LABOR DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

HEAVY RAINS IN THE MORNING DISCOURAGING BUT A BRIGHT AFTERNOON MADE ALL HAPPY

It looked badly for Labor Day when the skies became clouded and about ten o'clock the rain began to come down in torrents. It was just after the trains from the east, west and north had come in and the streets were lined with people. Rain, no, it was not a rain, it was a flood. And how the hundreds scurried for shelter. Into hotels, into stores, into new buildings under construction, anywhere to escape from the fury of the elements. And the women and children. It was for them that the hearts of the people warmed in sympathy. The men could take care of themselves, but it was different with the women and children. But in an half hour the clouds began to break away, and the multitude began to grow more hopeful for the day. And they were not disappointed, for soon Old Sol broke from the environment of the lowering clouds and kept his promise with the people to do all that he could to make the day a success. Glorious Sol. By his kindly act he wrested victory from the jaws of defeat, and what promised to be a day dank, dark and dismal, was turned into one of pleasing sunshine and tropical warmth. Hearts that had been saddened and weary became blythe and gaysome, and the fathers and mothers, the sisters and brothers, the lovers and the sweethearts, who had come from Waldo, on the lower Kootenay, to the Skookumchuck on the north, from the land of the pear and the strawberry at Creston to the mountain peaks of the Wild Horse, from the coke and coal town of Fernie, the great mining town of Moyie, from the St. Marys valley, the hilltops of Perry Creek, in fact from all over this great district came hundreds and hundreds of people to join with the Labor Day committee to have a good time, to enjoy the great annual day of rest, and to do all in their power to make the day a success. And how they did succeed. Everybody had a good time. Everybody felt happy. Everybody was ready and willing to forgive the lord of the elements for the unpleasant diversion in the morning when the rain came down so hard. They cheered at the ball game in the morning. They went crazy over the ball game in the evening. They yelled their heads off over the horse races. They urged on the men in the drilling contests by their enthusiasm. They became partisan in the logging contests. They had their favorites in the jumping and the foot races. And when it came to the hose reel race, and owing to the muddy streets no one was dissatisfied when the matter was settled by cutting the money into and tossing for the trophy which Fernie won. It was a good natured crowd, a good natured day, and closed with a good natured boxing contest that violated no statues of the province of British Columbia against prize fighting. It was a great day and the Labor Day committee are to be congratulated on the manner it turned out with all the handicaps that prevailed. The parade was not what the committee had wanted or expected, but the threatening weather proved a detriment. It showed, however, that the laboring forces were organized in the district, and they were able to make a most excellent showing. The band of hope, under the guidance of Rev. Hughes, of the Methodist church, composed of many little girls and boys, was an innovation, and received much praise. Lack of space prevents the Herald from giving more of the details, but below will ae seen the report of Secretary White on the winners in the various contests:

THE BALL GAME.

A purse of $50 was provided by the committee for a baseball game, open to all South East Kootenay, and another hundred dollars was added to this by the supporters of the game in Cranbrook. There were but three entries for the match, namely: Fernie, Wycliffe and Cranbrook, and this necessitated one of the teams playing two games, and it was decided that the first game should start immediately after the parade and the third team should play the winner of this game late in the afternoon, thus giving time for the winners to rest up. The names of the three teams were placed in a hat by A. McCowan and a committee consisting of Messrs. Doyle of Fernie, Yates of Wycliffe, and J. Reed of Cranbrook, proceeded to draw for the bye, with the result that Cranbrook secured it, and Fernie and Wycliffe were called on to play the first game.

It was about one o'clock when Umpire Bates started the game and Wycliffe went to bat but failed to score. Fernie succeeded in doing better in their half, three men crossing the plate before the side was retired. Wycliffe again failed to score in the second, notwithstanding the fact that the majority of the crowd were rooting for them, while Fernie chalked up two more to their credit, and although they failed to connect in the third they secured two runs in both the 4th and 5th and one in the 6th, making a total of ten during the game. In the third Wycliffe secured their first run but failed to connect again until the 8th, when they sent two men across the plate and repeated the act in the 9th, but were unable to overcome Fernie's lead and the game ended with the score 10-5 in Fernie's favor, but had the Wycliffe pitcher been given the support he was entitled to the story would have been different.

Although the game between Fernie and Cranbrook had been announced for 5 o'clock it was nearer 6 when they got started, but it was well worth waiting for and the immense crowd that witnessed it were of the unanimous opinion that it was the best exhibition of baseball ever witnessed in the Kootenays. Fernie was first to bat, but retired in one, two, three order and the Cranbrook rooters tore up the ground in their glee, but it was short-lived as Fernie proceeded to hand out a bunch of the same medicine, and then the Fernie crowd proceeded to make things howl. But things were just beginning to warm up and the first half of the second resulted in another goose egg going on the board for Fernie, while in the last half Cranbrook succeeded in getting a man past Catcher Whelan before being retired and the Cranbrookites showed their appreciation in a most uproarious manner. In the third the story was reversed, Fernie scoring one, while Cranbrook secured the cypher and the game was tied and the supporters of both teams begun to realize the seriousness of the strife and the way they rooted for their respective towns the next few innings would do credit to a bunch of Chicago "fans." The fourth inning failed to change the result, both sides being retired without a run, but in the fifth pandemonium was turned loose when Cranbrook secured two runs after shutting their opponents out. But lo and behold, no sooner were the Cranbrookites hopes raised to the sky than they were dashed to the ground again as in the first half of the sixth Fernie tallied twice and then retired the Cranbrook team so quickly that they hardly realized how it happened. The seventh resulted in a goose egg for both and in the first half of the eighth Fernie again secured two, thus placing them in the lead for the first time, but Cranbrook was out for blood and succeeded in tieing the score in their half. The ninth opened with every member of both teams playing ball for all they were worth and the rooters making a racket that was heard in Fort Steele. Darkness was rapidly coming on and all realized that if the tie was not broken that inning the game would be a draw as, they would be unable to see to play another inning. Fernie did their best but were unable to score. Cranbrook came to bat and before they realized what was happening

THE CITY COUNCIL

LOTS OF TALK BUT VERY LITTLE BUSINESS TRANSACTED—THE MAYOR HAD HIS CLUB

The city council met in regular session last evening with Mayor Finlay and Aldermen McCowan, Hickenbotham, Ryan, Gill and Fink present. City Clerk Roberts and City Solicitor Thompson occupied their regular places.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

A communication from Government Agent Armstrong was read, notifying the council that the lockup quarters would be leased to the city at a nominal rent and that the charge for taking care of government prisoners should be fifty cents a day. The letter was received and filed.

Moved by Alderman Hickenbotham and seconded by Alderman Gill that $100 be donated for the entertainment of the editors on the 13th of this month. Aldermen McCowan, Hickenbotham, Fink and Gill all expressed themselves in favor of the proposition and the motion prevailed by a unanimous vote. Aldermen Fink and McCowan were appointed as members of the reception committee to represent the city council.

Moved by Alderman Gill, seconded by Alderman McCowan that the clerk be instructed to ask the aid of the government agent in stopping people from dumping garbage on any place except the public nuisance ground. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Gill, seconded by Alderman McCowan, that the services of Street Commissioner Lamb be dispensed with after September 5. Carried.

Moved by Alderman McCowan, seconded by Alderman Hickenbotham, that $213 be advanced to the Fink Mercantile company on account of money paid out for uniforms for the fire department, which will be later refunded to the city. Carried.

The monthly accounts, amounting to $2,277.72, as approved by the finance committee, were passed by the council.

Moved by Alderman McCowan, seconded by Alderman Hickenbotham, that Alderman Fink, who is also chief of the fire department, be sent as a delegate to the convention of British Cofumbia fire chiefs to be held at Nelson this month and that his expenses be paid. The mayor thought that $20 was enough for expenses or such a trip, and as Mr. Fink neither protested or voted, the motion as suggested by the mayor prevailed.

After receiving satisfactory explanation the amount of $6 paid by Alderman Hickenbotham for pound fees was refunded on the motion of Alderman Fink, seconded by Alderman Gill, Alderman Hickenbotham not voting.

The council then adjourned at 12 and the mayor went to his home at the Sullivan mine happy.

THE DEATH OF A PIONEER OF EAST KOOTENAY

(Written for the Herald by R. L. T. Galbraith.)

There passed away at St. Eugene hospital on Saturday morning last R. C. Dore, a pioneer of the Kootenays, who came to the country in 1864.

Mr. Dore was only ill for a short time and his death was particularly sad, as his wife who had not seen him for some time, came from San Francisco to pay him a visit, and found him ill, and soon it was necessary to remove him to the hospital at Cranbrook, from Wild Horse creek, where he had lived for many years and where he had a mineral claim, which he had been developing for some time.

In his last brief illness he was attended by a loving and devoted wife and had the skilful nursing of the Sisters of Charity, who did everything possible to alleviate his sufferings. He was buried on Sunday last in the public cemetery at Cranbrook and his remains were followed by a large concourse of friends, showing the respect and esteem in which the deceased was held in the community.

A brief sketch of the life of the late pioneer may not be uninteresting:

Robert C. Dore, better known as "Bob," by all old timers, was born in the west of Ireland of Irish-English parents, who were in comfortable circumstances and who gave him a fairly good education. He came to America at an early age and was for a time in the Eastern States. Like many others, he was attracted to California by the discovery of gold, and reached there in the 50's. He mined successfully in many of the northern camps in California, going from there with the "rush" in search for gold to Idaho and Montana. He came to the Kootenay district in 1864. In the year 1863 some half-breeds from the Flathead country, Montana, paid a visit to the district and on their way to the Columbia lakes stopped at Finlay creek and after prospecting for some time, they discovered good gold indications just above the canyon, where, in a crude way, they washed out some five or six hundred dollars worth, which they took back with them to Montana and disposed of it at Missoula. The discovery was not long kept secret and the following spring a number of old Montana and California miners started for Kootenay from the Flathead valley, amongst the party led by Jack Fisher, was R. C. Dore. When they reached what is now known as Wild Horse they camped a short distance from where Fort Steele now is and prospected from the mouth of the canyon and at Saw Mill flat up the creek and on to the bars and in the creek good indications of gold were found, so a number of them decided to take up locations and work the ground. Amongst them was Dore, who was from that date until 1872 identified with its progress and development. Jack Fisher located ground on the east side of the creek, which proved fabulously rich. Dore and others took up ground on the west side and after working the bed of the creek successfully he afterwards joined with a number of others and brought in a water ditch to cover the gravel benches, which, upon being prospected, proved a paying investment. The richness of Wild Horse creek spread rapidly and about four thousand miners came into the country to try their luck.

R. C. Dore mined on the creek until 1872, with varied success, and then left for the Cassier country with the Price Bros., now of Parsons' Bridge, Victoria, where he opened a wayside house, which proved very remunerative. He afterwards settled in San Francisco and took an active part in politics, and was appointed superintendent of the house of correction, which office he filled during his term with great credit. He afterward drifted to Arizona, where he engaged in the cattle business, but owing to sickness in his family and the loss of an only son he decided to return to San Francisco, where he engaged in politics again and held the office of street superintendent and deputy sheriff. He afterwards went to Montana, where he held a position in the Butte smelter under Marcus Daly, from there going again to San Francisco, but his old love and faith in the Kootenays lured him again to Wild Horse creek, where he has lived for the last 15 or 16 years.

R. C. Dore was a man widely known for his many generous acts, liberal and large hearted, when he had it, he was always ready to share his last dollar with a friend, or espouse the cause of anyone who had a grievance that he thought should be redressed. He leaves a widow and daughter to mourn his loss.

When the history of Kootenay is written the name of Bob Dore should not be overlooked, a man who tried to do his part in opening up and developing its mineral resources, and now that he is gone let us cover the few faults he may have had with the broad mantle of charity and let our prayer be "peace to his ashes."

Of the old pioneers of 1864 only a few remain. They were a noble band of energetic and fearless men, who did a great and good work in bringing to the notice of the outside world the vast resources of our wonderful Kootenay district. The hardships which these men endured very few of the present residents can realize.

ANOTHER SKETCH

Following is a sketch of Robert Dore that appeared in the Cranbrook Herald's Christmas annual three years ago:

Mr. Robert L. Dore is, without doubt, one of the most interesting characters to be met with today in Western America. He was born at Birdhill, near Eenagh, Ireland, on the 22nd February, 1855, and came to the States when quite a young fellow. Long as he has lived in the west he still retains certain inflections of speech, which, to one whose ear is attuned to the rhythm of the Irish tongue, stamp him as a true son of the Island of Destiny. Judged by his sir name, he probably is a descendant of some of the old French families, many of whom settled in and around Limerick and North Tipperary after the disastrous wars of the Cromwellian period. Owing to a severe attack of malaria, contracted in Montana many years ago, his health is not as robust as his many friends would wish, still, the spirit which never knew fear yet burns in his dark grey eyes. Every old-timer vouches for it that Bob Dore was a man who knew no fear. For all that, he was no fighting man; on the contrary he personally maintained order, and when occasion required it, strictly enforced right and justice. As might be expected of such a man, he permitted no invasion of his own rights.

The story is told, and not denied by Mr. Dore, that on one occasion some of his claims were jumped, without any show of authority, by a gang of men from Montana. He went up to where the party was working, and, standing on the bank, ordered them off his ground. He told them he wanted no shooting, but if any man in the company thought he had a better right to the claims than he (Dore) had, then let him come up before him at ten paces and settle the question by a fight to a finish with six-shooters. There was not a man in the crowd who dared to join issue with him. They left the claims there and then, and quitted the camp soon after. When showing the nickel property to the writer, he had occasion to get a heavy ladder up from a shaft which had about a dozen feet of water in the bottom of it. To a younger man it would have been difficult, but to a man of his age and state of health, it was nothing short of a feat of daring hardihood. It was bravely typical of the man.

The following facts were picked up by the writer during a walk over the nickel property and along the site of the old town of Wild Horse.

"Before I started from Walla Walla for Finlay creek in the early spring of '64, I had mined all over the Northwestern States, including California, Idaho, Nevada and Oregon. I had spent the winter of '63 in Walla Walla, and as soon as the weather permitted, my companions and I, five of us, set out for the new diggings. From the time we passed the place where Spokane now is, we never saw the face of a white man. Trails there were none. Men who were trained to, as we were, could notice where once a horse had gone before. The Finlays had been over the ground, but we had to blaze our own trail wherever the forest was thick, over windfalls, through swamps, and over and around all kinds of obstructions. We carried only the barest necessities for our purposes, and depended for meat on our rifles. The mischief of it is that you always find that it's when you most want meat that deer grow scarce, as if by magic. I suppose it is the same with most things we particularly want.

"No. We did not go near Finlay creek at all. We rather liked the appearance of the crack in the mountains which holds Wild Horse creek, and determined to give it a trial. Investigation proved it was all right, further prospecting showed it was all right—bright with gold. The world of today holds nothing like it. Never will, either. It is not in it. See that spot there by the old Chinaman's little garden? That is where I first put up my stakes. I took out of it $1, $5, $10 and $20 to the pan of dirt, and a pan will not hold over a dozen pounds weight of gravel. I went back down the creek and told my partners what I had found. My partners, those who came with me from Walla Walla, were Len Harris, Jack Carroll, known as "Curly Jack," Pat O'Donnell and Billy Witcher. You will note that a couple of them were, like yourself, Irish. We decided to stake a number of discovery claims the next day. When I went up in the morning a crowd of Montana men were digging away for all they were worth. I made them go away.

"Say nothing about that," said Mr. Dore. "I want no talk about it. It was nothing. Sure, they would not fight. That's all there's to it." At any rate, we got five discovery claims and bought five more afterwards. Those claims formed the ground of the Dore company, as it was called. Where we are standing now, though, as you can see, it is at present only a dirty huddle of Chinese shacks, crowded one against another, as if they had not the whole big, wide gulch to build on, was once a fine town, with big stores, hotels, saloons, and dear knows how many hurdy-gurdy dance houses. Ay, and a teeming population of men, all men mind you, desperately in earnest in trying to get the gold out of the dirt. The town was mostly built over our ground. We had legal authority to order the houses to be moved on a three day's notice. If they were not moved we could pull them down as we came to work the ground on which they stood. Out of this place, which was the principal street—if I can so describe it—we took at least $500,000. You see that corner? A saloon stood there once. It was there that Yeast Powder Bill shot Walker in a drunken quarrel. Bill got out of the camp in a hurry. I followed him. I got the drop on him and marched him back. He was tried by a jury of the boys, who acquitted him of murder. I ordered him out of the camp inside half an hour. He went. It was better for him. I heard he shot two men in Bingham gulch, Utah, afterwards. Some say he became the head of the vigilantes of Montana. If so, I am sorry for the vigilantes.

"Once we had a very nice young fellow here named Lawson. He was our policeman. He was game as they make them. He was murdered near this place by a scoundrel named Brown. This Brown, it appears, was lying in Victoria jail under sentence for selling whiskey to the Indians. In the jail, at the same time, were certain white men and Indians awaiting execution for murder. The authorities could find no one to act as hangman. Brown undertook the job in consideration of a remission of his sentence. He did the work. Soon after he officiated in a similar scene on the Fraser river. People shunned him, he was rigorously boycotted. That country got too hot to hold him, so he started for Wild Horse, thinking he would not be known here. To help him on his journey he helped himself to two horses belonging to a Scotsman who lived near Colville. The Scotsman followed him on here. Lawson was ordered by the gold commissioner to go out and arrest him. I told Lawson, who was my friend, to take some men with him. "I'll fetch him in," said Lawson. That was the last I saw of him alive. Soon after his departure an Indian came in saying that Brown had shot him. We at once brought in all the horses and blocked every trail of the country. Some of the boys went this way, some went that; I headed for Tobacco Plains, thinking that the most likely way he would make for the States. I was not in luck. If I got my eyes on him, the ruffian—well, the boys who went to Bonner's Ferry fell in with Mr. Brown and naturally shot him up to his just reward.

"I was the first man to put in a hydraulic plant on Wild Horse creek. By the same token, it was on the site of the nickel property, which we have just seen, that the first nozzle ever stirred dirt in British Columbia. The pipe I used was similar to fire engine hose, but it was six inches in diameter. It was reinforced on the outside with heavy rope netting, so that it could resist a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch. I never worked at such a pressure, but wanted to make sure of my gear. I had it specially made for me at San Francisco, and I need not say it was terribly expensive between the cost of a special style of plant to turn it out and the freight rates of those times. All the same, it paid for itself ten times over.

"By 1870 the gulch had seen its best days. By that date it had ceased to be a poor man's camp, as the shallow gravel had all been worked out. The general appearance of things has not altered much since then.

"In '70 I went to San Francisco, where I enjoyed life, even as I did for many a year after. I had money to throw to the birds. I did throw away a deal of it, mostly, I am proud to say, in helping my fellow countrymen, and the land that gave me birth in her struggle against unjust laws. We can live but once. Thank God I have known the luxury of doing a fellow man a service of some value, when friends were scarce, and dollars still scarcer. So much for the past—'tis gone back to Him who sent it.

"Speaking of what amount of gold came out of Wild Horse creek, I put it at $15,000,000.

"I had the means of knowing, because I had water rights to sell, and so had inside information of what was really got out. There was a government duty imposed, but it was evaded in a thousand different ways. The official figures are no where near true, nor to they approximate the truth by many millions of dollars. I know that men paid duty on probably a tenth of what they got out of the dirt. Many never paid a cent. It was pretty hard for the government to keep check on the output when the very owners had more than they could do to prevent wholesale robbery from their claims.

"As for the future, all I can say is that I agree entirely with Dave Griffith in saying that there is as much gold in the gulch as ever came out of it. You see around mountains of untouched gravel. There is the Nip-and-Tuck property on the other side of the creek. They have ground enough to keep the creek busy for the next forty years. They also have the control of all the water rights from Fisher creek to Brewery creek. Amongst the owners are Dave Griffith and Mr. Galbraith, of Fort Steele. I have a fair share of untouched ground, too, but nothing like what I had in early days. The Lily May is a splendid property. The quartz in it runs as high as $3000 to the ton in free gold.

"I don't know what is the cause of the dry rot, the death in life, which has infested this wonderful country of ours. It must be that the men of the present day haven't the grip and determination of those men I knew in the early days. What do they do? If they haven't the muscle to get at the gold, then I'm thinking they haven't the brains either, to persuade people with more pluck and more money that the gold is still here for the digging, delving and hydraulicing. I tell you, the men of the old times would get the gold out or else get the money in to win it from the ground.

"Come down to the shack with me and have some lunch. Another time you must stay with me for a few days, and I'll be delighted to teach you something of the old channels of the Wild Horse which have never been even touched."

Mountain air is a fine appetiser, so I was only too glad to go down with the old gentleman, and thoroughly enjoyed his hospitality. Some good day I hope to go back and learn the secrets of a gulch which turned out $15,000,000 in the good red gold in a year or two of its infancy.

WOMEN CLIMB CROWS NEST

(The Frank Paper)

The first women ever to attempt the hazardous climb of the Crows Nest mountain, the queen of the Rockies, which was never climbed until three years ago, were members of a party of seven young people who made a successful ascent of the mountain one day last week. They were the Misses L. Marshall, a young lady who is visiting at Reliance, and who has juite a reputation as a mountain climber, and Helen Hatch, of Lethbridge. The party was led by P. D. and D. M. McTavish, the well known brothers of Scranton Correspondence school fame, who are members of the Canadian Alpine club and who are noted as two of the most intrepid mountain climbers in the west. The other members of the party were G. Hyde and the Rev. Alex. Gordon, of Lethbridge, and Gilbert Marshall, brother of Miss Marshall, of Reliance. Miss Lucile Eckstorm, of Lethbridge, and the Rev. T. M. Murray, of Coleman, started with the party and reached the mountain proper, above timber line, but the work there was found to be too severe for Miss Eckstorm and she was obliged to drop out, Mr. Murray remaining behind with her.

The party left Coleman Monday and proceeded to the McLaren lumber camps at the foot of the mountain where the members camped for the night. An early start up the mountain was made Tuesday morning and so strenuous was the work that the top was not reached until after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The work was most arduous and a rope was worn for safety but to the credit of the pluck and general climbing abilities of the ladies it is to be recorded that the rope was not used even to assist them. After depositing the names of the party in a cairn erected by the Swiss climbers who made the first ascent three years ago, and partaking of lunch, the return trip was begun. It was after dark when the party arrived back at the logging camp for the night.

DOCTORS IN TURN FAILED BUT ZAM-BUK CURED.

Magistrate F. Rasmussen, writing from his residence, 211 Marquette St., Montreal, says: "I take genuine pleasure in informing you of the great good I have derived from Zam-Buk. For many years I was troub'ed with a serious eruption of the skin, which was both unsightly and painful. Not one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but I was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I noticed a report from a Justice of the Peace who had been cured of a chronic skin disease by Zam-Buk, and I determined to give this balm a trial. After a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with it. While everything else I tried—salves, embrocations, washes, soaps and doctor's prescriptions failed absolutely to relieve my pain, three boxes of Zam-Buk have worked a complete cure. In my opinion this balm should be even more widely known than it is, and in the hope that my experience will lead other sufferers to try this herbal healer, I have no objection to you publishing this letter. Yours truly, (Signed) F. RASMUSSEN, Justice of the Peace.

Summer eczema, rashes, sunburn patches, children's heat sores or babies' chafing sores, cuts burns, bruises, insect bites and stings and all skin injuries and diseases yield to Zam-Buk. All stores and medicine vendors sell at 50c a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 6 boxes for $2.50. (C. E. Pol. for price. lord, Limited.)

A HORRIBLE CATASTROPHE

THE GREAT QUEBEC BRIDGE COLLAPSES KILLING 85 MEN

Quebec, Aug. 29.—From 80 to 90 lives were lost tonight by the collapse of the half-finished cantilever bridge over the St. Lawrence, nine miles above the city, and four million dollars' worth of steel superstructure, made by the Phoenix Bridge company, lies at the bottom of the river a twisted mass of scrap iron.

The disaster occurred at 5.30 p.m., just before the men were to quit work. There was no premonition of coming disaster, and no cause can so far be assigned for it.

One story is that the collapse followed the approach on the bridge of a locomotive and three cars loaded with iron.

There was a 28-mile-an-hour wind at the time, but this is considered trifling, and the bridge has already stood very much more.

Ninety men were working on the structure at the time. Some were engaged in riveting operations, while others were taking down a big traveling crane.

It was the southern extension of the bridge which collapsed, and this was rapidly nearing the zenith of the immense steel arch which was to span the river. For 800 feet from the shore the massive steel structure reared an arch, with no supports but the piers from the shore, while the outward extremity was 180 feet above the water.

Suddenly those on the northern shore saw the end of the half-arch bend down a little, and a moment later the whole enormous fabric swayed and shot out from the direction of the shore into the middle of the St. Lawrence.

There were a few marvelous escapes, but the great majority of those on the structure went down with it and are still in the water.

Ten bodies have been recovered.

Ten others who were on the bridge were saved, some badly injured. One or two were miraculously saved.

Of the dead recovered, the majority are supposed to be those of Indians from Caughnawaga, near Montreal, several of whom were employed on the work.

Amongst the dead are Mr. Burke, resident engineer of the work for the Phoenix Bridge company; Carl Swansan, from Philadelphia; Messrs. Fast and Meredith, supposed to be from Ohio, and the following residents in the vicinity of the bridge: Victor Hardy, Michael Hardy, James Hardy, Calixte Hardy, Joseph Boucher, two brothers named Wilson, two named Hazeman, Henry French, two brothers named Proulax, and four men named Birone, Binet, Beaudry and Norton.

The survivors who went down into the river and were saved state that when they came to the surface of the water the spectacle which met their gaze was frightful. Several bodies came with them to the surface, some covered with blood, others with blood oozing from the mouth and ears, while others were unrecognizable.

Darkness prevented the work of recovering the bodies being successfully prosecuted tonight, but it is known that many will be found to be crushed to pulp between the heavy steel pieces of the bridge with which they went to their doom.

It is claimed here that the loss must fall upon the Phoenix company, which undertook to complete and deliver in perfect condition the superstructure of the bridge. The abutments and piers are perfectly intact.

In one respect the structure was an experiment, being the longest cantilever in the world, namely, one unsupported span of 1800 feet. There was still nearly 150 feet to be built to the side of the main span which collapsed, and the whole of the 750 feet outside of the pier was overhanging the river without any apparent support, although it was supported overhead. This overhanging mass of metal has been considered all summer to be one of the engineering feats of the day, and was visited by nearly all American and other visitors to Quebec. The total cost of the bridge was to be close up to $10,000,000, and already some $5,000,000 had been spent on it.

It is the connecting link between the eastern and western branches of the new transcontinental railway in course of erection by the Canadian government.

ITEMS FROM A LIVE TOWN FROM A LIVE NEWSHAPER

(Sandon (B. C.) Mining Review.)

Clink! Clink! Clink! "Come down on 'er." In every out of the way nook and corner the husky boys of the town are socking it to the granite. The boy's rock drilling contest on Labor Day is arousing much enthusiasm and rivalry among the lads, who are more concerned at present with cutting rock than "Maw's kintlin'."

School Principal Nindle, of Kaslo, has been touring the Slocan with the view of securing candidates for high school honors, and in this capacity visited Sandon last Monday. Mr. Nindle informed us that intending candidates can now be received at a very economical basis.

Now, boys, it won't do. If you want to put up a good show against the visiting hose teams you've got to get in and "drill." Of course you have enviable reputations as firefighters and all that sort of thing, but your reputations will look as sick as a skinned jack-rabbit if you don't make a decent show on Labor Day. It's up to you. Stop chinwagging and hustle some. Let's see the hose carts doing a few stunts next week.

Cock-a-doodledoo!!! Here we are at the end of volume 1, and up to the time of going to press have not received a visit from the sheriff. Who'd ha' thought it? Cock-a-doodle-doo! Your sub. is doodle due.

What would tourists give to see Towgood's 30-string pack-train start with supplies for a mine? It beats going to see a lump of ice on the summit of a mountain on Kootenay lake which Kaslo and Nelson are scrapping about. 'Pshaw! glacier nothing. One of the residents of Sandon threatens to demolish it in a whisky and soda the first hot day. Now, if tourists are looking for something novel and exhilarating we recommend any morning at daybreak when the frost is on the pumpkin and the mule skinners have irrigated unwisely the previous night. But, if it is glaciers they want, and refuse all worthless substitutes, they must go to New Denver, where they have one specially adapted to the requirements of tourists. A big advantage from the point of many is—that it can be seen from the bar of Count Stege's hotel.

We celebrate the first anniversary of our birth next week. A year old! That sounds big, doesn't it? We feel as though we had been a century when we soliloquize upon the trouble we have ribbed up. Thank goodness our conscious is normal. Say! how's yours? Please remit that two spot for a birthday present. We are laying in a complete and well-assorted line of troubles for the new year. Get in on the ground floor and have two dollars' worth. We are also likely to run a social and personal (very personal) column, and if that proves unsuccessful we shall commit suicide or go to live at Nelson. It's immaterial which, we're desperate.

THE C. P. R. IS HUSTLING TO SUPPLY MOTIVE POWER

(Calgary Herald.)

That reciprocal demurrage would not assist in ameliorating the scarcity of freight cars is the opinion of a railroader from the east.

"It is not freight cars that the railroads want for hauling power," he declared in an interview with a Herald reporter last night.

"I have seen a whole siding full of freight cars for days waiting for locomotives to haul them. Then up till recently," he continued, "there was a great scarcity of coal which put the railroad companies farther back than ever. The result of this is that the farmer and shipper has to wait for his cars, but there is also another result. It means that the engines are overworked and consequently break down.

"If some enterprising citizen," said the railroader, smilingly, "should start up a locomotive construction works he would not only make a fortune but bestow an immortal blessing on the community. There is not a railroad in the whole American continent but would give him all the orders he wanted. At the present time the big locomotive building concerns in the States are full up with orders for the next five years. They cannot take contracts at any price.

In speaking of the way the C. P. R. are handling their system the railroader remarked that the Canadian road was showing some of the American corporations what could be done in times of distress.

"For one thing," he said, "they will buy anything in the nature of or what looks like a locomotive even if built in the year one. Within a week the most ungainly and obsolete specimen of mechanical ingenuity can be turned into a mammoth loco. It well repays one to pay a visit to the Angus stops in Montreal and see how the C. P. R. are striving to keep ahead. Here they turn out 20 freight cars a day, twist and turn great pieces of equipment like so much paper. You will likely see in the construction shop an engine that has recently been condemned or thrown out of service by some other road. Two or three days the skilled mechanics can turn out a great monstrous engine, spick and span and as sound as a bell."

G. T. P. WILL RUSH WORK FROM COAST

Vancouver, Aug. 20.—The advance party of 200 men have arrived at Port Essington for the Pacific coast section of the G. T. P. It is intended to have 1,000 men at work this fall. The hundred mile section from Prince Rupert east to Kitsilas Canyon, where the Copper river joins the Skeena, is said to include the heaviest rockwork of the entire line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It will take two years in construction. The canyon is the beginning of a 180 mile section, Kitamaat to Hazelton, which the Foley, Bros.-Larsen company is building. This is also heavy work, requiring many tunnels, and will take a year and a half under the most favorable conditions. Foley Bros. do not intend to change their invariable policy of engaging only white laborers.

Work at Kitamaat will be in full swing in two weeks. Work in both sections will be sub-let in divisions pf from one to ten miles, continuing through the winter, which is regarded as the most favorable season for blasting. The beginning of the year will see construction in progress from end to end of these most difficult of all sections. The most urgent problem remaining will be a 40-mile gap separating Kitamaat from Skeena river.

MR. BORDEN

Mr. Borden has made one or two tactical mistakes as leader—notably the mistake of permitting himself to be put in the invidious position of a salaried beneficiary of a government bounty. But upon the whole he has worn well in his difficult position. He has earned the loyalty of his followers in the house and the respect of all classes of Canadians. No man in Canada in public life, not even the premier, is more capable than Mr. Borden of the exercise of real statesmanship. He is intellectually the biggest public man in the Conservative party, and in character one of the best. In knowledge of the minute of political trickery and skill in applying it he may be deficient; but it is doubtful if such knowledge and skill should be regarded as a requisite of leadership; there is never any lack of men in any part who are capable of supplying all of that sort of work which is needed.

Mr. Borden has once led his party to defeat. He may do so again. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a twice-beaten leader before he triumphed, and Mr. Whitney, before he attained power, twice failed.—Hamilton Herald (Ind.)

IMPROVE SOO-SPOKANE SERVICE

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 1.—D. C. Corbin, president of the Spokane-International Railway company, has gone to St. Paul by way of Winnipeg to confer with officials of the Soo-Spokane line concerning a new train service between Spokane and Portland, Ore. Several changes planned by the Canadian Pacific between St. Paul and the northwest will also be worked out during Mr. Corbin's stay. One of those is the shortening of the running time between the Twin Cities and Spokane. "It is proposed to cut off several hours," Mr. Corbin said, "giving us by far the shortest run, and this, we believe, will be the means of popularizing a route which is already in favor among traveling men and tourists."

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE OLD MAN.

The following from the Winnipeg Free Press is an evidence as to the tendency of the times, and an excellent answer to those Canadians who would continue to boost the tariff of this country higher and higher, under the guise of an "adequate" tariff, thus assisting in building up great fortunes for the manufacturers at the expense of the consumer:

The drift towards tariff revision, already apparent in the United States, will doubtless be accelerated by the lessening of prosperity in the Republic. The high tariff has synchronized with a period of great prosperity and to it has been ascribed all the credit. The hollowness of these claims will be very thoroughly revealed if a period of partial commercial depression ensues, as was the case in Canada in 1898 when the uselessness of our protective system as a defense against world-wide influences in finance and commerce was established to the complete satisfaction of the electors of Canada. Already the call for tariff revision is becoming sufficiently loud to attract attention, and unexpected voices are joining in the chorus. Jacob H. Schiff, the veteran banker of New York, in a recent interview published in the New York Herald, declared that tariff revision was necessary to the peace of the country. Says Mr. Schiff: "Nothing, however, "will so thoroughly prevent the "building up of great monopolies "and the accumulation of the vast "fortunes the existence of which "is at the bottom of the prevail-"ing social unrest as a sound and "sensible revision of the tariff. "It is right that American indus-"try and the American working-"man be protected against undue "foreign competition, but it can-"not be right to compel the Amer-"ican consumer to pay a vast pro-"fit to the manufacturer where the "latter under a much lower tariff "would be able to maintain him-"self. Herein lies the principal "remedy which needs to be applied "if the causes which have brought "about present conditions are to "be permanently eradicated."

Dave Elton, of the Cardston (Alberta) Star, thus speaks of the Press association convention which will be held in Cranbrook a week from Friday:

The Alberta Press convention meets in Cranbrook on September 13th. Every member of the fraternity should be there. There is no doubt but what the welcome in Cranbrook will be all that the whole-souled Fred Simpson and the good people there can make it. There is no doubt but what it will be one of the largest and best conventions held in the newspaper interests in the west. Get the glad mitt ready Fred for the boys will be there in good round numbers, according to present prospects.

The only fault that the Conservatives can find with Dr. Pugsley, the minister in the Laurier cabinet, is that at one time he was a Conservative.

Labor Day was fittingly observed in Cranbrook this year as usual. That is a day that should be observed in this district. It is pre-eminently a labor district and all that the people can do to observe the day set aside for labor is none too much.

The Hindoos kept working on Labor Day. Those people would never affiliate with the white laborer in his ideas, his ambitions, his desire to live as a white man should, if they were here for one hundred years. It is not in the blood.

Borden's policy is not an original one or a brave one. It savors of the cheese paring kind.

Ye gods, think of Borden, whom all admit is an honest man, talking of political purity on the same platform with Foster and Fowler.

Would not the idea that the Herald has been advocating for so long, that is to put a case at the station for displaying the products and ores of this district, prove a great ad. for the community? What is the matter with the people? The way to build up a city is to build up the district in which the city is located.

There is said to be 2,000,000 American silver dollars in Canada. You can search us. We plead not guilty.

Remember the editorial convention one week from Friday. Get ready with the glad mitt and the Cranbrook smile. That is the best way in the world to receive guests.

The death of "Bob" Dore marks the passing away of one of the early pioneers of the Kootenays. And it was fitting that a tribute should be paid to his memory through the columns of the Herald by that other pioneer, R. L. T. Galbraith.

Pay what debts you can instead of holding the money in your pocket. That is the best remedy in the world for a financial depression.

A BORN BOOSTER

Victoria Week: Everyone who knows Chippy Hill knows him to be a born booster, indeed it is doubtful if the west has ever known his superior, at this typical western business, unless it be the redoubtable Jim Wardner of halcyon days, who some time ago crossed the great divide, Chippy has no competitor, and wherever he goes he may be trusted to sound the praises of that section of the west in which Providence and his own irrepressible energy have last placed him. He has just paid a visit to the Coast, and left behind him in the columns of an admiring press, a trail of splendor comparable only to that which lingers after the passing of a meteor or a comet. Having abandoned other more exigent and less profitable pursuits, he has now blossomed into a coal baron, he "owns" the celebrated Hillcrest mine, and of course this mine yields the best coal in the world; far better than that mined by the Crows Nest company at Fernie, as demonstrated by recent tests made, equally of course, by the United Stotes naval authorities at Bremerton, wherever that may be. All his old friends will be glad to hear of this; it was about time that somebody discovered better coal than that of the Crows Nest Pass Coal company. They have held the record far too long, but all this is now a thing of the past, and in future whenever anyone wants to impress upon a confiding public, or a wealthy investor that he has the A1 coal proposition, he will say "it is almost as good as the Hillcrest coal." At any rate, there is this comforting feature in connection with Mr. Hill's declaration; there will be no shortage of fuel in the west when once he gets his mine into working order.

GOOD RACES

Horses from all over the entire northwestern country will be entered in the races at the Interstate Fair which will be held at Spokane this year, and better racing, as well as more of it, should be seen at the coming fair than ever before.

Horses which have never competed against each other will be entered this year. Horses coming from the Meadows at Seattle, from Montana, and from British Columbia will all be entered, and a larger list of entries than ever before will result.

Already Manager Cosgrove has received entries from race horses owners who have never brought their horses to the fair in previous years. Several carloads of horses will be shipped from Butte to try their mettle on the local track. Many of the horses from the Meadows at Seattle will also come here for the meet. Even from Nebraska a number of horsemen are already shipping their animals, and with this strong array of horseflesh, attracted by two weeks of racing and better purses than ever before offered, it is safe to predict that the meet this year will be one of the strongest ever seen in the west.

WILLING TO SUPPLY THE PIPE.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 16, '07

The Herald, Cranbrook, B. C.—

Your scheme for supplying Cranbrook with an artificial lake by means of a siphon from Moyie lake is an excellent one. The Dominion Wood Pipe company, of New Westminster, manufacture a double wire wound pipe for just such purposes and will be glad to quote you prices at any time.

Yours, etc.,

Jos. Bambrick.

AN OLD TIME FAVORITE POEM WHICH NEVER LOSES INTEREST

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Mudville nine that day;
The score stood four to two, with but one more inning to play.
And then when Cooney died at first, and Barrows did the same,
A sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game.

A straggling few got up to go in deep despair. The rest,
Clung to that hope which springs eternal in the human breast;
They thought if only Casey could get a whack at that—
We'd put up even money now with Casey at the bat.

But Flynn preceded Casey, as did also Jimmy Blake,
And the former was a lulu, and the latter was a cake;
So upon that stricken multitude grim melancholy sat,
For there seemed but little chance of Casey's getting to the bat.

But Flynn let drive a single, to the wonderment of all,
And Blake, the much despised, tore the cover off the ball.
Then when the dust had lifted and the men saw what had occurred,
There was Johnnie safe at second and Flynn a-hugging third.

Then from 5,000 throats and more there rose a lusty yell;
It rumbled through the valley, it rattled in the dell;
It knocked upon the mountain and recoiled upon the flat,
For Casey, mighty Casey, was advancing to the bat.

There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place;
There was pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face.
And when, responding to the cheers, he lightly doffed his hat,
No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him as he rubbed his hands with dirt,
Five thousand tongues applauded as he wiped them on his shirt.
Then while the writhing pitcher ground the ball into his hip,
Defiance gleamed in Casey's eye, a sneer curled Casey's lip.

And now the leather covered sphere came hurling through the air,
And Casey stood a-watching it in haughty grandeur there,
Close by the sturdy batsman the ball unheeded sped—
"That ain't my style," said Casey. "Strike one," the umpire said.

From the benches, black with people, there went up a muffled roar,
Like the beating of the storm-waves on a stern and distant shore.
"Kill him! Kill the umpire!" shouted someone on the stand;
And it's likely they'd have killed him had not Casey raised his hand.

With a smile of Christian charity great Casey's visage shone;
He stilled the rising tumult; he bade the game go on;
He signalled to the pitcher, and once more the spheroid flew;
But Casey still ignored it and the umpire said: "Strike two."

"Fraud," cried the maddened thousands, and echo answered fraud,
But one scornful look from Casey and the audience was awed.
They saw his face grow stern and cold—they saw his muscles strain,
And they knew that Casey wouldn't let that ball go by again.

The sneer is gone from Casey's lip, his teeth are clenched in hate;
He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate.
And now the pitcher holds the ball, and now he lets it go,
And now the air is shattered by the force of Casey's blow.

Oh! somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright,
The band is playing somewhere and somewhere hearts are light.
And somewhere men are laughing and somewhere children shout;
But there is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out.

Rambling Reveries

BY A DREAMER.

PLEASANT NEIGHBORHOODS

One's pleasure, after all, is much affected by the quality of one's neighbors, even though one may not be on speaking terms with them. A pleasant, bright face is surely better than a discontented, cross one; and a house that has the air of being inhabited is preferable to closed shutters and unsocial blinds, excluding every ray of sunlight and sympathy.

We like to see the glancing, cheerful light through the window, of a cold night, or watch them, as evening deepens, gradually creeping irom the parlor to the upper stories of the house near us. We like to watch the little children going in and out of the door, to play or to school. We like to see the white-robed baby dancing up and down at the window in its mother's arms, or the father reading his newspaper there at evening, or any of these cheerful, impromptu home glimpses, which, though we are no Paul Pry, we will assert go to make a pleasant neighbdr to those who live for comfort instead of show.

Sad, indeed, some mornings, on waking, it is to see the blinds down and the shutters closed, and to koow that death's angel, while it spared our threshold, had crossed that of our cheerful neighbor. Sad to miss the white-robed baby from the window, and see the little coffin at nightfall borne into the house. Sad to see the innocent little faces pressed at eventide against the window pane, watching for the "dear papa" who has gone to his long home.

Every man must patiently abide his time. He must wait, not in idleness, but in useless pastime, but in constantly, steadily filling and accomplishing his task, that when the occasion comes he may be equal to it. The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all it will come because it is sought after. It is a very indescreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about what the world says of us; to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say; to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.

A CHAT WITH THE GIRLS

I heard somebody, perhaps it was a prude, say the other day that fashionably accomplished young ladies consider it a disgrace to enter a kitchen or know how to make a loaf of bread. Now we know some sensible girls who do not consider themselves disgraced if they are found helping their mothers, and moreover we know that what the above mentioned prude said is true in many instances.

Society at the present day demands that girls shall be what they call accomplished; and to fulfill this demand the mothers of Christendom teach their daughters that a knowledge of all that belongs to life's duties at home is not one of the requirements, that manuel labor must be consonant with drawing room cultivation. And so their lily hands slid idly over the piano keys; they waltz in the most approved style; simper a little French or German, quote poetry—and society says they are accomplished. Doubtless they are, and by-and-by, as all modern fashionables do, they win a husband.

Now is there one of their boasted accomplishments that will help to make or bless a home? We know that music is pleasant, and home is not home where there are no songs or sweet harmonies; but a knowledge of the piano will not help a woman discharge her wifely duties, and a smattering of French or an ability to waltz gracefully, will do but little towards preparing a palatable dinner for a husband when he comes home hungry.

Modern girls have not less ability han our grandmothers had; the evil all lies in the principles imbibed in early years. If mothers will teach, by word and deed, that idleness is an accomplishment, then what may we expect? Where shall we look for the true woman, the blessed homes in the years to come? The woman who would fill life's station nobly and well, cannot learn too much. If she fails in her home she will fail in all; for there rest the basis of her ultimate success.

EXCELSIOR—EUREKA

Never in the history of any country, in any age, has there been such a mighty work before the youth of our land as there is today; and we might say never were young men as ignorant of it and unfitted for their work. Each one wants the other to row the boat while he catches the fish. All seem to believe in luck. Let us say to you, young men, that pluck wins more battles than luck. Wishing is the easiest way in the world to get a poor living. Looking for the fortunate star to rise is like standing on the ocean's strand waiting and watching for wealth-laden ships to come ober the sea that never "put out." Wishing brings a small income, and the taxes on it are enormous. Don't say the word owes you a living until you have earned one. Idleness in boys and girls is the blackest curse of any land. There is just as great a work and just as noble for the young woman as for the young man. When the girls, in earnestness, cast aside the loose cloak of vain fickleness, and, donning the beautiful garments of laboring purity, come forth from the sickly chamber of the "accomplished" asking "What shall we do?" and hearing the motto "Woman's ability shall see light," then the boys will become more earnest, more temperate, more like men. Dear young people be not afraid or ashamed of labor. Hard hands, strong arms, and sun-burned faces are honorable. Take "Excelsior" for your motto, and if you are patient, in a few years you can surely write under it that other good word, "Eureka."

HILL & COMPANY

Hill & Co. Possibly in their Last Struggle

THE stringency in the money market has affected the financial standing of all people in business. The banks of Canada and the United States are curtailing credits and shortening loans. Hill & Co. are no exception to this rule. They must raise money to meet the demands of their bankers. That means that they

Must Raise the Cash

And there is only one way to do it. That is to sacrifice profits and get below the cost mark. To accomplish this we will put on the greatest Sale ever known in the Kootenays, commencing and there will be no let up in cutting prices until the demands of our bankers are satisfied. We have worked hard to build up our business, but the condition of the money market and our bank account make this sacrifice necessary to protect our interests. Watch for our prices in the windows and on our counters. The cash must come, and the way to get the cash at this stage is to give the people such bargains that they will feel that they must buy. If this Sale is not satisfactory during the coming week, the knife will go deeper, as we must raise the cash or lose all. We will not be undersold by anyone and we invite comparison. We have to-day the largest stock of

Saturday, August 31st,

Ladies' and Men's Furnishings, Boots and Shoes, and Furniture

In fact, anything that a lady or gentleman can wish for in the line of Wearing Apparel or House Furnishings. We realize now that we have bought too much on credit, forgetting that there is a day of reckoning. But our bankers have reminded us, hence our chase for the almighty dollar.

We quote you a few prices as follows, which will largely govern :—

MEN'S	SUITS,	reg.	$18.00,	will sell for	-	-	$9.75

King for a short time with B. A. Carter, as Dr. Keith has gone to Enderby, B. C., to locate and is unable to secure a house at this time.

J. W. Robinson, of Red Deer, arrived in the city last week and will be here for several days. Mr. Robinson says that Southern Alberta is all right for a good yield and that if the warm weather keeps up, Northern Alberta will make a splendid showing. It has been some time since Mr. Robinson has been in Cranbrook and his many friends here were pleased to see him.

Constable Morris was called to Fernie yesterday. There is a rumor around that Mr. Morris may be called to that city to take temporary charge of the provincial police work of that district. The Herald trusts that it will only be temporary if Mr. Morris is called away, as his many friends in this city would surely enter a protest if the government had designs upon him.

Miss Green, of Victoria, a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, has decided to remain in Cranbrook and organize a class of music. Already Miss Green is meeting with unexpected success along this line and her experience with the leading teachers of the east and her work both in Canada and the United States eminently fits her for the responsible work that she has undertaken.

W. T. Reid & Co. desire the Herald to extend thanks to the people of this city and district for the patronage given the firm during the many years that they have been in business here, and also to express the hope that the people will do as much or more for the new firm of Burns Brothers, their successors in business, who will do all in their power to give their patrons every satisfaction.

N. D. McDonald brought to the Herald office this week a magnificent specimen of oats raised at the St. Eugene Mission. The bunch brought in stood over five feet high and was well ripened with a well developed grain. Mr. McDonald also brought in some very fine samples of apples also raised at the Mission. This simply adds evidence to what the Herald has maintained all the time that this district will raise anything fit for this kind of a climate, and that is pretty nearly everything.

Hill & Co. will have a big opening next Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, of their new stock of millinery and dress goods. Mr. Hill will show some millinery creations on that occasion that will surprise and please the ladies, and his dress goods will also be attractive in the extreme. In this connection Mr. Hill will show the ladies some glorious ideas in ladies cloaks and coats, that have been imported direct from France and Germany. The ladies of this city and district should bear in mind the dates.

Mr. Ralph Smith, M. P., of Nanaimo, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, passed through Cranbrook last Sunday en route for Fernie. Mr. Smith is investigating the coal and coke situation for the purpose of getting posted before the next session of parliament. Mr. Smith is one of the strongest members of parliament today, and is a man who is growing in strength and influence. Quite a number of Mr. Smith's friends met him at the station and extended the greetings of the town to him and his most estimable wife.

L. I. Brown, an expert piano tuner, who has just arrived from the east, will remain in the city for a few days and give his attention to tuning those pianos in Cranbrook that need his attention. Mr. Brown says that he will guarantee every piece of his work, and that he has arranged to place Cranbrook on his regular route hereafter and he will visit here two or three times a year. Those having pianos that need the attention of an expert can reach Mr. Brown by telephoning No. 64, at the Cosmopolitan hotel, and leave word for him, or drop a card at that address.

There was a small blaze in the laundry at the St. Eugene hospital Wednesday morning, and the department made a run for the premises, but the blaze amounted to nothing. The call demonstrated one thing, however, and that is that no time should be lost in placing a hydrant at the hospital. If this is not done and a bad fire breaks out before the hose could be stretched that distance, the buildings might be doomed and perhaps some of the sick burned. Now is the time to act in this matter. The loss of the St. Eugene hospital would be a sad blow to the whole district.

HILL & COMPANY

Our Great Millinery and Dry Goods Display

Ladies! We desire to extend an invitation to each and every one to visit our Millinery and Dry Goods Display on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, the 7th, 9th and 10th of September.

We believe that this year we have succeeded in excelling our efforts in all previous years, and we will place for your inspection the largest and most up-to-date lines of Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Hats ever imported into this Western country.

It is universally admitted that Paris controls the world's Millinery almost about as effectually as the sun controls the solar system.

We believe we are the only merchants in Cranbrook who import direct from the fashion centre.

Call and criticize our efforts.

Indications in the great Centre of Fashion at present favor the idea that there will be little if any radical departure from the lines laid down for Midsummer Hats in those intended for Late Fall and Early Winter. At all events, the changes wrought during the months of July and August in Millinery styles must prove of considerable importance as regards the future.

As seen by a competent authority, these consist in a very decided heightening of the crown, entailing new arrangements of trimming and a new method of wearing the hats in keeping with their higher crowns, and therefore quite well adapted to the coming season.

On exhibition with our Ladies' Hats, etc., we will place before you our Ladies' Cloaks and Coats. These we have imported direct from France and Germany, and we feel satisfied that in this particular line as well we can satisfy the most exacting.

Kindly remember the dates: Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 7th, 9th and 10th.

HILL & COMPANY,
Cranbrook's Greatest Store.

WANTED—A girl to do general housework. Apply to Mrs. Jas. H. Caslake. Box 5, Cranbrook, B. C. 24-3t

Mrs. G. H. Thompson will receive next Tuesday, Sept. 10th.

Mr. Durrant, of Perry Creek, has been in town the past few days.

Frank Byron spent a few days in Moyie the past week in connection with his brick business.

Mrs. John Fingal Smith left for Fort Steele to spend a week with her friend, Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. V. A. Rollins will receive at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Hoggarth Wednesday afternoon, September 11th.

Charles Patmore, of Frank, accompanied by his wife and child, was visiting his nephews, the Patmore brothers of this city, from Saturday until Tuesday.

Harry Pettit has purchased the Mrs. George Brown residence on Baker Hill and taken possession with his family.

The new government building will soon be ready for occupancy and as soon as the furniture arrives the provincial and city officials will move in.

Mrs. R. Dore will remain in the city until she has settled up the business of her late husband before returning to California.

W. F. Gurd left yesterday for Spokane to join Mrs. Gurd and children and Mrs. J. G. Cummings, who have been stopping there the past two weeks.

Word has been received from Will Rollins that he left Quesnelle the first of the week and expected to reach Cranbrook either on Friday or Saturday of this week.

Angus P. Nicholson, the bright correspondent of the Herald at Crothers mill, was in the city Tuesday and paid this office a pleasant fraternal call.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis returned last Saturday from a very pleasant vacation at McConnell's Island hotel at Waldo, and they speak highly of Mr. McConnell's courtesy and able management.

James Hislop has gone to Kelowna to accept the position of principal of the schools in that city, and Mrs. Hislop will join him in a couple of weeks. The Herald wishes the family every success in their new location.

The Alberta Press association will meet in Cranbrook a week from tomorrow. There will be a good representation of the quill drivers present and the people of Cranbrook will see that they have a good time. No town can do too much for visiting newspaper men.

Mr. Glendenning, the artistic window dresser at J. D. McBride's store, made a great hit for Labor Day with the window prepared for that occasion. He made an engine out of the various tinware articles sold in the store and labeled it the first Kootenay Central to reach Cranbrook. It was a wonderful piece of work and attracted an immense amount of attention.

A correction comes from Wardner to the effect that the Herald erred last week in stating that the Ladies Aid gave a dance, and stating that the dance was given by two gentlemen instead. With the great amount of news given by the Wardner correspondent it is to be wondered that more errors do not creep in, as every correspondent has to depend upon the statement of individuals for the news. Neither the correspondent of the Herald or the Herald wish to make a mistake and any correction will be cheerfully made if the request is made in the proper spirit.

H. M. Cooper, who has been connected with the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce for two years and a half, has received notice of his transfer to the inspector's office at Vancouver. This is a great promotion for a young man who has been in the bank such a short time and has been given to Mr. Cooper simply because he has made good in his work. It is the young men who make good who are appreciated in business and Mr. Cooper is one of them. The Herald wishes him all kinds of prosperity in his new place.

"Monty," the shine man, has left Cranbrook and gone to Halcyon hot springs or some other seaport for the benefit of his health. "Monty" made a great reputation while in the city as one of the best shine artists that ever came down the Kootenay pike, as well as a phenomenal foot racer. Of the latter reputation "Monty" was very proud and never was guilty of an act that would jeopardize his standing as the whirlwind amateur foot racer of Western Canada.

If you want to see the latest and finest in the way of dress trimmings, so attractive, so artistic, so pleasing to the eye, that you will with reluctance turn away from one only to be enchanted by the next, then go to Hill & Co. and see their latest importations from France. There is trimming there as high as $12 a yard. There is nothing like it in this part of the country.

Hill & Co. have two car loads of furniture on the way and more coming. Mr. Hill said that he bought freely, as he struck the market just at the right time, when the manufacturers were feeling the stringency of the money market and were anxious to make sales. "I am afraid, however, that I bought too freely and too expensively," said Mr. Hill, "but I can remedy that by giving the people of Cranbrook the benefit of my close buying and cut down my own profits as well. That will sell the goods I have bought. I am expecting the cars by the middle of the month and their contents will open the eyes of the people of this district."

UNCLE TOM

Downie's Uncle Tom's Cabin company, which give a night performance under canvas in Cranbrook on Monday, Sept. 9, is said to carry the greatest troupe of genuine cake-walkers in the business. This part of the entertainment alone is well worth the price of admission, and they have been creating a great deal of favorable comment everywhere. Little Miss Hackett, who plays the part of Eva, is a wonderful child. She is only 7 years of age, and is very versatile, and her singing and dancing specialty is one of the most pleasuring features of the performance. A grand street parade will be given daily. Admission 25c. and 50c.—Adv.

PERRY CREEK HOTEL FOR LEASE

Owing to ill health I will lease the Perry Creek hotel and ranch, or the hotel alone. For terms write O. A. Burge, Cranbrook, B. C., or call at the hotel.

ELKO AND TOBAC CO PLAINS

(From our own correspondent)

Blessed are they that expect nothing for they shall not be disappointed.

Those people who are so fond of giving advice should become lawyers and doctors and get paid for it. There's a lot of people in this seemingly cruel world that are always looking for the dark side of everything they can get their optics on, and the way some of these people twist the truth in a vain desire to besmirch innocent persons would shame the devil. We were writing for "Old Man" Simpson's paper before these sore-heads ever saw British Columbia, and we expect to be writing for him when these people will be sunk into oblivion. We eat well and sleep well and don't worry much. We have hosts of friends and few enemies. Show us our enemies and we will show you specimens of humanity with souls so small that they know no more about the higher minds around them than a bull frog knows about an eagle. Some people hate to see others prosperous and it's the prosperity the writer is enjoying that is the sore spot. Sidney Smith, in an after dinner speech, said that it takes a surgical operation to get a joke into some people's head and we wonder if the people who incited him to make this remark moved into South East Kootenay. As Charlie Webster, of Great Falls, Montana, said: "The ignorance of the lower classes is becoming alarming and the amount that criticise the Elko notes in the Cranbrook (B.C.) Herald for the purpose of trying to hurt our business would make the hair rise on a marble statue." As Old Man Simpson says: every knock is a boost, and the more you knock the better we like you. Every month we see our business and friends increasing, we have the assurance from intelligent people that our terse remarks have been enjoyed and we rejoice that our time was not altogether wasted, and to the ignorant we tender our humble apologies for taking up their valuable time which might have been spent in sorting spuds or weeding onions. In onion there is strength, and a shut mouth is most becoming to a d——n fool.

The Elko school opened for business August 27th, with Mr. Myers, of Victoria, in charge. There were 25 children in attendance. The new board of trustees seem to be taking a deep interest in the school and there is every reason to believe that the parents will assist the trustees and teacher in bringing the school into the front rank. No matter how good the teacher may be, unless the parents take a hand in the conduct of their children while at school and seeing they attend regular, they can't expect to make them scholars. Parents do your duty, the trustees will do theirs.

The Moyie Leader, of August 21t. published a complimentary advertisement for Fred Roo's native flour and home-fed bacon, making special mention of his sugar coated hot air tablets for tourists visiting Elko.

Billy McEwen spent a week camping and fishing out at Rock creek and reports a splendid time and lots of fish.

Mr. Glen Campbell came to Elko Sunday on a visit to his wife, who is visiting with Mrs. E. B. Holbrook.

Mrs. Sanburg, of Elkmouth, and her brother, were Elko visitors this week.

John Smith, the notorious pinecat and timber cruiser, discovered a lake above Elko, full of spring water and rainbow trout, and in all probability Elko will have in the near future a water power second to none in the Dominion of Canada. Put your X-Rays on Elko. It's only a question of a few years when Cranbrook and Fernie will be suburbs of Elko. John Mott, of the Hoffman house, who owns considerable property in and around Elko, takes the matter in hand and hires at his own personal expense an expert civil engineer and gang of trail blazers, headed by John Smith, to estimate the possible cost of supplying Elko with water and the ranchers for irrigation purposes. Elko today is known as the hunter's paradise. The headquarters in British Columbia for the gamey trout, the Switzerland of South East Kootenay for scenery, and from a manufacturers point of view we have the greatest water power west of Niagara Falls, the greatest body of marl on earth, the most suitable stone for coke ovens and palatial mansions, the greatest point in the world for pulp mills, the fruit lands south will make it the best market in British Columbia on account of its nearness to Alberta and the prairie provinces, the Great Northern and the C. P. R. are now here, the Kootenay Central to come, the Roosville-Elko electric line to build, and the completion of the Chicago, Butte City and Elko Air line will make it the Winnipeg, from a railroad point of view, of British Columbia.

You can talk about your climate and seaside resort,
Banana belts, orange groves, and all of that sort
But let me just post you, I've been on the ground,
And Elko's the finest that you ever found.

Miss Inez Holbrook, one of Elko's most popular young ladies, left for Duluth, Minn., to attend college, after spending a pleasant vacation with her mother and brother. Previous to her departure Miss Inez was royally entertained by her hosts of friends to card parties, social hops, basket picnics, etc., and her many friends were at the station to wish her bon voyage when she left via the Great Northern southbound Flyer for the far east. We wish her every success at school and hope she will return with honors to gratify her affectionate mother's every wish.

Fred Skelton and Bob Skilbeck, left for Washington last week for a pleasure trip.

The Elko Sunday School held their annual picnic Wednesday August 28th at Baynes Lake. Mrs. John Todhunter, Mrs. Mott, Mrs. J. McKee, Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Mary Todhunter had charge of the affair and it was the greatest success from every point of view, the children have ever known. The prizes, fruits, candies, catering and livery expenses were all paid for out of the reserve fund, which speaks volumes for the management, which cannot be beat no place in South East Kootenay. No one was asked for assistance, and the ladies mentioned above have the good wishes of everybody in the district for the independent manner in which they carried out every detail and made such a brilliant success of the whole affair. The day was fine and everything one could wish for and the children enthusiastic over the good time coming. The picnic left Elko about 10 o'clock with Mrs. Todhunter, Mrs. Mott, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Mary Todhunter in the first carriage and then came three big wagons loaded with children, making as much noise as a boiler factory in full bloom. Several rigs, containing parents of the children and friends following in the rear. The delicious cakes, buns, sandwiches, ice cream, etc., etc., going out several hours ahead of the picnic crowd. It was the biggest, the best, the most sociable, the most independent bunch of good nature that ever met in Elko.

A. F. Krapfel and R. Robey, the big game hunters, left Saturday for the South Fork for a deer hunt.

T. G. Proctor, foreign correspondent for the Kootenay Valleys Land company, arrived in Elko Saturday night and left for the south.

WARDNER

(From our own correspondent)

Mr. H. Lindsay left last Friday for Hamilton, Montana, to spend a few days with his daughter. ...

Gomer Jones, of the C. N. P. L. company's office staff, spent last Thursday in Cranbrook.

Nearly every one of us is figuring on having a fine time just ahead when we get all fixed, and this vision is just ahead of us when we fall asleep. To live in the now and enjoy the present is the work of the philosopher.

Mrs. Peter Lund, accompanied by her step-daughters Edith and Hazel Lund, returned on Wednesday last from a two months' visit with friends in Chatham, Ont.

Mrs. Sid. Brown spent last Wednesday in Cranbrook on business.

The newspaper is a law book for the indolent, a sermon for the thoughtless, a library for the poor, and an admonisher for the lawless. It may stimulate the most indifferent, but it cannot be published without cost and sent free to subscribers. This is no joke.

James Smith spent last Sunday fishing at Fish river.

Mr. and Mrs. Broley, of Fernie, spent a few days last week with friends in town.

Mrs. T. B. Johnson, public school teacher, spent the holidays with her sister, Miss M. Johnson, at Michel, B. C.

No matter what you do, provided you do it better than some one else could do the same thing, there's a welcome awaiting you in the world. It was Emerson, we believe, who said: "If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door." Try to excel, it's a laudable ambition.

Mrs. J. Williams left last Sunday to visit at her old home in Montana.

Mrs. Willson and family left last Tuesday to take up her residence in Cranbrook. They go to join Mr. Irving Willson, who is employed there as station agent. Mrs. Willson has been a prominent citizen of Wardner for some time, coming here from Brantford, Ont. Her departure is very much regretted.

Mrs. Osgoode, of Spokane, who has been spending the past few weeks here with her parents, Mr. nd Mrs. H. Lindsay, left for her home a few days ago.

We want to say a good word for the man who meets his small obligations promptly. They are not as plentiful as they should be and man needs encouraging. Most men will pay, but fewer will pay promptly. Almost any firm will testify to that, counting the time, postage, booking, and like it, costs all some accounts are worth to collect them, and still the man owing it to them is perfectly responsible in a financial way. It very often happens that the worst sinner in this particular is the man best able to pay.

The social, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid, given in the Library hall on Thursday evening last, was a success in every particular. After refreshments were served by the ladues a very pleasing programme followed. Mr. Waterous was present and favored the audience with a solo, which was given in his usual pleasing manner. Mr. Adney's gramophone furnished excellent music, and one of the most important features of the programme was a couple of drills given by sixteen little girls belonging to the town. These consisted of a maypole drill and a flag drill. The girls acted their part almost perfectly and reflected much credit on Mr. McConnell, who took this matter in hand. The proceeds amounted to $39.

Mr. Adney, policeman, was called upon to assist the policemen of Cranbrook during Labor Day.

Charles Jewitt left last week for Vancouver, where he has secured a position.

Mr. Jarvis, head sawyer, left a few days ago to visit old friends in Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorp, of Elko, spent a couple of days this week in town, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Wisner.

Thomas McTamney, assistant cook at the company's boarding house, left Tuesday afternoon for Indian Head, and after a short time he will visit his old home in Toronto, Ont.

Misses Edith and Hazel Lund returned to Nelson on Wednesday morning last to continue their studies at the Nelson convent.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Wisner, Mr. and Mrs. Thorp, of Elko, and Ole Wisner left last Monday afternoon for a two weeks' outing—camping and fishing.

Miss Hazel Bohart left last Wednesday morning for Nelson, where she will attend the Nelson convent.

R. H. Bohart was in Fernie last Friday on business.

At quite a late hour Sunday night the town was thrown into confusion by hearing the whistle of the planing mill. People rushed out thinking there was some building on fire, but soon learned that the alarm was sounded to guide a couple of men, Messrs. Samuel and John Rogers, who had got lost on a mountain near by. A search party was organized and went in search of the stray-aways, but without avail. The anxious fears of their friends were quieted, however, when at about 7 o'clock in the morning the men came marching home.

Fred Leard was successful last Sunday in shooting a fine buck deer.

Where is Roby? He took to the woods you say. Well, don't be alarmed friends, he will return soon, now that the baseball game in Cranbrook is over. Our boys don't have to hide, they are not afraid to play any team on the line. They have helped to keep Elko from disgrace this season already, but alas, Elko will never hear from Fernie now regarding finances, since Cranbrook won the boodle from them Labor Day. Good-bye Elko.

Forty-one tickets were sold at the local depot for Cranbrook Labor Day.

Labor Day was very quietly observed in town. Places of business were closed most of the day, most of our townsmen having gone to Cranbrook to enjoy the sports there.

FRANK

(From The Frank Paper.)

The Sanitarium is having a tremendous run these days. For some time the house has been full to overflowing with patients, some of whom came from long distances to take the baths.

General Manager S. M. Moore, of the Coal company, who went to to Montana last week in search of miners, returned Sunday. He states that Montana is far worse off for men than this country and that every sort of industry is hampered for want of help. Mr. Moore succeeded in securing quite a number of good miners from among men who had worked for him in Montana.

Jack McDonald, of the Union hotel, was summoned before the police magistrate last weekon a charge of refusing to assist an officer when called upon and was held for trial at McLeod at the next session of court, in bonds of $1,000, which he furnished. Mr. McDonald admits having walked away when Policeman Martin called on him to assist in an arrest, but claims that as there were other McDonald's near by he had no means of knowing he was the person called on.

FERNIE

(From the Fernie Free Press.)

G. Romano, a young Italian, about 18 years of age, met with a fatal accident early this morning while attempting to blow out a stump near No. 8 fan house at Michel. He had placed a heavy charge of dynamite under the stump, and had turned away to reach a place of safety, when he was struck in the back of the head by a piece of wood, being hurled by the explosion with terrific force. He was at once taken to Michel hospital but died several hours later without having regained consciousness. Coroner Bleasdell arrived on the passenger on Thursday night and an inquest will be held today. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon, interment taking place at Michel cemetery.

Harold Houten, a rope rider, was fatally injured on Tuesday morning in an accident in No. 2 mine. The unfortunate man was brought to Fernie hospital and for a time hopes were entertained for his recovery, but he passed away yesterday. Both legs and one arm had been broken and he was fearfully injured about the head and body. Interment will take place Sunday under the auspices of the Miners union.

Messrs. Digby & Walde have finished the cold storage plant for the C. P. R. at Lethbridge. They commenced building the station at Crows Nest this week. The station at Frank and the boarding house at Sirdar will be commenced next week. They have a contract for the Pacific Coal company's shop at Hosmer. The building will cover a space 40x157 ft.

The party of visiting British journalists who recently toured the Dominion, presented George Ham with a traveling case in testimony of their appreciation of the way he had conducted their tour. As Mr. Ham refused to allow the visitors to stop off at Fernie even for a few hours, although Mr. Chas. Richards urged it and explained how it could be done without altering or delaying their programme, we can see where a traveling case is more appropriate for Mr. Ham than a gold headed cane.

Mr. F. H. Hale, manager of the North American Land & Lumber company, on Wednesday afternoon, met with what might have been a very serious accident. He was in the file-room of the company's mill, and noticed a piece of timber from the big saws going the wrong way, and stepped out of the door to give instructions regarding it, when the carriage struck him on the left leg near the knee, knocking him down. No bones were broken, but Mr. Hale is suffering from a severe bruise and shaking up, and will be lame for some days.

Mr. Wilkison, of the Elk Lumber company, left Wednesday for the Upper Elk valley accompanied by a gang of surveyors and an expert coal prospector. They will survey and prospect extensive holdings of the company.

The first snow storm of the season, lasting several hours, was enjoyed by Michel's citizens last Tuesday. The surrounding hills are still covered with snow. Our nimrods are cleaning their guns and making ready for the hunt of big game.

A. Cummings, the Fernie surveyor, was in Michel Saturday procuring a camping outfit and provisions for an extended trip south of Crows Nest, where he will survey and plot a large area of timber and coal land for Fernie capitalists.

The Great Northern construction camp just below town is a little city in itself, more than twenty tents having been erected to accommodate the crews. Another camp will shortly be started at the rock cut near the coke ovens. More supplies and material are arriving daily.

The little girl of Mr. and Mrs. Brown had a narrow escape from drowning in Michel creek Wednesday. She was out picking berries with some other children when she slipped and fell into the raging water near the upper bridge. Jack Rushton, of the Trites-Wood staff, was attracted to the scene by the cries of the children. Rushing headlong into the water he rescued the little girl in the nick of time. Dr. McSorley arrived on the scene shortly after, reviving the unfortunate child after several hours of hard work. She is getting better at this writing.

An explosion of gasoline threatened to put the Ledger out of business yesterday morning but luckily the blaze was brought under control before serious damage had been done. One of the boys saved the price of a shave on his whiskers account but had to make a corresponding outlay for vaseline.

The Fernie Lumber company this week received a locomotive for use in their logging operations. It was unloaded near the government bridge across the Elk, about a mile and a half north of the mill, and is being moved to the logging camps on movable sections of rails and ties.

Local draymen are experiencing considerable difficulty in getting sand for plastering, brickwork, etc. The river is much higher than is ordinarily the case this time of the year, and all the old sand pits along its banks are flooded to such an extent that it is almost impossible to get good sand.

P. Lund, of many places, was transacting business in the coal metropolis this week.

Ed. Kummer has been appointed superintendent of cement construction on the new court house.

The city is threatened by an epidemic of prosperity. However, keep right on sawing wood.

School opened Monday with the following staff of teachers: Mr. Palmer, principal; Miss Moody, Miss Perkins, Miss Lawson, Miss Robinson, Miss McKenzie. The lady teachers have rented T. H. White's residence and will maintain a home of their own, living accommodations being so difficult to procure in Fernie.

MOYIE

(From the Moyie Leader.)

"Dick" McClure is now chef on one of the Soo-Spokane diners.

Mrs. Schulze, mother of Mrs. P. F. Johnston, was quite ill the first of the week, but is now convalescent.

Alban McLellan and son Bruce, left yesterday for Prince Edward Island. They expect to be away for a month or six weeks.

Chas. A. MacKay, manager of the Cambrian mine, was in Cranbrook Thursday on business in connection with his property.

James Cousins had his foot crushed quite badly while working at the St. Eugene and is now in the hospital.

The report comes from Spokane that Tom Summers is getting along splendidly, and in all probability the sight of one of his eyes will be saved.

Miss Ida Lindell, the gushing lady barber who once ran a shop in Moyie, has written to a friend here to the effect that she is still single, notwithstanding the report that gained circulation some time ago that she was married and living in California. She is at present working at her trade at Holdridge, Nebraska.

The Truth About Scotch Whisky

THE safest and most refreshing of all beverages is Whisky and Soda. Where wines and other stimulants are forbidden, Whisky, diluted with some suitable mineral or aerated water, and prescribed by a physician at the proper time, has always a highly beneficial effect.

Scotch Whisky has long been acknowledged the best. It has almost entirely superseded French Brandy over the greater part of the world. This is owing to the skill and care which have, of recent years, been devoted to blending. Malt Whisky, by itself, unless very old, is heavy and unpalatable, and is extremely hurtful to the digestive organs when taken freely.

Scotch Grain Whisky, however, being made from the finest grains and malted barley, and distilled practically pure by modern appliances, is frequently preferred. No stronger evidence of its purity can be given than this, that one of the most eminent Professors of Chemistry in England has used Cambus Grain Whisky for nearly thirty years.

The blending of Malt and Grain Whiskies has within recent years been reduced to a science, the result being a combination which avoids the heaviness of the "All Malt" Whisky and imparts a distinct delicacy to the Blend. Of course both kinds must have age. Nothing is harsher than Malt Whisky unmatured.

"The London Wine and Spirit Trade Record," of 8th May, 1905, in discussing the recent controversy regarding "all malt" Whisky, says:—

"It is much to be regretted that the agitation some time ago regarding 'all malt' was conducted on the extreme lines it was, as the change from blends of grain and malt to 'all malt' was much too extreme, and it is admitted that 'all malt' is not desirable, and the English stomachs which it suits are few and far between."

We are Proprietors of ten Scotch Distilleries, famous for their makes of Grain and Malt Whiskies, and we hold enormous stocks of both kinds of spirits.

"KING GEORGE IV."

is a pure blended Scotch Whisky, guaranteed for age, quality and flavor. It never varies. It has obtained Gold Medals (Highest Awards) wherever exhibited in competition with other blends. For General Table Use it stands without a rival.

You Can Depend on Campbell's Blue Serge

You know how it is with most serge suits. After a few weeks, spots begin to show, the blue becomes dull and sometimes turns to purple, seams wear white, the collar sags, and the shoulders wrinkle.

"Campbell's" Blue Serge Suits

stay blue. Rain won't spot them, sun won't fade them. The color is fast--a beautiful shade of dark blue that retains its rich appearance after a long season's wear.

SEPTEMBER WEDDINGS

PATTERSON-LEITCH.

On Wednesday morning at 10.30 there occurred a very pretty wedding at the Presbyterian church, when Mr. E. I. Patterson and Miss Rhoda Leitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Leitch, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. O. Main, pastor of the church, officiating. There were no invitations issued, and the wedding was a quiet one and only relatives and a few intimate friends of the family were present. The altar of the church was most artistically decorated with banks of flowers, and in the center hung a beautiful floral wedding bell, beneath which the couple stood during the ceremony. Promptly at the appointed hour the sweet strains of the familiar wedding march filled the church and the doors of the left aisle opened to admit the wedding party. In the lead was the bride on the arm of her father, and immediately behind was the bride's sister, Miss Ella Leitch. At the altar they were met by the groom accompanied by Mr. A. K. Leitch, brother of the bride. The marriage service of the Presbyterian church was carried out and the happy couple were pronounced man and wife. Then those present arose as the wedding party slowly marched out to the lobby of the church, where they waited for the carriages and to receive the congratulations of their friends. The bride was dressed in a traveling suit of blue panama cloth with blouse of cream lace and a hat of blue mohair with blue wings, ribbon and velvet, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid looked very pretty in a gown of old rose crepe de chene, large white hat and carrying a bouquet of pink roses. The bride and groom reached the station just in time for the west bound train and were met by a large number of friends, who gave them as cheerful a farewell as pounds of rice, unlimited packages of confetti and old shoes could do, added to which were many more kind words of congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will spend a few weeks visiting Coast cities and on their return will make their home in the beautiful cottage that Mr. Patterson has ready on Baker Hill, and will be at home after November 1st.

The groom, Mr. Patterson, has been a resident of Cranbrook for a number of years, having been with different firms in the capacity of bookkeeper, and by his ability and close attention to business became a partner in the Fink Mercantile company, one of the largest firms in this part of the country, and is now bookkeeper and secretary of that company. The bride came to Cranbrook when the family moved to this city from Oak Lake, Man., and has been a great favorite in church and social circles. Some two years ago she returned from Toronto, where she had been for some time perfecting her musical education, and has taken a prominent part in all musical entertainments in this city since that time, and for a number of months was leader of the choir of the Presbyterian church.

There were many presents and their beauty testified to the high esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their friends.

MANNING-HUCHCROFT

Two of Cranbrook's most popular young people were made man and wife early Wednesday morning—Mr. I. R. Manning and Miss Maude E. Huchcroft, at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. J. F. Huchcroft. The ceremony was witnessed by a few intimate friends only. A few minutes past eight the groom arrived, accompanied by Mr. J. F. Campbell, who did his duties as best man with marked ability. These were soon after joined by the guests, and as Mrs. J. F. Huchcroft rendered a portion of the beautiful wedding march by Mendelssohn, the bride, charmingly attired in white silk net over silk, with embroidered veil and orange blossoms, came into the room leaning upon the arm of her brother and stepped forward to her place by the groom. Miss Lilly Finniss acted as bridesmaid and was gracefully attired in crepe de chene with picture hat of plucked beaver, relieved with violets and roses. Both the bride and bridesmaid carried shower bouquets, the former, one of beautiful white roses and lillies of the valley, the latter one of pink carnations. At the conclusion of the service, which was conducted by the Rev. Robert Hughes, pastor of the Methodist church, Mr. and Mrs. Manning were the recipients of sincere and hearty congratulations, and the certificate was signed by J. F. Campbell and Lilly Finniss. The happy party then sat down to breakfast, which had been tastefully prepared by Mrs. J. F. Huchcroft, and shortly after left on the Flyer for the Coast cities. The farewell at the depot was an eloquent testimony to the regard which is generally felt for the newly married pair. The bride was handsomely gowned in a navy blue homespun traveling dress, with hat to match.

The following is a partial list of the many presents: Mantle clock, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Huchcroft; marble clock, fire brigade; silver card receiver, Mrs. L. Murphy, Fort William, Ont.; silver dinner bell, Miss Murphy, Fort William, Ont.; silver butter dish Mr. and Mrs. E. Sherman, Cardinal, Ont.; silver butter knife, Mrs. A. C. Anderson, Cardinal, Ont.; silver cream ladle, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Backus, Fort William, Ont.; case of silver knives and forks, Mrs. G. Elliot, Prescott, Ont.; silver sugar spoon, Miss Elliott, Prescott, Ont.; silver embroidery scissors, Miss Ida Elliott, Prescott, Ont.; half dozen silver tea spoons, Mrs. G. F. Armstrong, the Soo, Ont.; cyelet embroidered center piece, Mrs. H. Scott, Ottawa, Ont.; linen table cloth and napkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Manning, N. B.; sofa cushion, Miss May Conke, Winnipeg, Man.; five pound gold piece, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Manning, N. B.; silver tea spoons, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Reid; cut glass cream and sugar, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Simpson; embroidered center piece, Mrs. J. Harris, Camrose, Alta.; silver sugar shell, Miss Fisher; silver marmalade jar, Mr. C. M. Finniss; cut glass sugar bowl and cream pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Tate; hand painted plate, Mr. W. DeBeck; hand painted chocolate set, Mr. R. Aiken; nut bowl, hand painted, Miss M. Eakins; silver cake plate, Miss Bulyea; cut glass water bottle, Mr. J. L. Walker; silver nut set, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McFarlane; salad spoon and fork, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson; bronzed candle holders, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Reid; water bottle and tumblers, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fink; biscuit jar, Lilly A. Finniss; quartered oak bed room suite, Mr. J. F. Campbell; $100, Mr. E. A. Lyon; cut glass bon bon dish, Miss Ward; cut glass bon Mr. Nat Harrison; silver sugar tongs, Miss Connolly; hand painted water pitcher, the bridegroom.

Last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Connolly, a kitchen shower was given in honor of the bride when many useful articles were presented, and also numerous advices relative to the management of a husband. Mrs. Manning will be greatly missed by the Methodist choir, where she has efficiently acted as organist for a considerable time.

Mr. Manning is a member of the firm of Campbell & Manning, and is recognized as one of Cranbrook's sterling young business men.

LABOR DAY A SUCCESS

two men were out. Then M. Miller lined out a hot grounder and beat it to first, and while the pitcher was busy securing two strikes off the next batter stole second and third. Things looked desperate. Two men were out and two strikes registered against the third, when Miller suddenly made a rush for home while the ball was in the catcher's hands and when Whelan started out to meet him he made a rush for third and Whalen threw to that base, but the baseman missed it and before the ball could be returned Miller had crossed the plate and the day was saved. Then pandemonium broke loose and the enthusiastic admirers of Miller threw him up in the air and yelled their heads off.

THE FOOTBALL GAME

It took two games between Movie and Cranbrook to settle the question as to which town was the best, and then it was a close one. Both teams did splendid work and are worthy of a lot of praise. Cranbrook won the second game.

THE BOXING CONTEST

In the evening there was a boxing contest between Barney Mullin, of Crows Nest Pass fame, and one "Kid" Parker, a has been from Spokane. The least said about this exhibition the better, for it was fakey from start to finish and has settled again the question of boxing contests in this town for a long time to come. The game was kept up for fifteen or sixteen rounds, and then the referee said that it was time to quit. No one in the audience differed with the referee and the crowd got up and walked out. They did not say much, in fact in thirty minutes you could not find a man in town who would admit that he had seen the contest. But there were quite a number who would have much preferred to have given the $2 to the poor or to their wives, than to throw away on such a fake as was presented on that occasion. By the way, it might be mentioned that Mullin won on points. At least that is the way it looked to the bamfoozled audience.

BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

LARS ERIC BERGREN A VICTIM OF AN EXPLOSION ON PERRY CREEK

Last Saturday afternoon Lars Eric Bergren was instantly killed and his nephew, Axel Bergren, was slightly injured by an explosion of dynamite in a cabin on Upper Perry Creek, where they had gone to do some work on the claims acquired by Don McKay from Frank Byron some months ago. The cabin was completely wrecked and the escape of the nephew was simply a marvel. From the story told by the nephew, who has recently arrived from the Old Country, and was secured by the aid of an interpreter for the Herald, it seems that Eric Bergren, desirous of seeing if some of the fuse and caps that looked old would work all right, placed a cap on a short piece of fuse and lighting the fuse threw it out of the cabin onto the ground some distance away. Then both men rushed back to the cabin. There are two rooms, and one is used for sleeping and cooking, while the outer room is used for a store room. In the store room was a box of dynamite that had been just sent up to the claims by Mr. McKay, and about 200 sticks of dynamite lying on a table, which was old and had been unpacked for some time. The two men attempted to close the outer door but an axe was in the way and they hurried on into the other room, Eric taking a position on the one side of the stove, that nearest to the door, and Axel going to the other side. The cap of the fuse exploded to be followed by an awful explosion of all the dynamite just on the other side of the partition. The log shack seemed to be raised from its very foundation and then collapsed with the two human beings beneath. When Axel regained his senses he was lying down on the floor, covered with boards and shattered logs, but in such a way that he escaped death or fatal injuries. One eye was badly injured and the wrist on one arm, and several severe bruises all over his body. Crawling out of the mass of debris that was piled over him Eric turned to look for his uncle, and saw that he was covered with heavy logs and boards and seemed to be crushed and mangled. Hurrying to the blacksmith shop near at hand, Axel secured a pick and with this he tore off the logs in frenzied fear, yet hoping that he might be able to save his uncle. At last he got the inanimate body clear and drew it out and then saw that death had come instantly to the unfortunate man. Nothing more could be done, and suffering as he was himself, started down the trail eleven miles for Old Town, where he gave notice of the accident, and was himself driven to the hospital here at Cranbrook and given treatment. Parties from here went to the claim that night and looked after the body and on Monday it was brought to town. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Main officiating, and the remains were interred in the local cemetery. Eric Bergren was well known throughout the district, and was a man familiar with the handling of explosives. The nephew knew nothing of the work and was simply associated with his uncle in the work sister at Movie, Mrs. Martha Monk, sister at Moyie, Miss Martha Monk, who was employed at the Kootenay hotel, and who attended the funeral. The nephew was released from the hospital today and is still wondering over his wonderful escape.

PROFESSIONAL

One morning, when Relus Choate was still in England, his clerk informed him that a gentleman had called and wanted him to undertake a case. "Ah! and did you collect the regular retaining fee?" "I only collected 25 guineas, sir." The regular fee was 50 guineas, and Mr. Choate said: "But that was unprofessional; yes, very unprofessional!" "But, sir," said the clerk, apologetically, and anxious to exonerate himself from the charge, "I got all he had." "Ah!" said Mr. Choate, with a different expression, "that was professional."—Ex.

CLAMAN CONCERT CO.

The Claman Comedy Company attracted a large audience to the theater on Tuesday night to witness their opening performance, "Down on the Farm," and the company certainly deserved the good reputation which preceded it. Miss VanTassell, as "Wildcat," won the hearts of the audience at once by her sprightly ways and clever acting. Mr. Claman was also very good as "Rasdebaum," the funny Jew. The specialties given between the acts and during the play were the best ever seen in High River.—High River Times.

The above mentioned company will appear at the new opera house three nights commencing Saturday, September 7th.
