The Creston Review maintained their position at the head of the league by turning back the Pharmacy, overwhelming them in a barrage of baskets to the tune of 28-4. The game was fast and interesting to watch, the drug store misses putting up a game battle against a more finished team. Dot Olivier and Opal LaBelle again proved the most dangerous of the red-sweatered squad, while Nora Payne played the best game of the season for the Review. The teams:

Creston Review—Payne 9, Martello 8, McKay, Levirs 6, Lewis, Henderson, Langston, McDonald 2. Total 25.

Pharmacy—Olivier 2, Moore 2, Hilton, LaBelle, Downes, Nickel, Learmonth, Tompkins. Total 4.

The Follies continue to improve, but failed to stop the Creston Motors, who are at last showing something of last season's form. T am play was much more in evidence, Elizabeth Armitage especially deserving a great deal of credit for her assists. May Webster showed up well in her first appearance on the local floor for the Follies. Final score 24-4. The teams:

Creston Motors—D. MacDonald 9, E. Armitage, Avery 8, Ross, Lewis 2, F. MacDonald 4, M. Armitage 6 Total 24.

Follies—Webster 2, Mrs. Kirk, E. Couling 2, R. Kirk, M. Learmonth, Wightman, L. Couling, J Learmonth. Total 4.

Cardinals defeated the Imperial Groceteria for the second time this season, 26-14. This game brought the fans to their feet again and again as at no time was it a cinch for the winners The Cardinals sported their new uniforms and received quite an ovation when they came on the floor. The teams:

Cardinals—H. Corrie 8, Holmes 4, Ross 4, D. Corrie 10, Crawford. Total 26.

Imperial Groceteria—Young, Christie 4, Miller, Couling 4, Kirk 1, Farris 5. Total 14.

The Pharmacy took a s'ow game from the Highfliers for the curtain-raiser Tuesday. Opal LaBelle and Madge Moore starred fo the druggists. The High girls could not find the basket, and when Eva LaBelle was forced off the floor with an injury, they confined themselves altogether to defensive play. Final score was 12-4. The teams:

Pharmacy—Olivier 4, Moore 3, Learmonth 2, Downes 2, LaBelle 1, Nickel, Tompkins. Total 12.

Highfliers—LaBelle 2, Palmer 2, Tompkins, Wightman, Morrow, McCreath, Sinclair. Total 4.

High School boys came within one basket of defeating the Imperial Groceteria, but, though they dominated the play, failed to take advantage of the breaks to score. They sadly felt the loss of Downes, star guard, who is out of the game for awhile with an injured knee. Final score is 9-7. The teams:

Imperial Groceteria: R. Miller, H. Couling 4, Christie, Kirk 1, Farris 3, A. Couling, A. Miller 1. Total 9.

High School—Maddess 2, Telford, Payne 4, Goplin, Speers 1, Bevan. Total 7.

Village Troubles Power Situation

Creston Electric Threatens Injunction if Arbitration Claim is Ignored—West Kootenay General Manager is Coming.

The electric light and power situation within the village, insofar as the West Kootenay Power & Light Company, Limited, is concerned, is a bit clouded, following the special meeting of the village council on Thursday last at which all members were present, and the matter of allowing the West Kootenay Company to retail "juice" in town was discussed at some length by the councillors as well as A. C. R. Yuill, managing director of Creston Electric Company, which at present supplies the town, and J. D. McDonald, general superintendent of the West Kootenay Company, which seeks permission to also distribute light and power within the village boundaries. The matter was finally disposed of by the following resolution:

Moved by Coun. Henderson, seconded by Reeve McFarland—That the West Kootenay Power & Light Company be allowed to supply hydro electric power to the village, and to make negotiations with the present company for the sale of "juice," or the purchase of their plant.—Carried.

In the discussion at the council Mr. McDonald made an offer for the purchase of Creston Electric Company, which Mr. Yuill stated was absurd, and Councillor Jackson intimated that arbitration would be the fair way to solve the question, to which Mr. McDonald replied that the offer submitted was the only one his company would make. On Saturday the following telegram reached the village, but as Reeve McFarland was out of town no action was taken until Monday. The telegram reads:

Vancouver, Nov. 18.

Clerk, Village of Creston.

Our advices council contemplates granting license some company to sell electric energy in village stop Franchise 18th May, 1929, granted to Amon, and assigned to this company, village covenants it will not do this and contains arbi ration clause stop Unless we receive telegraphic advice by noon Monday village undertakes to grant license or other authority any person to sell energy in village until arbitration has been held we propose apply for injunction in supreme court forbidding license to be granted until after arbitration.

CRESTON ELECTRIC Co., Ltd.

On Monday Mr. McDonald was communicated with by W. L. Bell, village solicitor, by long distance telephone, giving him exact contents telegram and advising that motion passed by council on Thursday did not give West Kootenay Compaey authority to at once erect pole line.

On Wednesday the village discovered West Kootenay company was erecting poles on village property in the lane at rear of company property on north side of Canyon street, and Mr. McDonald was again telephoned and he asked Mr. Bell to notify the company's local representative to stop work. In this conversation it was given out that L. A. Campbell, general manager, will be at Creston toward the end of the week.

As per instructions pole line work was stopped on the lane on the north side of Canyon street, but was resumed later in the same location on land that is the property of the West Kootenay Company in the vicinity of their store.

The desire of the company to complete pole line construction is due the fact that they want to use an abundance of light in connection with their new store and showroom on Canyon street, which is due to open very shortly.

Under 200 Milch Cows Available

Present Outlook for Creamery Disappointing—At Least 100 Cows Lacking—Best Showing Made by Lister-Huscroft.

Prospect for a creamery to serve Creston valley in the immediate future, are not bright, according to the reports of the gentlemen who have just completed a canvass of the whole district to ascertain just how many cows are available. Their report was submitted at a meeting at the town hall on Monday afternoon and it shows that at present only 185 cows are available, but there is promise of more in the spring.

With the exception of the area north of Creston, where the canvass was not quite completed, every section in the area was well worked. A total of 63 residents expressed a willingness to at once support a creamery, and of these 59 will increase their herds in the spring. 12 others favored the creamery and will increase their herds in the spring 12 have cows to augument the supply in the in the spring.

In the way of support the best response is at Huscroft-Camp Lister, where a total of 70 cows is now available and according to I. L Gustafson, who made the rounds, the cows are averaging 50 pounds of milk a day, which is considered a very fine showing. While no special care was taken to enumerate the different breeds, reports indicated that grade animals are very much in the majority.

There was about 20 present at the meeting which was in charge of E. Nouguier of Canyon, in absence of the chairman, W. J. Truscott. With an inadequate supply of cows for a creamery, there was discussion as to the advisability of starting a cheese factory, but the great majority was in favor of the butter plant.

Chas. Murrell, acted as secretary, and he was in tructed to write Messrs. Werner and Hepworth of Boundary creamery, Bonners Ferry, who are very much interested in the project, as well as the United Dairies, Lethbridge, Alta., giving them all the facts in connec ion with the milch cow census.

Democracy vs. Dictatorship

Out of the welter of financial and economic difficulties and problems now troubling a confused world,—and which are directly or indirectly the outcome and aftermath of the Great War,—there has emerged one great question which now begins to overshadow all others, because all others are bound up in it. That question may be summed up in the words: Has Democracy failed? Are democratic forms of government incapable of successfully dealing with conditions as they now exist in most countries and in the world at large?

The Great War, we were told, was a war to end war; a war to save civilization; a war to protect democracy from autocracy. Nevertheless ir actual results as we see them throughout the world today, there is new more talk of war than there was in the early months of 1914: there are more people who question whether civilization was saved, or can be saved; there is more of the autocratic in government than was the case during a half century before the war.

The question, therefore, that most naturally is disturbing the minds of all thoughtful people is: Whither are we drifting? What is to be the cutcome of the present drift? Is it impossible under democratic forms of government to solve present problems, and, in order to solve them, is it necessary that new systems and forms of government be set up?

Four great nations are today under openly acknowledged dictatorships, —Russia, Italy, Germany and Austria. Parliamentary institutions are either wholly abolished or suspended in all these countries. Under stress of existing financial and economic emergencies, greater powers have been granted to a Democratic President in the United States by a Congress under control of the Democratic party than were even dreamed of a few years ago. In Canada certain emergency powers have been conferred upon a Conservative Government, while in Great Britain a union of members of all parties exists under the name of a National Government.

There is, however, this difference as between Russia, Germany, Italy, Austria, and the United States, Canada, Great Britain, that whereas in the first four named countries parliamentary government is, for the time being at least, abolished, in the latter named countries Parliaments still retain full control of the situation and can at any time withdraw the powers granted by them to their respective governments.

It would, however, be idle to deny that there is an under-current of opinion existing in the ranks of all political groups to a greater or less degree that present representative forms of government have not measured up as well as it was expected they would, should and could, to the needs of the time. As a result, intelligent men and women are asking whether the fault lies in the free democratic system itself, or whether it lies rather in the failure of those who for the time being are the leaders and representatives of the people under that system to adequately meet the responsibilities and discharged the duties imposed upon them.

One writer in a Western magazine discussing the rise of dictatorships in Europe, says: "Those who are out-and-out democrats, and who believe in parliamentary government, will regret this relapse, but it is evident that it is only under certain conditions that democracy is the wisest and safest form of rule. When people are controlled by passion or prejudice, or when they are ignorant or stupid followers of custom, they are unfit for self-government. When they are thoughtful and intelligent and have a high regard for justice and equity, they may be trusted to manage their own affairs." He concludes:

"The moral of all this for Canada is very obvious. She is worthy of parliamentary rule so long as wisely-chosen parliaments intelligently exercise their powers, but when these are indolent or the cat's-paw of controlling interests, then there is bound to be agtiation for reform."

In other words, the question is: Are the people themselves measuring up to their individual and collective responsibilities? The conclusion seems to be that it is not the democratic system of representative government that is at fault, but the use which the people themselves are making of that system in governing themselves.

At election times when as a people we are choosing our representatives in Parliament, and through them placing a Government in power over us, are we acting intelligently, or are we swayed by passion or prejudice, or blindly following a charted course without thinking for ourselves or giving heed to what we are doing?

It is never safe in life to make great decisions when we are not in a normal state of mind. It is as unwise to make such decisions when we are on the mountain-tops of prosperity and laboring under an undue optimism; it is equally dangerous and unwise to make them when in the deep valleys of depression and controlled by a warped pessimism. The marking of our ballots should be directed, not by our emotions, but through the application of our thinking powers.

Dictatorships mean the loss of liberties now enjoyed, but if as a people we do not show our appreciation of those liberties by using them properly, then we are not deserving of them. Dictatorships are dangerous. If the nations of the world resort to dictatorships there is bound, sooner or later, to be a clash between this dictator and that dictator. Dictators must have their way, or they cease to be dictators, and when the desires of two or more of them come into conflict the people under their authority and control will suffer.

If we cherish our present democratic institutions of government, if we want to retain them, we must as a people prove ourselves worthy of them. We must think for ourselves and act intelligently. Otherwise some person will arise and assume to himself the autocratic power to think and act for us.

Weary Days—Sleepless Nights Wrack the Nervous System

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

Men and women toss night after night on sleepless beds. Their eyes do not close in the refreshing repose that comes to those whose nerves are right. They are irritable and nervous, weak and worn out, and everything looks dark and gloomy.

Milburn's H. & N. Pills is the remedy that is required to restore them the blessing of good health. They bring back the sound refreshing sleep, tone up the nerves, and impart that sense of buoyancy to the spirits that is the result of renewed mental and physical vigor.

Modern Project Planned

Air Line Across Sahara Desert Is Aim Of France

With only 24 hours from the heart of Europe to the heart of the Sahara, French experts are drawing plans for a Saharan Air Service instead of concentrating on the Trans-Saharan Railroad, which yet may take years to complete.

The success of several aviation and automobile missions to various points of the Sahara both from Morocco and Algiers, has convinced the French Government officials interested in central African development that the liaison between metropolitan France and the African colonies can be accomplished easiest by air.

The Trans-Saharan Railroad Commission has made exhaustive studies of the probable and possible routes, but these plans still are in dispute because of the more recent and very accurate findings.

The advantages of automobile and aviation routes are apparent in that sudden tactical surprises, or heretofore unknown developments in climate, or geological aspects, may be overcome by a simple change of the route.

French civil aviation authorities still are working on plans for the Trans-Saharan Air Line. In fact, the 1934 budget contains an appropriation of ten million francs for Trans-African studies, which would provide for an air route joining France and the desert with other contiguous lines over North Africa.

A 266 lbs. MAN LOSES FAT

56 lbs. Off—Feels Better

A woman writes about her husband as follows:—"He started to take Kruschen Salts for rheumatism. His weight was then 266 lbs. He began to lose weight, and now he is 210 lbs., and feels better. He took half-a-teaspoonful of Kruschen in a cup of warm water every morning. People keep asking him what he has done to fetch his weight down, and he always says Kruschen Salts."—(Mrs.) E.S.

Thousands of overstout men and women find in Kruschen Salts a far better means of reducing than by taking drugs. The little daily dose of Kruschen Salts keeps the organs functioning properly every day and fills you with such a feeling of radiant vitality and vigor that before you know it you are fairly "junmping out of your skin" with energy instead of moping around—and reduction follows as a matter of course.

In Spite Of Handicaps

Many Old People In Canada Go To Church Regularly

From many parts of Canada have come little stories of men and women advanced in years, who, despite great handicaps, are attending church services regularly.

A case is reported from northern Alberta where a woman more than 70 walked three and a half miles to attend an Anglican church service some weeks ago. Down in Nova Scotia a United church elder nearly 90 years of age drove 35 miles with his wife on a recent Sunday morning to an anniversary service, making the trip by horse and carriage.

Have Nations Forgotten

European Countries Seem To Be Preparing For Another War

The news that comes from Europe makes one wonder if that continent has already forgotten the bloody days of 1914-18.

France has just completed a "great wall" of fortifications extending back 15 miles from her German frontier which were five years in the building and which cost millions of dollars.

Alarmed by Hitler's blood-and-thunder attitude, Belgium is undertaking immediate improvement of her eastern fortifications.

Equally distrustful of Hitler's intentions, Austria is seeking an addition to her army, bringing it up to its full authorized strength under the treaty of St. Germain. She may also reintroduce universal military training.

Hitler himself is talking and blustering in a manner that makes the ex-kaiser look like a novice in that art.

And to think that in the year 1918 —only 15 years ago—the nations concerned thought that they had concluded the war that was to end war —Brockville Recorder and Times.

Map Depicts All Canada

Moving Canvas Being Painted By Montreal Scenic Artist

A moving panorama map of the Dominion of Canada, the largest of its kind in existence, is being painted by Gordon Hammon, well-known Montreal scenic artist, who created the gigantic map used in Canada's exhibit at the Century of Progress Fair at Chicago. The huge canvas is 100 feet long and ten feet high and will move on a belt behind a stage equipped with an opening ten feet high by twenty feet wide. It will be exhibited throughout Canada and England.

Starting from the Atlantic Ocean, the scene takes in the whole of Canada to Victoria and the Pacific, employing various colors for cities, towns, lakes and rivers. Government parks stand out distinctly, as do the mining areas, and the relative position of one place to another can be easily picked out. Even Canada's sports facilities have been included in this important undertaking.

LORD MACMILLAN PRAISES BANKERS OF DOMINION

Toronto, Ont.—A definite program calculated to accelerate business betterment in Canada will, it is understood, be announced shortly by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, the Globe said in an Ottawa despatch. Mr. Bennett is understood to have been encouraged by the recent distinctly improved trend in trade and federal revenues, and is now evolving policies designed to produce a forward movement.

The despatch also reports there will be a conference with provincial authorities to see what can be done in the way of providing short-term and intermediate rural credits proposed by the Macmillan banking commission report.

Another feature of the government's program, the story continues, is the proposal to revivify the stagnant construction industry throughout the Dominion, thus providing employment for thousands of artisans who have been out of work more or less for two or three years. An effort will be made to bring about an increase in the prices of farm products, particularly livestock and butter.

Fair Prices For Products Of The Farm

Prices That Would Be Fair To The Farmer, Distributor And Consumer

Ottawa, Ont.—The importance of securing fair prices for agricultural products was stressed by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in the course of an address to the eastern Ontario branch of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists here.

Mr. Stevens suggested that technical agriculturists might draft a detailed policy for Canadian agriculture and periodically suggest minimum prices for agricultural products of number one quality. These prices should be fair to the farmer, the distributor and the consumer.

The minister said he hoped that the day for collectivized farming would never come in Canada. Canadian farmers were individualists, and he hoped that they ould always remain so.

Heavy Succession Duties

Ontario To Receive $425,000 From Sifton Estate

Toronto, Ont.—Ontario treasury officials said a settlement had been reached between the government and the executors of the estate of the late Sir Clifford Sifton, by hich the government will receive close to $425,000 in succession duties.

Naval Programme

British Government Decides To Build Two Large Cruisers

London, Eng.—Faced with the fact other naval powers in their building-up or replacement programme are going in for cruisers of the most powerful type, the British government let it be known it had reluctantly decided to substitute two 9,000-ton cruisers and one 5,400-ton ship for the four smaller cruisers of the 1933 replacement programme.

"If our programme, as already approved, should be carried out, the new cruisers would be definitely inferior to those being developed by other powers," pointed out Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, making the announcement in the House of Commons. "As the House is aware, however, our total cruiser tonnage is limited by the London naval treaty.

"The result is we have been on the horns of a very serious dilemma. If we proceeded with our original programme, all cruisers we should be building would be definitely inferior to certain of the cruisers being built by other powers. If, on the other hand, we are to build any cruisers comparable to these vessels, we must reduce our number from four to three. The first alternative could not be accepted."

The substitute 9,000-ton cruisers would have increased armament, which presumably means they will have more numerous six-inch guns than the smaller vessels they replace, rather than have eight-inch guns, the cruiser maximum.

Sir Bolton emphasized the British government did not contest the right of other powers to build up to a treaty strength if they wished. It was recalled, however, Britain suggested when the recent U.S. programme was announced that it might be unfavorable to the progress of disarmament.

Trade Volume Shows Increase In October

Over Seven Million In Excess Of October Last Year

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada's trade volume continued its upward movement during October, according to the national revenue department, the total volume of $101,303,153 being $7,582,533 in excess of the corresponding month a year ago. The export balance of approximately $19,000,000 varied very little.

Eight of the 12 principal items of export showed increases and four dropped.

The most spectacular rise was in exports of unmanufactured nickel, which rose from $600,443 in October a year ago to $2,435,472 last month, an increase of 406 per cent.

Export of planks and boards was up for 208 per cent. increase of 100 per cent. in export of partially manufactured copper, 220 per cent. in meat exports and 143 per cent. in fish exports featured the upward surge. Wheat flour and woodpulp exports also showed marked increases.

States Idea Is Preposterous

Father Of Lieut. Baillie-Stewart Denies He Has Confessed Guilt

London, Eng.—The startling fact that Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, cedebrated "prisoner in the Tower," had fully confessed his guilt shortly after his court-martial and sentence to five years' penal servitude under the Official Secrets Act, was revealed in the House of Commons.

Baillie-Stewart was incarcerated in the Tower of London several weeks before his conviction on seven out of 10 charges against him, when he was also cashiered from the army in which he was attached to the Seaforth Highlanders.

Captain Alfred Duff-Cooper, secretary to the war office, conveyed the information in answer to questions from John McGovern, fiery Laborite, who sought to reopen the case.

Colonel Wright, father of Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, young Seaforth Highlander now imprisoned in the Tower of London, told the Daily Mail the idea his son had confessed was "absolutely preposterous."

Statements made in the House of Commons by Alfred Duff Cooper that the young officer "had made a full confession of his guilt soon after his conviction," provoked a denial from another member of the House.

Suggest Market Plan For Farm Produce

Idea Presented By Secretary Of Ontario Growers' Marketing Council

London, Ont.—Radical ideas on the marketing of Canadian agricultural products were presented to local fruit and vegetable growers by C. W. Bauer, secretary of the Ontario Growers' Marketing Council.

Based on the British Agricultural Marketing Act, the scheme, proposed by the council and backed by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, calls for legislation which will empower a majority of organized growers of any one product to market that product and force minority growers to fall in line.

It is hoped to make the scheme applicable throughout the Dominion. Growers in British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec are understood to be strongly in favor of the plan.

Shipping Durum Wheat

Canadian Raisers Profit By North Dakota Embargo

Minneapolis, Minn.—Canadian raisers of durum wheat have taken advantage of the North Dakota embargo and are shipping their products here. Grain men said that, with only o limited amount of durum needed, the wants will be supplied soon by Canadian durum so that when the North Dakota embargo is lifted farmers of that state which produce the bulk of durum raised in the United States may be without a market.

RECOVERY PLAN FOR CANADA IS LIKELY PENDING

London, Eng.—"Nothing impressed Sir Charles Addis and myself more than the high character, sense of responsibility and integrity of the bankers of Canada," declared Lord Macmillan, chairman of the royal commission which recently investigated the Canadian banking system, when he spoke at a luncheon of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in London, England. Sir Charles was his English colleague on the commission.

Lord Macmillan was one of the principal guests at the luncheon, others of the distinguished gathering including J. H. Thomas, secretary for the Dominions; Prince Arthur of Connaught, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, and the Lord Mayor of London.

Referring to the cardinal recommendation of the bank commission's report, urging establishment of a central bank, Lord Macmillan said that whether it was acted upon remained to be seen. It was not a political question, but one of purely economic and business policy.

"I am frankly convinced Canada is on the threshold of a great development," he added.

Mr. Ferguson declared the results of the Ottawa pacts had so far been most encouraging.

"There is not a Canadian business man or a real citizen of the empire who is not seriously disturbed at the condition of the world today," declared Mr. Thomas.

"It is absurd," the minister said, "to assume the continent of America can for one moment isolate herself from the events and happenings in Europe. It is equally absurd to assume we can be blind to events happening on the American continent.

"We all hope the policy the United States is following will succeed. Nobody can dogmatize but it is certain the actions of the United States will have their first reactions upon Canada." In the Dominion today there was, to his personal knowledge, unbounded faith and confidence in the future, he added.

Pattullo Cabinet Sworn In

Wealth Of Material In New Legislature States Premier

Victoria, B.C.—The Liberal Government of Thomas Dufferin Pattullo was sworn in by Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson, of British Columbia, one hour after the retiring premier, Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie, had officially tendered his resignation and that of his cabinet.

His cabinet is: Thomas Dufferin Pattullo, Prince Rupert, Premier, president of the council and minister of railways.

George Moir Weir, Vancouver, provincial secretary and minister of education.

Gordon McGregor Sloan, Vancouver, attorney-general.

Arthur Wellesley Gray, New Westminster, minister of lands.

John Hart, Victoria, minister of finance.

Kenneth Cattenach Macdonald, Vernon, minister of agriculture.

George Sharratt Pearson, Nanaimo, minister of mines and labor.

Frank Mitchell Macpherson, Cranbrook, minister of public works.

Of cabinet-making the premier said:

"The only thing more distressing than running a government is forming one, because of the personal equation. There is a wealth of material in the new legislature.

"Given capacity, I have deemed it desirable all portions of the province should be represented. The new cabinet embraces both requirements."

Annie is a popular girl these days. Invitations to dinners, dances and parties come thick and fast, and Annie, to use her own words, is "having a wonderful time".

Not so long ago, Annie was being left out of many social affairs, because there was no telephone in her home and her friends found it hard to get in touch with her. Finally, Annie explained her problem to her parents and they had a telephone installed. So Annie isn't left out any more.

Nowadays most invitations come by telephone. People without telephones miss many pleasant evenings.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Growers, Attention

Editor Review;

Sir,—This letter is submitted for the growers' serious consideration, as b ing a question that will be brought before a public meeting in the near future. W.G.L.

Kelowna, Nov. 15.

W. G. Littlejohn,
Erickson.

Dear Mr. Littlejohn:

Since writing to you last there has been a considerabls amount of work done in the organization of the growers' movement. We feel you will be interested to know exactly what is taking place here, and what steps will be taken in the future for the organization of the Kootenays.

Recently mass meetings have been held throughout the valley, and nominations have been made at each meeting. The men nominated are formed into committees for the purpose of receiving suggestions from any outsider or grower, and for the purpose of suggesting a plan that might be available for the marketing of the 1934 crop. These committees are holding meetings now frequently, and are due to report at the end of the month. A central committee of five men will be elected—possibly this month, or early next month. The procedure taken to elect this committee is the following: Each committee elected at the mass meetings will forward to the Growers' Stabilization Committee office by the 20th November five names whom they think would be suitable for such a position. The present executive, wh ch includes Messrs. Haskins, Birch, Ritchie, Isaacs and myself, will then select five names from all the names submitted. This central committee of five men will have the responsibility of drawitg up the final plans to be adopted for 1934. These plans may not be completed before early in the new year.

For the purpose of obtaining knowledge of the support we require we have started a campaign known as the Sign-up Campaign for growers' control of the fruit industry. All the district committees throughout the valley have the responsibility for this sign-up which is to be completed by December 1st.

When this campaign is over and we have had time to draw up the necessary plans, Mr. Haskins proposes to make a personal trip to the Kootenays for the organization of that country. When those plans are completed you will be notified, and we trust you and others will co-operate with us for the benefit of the whole movement.

A meeting of all the bankers of the valley is being held at Kelowna tomorrow for the purpose of discussing the financial problems of the growers. This, we hope, will be the first meeting of several as it is the intention of the executive to bring into the movement advice from every possible avenue which may give us the necessary suggestions for the success of the growers' movement.

Would you please notify this office at once of any plans or suggestions you may have that will help us to organize the Kootenay. We realize the necessity of having your complete co-operatioh.

Growers' Stabilization Com.

Legion President's Address

By W. V. JACKSON

I have pleasure in reporting that 1933 has been one of steady progress, and accomplishment in all the activities of this branch. During the 12 months we have welcomed to our ranks seven new members, and though dues were reduced during the latter part of the year more funds were received from this source than in the previous period.

Well attended meetings were regularly held in the hall kindly placed at our disposal by Col. Mallandaine, our first life member. Through our efforts several grants were made to ex-servic men from the Canteen Fund, and one funeral grant was obtained from the Last Post fund. The branch was also of financial assistance to the sick and needy in its own ranks. At Christmas a hamper scheme was devised which was a notable success, and enabled the officers to dispense good cheer in both town and country.

Parades were held on Armistice Day and on other outstanding war anniversaries throughout the year.

In Jnne the branch was host to Robert Macnichol, provincial secretary, who, in a masterful address to members gave us all an insight into the splendid work being done by the widows and orphans and disabled comrades via the Dominion and Provincial Commands.

The outstanding event of the year was the organization of a Woman's Auxiliary by the provincial president, Mrs. McDonald. The work has b en taken up with great enthusiasm by ex-service men's wives and membership since charter was granted.

Our post has kept in touch with comrades east and west by the attendance of delegates at the zone conventions in Cranbrook and at the Vimy Day celebration at Boswell

Turning to the lighter side of our activitied the social committes is to be congratulated on its splendid efforts. Armistice banquet was attended by 44, comrades, including visitors from posts on both sides of the international boundary. The spirit of fellowship was much in evidence throughout the afternoon, and the speeches made a lasting impression upon all present.

During the winter card parties and concerts for members were successfully staged and a jamboree, open to the public, on March 17th, attracted the largest crowd seen in the Parish Hall in recent years. Our picnic, held in August, was well attended and a credit to the Legion.

I take this opportunity to remind the post that the only hope of obtaining a square deal or even of retaining the pensions and privileges, which we now enjoy, is to organize and pull together. It is the duty of every returned man and especially the duty of every pensioner, to support the Legion by every means in his power, so that it is able to take up effectively the cause of the widows, orphans and disabled.

In conciusion I wish to thank the officers and members for the loyal support and enthusiasm which have contributed so much to the success of every phase of Legion activity, and I would urge upon the comrades to make 1934 even more memorable and successiul than the past year has been.

Champion Fishermen

Vic. Mawson is this week handing out the prizes awarded annually by him in connection with fishing in local waters, his competition closing with the ending of the trout season. He reports that 1938 competition in bass is on a par with other years, but the entries in trout are not quite so numerous. In black bass first prize went to J. L. Handley, whose best effort was one weighing 4 pounds 12 ounces, 21 inches long and 14½ inch girth, with second prize to Bill Hale who brought in one weighing 4 pounds, 19½ inches long and 14¼ inch girth. George Hendren topped the list in rainbow trout with one of 3 pounds; 20 inches long and 10¼ inch girth. R. W. Maxwell led in the silver trout class with a sample that weighed 2 pounds 11 ounces, 16¼ inches long and 9 inch girth. Tommy Johnston is champion squaw fisherman with one of 2 pounds 6 ounces, 19 inches long.

Trumpeter Swans Seen

The Trumpeter swan has made its appearance on local waters according to hunters out over the weekend Swans of other varieties have been here before but this is the first visit of the Trumpeter, according to J B. Holder, who was one of the party to see two flocks of these birds—four in one group and three in the other. Its appearance is notable in that a few years ago the Trumpeter became almost extinct and the provincial game department had to give them protection as well as undertaking to raise flocks of them at Skaha Lake, near Penticton, and near Fort George. It is presumed the birds seen here are from the flock raised at the latter point. The Trumpeter has a call that sounds some thing like a cross between the music of a bugle and trumpet and those seen here were not at all bashful in announking their presence. A new species of black nd white duck is also in evidence this year for the first time. It is of a distinctive marking and for size compares well with the big Mallards. Vic. Mawson is one of those fortunate enough to bag a big one of the new comers.

Honor Horses Of History

Many Countries Represented On Panels In Plaza At Dublin

Fourteen incidents in which horses played an important part in history are depicted in as many panels painted by the widely known Irish artist, John Keating, for the Plaza in Dublin, where the drawing for prizes for the Irish sweepstake is held.

Paul Revere's ride is the subject for the section from United States history—one of the first and not the least important of the events in the American War of Independence. Napoleon's horse, "Marengo," is seen in another of the panels. It was captured in 1799 by a French soldier during a battle with the Turks in Egypt. The animal carried Napoleon from that time until it was wounded at Waterloo.

Canada is represented by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; England by Dick Turpin and Black Bess; Spain by Don Quixote and Rosinante; England by Lady Godiva; Belgium by Roland's ride from Ghent to Aix, and Ireland by Emain Macha—a race horse famous in English history in which a woman matched speed with a horse.

Started On Tower Hill

Premier Ramsay MacDonald Began Career In Historic Quarter

Many distinguished careers have abruptly ended tragically on Tower Hill, but Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald seems to have been the only one who began his career in that historic quarter. In "Pageant of Tower Hill," published and written by Rev. "Tubby" Clayton, padre of the Toc H movement, and B. R. Leftwich, Customs House librarian, it is revealed Mr. MacDonald started on Tower Hill as a warehouse clerk in 1886 at a weekly wage of about $3.

PAUL IN CORINTH

Golden Text: "I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified."—1 Corinthians 2:2.

Lesson: Acts 18:1-18; 1 Corinthians 1:1-28.

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 13.

Explanations and Comments

Paul's Exhortation To Unity, 1 Cor. 1:10-18.—In Paul's first letter to the Corinthians after his salutation and words of thanksgiving (verses 1-9), Paul takes up the report that has come to him of contentions in the church at Corinth and appeals to them to be of one mind. "I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus," he wrote—a name that should be a reminder to them of their oneness as His disciples—"that ye all speak the same thing," that is, make up their differences, "and that there be no divisions among you." Paul is urging not unison, but harmony."

"If the litigious knew the taste
Of friendship with the Friend,
Think you that their life would waste
In quarrels without end?"
—Saa'di, Persian Poet.

"But that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." "Be perfected together," the Greek word is used in surgery for setting a joint, "and in Greek Politics for composing factions."

There were three parties in the Church at Corinth, Paul had learned from members of the household of Chloe, that were called by the name of the leader which each admired the most and regarded as the most important; the adherents of Paul, those of Apollos and those of Cephas (Peter). Those who ranged themselves under Paul's name were probably the Gentile converts, and they claimed too great liberty, regarding things sinful as indifferent, treating the scruples of others with disrespect, and causing great scandal by partaking of sacrifical meats. Those "of Apollos" were attracted by his eloquence, and were doubtless those who were inclined to think poorly of Paul's preaching. Those "of Cephas," or Peter, were doubtless the Judaizers, determined opponents of Paul, who had come to Corinth with letters of recommendation and professed to be ministers of Christ, but were false prophets; they called in question Paul's apostleship, probably on the ground that he was not one of the original Twelve. Then there was the party "of Christ," which may have arisen as a protest against calling any man the leader of the church. They showed little Christian spirit in claiming superiority over others, and their use of the name of Christ as the watchword of a party must have seemed a dreadful thing to Paul. "Whatever the basis of its claim, whether personal knowledge of our Lord while on earth or pretence that it best understood His mind, its sin lay in making the name of Christ the rallying cry of a sectarian spirit and bringing Him into rivalry with Paul and Apollos and Peter." James S. Biggs.

"Is Christ divided?" Paul questioned. Christ belonged to the whole church, not to one part of it. "Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?" he continued. It was inconceivable that they could put himself or any one else on the level with Christ.

Let no one forget that Paul and Apollos and Peter were disciples of Christ, and that Christ Himself said: "I pray for them; that they all may be one, as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they may be one in us."

Clever Golfer Is Sightless

Legless Caddy Leads Blind War Veteran And Directs Putts

Since J. Aitken, of Cowgate, England, returned from the war, totally blind, he has been playing golf. And now he can make a perfect 150 yard drive and putt with amazing accuracy.

The sightless golfer perfected his game by tireless devotion. At every hour of the day he was out on the course practising, with the aid of his caddy, until he had perfected the system which overcomes his handicap.

The caddy has lost both his legs. He not only followed Aitken's drives and leads the golfer to them but is an invaluable aid in putting. He taps the metal casing of the hole and, guided by the sound, Aitken makes his putts.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to tie Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her something she should know about Peter." Gus tells Camilla Peter is a cheat, that he only wants her money, and that he, Gus, loves her himself. At that moment Peter appears on the scene and knocks Gus flat. On the way home from the party Camilla tells Peter they are going to do something about their problem. She decides that they are to be married, and until Peter establishes himself, go on living their separate lives. Above Peter's protests she carries her point. Gus leaves Peter, and Peter and Camilla make plans for their marriage. They decide not to tell Mrs. Hoyt, who wants to see Camilla marry money. They are married quietly, and over their wedding dinner together, happily talk of their likes and dislikes. Peter takes her home to his new studio and presents her with a piece of statuary he has been working on secretly, as a wedding present. They decide that they are going to be wonderfully happy despite the fact that they will be living apart.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XVIII.

Camilla lost no time in looking for a position. She might have taken her summer of leisure and happiness without a care, but that was not like Camilla. Already, she experienced a wave of panic when she thought of the possibility of being dependent upon Peter. Of course, she never would allow herself to do that, but she knew that the only way in which she could free him of that responsibility was to get a position and prove that she could take care of herself adequately. That had to be proved, too, before the day arrived when she would no longer be dependent upon the Hoyt resources.

She preferred to relinquish that dependence as soon as possible, now that she was secretly married to Peter. There was one point in her favor, that her career embraced one of the few kinds of business that were prospering in the midst of the depression. Advertising demanded the services of more commercial artists than any other one activity, and advertising was one of the few lines that profited when business was low. The less business there was, the more desperately competitors advertised their products and contended for the favor of the buying public.

There was no reason for her to consult the help wanted columns in these days. No one needed to advertise for help and little was needed. A change in the personnel of any business was more likely to dispose of surplus help than to require more. Camilla surmised that her only chance was to submit working proofs of her originality, hoping that they would attract the optimistic eye of some advertising expert.

She worked out a set of water color plates in the modernistic vogue of angles, of which she was rather proud. There was also a group of juvenile subjects that she had sketched during hours of watching the children who came to play in the park, and of which diversion she never tired. These she arranged in a portfolio and set out, with a list of advertising agencies in her purse.

Already, she had been Peter's wife for a week, during which he had permitted her no time to consider an occupation. They had talked for hours and walked in the park and shared frugal little dinners in small restaurants that proclaimed their courtesy of "Tables for Ladies." But neither of them minded this economical manner of getting acquainted.

Discovering all the little faults and virtues of each other, learning what subjects to avoid in their conversations that might irritate the other—every moment of these was exquisite joy. And the quality of food or the services of waiters was of infinitesimal consequence, as compared with smiling into each other's eyes across any table and sharing little intimate jests that interested no one in the world except themselves.

These things would go on forever, of course, but in this genesis of their life together, it was so sweet just to forget everything else and delight in its novelty. It was Camilla who insisted that they must both get to work in earnest, else there would be no happy future, of which they talked and dreamed so confidently. The summer term at National began, and Peter resumed his studies and work with new gravity, while Camilla began her quest for employment.

Their experiment with marriage was just one of modern youth's desperate efforts to adjust itself to the complicated demands made by life and a rapidly changing world. In the process of innumerable experiences, it makes some startling and daring attempts to solve the increasing problems of marriage. But being brave and candid and loyal, most of them revert again to the same basic fundamentals upon which life began.

Reconciling the standards and ideals of the past with present economic problems is not a task which can be accomplished in a day, nor by one theory. It must be worked out slowly and painfully, as any problem is solved, at the expense of effort and human happiness.

Rebellious and defiant, youth takes matters into its own hands when conventions and economical crises become entangled, only to discover that the primal laws of nature are stronger than all the other combined elements ranged against them, and they fall back into step again.

Young America—the real present pioneer Americans—fiercely loyal to its new nation, yet lingering wistfully in foreign traditions, presents one of the most crucial of these problems. Their situation is not so different from that of the early pioneers of America, except in its outward aspects. The same ingenuity, fortitude, endurance and faith is required of them to conquer their new world. Just so, Camilla and Peter Anson faced a strange wilderness of danger and a life of conquest when they entered their marriage experiment, as did those new unions that set out in covered wagons across the prairies and mountains and deserts to conquer the west of young America.

When Camilla began to state her requests for work at the various agencies, advertising managers regarded her with varying attitudes of incredulous scorn, but those who deigned to look at her samples raised their eyebrows with mild interest and were a little more cordial when she took her leave. However—they were very sorry—they could give her no encouragement. Their staffs were quite adequate in the present situation, also satisfactory, and a voluntary resignation was about as probable as a snowstorm in the Sahara.

In one office, a Mr. Bowman was a trifle more enthusiastic, but just as vague about any possibility of needing her services.

He seemed surprised at her industry in the face of existing conditions. "You did all of all these without a definite use for them—just for samples? Most applicants think they are doing well to have one idea floating around idle."

"Oh, I have many other sketches and water color subjects, I develop every idea I have, even if it isn't very promising at first. One never knows what might be evolved from it in the process of working it out," she explained sedately. Folk invariably told her that she looked like a little girl, and Camilla feared that the agency managers would think so, too. So she searched her vocabulary for erudite phrases.

Mr. Bowman smiled with amusement. "You like to work, then?"

"Why, of course, I should think everyone would like to work—that is, if he can do the kind of work he enjoys. Drawing is my work and my pleasure, too."

"Well most people imagine they would like to work if they could get the work to do. When they get it, that's different. Perhaps it is like everything we want when we get it."

"You mean that when we get things we have wanted, we lose interest in the possession. But work is different, isn't it? Getting it is only the beginning toward an end."

"Many people don't think so," her adviser mused. He seemed to be in a leisurely and conversational mood, for which Camilla was grateful. These little excursions into the business element and contacts with its administrators were a revelation to her, and valuable.

"You would be surprised how many people believe that if they just had a chance to do something important, they would meet the requirements. Yet they never would consider doing the work first on the possibility of its meeting unknown requirements. It is so much easier to dream than to do, and more popular to have faith in self than to prove it. You interest me because you have worked dreams into reality and proved to yourself what you can do. The work is excellent. I am only sorry that there is no possibility of my taking you on."

"I appreciate your compliments, Mr. Bowman. You give me encouragement.'

"You need it—particularly now. But always remember this: no matter how clever you are or how industrious, there are always many others who are clever and industrious to compete with you. That explains why the dreamer can't get in at all. It is difficult enough for those who are capable and willing to work."

Camilla reflected that she might resent this man's coldly practical observations, except that she knew he was right and knew what he was talking about. She felt a little friendly toward him as he took her name and address and promised to let her know if he had anything she could do. All the managers whom she interviewed had done that, so it delineated nothing in particular. It was just as probable that she never would see him again.

Not New Phenomenon

Making Enemies Is Characteristic Of German Diplomacy

Noel Panter, British correspondent at Munich who was put in prison for describing heavily armed Storm Troopers in a Hitler review, symbolizes not only the efforts to throttle the press in the Reich and foreign newspaper men as well, but the obstinate, almost cheerful, Hitlerite determination to make as many enemies as possible in the rest of the world.

This is not a new phenomenon. It has been characteristic of German diplomacy, in many respects, for sixty years and has caused incalculable harm to the German nation. Hitler tells his people that they are "ringed about by foes" and proceeds to make more enemies for Germany at every turn with his idiotic persecution of the Jews; the toleration, until lately, of attacks upon peaceful foreigners in Germany and now this persecution of a reporter who, in describing merely what he saw, has "injured" the Hitlerites by adding a few new facts to the growing accumulation that shows they really are turning Germany into an armed camp.—New York Evening Post.

Little Helps For This Week

"Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."— Phillipians 4:6.

We tell Thee of our care,
Of the sore burden pressing day by day,
And in the light and pity of Thy face,
The burden melts away.

We breathe our secret wish,
The importunate longing which no man can see;
We ask it humbly, or, more restful still,
We leave it all to Thee.
—Susan Coolidge.

That prayer which does not succeed in moderating our wish, in changing the passionate desire into still submission, the anxious tumultuous expectation into silent surrender, is no true prayer and proves that we have not the spirit of true prayer. That life is most holy in which there is least of petition and desire, and most of waiting upon God; that in which petition most often passes into thanksgiving. Pray till prayer makes you forget your own wish, and leave it or merge it in Gods will. The Divine wisdom has given us prayer, not as a means whereby to obtain this world's good things, but as a means whereby we can do without them; not as a means whereby we can escape evil, but as a means whereby we become strong to meet it.—F. W. Robertson.

Program Printed On Silk

Used At Montreal When Late King Edward's Birth Was Celebrated

A program printed on silk, of the fireworks display held on the ice in the St. Lawrence River in front of Montreal on the night of February 10, 1842, to celebrate the birth of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward, has been presented to the McCord National Museum, McGill University, by Mrs. George Ahern of Montreal.

Judging from the finely printed list of events the celebration must have been a magnificent affair, as the fireworks included: "A Yew Tree With Fixed Star and Illumination," "Figure of Eight Illuminated," "Two Splendid Chinese Fountains" and "New Moon With Fixed Stars." The Royal Salute was fired by the Montreal Royal Artillery, according to the program, which concluded with "God Save the Queen."
