Ex-High School Leads Basketball

Team Shows Class in Ladies' Section of League—Honors are More Even in Men's Department—Season Just Opened.

The basketball season got away to a good start on Tuesday, November 1st.

The first game of the season was an overtime affair between the Meds and the Ex-High, the latter winning by a margin, 17-16. Starting slowly enough, the Meds began a scoring spree in the last few moments to tie the score at 16-all. In the overtime period, the Ex-High tightened up their defence and scored the winning basket.

The second game proved a walk-away for the High Reps, who out-scored the Dominoes, 28-10.

The third game was another closely-fought affair. The Centipedes got away to an early lead, but four straight baskets by Herb Couling reduced it to one point. The second half was ding dong in nature, the Centipedes never completely losing the lead but having it reduced several times to one point. The final score was Centipedes 30, Imperial Groceteria 27.

The second trio of games, on Friday last, were unaccountably rough.

The Meds upset the Highfliers, 13-6, the latter losing mainly because of their poor shooting. From the first basket the former team were never in danger.

The Ex-High took the Dominoes into camp, 26-11, in a very rough game-Helen Browell's work at guard was outstanding.

The inexperienced High School boys proved a tough nut for Macdonald's team to crack. It was only superior shooting ability that gave the game to the Bearcats, 18-9. Fouling was common, 23 penalties being called, and each team losing one man on personals.

At an executive meeting after the game it was decided that, in future, games scheduled for nights on which the hall is rented out are to be postponed until the end of the season, when they will be run off in rapid succession Teams and scores:

Arrange Observe Education Week

November 20-26th to Have a Day or Night Feature Bearing on Education—Committee is Formed Handle Undertaking

The department of education and educational organizations throughout the province are co-operating in giving British Columbia what may be termed as Education Week, from November 20th to 26th.

Every school district is being urged to participate in this rather important undertaking. At Creston the effort was fully organized at a meeting of representatives of the school board, board of trade, Women's Institute, Teachers Association, the press and the clergy, at the home of high school Principal F. P. Levirs, on Wednesday evening, at which Mr. Levirs was named chairman of the organization, and C. F. Hayes was named secretary.

In the village it is planned to have something bearing on education to submit the public each afternoon or evening throughout the week, commencing with Sunday, 20th, when the various pastors will direct attention to the affair in the course of their addresses.

A tentatitive programme has been drafted, and this will be finally approved at a meeting of the committee to be held early next week, and will be released for publication immediately.

In addition to addresses, sports will be prominently featured, and it is expected that on the afternoon of Friday, November 25th, the public school teachers and pupils will have something special to offer to indice parents and all interested to personally visit the school and get more intimately acquainted with local educational effort.

Value Of the League

Has Accomplished Much In the Years Of Its Existence

We have had the League of Nations only a few years now, and in that short time it has done much. It has bound up some wounds of the last war, cured some ills of the present, and prevented some evils for the future. It cannot attempt everything all at once—to give peace in twelve years to a planet which has been distracted by war for more than double that number of centuries. It can only attempt what a sufficient number of its supporters want it to attempt. The real danger in this crisis in its affairs is not of too slow progress but of its falling back through lassitude and ignorance on the part of Governments and peoples into a state where nobody cares whether it lives or dies. That must not be, the world would have no use for an apologetic survival, lingering on like a Holy Roman Empire or a Holy Alliance long after the life had left it.—Manchester Guardian.

Using Food For Fuel

Nebraska Planning To Heat School Buildings With Corn

Down in Brazil, recently, they were burning surplus stocks of coffee—just to get rid of it, as they do not need fires in that part of the world, except for cooking purposes. But out in Nebraska artificial heating is necessary during a good part of the year and the school commissioners in one district have decided to heat the court house and 62 school buildings under their jurisdiction with corn next year. They figure it will provide a ready market for the farmers' surplus crop and, perhaps save the country some money at the same time. They estimate they can purchase corn, still on the cob, at $8 per ton, while coal costs $12 a ton.—Moncton Times.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

You are "feeling punk" simply because your liver isn't pouring its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination are both hampered, and your entire system is being poisoned.

What you need is a liver stimulant. Something that goes farther than salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum or roughage which only move the bowels—ignoring the real cause of trouble, your liver.

Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable. No harsh calomel (mercury). Safe. Sure. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. 25c. at all druggists. 53

Japan and Britain

London Mail Is Opposed To Any Anti-Japanese Proceedings

On behalf of this country it should be clearly stated and generally recognized that we do not mean to be involved in any anti-Japanese proceedings. The British nation will have nothing to do with such criminal lunacy. It regards Japan's presence in Manchuria as being as natural and salutary as that of Britain in India or Egypt.—London Daily Mail.

MAKING A LIVING

Golden Text:: "In diligence not slothful."—Romans 12:11.

Lesson: Deuteronomy 24:14; Amos 5:6-15; Mark 6:3; Luke 12:13-21; 19:1-26; 2 Thessalonians 3:6-13; 1 Timothy 6:6-16.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 30:7-9.

Explanations and Comments

Denunciation Of Injustice and Oppression, Amos 5:11-15.—The prophet Amos is addressing the judges who "trampled upon the poor" by exacting from them a share of their scanty wheat in payment for justice. They shall reap what they have sown, Amos tells them; they shall not live in the houses of hewn stone which they have built, nor drink the wine from the vineyards they have planted. The prophet sees the approaching downfall of the kingdom of Israel.

Recall the observation of Lamartine that man never fastened one end of a chain around the neck of his brother that God did not fasten the other around the neck of the oppressor.

I know how manifold are your transgressions, and how mighty are your sins, Amos exclaims, and then accuses them of accepting bribes from the rich, whe then escaped the penalty due, and of withholding their rights from the needy who could not pay a bribe. The "gate" refers to the broad, open space before a city gate where claims were adjusted.

"Representative government,, democracy, the social order itself, stand in no greater danger than that threatened by the bribe-giver and the bribe-taker. When bills are passed or defeated for money secretly paid in hand, when justice is sold and law made an article of shameless traffic, the foundations of government and order are undermined."

Therefore he that is prudent — cautious—shall keep silence in such a time; for it is an evil time. The evil justices were in power, and it was useless for others, so, they thought, to attempt to change things, they would only get themselves into trouble in such a time as has just been described.

"Life is God's sacramental gift
To man for his emprizing—
The talent given into his care
For his soul's exercising—
A sacred trust bestowed on him
For his immortalizing
And he who lends will one day ask
His own again with interest,
See to it then, lest thou be found
Of those who failed Him in the test."
—John Oxenham.

How Orientals Do It

Japan Has Built and Delivered Warship To China

For a year undeclared war between China and Japan has been going on, all the tme in Manchuria and for two months in Shanghai.

But Japan has just delivered at Shanghai a first-class warship which she has been building for China since May, 1931. Japanese warships are in port and threatening action if the anti-Japanese boycott here does not cease and while a section of the Japanese fleet lies in the river at Shanghai the new Japanese-built Chinese warship steams up-river and is taken over by the "enemy."

The new vessel is a destroyer of 3,000 tons, costing $2,500,000, has a speed of 25 knots and represents an advanced type of naval craft. She is called the "Ninghai."

There is no "L" in the Japanese language and no "R" in the Chinese, so John Chinamen say "All light" and his Japanese enemy says "Aw right."

NEW INVENTION DOES AWAY WITH COOKING ODORS

Even fish and cauliflower bow down to Canapar Cookery Parchment

BETTER, CHEAPER AND EASIER COOKING

Delicious as cauliflower, cabbage and certain other vegetables are, they have imposed a heavy penalty on people who fearlessly cooked them. Not to mention those who had to suffer the odor without enjoying the finished product. The same thing is equally true of fish.

Canapar Cookery Parchment, a very ingenious invention, does away with this annoyance entirely. While sealing in odors, it also retains flavor and food value. Cooking in Canapar actually parallels the famous French method of simmering and confining food and its flavor in the closed casserole.

You buy Canapar in a large envelope of handy-size sheets which may be rinsed out and used over and over again because they won't absorb odors. When boiling vegetables you simply wet the Canapar and make a bag similar to a pudding bag. If you steam them, you line the steamer with Canapar, arrange food and seasoning, and fold back corners of the Canapar to prevent steam from dripping back. You can actually cook three vegetables at once in the same saucepan, this way—save fuel—and the flavors will not intermingle.

Steamed, or boiled, fish comes out firm, solid and swimming in its own juice. No odours. No sticky steamer or saucepan to clean up afterwards.

Line your roasting pan with Canapar, then the fats and juice can't burn. Meat is more succulent and there is no scouring or scraping of the pan afterwards.

Many women use Canapar for a dish cloth —it is so silky and satisfactory, and doesn't spread lint.

You'll never be without Canapar once you start using it. It saves time and money. Made by the makers of the famous PARA-SANI Heavy Waxed Paper in the Green Box.

Special Offer

Most grocers, druggists and department stores sell Canapar, but if yours doesn't, just send the coupon and we'll give you a new and unique book entitled "Leftovers" containing one hundred recipes as a bonus for your trouble.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

— BY —

MARGARET PEDLER

Author Of "The Splendid Folly," "The Hermit Of Far End."

Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

With a little inarticulate cry she ran to him—to the place that was hers, now and for all time, against his heart—and his arms, that had been so long empty, held her as though he would never let her go.

"Beloved of my heart!" he murmured. "Oh, my sweet—my sweet!"

They spoke but little. Only those foolish, tender words that seem so meaningless to those who are not lovers but which are pearls strung on a thread of gold to those who love—a rosary of memory which will be theirs to keep and tell again when the beloved voice that uttered them shall sound no more.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

"An House Not Made With Hands"

The landlord of the inn of the Green Dragon watched his two English visitors ride away up the steep road that led to Beirnfels with unquestionable regret.

They had been lodging at the Green Dragon for the past fortnight, and he had discovered that English milords, whatever else they might be, were not niggardly with their money. They required a good deal of attention, it is true, and had a strange, outlandish predilection for innumerable baths, demanding a quite unheard-of quantity of water for the same. And at all unlikely hours of the day, too—when returning from a ride or before going up to the castle to dine, mark you!

Still, they made no difficulty about paying—and paying handsomely—for all they wanted, and if a man chooses to spend his money upon the superfluous scrubbing of his epidermis, it is, after all, his own affair!

And now the two English milords were taking their departure from the Green Dragon and, so the landlord understood, proposed to stay at the castle itself until their return to England.

It appeared that their lady-mother—who, it was rumoured in the village, was the daughter of an English archduke ,no less!—was coming to Beirnfels and there was much talk amongst the village girls of weddings and the like. Apparently the Green Dragon's two eccentric visitors, not withstanding their altogether abnormal liking for soap and water, were much as most men in other respects and had lost their hearts to the two pretty English ladies living at the castle. So, no doubt, the "daughter of an English archduke, no less," was coming from England post haste to enquire into the suitability of the brides-elect—and also into the important point of the amount of the dowry each might be expected to bring her future husband.

There was no question that Lady Anne was certainly coming post haste—in reply to a series of joyful and imperative telegrams demanding that she should pack up and come to Beirnfels immediately—"for we are all enjoying ourselves far too much to return to England at present," as Nick wired her with an iniquitous disregard for the cost per word of foreign telegrams. And Lady Anne, who always considered money well-spent if it purchased happiness, proceeded to wire back with equal extravagance that she was delighted to hear it and that she and her maid would start at once.

It was a very happy party that gathered round the table in the great dining-hall at Beirnfels on the night of Lady Anne's arrival, and beneath all the surface laughter and gaiety lay the deep, quiet thanksgiving that only comes to those who have emerged out of the night of darkness and sorrow into a glorious sunlight of happiness and hope.

After dinner, in the soft, candle-lit dusk—for Peterson had never introduced the garish anomaly of electric light into the ancient castle—Jean sang to them in that quaintly appealing, husky voice of hers, simple tender folk-songs of the countryside, and finally, at a murmured request from Blaise, she gave them "The House Of Dreams."

It's a strange road leads to the House of Dreams,
To the House of Dreams-Come-True,
Its hills are steep and its valleys deep,
And salt with tears the Wayfarers weep,
The Wayfarers—I and you.

But there's sure a way to the House of Dreams,
To the House of Dreams-Come-True,
We shall find it yet, ere the sun has set,
If we fare straight on, come fine, come wet,
The Wayfarers—I and you.

As the last words died away in silence, she looked up and met Blaise's eyes. He was leaning against the piano, looking down at her with a tranquil happiness in his gaze.

"Our House of Dreams-Come-True, Jean, at last," he said softly.

She met his glance with one of utter trust.

"And we needn't ever fear, now, that it will tumble down. But oh! Blaise, if we had built on a rotten foundation, we should never have felt safe—not safe like this!"

"No. You were right, belovedest—as you always have been, always will be." Then, very low, so that none but she should hear: "Thank God for you, my sweet!"

* * * * *

It was ultimately settled that the whole party should remain at Beirnfels until the latter end of June, when they would all return to England together and the two weddings should take place as soon as possible afterwards.

"But we won't have a double wedding," declared Jean. "It's always supposed to be unlucky."

"Do you believe in good and bad luck, then?" asked Lady Anne, smiling.

"I don't know," Jean answered seriously. "But it's always just as well to be on the safe side. Anyway, we won't tempt Fate by running unnecessary risks!"

"Besides, madonna," added Nick, "in the excitement of the moment we might get mixed and the parson hitch us up to the wrong people. The average nerve-strain attendant upon the role of bridegroom will be quite sufficient for me, thank you, without the added uncertainty as to whether I'm getting tied up to the right woman or not."

So spring lengthened out into summer, and, as the heat increased, boating and swimming on the big lake that nestled in a basin of the hills were added to the long rides and excursions with which they whiled away the pleasant, sunshiny days.

Ever afterwards, the memory of those tranquil months at Beirnfels would linger in the minds of those who shared them as something rare and precious. It was as though for this little span of time, passed so far away from the noise and bustle of the big world, they had pulled their bargue out of the busy fairway of the river and moored it in some quiet, shady backwater. Then, when they were rested and refreshed, they would be ready to face anew, with fresh strength and courage, the difficulties and dangers of mid-stream.

"I'm sorry it's so nearly over—this long, long holiday of ours," said Jean regretfully. "The only thing that reconciles me to the fact is that after we're married Blaise and I propose to spend at least six months out of every year at Beirnfels."

The burglar was caught ....thanks to the telephone

"Yes, they caught the burglar, thanks to the telephone," Mrs. White was telling Mrs. Brown.

"John was out of town. so I was all alone. I was awakened in the night by someone moving around downstairs, and there came the dreadful realization that there was a burglar in the house. At first I was panic-stricken, but I suddenly remembered the telephone at my bedside, I snatched it up and calted the police. As I've already told you, they arrived in time to catch the prowler.

"Oh, I'm so thankful for having the telephone. It's certainly a great friend in an emergency."

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, NOV. 11

Shabby Sunaay Station Accommodation

The attention of the responsible authorities in the operating department of the C.P.R. is respectfully directed to the fact that their new regulation that closes Creston station completely on Sundays is not likely to prove popular.

For many years past the depot has been opened for about an hour before the arrival of both the east and westbound passenger trains, but commencing last Sabbath this accommodation is withdrawn; the depot remaining locked from Saturday night until Monday morning.

With the cold and disagreeable weather that can be looked for during the next six months, with the attendant uncertainty as to the time of arrival of trains, the travelling public is certainly entitled to a comfortable place in which to do its waiting—and wait it must because there is no one on duty to inform as to time trains may be expected, and the nearest agent on duty at Sirdar or Yahk.

If the company wishes to withdraw the ticket selling and limited telegraphic service that has been available in the past no one will be seriously inconvenienced, but at a point the size of Creston a comfortable waiting room is an absolute necessity and no time should be lost in impressing upon the company that this consideration must be shown the town.

If the company is unable to pay the station agent as in the past it should not be impossible to have the necessary Sunday attention at the station provided by the section hand who has to see to it that the track is patrolled seven days a week.

The Egg Shortage

Creston Valley would appear to be abundantly supplied with ten cent hens—that is, poultry that works overtime when eggs are a dime a dozen and loafs on the job when prices advance.

Now that the weather has taken a cold turn egg production has ceased on the prairie and Creston is unable to supply the demand for eggs at this week's price of 38 cents a dozen and an advance to 40 cents due next week.

The trouble, we are told is due the fact that poultry fanciers refuse to make the limited extra expenditure necessary to successfully handle April hatched chicks, which should be laying early in October—just at the time egg prices begin to advanc—and producing at maximum capacity in November when prices are invariably good.

That the hens are in the valley is indicated in receipts at the Institute grading station of 6000 dozens in April, which has slumped for some reason to less than 1000 dozens in October.

Creston has a wonderful "home market" for eggs all through the Crows Nest Pass, and at a time when the man on the land is looking for a profitable sideline it seems too bad egg production is not getting the attention it well deserves.

Long on Promises

In renewing his subscription to the Review one of our out of town subscriders points out that Creston can very truthfully claim to be a district of great promise.

There is the promise of West Kootenay Power & Light Company, Limited, to develop hydro power at Goad River canyon, and there is a promise from Creston Power & Light Company to provide a similar development on Summit Creek. There is the promise of those interested that the dykes around the Reclamation Farm are to be rebuilt to prevent future flooding, and there is the promise that Creston Reclamation Company will dyke another 8500 acres on the Kootenay Flats.

To which it might be added that there is also a promise of Premier Bennett to relieve unemployment, to say nothing of the weather prophets' promise of a short and mild winter.

Aid the Relief Effort

While grave doubts may exist as to prosperity being just around the corner, there is no uncertainity about the very near approach of cold weather, along with which will come demands upon the Relief Association for clothing, stockings, shoes, etc., in fact the heaviest demand for these is usually the first touch of winter.

House holders are appealed to to make careful search of their wardrobes, clothes closets, etc., for garments that can be spared and to immediately turn them in—and in condition to be immediately handed out, if at all poasible.

To those who have no clothing to donate, but who would like to help with the good work, a special appeal is made for cash contributions, small or large, all of which can be used to good advantage in the purchase of shoes, more particularly.

While it is always possible to make a wrong size garment answer the purpose, this is not so desirable with shoes. In footwear something a little too small or even oversize may produce foot troubles that it will be well to try to avoid.

The district did itself proud in connection with recent hospital shower. The relief Association effort deserves the same liberal consideration. And they do say that he who gives quickly gives twice. Do it now.

Monetary Systems.

Individuals the world over have always discussed money. They have always been interested in money. But the vast majority of people in years gone by never bothered their heads very much about monetary systems, and how they worked. They knew that their country was on "a gold standard," but they did not trouble to find out and understand just what that meant. They knew that Governments and banks issued paper bills and that these bills were money. But the main thing one and all were concerned about was how many of these bills they could get in return for the products or the services they had to sell, and how far those same bills would go in buying the goods or services they found it necessary to buy. Of the system behind the issue of these paper bills the average person knew little and cared less.

Today this indifference has disappeared like so many other things in this rapidly changing world. People are still interested in money, how to get, how to spend it, and what it will purchase for them. But they also want to know all about the system back of the issue, circulation, and exchange of money. The people of the world have been awakened with a jolt to a realization that the monetary system is not working as it should work in the interest and welfare of mankind, and we hear the opinion expressed on every hand that money has become the master and not the servant of mankind; that instead of remaining a mere convenience in order to expedite the exchange of the world's commodities and services, it has itself become a commodity; and, that being the case, the people want to know who controls the production of that commodity,—money.

As a result of this aroused interest, everybody is talking about monetary systems. People are debating the subject whether they understand it or not. The number of theories, opinions, suggestions advanced are legion; they far out-numbered all the monetary and banking systems of the world. Much of what is said, and is even being soberly advanced as a panacea for the world's ills, is based in the most profound ignorance. The "cures" being offered would prove far worse than the disease they wouuld seek to overcome.

Out of the confusion of ideas and suggestions and so-called solutions, one thing emerges. It is this: That no one nation can of itself remove the cause of its financial embarrassment and cure the malady from which it is suffering. There may be persons who honestly think that their pet theory will work where all others have failed; that a nation can, of itself, remedy its own ills, and that even a subordinate state or province within a nation can do so, but all history proves the fallacy of any such notion.

In our dilemma, the safe thing to do is to take a middle-course,—not to take the dictum of the banker on the one hand, nor the theories of the radical on the other hand, but rather to weigh well the opinions and advice of impartial students of world economics, men trained and having experience in the weighing of causes and effects, men who have no axe to grind, but who desire that solutions be reached based on solid facts and economic truth.

There are such men in most countries, and outstanding in this group in the world today is Professor Gustav Cassel, of Sweden. He is an originator, not merely an exponent of a great deal of modern economic thought. His counsel has been sought by central banks in many countries, by governments' and by the League of Nations. His opinions cannot be lightly dismissed. He was invited to deliver the Rhodes Memorial Lectures this year at Oxford. There were three lectures dealing with the gold standard and the break-down of the world's monetary system. These lectures have now been published in book form.

One Canadian reviewer of this book says that Professor Cassel minces no words in these lectures. There are none of the cautious phrases and complicated qualifications to which one is accustomed in the writings of economists. He speaks as one having authority and evidently considers that his subject has been carried beyond the bounds of controversy. Professor Cassel first shows that gold has ceased to impart value to money and that its automatic regulation of the value of money has given place to bank policy as a means of regulation. "For a true understanding of the monetary system," says Professor Cassel, "it is of fundamental importance that we should make ourselves familiar with the fact that a national currency never is anything else than a paper currency and that the maintenance of a gold standard only means that this currency, by a deliberate monetary policy, is kept in a certain parity with gold." He goes on to show that the value of gold itself is then determined by the monetary policy of the leading gold country, and he lays the blame for the great fall in world prices upon the monetary restriction policies of France and the United States.

Professor Cassel pokes fun at the apoplectic old gentlemen who will not entertain the notion of a "managed money" and talk largely about "sound money," by making it absolutely clear that we already have a managed money. In fact he attributes a great deal of our grief to the fact that not only is our money managed, but that it has been very badly managed. After pointing out the amount of intelligent co-operation that is needed to make even a reformed gold standard work, he concludes that gold must, in the circumstances, be regarded as singularly unsuitable for use as a standard of value.

Professor Cassel complains of the loose and unintelligent use of the word inflation, which does not mean what the pious think it means. An expansion of the legal basis for money does not necessarily involve inflation. Anyhow, he thinks that some inflation would be a good thing. "The best thing that the gold standard countries could do; he says, "would be immediately to start an inflation of their currencies." Remember, it is no crank who proclaims this, but one of the world's leading authorities, a mature man, and one whose influence has been established and proven.

U.S. Bank Failures

Canot All Be Blamed On Business Depression Says Investigator

All American bank failures cannot be blamed on the business depression, Dr. Charles O. Hardy, of the Brookings Institute, reported after an intensive survey.

He estimated that in the decade 1921-1931 there were 8,784 bank insolvencies in the United States, or 29 per cent. of the number of banks in operation at the beginning of the period.

Hardy blamed "the inherent banking instability" on:

"The whole system of pyramiding a vast array of obligations which technically or practically, are payable on demand on a slender basis of cash and an even slenderer basis in the form of stockholders' equity. This dependence for solvency is placed on assets which can only be liquidated by transfer or by wholesale destruction of monetary values.

He concluded his survey with the assertion that "while the United States is not the only important country in which banks become insolvent, it is the only one in which they are allowed to fail."

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR 20 YEARS

But None Since 1930

This man must have something like a record for suffering. He says:—"Since 1910 up to 1930—that is 20 years—I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism. I am pleased to say that since 1930 up to date, I have been free from that dreadful pain, simply by taking Kruschen Salts—and nothing else. I must say that 20 years is a long time to have that awful rheumatic pain about one."—W. P.

Your rheumatism is just like his and everyone else's. It is caused by sharp-edged uric acid crystals getting into your joints. Kruschen will dissolve those crystals away. Furthermore—if you keep up the "little daily dose" ever afterwards, it will never be possible for them to form again. Rheumatism will be gone for good.

Simplicity Needed

It is to be hoped that higher education is not oing to result in a generation or two of individuals who prefer to say: "I proceeded to my residence and perused a volume," when they might just as well admit: "I went home and read a book."

Pays Fine Tribute

French Premier Pays Homage To German War Dead

Premier Edouard Herriott, of France, paid tribute to the German war dead in an address dedicating a new municipal hospital.

"Here in Lens," Herriott said, "sleep 75,000 German war dead who were undoubtedly men asking only to live in tranquility. Let us confer on them the homage that we have conferred on our own dead. France has not hatred for her former enemies. What our country wants is a plan for pacific organization which will obtain from everyone, a renunciation of arms."

An Oil That Is Prized Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. There is nothing equal to it.

War Debt Cancellation

United States Would Profit If They Would Agree To It

Senator Borah estimates that the economic depression has cost the United States £30,000,000,000 (about $150,000,000,000). Such calculations are necessarily conjectural, but the loss has certainly been fabulous, and must continue so long as the world's financial machinery is thrown hopelessly out of gear by the attempt to transfer huge payments of war debts. That is at bottom the justification of the seeming paradox that it will handsomely pay the United States to cancel her war debts.—London Daily Telegraph.

Canadian Theatres Safe

Have Highest Rating In Respect To Fire Risk

Reports from Ottawa show that the theatres in Canada now have the highest rating in respect to fire risk of any property. This fact was brought out in the report just issued by J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner.

The report further shows that there were only 19 fires in theatres in the last year and not one of them of a serious nature. The total fire loss was only $4,200.

The report gives high credit to the type of men engaged in the business of managing theatres in the Dominion. Mr. Smith stated that nowhere in the world did the managers take the precautions to safeguard their patrons as in Canada and particularly in Ontario. When one stops to think that over 3,000,000,000 feet of film was shown in the close on to a thousand theatres in Canada last year this small fire loss is remarkable. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

FARMERS ASK FOR LIMIT ON OTTAWA PACT

Dauphin, Man.—Limiting of the imperial conference agreements to the "life of the present parliament" unless a mandate is obtained from the people confirming the five-year term they now contain, is demanded by the United Farmers of Manitoba in a resolution unanimously adopted at the annual convention today. The resolution declares the present policies, "so ruinous to agriculture, be discontinued."

Another resolution bearing on international problems was adopted when, after lengthy debate on currency, a motion was adopted urging the dominion government to stabilize the rate of exchange on the pound sterling at a parity of $4.86⅔.

Demands for a further reduction in lake freight rates, and the encouragment of shipments via the Hudson Bay route, the dominion government to handle the traffic if necessary during the initial development, also received the support of the convention.

Wheat Surplus Increasing

Rome Institute Report Shows 110,000,000 Bushels Carry-Over

Rome, Italy.—Exportable supplies of world wheat are inferior to 1931 by 60,000,000 bushels, the International Institute of Agriculture reports.

This drop is offset by a fall in the probable requirements of importing countries of 170,000,000 bushels. This situation has been caused by poor crops in the exporting countries and good crops in the importing countries, coupled with an abundance of rye, corn and potatoes, the institute report says. Stricter regulations of international wheat trade have also played a part.

The total available for export is fixed at 1,300,000,000 bushels. Of this amount 570,000,000 bushels are old stocks, and 730,00,000 bushels represent the new crop surplus.

Since the old exportable stocks are adequate to meet almost nine-tenths of the needs of importers, practically the entire surplus of the 1932 crop will be carried over for consumption in 1933 and 1934.

It is estimated the existing stocks have increased by 110,000,000 bushels.

Jobless In Toronto

Mayor Asks Premier Bennett To Care For Transients

Toronto, Ont.—It is the duty of the Dominion Government to care for jobless men who arrived by train from Winnipeg, Mayor W. J. Stewart declared, and wired Premier R. B. Bennett that the government should provide for transportation of the men to their homes.

The number of arrivals was variously estimated as high as 500. Mayor Stewart, in his telegram, reported arrival of 69 on one train and said he was advised another train had arrived with a larger quota. He claimed the homes of some are in the west.

The jobless are said to have come from different parts of western Canada, many of them from the harvest fields in the prairie sections.

Heavy Wheat Exports

Vancouver, B.C.—Vancouver is not waiting for the effect of British preference to send its wheat export totals to new high marks. During the past seven days, the weekly report of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange reveals, a total of 2,727,422 bushels was exported. This brings the season's total to 20,921,546 bushels as compared with 10,156,952 bushels at the corresponding date last year.

Wheat Loses Preference

Londono, Eng.—Government official confirmed to the Canadian Press that Canadian wheat shipped in bond to the United States, pending sale and shipment to the United Kingdom, will not be entitled to the six-cents-a-bushel imperial preference formulated at the imperial conference.

Has Little Information

Machray Unable To Shed Much Light On Shortage Of College Funds

Stony Mountain Penitentiary, Stony Mountain, Man.—Clustered about an impromptu sick bed in a little room in the administration building of the prison, a board of inquiry and staff learned from John A. Machray that he knew little of the financial collapse that sent him to penitentiary for seven years.

Obviously suffering severely, the former lawyer, university bursar, churchman and financier lay propped by pillows on a couch and emphatically declared he nor anyone else to his knowledge, ever profited from the financial debacle that wiped out endowment funds of the University of Manitoba and the Church of England, and swept his own investment firm into bankruptcy.

At times writhing in pain and tossing his head with half closed eyes, Machray lifted a shaking white hand to emphasize his declaration. He had no memory of any happenings in his office, he said, and asked the commission, investigating $1,000,000 defalcations in college funds, to allow him to continue his plans for providing information.

May Have Planned Robbery

Youth Arrested In Garden Of Ramsay MacDonald

London, Eng.—What was believed to be an attempt to rob Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald or his house was revealed in a case in Hampstead police court.

Ivan Seruva, described as a British subject, was arraigned on a charge of loitering at the Prime Minister's home. He was arrested, police said, in the garden of Mr. MacDonald's house at 3 a.m.

Mr. MacDonald rarely uses his lodge at Forgnal, near Hampstead, while parliament is in session, preferring to remain in his official residence at No. 10 Downing Street.

The head of the National cabinet was believed to have been at Forgnal Tuesday night, November 1, however, during the disturbance in Whitehall.

Seruva is a well-dressed, thick-set youth, who speaks English with a foreign accent. He was carrying bricks under his arms when the police found him.

The prisoner said he had just entered the garden for a look around. He did not resist arrest.

New Air Regulations

Operating 'Plane Over Canadian Penetentiaries Is Forbidden

Toronto, Ont.—The Mail and Empire in a despatch from its Ottawa correspondent, quoted J. A. Wilson, controller of civil aviation, as issuing an order forbidding operation of aircraft over Canadian penitentiaries.

The text of the order as carried by the newspaper is:

"Pilots and operators of aircraft are hereby warned to avoid flying over or near any penitentiary or like institution. In future any aircraft observed intentionally flying over such institutions for any purpose whatever will be considered to have committed an infringement of the air regulations concerning prohibited areas."

Hunger Marchers Go Home

Britain Lifts Embargo On Canadian Livestock

No Need To Exclude Cattle For Fear Of Disease

London, Eng.—The House of Commons moved without division to remove the existing embargo against importation of Canadian cattle to the United Kingdom.

The House decided to lift the embargo after passing the meat quota clause of the Ottawa agreements bill, 203 to 65.

Malcolm MacDonald, son of the Prime Minister and under secretary for the Dominions, explained there was no further need to exclude Canadian cattle from the country on the ground it might be diseased.

He said also the period of detention of cattle at the Canadian port of shipment would be one day instead of the customary three days as the length of the voyage was sufficient to allow time for development of disease should it occur.

Lifting of the embargo will go into effect when the Ottawa agreements bill becomes law. The bill is expected to encounter little opposition in the House of Lords.

New Amendment

Ottawa, Ont.—A new amendment to the motion for ratification of the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty was moved by Dr. Thomas Donnelly (Lib., Willow Bunch), in the House of Commons. It declares that no approval by the Canadian parliament be held to preclude the entering of this country into any arrangement which may be proposed at the coming world economic conference.

Against Public Ownership

C.N.R. Vice-President Does Not Believe In Government Operation Of Railways

Montreal, Que.—The Star prints the following despatch from its Ottawa correspondent:

"Plans put forward by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Gerard Ruel, K.C., former legal vice-president of the Canadian National Railway, for the solution of Canada's vexed railway situation were rejected by the recent royal commission on transportation in order that the scheme suggested by Sir Henry Thornton, former C.N.R. president, might be adopted in its substantial outline.

"Perhaps as sensational an angle to it as any is the statement of Mr. Ruel, after his years of association with the Canadian National system, that he does not believe in public ownership.

"My experience of public ownership of railways has been that it means government ownership," he told the commissioners.

"'You mean political ownership?' Sir Joseph Flavelle asked him.

"Yes," Mr. Ruel returned.

"The plan of President Beatty of the C.P.R. for the solution of the country's transportation difficulties, as revealed by the evidence, was for the government to lease the C.N.R. to the C.P.R. for a long term, or else in perpetuity. Mr. Beatty estimated that the C.P.R. management of the two systems would result in economies totalling $50,000,000 annually.

"In commenting upon this scheme, C.N.R. witnesses stated the savings would not amount, in their opinion, to more than $30,000,000 annually.

"Mr. Ruel's proposal was virtually a temporary amalgamation.

Interested In Grain Show

Eastern Provinces Preparing To Compete In All Classes

Regina, Sask.—John A. Mooney, managing director of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, has returned to the city after an extended visit to eastern Canada in the interests of next year's world-wide cereal exhibition.

He stated that all the eastern provinces are making elaborate preparations to be represented at the exhibition, not only in the competitive classes, but also in the section reserved for provincial educational exhibits.

Interest in the forthcoming exhibition is very widespread in the east, Mr. Mooney stated, and farmers are working in close co-operation with provincial departments of agriculture to ensure the best possible grain samples for entry in the competitive classes.

HOUSE REFUSES TO DISCUSS SUN LIFE CHARGES

Ottawa, Ont.—Efforts to discuss the finances and management record of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada proved abortive in the House of Commons.

Amid a series of interruptions and general disorder, the Speaker ruled the subject was not sufficiently important to sidetrack debate on the Anglo-Canadian trade treaty. And the House upheld him 128 to 55.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal, West Elgin, sponsored the move "to investigate the present financial position of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada and the conduct of its senior officials as disclosed in Chicago by the recent court investigation into the affairs of Mamuel and Martain Insull, now indicted by the United States government on charges of embezzlement and larceny."

A hush fell over the chamber as the leader of the Ontario Liberal party handed the Speaker a three-page typewritten statement containing his charges against the officers of the insurance company. For a minute or two the Speaker studied it, then ruled the discussion out of order.

"Read the statement," shouted members of the Progressive group. "Let's know all about it," came from others. But the Speaker steadfastly refused to read the statement or permit any discussion.

J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg Laborite, jumped to his feet, flourishing a copy of the Hepburn statement. He challenged the Speaker's ruling, saying that in his years in the House he had seen nothing "quite so arbitrary."

To Care For Jobless

Alberta Relief Commission To Take Charge Until Relief Camps Open

Calgary, Alberta.—Calgary city fathers bid farewell to a great burden when the Alberta government decided it would take full responsibility for single jobless who have crowded into the city to the number of more than 2,500. Alberta relief commission will handle the feeding and housing of the men who will obtain two meals a day and bed tickets until relief camps are opened.

Following conversations with city officials the relief commission chairman, A. A. MacKenzie, and Mayor Andy Davidson announced the agreement whereby the provincial authorities would handle the situation. A community kitchen will be opened here, and the men will be given meals after they have registered with relief officials.

How long the arrangement will continue is unknown as it depends on when the relief camps are opened. However, it was emphasized men refusing to go to the camps when they are formed would be refused any relief.

The Exchange Question

Federal Government Is Deeply Concerned About the Matter

Ottawa, Ont.—The Canadian Government is very deeply concerned about the exchange question, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the House of Commons. His remarks followed an amendment by G. G. Coote, (U.F.A., MacLeod), who had asked that the ratification of the imperial conference agreement be coupled with an undertaking to bring the Canadian dollar to a parity with the pound sterling.

New Wheat Tariff

New Duty Goes Into Effect In Germany

Berlin, Germany.—A new wheat tariff was in effect in Germany Nov. 2, imposing a 7.50 marks duty (about $1.77) per ton on wheat imported on import certificates.

This tariff will not affect wheat brought into Germany, under ordinary tariff schedules, but only that grain previously brought in duty free on certificates issued by the government against wheat exported earlier in the year.

From a very modest beginning in September, 1929, the business has grown steadily under his guidance, until today its many sided activities are a boon to the farming interests of the Valley. Mr. Murrell has given freely of his time in the interest of all, and both the store business and the marketing services have been conducted with considerable success. Mr. Murrell has been a staunch advocate of co-operation from the first and it was with genuine regret that the board accepted his resignation. For the present secretary D. Bradley, will carry on.
