Canyon Fittingly Observes Easter

Church Service Well Attended —Easter Monday Concert is Pleasing Affair—Financial Intake is Quite Satisfactory.

Judging by the numbers of citizens who attended divine service on Sunday, and the Easter Monday evening concert, it is quite evident that Eastertime is as popular with Canyon people as is Christmas.

Rev. A. Walker, in the United Church, preached on Sunday afternoon to a congregation of about 100, which filled the Canyon church to capacity. Special singing by Mrs. Manford Samuelson's Sunday school class had something new in religious exercises at Canyon. Also as a soloist Miss June Browell's singing was pleasing. She was efficiently accompanied by Mrs. Kolthammer on the organ.

On Monday evening the ladies' aid and sunday School combined to stage one of the most successful evening's entertainments that has yet been held in Canyon community hall; the ladies having charge of the cafeteria supper, and concert by the Sunday school under the supervision of Mrs. M. Samuelson who with Godfrey Samuelson were responsible for the entertainment. Rev. A. Walker was chairman and his ready witt enabled him to get the audience into the best of humor, which was maintained until the program was concluded. Encores were banned, much to the displeasure of the audience.

The chief attraction was the play, "Mix Well and Stir," put on by the Creston young people, whichdelight d all present. Canyon was represented in the company by Misses Holly Bond and Frances Knott.

The musical part of the programme introduced a piano solo by Mary Nygaard, who made her debut, and violin solos by Misses Annie Berggren and Holly Bond, both receiving an ovation. Six little girls were effective in singing, "Won't you buy my Pretty Flowers." Duetts by Mr. and Mrs. Kolthammer and Misses Mary Olson and Agnes Johnson were pleasing. Another likable feature was the teen age boys and girls who took part in dialogues, etc., ending up with a delightful tableau in which pretty little Kari Solhein was seen in the attitude of prayer. The whole demeanor and nature of the gathering dispelled all boubt or fear that Canyon was fast becoming under the influence of communism. The programme complete follows:

Easter Greetings—Six Primary Girls.
Chorus—Junior Boys and Girls.
Play—"Mix Well and Stir."
Duett—Agnes Johnson, Mary Olson.
Violin solo—Miss Holly Bond.
Recitation—Jim Bateman, jr., assisted by three boys.
Piano solo—Mary Nygaard.
Dialogue, "When Mrs. Jones Rebelled" —Alfred Nygaard, C. Burns, E. Olson, Annie Gartland, Helen Humble, Dolly and Marjorie Tedford.
Chorus—Six Junior Girls.
Recitation—Richard Hale.
Violin solo—Annie Berggren.
Chorus—Junior Boys and Girls.
Dialogue, "David's Brave Attempt"—Grace Bond, Helen Johnson, Frank Clayton, Charlie Kolthammer, Walter Johnson.
Duett—Mr. and Mrs. Kolthammer.
Pableau—"Prayer."

Accompanists for the violin soloists were Mrs. Samuelson and Mrs. Lister, while Mrs. Knott was at the piano for the vocal duetts. The evening was a splendid financial success the intake being almost $50.

Wynndel

Mrs. H. A. Bathie is a patient at the Creston Hospital.

A. Cameron, who has spent the winter at Coleman, Alberta, is back to look after ranch operations.

Mrs. S. Benedetti and baby son were Cranbrook visitors this week.

Ashley Cooper of Trail is here, looking after spring work on the ranch.

Mrs. M. Wigen and Donnamy were Trail visitors during Easter, with the former's sister, Mrs. Allan.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and family were auto visitors at Nelson last week.

Work is progressing steadily on the water system. Laying of pipe is almost complete and tests of pressuse are being made.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Dewar and son of Kimberley are visitors with Mrs. Dewa's father, John Bathie.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Trinity United Church manse, Creston on Thursday, May 20th, with Rev. Andrew Walker officiating, when Miss Esther, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Whittman, became the bride of Howard B. Slingsby, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Slingsby. The bride was supported by Miss Peggy Truscott of Creston, while C. Whittman was best man. The newlyweds are residing with the groom's parent's. Wynndel tin can orchestra was out in full force that evening to celebrate the happy event. After an unmusical serenade the musicians were invited into the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Slingsby and a very enjoyable evening was spent with music, songs and refreshments.

Wynndel Women's Institute had the April meeting in the hall on Thursday last. In the absence of Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Davidge took the chair. Minutes and financial statement read and adopted. Correspondence dealt with. Letter from Cecil Moore of Creston offering a silver cup or $5 to be competed for at the fall fair was read and discussed, and a ballot was taken. The offer of $5 cash was accepted. Ways and means of raising funds were discussed and it was decided to leave until next meeting as so many thinga are going on now. A suggestion that we invite Creston Institute to our next meeting was enthusiastically accepted. Mrs. R. Andestad was named to be in charge. Following the meeting a very interesting demonstration on rag rug hooking was given by Mrs. Hackett.

Lister

Ernest Stevens, who has been on a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Stevens, returned to Trail on Wednesday.

Robert Macnichol, provincial secretary for B.C. for the Canadian Legion, was a visitor here on Tuesday, in company with President W. V. Jackson and secretary H. A Powell of the Legion at Creston School re-opened on Monday after the Easter week vacation. Miss Curtis, who had spent the holiday at Slocan City, got back on Sunday.

Quite a number of the younger generation of Lister Huscroft made the trip to Kitchener by the Feed Huscroft truck on Friday night for the dance staged by the employees at the airport. The attendance was not as large as expected.

A car of baled alfalfa from the Mrs. Thomas ranch was shipped to the C.M. & S. farm at Marysvill, at the end of the week.

Mrs. Bird returned on Sunday from a three day holiday visit with friends in Nelson.

Mrs. B. B. Stallwood, of Nelson, who spent Easter week with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Lister, returning home on Sunday, and was accompanied to that city by her parents. The colonel was the guest speaker at the Ypres Day observation at Nelson on Sunday.

Otto Dirsch was here from Nelson a few days last week, and while here arranged for the shipping of a carload of baled alfalfa to a buyer in that city.

There was a fair turnout at the Community Society bridge at the schoolhouse on Saturday night at which the high score prizes went to Mrs. Bamford and John Bird, and the consolation prize to Chas. Huscroft. The affair was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McKee.

Creston Tennis Club Organizes

Elect New Slate of Officers—Season Membership $5—Put Courts in Shape Immediately —Discuss Building Clubhouse

Creston tennis club annual meeting was held in the town hall on Monday evening. There was a fine turnout of members. The retiring executive reported a successful 1932 season, with a membership of 28. Expectations are for an equal, if not larger enrolment this year.

Following the reading of minutes and adoption of the treasurer's statement the following officers were elected: President, John Murrell; vice-president, Harry Cornwall; secretary-treasurer, Miss Edith Couling. Fees for the year are: $5 season membership; $1.50 per month; $1 junior membership, with restricted hours.

The new executive was authorized to make the necessary expenditures toward labor and equipment to put the courts in shape and this work will be commenced immediately. Play will begin as soon as the courts are in suitable shape. A membership drive will also be undertaken at that date.

Discussion of plans for the erection of a clubhouse at the courts was held over till a future meeting.

Students Present "The Tempest"

Shakespearian Drama Capably by Amateur Talent—Costuming Colorful and Artistic—Attendance Only Fair.

Alonso	Roland Miller.
Sebastian	Mary Abbott.
Prospero	Herbert Dodd.
Antonio	Faye Tompkins.
Ferdinand	Ester Stace-Smith.
Gonzalo	Jack Young.
Adrian,	Agnes Crane.
Caliban	Arthur Nichols.
Trinculo	Betty Speers.
Stephono	Sydney Scott.
Master of the ship	Tony Morabito.
Boatswain	Sandy Telford.
Miranda	Opal LaBelle.
Ariel	Kathleen Bundy.

"The Tempest," which was staged by Creston High School Literary and Athletic Society at the Parish Hall last Thursday evening and Friday afternoon, was certainly a success. It was under the capable management of high school principal Franklin P. Levirs, and he is to be highly commended on the successful showing made by those taking part.

Herbert Dodd, in the role of Prospero, interpreted the part of the old Duke of Milan very skilfully. He was quite at home on the stage, and had no trouble in delivering the long speeches found so frequently throughout his part. Opal LaBelle' too, as Miranda, daughter of the duke, carried out her heavy part with her usual characteristic poise. This was especially noticeable in the love scene with Ferdinand.

Kathleen Bundy as Ariel, spirit of the air, was entertaining in her unique musical numbers which provided a pleasant change from the general run of the play. Ferdinand, played by Esther Stace-Smith, who acted the part of the gallant Prince of Naples acceptably. Fay Tompkins, in her portrayal of the villain, Antonio, carried her part off with ease not often seen in so young an actress.

Jack Young and Agnes Crane, of the court of the King of Naples, handled their parts nicely, as also did Arthur Nichols, the hunchback monster. Betty Speers, as court jester, and Sydney Scott, butler, supposedly loyal servants of the king, supplied the desired comedy, breaking the monotony by their drunken scenes with Caliban. Both did their parts full justice. Margaret Stayleton is to be congratulated on her piano selections, and also her accompaniments.

The costumes of the play were colorful and artistic and lent the desired atmospher called for by Shakesperian dramas. The stage settings were quite simple. On Thursday evening the play attracted a fine turnout but Friday's matinee was not so well attended.

Erickson

Miss Marcella Sanford is at Creston this week, in charge of the third division of Creston school, Miss Wade being off duty on account of illness.

At the annual meeting of East Creston irrigation district on the 12th, J. M. Craigie was elected to succeed himself as trustee, for another three-year term.

Erickson Ladies Hospital Auxiliary had quite a good turnout for the daffodil tea at the schoolhouse on Saturday afternoon, at which the cash intake was almost $15.

Mrs. Markle of Kimberley was a Sunday visitor here with Mr. and Mrs. L. Herie.

Mrs. R. Vincent and children of Evansburgh, Alta., arrived on Friday to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Campbell.

Mrs. Hart of Red Deer, Alta., arrived at the middle of the week on a visit with her daughter, Mrs. J. Murphy.

Erickson lost the opening baseball match of 1933 dropping a 4-2 contest to Porthill in that town on Sunday afternoon. Erickson battery was Penson, Anderson and Simpson.

Due to counter attractions Erickson Christ Church Ladies' Guild bridge at Kemp's packing house Wednesday evening last did not draw the usual attendance, only six tables being in play, with the big score prizes taken by Mrs. Jim Dodds and H. Cowling.

An important sale of orchard property was closed this week when Currie brothers of Fernie purchased the 11-acre property of Mr. Hlookoff which is part of the former Herb Gobbett ranch, and is nicely planted out to cherries, apples and small fruits, and a fine young orchard coming along. The sale was put through by R. Walmsley, Creston realtor.

Canyon City

John Johnson is busy at present getting out some hewn timbers which will be used on bridge repair work by the village of Creston.

The fine weather that set in in good earnest at the end of the week is enabling work on the land to go ahead, and with a continuance of the heat it won't be long before the pink spray will get under way.

Mrs. Sid Parker and children have arrived from South Slocan to join her husband who is a construction foreman for West Kootenay Power & Light Company at Goat River canyon. They are occupying the Martin Nelson residence.

Joan Langston of Creston was an Easter week visitor here, a guest of Grace Bond.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff. Knott left at the end of the week on their return to Snoqualme, Wash., after a week's visit with their parents.

Mrs. Halstead had the misfortune to fall down stairs on Saturday in which she sustained a broken wrist.

The Farmers' and Workers' League supporters met in the hall on Saturday night to hear a report of the delegates to Victoria on the recent hunger march. Tom Mountford, one of the most active of the marchers, was the chief speaker.

Mas. Wilbur and family have just arrived from Alberta, and are now occupying the house on the Leslie McInnis place. She is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brett.

Alice Siding

Chas. Raymond got away last week for Plapot, Sask., where he will be for the next month.

Mrs. Fred Taylor left this week for Nelson, where she is visiting with her husband in that city.

West Kootenay Power & Light Company crew is working through here this week, putting in the holes for the power pole line.

Miss Alice Carr of the telephone central staff at Fernie, is here on a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Carr.

Principal Freeney got back on Monday morning from the ten-day Easter holiday at his home in Rossland, and the high and public school students are now hard at work for the midsummer examinations.

If the present fine weather continues it will not be long before the pink spray will be under way. It looks as if the severe winter weather has taken a lot of the 1933 plums, prunes and cherries in this section.

The new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin was housewarmed on Friday night when neighbors, young and old, were on hand for the whist and dance, the honors at cards going to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hamilton.

A number from here were at Creston on Thursday night for the high school play, "The Tempest," in which Miss Esther Stace-Smith had a part, playing the role of "Ferdinand" in a way that entitles her to rank with the best of the talent in the cast.

The big steam roller and other equipment got into action on Monday on some long overdue repairs to the hard surface road between the Rose ranch and the village boundary.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Willows and daughter, Mrs. Jones, of Calgary; C. Willows of Medicine Hat, Alberta, and Mr. Taylor, of Calgary, Alberta, were recent visitors with Mrs. Chas. Raymond while on the return journey to the coast.

Creston Assured League Baseball

Seven Teams Get Franchises—Each Play 12 Games—Starting May 7—Creston Has Game Fvery Sunday—2 Town Teams

League baseball, with a game every Sunday afternoon, will be a feature of Creston's 1933 sports life, as in 1932.

This was accomplished at a well attended meeting this week at which the old international league was reorganized with seven teams entered, from Porthill and Eastport, Idaho; Canyon, Wynndel, Erickson, and Creston Intermediates and Athletic Club. Bonners Ferry asked to be included but to avoid travelling expense the request for admission was denied.

R. M. Telford was named as the sole league official, and designated secretary-treasurer. There will be an executive made up of the managers of each league team.

The schedule is in course of preparation, and will open on Sunday, May 7th. Each team will have 12 games—six at home and six abroad—with the league close coming at mid-August. As was the case last year $1 will be extracted from the receipts of each game and it will go in a jackpot to be alayed for at the season end by the teams finishing first and second. Each team will take its own home gate receipts.

The makeup of the league is much the same as a year ago, with the exception that Wynndel replaces Kitchener, and Erickson is a new entrant, and raises the league strength from six to seven teams. This year some of the Kitchener talent will wear Erickson uniforms and should give the tomato pickers a likely nine.

With two teams in the league Creston is assured baseball every Sunday afternoon, and on occasion there will be double headers as when the Kootenay River is on the rise Porthill and possibly Wynndel will be unable to use their playing fields and may shift their games to Creston during the flood stage of the river. It is also likely the Erickson team will play their home games at Creston.

Under the auspices of the Women's Institute.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Roosevelt economy campaign is heading for a reduction of from 14,000 to 18,000 in the strength of the United States army.

Approximately 15,000 acres will be sown to sugar beets in southern Alberta this year, an increase of 1,000 acres.

Amelia Earheart has received the award of the 1932 Harmon international trophy for women flyers for her flight across the Atlantic in May, 1932, the first crossing ever accomplished by a woman alone.

Decrease of more than 1,000,000 pounds was shown in butter holdings on April 1, as compared with the corresponding date last year, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Placer gold output in British Columbia increased from $118,711 in 1929 to $346,800 in 1932, a gain of nearly 200 per cent. Free miners certificates were issued to 10,000 men last year.

Long a source of revenue to dwellers on the outposts of civilization, bounties on timber wolves have been slashed 50 per cent. Henceforth the bounty will be $15 per pelt compared with the $40 formerly paid.

To assist school districts, municipalities and other public bodies to improve the surroundings of schools, public buildings and community centres, the Alberta government will distribute close to 3,000,000 caragana seedlings.

A rate war among trans-Atlantic lines, it was reported in shipping circles, will be the probable results of differences between members of the shipping conference respecting rates for first class and cabin class accommodations.

Closing of Government House at Edmonton, official residence of the lieutenant-governor of Alberta, in preference to reduced educational grants by the Alberta government was urged in a resolution passed by the executive of the United Farmers of Alberta.

B.C. Eugenics Board

Will Assume Control Of Its Duties July 1st

British Columbia's board of eugenics, to be created under the Sterilization Act, will assume control of its duties when the statute comes into effect, July 1. It will be a voluntary board, composed of a member of the judiciary, a psychiatrist and a social worker, yet to be named, who will serve without remuneration.

The duties of the board will be to pass upon recommendations from superintendents of any provincial mental home or industrial schools, where it is suggested that hereditary mental deficiency or serious mental disease may be passed on to successive generations without interference.

If the consent of the patient or a guardian is obtained, the board may order application of the statute in such case, first holding individual investigation into the case. Where consent is withheld, the operation would not be proceeded with in any case. The cost would be borne by the institution concerned and choice of a surgeon would be accorded.

Improved His Time

When Pedro Guitierrez was recently released from the county jail at Las Cruces, New Mexico, after being held since April, 1932, as a suspect in a murder case, he presented Sheriff Dick Triviz with a set of bedroom furniture made entirely out of cigar boxes. Guiterrez carved the furniture during his idle moments in the county lockup.

Copper Walls For Bungalows

Bungalows with copper walls are being constructed in Germany since it has been found that this metal offers advantages over steel houses, principally because it is rust-proof and requires no protective coat of paint.

The Debt Adjustment Act, 1933

Important Legislation Passed In Saskatchewan At Recent Session

The Debt Adjustment Act, 1933, passed at the recent session of the Saskatchewan Legislature, does not differ very materially from the Act of 1932, which it replaces. Its scope, however, is much wider. While the former Act applied only to certain restricted classes of residents, the new Act protects every person who is an actual resident of the province, and that protection extend to every person who, though not an actual resident, is the owner of farm land in the province on which a member of his family conducts farming operations. All companies, except banks, carrying on business in the province, are also protected.

Amicable Settlements Between Debtor and Creditors

The new Act repeats the provisions of the superseded Act with respect to amicable arrangements for settlement of debts. Such arrangements may be made, through the medium of the Debt Adjustment Board, between a resident and his creditors, and may provide for settlement of the resident's debts either in full or by a composition.

If an adjustment cannot be arrived at between the resident and his creditors, the board is empowered to determine from time to time the basis on which the resident ought to pay the claims of his creditors and on which the creditors ought to accept payment of their claims; and, in case the resident fails to comply with any directions given by the board, the board may issue a permit authorizing the creditors to proceed against the resident.

Readjustments Between Debtor and Creditor Upon Petition

Failing an amicable agreement between a resident and his creditors, or failing compliance with any directions given by the board, the board is empowered, upon petition of the resident or any of his creditors, to make such recommendation as it deems expedient for the relief of the resident or for a re-adjustment of the contractual relationship between the resident and his creditors, having regard to the economic conditions prevailing at the date when the indebtedness was incurred, those existing at the date of the petition and those existing during the intervening period. In particular the board may, by order, provide for postponement of payment of all or any debts of the resident; prohibit the issue of process or the execution of process already issued; stay proceedings in civil actions; vary the exemption privileges of the resident; direct the resident to deal with all or any part of his property in such manner as the board deems expedient.

Proceedings Prohibited Unless Permit Issued

The main provisions of the Act are contained in section 11. That section commences by providing that no legal or other proceeding, included in certain described classes, shall be taken, made or continued against a resident unless a permit has been issued for the purpose by the Debt Adjustment Board or a member thereof, or by any person authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The prohibited classes of proceedings are as follows:

(a) action or suit for any legal, equitable or statutory claim, demand, debt or account, or for any money demanded;

(b) action, suit, or proceeding upon a covenant under an agreement for sale or mortgage of land or assignment of such agreement for sale or mortgage;

(c) action or proceeding for sale under or foreclosure of a mortgage on land, or for cancellation, rescission or specific performance of an agreement for sale of land or for recovery of possession of land, whether in court or otherwise;

(d) proceeding to acquire title to land by virtue of any tax except a preliminary application by a tax purchaser to a registrar of land titles pursuant to and by virtue of section 53 of The Arrears of Taxes Act;

(e) proceeding by way of execution;

(f) action or proceeding to sell land under or in satisfaction of any judgment or mechanic's lien;

(g) seizure in the nature of an execution or distress, or under any lien, agreement for sale, chattel mortgage, hire purchase agreement or conditional sale agreement, whether by virtue of rights at common law or under statute;

(h) seizure under any agreement for sale of land used and occupied as residential property;

(i) seizure under any agreement for sale of farm land or under any share of crop lease or crop payment agreement for sale or mortgage, in excess of the share to which any person making a seizure is entitled under sections 2 and 3 of The Limitation of Civil Rights Act, 1933, and whether by virtue of rights at common law or under statute;

(j) such other class of legal or other proceedings as may be brought within the provisions of this section by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

And the prohibition applies to proceedings commenced either before or after the twenty-seventh day of March, 1933, the date on which the Act came into force.

But there are some important exceptions to the general prohibition above set forth. These exceptions are as follows:

1. The prohibition does not apply to any contract made or entered into by a debtor, the whole of the original consideration for which arose after the first day of April, 1933, nor to any action or suit which is founded on tort, save with respect to a contract which is merely a renewal or revision of a contract originally entered into prior to that date.

2. Again the prohibition does not apply to:

(a) an action or suit by a municipality for recovery of taxes, or any of the other remedies available to a municipality for the collection of taxes;

(b) seizure in the nature of a distress for rent, provided that the goods distrained shall not be sold or otherwise dealt with except with the written permission of the board; and

(c) such further class or classes of legal or other proceeding as may be withdrawn from the operation of the Act by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

3. Proceedings by way of attachment or garnishment may be initiated by a creditor of a resident and service effected on the garnishee but no further steps in such proceedings shall be taken without the issue of a permit by the board.

4. The continuation of the following actions and proceedings is permitted:

(a) actions or proceedings for sale under or foreclosure of mortgages of land, or for cancellation, rescission, or specific performance of agreements for sale of land, or for recovery of possession of land, whether in court or otherwise, commenced and set down for trial prior to the coming into force of the Act save that no final order shall be made or judgment rendered and no sale of land shall be effected, unless the board issues a permit for the purpose; and

(b) actions or proceedings other than those set forth in clause (a) which have been set down for trial or are under appeal prior to the coming into force of the Act, provided that no writ of execution shall issue pursuant to judgment in such actions, unless the board issues a permit for the purpose.

Issue Of Certificates

The provisions of last year's Act authorizing the issue of certificates appears again in the new Act. Hitherto these certificates were issued only on the application of a resident but now they may be issued either on application of a resident or of any of his creditors. After a certificate has been issued no proceedings of the nature above mentioned can be taken, made or continued against the resident without the written authority of the board; the resident is prohibited from dealing with his property, and no purchase made by him under a conditional agreement has any validity unless the previous written authority of the board has been obtained.

Where a certificate has been issued, or a permit has been refused or cancelled, the board is authorized to:

(a) direct the resident named therein to deal with all or any part of his property in such manner as the board may in its discretion deem expedient;

(b) in the case of residential property occupied as such by a resident, and having regard to all the circumstances, fix a sum to be paid as rent of the property and require the resident to pay it in the manner specified in the direction to the mortgagee or vendor of the property or to any person claiming through or under such mortgagee or vendor.

It is the duty of the resident to comply with such directions, and the board is empowered to distribute the proceeds of sale of any property of the resident received by it for distribution in such manner as it deems fit.

General Postponement

The Act also provides for the postponement of payment of all debts, liabilities or obligations, or of the enforcement of liens or incumbrances or securities. This may be done by proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor published The Saskatchewan Gazette. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is also authorized to prohibit the issue of process, or the execution of process already issued, or to stay proceedings in civil matters, or to extend or otherwise vary the exemption privileges which execution debtors now enjoy.

Agreements Waiving Act Have No Effect

Agreements providing that the Act shall not apply, or that the remedies provided by it shall not be available, are declared to be null and void and of no effect.

Crop Payments

A reference has been made to sections 2 and 3 of The Limitation of Civil Rights Act, 1933. These sections provide as follows:

2.—(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in The Crop Payments Act or in any agreement for sale or mortgage of land to which that Act applies, or in any other agreement for sale or mortgage of farm land, or in any share of crop lease collateral to a mortgage or agreement for sale of land, but subject to the provisions of section 3, the rights of a vendor or mortgagee, or his assignees, shall not in respect of the crop grown by the purchaser or mortgagor in the years 1932 and 1933, affect more than one-third of the crop produced in either of these years; and the purchaser, mortgagor or lessee may in the year 1933, out of the share of the crop belonging to the vendor, mortgagee or lessor, pay one year's taxes upon the land on which the crop is grown, and, in such case, upon production of the receipt of the municipality for such payment, the vendor, mortgagee or lessor shall be entitled only to the one-third share of the crop, or the share authorized under section 3, less the amount shown upon such receipt.

(2) The benefit of the provisions contained in subsection (1) of this section shall be applicable to and include the assignors of agreements for sale and mortgages, and the assignees of purchasers and mortgagors respectively.

(3) This section shall not apply to the case of the sale of land with chattels to a resident upon an entire consideration.

(4) For the purpose of subsection (3) the word "resident" shall not have the same meaning as in The Debt Adjustment Act, 1933, but shall be interpreted in accordance with its ordinary signification.

3. In any case to which the provisions of subsections (1) and (2) of section 2 apply, where a vendor or mortgagee has purchased or supplied the seed or pays a share of the cost of threshing and binder twine, such vendor or mortgagee shall be entitled to the share of the crop not exceeding one-half thereof agreed to be delivered to him, provided that the purchaser or mortgagor may make application to the Debt Adjustment Board for relief from such agreement, and thereupon the board may determine what share of the crop, not exceeding one-half thereof, shall be delivered to the vendor or mortgagee, and upon delivery of such share, the interest in the crop of the vendor or mortgagee shall cease and determine.

Duration Of Acts

The Debt Adjustment Act remains in force only until the first day of March, 1936. There is no such restriction in the case of The Limitation of Civil Rights Act.

JESUS SETS A NEW STANDARD OF LIVING

Golden Text: "As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them likewise."—Luke 6:31.

Lesson: Mark 10:1-31.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 2: 1-11.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus the Children's Friend, verses 13-16.—Jesus was much displeased when His disciples rebuked parents for bringing their children to Him that He might bless them. One commentator observes that the fathers of these children brought to Jesus have not had fair play, for in all the pictures of this scene, not one depicts a father as taken part in it. Yet there were fathers as well as mothers present, for the participle in the Greek is masculine.

As Dr. T. R. Glover says, Pharisees had come in their bitterness and hate to catch Him in His words; great numbers of sufferers—the blind, the deaf, the halt, the leprous—had come to Him to be healed; greedy people flocked out to Him because they ate of the loaves and were filled; pious people pressed upon Him to hear His words of spirit and life; sinful people forced their way into His presence and fell at His feet, praying that they might be forgiven. But no people ever came into His presence who were so welcome to Him as these little children.

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me; forbid them not," He said; "for of such belongeth the Kingdom of God." Jesus took it ill, as an old commentator expresses it, that The Twelve should so entirely misunderstand and ignore His teaching, should act so entirely contrary to every principle He had laid down, and He rebuked them.

"To such belongeth the Kingdom. I have heard the charter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children spoken of sometimes as 'the Children's Charter' but this is the real Children's Charter. It is this great word of Christ that has given the child his royal place."

"In the breast of a bulb is the promise of spring;
In a little blue egg there's a bird
that will sing;
In the soul of the seed is the hope
of the sod;
In the heart of a child is the Kingdom of God."

Good Habit To Cultivate

Canadians Would Do Well To Spend Vacations In Canada

According to official estimates $58,000,000 was spent on foreign travel during 1932 by residents of this country, notwithstanding the depression and adverse discount of Canadian funds in certain countries. While there was a decrease of $18,452,000 in such expenditures, compared with the previous year, there would still appear to be room for further reduction. The circulation in Canada of so large a sum as that spent by Canadians on foreign travel would be of inestimable benefit to those who cater to the travelling public and to the numerous classes that would be indirectly affected by the resulting increased purchasing power. Vacationing in Canada therefore is a habit which every Canadian might very well cultivate, to his own and the country's advantage.—Department of Interior Bulletin.

Radio Sales Last Year

Total Purchased In All Provinces Valued At $6,756,950

Saskatchewan radio buyers accounted for 5.4 per cent. of the radio sales in Canada in 1932.

The total sold during the year was 133,454 valued at $6,758,950.

Percentage of other provinces were: Ontario, 39.3; Quebec, 22.9; British Columbia, 9.6; Manitoba, 9.6; Alberta, 6.6; Nova Scotia, 4.1; New Brunswick, 2.1; and Prince Edward Island, .4.

The sales in 1931 were 286,122 sets, valued at $18,141,347.

THREW AWAY HIS STICK

When Sciatica Yielded to Kruschen

There can be no doubt that this man has finished walking with a stick, for it is now four years since he discarded it.

He writes:—"For 18 months I suffered with chronic sciatica and rheumatism, and was unable to walk without the aid of a stick. But after taking Kruschen Salts for a short time, I was able to throw away the stick. It is now four years since this happened, and I have had no return of the complaint, and have not lost a day from work. I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, as they are worth their weight in gold. You can use this letter as you please, as I can honestly recommend Kruschen Salts to any sufferer."—C. F.

If the eliminating organs become sluggish, they permit harmful uric acid to accumulate and deposit itself in the tissues, muscles and joints in the form of needle-pointed crystals, which, piercing the nerve sheaths, cause excruciating pains of sciatica. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the eliminating organs to healthy, regular action. Mischievous uric acid is then given no chance to collect.

"I've been awake four or five days and nights' that's what! Not a wink! Didn't dare sleep. It made me sweat blood to think of you lighting down over there and getting nailed. I had to draw your attention somehow when you were over the lake; and it had to be one whopper of a signal, that far away. I got a couple big piles of birch paper ready and had a drum of gas handy to soak it with: and I kept a dry-wood fire going so's I could stand back and throw a blazing chunk at the paper. But it made the signal, all right. It nearly singed me and I stood thirty feet back."

"I'll vow it made a signal," Buzzard commented. "It looked like the evacuation of Lens."

"I had to stay awake every minute," Bill continued, "for fear you'd come and fly right into the trap. And then I had to guard the Smoky. He's tied up back there; didn't dare turn him loose, or he'd told Haskell where I was. If I'd ever got started dozing. I'd have beaten this Rip Winkle fellow for long-distance sleeping. There was times when I got so near overpowered I had to wade out and set on a rock with the water up under my chin, where I didn't dare go to sleep or I'd been drowned."

Merely by looking at Bill, Alan knew that his former partner had left half his story untold. It was only afterwards that he heard all the details of Bill's heroic siege.

"How about Joyce?" he asked. "You've been to see her, Bill?"

"I ducked aside twice. Last time was a week ago. She's taken in a big raft of peltry. She's closing up the place to go out to Edmonton and be with her dad."

"A week ago," Alan thought. "Anything could have happened in a week." He asked, "Any news at Endurance?"

Just everyday things, Bill reported. Except for Larry. Larry would cry, Bill said, whenever he looked at his shattered leg. Larry, who kept himself as young as men half his age, who prided himself on his wolf-lean body—he was wasted away to a mere shadow of his former self.

Glancing out across En Traverse, Alan suggested: "We'd better be leaving here. Haskell and his stool pigeon over there probably saw us light. They may take a notion to whip across the lake after us. Where's the oil and gas, Bill?"

"Right yon by that rock jumble. The Smokey is just this side. I'll go along—"

"You stay here; you're about once in. Buzzard, you turn the 'plane and make ready for a quick getaway in case that launch shows up. I'll get the drums."

He hurried to the tangle of junipers and granite boulders where he found the precious gas and oil which Bill had sworn to bring to the rendezvous. Taking a load out to the 'plane, Alan hoisted it up to Buzzard, who began siphoning into the wing tank.

With an anxious inquiry in his bloodshot eyes, Bill asked:

"Say, Alan, why can't I go along on this trick? I'd give a leg to. I'm a. w. o. l. now. Haskell can't do much worse to me than he intends to do as it is.

After all that Bill had done for them, Alan hadn't the heart to refuse him. He asked Featherof:

"How about it—can we carry a third person?"

"Well, we maybe could. But I wouldn't like . . . It'd cut down our gas load, and this is only a two-place 'plane."

"Then I'll not go," Bill agreed sturdily. "Don't want to be a drag. I'll sleep off my dry-jag here and then mosey in to Endurance."

Alan went after two more drums. As he reached the plant with them, his ears caught a faint low drone barely audible far out upon En Traverse. Standing up on the cockpit edge, he turned his glasses north.

Six miles out, the powerful scarlet-and-gold launch was heading straight toward them.

"Knock off on that!" he jabbed at Buzzard. "We've got to get gone. They'll ram us, or shoot at us from protection of the launch. You've got enough in the tank to take us to the Alooska. We'll stow these drums aboard, and what we can't take we'll leave here on this headland. Can get it later."

Under Buzzard's directions they worked frantically. When they were ready, when Bill clambered down into the canoe and held out his hand in good-by, Alan was struck to the heart by the pleading unspoken prayer which Bill stoutly refused to word.

"Buzzard!" He jerked around to his partner. "Bill's got to go along! D—d if I can leave him out in the cold! I simply can't do it."

"Then try to wedge him in with you. We'll carry him, if we have to tie him on!"

Alan pulled him up. Bill managed to squeeze into the tiny one-place compartment, and by that act deserted the Mounted Police.

With the big boat only a mile out, Buzzard taxied the 'plane and headed it parallel to the shore line. It seemed to Alan that the White Speedair, heavily laden with gas and oil and a third man, would never rise from the water. It taxied nearly a half-mile before it began smacking the wavelets. The police boat swerved right and diagonaled in to cut across its course. White puffs of smoke were bursting from a rifle in the prow, from a rifle in the hands of George Haskell.

But when the 'plane finally did take hold of the air, it left the boat behind in a twinkling. Roaring out of range, it swung away into the northeast, toward its goal on the Big Alooska.

CHAPTER X.

The Secret Of Many Waters

Two miles down river Buzzard throttled the motor, eased the stick forward and glided expertly down and down into that difficult narrow lane of evergreens.

Alan started to get out the canvas canoe to tow the 'plane in to the landing; but Joyce, understanding, untied her father's sturdier craft, laid in an extra paddle, and came skirling out toward them.

As Alan clambered down upon a float and waited, he remembered his decision to tell Joyce what had happened within him since he saw her last, and to tell her of that inexorable circumstance which had led to his engagement to Elizabeth. Easy that decision then, but he wavered now. Did he dare tell her that? If it was useless, if she had put him out of her life, did he dare resurrect all the poignant memories and intimacies between them? Today he would find out how she regarded him; today she would surely give him some clear token.

Reaching out, he caught the prow of her canoe. Joyce rose and stepped up. . . . . In another instant he was clasping her hand.

"Joyce! Joyce! I was afraid for you—here alone, girl. I can't tell you how glad—when I saw you . . . And glad to be back here."

As their eyes met, as Alan felt her small hand warm in his, he was torn between fear. In that first moment of their meeting, when impressions stood out so sharp and clear, it seemed that all passion had gone out of Joyce's manner toward him. She greeted him warmly, she was friendly, even cordial, but in the same way as she would have met Bill Hardsock or Pedneault or Larry.

Buzzard Kept Glancing at Her, Studying Her Intently.

Introducing her to Buzzard, he stepped down into the canoe, lapped the painter rope around a strut; and together he and she guided the 'plane athwart current to the landing. After mooring it securely and getting part of their personal duffle, the four of them, with old Pence appointing himself guard over the machine, went up the path to the trading store.

Alan could fairly feel the dozen eager questions Joyce wanted to ask him: Who was this new-found friend whom he called Buzzard? Where had they got this 'plane? How did they intend to use it against those bandits? But practical little soul as always, she asked no questions then. The three men, tired and hungry and desperately in need of rest, were her first consideration. Going back to the kitchen she heated them water to wash and shave, and set about getting a hot substantial meal.

Alan happened to notice that his picture, which for two years had stood on Joyce's dresser, was not there now. It halted him like a blow. Why had she taken it down? Was it some accident, entirely innocent? Or . . . .

Back in the kitchen, while Buzzard was outside washing away the grime and oil of five days' flight, he remembered the ceinture flechee and found it and brought it to Joyce.

"I thought of you, out in Edmonton," he said awkwardly, breaking the string. "I believed you might like this, Joyce. It isn't much, but I was short of . . . I was pretty near broke."

As Joyce unfolded the sash-belt and saw its exquisite beauty, an admiration leaped into her eyes. "Oh, it's beautiful! It's the loveliest I've ever seen anywhere."

But then, as she looked from the gift to the giver, something seemed to check her. With an effort she forced herself to say quietly, "It was kind of you, Alan, to think of me."

Alan turned away in bitter disappointment. "It was kind of you . . ." How cold and distant those words sounded. She was talking to him across an abysm.

When Buzzard and he came back in, they sat down to their meal. As she passed them food and the three of them talked, Alan could not help noticing Buzzard's quick ardent admiration of Joyce. Buzzard kept glancing at her, studying her intently, evidently astonished to find a pretty, well-educated girl like her living almost alone here in this far-northern wilderness.

Later, when Joyce had insisted on their getting a few hours rest and had left them in her father's room, he remarked:

Picture Is Changed

Heavy Movement From Farms To Cities In Past Sixty Years

How great the movement toward the city has been in Canada in recent years is revealed by the Dominion census covering the period from Confederation in 1867 to the census of 1931.

At the time of the Dominion census in 1871 the population of Canada was 81.4 per cent. rural and 18.6 per cent. urban. According to the census of 1931 there were 4,804,728 people in rural Canada and 5,572,058 in urban centres. Expressed in percentages this means 46.3 rural and 53.7 urban.

In these sixty years the entire picture of Canadian life has changed. In 1871 there were 81 persons out of every hundred living in the country; while in 1931 there were nearly 54 out of every hundred in the cities and towns.

Even these figures, impressive though they are, do not disclose the whole story for the reason that persons living in small communities and unincorporated villages are recorded as rural dwellers. Actually, according to figures compiled by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics, only 31.7 of the whole population of Canada live on farms. There is, however, a noticeable return movement toward the farms now in progress.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

A CHILDLIKE HEART

Have you the gift of a childlike heart?
Then you are blest indeed!
In every gladness it plays its part,
Of every joy it is seed!

For a childlike heart has such faith and trust:
That it questions not at all;
But takes as a portion wholly just
Whatever may befall.

It can see the wonder in common things,
Both distant or near at hand,
The pledge where the arc of the rainbow swings,
The promise of sun-swept land.

It beholds a beauty that grows not less
In the light of love's ageing face,
And finds charms that with passing years express
New miracles of grace.

O, pray for the gift of a childlike heart
Which makes all things fair and true,
For every blessing it can impart,
Bringing heaven on earth to you.

SPEED!

Time counts when you're in pain! Insist on Aspirin, not only for its safety but for its speed.

Aspirin tablets dissolve at once. They are many minutes faster than remedies that are offered in their stead.

If you saw Aspirin made, you would know why it has such uniform, dependable action. If you have ever timed it, you know that it dissolves and gets to work before a slower tablet has any effect.

Stick to Aspirin. You know what you are taking. You know it is harmless; nothing in these tablets to depress the heart. You know you will get results. For headaches, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, the safe and certain relief is—Aspirin.

Little Helps For This Week

"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."—Psalm 90:12.

Our days are numbered: let us spare
Our anxious hearts a needless care:
'Tis Thine to number out our days;
'Tis ours to give them to Thy praise.

Every day let us renew the consecration to God's service; every day let us, in His strength, pledge ourselves afresh to do His will, even in the veriest trifles, and to turn aside from anything that may displease Him. Leave the future in His hands, sure that He can care for it better than we.—Anon.

Finish the day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day, begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old mistakes. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear with its hopes and privileges to waste a moment on the yesterdays.—E. W. Emerson.

Still In the Lead

No Other County Equals Great Britain In Aviation

For obvious reasons we in Canada hear and read a good deal about United States airplanes, American fliers, their exploits and achievements. Actually no country in the world has approached the intensive study of 'planes and their possibilities given by the United Kingdom; no country has gone farther—or as far—in developing the factors of speed, safety, and general utilization of aircraft; and in no land are there air pilots superior to those of the United Kingdom in experience, capability, and ingenuity. —Ottawa Journal.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Timely Admonition

Editor Review:

Sir—Conditions outside the Parish Hall have generally been highly unsatisfactory when entertainments are being given. A section of the people, determined to obtain their wants by fair means or otherwise, prowl around the building ready to annex a cake or other article unguarded. After the play has begun the cheap skates improvise stands at the windows, and the noise of these makeshifts falling against the building often prevents the back rows hearing what is being said on the stage.

At Thursday night's presentation of "The Tempest" by senior high school students the noise of this external 'house' was completely drowned out by the squawks and guffaws of boys who themselves were high school students until recently.

"The Tempest" is a gem of litliterature and exemplifies a style that has never been excelled in the English language. The play is highly educational and its performance by school talent showed that an immense amount of trouble had been taken not only the cast but by the organizers and costume makers. The appearance, dress and performance of some of the artists would be a credit to any company in the land. Nevertheless some of the students had the fault common to amateur talent generally in speaking too fast, too low, and with insufficient clearness. Hence reception in the back rows would have been difficult even had the audience observed complete silence. But with the giggling, guffaws, scraping of feet, and other noise from a single row reception was impossible.

It should be na ural for ex-high students to help their old school fellows by taking a keen interest in the play, but by their conduct on Thursday they showed themselves totally out of sympathy with an undertaking that is worthy of support from the entire population of the valley.

The financial aspect of this matter is the least important; those paying 35 cents for fragments of literature heard between the many and varied discordant sounds from the cultus element would probably support such a worth while cause as higher education in any event. The worst aspect is the impression given to the youthful players on what is one of their first appearances in public.

The mental attitude of some of the finished product from Creston schools, as shown by Thursday night's behaviour, is deplorable. It shows lack of literary appre iation, poor sportsmanship, crass ignorance and, above all, boorish manners.

Visiting companies of proven merit have received treatment similar to our own troupes. This state of affairs has been going on so long that it does not strike our citizens as forcibly as if they endured it on a visit to some other town.

Nevertheless it is a condition that gives the stranger within our gates a false impression of Creston and its continuance should be no longer tolerated. SPECTATOR.

BACK OF BEYOND

By OPTIMIST
CONCLUDED

"When our member's party came into full power he, so the story goes, let it be known that he was the BIG IT. He would run things to suit his fancy: he didn't want help or advice or even suggestions from anybody; he had elected himself without any help and he would run the show without any help, and being all powerful he intended to make that power felt throughout the land.

"The first jolt landed on the fellow that was looking after the road system around these parts and doing his best to make a job of it. I'll tell you, stranger, we could cross the river back yonder without dropping down a mountain side and wallowing through a bog when he was running things, but his good work didn't save him and out he went.

"Then the all powerful one's eye ranged around for another joltee and this time landed on the captain of the Nightmare but this time the joltee beat him to it; the jolt was timed a little too slow giving the captain time to bid in a better job and tender his resignation. I've heard it said that the member was quite peeved because the captain did not wait to be fired; anyway he showed his peevishness in another direction.

"There were quite a bunch of fellows around the town who did their best to support the member in his election campaigns, The member says they didn't, but I know for a fact that many of them coughed up hard earned nickels and dimes to help with the incidentals of campaign fights, and this bunch had been coughing up for a long time without any comeback whatsoever.

"Anyway, when that bunch got hep to the fact that our one and only ship was looking for a captain, they decided to have a hand in appointing one. The spokesman for the gang put the matter up to the member and he, so 'tis rumoured, gave the glad hand to the spokesman right away. 'Certainly, my dear boy, Why not; Glad of the opportunity to be able to reciprocate even in so small a measure for all your many kindnesses and your unfailing help in all my campaigns.'

"It listened good. The bunch wept on the member's shoulder and assurred him of their undying fidelity and the unabated supply of nickels for his future conquests. It was a wet, wet session; not bottle wet, you understand, just handkerchief wet; not a dry eye in all that vast multitude sort of thing, everyone bubbling over with loyalty and devotion, and sobbing out loudly their gratitude.

"It must have touched the member's heart for he shook hands with everybody, over and over again, then struck with a happy thought, he said. 'Just one thing boys whilst I think of it; WE must be careful, don't want the public to get the idea that we are playing any favourites. I suggest we advertise the job and call for applications, by so doing we shall be made aware of the qualifications of applicants, and give the whole district a chance, and I'll leave it to you boys to decide.'

"Gosh, that got em; somebody suggested singing He's a jolly good fellow, but the suggestion was drowned out in the chorus of comment. 'Our member is the boy; he thinks of everything.' Cabinet material,' says another. 'Talents wasted,' from a third, 'should have been a company promoter.' 'A slick duck,' says another, and so on, while the member bowed, smiled and hand shook, and had another brain wave.

"When the bouquet throwing let up a bit, the member sprung it. Said he: 'BOYS, I realize you are business men; time fully occupied and all that sort of thing, and I hate to ask you to dig down to pay for this advertisement, so I will carry the burden of this expense myself; why not, it's for the common good; I like doing things for the common good; let me attend to it boys,' and the boys said yes. This caused another deluge of He's a jolly good fellow sort of thing and when that petered out, it was so arranged, which brought the evening's entertainment to a successful close.

"The next issue of the local paper was sold out before it came off the press, in fact the rush was so strong that a second and third edition were run off, and for the next week every man woman and child that could read were to be seen scanning the wanted ads. The next was a repetition; the newspaper circulation went up thousands per, and would have gone higher yet, but the ink makers started yelling for something on account before letting any more supplies come through, and that kept the circulation down to gold rush story edition records.

"In the meantime the member had had a conference with the incompotent in town, relating to him the sad nature of the party they had lately held and asked his advice. Of course nobody knows what that advice was and nobody cares, What we do know is that no advertisement ever appeared and the new captain was appointed without the boquet throwing bunch knowing anything about it. Against the castiron mitt, but tricky.

"And now, stranger, here's my neighbor, so I must get to work." The stranger secured his hat and walked with the farmer to the gate, where he held his hand and said good-bye. "From what I have seen, from what you have said, and from the many things you have left unsaid, I shall remember you; if I should be brought to face obstacles of a seemingly insurmountable nature I shall go at them, and I shall say to myself whilst doing so, REMEMBER THE OPTOMIST. Good-bye."

Creston Branch - R. J. Forbes, Manager

Important Legion Gathering

Robert Macnicol, provincial secretary, arrived from Fernie on Tuesday, and was the guest of Creston Valley Post Canadian Legion during his brief stay in town. In the afternoon he was motored through Erickson, Canyon and Lister, returning via Rykerts. In the evening he was guest of honor at an entertainment to ex-service men and their ladies in the Parish Hall. Prizewinners at bridge were Mrs. John Hall and H. Cowling, while Mrs. Vigne and J. H. Eddy were victors at whist. Musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. Vigne, Mrs. J. E. Johnston and J. W. and Mrs. Hamilton. After an excellent supper, President W. V. Jackson and Col. Mallandaine made a few appropriate remarks to welcome the principal guest, who, in a 40-minute talk, seviewed economic conditions affecting the returned soldier, gave a resume of pension legislation, and stressed the necessity of all ex-service men supporting the Legion The speaker touched on women's achievements and announced that an organizer would be in Creston shortly to help with the formation of a Legion Auxiliary. The address was heard with much interest and it is hoped that it will be reported in extenso in the Review at an early date.

Death of George Heller

Wynndel has lost a well known citizen in the death of George H. Heller, which occurred at Creston hospital after but a few days illness on Friday evening. Deceased, who was in his 72nd year, was a native of Davenport, Iowa. and followed farming in that state as well as in Kansas, Montana and Idaho, later coming to Alberta, where he followed agriculture at Staveley and Youngstown, arriving at Wynndel in 1925, to take up a small strawberry tract, and has resided there ever since. Pending the arrival of his only surviving son, Charles, of Blanchard, Idaho, the funeral was delayed until Monday, and was from the United Church, Creston, with the pastor, Rev. Andrew Walker, in charge and A. Hagen, Gilbert Payette, D. Butterfield, and C. Payette officiating as pallbeasers, with many of the neighbors in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect, which was also bespoken in many floral remembrances. He is survived by the one son, Charles, and a sister who lives at St. Anthony, Idaho His oldest son, Richard, was killed in the Great War. Deceased was of a genial though somewhat retiring dispositi n, and will be missed from the circle of well known Wynndel residents.

Observe Ypres Day

On Sunday Col. Mallandaine, W. V. Jackson, John Hall, J. B. Holder and H. A. Powell, represented Creston Valley Post Canadian Legion at the Ypres Day ceremony in Memorial Hall, Boswell, which was largely attended by ex-service men and their families from Kootenay Lake points. The chairman, Lawson Hepher, called on Col. Mallandaine, who gave an interesting extomporary talk on the glorious achievements of the Canadian forces and complimented the people of Boswell on their splendid memorial hall. Other speakers were President W. V. Jackson, who stressed the importance of the Legion's work, and Capt. Thain, the organizer of the gathering, who expressed the ex-Imperial's admiration for Canadian valor in the Great War. The principal speaker was Capt, Dalgas, who was at Ypres, and one of 168 survivors out of a batallion. Interspersed with the speeches Kipling's famous hymn and other musical numbers were rendered The ceremony concluded with the laying of a wreath at the foot of the tablet commemorating the fallen by Mrs. Allan, the two minutes silence and the national anthem. Before returning the guests were entertained to tea by members of Boswell Women's Institute.

John Watson Passes

A highly respected resident of Creston was removed by death on Thursday last in the passing of John Watson, who was in his 75th year. Deceased was a native of Scotland, coming to Canada as a young man, and followed his trade of mining. Some 35 years ago he came to work in the mines in the Crows Nest Pass which were then opening up, and for many years was employed at Coleman, Alberta, from which town he came to Creston just about two years ago, having retired from active work some time previously. He purchased the former ranch home of J. D. Spiers on coming here The funeral was on Saturday from Trinity United Church, with the pastor, Rev. Andrew Walker officiating and the pallbearers were B. Morabito, R. Phillips, W. J. Truscott, J. Donaldson and and Joy Arrowsmith, with many out to pay a last tribute of respect and floral tributes bespeaking the esteem in which deceased was help. He is survived by his widow and two sons, John Watson of Calgary, who was here for the funeral, and another son who is with the C.P.R. at Lethbridge, to whom the sympathy of of the community is extended.

Why Canada's Trade Declines.

Official figures of the trade of Canada for the fiscal year which ended on March 31, 1933, recently issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, are of interest these days to a far larger group of citizens than those who usually make a study of statistical information as a guide to the trend of national and international affairs. Since the stock market crash of October, 1929, and the steady fall in prices of all primary commodities the world over, with all the concommitant evils of depreciated money values and violently fluctuating exchange rates, the farmer, laborer, store clerk, has taken an increasing interest in economics and eagerly reads all information on the subject available to him. The average man and woman has been undergoing a real education in the fundamentals which underlie national and international business relationships, and they have come to appreciate the fact that these things very intimately affect themselves and their families.

For this reason the figures referred to are of more than passing or mere statistical interest, because, in concrete form, they reveal just why it is that business of all kinds throughout Canada is so sadly depressed today, with unemployment general, and governmental relief services necessary for the maintenance of thousands of families.

The year preceding the crash of prices in October, 1929, was the biggest trade year Canada ever experienced. The official figures of imports and exports tell the story, just as the same statistics for the succeeding years down to the present time tell what has since taken place. For the information of readers of this column the figures for the past five years are here given, from the highest in the history of the Dominion in 1929 to the lowest since 1915, the year in which the Great War broke.

Fiscal Year ended March 31	Imports	Exports	Total
1929	$1,265,679,091	$1,388,896,075	$2,654,475,166
1930	1,248,273,582	1,144,938,070	2,393,211,652
1931	906,612,695	817,028,048	1,723,640,743
1932	578,517,744	587,565,517	1,166,083,261
1933	406,213,972	480,821,297	887,035,269

These comparative figures disclose the fact that Canada's trade is now only one-third what it was five years ago. It is because of that fact that all business is depressed, no new enterprises are under way, tens of thousands are unemployed, railway equipment is largely idle and the companies in financial difficulties, government revenues are shot to pieces, and public debts and taxation of the people steadily increasing.

The loss in the total volume of trade is, of course, not quite as large as these dollar values of trade indicate because the value of all commodities is less today than in 1929; nevertheless the decline is startling. Furthermore, this decline in our international trade, import and export, is reflected immediately, and in practically the same proportion, in our internal trade between provinces and communities. The total falling off in trade is, therefore, enormous.

What occasioned this tremendous loss? Scores and hundreds of reasons are advanced, and most of them may be contributory or subsidiary causes. Many say the chief responsibility lies in the competitive capitalistic system, and in the prevailing monetary and banking systems. But it was under these same systems that the trade of Canada and the world was carried on prior to and during 1929 and brought to the peak indicated by the figures given above. The monetary system worked while the trade of the country was moving and increasing, but when trade was checked and gradually killed off, there was not the same demand for credits, and credits began to dry up because that security which lies back of all credit was fast disappearing. Let trade be revived and prices will again rise, credits be called for and be forthcoming, because security resulting from increased and profitable trade would again be in evidence.

The question then is: What has so largely destroyed the trade of the world, Canada included? Despite the many, and often conflicting reasons advanced, the true answere is not far to seek.

The Great War destroyed millions of lives, maimed more millions who became pensioners of the State, destroyed tens of billions of property, imposed billions of debt upon the nations, upon which hundreds of millions in interest charges have to be paid annually. Not only these things, but the war left an even more disastrous train of bitter feelings, suspicions, and narrow nationalist views in its wake. The nations of Europe still fear each other, perhaps more so than ever, and continue armed to the teeth. But the war has taught them one lesson, and that is that food supplies for their populations are just as important,—more so, in fact,—than arms and munitions. Nations surrounded by enemies became convinced that they must become more self-contained if they are to survive in any future war.

So France turned its magnificent and highly profitable vineyards into less profitable but more essential wheat fields; Germany abandoned less essential forms of production to grow wheat; Italy did the same thing, giving large State bonuses; Russia embarked on its ambitious five-year plan; other smaller nations followed the same course. To encourage these programmes these nations imposed terrifically high tariffs, prohibitory tariffs, against other countries. Instead of importing wheat, which they could have done much more cheaply and in every way more economically than growing it themselves, they stopped doing so. Producing largely for themselves, they had less of other things to export, and because other countries, Canada included had lost their markets in Europe in which to sell their surplus products, they had no money wherewith to buy in those markets.

Therefore, because every export by one country is an import by some other country, and every import by one an export by another, and with all determined to reduce imports to the vanishing point the inevitable automatic effect is to reduce exports to the same point. Thus is the trade of the world being destroyed.

That is the answer to the seeming riddle of the depression. It is not the existing economic system, including monetary systems, that is at fault. It is "Fear,"—fear of war. Until that fear is removed and confidence re-established, there can be no restoration of national or international credit; trade will continue to languish and grow less and less; the world depression will continue.

Will Shoulder Burden

Canadians Paying Heavy Taxes But Will Not Tolerate Extravagance

Jack Canuck for years has marvelled at the equanimity of John Bull in crises, and particularly his sang-froid in accepting heavy national taxes. The old gentleman has invariably shrugged his shoulders, smiled, tightened his belt and turned to the work in hand, tackling the most immediate problem with a nonchalance that was amazing to others.

Now Jack Canuck is getting a taste in a tax way of what to John Bull has become common. In other words Canadians have come to realize that those who are earning and spending must be prepared to pay more into the coffers of the country to improve its financial position.

The Rhodes budget is heavy. It hurts. But when one is hurt he is apt to take a deeper interest in the reason for that condition. Hence Canadians will in the future scan governmental expeditures with a keener eye. They are willing to pay, willing to meet their just obligations, and will shoulder tax burdens like John Bull for the national good, but they will not tolerate extravagance or political wire pulling where public funds are directly or indirectly involved. — Kitchener Record.

Cattle Shipments Active

Fair Demand In Britain For Choice Canadian Cattle

There's a fair quantity these days of what may be regarded as the "roast beef of Old England" being served to the British people in their own country but which a short time before was prime young steer in Canada. The shipments of live cattle from the Dominion to the British market are particularly active this year. From January 1 to March 23, 1933, a total of 7,863 head were exported from Canada to British ports, an increase of 7,454 compared with the corresponding period in 1932. With the opening of navigation on the St. Lawrence it is expected there will be heavy shipments from Montreal to fill large orders already received from buyers in Britain.

Opinion Of Dirigible Expert

Eckener Thinks Break Was Cause Of Akron Disaster

Dr. Hugo Eckener, dirigible expert, discarded the theory that a storm had caused the Akron tragedy, and said in his opinion, from reading the reports of the inquiry, the crash was caused by a break of the big ship in the airplane carrier room.

Dr. Eckener said he always had considered the room, in which fighting 'planes were stored, a weak point in the Akron's framework. His comment came following New York reports tracing the Akron disaster to broken ribs in the huge dirigible.

Unbreakable Milk Bottle

Has Been Developed In Pittsburg From Wax-Like Material

An unbreakable milk bottle has been developed in Pittsburg. The bottle is first molded in one piece from cellulose to the shape of the standard half pint, pint, and quart glass containers. It is then impregnated through its entire wall thickness with a research creation, "opax," a tasteless and odorless wax-like material. The bottle will not soften under constant exposure to water or lactic acid, it is said, and will pass through present types of filling and capping machines.

Secret Rediscovered

Dr. Ferruccio Zanier, of Trieste, Italy, claims to have rediscovered the process used by early violin makers who were able to produce the deadening and sweetening effect of stringed instruments. He says that a resin obtained from plants that grow only in Persia furnished the base of the secret varnish used by Italy's classic violin makers.

Large Landward Movement

Many Families Have Been Placed On the Land Through Colonization Work

Between October 1, 1930, and January 31, 1933, the Canadian Government Department of Immigration and Colonization, the Canadian National Railways, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, working together, have been instrumental in placing upon farms in Canada a total of 10,733 families. These were families already resident in Canada. On the basis of five to the family this means 53,665 persons. This family settlement was confined to those who had sufficient capital to establish themselves on the land.

In the same period 23,253 single men were placed in farm employment. Adding these to the families, the impressive total of 76,918 persons actually placed on the land is reached.

Simultaneously with this movement land settlement activities were being carried on by the Provincial Governments. In one year—1931—the Government of the Province of Quebec placed 5,694 families in farm settlement, and in the three years 1930, 1931, and 1932, the Government of Alberta granted 19,223 homesteads to residents of that province. Similar activities were carried on by other provinces. In addition, there was a large landward movement entirely on the initiative of the individual settlers themselves.

U.S. Taxes Heavy Too

Comparative Figures Given By San Francisco Paper Are Startling

Tax money for 1932 could employ, at the $15-a-week rate paid by relief agencies, no fewer than 17,948,711 men for a whole year.

The combined annual cost of our Army, Navy and Air Force equals less than three weeks' tax impositions for 1932.

The tax burden averages $500 for each family in the land.

If all the paper currency in circulation throughout the country were added to all the gold, we would still owe the tax collectors as much more again—and more.

This year's taxes could pay off every farm mortgage in the land, with enough left over to donate almost a thousand dollars to each of six million farmers.

The total salaries and wages being paid this year by two hundred thousand manufacturing establishments to some eight million executives and employees will not match the Nation's tax claims.

Thirty-six Panama Canals could be built with one year's tax receipts. — The Argonaut, San Francisco.

Holding "Enjoyment Week"

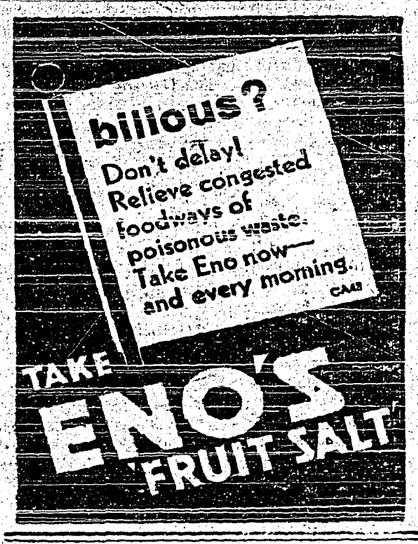
Lord Mayor Of London Sponsors Seven Day Festival

Under the auspices of the Lord Mayor, London is holding an "Enjoyment Week," starting May 27 and concluding like the proposed execution in Gilbert's "Mikado," with "general rejoicings and a grand display of fireworks" on June 3, the King's birthday.

"A week of festival," says the Lord Mayor, "will undoubtedly have the effect of getting the people to take the brighter view of the situation. The situation is by no means as bad as is supposed in some quarters, either," add his lordship.

Hardly secondary to this aspiration though is the desire to further popularize London as a tourist centre. It is hoped the program will include a pageant procession and a gala demonstration.

One thing about sunsets is that small towns have just as big ones as the large cities, and a danged lot easier to see.



Delayed Taking Out Patent

Inventor Of Moving Picture Camera Lost Millions and Died Penniless

A recent report from the Surrogate office showed that Jean A. Le Roy, inventor, of the motion picture projection machine, died penniless. The millions of dollars that were rightfully but not legally his, went to others because he neglected to patent his invention soon enough.

An ironical feature is that Le Roy's last few years were spent in poverty. Paralyzed, he subsisted largely on the bounty of friends. All he had at his death was reputation but that doesn't pay doctors' or food bills. And that slender sustenance came to him only late in life.

For many years, the origin of the motion pictude camera remained shrouded in mystery. There were many claimants. An impartial investigation finally allotted the honor of being the father of the motion picture industry to Le Roy. But it was not until two and one-half years after he had perfected the first projection machine that Le Roy got the idea he ought to patent his invention. Then, he found he had been six months too late.

Le Roy's experience is not novel in the history of invention. He lived in an age when the commercial idea was not so prevalent as now. He gave his first public exhibition of moving pictures in 1894. His statement on why he never patented his machine expresses, perhaps, better than ever before, how so many inventors lived to see others reap the enormous profits of their genius. Said Le Roy:

"I didn't patent my invention because I didn't realize what I had. That is the real truth. It was unfortunate for me that my knowledge of patents and patent law was exceedingly meager. Like the average inventor, I centered my interest in the invention itself, to the absolute exclusion of everything else."—From Zit's New York.

Mystifying Magic

New York Audience Sees Strange Things At Benefit Show

An audience in a New York theatre applauded the other night as a woman "burned to death" before their eyes. They asked questions of a grisly skull and marched forward to have their pockets picked. One man even smiled as his new derby hat was used as a mixing bowl for pancake batter.

These strange events took place during the annual benefit show of the Society of American Magicians.

The audience relished Joe Kelso's derby hat trick and grinned delightedly as the borrowed derby was filled with batter, which changed mysteriously into six hot pancakes, leaving the derby steaming but unblemished.

UNITED STATES GOES OFF THE GOLD STANDARD

Washington.—The United States swung away from the gold standard as President Roosevelt prepared to ask congress for new powers to effect a controlled inflation.

Withdrawal of gold support for the American dollar in foreign exchanges by the president was interpreted by his secretary of the treasury, William H. Woodin, as meaning temporary suspension of the traditional gold standard basis of currency.

In his first move, the president adroitly put himself into a position to negotiate for a revised world gold standard by withdrawing support of the American dollar in foreign exchanges to combat the depreciated currencies of the foreign nations now off the standard.

He has in mind bringing all nations back to the gold standard as a measure of stability, but he is considering a new standard whereby the present ratio of 40 per cent. gold reserve for currency would be reduced.

He will look for common action by all the nations in establishing the new ratio which will permit more currency to be circulated on the same world supply of the precious gold basis.

Meanwhile, the Roosevelt administration attacked the problem from its purely domestic angle. Governors of the 12 Federal Reserve banks reported promising outlooks to Secretary Woodin, and then studied means of pumping available idle currency into circulation.

The governors also tackled the task of freeing the four to five billions still locked up in closed banks. Quick action appears in prospect.

Just how the gold embargo reacts to raise American commodity prices is somewhat involved and difficult of explanation. It was explained, that cotton, for instance, is sold on the gold basis.

On the present gold basis the rate is about six cents a pound. Should the price of gold slide off 10 per cent. a resultant increase in cotton of 10 per cent. is regarded as inevitable.

The president apparently has won a respite from the leaders in congress who have been hammering hard for outright currency inflation.

Mr. Roosevelt considers the heart of the problem the raising of the price level. But he wants it raised in such a manner that it will be under control at all times and not permitted to go too high.

Present Problem

Unemployed In Saskatchewan Flock To Cities

Regina, Sask.—Single unemployed are coming in from farms, where they have been assisted all winter by the Saskatchewan Government, and are presenting a problem to officials. The population of the camps at Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw have jumped by about 400 in the past month.

The men were paid $5 a month by the relief commission and placed on farms. The farmers are now letting them go, stating they are not in a position to pay them wages during the summer.

Few farmers are taking men in Saskatchewan at the present time.

Lord Milton Weds

Dublin, Irish Free State.—Lord Milton, only son of Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam, and Miss Olive Plunkett, daughter of Most Rev. No Political Jobs

Premier Bennett Says Appointment Of Rail Trustees To Be On Merit

Ottawa, Ont.—"I do say that the appointments of these trustees will not be political," Prime Minister R. B. Bennett promised the House of Commons committee considering the railway legislation.

Mr. Bennett then proceeded to define political appointments as those involving the selection of a man because of his services to a party and who possessed no other qualification for the position to be filled.

Mr. Bennett stressed difficulty of securing suitable men in Canada to fill important posts, for this country did not have the great reservoir of public men which existed in the United Kingdom.

No one knew better than the opposition leader what these difficulties were.

The number of men who are willing to serve their country at present is amazing, commented Mr. Bennett. To make the necessary selection was a most difficult task, particularly when confronted with the innumerable applicants "whose only qualification lies in their ability to provide pressure."

Some Gold In Sand Pit

Small Quantities Found In Yorkton By Local Prospector

Yorkton, Sask.—Small quantities of gold are to be found in Yorkton's sand pit, it was discovered by Fred Carson, local prospector, who has had experience panhandling and prospecting for gold in northern Saskatchewan, Alberta and in the Athabaska country.

Mr. Carson explained to a press representative that when he made the discovery in Yorkton's sand pit he was of the opinion that the mineral was "fool's gold," more commonly known as mica, but he made a mercury test and convinced himself that the mineral was real gold.

He expressed the opinion that the gold flakes found in Yorkton's sand pit had been deposited there during the glacier period and stated that only between five and ten cents' worth of gold could be obtained from every cubic yard of sand in the pit.

Two Aeroplanes On Second Flight Negotiate High Mountain

Purneah, India.—Two aeroplanes of the Houston expedition flew over Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world, for the second time within recent weeks.

The flights, which required exactly three hours, were made in good weather. The time of the flights corresponded with the first conquering of the peak on April 3, when 'planes flown by the Marquess of Clydesdale and Lieutenant D. F. McIntyre, crossed the lofty mountain.

Those who participated in the flight were the Marquess, Lieut.-Colonel L. V. S. Blacker, who participated in the first flight, Air Commodore P. F. M. Fellowes and a moving picture operator named Fisher.

At lower altitudes visibility was a bit hazy, but at the higher levels it was excellent.

May Continue Camps

Ottawa, Ont.—The government has under consideration the desirability of continuing relief camps for single men, after April 30, Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, told John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford), in the House of Commons. No decision has yet been reached, he said.

Leads In Lumber Shipments

Victoria, B.C.—For the last three months British Columbia has led Pacific lumber shipments in the offshore trade, Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Lands, said in commenting on the resumption of logging in Vancouver Island woods, and the reopening of mills that had long been closed.

Condemns Secrecy Veil

Ottawa, Ont.—The veil of secrecy which has hung over the salaries and many of the other expenditures of the Canadian National Railways was condemned in the House of Commons by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King. Premier R. B. Bennett declared he was in agreement with the Liberal leader in this particular.

NEW SPEED KING

Hurtling his speed seaplane over Lake Garda, Italy, at 426.4 miles an hour, Flight Officer Francisco Agello, who was a member of Italy's 1929 Schneider Cup team, broke the world's record which was set up two years ago by Lieutenant George Stainforth of Great Britain. The Britisher's speed was 408.997 miles an hour.

Auto Tourist Traffic Down

Cars Entering Canada Last Year Were 800,000 Fewer

Ottawa, Ont.—A Dominion wide summary covering foreign tourist traffic in 1932, compiled by the Department of National Revenue, shows that over 4,000,000 foreign automobiles were entered for touring purposes last year through Canada's frontier ports, 800,000 fewer than the previous year.

While totals from every province show decreases, several of the ports show substantial increase. The summary shows, also, a shrinkage of about 160,000 in the number of Canadian cars reported outwards for touring purposes.

Canadian automobiles exported for touring purposes in 1932 numbered 376,857, as against 536,855 for the previous year.

Will Attempt Atlantic Flight

'Plane Used In the Gold Fields Of the North To Be Used

Toronto.—The well-named "Sourdough," veteran monoplane of the Northwest Territories and the sub-Arctic gold fields, which has been flown by many northern pilots, will have a new and even more thrilling experience within two months.

The "Sourdough," with J. D. M. Gray, Scotch-Canadian, at the controls, will attempt a flight from London, England, to Toronto in the first week of June. J. E. Hammell, well known mining man, has donated the monoplane to Gray, a Toronto pilot, for the flight.

Endorses Roosevelt Action

J. P. Morgan Pleased With Embargo On Gold Exports

New York.—J. P. Morgan, in one of his rare public statements, endorsed President Franklin Roosevelt's action in suspending gold exports.

"I welcome the reported action of the president," he said in a written statement, "and the secretary of the treasury in placing an embargo on gold exports.

"It had become evident that the effort to maintain the exchange value of the dollar at a premium as against depreciated foreign currencies was having a deflationary effect upon already severely deflated American prices and wages and employment.

"It seems to me clear that the way out of the depression is to combat and overcome the deflationary forces. Therefore, I regard the action now taken as being the best possible course under existing circumstances."

It was the first public statement issued by the traditionally reticent head of the house of Morgan since his statement in London in Sept., 1931, when he described the British suspension of gold payments at that time as constructive, under the circumstances.

Defeat Sweepstakes Bill

Fosters Gambling Is Stand Taken By House Of Commons

Ottawa, Ont.—Canadians must continue to buy their sweepstake tickets, if at all, in dark alley fashion, the House of Commons defeating a bill to legalize lotteries conducted for the benefit of hospitals. The six months' hoist—a time-honored parliamentary way of killing a measure—was given the bill, 76 to 15, the vote cutting across party lines.

While at least one member drew a sweepstake ticket from his pocketbook, nine Conservatives, five Liberals, and one Laborite supported the bill.

Premier R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservatives, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberals, and Robert Gardiner, leader of the Third-party group, united in opposing the measure.

The bill passed the senate after a rough passage but found few supporters in the elected chamber. The common ground for opposition was that it fostered gambling and would not assist hospitals.

'Plane Crash Kills Four

St. Louis.—Four persons, one a wealthy Arkansas planter, were killed when the aeroplane in which they were flying from Augusta, Ark., to St. Louis, crashed and burned in a wheat field near Valmeyer, Ill., about 25 miles south of here.

To Appoint Commissioner

Vancouver, B.C.—An order for the appointment of a commissioner for the Corporation of the City of Prince Rupert, was made in supreme court chambers by Mr. Justice W. A. MacDonald.

BRITAIN'S MOSCOW AMBASSADOR ARRIVES HOME

Here is Sir Esmond Ovey (left), British Ambassador in Moscow, walking over to 10 Downing Street for a consultation with the Prime Minister and the British Cabinet regarding the arrest and trial of British subjects in Moscow. With Sir Esmond is Sir Robert Vansittart (right) British Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

BRITAIN PLACES EMBARGO ON SOVIET IMPORTS

London, England.—An 80 per cent. embargo on Russian imports was proclaimed through King George as a result of the trial in Moscow of six British electrical engineers.

Shortly thereafter, however, there were authoritative indications that the action might be revoked if prison sentences of two of the Englishmen would be commuted to banishment from Russia.

Soviet Ambassador Maisky, chairman of the Russian trade delegation, and his chief assistants conferred with Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, and officials of the board of trade in an effort to avoid the break because of the crisis.

The British Labor ranks, aroused by the threatened rupture, summoned leaders of trades unions to a conference with the Labor party and Laborite members of parliament to consider the whole question of the embargo.

George Bernard Shaw, returning home from a world cruise, immediately jumped into the controversy with the statement that "all people trying to provoke war with Russia should instantly be hanged for practical treason to their own country."

The British government, empowered last week by parliament to declare the embargo, has insisted it is primarily concerned with the safety of its subjects in Russia. Great public interest was aroused.

If the embargo is carried out, 80 per cent. of Soviet goods intended for importation into Great Britain would be banned, including all important commodities except furs.

Commercial and credit relations between the two countries would be left in a tangled state.

The government's drastic action was based on a policy of protection for British citizens in the Soviet Union, and so far it has been considered successful since the Metropolitan-Vickers employees received light sentences.

The British government has contended that its prime concern was the safety of its subjects in Russia.

On the basis of current trade figures, the embargo going into effect on April 26 will bar imports aggregating £9,600,000 annually.

It was authoritatively stated that 80 per cent. of Russian imports will be affected. All grain, butter, raw cotton, petroleum and timber will be excluded.

Currency Stabilization

U.S. Going Off Gold Standard May Help Canada

Toronto, Ont.—Officials of Canadian Bank head offices in Toronto declined to comment on the statement by W. H. Woodin, secretary of the United States treasury, that prohibition of gold exports had sent United States off the gold standard.

One high official said, "In all probability currency of the United States and Canada would now find a more equal level and there possibly would follow a rise in commodity prices in which the Dominion would share.

"At any rate," he added, "United States going off the gold standard will have no adverse effect in Canada."

Agree On Pensions Act

Ottawa, Ont.—An "amicable agreement" between the government and representatives of the associated veterans emerged from a Pension Act conference which Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes held with spokesmen of the ex-service men, according to a statement issued by the veterans following the meeting.

Brewery Swamped With Orders

St. Catharines, Ont.—A local brewery has announced it is literally swamped with orders for beer from all over the eastern United States and from as far away as Atlanta, Ga. The first shipment was sent to Utica, N.Y. "There is a demand for 200,000 barrels a day," said E. T. Sandell of the brewery.
