of the bleating multitude.

The drover of the flock was, of course, a hundred yards or more behind his charges, negligently occupied in relighting his pipe, so that no assistance was to be looked for in that direction, and as the sheep bumped against the mare's legs and crowded up against the wheels of the trap in their characteristically maddening fashion, it required all Burke's skill and dexterity to make a way through the four-footed crowd.

The chestnut's own idea of dealing with the difficulty was to charge full speed ahead, an idea which by no means facilitated matters, and she fought her bit and fairly danced with fury as Burke checked her at almost every yard.

They had nearly reached the open road again, and Jean, looking down on the sea of woolly backs, with the hovering cloud of hoof-driven dust above them, thought she could fully appreciate the probable feelings of the Israelites as they approached the further shore of the Red Sea. And it was just at this inauspicious moment that the drover, having lit his pipe to his satisfaction, looked up and grasped the situation.

Guilty conscience not only makes cowards, but is also prolific in the creation of fools, and the drover, stung into belated action by the consciousness of previous remissness, promptly did the most foolish thnig he could.

He let off a yell that tore its way through every quivering nerve in the mare's body, and with a shout of, "Round 'em, lad!" sent his dog — a half-trained youngster—barking like a creature possessed, full tilt in pursuit of the sheep.

That settled it as far as the chestnut was concerned. With a bound she leapt forward, scattering the two or three remaining sheep that still blocked her path, and the next moment the light, high cart was rocking like a cockle-shell in a choppy sea, as she tore along, utterly out of hand.

Luckily, for a couple of miles the road ran straight as a dart, and after the first gasp of alarm Jean found herself curiously collected and able to calculate chances. At the end of the two miles, she knew, there came a steep declivity—a typical Devonshire hill, like the side of a house, which the British workman had repaired in his usual crude and inefficient manner, so that loose stones and inequalities of surface added to the dangers of negotiation. At the foot of this descent was a sharp double turn—a veritable death-trap. Could Burke possibly get the mare in hand before they reached the brow of the hill? Jean doubted it.

There was no sound now in all the world except the battering of the mare's hoofs upon the road and the screaming rush of the wind in their ears. The hedges flew past, a green, distorted blur. The strip of road fled away beneath them as though coiled up by some swift revolving cylinder; ahead, it ended sheer against a sky blue as a periwinkle, and into that blue they were rushing at thirty miles an hour. When they reached it, it would be the end. Jean could almost hear the crash that must follow, sense the sickening feeling of being flung headlong, hurled into space . . . . . hurtling down into black nothingness . . . .

Her glance sought Burke's face. His jaw was outthrust, and she could guess at the clenched teeth behind the lips that shut like a rat-trap. His eyes gleamed beneath the penthouse brows, drawn together so that they almost met above his fighting beak of a nose.

In an oddly detached manner she found herself reflecting on the dogged brute strength of his set face. If anyone could check that flying, foam-flecked form, rocketing along between the shafts like a red-brown streak, he could.

She wondered how long he would be able to hold the beast—to hang on? She remembered having heard that, after a time, the strain of pulling against a runaway becomes too much for human nerves and muscles, and that a man's hands grow numb—and helpless! While the dead pull on the bit equally numbs the mouth of the horse, so that he, too, has no more any feeling to be played upon by the pressure of the bit.

Her eyes dropped to Burke's hands. With a little inward start of astonishment she realized that he was not attempting to pull against the chestnut. He was just holding . . . . holding . . . . steadying her, ever so little, in her mad gallop. Jean felt the mare swerve, then swing level again, still answering faintly to the reins.

Burke's hands were very still. She wondered vaguely why—now—he didn't pit his strength against that of the runaway. They must have covered a mile or more. A bare half-mile was all that still lay between them and disaster.

And then, as she watched Burke's hands, she saw them move, first one and then the other, sawing the bit against the tender corners of the mare's mouth. Jean was conscious of a faint difference in the mad pace of her. Not enough to be accounted a check—but still something, some appreciable slackening of the whirlwind rush towards that blue blur of sky ahead.

It seemed as though Burke, too, sensed that infinitesimal yielding to the saw of the bit. For the first time, he gave a definite pull at the reins. Then he relaxed the pressure, and again there followed the same sawing motion and the fret of the steel bar against sensitive, velvet lips. Then another pull—the man's sheer strength against the mare's . . . . Jean watched, fascinated.

And gradually, almost imperceptibly at first, the frenzied beat of the iron-shod hoofs became more measured as the chestnut shortened her stride. It was no longer merely the thashing, thunderous devil's tattoo of sheer, panic-driven speed.

Now and again Jean could hear Burke's voice, speaking to the frightened beast, chiding and reassuring in even, unhurried tones.

She was conscious of no fear, only of an absorbing interest and excitement as to whether Burke would be able to impose his will upon the animal before they reached that precipitous hill the descent of which must infallibly spell destruction.

She sat still, her hands locked together, watching . . . . watching . . . .

Able to Go to All the Dances

"When I was 16 I was so ill my people thought I was going to die," writes Mrs. Annie Wilson, Sussex Ave., Toronto, "I had scarcely any blood, and was so weak I could hardly walk. Had no appetite and I lost ground every day for a long time, until a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got them, and before I had finished the first box I was feeling much better. I continued taking the Pills until I was completely well. I went to all the dances and had the time of my life again. I certainly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any one who is anaemic or run-down in any way, for they certainly rebuilt my health."

Don't let anaemia rob your growing daughter of health and vigour. Give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They banish the condition by creating new blood which imparts health, vigour and vitality. Equally good for all run-down or nervous conditions. At your druggist's. 50c. a package.

Free Time Tables

Should the Canadian railways make a charge to the public for time-tables? This point was raised in the Commons Railway Committee. In Great Britain a small charge is made, but Sir Henry Thornton doubted if it would be possible to do so in Canada. The universal custom on the North American continent is to provide time tables free. The result is that very often they are taken by people who do not require them.

Peevish, pale, restless, and sickly children owe their condition to worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will relieve them and restore health.

Little Helps For This Week

"Therefore for Thy name's sake lead me and guide me."—Psalm xxxi. 3.

My Father, God, lead on!
Calmly I follow where Thy guiding hand
Directs my steps; I would not trembling stand,
Though all before the way
Is dark as night; I stay
My soul on Thee, and say,
Father, I trust Thy love, lead on!
—R. Palmer.

All virtue consists in having a willing heart; God will lead you as if by the hand, if only you do not doubt, and are filled with love for Him rather than fear for yourself.—Fenelon.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms subsist and drive them from the system, and, at the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause.

Baltimore Repeals Old Laws

Made When State Was Founded Two Hundred Years Ago

Baltimore, by the largest vote ever given a question or a candidate, has repealed its 200-year-old Sunday observance laws, which even precluded a man's kissing his wife on the Sabbath.

By a majority of more than 83,000, the city wiped off its books the Sunday laws which were born with the Maryland legal code when the Calverts founded the state, and for the first time, can go to moving picture shows, sport events, and make certain retail purchases legally next Sunday.

A life may depend on a telephone

"A telephone is not a luxury, it is a protection," a newspaper editor wrote recently.

"To be suddenly awakened in the middle of the night, facing the emergency of relief for a sick child, or the danger of fire, many valuable moments are saved by turning to the telephone to call for help. In the time it takes to dress and go to a neighbor's home or to a public 'phone, a life may be lost or a home burned to the ground."

The telephone is a great protection at a small cost.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What's Wrong With B.C.

Editor Review:

Sir,—Your editorial commenting on 'K.W's" letter, "What's wrong with B.C.", as well as the letter itself, must, have started a trend of thought or, in many cases, helped such a trend, in the minds of many people, to follow similar lines.

The question, "What's wrong with the country," is one that is often heard whenever and wherever people gather together, from a chance meeting on a street corner to the ladies' aid. Almost invariably when someone asks this question the only answer in reply is, "Nothing, it's the people that are in it, not the country that's wrong." While such a statement is entirely true, it is on the part of the one who makes it, an admission that they do not know; nor, it would seem, very much care.

No doubt a very great deal of the inefficiency and mismanagement in governments today, can be laid directly at the door of all of us who "didn't know, nor care", about matters that should have been of particular moment to every citizen. Too many of us have turned a blind eye and a deaf ear to political, financial and national issues and today find ourselves and everybody else in a tough hole and we don't know how we got there, or how to get out.

Almost every day we read some new way out of our troubles. The solution for, and the many causes of, the present world depression which appear in print from time to time, will not individually bring about prosperity, nor are they, singly, the causes of the depression.

The demonetization of silver is not the only cause of the present financial stringency, nor will the abandoning of the gold standard alone rectify this trouble.

Overproduction or under-consumption, which are one and the same, and which, in part, were brought about by machinery being operated too many hours per day and producing more than could be consumed per day, is but another cause of world depression. Nor will a reduction in hours of the working day alone be a cure for all our ills.

Henry Ford believes that the workingman has not been paid enough to be able to buy sufficient of what he produces to keep industry on an even keel.

Some people will insist that the industrialization of grain farming in Russia and in a few places in North America, which have made it possible to sell wheat on the world's markets at forty cents a bushel, is forcing the individual farmer into bankruptcy and is one of the greatest causes of present hard times.

The truth is that all of these, and many more, are, collectively, the causes of today's worldwide depression. They are, each and every one, a jagged rock on the sea of depression, and we, the passengers, have been content to let the ship of state drift upon them. We did not weed out inefficiency from amongst those who were responsible for keeping the ship upon it's course, nor have we set a course true and straight for them to follow.

Unless the great mass of people, you and I and the other fellow, realize that we must define a definite and steady course and that we must select good men and true to sail the ship of state out of the troubled waters of today, then we, and we alone, are solely to blame if we continue to drift into more and more dangerous waters.

It is because the people of today are asleep; because of our "don't know and don't care" attitude in public matters, that governments today can get away with murder. It is because of this attitude that we find all over the world, in municipal, city, state and national governments, that taxes are going up and governments are going broke.

Until the people of today realize that they must take a personal interest in all the affairs of government, just so long will we have a combination of causes that make for worldwide depression. What happens to any lodge or organization when it's members fail to take a personal interest in it's affairs? Would anyone of common sense start the motor, put their automible in gear and then climbs out and let it go wheresoever chance directed? Any body of electors, who set the wheels of government in motion and then take no further interest in the proceedings are doing exactly the same thing.

The trouble with B.C., "K.W.," is that the people, you and I and the other fellow, are, when it comes to public matters, lazy, stupid and a lot of sheep.

RICHARD G. PENSON.

Athletes at Kimberley

Creston Valley's delegation to the Kootenay-Boundary schools' track meet held at Kimberley on Saturday slightly improved their position from that of last year, returning on Sunday with two medals and four points. Minnie Huscroft took second place in the senior girls' high jump, after outjumping M. Drapaka of Trail, to whom she lost in 1931. Norman Nickel, placed third in the senior boys' broad jump, an achievement all the more to be commended in view of the fact that his competitors were decidedly older and more experienced. Although only two places were secured other contestants did very well. Herbert Dodd was fourth in a field of eleven in the 440 yards, and Molly Moore ran an extremely nice race in the 75 yards for juniors. The meet was run off in a pouring rain, and the final event—the girls relay—taking place in a veritable down pour. Four cars of contestants and coaches made the trip from here.

Liberty vs. License

The kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, culminating in the finding of the body of the murdered infant, has served to focus public attention in the United States as no other single act has done in past years, upon the extent to which lawlessness has developed in that country. Thousands of people are aroused now who formerly regarded with indifference the daily record of murders, kidnappings, bootlegging outrages, and other gangster crimes, including open warfare between these gangs in the streets of large cities, which filled the columns of their newspapers. There is now a searching for causes of this prevailing lawlessness in the United States, but which is not characteristic of other countries.

And in seeking for the underlying cause, investigators have found they had not far to go, and that it is not necessary to delve into any great depths to discover wherein lies the basic weakness upon which present day American society is founded. It is for the people of the United States to apply their own remedies, but the prevailing state of affairs across the imaginary boundary line, and the causes therefore, should have a lesson for the people of this Dominion.

Mistake number one was made in the United States when they went from one extreme to another,—that is, from the extreme puritanism of the early New England settlers to the almost uncontrolled license of later days. From an era of unyielding rigid strictness and severity in the application of rules of personal conduct, the United States set up a fetish of personal liberty. In reaction against what had been, the public schools were made purely secular, the teaching of religion, the precepts of the Bible, and the moral law which is founded in true religion, were banned. It was argued that the churches and the home should alone concern themselves with religion and morals, and that the state should not enter such spheres, but, remaining strictly secular and neutral, let youth in its most plastic, character-forming years be trained, or not trained, in the home and on one day in the week in church or Sunday School.

The net result was that millions were not trained, Sunday beacme a holiday, a day of sports and amusement. The provision of a happy, sensible medium between the austere "blue" Sunday and a day of carnival was overlooked and neglected. And the children of these millions, and their children in turn, grew up in an atmosphere almost entirely secular, pleasure loving, taught to cater to their personal appetites and passions, rather than to look upon life and its responsibilities and opportunities as a serious thing.

But mankind must have a god to which it looks for those things desired and for which man craves. So, living a life of the present, a life of pleasure and personal gratification, tens of millions in the United States set up and worshipped the Almighty Dollar as their god. The man who could amass great wealth was a "great" man. He was the one looked up to in the community, to whom others paid deference, and who was held up to the youth of the day as a worthy example to follow. The more money a man had, and the quicker he was able to get it, the more successful he was held to be, the more to be envied and emulated.

It was natural and inevitable, therefore, that the ingenuity of men was directed to discovering "get rich quick" means and methods. The morality, the lawfulness of the means and methods were considered less important than the tangible results gained. The methods of "Big Business" of half a century ago, the treatment meted out to the Indians of the western plains who were robbed, plundered, murdered and their lands taken from them, now have their counterpart in the gangster methods of bootlegging, kidnapping, and all forms of organized vice and crime.

The United States, too, has made a god of "Bigness." "The biggest in the world" is the favorite slogan of their people. Everywhere the boast is heard that this or that is the biggest in the world. In the race to create big cities they have created breeding grounds for crime; in the race to create mammoth mass production industries they have created mass unemployment leading to want and suffering and more crime. The very inventions and machines created for the benefit of their people are now used to assist the criminal element to defy, defraud, despoil and destroy people.

Finally, the United States set up another god in the name of "Liberty," but which was so freely interpreted that it quickly became license. Liberty is a fine thing; it is the birthright of all people although through the ages man has wronfully denied it to his fellow man. Possessing the power for the time being, man has denied to other men liberty of conscience as well as liberty of body and action. But liberty is one thing, and license another and entirely different thing. Liberty can only be enjoyed where there is law and order; law impartially but strictly enforced that order may be maintained. Let law be weakened and brought into contempt and liberty is destroyed. Might not right then takes the upper hand, liberty is lost, and all become the slaves of might.

The United States today, to a greater extent than any other nation on earth, is paying the penalty for disregard of the true tenets of all religion and of moral law which is based and founded in these religious tenets, and because it has seen fit to set up other false gods to worship. The worship of the "Golden Calf" sent an old world nation wandering in the wilderness for forty years. It paid for its departure from the truth. Other nations since then have paid. The United States is paying now in the scourge which the lawless elements it has developed are now laying upon it. And all nations will inevitably pay if they disegard moral laws and replace true liberty with license. That is the lesson for the people of Canada to take to heart.

League Of Nations

Is Greatest Human Agency For Preserving Peace, Says Sir Robert Borden

Expressing the belief that the League of Nations is educating the nations to live in co-operation, Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war time premier, told the League of Nations Society in Canada, at its annual meeting at Ottawa, that he believed the League was the greatest human agency for preserving peace of the world.

Disappointment at the efforts of the League to achieve world disarmament and in the response which had been made to the world disarmament petition was expressed by Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., in a short address.

Dr. H. M. Tory, of Ottawa, was reelected president of the society and three new names were added to the list of officers. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, was elected honorary vice-president; H. J. McNulty, of Ottawa, becomes honorary treasurer, and John W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, Winnipeg, was chosen as a vice-president.

Tells Dyspeptics What To Eat

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary

It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neurtalizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comfort means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by making Bisurated Magnesia your daily after-eating protection.

C.N.R. Radio Broadcasting

Radio broadcasting cost the Canadian National Railways $441,082, in 1929, the House Committee on railways and shipping was advised, but only $114,000 is to be spent in 1932. The gross figures for 1930 were $420,603, and for 1931, $326,248. There was a certain amount of revenue from rental of facilities, and tolls to the Canadian National Telegraph, in addition to the advertising benefits which could not be reckoned in dollars and cents.

British Now Providing Excellent Market For Our Wheat, Bacon and Cheese

Canada is selling more to Great Britain, detailed figures recently tabled in the British House of Commons revealed.

British purchases of Canadian wheat in the four months ending April 30 amounted to 9,104,000 hundredweights of 112 pounds, compared with 7,074,000 hundredweights in the corresponding period of 1931. Imports of Russian wheat dropped again. For the month of April, they were only 5,200 hundredweights against 1,337,000 in April, 1931.

Imports of Canadian bacon for the four months ending April 30, amounted to 57,275 hundredweights, a heavy increase compared to 4,693 for the corresponding period of 1931.

Serious Marketing Situation

British Columbia Growers Expect Surplus Of Apples This Year

A serious marketing situation faces British Columbia fruit-growers this year due to the heavy increase in the crops, according to E. J. Chambers, president of the associated growers of the province. Preliminary reports, he said, indicated this year's apple crop would show a gain of a million boxes over 1931.

This means, Mr. Chambers added, that a market for 1,000 carloads would have to be found outside western Canada.

NEW INVENTION DOES AWAY WITH COOKING ODORS

Even fish and cauliflower bow down to Canapar Cookery Parchment

BETTER, CHEAPER AND EASIER COOKING

Delicious as cauliflower, cabbage and certain other vegetables are, they have imposed a heavy penalty on people who fearlessly cooked them. Not to mention those who had to suffer the odor without enjoying the finished product. The same thing is equally true of fish.

Canapar Cookery Parchment, a very ingenious invention, does away with this annoyance entirely. While sealing in odors, it also retains flavor and food value. Cooking in Canapar actually parallels the famous French method of simmering and confining food and its flavor in the closed casserole.

You buy Canapar in a large envelope of handy-size sheets which may be rinsed out and used over and over again because they won't absorb odors. When boiling vegetables you simply wet the Canapar and make a bag similar to a pudding bag. If you steam them, you line the steamer with Canapar, arrange food and seasoning, and fold back corners of the Canapar to prevent steam from dripping back. You can actually cook three vegetables at once in the same saucepan, this way—save fuel—and the flavors will not intermingle.

Steamed, or boiled, fish comes out firm, solid and swimming in its own juice. No odours. No sticky steamer or saucepan to clean up afterwards.

Line your roasting pan with Canapar, then the fats and juice can't burn. Meat is more succulent and there is no scouring or scraping of the pan afterwards.

Many women use Canapar for a dish cloth—it is so silky and satisfactory, and doesn't spread lint.

You'll never be without Canapar once you start using it. It saves time and money. Made by the makers of the famous PARA-SANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

Special Offer

Most grocers, druggists and department stores sell Canapar, but if yours doesn't, just send the coupon and we'll give you a new and unique book entitled "Leftovers" containing one hundred recipes as a bonus for your trouble.

MANITOBA IS NOT IN FAVOR OF A WHEAT QUOTA

Winnipeg, Man.—Establishment of a wheat quota at the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference would not be in the best interests of wheat producers, although sale of western wheat is of the utmost importance. This was the chief of six points agreed upon at a conference of Manitoba agricultural interests called by Premier John Bracken to formulate Manitoba's views for submission to the Dominion Government prior to the conference.

Other points agreed upon were:

Stabilization of exchange is important.

Wider markets are necessary for all varieties of Canadian farm produce.

An Empire intelligence marketing board is desirable.

Wider facilities should be provided for the distribution of British films throughout Canada.

Canadian delegates at the Imperial Conference should be asked to give preference to British goods most needed by Canadian consumers such as woollen goods, household articles, textiles, boots and shoes, seeds and plants.

A special committee was appointed to draft the suggestions and instructed to sit in with a conference to be held of representatives of boards of trade and industries other than agriculture. Findings of both Manitoba conferences will first be laid before a conference of the four western provinces at Regina, June 20, when a submission embodying the viewpoint of western Canada generally will be prepared.

Low Rates On Grain

Transportation Of Grain From Fort William To Montreal Cheapest Ever

Montreal, Que.—The Gazette published the following:

New record low rates of 3½ cents a bushel for the transportation of grain from Fort William to Montreal have been accepted during the last two days. It was announced 10 days ago that five cents a bushel was being offered and accepted, and there was a report that a rate of 4½ cents was even offered. Since then the situation has dropped from 'bad to worse' and several shipowners have decided to lay-up their vessels rather than operate them at a loss.

"Though small steamers are carrying grain at this abnormally low figure, it is maintained that no mathematical computations or calculations will enable their owners to produce a profit from the operation. It is even said grain cannot be carried profitably at seven cents a bushel, though several firms decided to continue accepting the lower rate in the hope that the situation would improve during the season."

Bombay Riots

Hindus and Moslems Continue To Engage In Street Battles

Bombay, India. — Fresh sporadic rioting between Hindus and Moslems broke out in Bombay, despite the presence of alert British soldiers, and before it was checked 11 more persons had been killed and 98 injured.

Thus the toll of the communal fighting, which has flared intermittently for some days, rose to 99 dead and 948 wounded.

British troops frequently opened fire to check occasional street battles. There was still some looting, but the authorities expressed confidence that they were gaining control of the city through the energetic action of the soldiers.

Verdict Of Accidental Death

Doukhobors Protest

Write Letter To Press and Send Message To The Hague

Vancouver, B.C.—Doukhobors facing imprisonment fo nude parading have written to the press and various public organizations, including the "anti-militaristic bureau of The Hague," protesting against their treatment.

In a letter to a local newspaper, the Doukhobors state:

"It is a tragedy when one misunderstands another. And this is just what is happening today, without any cause whatever. Innocent people are being sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

"We know that truth is bought on Golgotha, and will ever remain there. We forgive everybody who has mistreated us. But when we come to our children and their mothers, this is where we stop and say 'There is no excuse for civilized people to force others into conditions that they are not able to bear. The whole world has been aroused by the Lindbergh case. But what is going on in Nelson; this is worse than kidnapping—a drama full of man's inhumanity to man'."

Representatives of the Doukhobors have sent a cablegram to the "anti-militaristic bureau at The Hague," protesting against their treatment.

"We Doukhobors—Sons of Freedom of Canada—appeal to you," runs the message. "Please raise your voice in the name of trampled truth. Seven hundred in jail. More than half already sentenced to three years' imprisonment. The same conviction awaits the rest—just for appearing nude in protest against brutality. Our children forcibly taken away from their mothers. Please take this matter seriously, or you will be guilty before God and all idealists. Remember our struggle is truth. If you are brothers of same faith you can not be silent."

Tariffs Hurt Trade

No Inclination On Canada's Part To Enlarge Trade With U S.

San Francisco.—W. L. McGregor, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, told the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce that in the face of existing American tariff laws there is no inclination on Canada's part to enlarge its trade with the United States.

Mr. McGregor said he was not entirely satisfied in his own mind that the commercial treatment Canada had been accorded at Washington was in conformity with enlightened business opinion in the United States. If United States business interests are not satisfied with the present economic relationships between their country and Canada, he suggested, they might make themselves a little more articulate on the subject.

An International Park

Waterton Lakes Park In Alberta, To Be Internationalized

Ottawa, Ont.—A bill designed to make the Waterton Lakes National Park, in Alberta, a portion of the Waterton-Glacier International Park, was given first reading in the House of Commons. Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior, sponsoring the bill, said the Waterton Lakes Park adjoined the Glacier Park, a United States property in Montana. Some time ago the United States government had suggested that the two parks be regarded as an international park and had passed legislation to that end.

Thinks Judges Underpaid

Ottawa, Ont.—Canadian judges are too numerous and underpaid, Premier R. B. Bennett told the House of Commons. The judiciary as a whole does not reflect the genius of the legal profession from which it is recruited, and in too many instances political patronage, rather than individual merit, has elevated a man to the bench.

Churchill Cattle Shipment

Expected Cattle Cargo To Leave Early In August

Churchill, Man.—The first boat to arrive here this summer will return with a shipment of cattle to Europe. While arrangements have been made for the shipping of 2,000,000 bushels of grain via Hudson Bay, the cattle cargo is likely to leave here early in August, before the wheat shipments start.

It is stated here a stockyard will be constructed near the dock. Hay will be brought here from The Pas.

Saskatoon, Sask.—The possibility of huge shipments of wheat through Churchill to the Spillers Ltd. Mills, at Cardiff and London, England, was disclosed in a statement issued by James M. Stevenson, K.C., president of the Board of Trade. Mr. Stevenson said that negotiations had been opened with the British milling firm through the trade through Churchill committee of the Board of Trade.

Irish Free State Will Be Represented

Eamon De Valera Is To Attend Ottawa Conference

Dublin, Irish Free State.—President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State said he would personally attend the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference in July if government business did not interfere.

The president did not name other members of the Free State representation, although he said it was likely three ministers of his government would accompany him.

Spain Requires Wheat

Government Carrying On Negotiations For Large Purchases

Madrid, Spain.—Financial circles said the Spanish Government had approached local branches of foreign banks in an attempt to arrange payment for the contemplated importation of 100,000 tons (about 3,733,000 bushels) of wheat.

The result of the negotiations was not known, but the government wants to spread the payment over periods of three, six and nine months, it was understood, the wheat to be bought from Canada, the United States and Agentina.

Banking circles said a government decree ordering the purchase of the wheat, expected soon, would bring Spain's total importations to 200,000 tons (about 7,466,000 bushels), but that it probably would be necessary to import another 200,000 tons before the new crop is available in July, since the domestic supply is exhausted.

U.S. Senate Refuses To Legalize Beer

First Senate Roll Call Brings Overwhelming Defeat

Washington.—The United States senate has refused to legalize beer.

The first senate roll call for beer since prohibition brought overwhelming defeat. The main vote was on an amendment by Senator Tydings, Democrat, Missouri, to the revenue bill to legalize 2.75 beer and tax it 24 cents a gallon to help finance a $1,500,000,000 public construction programme.

Just previously the senate had turned down—60 to 23—a proposal by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, to alter the Tydings amendment to make it allow four per cent. alcohol content.

Eleven Democrats voted with 12 Republicans for the Bingham four per cent. amendment.

Natives Have Been Burned Alive By Frontier Military Force

These atrocities, the report asserted, were committed against tribesmen of the Kru coast.

The Liberian delegate submitted a memorandum to the League's Liberian commission confirming the burning of 44 villages and the killing of 81 men, 49 women and 29 children.

OUR NATIONAL RADIO TO BE BEST IN WORLD

Ottawa, Ont.—Harmony reigned in the House of Commons when the radio control bill was under review. Party lines were forgotton, suggestions and advice flew back and forth across the Chamber and in complete unanimity the measure was given second reading and all but one or two clauses passed through committee.

The bill would establish a Canadian radio broadcasting commission to control a nationalized system of radio. With headquarters in Ottawa and branch offices throughout the Dominion, the commission of three would regulate broadcasting through its own chain of stations from coast to coast.

Premier R. B. Bennett, sponsor of the bill, said it was designed to give Canadians a broadcasting system "not excelled elsewhere in the world." It would assure Canadian control of Canadian broadcasting, free from foreign interference or influence.

Tentative salaries of $12,000 a year for the chairman and $10,000 each for the commissioners, were suggested by the Prime Minister. One commissioner will be French-speaking and one will be a radio engineer, possessing the necessary technical training. The commission, said Mr. Bennett, should be composed of men "with an excellent appreciation and understanding of the value of broadcasting to the nation and should have some understanding of what is pleasing to the major part of the people of this country in the form of programmes."

Indicating the harmony and co-operation that reigned throughout the discussion, the Prime Minister, insisting that politics will play no part in selecting the personnel of the commission, suggested to the Liberals they present a list of men acceptable to them. A further indication of this unusual spirit came when the Prime Minister asked for suggested penalties for infractions of broadcasting regulations and adopted the proposals of Major C. G. Power, Lib., Quebec South.

The provinces, the Prime Minister announced, will have something to say over programme selections.

Members of the commission must devote their full time to the work. They will be barred from having any private business ties, especially relating to radio or broadcasting. Upon retirement, they will receive pensions. The chairman will hold office for 10 years, the vice-chairman for nine years and the commissioner for eight.

With an eye to the future, it was incorporated in the bill that control of television and other scientific developments, also would be placed under the commission.

Hunting For "Baychimo"

Another Airplane May Enter Search For Deserted Fur Ship

Point Barrow, Alaska.—A double aerial search for the "Baychimo," fur trading vessel anchored off the Arctic Coast, is in prospect here.

Pilot William R. Graham and Mrs. Edna Christofferson, Portland, Ore, aviators, surveyed 1,000 square miles of the rough ice pack without glimpsing the missing ship, which they believe carries a valuable cargo of furs.

Pilot Joe Crosson, noted northern airman here with a motion picture cameraman on a scouting expedition, also said he might make exploratory flights in search of the "Baychimo."

Seattle, Wash.—To replace the steamship "Baychimo," lost along the Alaska coast in the ice floes of the seas of the north, the Danish Motorship "Karise" will sail from here in June for the Canadian Arctic via Vancouver, B.C.

The "Karise" was chartered by the Hudson's Bay Company from the Swenson Fur Trading Company for a voyage to Herschel Island and other Canadian Arctic posts. She will be manned by Canadian officers and crew.
