Institute Flower Show, June 18

With Bloom Display Girls to Exhibit Modelling and Posters —Will Pay Bounty on Gopher Tails—School Pupils Entertain

Creston and District Women's Institute met in May session on Friday afternoon in the United Church hall, with the president, Mrs. T. M Edmondson, in the chair. 14 members and a number of visitors were present.

The feature of the afternoon was the entertainment provided by pupils from Divisions 5 and 6 of the public school. The former class, in charge of Miss Hobden, presented the operetta, "Maytime," in very pleasing fashion. The scholars taking part were Donald Truscott, Blanche York, Mary Gabelhei, Doris Gabelhei, Dorothea Schmidt, Doris Bailey, Jean Pridham, Helen D'Zvigola and Katherine Rentz.

Pupils from Miss Holmes' room acquitted themselves equally creditably in the play, "The Three Bears," in which the following took part: Norman Husband, Anna Peltzer, Teddy Olivier, Louise Hare, Margaret Timmons, Bertha Gardiner and Rose Morabito.

Mrs. Jas. Cook, for the hospital committee, reported that the donation from Reg. Eastlake had been spent on sheeting, etc., and asked for volunteers to do some of the sewing. First aid kits at the school have been replenished.

It was decided to hold the annual flower show in the United Church hall on Saturday, June 18th. In connection with this prizes will be given in the following competitions for girls: Class 1, Modelling, ages 6 to 8 years. Class 2, Posters, advertising fall fair, ages 9 to 11 years Class 3, Posters advertising fall fair, ages 12 to 15.

Mrs. Edmondson put before the meeting an offer from Mrs. J. E. Johnston to provide an hour's musical entertainment some Saturday afternoon. It was decided to accept the offer and to have this entertainment in the Parish Hall on Saturday, May 28th, at 3 p.m.

The Institute will provide tea and make a small charge for admission. It was decided to pay a bounty of one cent per tail on gophers killed by school children, as was done last year.

After the meeting tea was served by Mrs. Hendy, Mrs. R. M. Long, Mrs. Mallandaine, Mrs. M. Young and Mrs. G. Young. The freewill offering for the crippled children's work amounted to $2.50.

Kitchener

Perley and Douglas Putnam and Lloyd Cartwright of Erickson have the contract of the loading out of four carload of poles for the B.C. Telephone Company. They are going to Calgary, Alberta. They are already at work hauling and loading at the siding.

N. P. Molander has a couple of carpenters at work building an addition to his residence.

A dance is scheduled for Friday, May 27th, in Hunt's hall to raise funds for the school. Creston Commanders orchestra will furnish the music.

Mrs. C. Senesael, Vera and Hazel McGonegal, Miss Marion Sproule and John Belanger were Bonners Ferry visitors on Saturday.

Frank Harley left last week for New Lake, where he is now working with the Sash & Door Company.

Inspector Manning of Cranbrook was here on an official visit to the high and public school on Monday.

Mrs. Geo. Young of Creston was here on a visit with her sister, Mrs. E. Driffil, one day last week.

Miss Laura Andeen returned to Cranbrook on Friday after spending a few days here with her sister, Mrs. A. Lepage.

For the first time in history Kitchener can boast of a girls' softball team. They are now down to regular practices to take on outside teams during the coming summer.

Kitchener baseball team played a game against the Porthill nine on Sunday afternoon, taking a severe trimming, the score standi g 3 18. Kitchener need more practice with the bat and in the next game we look for a better showing.

Miss Vivian Langlois, who was operated upon for appendicitis at St. Eugene hospital, Cranbrook, on Saturday morning, is making a very satisfactory recovery. Mrs. Langlois and Celina were in to see her on Saturday afternoon.

Lister

Gordon Hurry was a visitor with Nelson friends at the weekend.

S. R. Bowell, federal egg inspector, was here on an official visit the past week.

Martin Byrne and Ben Byer have gone to Wynndel where they have a contract to take out 7000 cedar fence posts for the Winlaw firm

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Phillips of Kimberley spent the weekend at their ranch here, and during his stay C. H. let a contract to A. Domke to clear four acres of land, which he will seed to alfalfa.

Col. Fred Lister was a visitor at Nelson a couple of days at the first of the week, conferring with Hon. R. Bruhn, minister of public works, who is on an inspection trip through the Kootenays.

Miss Mabel Sakata of Swift Current, Sask., has arrived on a visit with her father, at the Thomas ranch.

Lister-Huscroft baseball talent fared badly in two games played at Copeland, Idaho, on Sunday. The men's aggregation was beaten 24 to 16, and the girls' nine suffered a 25-17 setback. Quite a large number of fans accompanied the teams to Copeland.

Pupils from Lister school won a share of the honors at the valley schools' track meet at Creston on Saturday afternoon Douglas McKee was second and third respectively in the 220 and 100 yard runs. David Gustafson tied for second place in the junior high jump, while Manning Powers, Raymond McKee and Mary Daus each took a second place in their respective divisions in the 50 yard dash.

Official records from the 52 week egg laying contest at the Dominion experimental farm at Brandon, Man., up to the end of April, show the Fred Powers pen of ten pullets leading the contest with a total of 1184 eggs and 1171 points. It would look as if the Powers White Wyandottes were also the best pen in all western Canada, as there is nothing in the Saskatchewan contest to compare with them, and at the B.C contest at Agassiz the leading pen of Wyandottes only had 1100 eggs and 1035 points. For the last week in April the Powers birds had remarkable showing, four laying seven eggs each; three six eggs apiece; two four eggs, and one three eggs. The contest has been under way since the first of November.

Creston Trims Canyon, 4 - 3

Christie Steals Second, Third and Home for Ninth-Inning Win—Couling Has Edge on Niblow in Great Pitchers' Battle.

Creston Intermediate and Canyon teams staged the most exciting baseball clash Creston has seen in years at Exhibition Park on Sunday afternoon, the locals wining a 4-3 encounter by putting over the winning tally in the ninth inning on a hit by Jack Johnston who was permitted to have Earl Christie run for him, Christie stealing second, third and home to annex the wanted counter.

The game was tied up at the end of the second frame and again at the close of the third In the eighth honors were still even, but Creston came through in sensational style in the ninth to clinch the victory. For Creston the day's honors were carried off by Arthur Couling, who pitched great ball all the way through. Harold Speers and Jack Payne starred in the field, and the best of the local batters was Jack Johnston.

With the exception of the last round, when he allowed three stolen bases. Jack Hale caught a steady game and Niblow's pitching was all that was required. In the hitting Bob Hale and Humble were the pick of the visitors. The teams:

Schools' Track Meet Success

Huscroft Noses Out Canyon by One Point for Best Showing by Rural School—1931 Winners Again Prominent.

Except for occasional gusts of wind and bursts of rain, favorable weather greeted Creston Valley schools' second annual track meet at Exhibition Park on Saturday. A crowd of 143 contestants from nine schools, together with supporters and parents, filled the fair grounds. Long before the afternoon was over the refreshment booth was sold out. Over 100 children from the outlying schools were served a free lunch by the committee.

For the second time Huscroft won the Camp Lister trophy for one and two-room schools, but was hard pressed by Canyon, whose pupils ran up a total of 34 points to Huscroft's 35.

Herbert Dodd, runner-up of last year, repeated his success in the three races of the senior division, and won the high jump as well, to collect 23 points and the Masonic trophy for the senior boys' championship. Norman Nickel came a close second with 22 points.

Minnie Huscroft again won the Creston Valley Teachers' Association trophy for senior girls with a total of 18 points. Yvonne LaBelle was second with nine points.

Board Wants Street Sprinkled

New Members Still Being Enrolled—Ask Repair on Canyon Street—Canyon Power and Sewer Committees Progress

There was a turnout of 26 members for the May meeting of Creston Board of Trade on Tuesday evening, which was in charge of president R. J. Forbes, and at which the membership was further enlarged by the election as members of W. H. Crawford, H. W. McLaren, H. A. Powell and J. F. Murrell

It was eecided to purchase a suitable silver cup to be presented the Creston Valley Teachers' Association for presentation at the annual track meet, cup to be won three times in succession before becoming the permanent property of the winner. Engineer W. Ramsay will be written to asking the public works department to at once proceed with some needed repairs on Canyon street east, and the village council will be asked to abate the dust nuisance on Canyon street, betweed the Bank of Commerce and Long, Allan & Long's, by sprinkling or other means.

Mr. Ramsay will also get another letter asking that immediate effort be made to complete the remaining 200 yards of hard surface road repair, commenced last fall, in the Alice Siding district. The C.P.R. superintendent will get two letters. One will ask that when the station staff is brought up to full strength next month that the old hours of from 8 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. be restored. At present the station is operating from 9.30 to 5.30. The other letter will ask the company to take into their serious consideration the mater of electrically lighting the depot.

For The Associated Boards of Trade convention at Fernie at the end of the month the delegates chosen are Col. Mallandaine, L. C. McFarland and C. O. Rodgers. They will see to it that if a successor is named to F. A. Starkey, former commiss oner, that the name of J. H. Doyle is given full consideration to fill the vacancy. The local board will submit at least one resolution which will ask that at the July meeting of the Imperial Economic Conference that effort be directed along the line of "establishing at one attempt a complete and elaborate structure of mutual tariff preference or other trading advantage."

For the publicity committee S. A. Speers reported on the erection of suitable signs at Rykerts and Yahk to direct tourist traffic this way, and the bill of $23 for painting these was ordered paid. The special committees handling the Goat River canyon development and the village sewer system reported progress, and hoped to have something concrete to lay before the Juue meeting of the board.

"SALADA" TEA

"Fresh from the Gardens"

The Psat, The Present and The Future.

Poets have written of "The past I leave behind"; men of affairs have stated the same thing; wayfaring youth promising to reform have made such declarations; all of us have been exhorted to "let the dead past bury its dead."

But can the past ever be left wholly behind? Does it not always intrude into the present and even project itself into the future? Is not the present made up largely of the accumulated experiences of the past, and will not the future be moulded in the experience of today? All history proves that this is so.

Furthermore, even if it were possible to leave the past behind, to wipe the whole slate clean and begin all over again as if what has gone before had never been, would it be a wise course of action? In some respects, perhaps, yes; in other respects most decidedly, no.

The past, it is true, is now only of value for the experiences it has provided, for the lessons it has taught, for the accumulations of wisdom it has thus stored up for our guidance, for the advances that have been made, and are now ours, in the onward and upward march of the race since prehistoric days. And it is because of these gains that it would be most unwise to completely blot out the past, even if we could.

Even the mistakes, the errors, the foolishness, the sins of the past should not be forgotten; they, too, have their value. They are the signposts along the road of the present, stretching on into the future, to warn us of dangers, to point out what to avoid.

But the past and its experiences, insofar as they resulted in discouragements and disappointments, weakening our wills, breaking our courage, lessening our initiative and energies, should be relegated to the limbo of the forgotten. They have no value, and constitute nothing but hampering drags now and throughout the days and years to come. They may well be wholly erased from our memories; left to the past to be forever buried by and in it.

And the present? It is our only opportunity. We may have a future, and we may not; no one can tell. But we have the present; it is now ours to use or abuse. And we have the past to guide us in the manner and method of its use. And the future, if we are accorded one, will largely be what we make it by the use, or abuse, we make of the present.

Down through the ages our customs of life, our daily habits, our modes of thought and action, our institutions of government, our community existence, even our physical beings, have been developing and moulded to the forms of today. Man has profited by the lessons and experiences of the past, and he must continue in the present to profit, to learn, and to apply his learning to the problems of the present if his own future, and the future of his children and of the race, is to be better and brighter than is the present.

From the dark ages to the present, mankind and the world in which we live has progressed. At different stages progress has been achieved by great upheavals, by revolution, but it has been through the less spectacular peaceful processes of evolution that the greatest upward strides have been made, those having the most far-reaching, most beneficial and lasting results for the betterment of all. This very fact, these experiences out of the past, have a lesson for the world of mankind today.

We have been suffering from a so-called business and economic depression. Times have been difficult and discouraging. Men and women in all countries and in all walks of life have been, and many still are, discouraged. Some are desperate, and talk revolution. But the past, if we will heed its warnings, teaches us that by revolution they suffered the most, whatever may have been the ultimately beneficial reforms which followed, while it has been by and through evolution that the greatest gains and blessings to the masses of the world's inhabitants have been secured.

In times like the present, men's views become distorted and their thinking unsound. This is but natural; it is, indeed, human nature. They are prepared to go to extremes in the present without counting the cost of what the future will call upon them and their descendants to pay for the mistakes they may thereby make.

The present, therefore, is not a time for men to say: "The past I leave behind," except in the sense that they leave the errors and follies and unsound thinking of the past out of their reckoning and plans for the present and future. Rather it is a time to remember and closely study the past, the experiences of the past, and the results which flowed from those experiences, with a view and a determination to profit thereby, rejecting what time and experience has proven to be bad, and incorporating, extending, strengthening those ideas and principles which have revealed their soundness into the warp and woof of the future.

Growing Their Own

Gardeners in Iceland are using the hot springs for horticultural purposes with such good results that they claim that Iceland need import no more foreign vegetables—they can grow sufficient to supply the whole island. The islanders are starting a campaign with the slogan: "Buy Icelandic."

Nowadays people not only refuse to give credit where credit is due, but they won't give credit where cash is due either.

Showed Great Vitality

Remarkable vitality was shown by a hen that was buried under a heap of garden and path cleanings at Palmerston North, New Zealand, for twenty-four days. A neighbor heard it cackling and found it after investigation. It was weak and emaciated, but made a good recovery.

Psychologists find, in tests, that stimulating effects of caffeine in coffee and other beverages become less as the user grows accustomed to the drink.

I couldn't get my housework done I was so weak.

I took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt much better, and now I would not be without them in the house."

New Thieving Plan

Scotland Yard Looking For Gang Robbing Letter Boxes

A gang specializing in a combination of thieving and forging are occupying the attention of Scotland Yard. In search of letters containing checks, they fish in public and private letter-boxes, using flypaper as bait. Much of this work must prove futile, unless they have inside information or work at auspicious times, such as the first of the month.

Forgery of the purloined checks is a specialized job, which can be detected only by the use of ultra-violet rays and the aid of a handwriting expert. The gang's methods are so characteristically clever that they offer to Scotland Yard a ready means of identifying their handiwork.

If Edgar Wallace were still alive, a new book or play featuring these novel exploits might be expected in a few weeks—or even days.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Isabella Horses Are Scarce

Special Breed Can Be Obtained Only In Germany

Isabella horses are being sought in Germany by Captain Hopkins, regarded as one of the best judges of horses in India, at the behest of a Maharajah. They are a special breed with brownish yellow coats and white manes and tails. They are wanted to draw the Maharajah's state coaches. Horses of this type used to be bred throughout Europe by various princes, the studs of the Kings of Hanover in Herrenhausen, being specially noted for them, but now so far as is known they are only bred by one private dealer in Germany.

Persian Balm—the one toilet requisite for the dainty woman. Delightful to use. Leaves no stickiness. Swiftly absorbed by the tissues. Delicately fragrant. Imparts a velvety loveliness to the complexion. Tones up the skin. Soothes and banishes all unpleasant roughness or chafing caused by wind and other weather conditions. Makes hands soft and white. Creates an elusive, essentially feminine charm. Persian Balm is indispensable to women of refinement.

Origin Of the Sandwich

It seems that the spirit of the age is against tea. "I wouldn't dream of taking up time and space with all the paraphernalia of a tea table," says a very modern hostess; "We usually play bridge and a stop for tea would be a nuisance." So we are back again at the days when my Lord Sandwich, too busy with gambling to bother about lunch, invented the snack which bears his name.

Asthma Is Torture. No one who hasn't gasped for breath in the power of asthma knows what such suffering is. Thousands do know, however, from experience how immeasurable is the relief provided by that marvellous preparation, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. For years it has been relieving the most severe cases. If you are a sufferer do not delay a day in securing this remedy from your druggist.

A Promising Sign

Many New Manufacturing Industries Are Starting In Britain

Students of the British industrial situation are pointing out that the returns from the Patent Office indicate an increased tendency to protect in Great Britain the production of commodities which heretofore have been largely supplied from foreign countries.

It is of great interest to note, in this connection, that there have been many applications for patents for silk manufacture, hitherto largely controlled by France; for laundry machines, up to now regarded as an exclusive American monopoly; and for dye and alloy manufactures, of which Germany has been the principal originator in the past.

In all these varying fields, new industries have sprung up in the Old Country, and so far as dyes and alloys are concerned, the manufacture is now predominatingly British, while silks and other products are being manufactured in Britain in ever-increasing volume. At a time when business is supposed to be going to the bow-wows, surely this is a promising sign.

Miller's Worm Powdess not only make the infantile system untenable for worms, but by their action on the stomach, liver and bowels they correct such troubles as lack of appetite, biliousness and other internal disorders that the worms create. Children thrive upon them and no matter what condition their worm-infested stomachs may be in, they will show improvement as soon as the treatment begins.

Radio In Dummy Funnel

This Innovation Will Be Seen On New British Liner

A dummy funnel will be used to house the wireless equipment of the White Star liner "Georgic," which is rapidly nearing completion at Belfast.

The aerial and direction finder both will be inside the giant funnel, and thus screened effectively from local electrical disturbances. The top of the funnel will be open, and with the aerial fitted on the roof of a cabin inside, it will be possible to obtain uninterrupted wireless signals for direction finding. The screening will be so complete, in fact, that the usual work of eliminating electrical interference from the ship's motors will be unnecessary.

Like her sister ship the "Britannic," the "Georgic", will have two huge elliptical funnels, but as she is a motor vessel, only one is needed as an exhaust and ventilator.

Flivver Derails Freight Train

Knocks Eight Freight Cars Off the Track at Level Crossing

They tell of a mouse falling into a rum barrel and crawling out crying for lions to fight.

Recently at a level crossing near Gravenhurst, Ont., a "flivver" sideswiped a Canadian National Railway freight train and derailed eight cars. It charged screeching and died screeching, a total wreck, but in its death agonies it guarded its owner-driver, T. E. Callon, Orillia, and another passenger, William McEeachern, both of whom escaped with minor bruises. None of the train crew was injured.

Why suffer needlessly! Douglas' Egyptian Liniment brings quick, sure relief to scald feet, soft corns and warts. Relieves inflammation. Removes proud flesh.

Trapper Meets Tragic End

Perishes From Cold In Shack In Northern Woods As Result Of Accident

Solution of a five-month mystery and the end of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police search came recently with the arrival at The Pas of a Mountie patrol under Constable W. Barret, bringing the body of Oscar Morrell, missing trapper, from one of his trapline shacks 34 miles east of Mile 374 on the Hudson Bay Railway lines.

Morrell left Mile 374 on Christmas Eve last, planning to be gone two weeks on a hunting trip. It is believed while covering his trapline he accidentally discharged his rifle and blew off his right hand. Driving his team of dogs, he staggered through the snow to one of his trap-line shacks, where he made a rude and futile effort to stop the flow of blood from his injured arm. As he weakened rapidly he built up the fire in the shack to keep out the freezing winds, using chairs, part of his bed, and even his snow-shoes in his effort to keep warm.

When friends here became alarmed at his long absence, a detachment of Mounties set out to search for him, and broke into his shack to find his body in the grim setting of his lonely struggle against death. His body was brought to The Pas for identification and burial. He is believed to have lived in Winnipeg and Saskatoon before coming north to trap.

No Wood Is Solid

The solidest and soundest kind of wood is not really solid at all. It is full of air—twenty to forty per cent. of its total bulk consists of gases, trapped in the minute tubes and cell cavities that all wood is made of. This appears from the researches of Dr. D. T. MacDougal, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, who reported them.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY ADVANCED FOR ALBERTA

Drumheller, Alberta.—An independent political organization for Alberta, drawing its support from all spheres of life and from all old political units was announced by F. C. Moyer, Independent M.L.A. for Drumheller, in an attack on the Farmer Government of Alberta. Mr. Moyer was giving an account of the past session of the Alberta legislature to his constituents.

"This new party, to be called the Provincial Party, is a development and enlargement of the independent idea in Alberta politics, uniting all forces in opposition to the present government and enlisting all who are prepared to contribute their ideas and efforts toward the betterment of the province," Mr. Moyer declared.

"It is not a Conservative movement, it is not a Liberal movement, it is not the Farmer or Labor Party in a new guise. But we welcome all who seek not the success of a party but of a people. No one person or group has a monopoly of wisdom, so we seek all classes that we may have a cross-section of the life of the province."

In launching the plans for organization of the Provincial Party Mr. Moyer emphasized that it would be based on the Independent principle. No candidate who was elected under the auspices of the new party would be forced to follow the dictates of the party's cabinet if it were elected to power in Alberta.

"We want the elected members to go on the floor of the legislatures and speak as their judgment dictates. This of course," he said, "involves the abolition of the old rule that the defeat of a government bill means the resignation of the ministry. But why should the government resign except on a want of confidence motion? The mayor does not resign if some idea of his is overruled.

"We believe this system will result in better legislation and better legislators. If you keep a child in swaddling clothes it will never develop to much of a man, and if you stutify the intelligence and expression of a private member of the government side, by making him simply a voting unit, you may lose the aid of one who might have developed into a real counsellor. Why should not our legislation be the thought of the majority of the whole legislature instead of the majority of the government group?"

On the proportion of votes cast at the general elections in Alberta in 1930, said Mr. Moyer, the Independents should have nine representatives in the legislature. Instead, they had only three.

Referring to organization, Mr. Moyer said that because he was the present leader of the group of three Independents, it did not necessarily follow that he would be the leader of the Provincial Party. "Many strong men will be found in our ranks after the next election, and it is for them to elect a leader," he declared.

Tax Boost In Ireland

Steep Increases In Tariffs Proposed In De Valera Budget

Dublin, Irish Free State.—Steep increases in tariffs and income taxes were proposed in the first budget of the De Valera government, which was introduced in the dail eireann.

The budget provided for a duty on tea of four pence a pound and a package tax of two pence on each container holding any article of food or drink, or cosmetics or medical preparations packed for sale.

The income tax rate would be raised from three shillings six pence to five shillings in the pound.

Drastic action was necessary to make both ends meet in the nation's finances because President De Valera's government faced a budgetary deficit of £3,500,000.

The budget provided for extending the entertainment tax to cover dancing, outdoor sports, horse racing and dog racing. It also set forth an increase of one shilling two pence a pound in the duty on tobacco.

Drama Of the Skies

Two Men Of Mooring Crew Lose Lives When Dirigible Attempts To Land

Camp Kearny, Calif.—A tragic drama of the skies was written in an unsuccessful attempt of the world's largest airship, the "U.S.S. Akron," to land here.

Two men of the mooring crew were dashed to death and a third, Bud Cowart, was carried two hours dangling on a 300-foot rope from the navy airship.

Ten thousand spectators saw the two fall as the dirigible surged upward. Cowart swung precariously half a mile over their heads. Women screamed, men wept.

Then he was rescued, hauled into a hatch of the big ship. A message dropped from the big bag.

"Cowart OK," it read.

A vast sigh of relief went up.

The climax to the westward crossing of the Akron, which left Lakehurst, N.J., on its first trans-continental trip, came during efforts to make an emergency mooring at Camp Kearny after an aerial voyage fraught with storms.

Several attempts to bring the great skyliner down had been made by a determined ground crew when upward currents suddenly caught the great ship.

Robert Edfall and Nigel Henton, both of the San Diego naval training station, and Cowart clung to the landing line, to the horror of the watching throng as the Akron surged upward. Edfall and Henton lost their grip and fell to death, but Cowart clung on.

Upward the great ship swept with Cowart dangling on the line 300 feet below the dirigible. A height of 2,000 feet was reached but Cowart maintained his precarious grip. Through bumpy air the Akron sailed, but Cowart clung on.

Minutes that seemed like hours to the gasping crowd below passed as the Akron cruised through the bumpy air, rocking up and down, with the plucky Cowart dragging along. Then it was noted the distance between Cowart and the Akron began slowly to diminish.

There was no winch on the rope. It was slow work hoisting Cowart up by hand. At last he was dragged through a cockpit.

Creation Of Federal Farm Board Considered

Announcement Made At Ottawa By Hon. Robert Weir

Ottawa, Ont.—A commission of experts will inquire into the feasibility of creating a farm products marketing board.

Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Aggriculture, announced in the House of Commons that in view of the Imperial Economic Conference the government did not consider the board should be established at the present time.

A marketing board, to deal with exports of agricultural products has received considerable study in the past few months. Members from all parties in the House have contributed to the discussion.

It was understood the board's activities would apply not only to butter but to many farm products in which the exportable surplus is relatively small in comparison with the domestic consumption.

One of the board's functions would be to handle the export surplus in such a way that Canadian prices would not fluctuate widely, due to the domestic price being affected by the world figure.

Allowed To Sell Cattle

Moscow, Russia.—Russian farmers have been given the right to sell their cattle in the retail markets for the remainder of 1932. This marked another step in the liberalization of the Soviet farm code, to encourage individual farmers—whether collective or independent—to seek the open market.

Delegates Sail For Home

Hamilton, Bermuda. — Carrying with them to their home parliaments new information on Imperial trade, British and Canadian delegations to the tri-partite conference here sailed from Bermuda May 11. Work of the conference was concluded May 9.

HELD IN SLAYING

Filing a murder charge against Captain W. N. Lancester, British aviator and partner of Mrs. Jessie Keith-Miller, Australian flier, climaxed a ten day investigation into the death of Haden Clark, author, at Miami, Florado. It is believed that Clark had taken his own life, but now police charge that notes which led to that belief were forged.

Delegates Will Come From All Dominions

Full Representation Assumed For Imperial Conference At Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont.—Mutual advantage to every section of the far-flung Empire will be the objective of the Imperial Conference, which opens in Ottawa, July 21, said Premier R. B. Bennett, during an hour devoted to considering problems to be faced at the commonwealth gathering.

Preparations were well advanced, he said. Committees were gathering information on the three broad subjects to be discussed—trade, communications and currencies.

The Prime Minister will head the Canadian delegation and ministers will be called in, depending upon the subjects under review. Every Dominion has accepted the invitation to be represented, and with the exception of New Zealand and the Irish Free State have named their delegation, Mr. Bennett said.

Should Be Well Informed

Ottawa, Ont.—The necessity of fostering an informed and understanding Canadian public opinion in the work of the League of Nations, especially now with critical days ahead, was stressed by Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the League of Nations Society in Canada, when he welcomed delegates to the tenth annual meeting here.

China is one of the few great countries where airplanes have come into use for commercial transportation before adequate railway systems were developed.

No Wheat Bonus

Both Bushel and Acreage Basis Plans Are Rejected

Ottawa, Ont.—A bonus scheme for wheat, on both a bushel and acreage basis, was turned down definitely by the House of Commons. Without a recorded vote two motions were defeated, the first from Robert Gardiner, leader of the farm bloc, suggesting continuation of the five cent bounty on export wheat, and the second from Dr. Thomas Donnelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, proposing a five cent bonus on a seed-acreage basis.

In discussing the question of wheat in its relation to the welfare of Canada and its importance to Canadian export trade, it must be remembered that the greatest proportion of wheat was produced in the prairie provinces, Mr. Gardiner declared. During the early part of the present century many people had been induced to go to western Canada by the great opportunities which were said to lie there in wheat-growing.

Progressive members had been long awaiting some declaration of policy from the government with regard to the wheat-growers. Mr. Gardiner realized that the members of the government were bearing tremendous responsibilities, and felt sympathy with them in the burden they were called upon to bear. But that fact did not relieve him from the responsibility of inquiring from the government what the policy was.

"We produce the best wheat in the world, and we are proud of it," Mr. Gardiner continued. But it cost about 76 cents a bushel to produce No. 1 wheat on the basis of twenty bushels to the acre. The price level for No. 1 wheat at the head of the lakes was approximately 59 cents a bushel. Consequently every bushel grown meant a loss of seventeen cents. The wheat farmer could not keep on very long with such prices.

Price of commodities which the farmer used were somewhere lower than in the past, he declared. On the other hand, they had not fallen to the extent which wheat prices had dropped.

Preserve Historic Spot

Wellington, New Zealand. — Lord Bledisloe, Governor-General of New Zealand, and Lady Bedisloe, have purchased "Maitangi," the most historic spot in New Zealand and the place where the treaty establishing British sovereignty was signed in 1840, and will present it to the nation. The action prevents it falling into the hands of a citizen of the United States who had been making offers.

Russia gave the largest group of new citizens to Canada in 1931.

FRENCH PRESIDENT VICTIM OF ASSASSIN'S BULLETS

The report of the death of President Doumer of France as a result of assassin's bullets shocked the world. Doumer was one of the most popular presidents France has had, and his death at the hands of a fanatical Russian was a sad blow to his country. This photograph was taken recently as he was leaving the Senate Chamber in Paris.

MILLIONS VESTED IN DOUKHOBOR HOLDINGS IN WEST

Victoria, B.C.—The extraordinary situation by which an enterprise valued at nearly six and one-half million dollars has been vested in the hands of Peter Veregin and 13 directors by the 5,000 Doukhobors of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, is revealed in a study of the articles of incorporation.

With Veregin sentenced to three years in penitentiary following a perjury conviction in Yorkton, Sask., British Columbia authorities are watching carefully the future of the colonies in this province. It is stated that according to the constitution of the colonies it would be in the power of the 13 directors to expel the entire 5,000 members, under certain circumstances, and unless the government intervened. Such an action by the directors is very unlikely as the directorate has a payless army rolling up an increasing bank account. Veregin recently stated under oath that he had accumulated some $700,000 during the past few years.

Incorporated as a Dominion corporation in April, 1917, with extra provincial registration in British Columbia, the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, Limited, of Canada, is capitalized at $1,000,000. Of this capitalization, $700,000 is paid up. But the issued shares are held in the names of Peter Veregin and 13 directors.

The colonists enjoy all belongings while members of the community, but have no right of ownership, having dispossessed themselves of such right some two years ago at a meeting in Brilliant, B.C. Members leaving or expelled forfeit their rights to property but may petition the supreme council of community economists which can allot them a share from the community's properties.

This latter provision, it is believed, has caused much of the Doukhobor trouble. The expelled Sons of Freedom are dissatisfied with the shares allotted them and have shown their indignation by nude parades and other activities which have brought them into conflict with the authorities. They refuse to attempt any court action against the community on the ground that it is against their religion.

Three courses are open to the 13 directors now that Veregin is under sentence. They may appoint a new leader, ask for a receivership, or request a winding-up order. It is believed disintegration might follow either one of the latter two courses, while a continuance of the present arrangements may not be acceptable to the young generation, who are said to be developing views in conflict with those of their elders..

Total Doukhobor holdings in Canada are shown as more than 67,000 acres of land, which, with other properties, are given a valuation of nearly $6,500,000. Doukhobor activities in the three western provinces, outside of farming, include saw mills, planing mills, granaries, a box factory, a stove pipe factory, jam and canning establishments, fruit packing houses and a grain elevator.

Total Doukhobor assets in British Columbia are nearly $4,500,000; in Saskatchewan more than $1,250,000 and in Alberta more than $500,000.

Salvage Crews Working On Grain Elevators

Estimated Loss From Incendiary Fire Set At $75,000

Meacham, Sask.—Salvage crews have commenced in the work of clearing up the debris of the three local elevators which were destroyed by incendiary fires May 7, with a resultant loss of 70,000 bushels of grain.

Estimated loss from the fires, including loss of wheat, has been set at $75,000.

It is expected that the work of clearing up would take about two weeks. The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, Alberta Pacific Grain Company and Standard Grain Company, owners of the three elevators, have signified their intention of rebuilding the structures.

R.C.M.P. are still investigating.

The telephone saved the home

"The telephone's a mighty handy instrument—I wouldn't be without one," Ed. Smith told the new neighbor who had dropped in to use the Smiths' telephone. "Why just last month it saved this house from destruction.

"We were awakened at night by the smell of smoke. The place was on fire. I rushed to the telephone and put in an alarm. Thanks to that call, the firemen arrived in the nick of time. Our home was saved."

The new neighbor grew thoughtful. Burglars, sudden illness—he could think of many emergencies in which a telephone call might save life or property. He ordered a telephone for his own home that day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Nelson Musical Festival

Editor Review:

Sir,—The Nelson musica festival was a most enjoyable affair. The display of talent was good, and it was highly gratifying to see that Creston did so well, taking six prizes; possibly the biggest share of awards going to any point outside the cities of Trail and Nelson. There are still more prizes to be had, by a little more interest and exertion, for Creston Valley had some first-class material. Our local concerts have produced some good items. The choruses of Canyon school and the girls' selections being particularly good.

The adjudicators at Nelson gave very kindly and helpful criticisms and, being masters of their respective arts, a very instructive and interesting talk followed each class.

The criticisms coming to Creston's entrants were very complimentary indeed. Mrs. J. E. Johnston, Creston's teacher of music and elocution, was singled out from among the many. Creston is fortunate to have a teacher with this recommendation. Mrs. Johnston captured third place in elocution, her number failing only in a minor detail.

Edith Johnston shares her mother's gifts very nicely and her performance was pleasing. She has good speech and platform style, together with a first-class piano technique. Louie Johnston is, of course, in the early stages of development and in getting a place has done quite nicely, promising better in the future.

Kathleen Bundy performed her number with her usual sweetness and skill, with which we are familiar.

For the interested listener at the festival there is much to learn in hearing the repetitions and criticisms. The adjudicators give to the community quite a number of little talks on the composers, the compositions, the circumstances of origin and so on, together with a flood of reminiscences and stories, so much to the poini that the whole gathering will rock with laughter. What after dinner speakers these good people would make.

I would like to impress upon Creston Valley folk the help that we would get from sending more and more of our young people to the festivals, east or west. Getting a better and better style of music and elocution as time goes on; better concerts, better church music and better community singing. These things all reflect themselves upon the active community and make it just that more pleasant to live in.

W. J. TRUSCOTT.

Dominion Canners are not likely to operate at Keremeos or Ashcroft this year, but the plant at Oliver will take 100 acres of tomatoes.

Due to the cutting off of some of the government grants the Kelowna council may have to raise the 1932 tax rate at least three mills.

Notwithstanding numerous requests Rossland council will not alter its bylaw which makes it unlawful to keep cattle within the town limits.

Rossland council has refused endorsation of a resolution sent in from Naniamo demanding that the B.C. Telephone Company make a cut in rates.

The Orpheus choir at Kimberley will make sure due respect is shown the king. At its annual concert the opening number will be the national anthem.

So-Called Pauper With Fortune In Bank Had Odd Hobby

Investigators in Hamilton, Ontario, probing the strange case of Abadiah Markle, the so-caled pauper who died leaving a bank account of $14,000 found themselves faced with the most baffling collection of articles ever seen outside of a museum today.

Markle died over a month ago, apparently in penury, and was buried at the city's expense. Later it was discovered he had $14,000 in the bank. Large packing cases were located in a storage warehouse, in Markle's name, and were opened in the presence of witnesses.

Among the things found were these: Notepaper of the Royal Hotel, many years defunct; 200 rubber heels, old-fashioned bartenders' rubber shirt fronts, a collection of 300 hats—coachmen's hats, plaid caps, derbies which revealed every fashion from the 80's onward; a large assortment of keys for opening sardine cans, huge stocks of bedding, coat buttons, hairpins, powder puffs of yesteryear, soup spoons, patent eye testers, sample books of greeting cards, paper ice cream spoons and many other peculiar articles.

Great Canadian Hero

Colonel Mulloy Set High Example For Loyalty To the Empire

Colonel Lorne Winfield Mulloy, D.C.M., B.A., died unexpectedly at his home on the St. Lawrence River, Iroquois, Ontario, at 11 p.m. Sunday, February 21st, 1932, from heart attack, aged 53 years. Thus, with dramatic suddenness, there was removed from Canadian public life, one of its most brilliant intellects and inspiring figures.

Blinded in the South African War, Colonel Mully mastered every obstacle imposed by his wounds, cheerfully created fresh obstacles to surmount, scorned the paths of least resistance, was supremely successful in all tasks he undertook, and his death came at a time when his powers of intellect and his great executive abilities appeared destined to still further achievements.

Born on a Canadian farm, blinded in his early twenties, he continued his education with the aid of a secretary, graduated with honors from two famous universities, became one of the most outstanding speakers of our day on subjects of political economy, was offered more than once a seat in the Brit'sh House of Commons, was on the staff of the Royal Military College, became a successful practising lawyer, and his services to Canada during, and immediately after the war, were sufficiently conspicuous to deserve amplification.

He has been referred to as the father of Union Government in Canada. His fight and arguments for compulsory military service are believed to have been the deciding factor in causing the United States to declare against the inefficiency of voluntary enlistment.

As early as 1910 he was one of the leaders in Great Britain in the fight for tariff reform and Empire preferences, such as are now being negotiated by the several governments affected.

Mulloy's physical handicap was not perceptible to his friends, and he refused to recognize his lack of sight as either a misfortune or a handicap. His physical assurance was magnificent. He could swim, ride, row, fish, or drive a golf ball with any man. Alone he has piloted a row boat across the St. Lawrence River in a gale. He could untangle a fishing line more quickly than any companion. He never walked except at a stride. He has ever been an incessant traveller, and he never had an accident!

His humour was scintillating, clear and infectious; invariably he looked through and beyond the dark side of life. He was the soul of sincerity, generosity and integrity.

Mulloy's life should be printed in every school book, told from every pulpit and repeated at every Canadian fireside. As a practical and thrilling inspiration to the boys and girls of this country, this epic of courage and triumph and high ideals will perhaps never be exceeded.

JACOB AND ESAU RECONCILED

Golden Text: "Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you."—Ephesians 4.32.

Lesson: Genesis 32, 33.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 6. 9-15.

Explanations and Comments

Jacob's Precautions, verses 1, 2. —Looking up Jacob saw Esau approaching with four hundred men. The presence of so many men with Esau may be accounted for by his having just made his expedition to Mount Seir, where he conquered the land in which he afterwards settled, Genesis 36.6, 7. Edersheim suggests that he may have wished at the same time to make his brother anxious and to show him the contrast between their respective positions. Jacob evidently feared the worst. He was keenly aware of what he deserved at his brother's hands. He arranged his little company and put the handmaids and their children first, Leah and her children next, and in the safest place in the rear, his best-loved ones, Rachel and Joseph.

"Though courts of law neglect to curb transgression,
The court of conscience always is in season.

The Meeting Of the Brothers, verses 3-11.—Jacob passed over the ford first and showed Esau the greatest reverence by bowing himself to the ground seven times. Esau ran to meet and embrace Jacob, falling on his neck and kissing him as was the custom among friends. Had Jacob's present and his flattering attitude disarmed him? Dr. Skinner thinks that Esau's intentions were hostile and that Jacob gained a diplomatic victory over him. Rather does it seem that Esau had no thought of vengeance, he had dismissed the affair of the birthright with a shrug, as it were, and now virtually said, "Don't mention our trouble. I have got along famously without the birthright and without you." Whatever the actuating motive he was magnanimous.

"If thou must have thy revenge on thine enemy, heap coals of fire on his head, forgive him, and enjoy it." —Thomas Browne.

Russia Arranges Credit With Turkey

Based On Goods Exchange Without Actual Money Payments

A new economic alliance between Soviet Russia and Turkey, under which this country is extending an $8,000,000 long term credit to its Islamic neighbor, has been announced by Foreign Minister Tewfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey.

The credit is the first ever granted by the Soviet Government, which until now has been a seeker instead of a giver of credit in the world market. It is based on an exchange of goods in kind without actual monetary payments.

Under the agreement Soviet Russia will sell industrial tools, agricultural machines and fertilizers to Turkey, receiving as payments its choice of Turkey's natural resources, such as tobacco, wool, fruits and minerals.

LOST 30 lbs. FAT IN 3 MONTHS

AT THE AGE OF 40

"I was very stout, and I have taken Kruschen Salts for 3 months, and have reduced from 212 lbs. to 182 lbs. (age 40). I am a hearty eater, and have never dieted in any way. Also I have never felt any ill effects whilst I have been taking Kruschen salts."—T. H.

That is an instance of Kruschen succeeding without assistance. But if any fat person will be satisfied with a moderate diet, and will take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—they can lose fat in just the same way.

This is what Kruschen Salts does—it cleans out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape, and fills you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd almost forgotten had existed—you get the needful exercise.

As a result, instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate, you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

— BY —

MARGARET PEDLER

Author Of "The Splendid Folly," "The Hermit Of Far End."

Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

"Beg pardon, my lady," he said, touching his hat, "Sir Adrian sent me to say that he's waiting for you in the car just along the road there." He pointed to where, on the white ribbon of road which crossed the Moor not far from the base of the tor, a stationary car was visible.

Claire, her face ashen, turned to Nick in mute appeal.

"Sir Adrian? I thought he left for London this morning?"

Nick shot the question fiercely at the chauffeur, but the man's face remained respectfully blank.

"No, sir. Sir Adrian drove as far as Exeter and then returned. Afterwards we drove on here, sir, and they told us in the village we should find you at Shelston Tors."

Meanwhile the other members of the party were becoming aware that some contretemps had occurred. Claire's white, stricken face was evidence enough that something was amiss, and simultaneously Lady Anne and Jean hurried forward, filled with apprehension.

"What is it, Claire?" asked Lady Anne, suspecting bad news of some kind. "What has happened?" Recognizing the Charnwood livery, she turned to the chauffeur and continued quickly: "Has Sir Adrian met with an accident?" She could conceive of no other cause for the man's unexpected appearance.

"No, my lady. Sir Adrian is waiting in the car for her ladyship."

"Waiting in the car?" repeated Jean and Lady Anne in chorus.

The little group of friends drew closer together.

"Don't you see what it means?" broke out Claire in a low voice of intense anger. "It's been all a trick—a trick! He never meant to go to London at all. He only pretended to me that he was going, so that I should think that I was free and he could trap me." She looked at Nick and Jean significantly. "He must have overheard us—that day in the shrubbery at Charnwood—you remember?" They both nodded. "And then planned to humiliate me in front of half the county."

"But you won't go back with him?" exclaimed Nick, hotly. He swung round and addressed the chauffeur stormily. "You can damn well tell your master that her ladyship will return this evening with the rest of the party."

The man's face twitched. As far as it is possible for a well-drilled servant's face to express the human emotion of compassion, his did so.

"It would be no good, sir," he said in a low voice. "He means her ladyship to come. 'Go and fetch her away, Langton,' was his actual words to me. I didn't want the job, sir, as you may guess."

"Well, she's not coming, that's all," declared Nick determinedly.

"Oh, I must, Nick—I must go," cried Claire in distress. "I—I daren't stay."

Lady Anne nodded.

"Yes, I think she must go, Nick dear," she said persuasively. "It would be—wiser."

"But it's damnable!" ejaculated Nick furiously. "It's only done to insult her—to humiliate her!"

Claire smiled a little wistfully.

"I ought to be used to that by now," she said a trifle shakily. "But Lady Anne is right—I must go." She turned to the chauffeur, dismissing him with a little air of dignity that, in the circumstances, was not without its flavor of heroism. "You can go on ahead, Langton, and tell Sir Adrian that I am coming."

The man touched his hat and moved off obediently.

"Nick and I will walk down to the car with you," said Lady Anne. She was fully alive to the fact that her escort might contribute towards ameliorating the kind of reception Claire would obtain from her husband. "Jean dear, look after everybody for me for a few minutes, will you? And," raising her voice a little, "explain that Claire has been called home suddenly, as Sir Adrian was not well enough to make the journey to town after all."

But Lady Anne's well-meant endeavor to throw dust in the eyes of the rest of the party was of comparatively little use. Although to many of them Claire was personally an entire stranger—since Sir Adrian intervened whenever possible to prevent her from forming new friendships—the story of her unhappy married life was practically public property in the neighborhood, and it was quite evident that to all intents and purposes the detestable husband had actually insisted on her returning with him, exactly as a naughty child might be swept off home by an irate parent in the middle of a jolly party.

It was impossible to stem the flood of gossip, and though most of it was kindly enough, and wholeheartedly sympathetic to Lady Latimer, Jean's cheeks burned with indignation that Claire's dignity should be thus outraged.

The remainder of the afternoon was spoilt for her, and Nick's stormy face when he, together with Lady Anne, rejoined the rest of the party did not help to lighten her heart.

"I'm so sorry, Nick," she whispered compassionately, when presently the opportunity of a few words alone with him occurred.

He glared at her.

"Are you?" he said shortly. "I'm not. I think I'm glad. This ends it. No woman can be expected to put up with public humiliation of that sort."

"Nick!" There was a sharp note of fear in Jean's voice. "Nick, what do you mean? What are you going to do?"

There was an ugly expression on the handsome boyish-looking face.

"You'll know soon enough," was all he vouchsafed. And swung away from her.

Jean felt troubled. She had never seen Nick before with that set, still look on his face—a kind of bitter concentration which reminded her forcibly of his brother—and she rather dreaded what it might portend.

Her thoughts were still occupied with the afternoon's unpleasant episode, and with the possible consequences which might accrue, as she climbed into Burke's high dog-cart.

She had had a fleeting notion of claiming Claire's vacant seat for the homeward run, but had dismissed it since actually Claire's absence merely served to provide comfortable room for Blaise in the Willow Ferry car, which had held its full complement of passengers on the outward journey. Moreover, she reflected that any change of plan, now that she had ageed to drive back with Burke, might only lead to trouble. He was not in a mood to brook being thwarted.

A big, raking chestnut, on wires to be off, danced between the shafts of the dog-cart, irritably pawing the ground and jerking her handsome, satin-skinned head up and down with a restless jingle of bit and curb-chain. She showed considerably more of the white of a wicked-looking eye than was altogether reassuring as she fought impatiently against the compulsion of the steady hand which gripped the reins and kept her, against her will, at a standstill.

The instant she felt Jean's light foot on the step her excitement rose to fever heat. Surely this must mean that at last a start was imminent and that that firm, masterful pressure on the bit would be released!

But Burke had leaned forward to tuck the light dust-rug round Jean's knees, and regarding this further delay as beyond bearing the chestnut created a diversion by going straight up in the air and pirouetting gaily on her hind legs.

"Steady now!"

Burke's calm tones fell rebukingly on the quivering, sensitive ears, and down came two shining hoofs in response, as the mare condescended to resume a more normal pose. The next moment she was off at a swinging trot, beaking every now and again, out of pure exuberance of spirits, into a canter, sternly repressed by those dominating hands whose quiet mastery seemed conveyed along the reins as an electric current is carried by a wire.

"You needn't be afraid," remarked Burke. "She'll settle down in a few minutes. It's only a 'stable ahead' feeling she's suffering from. There's not an ounce of vice in her composition.

"I'm not afraid," replied Jean composedly.

Too Much ACID

MANY people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion—as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 50c a bottle—any drug store.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia tooth-paste.

Best oil cheapest in home, says factory sup't.

"The last thing we'd try to economize on," says the superintendent of a large eastern factory, "is lubricating oil. By using cheap oil we could 'save' hundreds of dollars each year—but it would cost us thousands of dollars for repairs, replacements and lessened efficiency of equipment."

The same is true in the home. If all housewives knew what factory men know about lubrication, few of them would use anything but 3-in-One Oil for their expensive sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric fans, lawn mowers, washers, and other household devices. 3-in-One, a blend of mineral, vegetable and animal oils, is the best oil for household use, for it cleans and protects as well as lubricates.

Ask for the old reliable 3-in-One Oil at good drug, grocery, hardware, department and general stores. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

How Air Films Are Made

Handicaps Have Been Overcome By Use Of Motor Driven Cameras

Film stories of aviation present more handicaps during production than almost any other type of screen fare, according to Stephen Roberts. Mr. Roberts is the wartime aviator and former stunt flier who went to Hollywood to direct "Sky Bride."

"The one reason airplane movement fails to furnish thrills and interest is because of the 'plane's lack of background," he said on his return. "In playing action against a blank, even a clouded sky, it is difficult to convey a sense of speed.

"With the cameras on the ground, the airplanes usually are so distant that the speed is lost on the screen. With the cameras in a balloon or on a high tower, the range of their activity is limited. With the cameras in another 'plane, both camera-ship and the 'plane being photographed must travel at relatively the same speed to allow filming of close shots, and once more all sense of speed is lost.

"Electrically controlled cameras are the way we succeed in capturing effective scenes in the air. We attach these motor-driven cameras to the rim of the cockpits, pointing backward, right into the flier's face.

"We rehearse the scenes on the ground, then send the boys up alone. When the right altitude is reached, the actors press a switch and the camera starts grinding while the actor plays the scene himself, without direction."

Little Helps For This Week

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." — Galatians vi. 2.

What is the real good?
I asked in musing mood.
Order, said the law-court;
Knowledge, said the school;
Truth, said the wise man;
Pleasure said the fool;
Love, said the maiden;
Beauty, said the page;
Freedom, said the dreamer;
Home, said the sage;
Fame, said the soldier,
Equity, the seer:—
Spake my heart full sadly,
"The answer is not here."
Then within my bosom,
Softly this I heard,
"Each heart holds the secret,
Kindness is the word!"

John Boyle O'Reilly.

But now God has so ordained it that we should learn to bear one another's burdens, for there is no one who has not some defect, no one without some burden, no one independent of others, no one wise enough of himself; but we ought to bear with one another, comfort one another, help, instruct, and advise one another.

Canada's Arctic Citizens

Over 7,000 Eskimos Living In Our Northern Hinterland

There are approximately 7,100 Eskimos in Arctic and sub-Arctic Canada, including Hudson Bay, scattered in small groups, principally in the Arctic Islands and along the northern sea-board. Canadian Eskimos are progressive. The more advanced have, in their homes, sewing machines, gramophones and radio outfits. In the Mackenzie delta and along the western Arctic coast the ambition of the head of a family is to own a schooner fitted with an auxiliary gasolene engine. At Aklavik during the summer as many as twenty-five of these schooners, all owned by natives, are frequently to be seen at one time.

To Bring Back Prosperity

Only Way Is By Harder Work and Better Work

If we allow ourselves to believe that some intangible, mysterious thing called "recovery" is going to improve our lot without any assistance from ourselves we will soon lose the trenches we have gained. The last three years have chastened the instinct for laziness which is one of our racial disadvantages. The last three years has driven the well-dressed idler into work or obscurity. The last three years has forced us to place sport and recreation generally in their proper relation to the stubborn realities of life. We cannot afford to abandon the stern discipline we have learned. Harder work and better work is the only way to reach the promised land of prosperity. By the sweat of our brow alone will good times come again.—Daily Express, London, England.

DECLARE THEY HATE SIGHT OF DUST CLOTHS

Canadian women vote dust cloths a nuisance to use and to wash

MUCH PREFER APPLEFORD WONDER PAPER

With so much inventive thought being given to eliminating unnecessary housework, it is only natural that a worthwhile substitute for the musty dust cloth should be sought.

Now it has been found! Appleford Wonder Paper which actually dusts—as it cleans—as it polishes is receiving a hearty welcome from Canadian women who detest dust cloths and all they stand for.

Wonder Paper is made from clean rags and soft paper pulp, thoroughly impregnated with a high-grade furniture polish, and absorbs dirt instead of spreading it.

Appleford Wonder Paper comes in handy-size package, twenty-five sheets, each as large as a duster. You merely crumple a sheet into a soft wad, and go over the surfaces requiring attention.

You'll be amazed at the quick and lasting finish Wonder Paper gives. When one side is worn and soiled, simply turn the Wonder Paper inside out. After the furniture or woodwork has been gone over, you can still use your Wonder Paper on the floors.

And when you're through—throw it away. No duster to shake out or wash. No bother at all. The most obnoxious part of housework done in half the time and with half the effort. Doesn't the idea appeal to you?

Special Offer

Wonder Paper is made by the makers of the famous PARA-SANI heavy waxed paper in the Green Box. Most grocery, hardware and department stores sell Appleford Wonder Paper. The somewhat cooler weather that set in on Wednesday is much to the liking of the operators on the Reclamation Farm as it has halted the rise in the Kootenay River; in fact during Wednesday it had reached the 16 foot mark. Repairs that have been made to the old dyke at Boundary creek and on the farmers' dyks at the Johnson slough makes both ends of the farm safe even at a rise to 19 feet. Right now there is every reason to believe the flood waters will not reach that point this season.

Buyers of these licenses are required to give their age, height, weight, color of hair and eyes, this detail, presumably, being to prevent transfer of these licenses.
