Strike 12 Mill Village Tax Rate

Same Levy as Past Years—Will Pay Councillors Salary—May Hire Handyman—Requests in for Additional Street Lights.

The first regular session of the new village council was quite a busy one. Routine business was much to the fore, with the most important that of striking the 1934 tax rate at the old reliable 12 mills, with improvements assessed at 50 per cent of their value. Ever since incorporation the 12 mill rate has prevailed.

A well signed petition of those interested was to hand asking for a street light at the corner opposite the A. L. Cameron residence and another at the north end of the street at the Alex. Matheson home. Both will be investigated and report made at March council meeting. Miss A. Fleetwood, who resides at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Hillside Road, asked for some action to abate the seepage nuisance in that locality. The request will be given the required investigation.

The appeal from the Salvation Army for a grant to help with its rescue work received favorable consideration and a vote of $25 was authorized. It was decided, however, not to send a delegate to Nelson on the 15th for a meeting of the Kootenay Union of Municipalities, of which the village is a member.

There was a letter from the provincial fire marshall at Victoria pointing out that the local deputy fire marshall had not, as yet, made any reports of his inspections of village buildings used as places of public resort—schools, theatres, rinks, dance hall, etc., and asking that the matter have attention at least once every two months.

The Davenport Hotel, Spokane, wrote announcing that Creston had been allotted Tuesday evening, March 20th, for its participation in the Northwest on Parade broadcast put on over station KHQ by the Davenport. It was decided to acknowledge the letter.

For this year, at any rate, the councillors decided to draw the minimum salary of $100 per annum, and Councillors Murrell and Comfort were named a special committee to revise, where necessary, the village Trade License Bylaw.

There was a letter from A. L. Palmer, local general road foreman, stating the public works department planned to put down a permanent road along Canyon street, but would do nothing until assured that the water pipe serving that section of town had been made 100 per cent watertight. It was decided to at once get a copy of the provincial Sewer Act, confer with Col Mallandaine of the Wateworks Company, as well as local physicians on the whole question of sewage and the new road, and a special meeting will be held before the end of the month to take some action in the matter.

Advertisements are appearing in this week's paper calling for tenders for the position of handyman, as well as for the 1934 supply of lumber. The clerk was also instructed to place an order for corrigated steel pipe required this year.

The clerk will also write B. Cripps notifying him that his services as poundkeeper has been dispensed with. January accounts passed for payment totalled $326, a gratifying feature of which was the reduced cost of street lighting, although the saving may be somewhat reduced as under the new arrangement the town has to replace broken bulbs, and the breakage of these is becoming quite an expense.

Handicrafts In The West

Shortly after the conclusion of the World's Grain Show held at Regina last summer the question arose as to the uses to which the big quarter of a million dollar Grain Show building could be devoted, not only in connection with the annual provincial exhibition but throughout the year. Many suggestions were advanced, but few had any relation to the subject of the use to be made of the building in connection with the annual Provincial Exhibition, possibly because of the size of the structure, the great extent of floor space, and the difficulty in these recent years of finding necessary funds to promote any large development.

The writer now proposes to advance an idea for the consideration not only of the Regina Provincial Exhibition Board, but of people throughout the three prairie provinces. This idea is advanced because it is somewhat in keeping with the international character of the project for which the building was originally constructed; because it presents an opportunity to encourage and develop one aspect of our western life we are in danger of neglecting; and because it appears to be a feasible undertaking at the present time, and, in fact, may even provide a small source of income to many people who are in dire need of every cent they can earn.

The suggestion we advance is that this building erected to house grain and other exhibits of the nations of the world, or at least a portion of it, should continue to be utilized each year for the display of the handicrafts of the people of the many nations who constitute such a large proportion of the population of Western Canadian provinces. In other words, that the various racial and national groups throughout the West be invited, encouraged, even urged, to revive their home handicrafts on a larger scale than before and to exhibit the same, the understanding being that the exhibitors have the right to sell the goods they have placed on exhibit if they so desire.

What, we ask, could provide a more colorful, interesting and instructive exhibition than a continuous series of booths each devoted to the handicrafts of different national groups, presided over by men and women of each particular group, dressed in their national costumes?

Some years ago the C.P.R. sponsored the holding of exhibitions of handicrafts throughout Canada, and these were attended by thousands of interested visitors. In conjunction with such exhibitions, festivals and concerts featuring the music of different countries were held. Recently, at Regina, a highly successful folk festival and dance was held in which hundreds of citizens of non-English speaking nationalities participated, each providing their own orchestra or band.

The people of every nationality have some worthwhile contribution they can make to the upbuilding of this Canadian nation. These people have chosen Canada, yes, Western Canada, as their home; they are bringing their children up to be Canadians. They have a wealth of tradition arising out of the past histories of their native lands, of music, poetry, literature, and a bewildering array of handicrafts to contribute that will add richness to this young nation now in the making. They should be encouraged to make this contribution. It should be impressed upon them that they are welcome in Canada; that so far from asking or expecting them to forget their old homelands and the customs and traditions and handicrafts of their native countries, we want them to add these as a contribution to the greater beauty and strength of Canada.

Why not, therefore, utilize at least a portion of the fine World's Grain Show building to develop a little annual international exhibition put on by the people of many lands now resident in our midst on these Western plains? Let us have the flags of all nations waving again over booths filled with the arts and handicrafts of Germany, Poland, Norway, Sweden, Iceland, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Ukraine, Greece, Russia, Austria, Hungary. Let us include China and Japan, who have representatives in our midst. And the Irish, the Scotch, the Welsh should join their contributions with the English, and the French-Canadians to round out the whole.

At the World's Grain Show last summer there were a few of these handicraft exhibits, and they were most interesting although rather overshadowed by the magnitude of the show in other respects. But with one wing of the big building arranged in attractively decorated national booths, with exhibits of the arts and handicrafts of each nation on display, with national flags and national costumes,—and all of which could be provided by and through people now resident in the prairie provinces,—a use can be made of the Grain Show building which will return a dividend to Canada, not in cash perhaps, but in nation building. At the same time activity in national arts and handicrafts will be encouraged, these arts and skill in workmanship will not be lost, and, in fact, a valuable and growing domestic market developed for hand-made products from many a humble and needy home.

Strength In The Air

Official Of Air Ministry Satisfied With Britain's Efficiency

Our stunt press so frequently sets our flesh creeping by allusions to our unpreparedness to ward off air attacks that it is refreshing to hear the views of a real expert.

I had a talk to-day with one of the high officials of the Air Ministry. He scoffed at the notion that we should imitate Italy in constructing "funk holes" beneath our arterial roads. He was not even greatly concerned that civilians should be trained in the use of gas masks. When I reminded him that in the matter of aeroplane squadrons we came very low down in the list of the seven big powers, his contention was that it was not aeroplanes that counted, but the efficiency of the pilots. Aeroplanes could be turned out at the rate of hundreds a month if necessary.

"Where do we stand," I asked, "in the matter of efficiency?" "Measured by this room," he said, "we are right up to the ceiling. And the Power that comes next is America. Her position would be just about two-thirds up the wall."—London Cor., Ottawa Journal.

Strange Story From Desert

Captive Legionairies Have Been Slaves Of Arabs For Years

The members of a colony of captive legionaries who, forgotten by the world, have for many years labored under Arabs in the burning heat of the desert, are now beginning to find their way back to civilization. The first intimation of the existence of such a colony came when an ex-legionary named Lopez Posito, who had been regarded as dead for many years, three months ago staggered into the Spanish garrison of Villa Cisneros, in South-West Morocco, completely exhausted. The Spaniard told a strange tale of a band of legionaries of all nationalities held captive and held under conditions of virtual slavery for Arab taskmasters. A Jew named Aaron Cohen later arrived in the French zone with a similar story. Thereafter a Spanish commission took up the matter and after negotiations aided by friendly Saharan sheiks, the first party of ex-legionaries arrived at Cap Juby, near Villa Cisneros.

Good Business With Japan

Value Of Exports In 1933 Over Million Dollars Higher

An increase of more than $1,000,000 in Canadian exports to Japan during the past year was one of the bright spots of Canada's foreign trade in 1933, says a trade review of the department of trade and commerce. Exports increased from $11,995,887 in 1932 to $13,001,704 in 1933.

Exports of wheat flour to Japan increased in value from $383,683 to $609,367; wood pulp shipments increased in value from $884,332 to $1,444,284 and scrap iron from $18,069 to $390,653. On the other hand, however, marked decreases were shown in the value of exports of wheat and lumber.

Russia Has Costly Project

Details of a $51,500,000 project just started in Russia for the study of the human body, ill and healthy, and from every angle, including eugenics and heredity, were made public by a two-man commission which has been studying American hospitals and medical centres since last November. The project, to be known as All-Union Institute of Experimental Medicine, is located in a suburb of Leningrad, called Bolsturbo.

Planning Huge Stadium

Germany Getting Ready For Olympic Games Of 1936

Germany is rebuilding for the Olympic Games of 1936 the great stadium which was constructed for the Olympics of 1916, cancelled because of the war.

Werner March, son of the original builder, is in charge of remodelling the huge arena in the Grunewald, just outside of Berlin, and plans to make it more complete even than the Los Angeles stadium.

It is planned that the main stadium will be surrounded by a tennis court, a cycling ground and a swimming pool, with accommodations for 440,000 spectators. Furthermore, a ground for equestrian sports will be erected. A home for athletes, to be called "The Home of German Sports," is also planned, as well as buildings with social centres for the athletes participating at the 1936 games.

In issuing orders for the reconstruction, Chancellor Hitler declared: "Germany receives herewith a sports arena the equal of which has never been seen anywhere in the world." The German sports commissioner, Von Tschammer-Osten and the minister of interior, Wilhelm Frick, have full powers for conducting construction work. The money needed for the purpose has already been appropriated by the ministry of finance.

If all is achieved as foreseen the German Olympic-Stadium for 1936, it is claimed, will be the greatest and most practical sports centre in the world.

Protective Association

Toronto Landlords Have Problem With Destitute Tenants

Toronto landlords have formed a protective association. Landlords should not be shouldered with the double burden of providing both free rent and most of the city's taxes, the meeting agreed. It was attended by about 200 people and lasted more than three hours.

H. L. Rogers, former alderman, was the principal speaker. "It is unfair," he declared, "that the landlord should be faced with the ugly alternative of having either to turn a destitute man out on the street or to give him free rent. It is dishonest to make you pay for relief through taxes, and then to make you pay rent for the poor when others who own stocks and bonds have to pay no more than income taxes."

INTEREST CUT IS URGED TO SPEED UP BUSINESS

Ottawa.—Drastic changes in the general financial policy of Canada were urged on the Bennett government by one of its supporters in the house of commons, James H. Stitt, Cons., Selkirk, Man. He suggested compulsory reduction of interest, conversion of government bonds at lower interest rates and the issuing of $100,000,000 in cash to establish a reconstruction purchasing board.

Canada stood at the economic cross-roads, the Manitoba member said, urging the government to accept a motion proposed by George Coote, United Farmer member for MacLeod. It proposed a large scale national building program financed by new currency, to escape interest charges. No decision was made on the Coote motion, the debate not being concluded.

"There is an issue facing the government to-day, the like of which has never faced any government in Canada," said Mr. Stitt.

"To the extent to which the government faces that issue it will be either victorious or defeated and the welfare of the great mass of the Canadian people will be enhanced or the opportunity lost."

Uncontrolled inflation was not acceptable to him, the Manitoba member continued, but "I believe the kind of preaching of sound money we have had in this country is wholly unsound. It has been sweet sounding for the receivers of interest but it has meant fury for the masses of Canadians."

If the government placed $100,000,000 behind a reconstruction purchasing board, Canadian industry would receive $1,000,000,000 in new orders, Mr. Stitt predicted. The board would act as a hopper, where farmers could place orders and receive goods, attaching liens on to their property without interest. The orders would go to Canadian manufacturers, financed by the $100,000,000 fund.

Canadians were being placed in serfdom by "this straight-jacket of interest," Mr. Stitt said, advocating compulsory rate reductions. He proposed legislation cutting 33⅓ per cent. off interest rates payable in Canada under all forms of contract. In addition, Canada might approach United States owners of Canadian bonds through the international joint commission, seeking one-third reduction rates in that country. Overtures might be made to English owners of Canadian bonds.

Claim To Be Investigated

Natural Resources Compensation To Be Discussed February 19

Edmonton.—Investigation by special commission of Alberta's claim to compensation for natural resources since the province was formed in 1905 is scheduled to get under way at Ottawa on February 19, according to information reaching here. Mr. Justice Tweedie of the Alberta supreme court will be Alberta's representative on the commission.

Saskatchewan will be joined with Alberta in pressing for compensation.

Business Shows Improvement

Montreal.—There has been a distinct improvement in business in general during the past few months and this has been immediately reflected in the output of electricity for industrial purposes, James S. Morris, president of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Cons., told the annual meeting of shareholders.

Noted Mountain Guide Dead

Cranbrook, B.C.—Conrad Kain, 50, one of Canada's most noted Alpine guides, is dead. He was credited with the only ascent of treacherous Mount Farnham in the Selkirk range and had accomplished many other notable ascents.

Disorders In Paris

Inability To Balance Budget Factor In Internal Trouble

New York.—The serious disorders in Paris commanded undivided attention in Wall Street because of the importance of France in international finance and her position as leader of the "gold bloc" nations.

The consensus in banking quarters was that if the republic is forced to abandon the international gold standard it will be because of conditions centring chiefly around balancing of the budget, rather than a desire on the part of other nations to bring about such an evenuality by importing gold.

It was generally believed that if the country should declare any sort of ban against the export of gold, it would have an adverse effect in the major financial centres of the world only for the time being.

Bankers who have studied the situation in France for some time believe the inability of the several French governments which have been in power in the last few months to balance the budget is the one factor more than anything else contributing to the internal upheaval. Important also, they pointed out, is the inflated price structure in the country and the unfavorable trade balance.

Welcomed At Naval Base

Prince George Starts Long Tour Of South Africa

Simonstown, South Africa.—With the customary naval ceremonial Prince George, who is starting a long tour of South Africa, was welcomed to the Simonstown naval base, headquarters of the African station of the royal navy.

After a civic reception, the king's youngest son visited the training ship General Botha and then went aboard the cruiser Dorsetshire, flagship of Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans —"Evans of the Broke."

Canberra, Australia. — Tentative arrangements announced for the visit several months hence of Prince George, who will also visit New Zealand, provide for his arrival at Freemantle on Oct. 4. He will come direct to Melbourne to attend centenary celebrations of Victoria state. Later he will visit all the other states.

Elect Officers At Convention

Saskatchewan Man Heads Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association

Toronto.—The Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association in convention here, passed a resolution that all money paid in grants at various exhibitions must be paid over by the exhibitions on a proportionate basis to all winning animals and not on the prize list alone, as has been the practice.

The following officers were elected: President, N. M. Ross, Indian Head, Sask.; first vice-president, Duncan Marshall, Duncan, Ont.; second vice-president, William Waldie, Stratford, Ont.; secretary-treasurer, G. E. Day, Guelph, Ont.

Amendment To Marking Act

Ottawa.—Designed to prevent deceptions in the marking of articles manufactured from precious metals, while at the same time stimulating such manufacture among the goldsmiths and silversmiths of Canada, a bill amending the Precious Metals Marking act, passing through its committee stage in the house of commons, now stands for third reading.

Supreme Judge Retires

MAYOR RINFRET

Of Montreal, who with the city executive, has decided to ask the Quebec Legislature to amend the city charter so that in 1936 and thereafter elections will take place the second Monday of November instead of in April as at present.

House Of Lords Reform

Lord Salisbury Moves For Consideration Of Reform Bill

London.—Lord Salisbury moved in the house of lords that a "humble" address be presented to the king, "praying" his majesty to consent to consideration of a bill for reform of the house of lords.

Lord Salisbury took this step because he had been criticized when he first presented the bill last December 19 for usurping the prerogative of the king. He was told he should have sought permission of his majesty to introduce the measure.

The bill would limit membership in the upper house to 320, of whom 150 would be hereditary peers, 150 chosen from outside the hereditary peerage, royal peers, a reduced number of bishops and law peers. Lord Salisbury said his scheme would give the lords sufficient powers to prevent the country being hurried into vast changes without time to consider them.

Riding The Rods

Youth Is Killed Under Wheels Of Train At Jasper

Jasper, Alta.—R.C.M.P. were investigating the death of Bill Ross, 16, Edmonton, who died under the wheels of a train in the Jasper yards after he had jumped from the tender of the engine.

With Alex. Hadden, Jasper, he was returning from Vancouver and was "riding the rods" between the tender and the first car. It is believed that he struck a slippery snow bank and skidded down to the rails. Hadden, when the train stopped at the station, returned to find the lifeless body.

Recall Revolution

Rioting In Paris Brings Back Memories Of Fateful Days Of 1871

Paris.—As mobs continued rioting in Paris, despite steps towards formation of a cabinet of national union, oldsters recalled the fateful communal revolution of 1871 when Frenchman fought against Frenchman in Paris, virtually under the eyes of the new German conquerors.

The Franco-German war ended with the capitulation of Paris, Jan. 29, 1871, after a five-month siege and bombardment.

On March 8, two weeks after the Germans had formally occupied Paris for two days, the commons was proclaimed; in other words, Paris was declared independent of any government except that chosen of its own people, regardless of any outside or central power.

The revolutionaries took over affairs and then began the second siege of Paris, a siege by French troops while victorious German troops looked on. The communards massacred foremost citizens, destroyed many fine buildings. The punishment was ruthless; 20,000 men and women were slain in the streets before the government regained control.

Railway Amalgamation

This May Happen Unless Conditions Improve, Says Hon. Cahan

Ottawa. — Amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway will be unavoidable unless there is considerable improvement in operations during the present year, Hon C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, said in addressing the annual meeting of the Ottawa Women's Conservative Association and the Conservative Women's Forum.

The minister said he did not speak for the government in making this suggestion, but that it was his considered opinion there would be no alternative to fusion of the two great railroads unless conditions improved.

Banking Committee

Fifty Members Who Will Compose Body Announced In House

Ottawa.—Of particular significance in view of the important banking legislation which will be considered during the present session, the names of the 50 members who will compose the banking and commerce committee have been announced in the house of commons.

Members from Saskatchewan include W. A. Beynon (Cons., Moose Jaw); C. E. Bothwell (Lib., Swift Current); T. F. Donnelly (Lib., Willow Bunch); E. R. MacMillan (Cons., Saskatoon); E. E. Perley (Cons., Qu'Appelle), and John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford).

ANOTHER POLITICAL PARTY FORMED IN ENGLAND

Our picture shows the leader of the newly-formed United British Party, Cecil Serocold Skeels, an organization opposed to the Fascists, seated in his office in London. Note the large Union Jack and a portrait of King George. Mr. Skeels, who will be the party's candidate in the coming by-election at Cambridge, says the United British Party is a "National Loyalist movement" which has been formed to take immediate action against the menace of a socialist dictatorship and the dark powers of delay, apathy and obstruction.

CATTLE EXPORT FROM CANADA TO BE GREATER

Calgary.—Jack Byers, manager of the Western Stock Growers' Association, has received notice from Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, that cattle shipments to the United Kingdom equalling those of 1932 would be permitted this year until June 30. An announcement from Ottawa in December had stated shipments for the first three months of 1934 would be restricted to those in the same period of 1933.

In January, February and March of last year a total of 7,863 beef animals left Canadian ports for the United Kingdom. To date this year nearly 5,000 head have gone to the overseas market and had the December ruling been followed, cattle men here say, exportations would have shortly ceased.

According to the statement from Ottawa 20,200 head of cattle will be permitted to enter the United Kingdom in the first six months of this year. In the first six months of 1933, 22,050 head left Canada, 9,667 of these being from western Canada of which 4,796 were from Alberta.

Byers said the situation for the last half of this year is still obscure. Advice from the United Kingdom indicates the quota against Irish and Canadian cattle has not had the desired effect, for British farmers' returns for home-produced beasts have not been increased, he said.

Simon Issues Warning

If Disarmament Efforts Fail Britain Must Strengthen Army

London.—Clear notice that if present disarmament efforts fail and a state of unlimited rearmament follows, the United Kingdom will have to reconsider the present levels of her own army, was sounded in the house of commons by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

Sir John, speaking in debate on disarmament, stressed the revised British plan for disarmament was a realistic plan seeking a reasonable compromise. He declared it would be followed up by a visit of Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, to Paris, Rome and Berlin to make sure the British proposals were completely understood.

The British belief that Germany's claim to equality of rights must be recognized before any progress can be made with all-round limitation and reduction of armaments was also set forth by Sir John. There was little likelihood of any peace while a great nation was held in subjection, he added.

Seriously Injured In Riot

Senator Menier Of Paris Once Well-Known In Canada

Paris.—Senator Gaston Menier, wealthy chocolate manufacturer, was beaten during the rioting in the Place de la Concorde. Knocked down and kicked, his condition was reported serious.

Senator Menier, seriously injured during the height of the Paris riots, used to be well-known in Canada where he formerly owned the large island of Anticosti, in the St. Lawrence river.

Highway Accidents

Philadelphia.—Take it from Captain W. J. Ruch, of the state highway patrol, there is no necessity for the modern automobile to be geared up to more than 50 miles an hour because "the average man is not physically or mentally capable of driving at greater speeds." That, says the troop commander, is the explanation for most accidents.

Proposed Aid For Defence

Singapore.—A proposal by the non-official members that the government of the Straits Settlements contribute $500,000 toward imperial defence will be made when the legislative council meets on February 12.

A telephone call saved the dinner

John Hendrix telephoned to his w.fe.

"I'm going to be late tonight, dear," he said. "Things at the office have piled up on me, and I can's get away for an hour or so."

"I'm glad you telephoned," said Mrs. Hendrix. "I was just going to put the dinner on, and it would have been spoiled. Call me when you're leaving."

The dinner was saved—thanks to that telephone call.

FOR GROWER-CONTROL, but

Vernon News

"I am unreservedly in favor of grower control" stated R. B. Staples, when questioned by a representative of the Vernon News as to whether or not he had expressed himself to the Plans Committee as being in favor of the plan submitted for grower control.

"As a matter of fact," continued Mr. Staples, "I have not discussed the plan as a whole with anyone connected with the Plans Studying Committee, but if Mr. Haskins and his colleagues are interpreting endorsement of their plan as nothing more than endorsement of grower control I can see no harm whatever in the statement which appeared in the Vernon News of February 1, in which it was stated that I had expressed myself in favor of the plan. Unfortunately endorsement of the principle of grower-control means very little. I cannot conceive of anyone disputing the right of the producer to control the products of his labor so long as he retains an ownership interest in those products. Therefore, stating that one is in favor of grower-control has about the same significance as stating that one is in favor of going to heaven. The important thing is not the principle of grower-control, but the important thing is the principles that are the foundation of the methods to be employed in securing this control."

"At the Vernon meeting Mr. Haskins, and his colleagues, gave me the impression that the method to be employed under their plan was based on carefully thought out principles which meant that the plan could not be changed even in detail. At the Kelowna meeting, they gave me the impression that possibly there was no feature of the plan which could not be altered provided grower-control was established. In my opinion, Mr. Haskins' committee in explaining their plan as a method of securing grower-control have failed to make clear what principles are basic and therefore cannot be changed, and what things in their plan are details and therefore suject to alteration."

"I have too much respect for the ability of Mr. Haskins to think that he is wasting time preaching the doctrine of grower-control when it is obvious that his audiences are 100 per cent. true believers. I believe that his committee have fairly firm convictions as to what principles they intend shall become the basis of the methods to be used in securing control. I am disappointed that no logical exposition of these principles has been forthcoming at the meetings I have attended. At the same time I know of no reason why one should not analyze the plan and arrive at fairly accurate conclusions as to the principles on which it is based."

"What do you think are the main ideas on which the plan is based?"

"After a careful study of this plan, or method, of controlling the fruit industry, I am convinced that it is based on two main ideas. First, the dividing of the fruit producing sections of the province into six or more districts, namely Creston, Kootenays, Grand Ferks, Okanagan and Main Line, which will become merchandising units and for which some uniform method of price control must be devised; and second y, the formation of a joint stock company in which all growers will become shareholders by means of a share contract that will bring the products of their orchards under the control of the directors of the company.

"The articles of association of this company have not been made known to the general public, if indeed they have been written. So far as I am concerned I cannot express myself as in favor of the plan until I see these articles of association. I can, however, definitely state that if these articles of association do not definitely limit the powers of this company to regulation of those matters in which the grower is directly concerned, that if these articles of association give this limited company power to pack, ship or sell fruit, then I am opposed to the plan. I do not believe that it is possible to elect from the growers at large three men who are capable of making even a reasonable attempt at merchandising the fruit crop of British Columbia.

"In like manner it is my opinion that it is quite impossible to endorse the feature of the plan which divides the province into merchandising districts until we see those important "between district" contracts that will guarantee uniformity of action in each district covering storage, export, and maintaining of prices.

"Your attitude then is one of watchful waiting?"

"Let me amend that to 'sympathetic waiting.' In my opinion the 'cake' which the industry must eat is only 'half baked' pue therefore any judgment as to its excellence is premature. Meantime it should be remembered that the Plans Committee is working under the burden of a tremendous responsibility and are deserving of every assistance from all departments of the fruit industry."

"Yimmy Yonson's Yob"

Those who have witnessed rehearsals of "Yimmy Yonson's Yob," which Canyon Dramatic Club will present i aid of the Community Hall wiring fund, say it is quite the best Canyon talent has ever tackled, with the players fitting into the parts assigned them surprisingly well. Some idea of the comedy may be had from the following synopsis: "Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kent, is accused of stealing $100,000 from his father and has seemingly committed suicide. However, he has only disguised himself as a good-natured Swede, who comes to the farm to look for a 'yob.' He does a little sly detecting, and with the aid of Pal, the city detective, who has come to solve the mystery of Bob's ghost, he finally succeeds in laying bare the plot of Frank and Sylvia to rob the old man. Belle, adopted daughter of the Kent's, is a sweet, gentle girl secretly married to Bob. Fatal Auto Accidant

Creston district's first auto mishap of the year, late Saturday night, resulted in the death of George Boyce, a quite well known resident of Canyon City, while his travelling companion. Fritz Molander of Kitchener, escaped without injury, by jumping from the ill fated car.

The two men were coming in from Kitchener to Canyon and at a point about two miles east of Erickson—about Cameron's point—for some unexplained reason the car went over the long steep bank down to Goat River. Boyce, who was driving, had no chance of escape, but as soon as Molander discovered the serious condition of his companion he went in search of help. His shouts attracted the attention of G. A. D Cameron and W. Rotzoll, who went down to the unfo tunate man, while Molander continued on to Erickson, where the police and medical help was summoned and the injured man was tr nsported up the grade and taken into Creston hospital where he died shortly after. An inquest was held Monday morning by Coroner Col. Mallandaine at which a verdict was reached "that death was the result of accident and that no blame can be attached to anyone.

"Geordie," as deceased was familiarly known has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. J. McRobb at Canyon for the past 12 years, and he was driving from Kitchener to his Canyon home when the accident occurred.

Deceased was a native of Moffat, Dumfreshire, Scotland, and came to this country in 1910, since when he had worked at mining both in the United States and at Kimberley. He was unmarried and is survived by his parents, two sisters and two brothers in Moffatt, and a brother at Pearce, Alberta.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon from Trinity United Church, Creston, with Rev. A. Walker officiating. The pallbearers were J. McRobb, G. Niblow, Vic. Grundy and Martin Nelson, and those remembering with flowers were Mr. and Mrs. McRobb and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lowerison, Mr. and Mrs. F. Molander, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Tooze, and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Davis of Rossland.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Approximately $15,000,000 would be required for a works program to meet British Columbia's employment demands, Premier T. D. Pattullo announces.

Capt. D'Arcy Martin, of Victoria, has been named sergeant-at-arms in the British Columbia legislature, it was announced by H. G. Perry of Prince George, the speaker-designate.

The decision of Mr. Speaker Black to stop women knitting in the galleries while listening to debates in the house of commons was taken as a blow at the yarn making industry by one company.

Senator Raoul Dandurand, K.C., former president of the assembly of the League of Nations, has been named president of the University of Montreal. He succeeds Senator F. L. Beique, who died Sept. 1, 1933.

Establishment of a birth control clinic in Winnipeg will be the aim of the Winnipeg Birth Control society as soon as funds permit, a meeting of the organization here was told by Mrs. W. F. Osborne, chairman of the society.

"Time is running against the friends of disarmament," warned Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, before a crowded and deeply attentive house of commons as he initiated a full-dress debate on disarmament.

Amos Williams, 76, veteran of the Northwest Rebellion of 1885 and staff-sergeant of the famed 90th Winnipeg Rifles (Little Black Devils), until a few years ago, died in Winnipeg recently. Mr. Williams came to Manitoba 57 years ago from Cornwall, Eng. William Williams of Moose Jaw is a son.

Says Farmers Should Observe Instructions Of Entomologists

Wheat acreage reduction in the next crop year would offer no difficulties if the farmers in the grasshopper-plagued sections observe the instructions of the entomologists, assisting them in fighting this plague, Hon. W. M. Aseltine, Rosetown, told the senate.

The farmers have been advised not to attempt wheat seeding on areas over which the insects laid their eggs last fall, and that area would constitute more than would be necessary to achieve the 15 per cent. acreage reduction, he said.

NEON

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Flashing their messages in brilliant hues across the skies, neon signs have in recent years become a familiar sight in almost every community. They receive their name from the gas, neon, which is used in their manufacture, and which is one of a rare family known as the inert gases.

Neon was discovered in 1904 by Sir William Ramsay, an English chemist, but it was not used extensively for commercial purposes until the last decade. It is obtained from the air, where it is found in small amounts, namely in the ratio of twelve parts of neon to one million parts of air. Its chief uses are for illumination and for testing spark plugs in gas engines.

Neon signs consist of glass tubes containing small quantities of the gas. An electric current is passed through the tube, causing the neon to become illuminated. The glow produced by neon is found to penetrate fog much more clearly than ordinary white light, and hence it is used extensively in England to guide traffic during fogs. At the Lympne aerodrome in England, on the London-Paris air route, there are huge beacons made by passing neon through glass tubes twenty feet long, and producing an illumination of six thousand candle-power.

In testing spark plugs of gas engines, tubes containing neon are used, a brilliant pink-orange glow showing when the spark plugs are in order.

Neon is known as an "inert" gas because it belongs to a family of elements which have neither color nor odor, and do not combine with any other elements. Helium, used extensively for inflating balloons and dirigibles is another member of this family. Argon, used commercially for filling the best types of light bulbs is another inert gas. Less well-known members of the same family are krypton and xenon.

Good For All Time

Silver tickets 176 years old and good for all time are still used by their holders as passes to the best seats in Britain's oldest theatre, it has been revealed. This playhouse is not in London, as might be supposed, but is the Theatre Royal, at Bristol. The silver tickets, admitting the bearer to any performance were presented to subscribers when the house was inaugurated in 1766, and mostly have been handed down to their descendants.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS' POWER TO HELP

Golden Text: "I desire mercy, and not sacrifice; for I came not to call the righteous, but sinners" Matthew 9:13.

Lesson: Matthew 8:1—9:34.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 35:1-6.

Explanations And Comments

Jesus Came Not to Call the Righteous, But Sinners, 9:10-13. How could Matthew better honor his new-found Master than by letting his friends know him, too? He invited Jesus and others to a feast in his house (Lk. 5:29). As Jesus reclined at table, many publicans and sinners entered and sat with Jesus and the disciples. "Publicans and sinners" are often classed together in the Gospels. The word "sinners" in this connection does not necessarily mean evil men; more often it means men who fail to perform the stated rites required by the religious leaders. The Pharisees regarded with greater abhorrence a man who transgressed the traditions of the elders than a man of immoral life. Pharisees were also uninvited guests at the feast. It was customary for uninvited guests to present themselves at feasts as onlookers and even to engage in conversation with the guests. These Pharisees at once found fault with Jesus, complaining to the disciples that their Master ate with publicans and sinners. Jesus answered for the disciples: "They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick." The force of this argument is, of course, that as a physician labors among the sick, so the Physicians of Souls must labor among sinners. The Pharisees knew the words of their Scriptures, but their failure to apply them showed that they did not know their true meaning, and Jesus rebuked them, saying, "Go ye and learn what this meaneth, I desire mercy and not sacrifice"—a quotation from Hosea 6:6. The Pharisees were particular not to eat with publicans and sinners lest they break one of their ceremonial laws, but they would not show them a kindness: they cared for sacrifice, the externals of their religion, and not for mercy, the religious spirit. "For I came not to call the righteous"—and the Pharisees deemed themselves righteous—"but sinners."

PROVED BY 2 GENERATIONS

Marvels of the Human Eye

By F. M. CROWE, Optometrist-Optician, Calgary

NO. 9—ARE HUMAN EYES DEGENERATING?

This question is frequently asked by people who observe closely the steadily increasing number of "glass-wearers" as compared with a generation ago. The answer is—No. The eyes of the present generation are in no wise better or weaker than those of our ancestors unless it can be proved that the whole physique of the race has degenerated. As is the whole physical body so are the eyes.

But much more is required of our eyes today than formerly. The unprecedented growth of manufacturing and commercial life, the strenuous struggle for existence, the ever increasing complexity of modern civilization, the knowledge of the world in all lines of human endeavour, knowledge that must be mastered to achieve success, put far greater strain on the eyes to-day than heretofore. Our schools are far more exacting and severe, the business and scientific worlds require closer application and more painstaking care than ever before. Electricity has turned night into day making it possible to do much work by artificial illumination that was formerly impossible and unnecessary. All this then requires the use of sharper vision and more hours per day of it than was necessary in former times and because of these exacting demands on the eyes, latent imperfections and errors of refraction causing eyestrain, are made manifest by symptoms of discomfort and distress, compelling us to seek improvement of vision and the comfort afforded by proper glasses.

Investigation has shown that primitive races of men have the same irregularities of the eyes as we have, the difference lies in the use to which they are put. So when Nature gives the warning signals—common sense would say—take heed.

Wireless Operator Thought Ship Had Struck A Rock

The Dollar liner President Taft, bound from San Francisco to New York, struck a giant whale when 1,027 miles northwest of Balboa.

"The impact was terrific," the liner's wireless operator messaged. "I thought we'd hit a rock. The boat trembled violently and the passengers all ran out on deck."

He said the whale appeared stunned after the shock and remained on the surface, forcing the President Taft to reverse and detour around it.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she coves of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis is stunned and Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla decides that she must leave the home of her adopted parents immediately and go to live with Rose, her sister, who is a file clerk in a business house. They decide to take an apartment. Bowman and Weeks, an advertsing agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. After a conference with Mr Bowman, Camilla decides to attempt the work. With ideas running riot in her head she goes home and spends the night sketching. In the morning, armed with her samples she sets out for the agency.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXX

It was a question which girl had received the sudden announcement of Peter's marriage with more disappointment and amazement, Avis or Sylvia. To Avis, however, it was merely another obstacle in the path toward her ambition. To Sylvia, it presaged a certain finality for the two possibilities she had visioned, and for which she had been playing a double hand. As she exclaimed to her astonished image when she read the announcement in the society column of the morning paper, "Well for crying at the moon! Who woulda thought they could fool everyone like that? Uhm, uhm, I guess that lays me out with flowers, all right, either way you look at it. I'll bet the high and mighty Avis Werth feels like a puckered up green apple, herself."

The shrilling of the telephone bell interrupted her monologue. "Uhm! the green apple herself, I'll bet."

"Yeah, hello," she drawled, and nodded her head with confirmation toward her silent audience of one, in the mirror.

"You've seen the latest news?" inquired Avis.

"I just read it, and as if you read my mind, the 'phone rings. I guessed it was you right away."

"Clever of you, I'm sure. But you haven't been so clever with Mr. Anson as you expected to be."

"Well, and isn't this good enough proof of the reason why? A new bride—what would you expect of me with such competition as that? I guess it surprised even you, didn't it? Not much chance for either of us, there."

"Either of us?" surprised.

"Well, you know what I mean. No chance for me to vamp him away from the Hoyt girl so you could take him over in sympathy," and she added to herself, "Fine chance you'd a had at him if I had got that far!"

"I don't know why not!"

"You don't mean you're not ready to give him up, yet?"

"Why should I? Just because a man is married doesn't mean that he's chained to a life sentence, does it? In fact, this particular situation makes it easier to break up. But I'll take the affair into my own hands, I'll take the affair into my own hands,

"But, say," Sylvia objected, "I gotta finish my work for him, even if he's married. I wouldn't be so mean as to cheat a fellow like that when he's done nothing to me. Besides, I have some pride in the ethics of my profession, and my reputation. Models don't desert an employer in the middle of a piece of work."

"Suit yourself about that," Avis agreed indifferently, "but you needn't worry about quitting me in the middle of a piece of work. I won't need your services longer, and if you see a new tenant in Annex Hall soon, don't recognize me."

"Okay with me, Miss Werth. Rent two studios in the Annex Hall, for all I care."

"By the way, you will be wise if you drop your efforts to attract Mr. Anson."

"Say, I'm only too glad not to be under obligation to think up new ways for thawing out that iceberg," she retorted, but her blue eyes twinkled with the thought. "Being under obligation no more, let's me out. But I guess if he is still ripe cherries for you, he is for me, too, your highness!"

But when Sylvia went to Peter's studio on the following day to pose, she experienced a new and kindlier interest in the man and his work. She twitted him in her characteristic gay manner.

"So! young man, you've been misrepresenting yourself to me as a bachelor, and all the time you were a married man, with a trusting wife concealed in your private life."

"Well, I guess I've given you no cause for complaint," he laughed easily.

"I'll say you haven't," she admired. "But say, I'd like to see the girl that stirred you up enough to lead you to the marriage license bureau and then keep it a secret."

"You may, any time you wish. I'll have Camilla run in some day and meet you. She would like to, I'm sure."

"Camilla—swell name. Is she as beautiful as her name sounds?"

"Ever so much more beautiful!" he declared proudly.

Sylvia reflected upon that with haste. "More beautiful than I am?"

"I wouldn't say that—no. But your types are so different, I couldn't compare you. She is about your size, but has dark eyes and black hair."

"Then I was wasting my time, anyway," she shrugged with good humor. "I might have known a blond gentleman like you would prefer a brunette. Well, good luck to you two, and that means we had better get to work."

"Thanks, yes, it does," Peter replied. "I have to get this thing ready to cast the mold in another week, or I won't be ready for the exhibit, after all."

Several days later, when Sylvia came again to Peter's studio, she observed that the hall was strewn with crates and boxes

"Someone moving in across the hall?" she asked him.

"Looks like it, doesn't it?"

"Well, it'll be nice to have near neighbors. You're sort of alone up at this end of the hall."

"That's why I took this room. That suite across the hall is twice as large as this and twice as much rent, and I didn't think it was likely to be occupied very soon."

"Know who it is?"

"Haven't the slightest idea. Nor do I care. I am going to be so busy for the next month that I can't even say hello to anyone."

"Oh, yeah?" thought Sylvia. "Well, they might say more than hello to you," but she said no more to Peter.

When Camilla telephoned Mr. Bowman on the morning after her first conference with his executives, and announced that she had samples ready to submit to him, he exclaimed with dismay and disappointment, "But, Miss Hoyt, surely you haven't—what I mean is, we want you to take your time, even though we are anxious to have your suggestions as soon as possible."

"That was what I understood," she agreed patiently, "and they are ready now."

"Very well. We shall be glad to see them whenever you can come in." But his voice indicated that he expected to be keenly disappointed, because no one could produce a worthwhile suggestion and the evidence within less than twenty-four hours.

Camilla, however, arranged the precious ink and color drawings in the order she wished to display them and drove downtown confidently. The two hours of sleep had refreshed her unbelievably, and the inspiration of the previous day still made her heart light and her thoughts hopeful. Of course, she conceded the possibility that the work was not as good as she believed it to be, but she was no less eager for the verdict of her judges.

She even detected a less cordial attitude in Mr. Bowman's greeting, she thought. Or was it only her imagination? He appeared already to feel the disappointment which he anticipated in her hasty work.

After all, he thought, like every young hopeful, the prospect had stimulated her imagination and she had leaped into the first idea that came to her, with visions of sudden fame and wealth. That was what everyone was looking for these days—nothing less—an elevator to success and wealth. Ladders to success were obsolete, along with one-hoss shays and celluloid collars.

Mr. Bowman had called a second conference with less optimism, and Camilla found herself once more seated at his right, with six men surrounding the polished walnut table. Her fingers trembled a little—with fatigue or apprehension—as she opened the portfolio and laid the drawing before them.

"Perhaps I had better explain the idea briefly before you look at these," she suggested modestly.

"Very well, Miss Hoyt."

What do our heavy hearts prove but that other things are sweeter to us than His will, that we have not attained to the full mastery of our true freedom, the full perception of its power, that our sonship is not yet realized, and its blessedness not yet proved and known.
