Win and Lose Bonners Ferry

Creston Girls Victorious 14-13—Local Men Losers 31-28—Big Crowd Witnesses Games—Supper and Dance Follow.

Seven cars of players and rooters took the trip to Bonners Ferry to play return matches. Again Creston split the h nours taking the girls' game, 14-13, and losing the men's, 31-28 The crowd was on its feet half the time as the score in either game see-sawed.

The local girls were at a loss when it was announced that their game was to be played under girls' rules. Neverthe less they put up a game fight and managed to eke out a slender one point lead The rules precluded the use of running guards, as guards are not allowed in the fore, nor forwards in the rear court. It was not until the second half that Cres ton began to get th hang of the game Nell Payne, Margaret Martello and Marjorie Levirs proved the best combination on the forward line.

The men's game was an exciting contest, providing plenty of opportunity for spectacular individual performances. The crowd liked it. Creston led for the greater part of the time, but weakened in the last few minutes. Team play on either side was not of the best there being too much long and wild passing.

Mr. Amon of Bonners Ferry, handled the whistle for the men's game, and Messrs. Raglan and Levirs arbitrated for the women.

Invite Rev. A. Walker Remain

Reports Submitted at United Church Annual Meeting Most Encouraging and Pastor Asked Remain Another Year.

Reports submitted at the annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church in the church hall on Friday night indicate that 1933 has been the most satisfactory year in the congregation's recent history. The meeting was in charge of the pastor, Rev. Andrew Walker, with Mrs. W. Fraser taking the minutes.

Attendances at the services were well maintained. The Sunday school attendance records show a 25 per cent. improvement over 1932, and financially with one exception all activities show obligations paid in full and creditable surpluses with most of them. The meeting was so well pleased with the year's showing that it has invited Rev. Mr. Walker to remain as pastor for another year.

The minister's report showed he had held service every Sunday, with but one exception, at Creston, Canyon and Wynndel. There had been four communion services during the year, and he had officiated at six baptisims, nine burials and 16 marriages. For the M. & M. Fund he reported that Creston's quoto had been fully met.

The financial statement was presented by the treasurer, Vic. Mawson. It showed the minister's salary and all other operati g expenses paid in full and a rather tidy surplus W J. Avery, whose term as steward has expired, is replaced by A. J. Avery, with J. W. H. Gobbett re-elected. These two with A. Comfort, V. Mawson, F. Bunt and Ed. Clark make up the board of stewards for 1934. G. Sinclair reported for the trustees. Rentals from the church hall had been the highest in several years and financially the trustees had the best year ever. E. E. Cartwright and Mr. Sinclair will be the 1934 trustees.

W. J. Truscott, superintendent, and Miss Jean Avery, secretary, reported for the Sunday school. Collections for the year were $165. The school enrollment was 94 and they were handled by a staff of 11 teachers. For the Baby Band, Mrs. Sinclair reported 26 names on the roll, and there are 12 on the cradleroll.

There is also a senior Bible Class, witn A. Comfort as president, and F. Bunt, Secretary. The class has 23 names on the membership roll, and the teaching is taken care of by the different members.

The W.M.S. and Mission Band reports were submitted by Mrs. W. J. Avery, and reflected an active and successful year. A new branch of work is the Junior C.G.I.T., in charge of Mrs. Fraser, with 12 members and a very satisfactory report for the year.

Mrs Walker, treasurer, presented th report of the Ladies Aid. The financial intake for 1933 had been on a par with previous year's and these ha been spent in assisting with church financing, including the taxes on the manse. The report was especially well received and a vote of thanks was tendered the ladies for their appreciated effort.

For the United Young People's the retiring president, A. J. Avery, reviewed the year's activities, which had been varied and had attracted a regular attendance from most of the 50 members.

It was agreed that the 1934 slogan should be, "Pull together," and Mrs. W. Fraser was re-elected secretary to the congregation for another year. At the close there was an hour of sociabili y at which the ladies' aid served lunch.

The Wheat Pact

France Reported To Be Doing Her Part To Live Up To Agreement

France is doing her part to live up to the credit and letter of the wheat agreement, according to information reaching Hon. M. A. MacPherson, who represented the prairie provinces at the world wheat conference in London, last summer.

Samples of the literature broadcast over France have reached Mr. MacPherson. They include extremely large posters which urge the greater use of wheat and the limiting of the areas sown to wheat and particularly stress the importance of feeding wheat to livestock and poultry. Farmers are advised to mix one quarter wheat with each feed for a horse.

Prince Of Wales Sells Land

Proceeds To Go Toward Fund For Slum Clearance

Sale of 14 acres in Kensington, southwest London, belonging to the Prince of Wales' Duchy of Cornwall estates was announced in London, the proceeds to be devoted to slum clearance. The area borders the famous Oval, classic cricket-ground, which however is unaffected.

The "Duchy" has a policy of never selling and the gesture came from the Prince of Wales himself, without which the Kensington clearance plans would have been materially hindered.

Important Medical Discovery

Miss Pearl L. Moorman, 34, a native of the Ozark country, was acclaimed by the medical world for her major part in developing palinaesthesia, a method of quickly reviving a person from an unconscious state caused by an overdose of an anaesthetic, drowning, suffocation or acute alcoholism.

Magistrate—"So you and your wife have been fighting again.

Highway On Pacific Coast

Starting At Fairbanks Would End At Buenos Aires

Largest single highway project ever undertaken, the 12,000-mile International-Pacific Highway, is projected to begin at Fairbanks, Alaska, follow down the Pacific Coast to Valparaiso, and terminate at Buenos Aires.

Some sections already are completed. Others are passable. In Central America, most of the route has been surveyed.

From Mexico southward the route would be the same as the long-discussed Inter-American Highway. President Roosevelt has offered to finance the survey from Panama to Santiago, Chile, if the governments concerned agree, at a cost of probably $500,000.

The tremendous undertaking of a Pacific road was conceived four years ago in Southern California. Since then, such men as Harry Chandler, powerful western publisher, and Pyke Johnson of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce have become identified with the plan. The Automobile club of Southern California has successfully scouted the route as far south as El Salvador, having sent two motor caravans from Los Angeles.

Sponsors of the road do not urge an overnight splurge of primary highway construction from here to Cape Horn. But they have obtained pledges that the participating nations will lay out their road-building programs hereafter with a view to completing segments of the route as soon as possible.

Approximately 25 per cent. of the International Pacific Highway is an accomplished fact. The route from Hazelton, British Columbia, down the coast to San Diego and thence eastward to Nogales on the Mexican border, is a continuous stretch of 2,000 miles of primary highway

Marvels of the Human Eye

By F. M. CROWE, Optometrist-Optician, Calgary

NO. 5—MYOPIA, OR "SHORT-SIGHTEDNESS"

As explained in Article No. 4, to obtain normal vision, the depth of the eyeball and the curvature of the Lens and Cornea should be in exact relation to each other.

Should the depth be too great or the Lens or Cornea too convex then the focal point of the image will be in the Vitreous Humor in front of the retina. The rays from the image looked at, after focusing will cross and proceed to the Retina forming an enlarged but blurred image. This is the Myopic condition, and unlike Hyperopia, nature does not provide any means of overcoming it.

The average Myope (Myopic person) has no trouble at the reading distance, his trouble being poor distant vision. It is significant that Myopic persons seldom indulge in outdoor sports or recreation but turn to books and study. The Germans as a nation are typical of this, especially among the "intellectuals" which may possibly account for their advancement in science. It is estimated that of all the refractive errors of the eye only six or seven per cent of people are Myopic.

Myopia may be congenital or acquired. It may be acquired by excessive close work especialy during childhood, before the eyeball has reached its maturity. True Myopia will never improve and all that can be hoped for is that by wearing proper glasses early enough it will not increase and get into the "progressive" type with its resultant evils. It should always be corrected as soon as discovered, if for no other reason, to prevent further increase of the trouble. Excessive close work, especially if done under improper lighting conditions, is the principal cause of producing and increasing Myopia. Such people are usually intolerant of strong light. Being a "weak eye" such symptoms as easily tired and watery eyes often accompany this condition. Frowning or knitting the brows to obtain better vision is very characteristic of Myopia.

As I said in explaining Hyperopia that it is the commonest cause of a child's eye turning in (crossed) so Myopia is the usual cause of the eye turning out. The great danger of allowing even a small amount of Myopia to go uncorrected is the almost certain probability that it will grow worse and become a progressive condition and from that it is only a step to the "malignant" type when the ruin of the Ocular system is usually a matter of time. If a normal depth eyeball of one inch were elongated, as in Myopia, one twenty-fifth of an inch, the vision would decrease from one hundred per cent to about fifteen per cent.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 21

JESUS BEGINS HIS MINISTRY

Golden Text: "Repent ye; for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." Matthew 4:17.

Lesson: Matthew 4:12-25.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 61:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

Capernaum Becomes The Headquarters Of Jesus, verses 12-16.—Now when Jesus heard that John was delivered up, He withdrew into Galilee. The Fourth Gospel narrates the earlier activities of Jesus in Judea, Chapters 1 to 3. From Judea He went first to Nazareth, but left that city (Luke 4:16-30 gives the reason) for Capernaum which lay on the sea of Galilee in the midst of a densely populated region. Matthew wrote his Gospel especially for the Jews, and he reminds them that Capernaum was in the borders of Zebulun and Naphtali, the two tribes who settled there in Old Testament times, and tells them that this was foreshadowed by the saying of Isaiah the prophet, verses 15 and 16. The people that sat in darkness in Galilee did, in truth, see a great light, for in Jesus was life, and the life was the light of men.

"When the gospel was first preached to the Saxons of Northumbria, by Paulinus (as we read in Bede's History), King Edwin sat in Council with his chiefs and wise men to consult whether they should give up their idols and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ One of the Councillors arose and spoke thus: "In winter, O King, when thou art sitting in thy hall at supper, with a great fire burning, and thy nobles and commanders around thee, sometimes a little bird flies through the hall, in at one window and out at another. The moment of his passage is sweet to him, for he feels neither cold nor tempest; but it is short, and from the dark winter he vanishes into the dark winter again. Such, O King, seems to me the short life of man; for we know not whence we came nor whither we go. If, therefore, this new doctrine can teach us anything certain, let us embrace it." And so Edwin and his people came out of the dark winter of heathenism into the glorious light of the gospel, and became Christians, and destroyed their idols; just as in our own day had been done in Madagascar, and in many of the South Sea Islands. So our Saviour's own preaching is described: "The people who sat in darkness saw a great light; and to them that sat in the region and shadow of death, to them did light spring up'."—E. R. Conder.

Dr. Knight served prison terms twice for her suffrage activities, first in 1908 following a call she paid on the prime minister's residence at 10 Downing street, and again in 1914.

Extend Trade Treaty

Second Extension Is Arranged Between Canada And Germany

A second extension as from January has been arranged between Canada and Germany for the trade treaty initially contracted a year ago, according to an announcement made at Ottawa recently. On January 1 last year Germany agreed to exempt Canadian goods from the "Obertariff," or surtax, rates that were applicable to the products of countries which had not then negotiated commercial treaties with the reich. This agreement terminated on March 31, 1933.

As from April 1, it was renewed with Canada, according to Germany the benefits of the intermediate tariff, in return for which that country granted to Canada the "conventional" or treaty tariff on such commodities as normally were embraced with the "conventional tariff" schedules. On other commodities Canada was granted the general tariff, with no application to any Canadian goods of the "Obertariff" rates. This agreement held until Dec. 31, 1933.

Woman Detective Visits Different Place Every Day

A mystery woman is known to the London park keepers as "The Watcher." Day after day she strolls into one or other of the 113 London County Council parks or open spaces to sit knitting or reading, but always with an eye open for wrongdoers. She is the woman detective employed by the London County Council who watches over the safety of women and children.

The mystery of her indentity and the secrecy of her movements help her greatly in her work. This mystery woman has a rota of parks to visit. Every day she is in a different place. If she sees any mischief she reports it to the park keeper; a watch is kept, evidence obtained, and the offender arrested.

Her rota is only broken when she has to investigate complaints made from any particular park. She also inspects the gymnasiums in the parks, the swings, and the children's playgrounds. Many mothers have cause to be thankful for her vigilance.

Had Narrow Escape

Cries for help, uttered as he was being drawn slowly towards the roaring fire in the Toronto Terminal Heating Company furnace, brought rescuers who saved William French, 38, from being burned to death. French, shovelling coal, was sucked into the self-feeding chute which led directly into the roaring furnace.

The only thing civilization hasn't learned to produce in sufficient quantity is aisle seats.

One of the worst stings of defeat is the sympathy that goes with it.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarreled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertain's Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXVI

Avis' surprise and consternation over her discovery of Peter and Camilla on the beach in the early morning, were no less than Camilla's. The first light of dawn cast grotesque shadows on the four faces that stared at each other while their conglomerate thoughts made hasty adjustments and conclusions.

The pallor of fatigue and faded make-up gave to Avis the haggard appearance of a much older woman; while even in the dim light, Camilla's vivid beauty glowed like the promise of sunrise in the sky. She met Avis' accusing, triumphant, angry gaze with a half smile, as if the situation amused her.

All four of them appeared ridiculous enough, for there is no light more merciless to face than that of the early dawn and there is nothing that so leaves its stamp upon the features as the night abused as day.

Avis' condemning hauteur increased. "So, this is where our hostess spent the night!" her words hissed with scathing emphasis.

Camilla dismissed all effort at self-defense. "It beats spending the night where you were. Did you just get back? Peter and I were waiting for you, but we didn't think you would stay in town all night. We must have dropped ot sleep." She had scrambled to her feet and was shaking the sand from her chiffon evening dress.

"I should think you did. Waiting for us!" Avis sneered, and turned to Terry with a scornful imitation of laughter.

Terry shifted his weight from one foot to another, avoided Camilla's eyes and looked at Peter.

Peter's jaw was set hard, but the expression which lighted his eyes denied his serious concern. Fate had forced the issue, he was thinking. Perhaps it was best after all. He looked at Camilla and smiled a little. They certainly did not act like guilty culprits, Avis was thinking with surprise. "I wouldn't say anything more, now," he advised quietly.

"Then, we had better all go up to the house," she suggested, seeming not at all perturbed.

Avis looked at her queerly. She was willing to go the limit, fostered by modern social conventions, but Camilla's nonchalance in the face of such evidence as this, astonished her. The four turned and ploughed through the sand in silence, single-filing in a desolate little procession. The waves lapped the shore softly, as if in gentle sympathy.

The girls mounted the steps that climbed up the side of the cliff house, Avis leading. The boys stopped below to light cigarettes.

"Well?" Terry inquired under his breath, holding his lighter for Peter. "Sorry we went to look for you, but she insisted. What are you going to do about it?"

Peter inhaled and exhaled the smoke slowly. "Whatever Camilla decides," he said, and started up the steps.

"Can't we fix it up?" suggested Terry. Queer how, in spite of the single standard of morals, men defend each other in such difficult crises, and women are eager to betray one another. Woman proclaims her equal freedom and independence from man, but still clings to the ancient characteristics of primal jealousy and feminine revenge that were fostered by her dependence upon man.

Peter muttered his appreciation, "Decent of you to suggest it, but I think Camilla will manage all right."

Some of the guests had retired to their rooms, but enough of them were about to witness the triumphal entry of Avis and her captives. She said nothing, but her elaborate air of scorn and accusation conveyed exactly what her words might have.

"So you found them!" Cathie had exclaimed when they first appeared. "We really were anxious about you, Camilla. No one knew where you had gone from the club." Then, as Avis' congealed manner indicated the situation, she looked at Camilla queerly and added, "Well, now that we're all here, let's turn in. I'm dead!"

Avis turned confidently to Terry. "Will you drive me home, please? I've had enough of this."

"Before you go," Camilla's soft voice sounded strangely resonant in the thin stillness of the early morning, and every eye turned to look at her closely. She hesitated for a dramatic moment, "— allow me to present my husband. Peter and I have been married for more than a month and we expected to keep it a secret for awhile longer—" she stopped, with a little helpless gesture which explained everything. The silence grew more tense.

"Married!" Cathie was the first to exclaim, finally. "Why, you sly old pirates, you!" She threw her arms around Camilla and kissed her. "First to kiss the bride! Say, let's rouse the crowd out and celebrate the good news."

"Please don't," Camilla begged. "Let's get some rest and celebrate later. Remember, even mother and dad know nothing about it, yet. Won't you let me explain everything to her, first?"

Her suggestion was agreed upon, as if each of them enjoyed the idea of entering the conspiracy to keep the affair a secret for a few more hours. Only Avis did not relinquish her air of shocked disapproval, and insisted upon leaving for home with Terry.

"As you wish," Camilla said, with no effort to detain her.

So it happened that it was Avis who made public announcement of Camilla's marriage to Peter. At a discreet hour of the morning, Mrs. Werth telephoned her social antagonist with a sheathed leer of malevolent delight.

"I had never supposed," she told Mrs. Hoyt with distinct emphasis, "that when I permitted my daughter to attend your house party, I was exposing her to questionable influences."

"Why—" Mrs. Hoyt was aghast with horror and anger, "what do you mean?"

"Oh, you know about my daughter finding Camilla with that young nobody who has been seen with her. Of course, Camilla says they are married, but—"

That was the charge which disturbed Mrs. Hoyt from her lethargy of wonder and led to action. She terminated the conversation with Mrs. Werth as adroitly as the subject permitted, and hastened to Camilla's room.

Camilla had not slept since retiring, but she was resting until the household stirred. She was too excited for sleep, anyway, and rather happy that events had reached this climax, when her position as Peter's wife would be determined before the world. Mrs. Hoyt's knock on her door did not surprise her, but the expression of horror and anger on her face did. She knew that Mrs. Hoyt had heared the news, already. Even when Camilla had been only a little girl and Mrs. Hoyt's bulk had towered above her in condemnation, she had not seemed so tall and so furious as she was now.

She closed the door and stood over Camilla where she had risen to a sitting posture on the bed. Her small, hard eyes blazed with anger and her words hissed from behind closed teeth.

"So! This is the way you show your appreciation for everything I've done for you!"

Camilla met her gaze bravely, but with due respect. "You mean about my marrying Peter," she said quietly. "I was just waiting to tell you as soon as I heard you awake."

"Then it is true—"

"Yes. Who told you?"

"Mrs. Werth—of all people. She began with some accusing remark about Avis finding you—"

"Yes, I'm sorry about that. But rather glad in a way, because it's a relief to tell you—"

"A relief!" the voice lashed her as if the older woman wielded a whip. "Do you think it is a relief to me to learn not only that you have deceived me all summer with this—this—unspeakable affair, but that you have made a mesalliance with a nobody, that you have dragged the proud name I gave you down to disgrace? Oh, I might have known you would—a common species never can be made into a thoroughbred!"

Camilla was tempted to smile a little at the implication. "Then it would not seem that I have made a mesalliance, after all. Perhaps I have even done Peter an injustice by marrying him. He is so splendid."

Mrs. Hoyt let the scorn in her eyes blaze upon the girl for a silent moment. "Splendid enough to marry you and let you keep silent about it, so he wouldn't have to take care of you. And I suppose he thought you were the heir to the Hoyt fortune, too! You will see how splendid he is, now!"

Camilla made a little weary gesture and sighed, "You're just wasting your breath with all those accusations. He knows all about me, and has begged me for a long time to let him take care of me. I wouldn't because it isn't fair. He has enough to do, now, and I only married him with the promise to each other that we should live apart and each be absolutely independent until he makes good. He will, too, but he has to have time."

"That is what he has persuaded you to think."

"Have it as you will. It makes little difference to me," Camilla replied listlessly. "I love Peter and Peter loves me. We are married and nothing can separate us. That is all that matters. I'll leave here today, if you wish. As for your name, I shan't need that any more. I am Camilla Anson, now."

French Plane Spans Ocean

Completes Crossing From Africa To South American Port

The great French flying boat, "Southern Cross," reached Natal January 4, completing an Atlantic crossing from Saint Louis, Senegal.

The 'plane landed at 7:10 o'clock for a flying time of 18 hours, 17 minutes for the 1,970 miles. The distance from Saint Louis to Natal is 1,970 miles.

The four-motored hydroplane is the French entry in a race with Germany to set up the first trans-Atlantic air mail line between Europe and South America via Africa.

It is capable of carrying 11 tons of fuel.

Within two months the French government hopes to initiate daily service between Paris and Rio de Janeiro—with a non-stop hop schedule over the south Atlantic.

The giant 'plane with a wing spread of 144 feet, landed easily on the Potengy River. The flyers said they averaged 110 miles an hour.

TO SING ANEW

Song must come welling
From out the heart,
There's no compelling
Glad notes to start.

Lyrics must bubble
Like limpid streams.
No sigh to trouble
Their shining dreams.

No carols cover
A spirit's moan,
Quick ears discover
Pain's undertone.

So you, when bringing
Gladness again,
Set my lips singing
Their old refrain.

Yes, you have taught me
To sing anew,
Dear, since you brought me
Joys deep and true!

Figures Regarding Speed Of Light Are Fairly Accurate

The speed of light is placed at 299,774 kilometres or 186,271 miles per second, in a new estimate made at Pasadena, Cal. Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory, said in announcing the new figure that it was not absolute, but that the final computation which will be completed in about six months, would not vary much more than two kilometres from it. The new value is 13 miles per second slower than that reached by the late Dr. Albert A. Michelson in 1927 after he had flashed light beams with mirrors from Mount Wilson to another nearby peak.

"The Lord is good, a strong-hold in the day of trouble; and He knoweth them that trust in Him."—Nahum 1:7.

Leave God to order all thy ways,
And hope in Him whate'er betide.
Thou'lt find Him in the evil days
Thy all sufficient strength and guide.
Who trusts in God's unchanging love,
Builds on the rock that cannot move.

Our whole trouble in our lot in this world rises from the disagreement of our mind therewith. Let the mind be brought to the lot and the whole tumult is instantly hushed; let it be kept in that disposition and the man shall stand at ease in his affliction, like a rock unmoved when the waters beat upon it.—T. Boston.

How does our will become sanctified? By conforming itself unreservedly to that of God. We will all that He wills, and will nothing that He does not will; we attach our feeble will to that all-powerful will that performs everything. Thus nothing can ever come to pass against our will, for nothing can happen save what God wills, and we find in His good pleasure an inexaustible source of peace and consolation.—Fenelon.

Many Employed Highway Work

But All on Relief Scale—260 with Dependents Employed from Creston Office—Almost 700 Single Men in Local Camps.

Public works district engineer Wm. Ramsay, of Nelson, was here on official business the latter part of the week, and during his stay A. L. Palmer was installed as general foreman for the department for the Creston district, which extends from Kitchener to Gray Creek, replacing A. S. Dalgas, who has had the position for some months past.

At the present time there are 260 men in the district who are on relief and this number includes only married men and single men with dependents. Bachelors with no family responsib lities are taken care of at the camps provided by the federal authorities, of which there are three in the local territory—Kitchener, Dubious and Mosquito Creek.

The 260 men are divided into five groups, one each at Boswell, Sirdar, Wynndel, West Creston and Arrow Creek, with the unemployment from the village and vicinity at present employed at the latter point.

About 60 men are employed at one time at the five points mentioned and their monthly period of employment extends from 3½ to 17½ days according to the number of dependents. In some cases there is an allowance for clothing.

So far as is possible the men are given work so that they can remain at home, but where this is out of the question they are worked at Sirdar and boarded at the camp at a rate of 40 cents a day, and are given a day or more of extra employment to enable them to work out their board bill.

At Boswell, West Creston and Wynndel an effort is made to get the relief work done before the middle of each month, but with the other groups the work is spread over the whole month. While all districts are supplying many men for work the records would indicate that West Creston is the worst hit, with Arrow Creek a close second.

In the five federal camps at Kitchener, Mosquito Creek, Dubies, Yahk and Kingsgate well over 600 men are at present being taken care of, with more expected when the Dubie camp is ready for occupan y.

Institute Names '34 Committees

Will Have School Fair with Pets Parade—Competing in Needlework Section Vancouver Exhibiton—Resolution Noted.

If a large and enthusiastic attendance at the first meeting of the year is a happy augury as to future sessions Creston and District Women's Institute would appear to be in for another successful year during 1934. The January session at the home of Mrs. W. Fraser was well at ended, the new president, Mrs. H. W. McLaren, presided in capable fashion, and plans were laid with enthusiasm for a busy year.

The chief business was the striking of the standing committees and naming convenors for each of them, with the following chosen: Legislation, Mrs. Mallandaine. Public health, Mrs. Cherrington. Community welfare, Mrs. Hayes. Publicity, Mrs. Fraser. Agriculture, Mrs. McLaren. Home economics, Mrs. Jas. Maxwell. Home industries, Mrs. R. Stevens. Work and methods, Mrs. C. Murrell. Education, Mrs. Fraser. Hospital, Mrs. W. H. Crawford. Membership, Mrs. F. C. Rodgers. Visiting committee, Mrs. McLaren and Mrs. Fraser, for January and February.

Acknowledgment was received from Dr. Young, deputy minister of health, acknowledging receiving the Institute resolution asking that for hospital fin ncing hospital districts be be created and a hospital tax be levied in the same manner as school revenues are raised. Serious consideration was promised.

The Institute informally discussed plans for 1934 and amongst others it was agreed to have a school fair this fall, along with a flower show, and if possible a pet's parade will be included. A dis play will also be made in the Institutes' needlework section at the Vancouver exhibitian.

Mrs Jas. Cook was nam d to represent the Institute at the annual hospital meeting, and the t a hostesses were Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Hayes, with the free-will offering going to the Crippled Children Hospital Fund. The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. M. Young.

Hospital Board Meeting

The January meeting of the directors of Creston Valley Hospital Association was held Wednesday last, with president Mallandaine in the chair, and eight directors present. The president was requested to convey the board's appreciation to P. R. Eastlake who, after several years of service ha relinquished his position. The secretary reported that December was a busy month at the institution, with 203 hospital days, compared to 195 in November. Wood has been received in settlement of some outstanding accounts so that cash outlay is reduced, and the financial situation generally has been improved. A vote of thanks was passed to the basketball players for the gift of their gate money on the 1st of January, amounting to $22.80, and a similiar acknowledgment was accorded to W. M. Archibald for the gift of a subscription to the Canadian Geographic magazine. Wiring of the upstairs, donated by West Kootenay Power & Light Company, has been completed, and bathroom furnishings, the gift of Canyon Women's Hospital Auxiliary, have been installed.

Mature Age and Efficiency

An Eastern professor recently informed a gathering of Eastern educationists that no person over 40 years of age should be permitted to teach school. This recalls that other dictum of that famous doctor who said that every person over 65 should be quietly chloroformed. Both statements fail to convince because they are so palpably overstatements.

It is true, of course, that youth is becoming more insistent for recognition in the world of affairs, mainly because the problems of the times appear to call for that courage, initiative and energy which are compact of youth. The war robbed one generation of its birthright and opportunities. The depression appears to this generation to have repeated the process. That youth should be insurgent against conditions which they did nothing to bring about, is natural in the circumstances, and, possibly, salutary in the result. The Communist movement in Russia was energized by the youth of Russia; Mussolini recruited his Fascist army from the ranks of youth. Hitler has enrolled German youth under the Nazi banner. These are manifestation of youth's protest against forces inimical, they believe, to youth's fulfilment.

The trouble is to set a hard and fast line where youth ends and age begins. If that were possible, it would be possible more accurately to estimate the significance of the two statements and their many imputations and implications. But there is no such line. It is possible to cite instances innumerable of men beyond forty who have proved great teachers of the young, and men who have made their finest contributions to civilization after passing sixty-five. Had Arnold of Eton been forced to retire at 40, British education would have been that much poorer. Had Edison acknowledged his faculties exhausted at that age, much of his work for the advancement of science and enhancement of living, would have been left undone. Had forty seen the vitality of Einstein's mental powers reach its zenith, there would not have been that competition among the great institutions of learning for his services which followed his expulsion from Germany. It was after he had passed the age of forty, that Henry Ford had his great idea and launched the enterprises coupled with his name. The tally of similar examples can be carried ad infinitum.

In the political field, President Roosevelt, far beyond the assigned "deadline" of forty, has tackled the vast problems of his country with a courage, vigor and zest which qualify him for a place with youth in these characteristics. Ramsay MacDonald, with equal energy and resource, did not hesitate, when the needs of his country called for drastic action, to scrap the ideals of a lifetime for ideas of more practical efficacy in the crisis of the hour. The youth of Russia, Germany and Italy accepted leadership of men beyond the "allotted span," because these men oriented the chaos of ideas tortnriug the youthful minds. Youth, apparently, construed in terms of abstract qualities, cannot be measured by age,—which suggests the well-known saying, "A man is as old as he feels."

There must be some reason for a prominent educationist to make so startling a statement to a gathering of educationists however. It is impossible to believe that, with such an audience, he spoke in jest, in an idle moment or without proper forethought. Perhaps his inspiration may be found in the work of the Spanish philosopher, Ortegay Gasset, who, in "The Modern Theme," has suggested that each generation is distinct in itself in that it differs in its reactions to ideas and environment from the generations preceding it. If this thesis be admitted, it would follow, of course, that one generation's viewpoint, being radically different from that of the one succeeding it, the former is out of touch with the youth of its own day and therefore not qualified to be its mentor. The more remote the generation from that of school age, the more out of touch it would be with the student's ideas and ideals.

Whatever the difference, custom has decreed that the one should be vested with the tutelage of the other. It is difficult to see how it could be otherwise. While there may be something in the contention that the generation from which the teacher be drawn should not be too remote from that furnishing the school population of today, it must not be forgotten that the knowledge gleaned from experience of life and living acquired by the older generation must be of inestimable value in preparing the young for their responsibilities.

After all, no new social structure is created with each new generation. They may improve, or remodel,—and the social structure characteristic of western civilization is the cumulative result of such improvements. Something constant is imparted from generation to generation however. So long as this condition exists, the accumulated experience of the past must retain its value and, finding expression through the process of education, in school or in the home, be passed on to those preparing themselves for the duties and responsibilities of full citizenship.

Youth demands recognition and should be recognized. But an intelligible definition of youth, other than that of mere time, is necessary to complete acceptance of the statement that no person over forty should be entrusted with the task of teaching youth.

Science gradually is extending the period described by life insurance companies as "life expectancy." Why bother, if chloroform is the best potion when one has reached sixty-five?

Hold Strange Congress

Romanies Of World Plan Establishment Of Stable Community

"Gipsies of the world unite!" is the motto of the General Association of Romanies which held a strange congress in Bucharest.

The wave of fanatic nationalsm which is sweeping these parts of Europe has also affected the nomads who want to give up their free and easy life and organize themselves into a race-conscious and stable community. Thus the last citadel of romanticism and liberalism in its absolute sense is about to be ruined It will be replaced, in all probability by political demagogy.

Hundreds of Romanies in picturesque dresses came to the congress, flocking in from all corners of the country. The meeting took place in the open air, in the gipsy quarter of Bucharest which consists of innumerable mud huts built around a pestilential lake on the outskirts of the city. A regiment of gendarmes took care that the participants behaved themselves.

The congress was held in perfect order. The gipsies seemed convinced that they were entering upon a new era of "national dignity," as was announced by their leader, George A. Lazurica, an exceptionally good impersonator of Hitler both as regards aspect and oratory. Following are some of his most galvanizing phrases:

"We are a great and noble race. We don't want to be ridiculed and treated as the dregs of society. Let us form a strong nucleus in Roumania, and all the Romanies of the world will be inspired by us and become proud of their race."

WORKED ONLY ONE WEEK IN TWO

Sciatica Kept Him At Home

It is the wife who sends us this information about her husband's troubles. She writes:—"For some time past, my husband has been able to work only one week in two, on account of sciatica. He suffered so much from it that he could scarcely move for the pain. We tried many things, but without result. Then we saw in the papers an account of the good results that had been obtained from Kruschen Salts, and we decided to give them a trial. For twelve months past, my husband has been taking his 'little dose' of Kruschen every morning. Now, he has no more trouble with the sciatica, and is working regularly."—(Mrs.) M.

Doctors estimate that one-half of civilised humanity suffers from partial constipation. This condition results in an unsuspected residue of waste matter, which poisons the blood and produces sciatica, as well as many of the mystery aches and pains from which people suffer. Kruschen keeps the organs of elimination in perfect trim, so that every particle of poisonous waste material is expelled gently, regularly and completely.

Expect Increase In Live Cattle Shipments

Canadian Officials Anticipate Better Market In United Kingdom

Officials of the agricultural department look forward to a good year in the export trade of live cattle from Canada to the United Kingdom, despite the quota which will limit shipments for the first three months. The limit is slightly under 8,000 head, equal to what was shipped last year during the same three months.

The United Kingdom had a shortage of root crops last season. The result was that many cattle raisers without sufficient fodder sold their cattle for slaughter when only partially finished. The shortage of feed in Canada also caused many unfinished cattle in this country to be shipped to Great Britain. The result had a depressing effect on the market which was injurious to both British and Canadian cattle raisers.

Rule For Egg Shipments

No Canadian eggs are allowed to be exported out of Canada unless they are packed in Canadian Standard cases—each case contains 30 dozen eggs—in new dry export fillers and flats, and with new kiln dried, paper-covered, excelsior pads at top and bottom, or with any other pad, flat, or cushion approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

Egg-Grading Regulations

New Schedule Came Into Effect The First Of January

The riddle of why does a chicken cross the road is not a whit more baffling to a great many people than the new federal egg-grading regulations which came into force on January 1. To those who take time out to study the act, however, it presents few difficulties. The terms "fresh specials," "fresh extras" and "fresh firsts" are to be discontinued. In future fresh eggs will be designed as "A," large; "A," medium, and "A," pullets. Eggs of more than 22 ounces to the dozen will be in the large category; the medium grade will weigh between 18 and 22 ounces, and pullets' eggs will weigh up to 18 ounces. The regulations put storage eggs in "B" grade, but patrons of Central market need not be concerned about that section of the act, because a city-by-law prohibits the vending of storage eggs on the public square.

Alfred Smees, manager of Central market, drew attention to the fact that interior quality was a main factor in the new grading schedule. There will be none to dispute that, except for throwing, a fresh little egg is much to be preferred to a big bad one. Superficial inspection of the exterior isn't helpful to egg shoppers, either. The customer must rely on the honesty of the purveyor, and the government, in its wisdom, gives egg dealers an especial incentive to be honest by providing stiff penalties for those who are not. For the purpose of the act, a fresh egg is one in which the air cell space does not exceed one-quarter of an inch. There is a continuous process of contraction within the shell and when candling reveals an egg to have more than this amount of air cell space, it is taken as prima facie evidence that the product is making ready to grow a beard.

Egg dealers with an established clientele will not be annoyed about the new regulations. They cannot afford to sell eggs of inferior grade and, for the protection of their business, would be careful to keep quality up even in the absence of official regulations.—Hamilton, Ont., Spectator.

Basis Of Egg Weight

The attention of egg shippers and egg packers is called by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to the fact that in the revised standard egg grades, individual eggs serve as the basis of weight rather than dozen or case lots. In the instance of Grade "A" large, for example, each individual egg in the pack is required to weigh two ounces and over. Similarly in the medium pack each individual egg should weigh at the rate of 22 ounces and under 24 to the dozen.

Time heals all wounds. But our time on earth is limited. That's the trouble.

Little Investors Save Billions

National Savings Movement In England Has Proved Success

British thrift is increasingly becoming a national virtue, as indicated by figures given by Walter Runciman, president of the London Board of Trade, in connection with the national savings movement.

"The total wealth of small investors in various types of investment at a conservative estimate," he said, "reaches the stupendous figure of £2,833,250,000 (approximately $14,166,250,000). What with this national savings movement and all that pertains to it, there is very little doubt that we need have no fear as to this country being swept away on a wave of Bolshevism."

Lord Mottistone, chairman of the movement, stated that the increase in the amount standing to the credit of depositors in the post office and trustee savings banks and to investors in national savings certificates and in government stocks purchased throuugh the savings banks during the last three years, in spite of the financial crisis, was more than 3½ times the increase during the previous three years.

Just About Equal

The Rocky Mountains and the maritimes are just about equal in the mind of Airman Humphrey Madden. Forced to a low altitude by rain, sleet, strong headwinds and ice forming on the wings while flying from New Glasgow to Halifax, early in January, Pilot Madden said it was the toughest flight in his experience —nearly corresponding to a hazardous crossing of the Rocky Mountains he had once made.

ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT IS UP FOR DISCUSSION

Ottawa, Ont.—If the United States congress followed President Roosevelt's suggestion and ratified the St. Lawrence waterways scheme, the treaty would come before the Canadian parliament this session for similar action. The understanding has been that Canadian ratification would be withheld until Washington had dealt with the treaty.

United States would bear most of the expenses of the international section, while Canada would bear the expenditures necessary in the Beauharnois and Lachine sections.

The international section would develop 2,000,000 horse power of electric energy, half going to each country. The Canadian half would be handed over to the province of Ontario which would bear part of the cost of the hydro development.

Toronto, Ont.—Opposition to the proposed St. Lawrence waterway appeared at the Great Lakes division section meeting of the National Association of Marine Engineers of Canada in convention here.

The proposed waterway was opposed "in its entirety" by the Great Lakes division which termed the belief Toronto some day would become an ocean port through construction of the waterway a "political dream."

Lifts Restrictions

United States Government Moves To Enlarge Supply Of Liquor

Washington.—Lifting the restrictions on importations of American type whiskey for 30 days, the United States government moved to enlarge the supply of liquor, lower prices and rout the bootlegger.

What effect the order might have on the Canadian liquor business with the United States was not readily ascertainable. As American type whiskies have been flowing from Canadian distilleries into the republic outside of any quota restriction, the order was taken to refer to countries other than the Dominion with such right types of liquor.

Next Eclipse Of Sun

Partial Shadow Will Cover Half Of Pacific In February

Northfield, Minn.—An eclipse of the sun "which ends the day before it begins" will cross the Pacific next month and American astronomers officially appeal to steamships to change courses and head into this temporary night in the interest of science.

The partial shadow will cover nearly half the ocean. Just before sunset it will shade the west coast of Canada and the United States.

Find Headquarters Intact

Wellington, New Zealand.—Dr. Lincoln Ellsworth, leader of a proposed trans-Antarctic flight expedition, has arrived at the Bay of Wales, Antarctica, to find the Richard E. Byrd expedition headquarters established in 1930 intact. The report of his find was received here in a wireless message to the "Bear," supply ship of the pesent Byrd expedition to the Antarctic.

Chicago Milk Strike

Government Move Terminates Struggle Of Farmers

Chicago.—The Chicago milk strike was ended as the United States government moved toward stern intervention against interference with interstate shipments and with the United States mails

Settlement of the strike was in the form of a truce signed by representatives of the farmers, the big Chicago dairies, and even the independent dairies, which in the past have refused to guarantee any minimum price to producers.

Under the terms of the truce, a mediation board of three members, one from the distributors, one from the farmers, and a third to be selected by the first two, will be named to agree on a fair price to be paid farmers.

When the embargo ended there was not a drop of milk for sale in Chicago stores, even families with small children could obtain none, and deliveries to hospitals and institutions were threatened.

Safety Of Missionaries

Reassurance Regarding Safety Of Americans In China Is Received

Hong Kong, China.— Some reassurance regarding the safety of six American missionaries trapped in the Fukien province fighting zone was contained in a report that Nationalist forces will not attack Foochow, the provincial capital and centre of an anti-Nationalist revolt.

The missionaries were isolated when the Nanking regulars and rebel forces engaged in fierce fighting near Kutien, about 50 miles from Foochow, and disrupted communication facilities made contact with them impossible during the last 11 days.

After a relentless offensive that reportedly brought them to within 25 miles of Foochow, the Nationalists were said to have abandoned the idea of bombing Foochow, hoping that the 19th route army in the capital would capitulate to avoid great property damage.

Gold Seekers Stranded

Expedition Meets With River Accident In British Guiana

New York.—Associates of William La Varre, head of an expedition exploring the headwaters of the Essequibo River, deep in the jungles of British Guiana, were informed by cablegram of a river accident that cost the explorers their 54-foot canoe and all their supplies.

The accident occurred in the Rupunni River, leaving the expedition isolated from civilization. La Varre indicated the expedition had discovered gold and diamond fields in a region that may prove to be one of the world's greatest sources of such treasure.

St. John, N.B.—The province of New Brunswick has sold $799,000 in 20-year 5 per cent. bonds, at 99.01, to a syndicate composed of the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank of Canada, A. E. Ames & Co., Ltd., Wood, Gundy & Co., Ltd., Eastern Securities, Ltd., and the Dominion Securities Corp., Ltd., according to an announcement made by Premier L. P. D. Tilley. The issue was made for the purpose of refunding debentures issued in 1924.

Few Industry Disputes

Regina, Sask.—Only eight industrial disputes occurred in Saskatchewan in 1932, states a report of the Department of Railways, Labor and Industries. They affected 365 employees and 27 employers. Total time lost was 4,191 man-work days. Trades involved were coal miners, printers, plumbers, and motion picture projectionists.

Feed Grain Shortage

Sarnia, Ont.—Shortage of feed grain has become so acute in Lambton county, Ontario, that farmers fear they will have to draw from their seed grain reserves. Feed grain crops were poor last year and with most of the winter feeding still to come it is certain feed will have to be imported.

Attains Ambition

Girl Who Worked In Harvest Fields Now Concert Artist

Toronto, Ont.—From dishwashing in a restaurant to a highly paid concert artist is the story of Anka Meyerstromfedt's success. Anka became a full-fledged Canadian when she was granted naturalization papers and it was then revealed the hardships the young woman fought in western Canada to obtain her ambition.

In the west the young Swedish maid found herself in need of money. She donned men's clothing and worked in the harvest fields. Finally she reached Winnipeg in a box car and started her dishwashing career for a living.

She worked for a while on reaching Toronto in a hat and dress store, but she lost the job. Then on to Montreal to return to dishwashing.

One day at a party her voice attracted a concert manager. Now Anka is singing for a living.

Russian Trade Agreement

Soviets Will Purchase Large Quantities Of French Products

Paris, France.—Soviet Russia agreed to buy $17,000,000 worth of French products within the next year in a commercial agreement which was prepared for signature.

In exchange France is to grant Russia credit and a minimum tariff on Russian products not competing with the French. In case competition threatens, the French will be free to impose quotas on such products.

France's exports to Russia are increased five-fold by the agreement as she exported less than $3,300,000 worth of products to Russia in 1933.

Continue Drive For Highway

Action On Road From The Pas Is Requested

The Pas, Man.—Continuing their drive for action on The Pas Hihgway connecting with the cities of the plains, civic organizations of The Pas and Cranberry Portage united to put their case before Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba.

The Pas Board of Trade wired Premier Bracken asking if the proposed road had been placed on the provincial programs set before the federal government for consideration in anticipated public works schemes to go into effect next spring.

Premier Bracken answered as follows:

"The Dominion Government has not requested us to submit a program of provincial works, nevertheless a program has been prepared of works suggested by various communities which list includes The Pas Highway among provincial works."

The members decided the premier's wire was ambiguous and drafted another asking whether or not The Pas Highway would be on the list sent to Ottawa. At the same time Cranberry Portage representatives sent similar wires.

Bread Control Law

Legislation Governing Selling Of Bread In Alberta To Be Introduced

Edmonton, Alberta.—Legislation to control the production and selling of bread in Alberta is likely to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature. Premier Brownlee and members of his government were asked by a delegation of master bakers for an act covering production, and price control will probably be added by the government on its own initiative.

That this province should have a Bread Act similar to those in Saskatchewan, British Columbia, and Ontario was the request put forward by the delegation.

No Navy Building

Australia Has No Intention Of Embarking On Construction Program

London, Eng.—Australia, like Canada, has no intention of embarking on a program of new naval construction.

Rounding out a review of Empire naval policy, authoritative Australian sources in London, in response to enquiry by the Canadian Press, stated Australia had no intention of new naval building. They pointed out that at present she has only one sloop building, with no orders and no appropriations for any other vessels.

THRILLS AT THE CHRISTMAS CIRCUS AT THE OLYMPIA

Every Christmas thousands of Londoners flock to the Olympia to see the famous annual circus, and this year the circus again proved the most popular of the Yuletide entertainments in the British Capital. Our picture, taken during the performance, shows the Medrano Sisters, in their wonderful equestrienne act. This is their first appearance in England.

DEBT PROBLEM STANDING IN WAY OF RECOVERY

Ottawa, Ont.—Readjustment of international debt was an essential prelude to world economic stability, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the University Club here.

"But," the minister continued, "equally important is that the weight of internal debts be lightened by the lowering of interest rates and by extending the term of payment. In some cases, actual 'forgiving of debt' is necessary."

Canada's chief concern was how to secure for the farmer producer a fair return for his efforts. "We know he cannot pay his debt at present prices."

Mr. Stevens favored the remonetization of silver. "I hold the view that an international exchange based on currency with a metallic backing is the most secure; that is, a currency based on silver and gold. Such has been known and understood by all peoples of the world from time immemorial."

Speaking of lessons from the depression, one thing was clear and that was that problems which one, two, or three years ago were shrouded in mystery were today clearly discernible, if not yet actually solved, the trade minister said. "Where formerly there was only obscurity and fear, we now know what it is we have to face. What had been deemed 'eternal verities' economics have crumbled and fallen."

In the realm of finance, one after another the great nations of the world had abandoned the gold standard, he said.

What was to be done?
