July 1 Celebration Great Success

Athletics Win Baseball Prize—Creston Best in Tug-of-War—Children's Parade Pleases—Many Attend Evening Dance

Wild Rose Lodge Knights of Pythias certainly made good their promise to give Creston a bigger and better children's Dominion Day celebration this year, the entertainment provided being superior to that of 1932 while the crowd out at Exhibition Park was certainly no smaller than a year ago.

The day's doings got off to a good start with the children's parade which left the town hall at 12.15 for the grounds, and the large number of spectators were agreed that the parade was almost in a class with those that used to feature Chautauqua days in Creston some ten years ago. The parade was headed by a couple of Boy Scouts carrying the Canadian flag. Then came the decorated bicycles, togged out in bright colored ribbons and paper which gave them a striking appearanc. The prizes in this section were won by Frank Archibald and Sam Nastasi.

These were followed by the pets, of various kinds, all proudly exhibited by their owners. First prize went to Raymond Cooper, decked out with a hunting costume including high boots, game bag, gun and dog, while Charlotte Wilks was equally popular in her Bo Peep costume with big collie dog, to take second prize.

In the fancy dress comic first prize was divided between Doris Hendy and Phyllis Lowther as a negro couple, and second went to Virginia Mindlin as a flapper who made a great hit with her poses, eyes, etc.

In this class the judging was done by Mrs. Henderson, Frank Putnam and C. O. Rodgers. but it was not until after the parade had made several circles of parading at Exhibition Park that the judges made their final decisions as to the winners.

In the baseball tournament Creston Athletics trimmed Canyon 11-10 in the final game to annex the $15 cash prize, with a $10 remembrance going to Canyon. All three games of the tournament were considerably better than last year, Canyon trimmed Erickson 9-7 in the first round, and in the second installment the Athletics took Wynndel into camp 7-0.

The races for children were all keenly contested, with chief interest centering in the greasy pole climb which was won by Ernest Hills who well deserved the ham which was the prize given In the ladies nail driving contest the prizes went daughter and mother, the winners being Mrs. Cecil Moore and Mrs. Matt Hagen. In the tug of war Creston bested both Canyon and Erickson.

The midway enjoyed quite generous patronage and if the holder of ticket 45 of series 1334 will call at Vic. Mawson's he can have the blanket that he won. The doll rack was a big favorite, and the rifle range also drew many.

Creston band brightened up things all afternoon with ma y popular selections, and the Pythian Sisters report a satisfactory day's business at the refreshment booths.

The dance at night drew a fine crowd who tripped the light fantastic until midnight to the music of Fred Dack's Crestonian orchestra. At this function the drawing took place for the cash prizes given in commection with the day's adm ssion tickets, and the lucky winners were Mrs, Fred Powers of Lister, 1st; R. J. Long 2nd; and Mrs. F. V. Staples, 3rd.

Lister

Miss Kathe Adams of Calgary, Alta., is a visitor here this week with her mother, Mrs. Fred Lemke.

After completing her work as supervisor at Gray Creek on Friday last, Miss Curtis left for her home at Slocan City.

Miss Webster got away on Monday for Nanaimo, where she will spend the month of July with relatives and friends.

Ada and George Rylan left at the close of the school term for Arrow Creek, where they are berry picking on the Staff ranch

Rev. M. T. C. Percival, the Kimberley-Creston rector, will be here on Sunday at 11 a.m. for Church of England service at the schoolhouse.

A. Pirie of Kingsgate was a holiday weekend visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wilson.

Sirdar was well represented at both Creston and Boswell July 1st dances.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. and Miss Bridges, Mrs. Healy and Miss Healy, all of Cranbrook, and Mrs. Cor and Miss Jane Cory of Hamilton, Ontario, spent the July first holiday here, guests of Mr. and Mrs James Pascuzzo.

Mike Cherbo has returned from Cranbrook where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Sirdar softball players journeyed up to Creston to play against the Wildcats and returned victors by a 26-4 score. This is one time the boys had a chance of showing off their superiority complex.

Men are actively employed in moving the extra large amount of driftwood that has come in at Slongh bridge and it looks as if this task will take some considerable time.

F. Hamilton was a business visitor at Creston on Friday.

The water guage at Slough bridge indicates 18.71. A drop of 2.14 for the week. Considerable driftwood has co lected at the bridge, having drifted down from the bend which has been harboring this menace.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Yerbury and family w sh to express their very sincere thanks to the doctors and staff of C eston Hospital, and for the flowers, the loving sympathy and all the kindnesses shown them in their recent bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Messinger and Sylvester wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and their generosity following the loss of their home by fire.

Kitchener Airport Opened Saturday

Located Couple of Miles East of Kitchener—Comprises About 54 Acres—Stump Removal is Heavy Work—60 in Camp.

What may be termed the official opening of the airport, two miles east of Kitchener, took place on Saturday morning when W. M. Archibald of Creston, successfully landed his DeHavilad Pus Moth plane at 9.15, and was accorded a royal welcome by Sqpt. Col. Newcomen and the airport workmen.

The airport is one of the many undertaken all across Canada to afford work for the unemployed single men. Operations commenced at the Kitchener field on January 28th, and on an average about 60 men have been employed. The Kitchener field is the first of them all to be opened.

In connection with the six months' work at the field it is most satisfactory to know that the men in camp showed a remarkably cheerful spirit and it is largely due their pluck and determination that such fine progress has been made.

The airport when fully completed will embrace 54 acres, in the clearing of which, stumps, many of them nine feet in circumference, along with deadfalls, had to be removed at times when there was pack snow to a de th of four feet and always about 18 inches of frost in the ground.

For most of the field the stumps averaged about 100 to every 200 square feet, and throughout operations no machinery nor a single stick of dynamite was used.

At the present time a runway 1400 x 200 feet is graded and Mr. Archibald is so well pleased with development already that he has announced his intention of using the Kitchener airport as his landing field in future.

Kitchener

Mrs. Gordon McPhail, nee Elsie Nelson, and daughter, Maxine, of Salmon Arm, arrived on Friday on a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nelson.

School closed for this term on Friday, and will re-open on September 5th.

Dan MacDonald, C.P.R. tie inspector, of Crawford Bay, was a weekend visitor at Kitchener.

Mrs. E. Driffil visited friends and relatives at Creston on Friday.

Misses Vivian Langlois and Sue Wilson of Nelson were weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. C. Foisy.

Miss Sarah Brett of Canyon arrived on Friday on a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hankey.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Boyd of Creston spent the weekend here, guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hunt.

Mrs. B. Johnson, who has been visiting relatives in Kimberley, returned home on Friday.

Chas. Barr and Master Dick Cavanaugh arrived on Friday from Kimberley on a visit with their aunt, Mrs. B. Johnson.

Dance by Pine Katz softball club on Friday night was fairly well attended. Walde's orchestra supplied the music.

Strawberries commenced moving from Kitchener the last week in June. A Simpson, L Nowlin, Elmer Blair and Frank Huson of Goat River crossing are making daily shipments. The berries look exceptionally good.

Canyon City

After playing two games at Creston on Dominion Day Canyon baseball team was in no shape to take on the crack Porthill nine in Sunday's league game, which Porthill captured 15-0.

School closed for the two months' summer vacation on Friday. We hear Miss Goodwin will spend the vacation with her brother in California.

A. A. Bond has secured the contract for the stucco work on the new Imperial Groceteria building at Creston.

Posters are up for the annual school meeting at the school on Satnrday evening. The terms of office of Trustee J. E. VanAckeran and auditor H. Young have expired.

Matt. Clayton is about the only Canyon rancher shipping berries this season. The outgo from here is the lightest ever, and the prices the poorest.

$25 was netted at the benefit dance at the hall on Friday night for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Messinger, who lost their house and contents by fire about a month ago. Musicians from Creston and Canyon made up an excellent orchestra for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook (nee Minnie Strong) who have been visiting with her brother, Norman Strong, left for their home in Calgary, Alberta, on Wednesday. On Sunday they had their infant daughter (Evelyn May) christened by Rev. A. Walker at the United Church.

Mr. and and Mrs. W. Ridd, who have been at Heatherdown and Antross, Alberta, for the past year, arrived back on Monday, and will be staying on the ranch until late fall.

T. O. Staples has just arrived from Alberta with a carload of livestock, and will be residing here permanently with his daughter, Mrs. Leslie Clark. He has recently disposed of his farm near Calgary.

The Tartarian cherries are coming in and already reports are to hand of thieving of this fruit already under way.

Alfalfa cutting was resumed at the first of the week, after the rains of last week in June. Much of the crop cut before the rain has been damaged, but by no means spoiled.

West Kootenay Power & Light Company has completed the planting of poles in the Canyon district, and locally it is noted that the poles in this area are heavier and longer than at Erickson, the conclusion being that they are to carry "juice" across the line. Report has it that the company has contracts to wire about 200 valley residences, and in order to give these customers light at the earliest possible moment the company may install a temporary dynamo to carry the load pending the completion of the big plant, which may not be at work till late in the year.

Wynndel

Bert Murgatroyd, who is employed at Revelstoke, is on a visit here with his wife and family.

Birth—At Creston hospital on June 29th, to Mr. and Mrs. E. Uri, a son.

Fall fair committee held a meeting on Friday evening to draw up prize list for 1933 fall fair.

Principal Freney of Alice Siding school was here the latter part of the week supervising the students writing on the entrance to high school examination.

There will be no July meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. McFarlane of Trail spent a few days with her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Davis, and attended the McRobb-Davis wedding at Canyon last week.

Miss Olwen Evans of Cranbrook was a Dominion Day weekend visitor with her mother, Mrs. Rumsey.

The first straight carload of strawberries out of Wynndel this season went out on Sunday.

Posters are up for annual school meeting to be held in the hall Wednesday evening, July 12th.

Walde's orchestra is to play for a dance at the hall this (Friday) evening, July 7th, with an admission of 75 and 25 cents, which includes supper.

An extraordinary meeting of the Co-Operative Fruit Growers was held in the hall on Tuesday evening of last week, with John Wigen in the chair. Correspondenco with regard to marketing and conditions of markets was read and discussed Management was instructed to carry on but to notify growers if any further drop in prices occurred.

At a convention at Cranbrook on Thursday last Tom Mountford of Wynndel was named candidate for the legislature by the United Front party in Creston-Nelson constituency. This makes three in the field; Frank Putnam on the Liberal ticket, and Col. Fred Lister, who has announced that he will run as an independent.

Alice Siding

Principal Freney of Alice Siding school got away on Saturday for his home at Rossland, where he will spend the summer vacation.

Miss Gladys Webster, who teaches at Natal, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webster, for the July-August vacation.

P. Argyle was a visitor at Summit Creek on Saturday for the opening of the fishing season, and brought home a fine catch.

Mrs. Fred Taylor, who has been away for a couple of months on a visit with friends at Nelson, Salmon Arm, and other points, returned at the end of the week.

Alice Siding baseball team met the Creston team at Creston on Monday evening and went down to defeat 11-8. The winners showed superiority in batting, but in the field Alice Siding had much the best of it. Alice Siding battery, Webster and Jeff. Collis.

Boswell Regatta Plans Shaping

Date Fixed for July 26th—Last Year's Programme Revised—Swimming Tug-of-War and Surf Riding Among Features

Several attractive additions to the sports program of Boswell regatta, and the substitution of a number of stunts in place of the less popular events of last year's program, are expected to add considerable to the fun on July 27th.

Chief among these items are the surf riding and log burling contests, both offering a real challenge to the ability of the contestants. Swimming tug-o-wars, omnibus raft races, greasy pole walk, and tilting from rafts add their quota to the fun. The latter event is this year open to juniors as well as grown-ups. Swimming and diving events are numerous, with the usual attractive prizes.

A motor boat bang-and-go race is scheduled to run early in the afternoon, while the grand final will be a tug-o-war contest open to teams representative of districts within the valley. Prizes for these are the attractive regatta shields, which were held during the past year by Creston, the local ladies and gents teams both being successful last year.

Motor boat excurtions at reasonable rates are offered throughout the afternoon, and the big dance at Boswell Memorial Hall provides a fitting close for the great day.

High School Promotions

The following pass lists have been issued for Creston High School in Grades 9 and 10. The lists for those who have passed in the upper two grades will not be released until August. Names in order of merit:

Boswell Couple Married

A marriage of much interest at Boswell was solemnized at Trinity United Church manse, Creston, at high noon, Friday, when Rev. Andrew Walker united in holy wedlock Miss Grace Ellen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mackie, with William McF. Milligan, all of Boswell. The newlyweds left immediately after the ceremony on a wedding trip to Spokane and points south of the line, before taking up housekeeping in Boswell.

Jack Smith is busy with his gasoline launch towing booms from the Winlaw sawmill near the mission to the mill at Wynndel. He is using the gas boat which he purchased at Moyie some weeks ago and had hauled in by truck.

Dick Smith and son, Jack, along with Sandy Taylor and George Leadbetter of Erickson were on a fishing party at Summit Creek at the weekend having excellent luck the two days they were out.

R. Alderson of Turner Valley, with a party of friends from Alberta, spent the weekend at the Alderson ranch here.

Orchardists report quite a heavy drop in the McIntosh Red which will lighten the work of thinning that variety. All the other apples, however, will need considerable lightening of the load the trees are now carrying.

The creation of this area into a pound district begins to look likely. Funds are now being collected to defray the expense of getting the district organized.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Hopewell home of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, from which their first born son was kidnapped in March, 1932, will become a children's welfare centre.

Lest slumbering citizens of Westmount, Quebec, be disturbed some night, the aldermen, meeting in council, decided to spend $70 to provide mufflers for their fire engines.

Recently completed at a cost of more than $1,000,000, arts and science building of University of Manitoba may be abandoned as a temporary economy measure, it is stated.

Foreign missionaries, including a number of Americans, in northeast Szechwa province, western China, have been forced to evacuate their stations as the result of incursions of Chinese Communists and Shenshi.

Miss Jean Barnes, a cowgirl of Butte, Mont., took 68 days to ride a horse 1,700 miles to the world's fair. She has arranged to trade the horse for an aeroplane ride home. It will take about 12½ hours.

In a statement urging recognition of Russia, Senator Norris (R., Neb.) said he was reliably informed the Soviet wanted to buy from America $10,000,000 of meat products, 1,000,000 bales of cotton and $400,000,000 worth of machinery.

Great Britain has agreed to take 50,000 hogs a week from Canada for the next five years providing we can produce the right kind of hogs, Hon. D. G. McKenzie told delegates to the annual convention in Brandon of the Western Manitoba Board of Trade.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Commons, will visit Alberta during August, according to announcement at Calgary by N. S. Lambert, Ottawa, secretary of the Liberal National Association.

President Eamon de Valera told thousands of his countrymen the Irish Free State would not wait for agreements from the world economic conference, but would proceed with its own plans for economic improvement.

Making the trip in the shortest time on record, Constable Norris Yates, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, "mushed" the 425 miles between Chesterfield Inlet and Churchill in seven days on one of his trips "out" for mail.

Incurable Patients

Old Question Of Euthanasia Discussed By American Physicians

Delegates attending the American Institute of Homeopaths heard two doctors debate the question:

"Should physicians be given the legal right to dispose of incurable patients?"

Speaking in favor of euthanasia or medico-legal death, Dr. W. A. Guild of Chicago cited the case of a child monstrosity saved from death at birth after six weeks of care.

He suggested a special court of humanitarians to hear and grant pleas of persons who wish to die. This idea was opposed by Dr. Alonzo C. Tenney, also of Chicago, who said legalized euthanasia would be abused.

Many Musicians Took Part

Largest Military Band Played At Aldershot Tattoo

The largest military band in the world took part in the tattoo held recently at Aldershot. It was part of the great army pageant played by 5,000 soldier actors in the Rushmoor Valley before an audience of 50,000 children who came to Aldershot from London and all parts of the home counties. An army officer who knew all the behind-the-scenes secrets of the tattoo remarked: "There is nothing to touch that living carpet of massed bands. There are 41 bands, 17 bandmasters, 14 drum-majors, including the tallest in the British army, who stands six feet two inches in his bonnet—altogether 849 musicians."

During the recent strike of seamen in New Zealand inter-island mail was delivered by aeroplane.

Pioneer Steamship Company

Cunard Line Celebrates 93rd Anniversary Of Its Inception

This year the Cunard Line will celebrate its 93rd anniversary by sending the "Aquitania" to Halifax, Nova Scotia, the first port touched by a Cunard ship in America in the first year of its trans-Atlantic life, in 1840. The occasion will feature a week-end cruise to the Nova Scotian port.

The Cunard Line's birthday, like that of the United States, falls on the Fourth of July, the first ship of the Line, the "Britannia," leaving Liverpool, England, on that date in 1840, and calling at Halifax and Boston 93 years ago.

The Cunard Line is the oldest trans-Atlantic steamship company—in fact, the first to operate across the Atlantic on a regular schedule. Previous to the regular sailings of the "Britannia," other steamships had crossed the ocean, but their voyages were entirely in the line of experiments. The Cunard Line started to run on a weekly schedule in 1840.

The first ship to cross the ocean was the "Savannah," built in New York City. She sailed from the Georgia city for which she was named, on May 25th, 1819, arriving in Livrpool on June 29th, 35 days later. She did not rely solely upon her paddle-wheels; in fact, she trusted more to her sails, being under steam for less than 100 hours.

Twelve years later, the first "Royal William" made the entire trans-Atlantic voyage under steam.

No further steam venture was made until April 4th, 1838, when the "Sirius" left London, England, for New York with 94 passengers aboard. She was followed from Bristol four days later by the "Great Western," the first steam vessel specially built for the Atlantic passage. The "Great Western" made the trip in 15 days, two days less than the "Sirius," and arrived with 200 tons of coal left in her bunkers. The result was regarded as wonderful.

Samuel Cunard was a close observer of all these happenings. Living at the time in Halifax, he had acquired several sailing vessels, in which he carried mail between Newfoundland, Boston and Bermuda.

During the year 1838 the British Government had sent out circulars inviting bids for a faster and more reliable means of transit for postal matter by steam vessels. One of these circulars found its way into the hands of Mr. Cunard (later Sir Samuel) and he concluded that here was his golden opportunity.

Unable to raise necessary capital in Halifax, Mr. Cunard sailed for England. He was now 50 years old. He received but little sympathy in London, but as he had a letter of introduction to Robert Napier, a shipbuilder on the Clyde, he went on to Glasgow. Mr. Napier welcomed Mr. Cunard and introduced him to the two ablest shipping men in Great Britain—George Burns of Glasgow, Scotland, and David MacIver, of Liverpool, England. Between these three men £270,000 capital was subscribed and Mr. Cunard was in a position to submit a tender for the conveyance of mails once every two weeks between Liverpool, Halifax, and Boston.

This tender was lower than that made by the owners of the "Great Western," Mr. Cunard's principal rivals, was accepted and a contract for seven years was let to the North American Steam Packet Company, the original name of the Cunard Line.

To carry on this trade, plans for four steamers, the "Britannia," "Columbia," and "Caledonia," were drawn up and accepted during 1839, and the ships were launched early the next year, 1840.

The "Britannia," with 64 passengers, started on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to Boston on July 4th, 1840, and arrived in Boston 14 days and 8 hours later, including a stop at Halifax, considered at the time a rapid passage.

The mail service grew to such an extent that the "Hibernia" was added in 1843, and the "Cambria" in 1845.

In 1847, when the company's first mail contract had expired a new contract was entered into with the Cunard Line and provided for weekly sailings from Liverpool to New York and Boston.

More ships followed, all being built of wood, but with no radical departure from the "Britannia" until the year 1852, when the iron screw steamer "Australia" and three sister ships were built.

The company's first steel liner was the "Servia," built in 1881. She was the first Cunarder to be fitted with electricity. She was superbly fitted for those days and provided accommodation for 480 cabin and 750 third class passengers.

The "Campania" and "Lucania," built in 1892, were among the first big ships, registering 13,000 tons. Both were fast, the "Lucania" making the westward crossing from Queenstown in five days, seven hours, and twenty-three minutes. It was on this ship that Marconi experimented with and first introduced wireless telegraphy.

New quadruple propellers speed the Cunard Line's big three—the "Berengaria," "Aquitania," and "Mauretania,"—through the seas.

Thus the history of the Cunard Line has to a great extent been the history of shipping, beginning with wooden side-wheelers, followed by the iron ship, the single screw, the steel ship, then twin, triple and quadruple screws, and all built and propelled in the interest of the speedy transportation of mails between Great Britain and America.

Samuel Cunard was knighted in 1859 because of his outstanding services in the Crimean War He died in London, England, in 1864, in his 78th year.

Thief Had Expensive Tastes

Took Only Valuable Articles From New York Tobacco Shop

A slender thief with an expensive taste in smokers' equipment made his way through two transoms and into the retail tobacco shop of Alfred Dunhill, of London, Inc., 514 Fifth Avenue, New York, where he looted thirty show-cases and carried off jewelry, cigar lighters, clocks and pipes valued at nearly $25,000. There were two noteworthy things about the intruder, he was small and agile enough to pass through a pair of apertures no more than twelve inches high. He was discerning enough to ignore articles of silver. Nearly all the cigarette and vanity cases he selected were gold, and he took pipes only from the Grade A rack, where prices range from $50 to $65.

Conference Helped Trade

Ottawa Imperial Conference trade agreements have resulted in an increase of more than $10,000,000 in Canada's exports to the United Kingdom during 1932, according to Hon. H. H. Stevens, Dominion Minister of Trade and Commerce. This had occurred, he added, while trade all over the world showed very marked declines.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 9

CALEB

Golden Text: "Blessed is the man that maketh Jehovah his trust." — Psalm 40:4.

Lesson: Numbers 13; Joshua 14.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 121.

Explanations and Comments

The Division Of Canaan, verses 1-5. The land of Canaan was divided among the twelve tribes whose founders were the two sons of Joseph (Ephraim and Manasseh) and the other sons of Jacob, Levi excepted. The tribe of Levi was set apart for the services of the priesthood. "This is Judah's; this is Simeon's; and this is Benjamin's," they said, even while the Amorites, the Jebusites, and the Hittites were in open possession! The division made was the announcement in faith of certain high ideals which under God's guidance they proposed to realize by the long and patient struggle which followed."

"Alas for the dull-eyed, humdrum people whose aspirations never get a rod in advance of their present achievements! Unless we perpetually see visions and dream dreams, we shall never have the moral vigor, the spiritual insight for winning a land of promise. It is what we see by the eye of faith and confidently wait for that kindles our hearts to undertake the high tasks of life."—C. R. Brown.

Caleb's Claim, verses 6-12.—Caleb came to Joshua with a claim in which he was supported by the rest of the tribe of Judah. Caleb is called here the Kenizzite, a name given the Edomite tribe in Genesis 15:19; but Caleb's younger brother, Othniel, who after Joshua became the first of the Judges, is called "the son of Kenaz," and it may have been from this name of Kenaz, a member of the tribe of Judah, that the word Kenizzite was derived. Caleb reminded Joshua of the promise made him when he returned to Kadesh-Barnea with the other spies, when he had had the courage of his convictions, and had brought back a sincere report urging the immediate conquest of Canaan. To that record of courageous faithfulness he could now add that he had wholly followed Jehovah his God.

You wish to have pleasant memories of the past; are you sowing pleasant memories now? Just as surely as health in old age depends in part on the reserve strength laid by in youth, and wisdom in old age depends on the knowledge and experience stored up in the past, so does peace of mind in old age depend on records engraved on the memory during youth and manhood. Paul looked back over his life and said: "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith." And then he looked forward and said, "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

One-Seventh Of a Cent a Mile On Coal Shipped From Saskatchewan Lignite Fields

Subsidy of one-seventh of a cent a mile on coal shipped from Saskatchewan lignite fields to points in Manitoba and as far east as Sioux Lookout, has been made effective by federal order-in-council.

Word of the passage of the order-in-council providing for a subsidy of one-seventh of a cent a mile, but not to exceed in any case a total of 40 cents a ton was received recently by officials of the Saskatchewan department of railways, labor and industries.

The freight concession will apply only on lignite coal shipped out of Saskatchewan to Manitoba and western Ontario points for industrial purposes only, and will not apply to anything under carload lots.

The concession will be accorded only to mines established before Decembr, 1931.

The rate concession will place Saskatchewan mines in a favored position in competition with coal from American mining fields for distribution in Manitoba.

The order-in-council provides for the freight concession being actually paid to the railways by the government, the adjustment to be made direct to the mine operators.

Ban On Socialists

Germany's Social Democratic Party Has Ceased to Exist

Germany's Social Democratic party, once the leader of Socialists the world over and the winner of the 1918 revolution, has ceased to exist as a legal political organization.

Chancellor Hitler's heavy hand, which first fell upon the Communists, has now descended upon the party which long was the leading one and was regarded as an impregnable bulwark of the post-war republic.

All speeches in recent days by Nazi leaders indicate the Hitler movement intends to claim 100 per cent. power in Germany.

A serious blow was dealt to department and chain stores in an order issued by Chancellor Hitler's commissar for business, Otta Wagener.

Department and chain stores were forbidden to maintain barber and beauty shops, photographic studios, bakeries, sausage factories, customs tailoring deartments, watch repair and optical shoes, automobile and bicycle repair shops, circulating libraries, banking and money exchange offices and furniture factories.

Secret police suspended for one week the National Deustache Zeitung, one of whose editors is a nephew of Dr. Hugenberg.

Mechanism Of the Ear

Little Is Known As To How Ear Sound Is Conveyed To the Brain

The mechanism of the human ear has been known during long ages, but the manner in which it conveys definite information to the brain is another matter. The world is still far from a final pronouncement, however learnedly one may speak of sound-waves striking upon the drum of the ear and establishing a vibration which is communicated to the brain by a row of white threads attached to a series of wonderfully-articulated bones. That the threads, like the aerials which catch the flutterings of the ether bearing sounds across the oceans, and give them rebirth exactly as they were born thousands of miles away, to the last squeak of the clarionet or chirp of the piccolo; translate to human brains the meaning conveyed by the air vibrations which lap against the ear-drum or tympanum does not greatly help. A writer says: "We call the threads nerves, but how the tympanum adapts itself by contraction and relaxation to the different pitch of sound without our will intervening we have no idea. We know only that it does."

What is this? Prosperity turning the corner? A new Broadway cafeteria in New York announces that the floors in its windows will be paved with silver dollars. Light-fingered gentry need not come around. The coins will be cemented hard and fast.

"But sir," he led on, "when I came back from the Alooska patrol, he wouldn't co-operate with me then. He didn't seem much interested, I don't think, in getting those bandits."

"Not much interested?" Haskell echoed, with a great show of astonishment. "Sir, I wanted him to make a patrol to the Inconnu River. But he was in a temper. He wouldn't even listen to my suggestion."

A wild elation surged through Alan. One more step and Haskell was doomed! He fought down his elation and fidgeted uneasily in his chair.

Williamson bore down on him hard. "Baker, answer that charge! Haskell suggested a patrol to the Inconnu. In my opinion that was a splendid suggestion. It was almost the only hope of capturing those criminals. You wouldn't listen to him. How, then, can you assert you were forced to buy out?"

"He didn't . . . It wasn't him that made that suggestion," Alan stammered weakly. "I think—I believe I made that suggestion myself. But he wouldn't let me go."

"That's a lie!" Haskell pounced upon him. "I suggested it. I begged him to make that patrol."

Alan looked at Haskell. "You suggested that Inconnu patrol? It was your idea?"

Haskell nodded. "I did. Whipple can witness it." He was smiling openly in triumph.

All Alan's hesitation dropped away from him. There was no longer need to dissimulate. He turned to Williamson. "You heard him. You heard what he said. He told you he suggested that Inconnu trip. He just repeated it and he said Whipple was witness. Don't let him back out of it now."

"I don't have to back out of anything," Haskell snapped. He was staring in sudden uneasiness at Baker.

"Yes, I heard him," Williamson answered. "What about it?"

Alan rose slowly to his feet, pulling himself up to his full lanky and powerful height. In that moment when he realized Haskell was caught in the deadly trap, his mind whipped back to Joyce's home on the Alooska, to Joyce's room where he had lain through weary hours of doubt and pain, and where he and she had carefully plotted this trap. He felt a wordless tender gratitude to Joyce; this stratagem was hers more than his; her quick brain had been the first to see its crushing possibilities.

"Inspector, you say you asked me to lead that Inconnu detail. You say you suggested it. You say it occurred to you that the bandits would escape by that river. I say you are a liar! I propose to prove you're a liar."

He paused a moment, then raised his right hand and pointed at the wall chart behind Haskell's desk.

"The Inconnu River is not shown on that map of yours, inspector. You tried to find out from that Indian, Little Otter, where the river is. You didn't know. You don't know now. How could you suggest sending a patrol to a river when you haven't the slightest knowledge of its location? Step up there to that chart, you, and show us the Inconnu!"

Haskell sprang to his feet, snarling at Alan. "I don't take orders from you!" He was fighting like a trapped wolf. His panic, his livid face, betrayed him.

"Then consider it an order from me!" Williamson commanded. "Show me where the Inconnu is!"

Haskell did not stir. His impregnable defense had crumbled in one spot; the sea was rushing in uon him. . . .

He heard Williamson thundering: "I say, answer Baker's question! How could you suggest a patrol to a river that you know nothing about?"

Haskell did not answer. Caught, trapped. . . . He had gone too far, he had overplayed. . . . . He heard Larry Younge's savage mocking laugh; heard Bill Hardsock chuckling, "Tried to steal Alan's thunder, and got struck by 't!" . . . Williamson's angry erect figure became a blur. . . Across the desk he saw Alan Baker's face in a sort of haze, not smiling at him, not mocking, but hard, pitiless. . . . . The man had beaten him, had taken away the girl he loved—this man whom he hated so fiercely that once he had tried to kill him.

Out of the haze he heard Baker's voice, "Liar! Smoother!" . . . Something snapped within, and his last vestige of self-control was swept away. A maddened anger shook him, blinded him. In a fury he suddenly drew back and swung and smashed a fist against that hated face, as though trying to blot it out.

The blow unsteadied Baker for a moment. He stepped back. Williamson tried to interpose. Bill sprang up and leaped across the room to jump between them. But Haskell had swung again. Alan flung up his left arm to protect himself. A grimace of pain jigged across his face as the blow fell upon his wound. He did not step away that time. . . . For an instant his eyes measured distance. . . His right arm went back, swung, and his hard fist caught Haskell under the jaw, a single smashing blow that dazed him and sent him reeling against the wall.

When Bill and Pedneault helped Haskell to his chair and he sat down, groggy and white of face, Williamson bade the two:

"Take Constable Younge and get out. Baker, stay here; I want you here."

Vaguely Haskell realized that the superintendent was ordering the men away so that they might not witness the humiliation of an officer. He had lost. The avalanche had crashed down upon him. Baker had come triumphant through this hour.

But in those moments of his crushing defeat, while Williamson was trying to get the men out of the cabin, Haskell felt the first small breath of a strange relief, like a cool wind across his face. He had become invoved in lies; had been sucked deeper and deeper into a morass of falsehoods and perfidy. He was free of all that now. In these last weeks there had been times—when he looked upon Larry Younge, when he thought of Baker's great-hearted adventure, when the news came of Dave MacMillan's suicide—that his conscience had revolted and he had loathe himself. He felt as though by making a clean breast of everything to Williamson, he would be coming out of a dark and noisome place into the sunshine again.

Only the old aching madness toward Elizabeth Spaulding would not down, but rose to torture him.

CHAPTER XIII.

By the Lightning Flash

At Alan's cabin late that evening, Bill was sitting on the edge of the cot, head in hands, plunged into dejected thoughts. He was in such a blue funk that he neither heard nor cared what Alan and Buzzard were talking about.

An hour ago, by sheer accident, he had discovered that he himself was now officially in charge here at Endurance. Walking past Haskell's cabin in the twilight, he had caught a few angry sentences from Williamson:

"If I had the entire say-so, Haskell, you'd go out of the Mounted faster than you came in. You're suspended. Hardsock will be given command here till I see what Baker is going to do. You don't deserve a chance to walk straight, but I'll give you one rather than kick up a row over you. There's a rook detachment down on the Border that's about your fit. I'm going to transfer you there, and I'll try not to laugh when I see men saluting you."

To be in command of the detachment was small solace to Bill. It simply meant more work, more responsibility, without Alan's judgment and leadership to lean on.

In the shaft of light streaming from the cabin door a girl's figure appeared. Bill straightened up suddenly, recognizing Elizabeth. Always a bit afraid of the supercilious girl, Bill had no desire to linger and find out her trouble. Nudging Buzzard, he whispered:

"She wants to talk with Alan. We'd better get out."

As Elizabeth came across to the library nook in the full candle glow, Alan saw she was angry, and instantly guessed the cause of it. She had heard . . . She was going to fling reproaches at him, perhaps throw an ultimatum into his face.

With no word about his long patrol or the wounds he had brought away from it, Elizabeth demanded:

"Is it true—what I've heard—about that reward money? You're not going to accept any of it?"

Alan was shocked that in her first breath she should speak of money. He said rather tersely:

"That's not altogether true. I'm taking enough to buy the MacMillan trading post for Larry; and I have to pay for those things Buzzard and I stole in Edmonton. But I'm not keeping any of it otherwise."

"Are you crazy—to throw away more than you've made in all the years you've been stationed here in this backwoods? Why did you go on that patrol and waste all these weeks?"

"Good Lord, have you been thinking I did it for the money? Is money the only thing in the world you ever think about." He tried to curb his anger and speak quietly. "Elizabeth, your brother Curt went on a patrol, he gave his very life, because—because . . . . You may not understand why, but God knows it wasn't for money."

"Then you intend to throw away ten thousand dollars?"

"If you want to put it like that, yes. I couldn't associate with myself if I'd accept one red cent of it."

In silence they looked at one another, Elizabeth angry and accusing, Alan firm, unyielding. After a moment, realizing she had run up against granite in Alan Baker on this question, she turned to another.

"There's something else I want an understanding about. Mrs. Drummond told me you intend to take care of Jim Montgomery's girl. What makes you feel you're responsible? Why on earth . . . Just because you were acquainted with that child's father—"

Alan sharply interrupted her. "Elizabeth, let me point out something to you. It may be cruel and ungenerous of me, but it's got to be said. When Curt was taken, it fell to me to look out for you. You were a grown woman; you had chances of employment; you had other advantages. But I assumed responsibility. Please, now. I'm not throwing it up to you; I did it freely and would've done more if I'd been able.

Food From Many Countries

Delegates To World Economic Conference Have Special Restaurant

Between the plenary session speeches and the committee meetings, the delegates to the Economic Conference foregather in a special restaurant stocked with nearly all foods and liquids consumed in any part of the world.

There is much fraternizing as representatives of the various countries sample each other's favorite national foods—caviar, sandwiches and vodka, Chinese chicken, five kinds of German sausages, meat sauce from Japan and so on.

Beverages available run the entire range of wines, beers, whiskies, gins, brandies and liqueurs from a dozen countries, including Arack from Palestine, which bar attendants describe as being "popular among those persons who try anything once."

One waitress boasts of an ability to say "what's your order?" in three languages.

The delegates ride from their hotels to the Conference hall in big cars decorated with small national flags.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

SANCTUARY

To cross your threshold is to gain
A mood that waits me only there,
For in that chamber I attain
To peace like that which follows prayer.

How sweet, to know that where you dwell
No evil thing can find its way;
That in your presence all is well,
Serene and beautiful as day.

To cross your threshold is to find
How futile are tempestuous ways;
Your look, compassionate and kind,
Can touch with light life's darkest days.

To cross your threshold is to leave
Outside all bitterness and care;
On sacred ground how can one grieve?
What troubles can assail one there?

Your faith and trust God's own threads are,
As strongly shining as the sun;
With no dropped stitch of doubt to mar
The fabric which your years have spun.

Grow Red Cotton

Cotton Patches In Southern States Have Turned Complexion

The old description of "fields of snowy white" does not hold good any more for cotton-patches of south Mississippi have gone red and changed the complexion of the land.

Planters are growing red cotton now because some experts say the red variety has a longer staple and can resist weevil better than its green cousin.

The stalks and leaves are a deep red and the fields look like lakes of blood. The blooms are pink and the cotton itself, of course, is white. The contrast is startling.

Followed Instructions

The roadmaster, riding along on the train, sent a telegram to the section forman which read as follows: "Grass and weed accumulated around bridge 365-M. Burn."

In a short time the roamaster received a telegram from the section foreman: "Bridge 365-M. burned."

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God in all that thou puttest thy hands to do."—Deuteronomy 12: 18.

"Be ye thankful in all things." —Colossians 3:15.

Thou who hast given so much to me
Give one thing more, a grateful heart;
Not thankful when it pleaseth me,
As if thy blessings had spare days;
But such a heart whose pulse may be
Thy praise.—G. Herbert.

If any one would tell you the shortest and surest way to all happiness and all perfection, he must tell you to make it a rule to yourself to thank and praise God for everything that happens to you. For it is certain that whatever seeming calamity happens to you, if you thank God for it you may turn it into a blessing. Could you therefore work miracles you could not do more for yourself than by this thankful spirit, for it heals with a word and turns all it touches into happiness.—William Law.

Fear Complex Is Bad

Demand Stops When People Are Afraid To Spend

With one-fifth of our working population unemployed, it is no longer possible to believe that jobs are part of the natural order of things. The result is that fear has become the dominant emotion of contemporary America—fear of losing one's job. Employees today are satisfied to keep what they have; they are grateful for very little. This complex is bad for everyone. It degrades the employee and makes him an insensate automaton. It kills both ambition and desire. It debases standards of living. And from the employer's point of view it is equally disastrous. Where there is no desire, there is no demand. People who desire nothing buy nothing.—Atlantic Monthly.

Greater Business Activity

Bank Debits In May Reach Highest Point In Two Years

Reflecting greater speculative and business activity, financial transfers in the form of bank debits in May reached the highest point since November, 1931.

The May figures stood at $2,649,600,000 compared with $1,876,800,000 in the preceding month, a gain of 25 per cent. after seasonal adjustment.

Gains were recorded in Regina, Calgary and Medicine Hat, in addition to the marked increase in Winnipeg. The net result in the prairie provinces was a gain of 65.2 per cent. The gain in British Columbia was 0.7 per cent. Vancouver showing an increase of 4.8 per cent.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Local Power Matters

Editor Review:

Sir,—The report in one of your recent issues of the special meeting of the Board of Trade, called at the instigation of L. A. Camp-Campbell, while a faithful synopsis of what transpired, is yet unsatisfying, and I ask the freedom of your columns to fill the void.

Mr. Campbell's statements were both various and startling, embracing many things from a charge of malfeasance against an ex-minister of the crown and obstructive tactics from certain unknown citizens of the Valley, to a threat or declaration that the rights and privileges of his company to distribute power and light throughout the municipal area, to which they lay claim, were not to be denied.

One may of course marvel in silence at the utter presumption and sheer audacity of the man who will seek to address a board in such terms. It takes two to make a deal, even a crooked one, and as the presiding officer of the Creston Power, Light & Telephone Co., Ltd., at the time the unrecorded waters of Goar River were placed into reserve by the then minister of lands, I deny categorically that there was anything irregular or even unsavory in either the application for or the granting of the said reserve, and I am ready at any time or place within the village to meet Mr. Campbell, and establish my assertion. As to those other persons, doubtless members of the board, of identity unknown, whose honesty of purpose is so distressing to Mr. Campbell, they may speak for themselves or remain dismissed as the product of an imagination unworthy of the mind which gave it birth.

Now just how ready were the West Kootenay Company on December 6th, 1928, to proceed with the development and use of waters which were promulgated into reserve fifteen days later? Mr. Campbell makes much of having proceeded to the fourth step under the Water Act by this time, as though thereby the ex-minister's culpability were the greater, whereas actually such steps are merely nominal and may be completed ten days after a filing. In October, 1932, Mr. Campbell and party met the special committee of the board and others. Those who were present will remember how we were then gloomed to the belief that a shutdown at Trail and Kimberley of the operations of the Consolidated on which we were told the valley totally depended, was something more than a mere possibility, with the inference writ large in the discourse that our citizens far from agitating hydro-electric development would do well to look for a meal ticket. At that time the West Kootenay did not know if they would develop Goat River or not; whether in the event of proceeding such would be major or minor, whether they would buy out opposition interests or sell their own; in short whether they were coming with eclat or going with regret.

But now how different. Mr. Campbell would have us believe that the West Kootenay has been rearin' to go since December, 1928, while anyone who knows anything at all of the situation knows that, on the contrary, events in the valley have developed far too fast for their comfort, and that they would have been best suited by far had some local source of supply favorable to their interests served the village until their plans, which doubtless embrace more than a mere "blasting their way through" within that area and a peaceful distribution without it, were fully developed altogether.

If Mr. Campbell has difficulties let him measure up to them squarely and equitably and not call the board of trade together to deliver a lecture on business ethics, to discourse the machinations of an ex-minister and others unknown, and finally to declare that willy nilly his company would flout local authority with its pledges to others, using in justification as if like Caesar's wife he was above suspicion, an agreement which an honourable man worn out by his waverings from month to month, at last left to successors to receive and consider.

Canada And Its Foreign Born

Because of the many uninformed and therefore inaccurate statements frequently heard to the effect that the population of the three prairie provinces of Canada are largely of foreign birth, a recent census bulletin issued from Ottawa, and based on the last census (1931), is of interest and value.

It is revealed that out of a total population of 2,353,529 in the three provinces, 1,808,574 are of British birth, and 544,955 of foreign birth, and of those born under the British flag no less than 1,492,657 were born in Canada.

But, it is frequently argued, these figures do not give a true picture of the racial division of our Western population inasmuch as many of those born in Canada were born of parents who themselves were foreign born and their children, although born in Canada are, to all intents and purposes, the same as if born in foreign lands. While in many cases, probably most cases, this assumption is not a sound one, the census bulletin recently issued is of particular value in that it classifies the parentage of the entire population.

It is shown that the population of the three Western provinces having both parents born in Canada numbers 550,456; having both parents British born outside of Canada 517,403; having one parent Canadian born and the other British born 145,176. That is, 1,213,035 or more than one-half of the total population are at least second generation Canadian or British born. To these may be added another 191,509 where one parent is either Canadian born or British born, while the other is foreign born.

Contrasted with this is the population born of parents both of whom were foreign born. Their number for the three provinces is 945,725. Subtracting, therefore, the total foreign born of 544,955 from this figure, we find that the number born under the British flag, and mainly in Canada, of foreign born parents is only 400,770. These are first generation Canadians.

The figures are not only interesting but reassuring to those who are anxious that Canadian and British blood, customs and ideals shall predominate in this land. Another reassuring and gratifying fact is indicated by the figures that 191,509 of the population in these three provinces are the offspring of marriages contracted between Canadian born or British born men and women on the one hand with foreign born on the other hand. This inter-marriage between the races is bringing about the development of a distinctly Western type of Canadian, and one that gives promise of being a very fine type, physically strong, mentally alert, uniting in themselves the Anglo-Saxon love of liberty, respect for law and authority, capable in government, with the love of music, poetry, art, and handicrafts which characterizes the peoples of continental Europe.

Coincident with the publication of this recent census bulletin, Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State at Ottawa, issued a warning to judges within whose jurisdiction falls the duty of naturalization of aliens to exercise care in the performance of such duties. He drew attention to the danger of certain malcontents applying for naturalization solely in order to protect themselves from the danger of deportation, or, in other words, seeking Canadian citizenship not out of love for Canada, or to advance Canadian interests, but in order to secure for themselves greater freedom in undermining Canadian laws and institutions.

And a Saskatchewan judge, commenting on the same subject, is reported in the daily press as urging the Federal Government to see to it that applicants for naturalization are supplied with literature which will enable them to learn something about Canada. Some assistance, he said, should be given to those who wish to become Canadian citizens.

Canada has probably been somewhat careless in the freedom with which citizenship has been conferred upon alien residents in the past, and negligent of its duty to these people. All too frequently naturalization has been obtained solely in order that patent to homestead lands could be secured. Other thousands have taken out citizenship papers in order that they may vote, but possibly without any very intelligent idea of what the duties of true Canadian citizenship really involve.

Five years residence in Canada will not in itself make a Canadian citizen. Ability to read and to write does not in itself constitute intelligent citizenshp. The mere possession of naturalization papers, while it does make a man or woman a citizen in the eyes of the law, does not necessarily make such person a citizen of Canada in the true meaning of the word "citizen."

It should be a matter of national policy to inculcate right ideas and high ideals in the minds of all newly created citizens. To that end it would seem that something more is required than so many years residence and the taking of the oath of allegiance on the one hand, and the handing over of a piece of official paper by the Government on the other hand. There should be some formal ceremony at which the vital significance of becoming a citizen of Canada would be emphasized.

We believe these new citizens would themselves welcome some such procedure. The vast majority of them have acquired a real love for Canada. They adopted it as home, and desire to make it that not only for themselves but for their descendants. They are anxious to serve Canada, to make it better and grander. They would like advice, inspiration and guidance. The State should provide it.

Any Looseness of the Bowels Is Always Dangerous

When the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, summer complaint and other bowel troubles set in, immediate attention should be given and the discharges checked before they become serious.

To check these unnatural discharges there is a remedy in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 88 years. It is rapid, reliable and effective in its action. A few doses is generally all that is required to give relief.

Japan's Pearl Crop

Planting Of 40,000 Acres Of Waters Largest In Years

The pearl plantings in Japan this year, in contrast to most crops, will be the largest in years. More than 40,000 acres of quiet waters have been sown with more than 3,000,000 pearl oysters, and thousands of people are employed. The pearl crop being planted now will not be harvestd for seven years.

Millions of seed pearls or tiny bits of mother of pearl, are skilfully inserted into living oysters for the pearl crop. The oysters slowly proceed to cover these irritants with a secretion which transforms them into pearls. The oysters are placed in steel cages and suspended a few feet above the floor of the sea from great rafts. Twice a year they are brought to the surface, cleaned and treated, to prevent disease. Some 60 per cent. of the oysters bear fruit, but only about five per cent. are marketable.

The annual crop is valued at several million dolars.

Although she has lost but 7 lbs. of her overweight, this woman finds that 7 lbs. has made a remarkable difference to her. There can certainly be nothing wrong with a reducing treatment that brings such increased energy and vigor.

Her letter reads:—"I am 53 years old and my height is 5 ft. Last year I weighed 154 lbs. For six months I have been taking a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts, making no change in my diet. Now I am less round the hips, and only weigh 147 lbs. dressed. But I feel lighter and can now run upstairs, which before used to make me gasp for breath. Everyone says how well and fit I look, as I am in a store and get no walking exercise at all. The results may not be startling, but the fact remains that I feel much better than of late years—not so heavy—and I now enjoy dancing."—(Miss) J. H.

May Be Hereditary

Doctor Finds Some Eskimos Are Getting Back Extra Rib

The male of the species, among the Eskimos at least, seems at last to be getting back that extra rib that Adam is said to have lost when Eve was created. Dr. T. D. Stewart, the Smithsonian Institution announced, has found that the "lost rib" is coming back among some Eskimos. They have 25 ribs instead of the customary 24. Return of the 25th rib apparently indicates that evolution is still at work in the human race, the institution said. The 25th rib is giving more chest and abdomen space to individuals in which it appears. The extra rib may be hereditary. Some indication of this is seen in the fact that practically all of the 25th ribs are found among males and most of them grow among Eskimos living north of the Yukon River. Dr. Stewart has found the extra ribs in about 12 per cent of 200 Eskimo skeletons from Alaska that he has examined.

Used To Thunderstorms

So Common In Java People Do Not Notice Them

In Java thunderstorms are so common no one takes any notice of them. Many hundreds of thunderstorms, often sevetre ones, are experienced in the rainy season. For several months the sound of more or less distant thunder scarcely ever ceases, and it is only when there is a terrific crash right overhead that folks are conscious of the sound. In fact, the people of Java are so used to hearing thunder for a good part of the year that only when the storms cease do they realize that they have been living in a perpetual uproar.

Declares War On Slums

Great Britain Starts Five-Year Drive Against Hotbeds Of Disease

Great Britain has declared a five-year war to the finish on her slums.

Tumbledown alley dwellings, basement caves and insanitary "backto-backs"—hotbeds of tuberculosis, rickets, anemia and other diseases—are slated to be wiped out.

The government's move against the plague spots as motivated by the prevailing low building costs and low rates of interest on money, together with a desire to ease the pinch of unemployment.

To insure immediate action the minister of health has called upon all housing authorities in England and Wales to submit by Sept. 30 a series of programs drawn on the basis of clearing all such areas by 1938.

Each program is to include a list of the areas in each locality, the number of houses to be demolished, the nuber of inhabitants affected ,a list of areas where improvement by reconditioning is necessary and time tables for complete clearance, improvement and rehousing of the displaced dwellers.

"The time limit is the very essence of this program," says Sir Edward Hilton Young, Minister of Health. "The time limit must, of course, give reasonable time for the work, but it must be fixed, and fixed absolutely."

No one knows the complete extent of the slum problem in the land, though the estimate generally given is that 1,000,000 dwellings must go deadline for the programs from every area.

An up-to-date picture, however, will be available by Sept. 30, the deadline for the program from every area.

The great mass of the slum dwellings is more than a century old, harking back to the era of quick industrialization of the country when houses sprang up like mushrooms around the factories.

But the problem is not limited to the cities, unhealthful conditions flourish in many villages and these, too, are on the books for destruction.

Among cities, the slum evil is general and is regarded as being at its worst in the industrial and mining areas. Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Bristol, Hull, Sheffield and scores of other cities have sordid, insanitary sections.

London, because of the great population crammed into a relatively small area, presents a problem of its own and it is believed that the five-year grace period may have to be lengthened for abolition of the sore spots.

In the wake of the government's determination on action, a lively campaign is being pursued by the press to keep the spirit for wholesale and immediate reform at high pitch. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York have penned vigorous appeals and the Prince of Wales who knows great areas of the slums by periodic visits, has voiced the support of the royal family.

Combatting Disease

Death Rate From Diphtheria Is Lowered In Manitoba

Ten years ago the diphtheria death rate in Manitoba was 21.5 per 100,000, which meant that 150 children lost their lives in this province every year from this preventable disease. In 1923 immunization was started in Winnipeg, with the result that by 1929 the death rate for the whole province had been brought down to 10.3. In that year immunization was extended to parts of rural Manitoba, resulting in a further reduction of death rate to 5.2. In rural Manitoba since 1930 there have been 63 deaths in unimmunized territory and only 13 deaths in the much larger population of the immunized territory. There have been no deaths among immunized persons.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Wages Being Increased

New Westminster Lumber Mill Also Employing More Men

An increase of 10 per cent. in wages, affecting 750 men, has gone into effect at the Fraser Mills plant of the Western Lumber Co., Ltd., New Westminster, B.C.

The increase follows a better demand for lumber and an increase in price. The Fraser Mills plant is turning out a quarter of a million feet of lumber daily and the shingle mill is working double shift. Employment at the plant has increased from about 450 men to 750 since last winter.

While the bulk of lumber shipments are still going by ship cargo, the demand for rail shipments is increasing.

A Comfortable Margin

Population Of New York Nearly Million Behind London

The population of New York City according to a census by the New York Merchants' Association is now 7,218,000. This still leaves London the world's greatest city by a comfortable margin, its 1932 census showing a population of 8,202,818. Next to New York comes Berlin, with over 4,000,000, then Chicago with 3,376,000. There are eight cities in the world with a population of more than 2,000,000, and thirty-one with more than 1,000,000.

RAPID RISE IN PRICE OF WHEAT SAVES SITUATION

London, Eng.—A combination of blunt words and what Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, called "an act of God"—a boom in the wheat market—saved the efforts to obtain an international agreement for wheat acreage restriction from a breakdown.

The wheat situation seemed to be taking care of itself nicely for the time being and it was agreed the conference of the four biggest wheat exporters—Canada, United States, Australia and Argentine—could well afford to wait for a brief space until the Australian situation is cleared up.

The blunt words were spoken early in the day, which teemed with dramatic developments, after Stanley Bruce of Australia had told the other delegates the three principal Australian states were firmly opposed to restriction and this made Australian adherence appear hopeless.

Other elegates countered with words to the effect Australia must fall into line sooner or later, and the sooner the better. The nearly 500,000,000 bushel surplus of Canada and United States was mentioned. It was intimated it has got to be disposed of somehow and if no agreement was reached there might be no other alternative than to put it on the market for what it will bring. The actual word "dump" was used by one of the Americans and it was said to have created a deep impression.

What Prime Minister Bennett called "an act of God, providence or maybe Roosevelt," made its force felt when Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, chairman of the world economic conference took a hand. Perturbed over the near breakdown, he called Premier Bennett, Henry Morgenthau, Sr., of the U.S., Mr. Bruce and Thomas A. Le Breton, of the Argentine, into conference.

In Canadian circles indeed the view is taken there is no call for undue anxiety. While the abnormal carryover remains one of the great problems for action, crop reports coupled with the extraordinary rise in wheat prices, have introduced new factors which should be borne in mind.

When he received information concerning the rise in the price of wheat on world markets, presumably because of adverse crop reports, Mr. MacDonald professed satisfaction with the progress of the negotiaitons.

"Experience has shown that a year's crop cannot be estimated accurately until July 7 to July 15," one of those who attended the MacDonald meeting said. "Then it may not be so necessary to take such drastic steps as originally contemplated, and it is hardly likely that a move will be made in that direction until about that time.

Threat of chaos and price debacles which will follow if the Canadian and United States wheat surplus of 500,000,000 bushels is "dumped" on the world market acted to save from breakdown the wheat acreage restrictions negotiations of the four principal wheat producing nations.

Relief From Drouth

Rains Over Wide Areas Greatly Relieve Situation

Ottawa, Ont.—At least temporary relief from drouth was provided over wide areas in the prairie provinces by rains during the past week. This was rendered more effective by moderate temperatures, according to the weekly telegraphic crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The serious dangers from grasshoppers is emphasized.

"Drouth has had a damaging effect on crop growth across the southern part of Canada from eastern Quebec to the Rockies. Heavy rainfall has greatly improved conditions in the Maritime provinces. Drouth prevails throughout Quebec, with growth of all crops retarded. Rain is urgently needed. Similar conditions prevail in Ontario, where the dry weather has adversely affected nearly all crops."

Grain producers in the prairie provinces are encountering many trials, particularly drouth, heat, hail, insects and disease. Grasshoppers are becoming migratory and seriously threaten the crops over large southern areas of the three provinces.

Root-rots have accentuated the damage from drouth in Saskatchewan. During the past week, there were good rains in northern and central districts of the prairies which either maintained or improved prospects, but further general precipitation is necessary.

British Columbia reports are much more optimistic as a result of the clear, warm weather of the past fortnight.

Renewed Confidence

Advances In Commodity Prices Is Augury Of Better Times

Calgary, Alberta.—Recent advances in commodity prices were laid by Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta to the renewed confidence of salaried men and women in the security of their jobs.

In Calgary attending the annual convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities, the premier took time to express confidence in the early return of better economic conditions which he said was already evident.

"Thousands of our Canadian people are on salaries. When they lose confidence they do not spend freely. When they are confident, they do spend. I think the reserves which have been held back in recent years by the salaried people are now beginning to open and that this influence will be felt throughout the Dominion for the better," he said.

Explaining a reference to a construction program, Mr. Brownlee said the government was now conducting a survey of useful public works which might be done in the province.

"The whole question of work which the government is now considering will be to increase accommodation in various provincial institutions," he said. "If we can find the money, such work may just provide the impetus needed to open up business again in the west."

Will Protect Farmers From Crop Seizures

Saskatchewan Debt Adjustment Commission Completes Plans

Regina, Sask.—Plans for the protection of farmers against undue pressure from creditors have been completed by the Saskatchewan Debt Adjustment commission.

After farmers who adopt the plan laid down by the board have filled in the necessary form provided the board will arrange:

(1) That no seizure of the crop will be made by sheriffs to pay off judgments, etc.

(2) That creditors will not be allowed to seize.

(3) That farm implements will not be seized.

(4) That title to land will not pass to the tax sale purchaser.

An outline of this plan is being forwarded to farmers in Saskatchewan by the debt adjustment board in the form of a circular letter.

Fatally Injured

Rosser, Man.—Theodore Kiffineyer, 26-year-old farmhand, was fatally injured when attacked by an infuriated bull on his employer's farm near here.

SUCCEEDS McCARDIE

Resigns From Cabinet

Hon. R. W. Bruhn Steps Out Of B.C. Government

Victoria, B.C.—Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, stepped out of the British Columbia Government, the fifth minister to resign from Premier S. F. Tolmie's cabinet since May 31. Three ministers, N. S. Lougheed, W. C. Shelly and William Atkinson, retired in connection with the cabinet reduction on that date, while W. A. Mckenzie left in protest against the government's irrigation policy.

In a letter to the premier, Mr. Bruhn recounted his stand in favor of union government more than a year ago, his gratification when Dr. Tolmie announced his intention of forming such an administration, but his present belief that "no real union has been formed, nor do I see any prospect of your being able to form one." He sent expressions of 'highest personal esteem.'

The life of the legislature ends on August 31. No election date has been set. Some 65 candidates have been nominated under the various banners of Tolmie Unionist, Bowser Non-Partisan, Liberal, Canadian Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation and various other parties. Many others have declared their intention to run and the electors are promised long ballots with a wide range of political opinion from which to choose on election day.

Canada's War Memorial

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada's national war memorial is being altered in accordance with suggestions of the Prime Minister. The memorial stood in Hyde Park, London, England, about a year but has been taken to the March Brothers' studio for changing. When completed the memorial will be brought to Ottawa, although a site has yet to be definitely selected.

Gold Standard Debate

Rise In Commodity Prices Is More Encouraging Factor

London, Eng.—While the forces are gathering behind the scenes of the world economic conference for a renewed struggle over the gold standard, a new spirit is entering world trade.

Continued rise in commodity prices gives impetus to the belief the tide has turned at last. Dollar wheat at Chicago with reports of small crops, both in Canada and United States, eased the situation which a setback in negotiations to limit production had made increasingly difficult.

For some days increasing pressure has been brought to bear on the United Kingdom's delegation to link sterling with the gold countries and stabilize without the American dollar, which the United States flatly refuses to stabilize at this time for fear of the effects on their internal price-raising program.

The British have stoutly resisted this proposal on the double ground that it would be unwise to do so until the U.S. was ready to stabilize, and until they know what is going to happen to the un-pegged American dollar.

Recently it was made known in high quarters that the British had absolutely refused to commit themselves to the new European gold bloc scheme. It was described in responsible British quarters as an effort to split Great Britain and the United States so they would be unable to deal independently of the gold countries on stablization.

Great Britain therefore is sitting tight, keeping her hands free so she can deal directly with the United States on stabilization.

Alberta Grasshopper Menace

Province Said To Be Facing a Serious Situation

Edmonton, Alberta.—As the result of a very serious situation which has arisen in the southern areas of this province in the past two weeks, owing to the very hot, dry spell of weather, the provincial department of agriculture is facing the most severe grasshopper fight in the history of the province. Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, said recently.

The hopper situation is much more serious than that which developed in 1922 which held the previous records in such campaigns.

With plenty of poison bait materials on hand, the organization in charge of the campaign has the situation well in hand, in spite of the large area affected, and thus far the actual damage by the hoppers is comparatively small.

U.S. Wheat Tax

Washington.—Administrators of the United States Farm Act plan to levy a 30-cent a bushel processing tax on wheat, despite the recent sharp rise in grain prices. The administrators hope to place the levy into effect early next month, probably July 8.

PUTTING THEIR HEADS TOGETHER

GENERAL STRIKE THREATENED BY RAILWAY MEN

Ottawa, Ont.—A general strike of Canadian railway running trades loomed as a possibility following a deadlock reached by railway and union officials over the proposed 20 per cent. wage reduction.

A meeting here with Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor, as chairman, at which the proposed wage reduction was discussed by company officials and representatives of the men, ended in a deadlock. Union officers then took under advisement asking their 24,000 members whether to call a general strike.

Five groups of railway workers were involved in the dispute—engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and telegraphers. In the background lay the possibility of a strike by all organized railwaymen in Canada. On June 15, the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways served notice on all employees other than the five groups mentioned, they too must accept a 20 per cent. reduction in basic rates. It was believed likely that any strike engineered by the five main groups would be joined by the others, including shopmen and trackmen.

The running trades were asked by the railway managements to accept a 20 per cent. reduction from basic rates. The men already have told the railways they will agree to continue the 10 per cent. cut which has been in operation some months.

One of the arguments used by the men was that a 20 per cent. reduction would mean Canadian railwaymen would be working at rates 17½ per cent. lower than those prevailing in the United States.

Because of the different constitutions of the five unions represented at the conference, it was necessary to secure the authority to submit a strike-ballot in various ways. Immediate steps were taken at the break-up of the conference to secure this authority and the delegates said there would be no difficulty.

The engineers were represented at the conference by R. H. Cobb, Toronto; the firemen by H. H. Lynch, Ottawa; the trainmen by Senator James Murdock, Ottawa; conductors by Charles Montleth, Montreal, and the telegraphers by W. H. Phillips, Winnipeg. In addition, 22 general chairmen from the Atlantic to the Pacific were present.

The Canadian Pacific was represented by Grant Hall, vice-president, and George Hall, manager of the department of personnel. Representing the Canadian National were President S. J. Hungerford and Vice-President A. J. Hills.

Army Of Workers

Ten Thousand Men Now Employed In Government Camps

Ottawa, Ont.—The number of single men now employed in government camps throughout Canada has reached 10,000, according to figures of the Department of Labor. These include those working under the direction of the Department of National Defence. The number is steadily increasing as the various projects develop. The work of the national defence includes improvements of various militia camps, highway construction and landing fields for aeroplanes.

On Rotary Directorate

Boston.—John J. Allen, mayor of Ottawa, was nominated by the Canadian-Newfoundland delegation to Rotary International as a candidate to fill one of the five vacancies on the Rotary directorate. The annual report of Chesley R. Perry, secretary, showed a membership of slightly more than 147,000 distributed among 3,600 clubs.
