CRANBROOK HAS THE MINERALS THAT MAKE THE MONEY

OVER $13,000,000 NEEDED FOR 1917

Enormous Increase in Demands on the Patriotic Funds Makes Increased Giving Necessary—Splendid Address by Sir Herbert Ames.

The Patriotic Fund has been raised for people in need only; its aim is to see that every soldier's family is able to live decently and comfortably.

Soldiering is the most important and the most strenuous job anyone in Canada can do to-day.

If one soldier's wife out of twelve is extravagant, are you going to penalize the eleven on account of the twelfth?

No province in the Dominion has sent so large a proportion of its population of married men.

There are some people who cannot give any money but there are others who should and can but who give an excuse instead.

"Let everyone realize that this is their war; if they cannot fight they can pay and do their share in defeating the Germans.

"To-day there is not a city, town or hamlet from the Atlantic to the Pacific which has not its branch of the Patriotic Fund.

"The aim of the fund is that not a wife or dependant of the boys serving their country should be allowed to want.

"Soldiers are heroes,their wives martyrs".

The foregoing are some of the striking thoughts culled from Sir Herbert Ames' speech Tuesday night when he gave the people of Cranbrook an account of the work of the Patriotic Fund since its inception and bespoke increased subscriptions to the fund for 1917 on account of the greatly increasing demand.

In outlining the purpose of the fund he emphasized the fact that it was created to help the wives and families of soldiers at the front who needed such assistance to enable them to live decently and comfortably while the husband and breadwinner was away at the front fighting for his country. He also took up some of the criticisms of the fund, and explained away many of the objections in a manner which appealed to the audience very satisfactorily.

The chair was occupied by Mr. W. A. Nisbett, in the absence of the local President, Mr. J. F. Campbell. Mr. Nisbet before introducing the speakers of the evening, spoke of the growth of the fund from $10,000 disbursed in September, 1914, to $900,000 in Sept. 1916, with $1,000,000 needed in December to meet the demands upon the fund The local treasurer had reported that he expected by the end of this year the sum of $16,500 would be paid in by the Cranbrook district A high standard was set last year, and he attributed much of the extraordinary success of the fund to Sir Herbert Ames.

The Cranbrook Orchestra contributed several selections. Mr. Worthington gave a patriotic solo, and Mrs Geo. F. Stevenson, always a favorite with Cranbrook audiences sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning", which was encored very heartily.

Sir Herbert Ames on rising first expressed his thanks to the Cranbrook district for the magnificent response to the request of the committee for money for the patriotic fund, the original request being met three times over, and added a deserved word of praise to the local committee, responsible in so large a measure for the attainment of this end. He hoped the people would respond this year by doing even still better.

The one outstanding feature of this age, continued the speaker, is this war, and it will be considered the milestone and turning point for generations to come. We should ask ourselves what this war means and how we can help to bring it to an end. It has meant a big change in ideas and opinions, and has caused the world to revise its estimate of many things. There is a great difference in the opinion we now hold of Germany, France, Belgium and the British Empire as contrasted with our before-the-war ideas, and Bernhardi's mistaken idea that the Overseas Dominions of the British Empire would not be able to assist in the war, is well answered by the response of over one million men from these countries capable of fighting equally as well as any of the long-trained and strictly disciplined Prussian Guards.

We are now passing through an era of big things. Who for instance could have foreseen that Canada would raise an army of a half million men for military service, or that domestic loans could be floated in this country for over one hundred million dollars, not once but time and again, or that over $15,000,000 could be raised by voluntary gifts.

The speaker said that in watching a battalion march by the thought which always impressed him was the fact that the battalion represented the individual decisions of the men, each battalion is made up of 1152 individual men who have decided in favor of their country; have decided to risk limb, health, life itself. Those of us who stay at home are unable to come up to their sacrifice. Those who have decided that their duty to the fatherland calls them to enlist, can surely leave to those at home the duty of looking after their wives and families, and it should be our solemn obligation to see that their trust is not misplaced. To-day there are in Canada 105,000 families of men who are serving the Empire.

The fund has been particularly fortunate in obtaining citizens in every community who have the respect and confidence of the public, the same as in Cranbrook. Only by holding the confidence of the public can we continue to secure funds. The fund is a national one, raised by every community in Canada giving all that they can and everyone should realize that this is their war by giving until it is a real sacrifice. If they cannot fight they can pay and do their share in defeating the Germans. The administrators of the fund are able to discriminate in its dealings with the soldiers' wives, and give only to those who need assistance to enable them to live decently and comfortably. It is carried on entirely by volunteer committees, all the officers from those at Ottawa to the local branches giving their services entirely without remuneration. The only paid help employed is a small amount of clerical help. The fund is noteworthy for its very economical management and administraion. Out of very $100 given to the fund the sum of $99.40 reaches the soldiers' families, only 60 cents being needed for the running expenses such as clerical help, postage, etc.

Sir Herbert dealt with the tremendous increase in the demands on the disbursements of the fund, which will reach one million dollars a month by the end of this year, and it is expected will amount to $13,000,000 for 1917. British Columbia will be expected to raise one million dollars of this for next year. British Columbia has sent more men to the front in proportion to population than any other province in the Dominion, and a larger proportion of married men than any other province. It will require between $1,750,000 and $2,000,000 from the patriotic fund in 1917 to look after the families of these men, the surplus over the one million which this province is expected to raise being taken from the general fund.

Sir Herbert Ames took up at some length the criticism of the fund from some quarters that some families got more than they should and others did not get enough, that some soldiers' wives were living better than they ever did before in their lives. Soldiering is, he said, the most important and strenuous job anyone in Canada can do at the present time, and even though a man had been out of a job at the time of enlisting, or previously had been shiftless and not too fond of work, if he made a good soldier as many of them did, the wife who was willing to take a chance of being a widow or having an invalid or crippled husband on her hands for the rest of her life deserved to live comfortably while her husband was away taking that chance. The fund was raised to give aid to those people who would be in need if the fund were not in existence, and it was for this reason that deductions were made where the soldier owned his own home, or if there were other sources of revenue. Account was taken of the cost of living in the different localities, and varying allowances were made in different parts of Canada with the idea of bringing the standard of living to the same level all over, the standard of decency and comfort to which every soldier's wife and family wer entitled.

Taking up the question of why this was not made a government matter and the funds raised by the federal government, Sir Herbert stated that the committee had discussed this matter very thoroughly and decided in favor of the continuance of the voluntary system. If made a government fund all families would have to be treated alike whether they needed help or not, the expense of admialstration would be much higher because salaried officials would be employed instead of the present system of volunteer service, and there would be the suspicion of partism attached to the administration, and altogether Sir Herbert believed the present system more sympathetic, more economical and in almost every way superior to what it would be under Government raising by taxation.

He appealed to everyone to "do their bit" so that in future years, in looking back to the testing time of this great war one could point back with pride and say "My town did its bit and I helped."

Mr. Fred Nation, who is accompanying Sir Herbert Ames on his tour through British Columbia, concluded the meeting with a report on the finances of the fund for this province, together with the amount of monies raised and the disbursements. He emphasized the fact that the fund was administered not as a charity, but as a right. He urged very strongly that we should not place a greater value on our dollars and cents than on the other man's life.

CHANGING THE TIME

With the announcement that the C. P. R. will adopt the Pacific standard of time on its lines as far east as Crows Nest commencing when the new time table goes into effect on the 29th of this month the question arises whether the municipalities affected by the change will fall in line and change their time or use their influence to have the C. P. R. reconsider the matter. Among the places effected on the Crow Line will be Creston, Cranbrook, Fernie and Michel, and the City Councils and the Boards of Trade should meet at once and consider their attitude on the matter. To adopt the new time will mean the loss of an hour's daylight in the evenings but even this would be better than to have the endless confusion of two separate standards of time. It may be that even yet united action on the part of those affected might induce the C. P. R. to reconsider the matter, but prompt action and co-operation will be neccessary.

CONSOLIDATED AGAIN WORKS ST. EUGENE

Is Operating in Lower Levels—Lessees Take Out Ore Above—Other Moyie Mines Developed.

Moyie, B. C., Oct. 10.—Conditions generally have improved in the vicinity of Moyie lately as a result of mining activity and prospects are good for an increased output.

At the St. Eugene mine the Consolidated company is operating the lower levels and it is a steady shipper. L. A. Horne is local representative of the company has charge of the work. The upper workings of the mine are being operated on a lease by a group of mining men, with John Taylor in charge of the work. The lessees are working a substantial force of men, and have increased the staff lately, regular shipments being made to the smelter. They are reported to have encouraging showings of high grade ore.

At the Empire mine, situated east of the Society Girl group of claims and on the St. Eugene vein, a syndicate representing Spokane, Calgary, Kingsgate and Moyie people is working the property with a force of five men, which will be materially increased as soon as conditions improve.

Lately a new wagon road has been opened up to the property from the railway. J. C. Nelson of Kingsgate has charge of the work. The future prospects of this property are very promising, as very encouraging assay returns have been received, giving $107 per ton, and it is expected this property will be added to the shipping mines during the winter.

At the Guindon mines, which is situated on the west side of the lake, work is being pushed on the lower levels. Drifting on the vein is showing up some concentrating ore.

CHANGE IN C. P. R TIME

Will Adopt Pacific Time Here and Set the Clock Back an Hour—Means Loss of Daylight.

With the new timetable which comes into effect on the C. P. R. the 29th of the month the C.P.R. time here and as far East as Crows Nest will be changed from Mountain Time to Pacific. This is by reason of the fact that this part of the line is now in the Pacific Division intead of the Alberta Division as noted in the Herald some time ago. It means that the time will be set back one hour so as to be the same as the Coast time, and incidentally means the loss of one hour's daylight in the evenings.

While of course the C. P. R. has no jurisdiction over any but its own employees and the various cities and towns concerned may stick to Mountain Time if they desire, it causes endless confusion, annoyance and bother to have two systems of time and it doubtless will result in the various municipalities concerned adopting the C. P. R. standard of time, unless the C. P. R. can be induced to alter its decision and allow the time to remain as before.

Mr. James Black, Freight Claims Agent, Vancouver, was in the city Wednesday.

The Telegraphers and Despatchers on the C. P. R. in British Columbia have received a general increace in wages of $5.00 a month. The despatchers in that section recently changed from the Alberta to the Pacific Division receive an additional increase to bring them up to the B.C. schedule and this also applies to the Telegraphers in several places where the schedule was below that of B. C.

TO HELP THE BOYS

Scheme Proposed to Place Boys on Land and Give Them a Chance to Obtain Good Education

A very representative meeting of business and professional men was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening last to consider the scheme proposed by Mr. R. C. Eakin for the training of boys who need some assistance to secure an adequate education, and yet who do not wish to be the objects of charity. Dr. King occupied the chair. Mr. Eakins' idea is to get the Government to make a grant of vacant land, form a colony of the boys who would clear the land and raise crops, and give them a semi-military and technical training in the rudimentary studies only. One of the chief objects of the idea is to give the boys a chance to discover what they are most adapted for, and then give him an opportunity to secure an education in that particular branch.

The following committee was formed to obtain information on the subject and draw up a plan for submission to the Government: R. C. Eakin E. H. McPhee, J. M. Christie, W. A. Nisbet, A. A. MacKinnon, W. E Worden T. H. Kay, H. White, L. P. Sullivan, Lester Clapp, Rev. W. H Bridge, Rev. Thos. Keyworth and Rev. W. K. Thomson. This committee will meet and appoint sub-committees to go into the matter thoroughly and also obtain the co-operation of other bodies.

CAPTURES ESCAPED GERMANS

Constable Dryden Makes Daring Single-Handed Capture of Two Escaped Interns from Morrisey.

(Special to The Herald)

Waldo, Oct. 10th—The peacefulness of the sabbath morning was slightly broken here which was occasioned by the fact that the two German interns who escaped from the Internment Camp at Morrissey on Friday morning last were in this vicinity.

Constable Dryden was on the lookout for these gentry, and coming across them promptly proceeded to arrest them both. However one of the men took to the hill side, and the Constable gathered his partner in, and at once phoned the military authorities at Morrissey for help to scour the bush for the other man. In the meantime the Constable took after him, and had him cornered in some bush near Col. Gavin's Ranch, and together with the bunch of guards, who had arrived on the scene, towed him in.

When searched this man had about his person an axe, file, steel chisel, three packages of nails, a compass, steel tape, and several other miscellaneous articles.

According to the story of one of the men they managed to escape the vigilence of the guards at the Camp and took to the mountain behind the Camp, and from this place of vantage were able to command a view of all that was going on below them. They stayed in hiding near the snow line until dusk on Saturday night, and after having seen all the guards on picket duty pulled in started on their hike to the boundary only to come to grief at this point on Sunday morning. These two men looked rather dangerous characters, and were shipped in some four months ago from Brandon, Man. Much credit is due Provincial Consable Dryden for the manner in which he effected the capture of these two men.

SCHOOL BOARD

Much of the time of the School Board Friday last was taken up in discussing the vacancy in the High School and Manual Training School and considering correspondence in connection there with. The Board is negotiating with a teacher for the High School vacancy, but have not succeeded definitely in securing one as yet.

There was a full meeting of the Board but outside of the question of teachers there was little business of importance to be attended to. Some minor repairs were authorized at the South Ward School, and manure will be obtained for the lawn at the Central School, and for the garden if thought necessary.

On motion of Trustees Manning and Wilson, Janitor Logan was allowed $15 for extra services on the school garden during the vacation. It was also decided to register the title to the Manual Training School.

The following accounts were passed for payment: teachers' salaries $1075; medical officer $41.65; secretary $25; janitors $125; C.P.R. telegraph $2.79; Cranbrook Electric Light Co. $4; Cranbrook Drug & Book Co. $23.50; City Transfer $9.02; City of Cranbrook $40.50; Cranbrook Cartage 75c; Beattie Murphy Co. $244.77; Fink Mercantile Co. $12.35; J. Gilpin $1.75; Kootenay Telephone Lines $3.50; Ira Manning Ltd. 60c; McCreery Bros 72c.

BEGINS COUNT IN ENGLAND OCT 17

McBride Wires Bowser—Results of Votes in Canada May be Known Next Friday Evening.

Hon. W. J. Bowser, while in Vancouver last week, said that next Friday, was the first day on which counting could commence— the enumeration of the 4,000 khaki ballots cast in Canada would be commenced. It is probable that the job will take three or four days though there is a bare possibility that by the evening of Saturday, Oct. 14th, the work will be about completed. Hon. Mr. Bowser, some days ago, cabled to Sir Richard McBride, asking for the counting of ballots cast in England and France to commence promptly on Oct. 13, but Sir Richard replied that he was arranging to start on Tuesday , Oct. 17. Mr. Bowser assumes that this date has been selected as the earliest to suit the convenience of scrutineers and returning officers—that they cannot arrange to get together before that. It may be that the results of the vote in Canada will be known by the 17th, but the count in London is likely to occupy at least all the remainder of the week ending Oct. 21. The figures will be cabled, but the actual returns addressed to the deputy provincial secretary will probably reach Victoria about the end of the month.

In preparing to carry on the counting at Victoria, five deputy returning officers will be appointed, each to handle a team of men to count separate sections. When the boxes are opened the envelopes will be separated into 39 piles, each representing a constituency. Then, in order to preserve the secrecy of the ballot, the envelopes are to be checked by scrutineers representing the political parties and then removed and thrown aside and the ballots finally counted. Thus the finals in some of the country ridings, where there are perhaps only 30 or 40 soldier votes, may not be known on Friday evening, Oct. 13. Rather, these will be the semi-finals—for the end will have to await the London figures more than a week later.

CRANBROOK POULTRY ASSO.

The next regular meeting of the above association will be held on Oct. 20th, in the city hall at eight o'clock. Mr. A. B. Smith will give a talk on the Housing of Poultry in winter.

A full attendance is looked for, and members are requested to come prepared to place their order for winter feed.

WAREHOUSE FIRE

Fire broke up at an early hour Tuesday morning in the warehouse owned by the Calgary Brewing Co. at the C.P.R. tracks here, and used by Alex. McDermott as a customs bonded warehouse for Mr. McDermott's imported liquors. The fire had gained a good headway before the alarm was given and with the frame building made quite a spectacular blaze. The fire brigade however were able to get the flames under control in time to save part of the stock of bottled goods in the basement. The customs department have been salvaging the goods this week, and find that about one-third of the case goods are still in tact, though the cases are badly charred.

MINING DEVELOPMENT CONTINUES

Invermere, B. C., Oct. 5.—With the continued increase in the value of low grade metals the development of mining properties within the boundaries of the Windermere Mining Division of East Kootenay continues to advance. In addition to the Paradise and Silver Belt mines which are now shipping there is being further developed the Isaac, to the north of Wilmer, and there have lately been bonded by local owners the Sitting Bull claim on Boulder or Bruce Creek, the Bunyan a few miles to the west of here and the Gem Standard up Law Creek. All of these properties are within the Purcell range of the Selkirk mountains and with the exception of the Bunyan are silver-lead propositions.

The Sitting Bull Claim has recently been bonded by the Sitting Bull Mining Company of Seattle, Washington, and active work on the mine commences to-day with a gang of men under Mr. F. C. Stockdale as local manager. This property has been lying idle for some years but at one time had the distinction of being bonded for some forty odd thousand dollars and having several thousands spent upon it in the preliminary work.

The Bunyan is a silver-gold and copper proposition which has had work done upon it from time to time.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND

It is doubtful if the promoters of the Patriotic Fund had any idea in the first place that the project would attain the size and importance that it has to-day or the very bigness of it might have caused them to hesitate. Commencing with an expenditure of $10,000 in September of 1914 it is now disbursing over $900,000 a month, and by the end of the year will be paying out to wives and dependents of soldiers over one million dollars a month. While there have been criticisms of the payments, or lack of payments, in individual instances, this is one of the exceptional cases of 'big money' where there has never been the whisper of suspicion of graft or mismanagement of funds. It is inevitable in the disbursement of such sums of money, scattered all over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, that there should be more or less dissatisfaction, and probably in some cases with good reason, but that is no condemnation of the fund in general, or excuse for stopping payments promised.

Sir Herbert Ames made a good case for the Fund in his address here on Tuesday night, and the only pity is that more did no hear him. We who stay at home are in duty bound to look after those left behind by the soldiers who are away fighting OUR battles, because the fight is as much OURS as THEIRS. If they are willing to give up the safety of home and run the risk of being crippled or losing life altogether on foreign battlefields the very least we can do is to provide the money so that their loved ones may live in comfort, free from financial worries in any event. We are enjoying the safety provided through their sacrifices, not of money but of that which is dearest of al and cannot be replaced, life itself. While we are in that posiion our money is not our own, at least it should not be so counted.

This district has always been quick to respond to worthy appeals, and in the first campaign for the Patriotic Fund raised three times over the amount asked for. Such a whole-souled response as there was on that occasion is but typical of the Cranbrook district, and was warmly appreciated at the Fund headquarters. But there is still need for money and more money, and Cranbrook district has been asked to increase its givings by not less than 25 per cent. Though a general canvas is not likely to be undertaken here again the committee hope and trust that the present subscribers will continue their giving, increasing the amount if possible, and a canvas will be made of those not at present subscribing.

It is the privilege of those remaining at home, as well as their solemn obligation, to give generously to the support of soldiers' dependents, not alone to give all we can afford but more, to give until it becomes a real sacrifice. Then and not till then will we be doing our duty in helping to defeat the Hun the next best way to enlisting.

VALUE OF DECIMAL COINAGE

(Daily Telegraph, London)

Germany and Austria-Hungary recognized many years ago the virtues of the decimal system. Their policy of uniformity conferred no slight benefit upon them in their relations with foreign markets When peace comes it is imperative that this advantage should not any longer be theirs to our injury. This is essentially a matter for the trading communities. Their interests are menaced by adherence to a currency and system of weights and measures which hinders trading. We are inclined to the belief that, as in other reforms, the necessary changes would prove far less disturbing than is sometimes anticipated, since the movement would be from choas to order. Once the reforms were carried out, our only wonder would be that we had so long been blind to their advantages.

A SCENE FOR ARTISTS

(Quebec Chronicle)

It was the historic scene in the town of Combles on Tuesday when the British troops entered the place from the north and the French troops from the south and then met in the leading streets in the centre of the city, shaking hands and trying to talk to each other. There was one language, however, which they could both speak, it was the cry of victory which sprang from thir lips. Artists in the past have found a favorite theme in the meeting of Wellington and Blutcher after the battle of Waterloo, as an historic one to be commemorated but the meeting of the French and British troops in the streets of Combles shaking hands as they rejoiced over their great victory, will furnish a much more inspiring theme than that for the artists of the future.

THE CRISIS IN RECRUITING

(Vancouver World)

Face to face with the falling off in recruiting there has steadily grown in all parts of Canada outside of Quebec a desire for the institution of some form of compulsory military service. Nothing has been more remarkable in recent months than the change in public sentiment in this regard. It is felt that no matter what the cost to us industrially the promised total of half a million soldiers must be made up by this Dominion.

When we look to other parts of the Empire and see how New Zealand promptly coped with a like situation as that which now faces us; when we find South Africa puting compulsion into force to the fullest extent necessary; when we find Australia considering a referendum making army service obligatory; when we see that British casualties are reaching a hundred thousand a month—when all these facts come home to us we realize that Canada is not doing her full duty.

Where the responsibility is to be placed one cannot readily tell. One section of eastern opinion blames Sir Sam Hughes; another blames the Cabinet as a whole; and a third blames the French-Canadian leaders for not conducting a more insistent and more vigorous campaign amongst their fellow countryman. No doubt there are fault on all sides, but the way to cure them is to make known to the government what the people want.

This is the point we have now reached. There is no disguising the need for prompt and energetic action if we are not to find the end of the war upon us with half our duty done.

GIRLS AS BANK CLERKS

(Financial Post)

The statement of Royal Bank officials to The Post that they now employ about 700 women in heir various offices as compared to only 250 previous to the war, serves to draw added attention to another phase of the powerful current of these, our times. Incidentally, the management state that taken as a whole these women are very satisfactory. They are largely young girls recruited from business colleges and the usual business channels, but of late a new element has crept into the supply. This is in reference to the fact that girls of well-to-do families who had not previously considered working are now beginning to fill the gap created by the absence of other bread winners or else simply in answer to the more insistent demand for their services. This is stated to be particularly true in the case of the Halifax branches.

The importance of this news lies in the fact that it is symptomatic of a condiiton. Other banks are pursuing the same policy. Women are now generally employed in munition making in Canada. The Betram plant at Dundas, Ont., and the Canada Cement plant in Montreal are illustrations of this fact. The available supply of such labor has only been scratched and it appears to offer the greatest hope of replacing the ever-increasing shortage of labor. A resurvey of the chief conditions prevailing throughout the period of the war in England will show them to have been invariably duplicated in this country at a later date. Recruiting, munitions, a period of depression, followed by great prosperity, labor shortage in all their phases have been invariably reproduced here. And a similar result appears to be inevitable in the case of female labor. Britain has been forced to depend upon it to an unusual degree and the sooner that Canadian industry adjusts itself to the same prospect the easier the change will occur.

A LIVELY CONFERENCE

Many Eloquent Speakers in Cranbrook.

The first Conference of the Social Service Council of Christ Church was a marked success. There was a large gathering and some excellent speeches were made by Cranbrook people. The chair was occupied by Rev. W. H. Bridge who opened by explaining the objects of the Council and asking for the co-operation of the citizens of Cranbrook in the work.

The subject of the Conference was the"New Position of Women, its dangers and opportunities."

Mrs. Shaw spoke first, as a delegate of the Women's Institute, expressing her conviction that women were needed in the public life of the City and Nation and that they should act not in opposition but in conjunction with men.

EAT'S GILLETT'S DIRT LYE CLEANS DISINFECTS

Mr. Spruell dealt with the influence of Religion and Education in determining the new position of women and taking an illustration from the hive of the bee uttered a warning against an over feminised state which called forth some laugher.

Miss Cherrington in an able and clear speech advocated the lengthening of the school period for girls. "At present girls leave school just when they are beginning to take an interest in public life. If their public school lie could be extended for one or two years they would leave with a far better equipment for citizenship." Another urgent need was more training in the exact sciences: this would lead to clear thinking. Other practical reforms Miss Cherrington suggested were abolition of entrance examinations; more emphasis upon modern and European history, and political economy.

Mrs. McFarlane spoke of the work of the W.C.T.U. emphasizing the need of womens work in changing the B.C. laws in relation to women and property. The present B. C. marriage laws which allow a girl of 13 to marry a boy of 14 were disgraceful.

Mr. Raworth spoke next and claimed to be an admirer of the ladies.(applause) but he felt the present position a serious menace to the welfare of the race. Each sex was superior in its own sphere but nature had ordained women to stay at home. (protest). His idea of womanhood was 'Mother'. If a woman has a home she has a sphere of influence which should engage her whole energies. Mr. Raworth's remarks called forth considerable opposition but the speaker stuck to his guns with his usual good humour and was by no means squashed!

Mrs. Leslie fired a few well chosen shots into Mr. Raworths' arguments, describing the toil and monotony of many women's lives, lighting fires, sweeping and minding babies—no time for literature, music, art, no time to think or to live. "Would that satisfy you? she asked. "Certainly" replied Mr. Raworth amid laughter.

Mrs. Palmer—as delegate from the Womens Institute, said "The age demands true thinking and right doing. We were not to 'Knock the men' but to work hand in hand. The men had not done particularly brilliantly: the country had been landed into a disgraceful muddle by our male politicians and it was time for a change." "Some men" the speaker said, "imagine this would be a fine world if men and women were just alike,and they were the samples!"

Rev. W. K. Thompson spoke at some length and with considerable feeling upon the necessity of Religion in the schools and the neglect of it in the homes. Here was a great work for women to undertake. He thought women in B. C. had won their privilege too lightly and were likely not to appreciate it fully. Let them remember it was the men after all who gave them the vote. He spoke also of the labor conditions in departmental stores and asserted that in many of the big stores the girls were so underpaid as to be forced into an immoral life. He urged the women who traded with such establishments to consider this

There spoke also Mrs. Mackinnon and Miss Alice Pye. The Rev W. H. Bridge in reply to a question regarding the position of women in the churches said he could find no justification in the gospels for the way in which the church had always differentiated between men and women.

It was a banful inheritance from Judiaism which he believed this new age would succeed in abolishing. Some remarks in condemnation of the dual standard of morality called forth energetic applause.

Throughout the conference there was a deal of straight, strong speaking and open criticism but the best of humour prevailed.

The next conference will be held on the first Thursday in November upon "The Municipal Laws and How They May be Enforced." A number of local questions will be dealt with—and there may be some excitement. The Conference will be open to the public and the public bodies will be invited to send delegates.

A GREAT CORPORATION

If all the trackage over which the Canadian Pacific has control—that is, all the leased lines, or lines taken bodily over, or with running rights—be included in a grand total, the company operates today 20,000 miles of tracks. This fact alone would tell of the bigness of the corporation which, thirty years ago issued its first annual statement on a sheet of note paper. The company owns 100,000 miles of telegraph; 10,000,000 acres of unsold lands, worth $200,000,000; and controls shipping to the extent of 400,000 tons. One of the notable features of the great corporation is, that it takes account of so many things, which, at the first blush, might not seem to be related to railway transportation. The comfort of the inner man on the trains is, of course, of prime moment; but note how the Canadian Pacific Railway went out of its way to provide dietic gastronomy. The railway company milks its own cows, and makes its own soap. It bakes its own bread; and it bores a tunnel through the mountains above the clouds. It grows its own potatoes, and its policies are of world-wide import and significance.

UTILIZES SAWMILL WASTE

Dr. J. G. Davidson of the University of British Columbia, in conjunction with Lloyd L. Davis of the department of industrial chemistry of the University of Washington, have discovered a process of distilling sawmill waste, whereby it is believed thousands of dollars now lost will be saved.

By means of this process tar, a light oil, acetate lime and charcoal are formed. The gas produced by distillation is carried through a pipe nine inches in diameter and twenty feet long. In the pipe is an electrically charged wire, which causes precipitation of the heavy particles of tar. The tar, orty gallons for each cord of wood distilled, is of medium consistency and immediately marketable. The light oil, obtained in a water condenser, is immediately marketable for use in ore refining, and the yield is twelve gallons to the cord of wood. Eighty pounds of acetate of lime are obtained from the pyroligneous acid of each cord of wood. Nine hundred pounds of charcoal are the final yield.

Dr. Davidson has been working on the problem of simplifying the distilling of wood and coal by the process indicated above for over two years. The greater part of the work has been don in the Vancouver Gas plant and the Tacoma Gas works, and the facts discovered in these two plants were utilized during the past summer in a series of experimental runs lasting for about a month in the wood distillation plant belonging to the United States forest service and the University of Washington at Seattle. Mr. Davis, a senior student of that university, made the analysis of the products. Arrangements are now being made to test out the process in connection with the carbonizing of coal under conditions which give the volatile products as tar and light oils with a minimum of coal gas. It is expected that this will complete the experimental and demonstration work which is considered desirable.

400 COWS' CREAM NEEDED IN 1917

(Creston Review)

Having heard so much to commend and so little condemnation of the Cranbrook creamery and the gentlemen in charge of it, it was but natural that during a few days' stay in Cranbrook last week that The Review man should drop in to get some first hand information on an industry that is destined to play an important part in the development of the Creston Valley.

On entering the building the very first thing that appeals to a visitor is the absolute cleanliness that prevails throughout the plant, coupled with splendid ventilation and a plentiful supply of light considering the plant is in a rented building-a building by the way, that combines a good location for the retail trade there is sure to be in buttermilk and ice cream, as well as being otherwise reasonably well adapted for the business used for.

The plant, while not all new, is pretty thoroughly modern and taken all round pretty well fills the bill for a pioneer creamery as this plant may be considered. Not including the boiler the plant presents an investment of almost $2,000. The churn has a capacity of 700 pounds of butter, and will manufacture this quantity in from 30 to40 minutes. This year the cream supply was never large enough to make more than three churnings each week necessary, owing to an adequate storage plant the cream vat now in use having a capacity of 250 gallons.

The plant was installed late in the spring and it was almost the middle of May before manufacturing commenced. In June the output of butter was 3296 pounds, along with 460 gallons of ice cream. In July, 4094 pounds of butter were turned out as well as 671 gallons of ice cream, while for August the figures were 3244 pounds of butter and 592 gallons of ice cream.

For the three months, we are told the average price for cream was 31 for sour and 34 cents for sweet cream. These prices, of course, do not include the price for special cream used in the making of ice cream, which was higher and uniform throughout the season. The amount paid to patrons these same months ran $911 in June, $1245 in July and $1186 in August.

These amounts were distributed among some 40 patrons and represent the cream from not more than 160 cows, and not all of these were from B. C., either, as manager Ammerman figures that at least $400 of this went to a shipper from Cowley, Alberta, who was also shipping cream for for some of his neighbors.

Of these 40, at least a dozen were from the Creston Valley, Fraser Bros. Stocks & Jackson, George & John Hobden. P. G. Ebbutt. D. Learmohth, Geo. Cartwright, A. D. Pochin, A. N. Couling, J. P. Moore, D. G. Lyon, M. Little, John Arrowsmith and a few others shipping regularly all season. While all are well pleased with the cash returns and prompt payments twice a month, Fraser Bros. were particularly fortunate in that their cream always came in sweet and was used for ice cream, thus netting them the very top prices.

Some idea of the excellence of the ice cream turned out by the firm can best be gleaned from the August sales which ran to 320 gallons in Cranbrook alone, while Creston consumed 85 gallons, and a like amount was shipped to one firm in Fernie. All the points on the Crow were using ice cream and enough of it could not be manufactured to supply the demand.

Kootenay Brand butter made by the firm had an equally favorable reception, and at no time after the butter had been introduced could enough be made to fill the orders the firm were offered. Mr. Ammerman assured us that the popularity of the creamery product was in a large measure due to the excellent quality of the cream he received, and that so long as the patrons will exercise the greatest care to send along clean, pure, high grade cream he is prepared to assure the for the health of the family? The mother, of course! She is naturally particular to give her children only the purest of internal medicines, but she may not always know that a remedy applied to the skin enters the child's system, by absorption, just as surely as a medicine that is swallowed. This is a fact, and the mother should, therefore, use only the purest ointment obtainable.

Scientific analysis has proved Zam-Buk to be absolutely pure. The great English Chemist, Mr. W. Lascelles Scott, says: "I have made an exhaustive analysis of Zam-Buk and have no hesitation in certifying its purity and its inestimable value for skin ailments and injuries."

Although the healing powers of Zam-Buk are beyond those of other ointments, it is at the same time so refined that it agrees with the most sensitive skin—even the skin of a baby. Mothers who have once used it say they cannot do without Zam-Buk.

It is best for eczema and all skin diseases, ringworm, blood-poison, scalp sores, ulcers, boils, pimples, piles, burns, scalds, cuts, etc. All druggists or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.35.

There is sure money in the newspaper business, war or no war. A Toronto business, war or no war. A fortune of $50,000 and will retire from the profession. An uncle of his was killed fighting somewhere in France with one of the Canadian Contingents and bequeathed him $49,950 of the amount.

same satisfactory prices as prevailed this year. He would be only too happy to have a steady supply of cream from 400 cows. He believes there is a market for triple the quantity of butter turned out this year, as well as about 4000 gallons of ice cream more or less at points contiguous to Cranbrook.

When one considers the limited amount of cream there was available this year along with the high price that patrons received for it and the regularity with which the remittances came, pretty conclusive evidence is furnished that the creamery was splendidly handled in every department his year, necessitating, we feel sure, considerable extra and at-all-hours-of-the-day-and-night work on the part of the employees.

A creamery cannot successfully operate on 160 cows for very many seasons. Twice that number would be about right. For a starter the smaller number will suffice, but now that Mr. Ammerman has demonstrated his ability to make a brand of butter the people cannot get enough of, to say nothing of his willingness to buckle in and keep the operating costs down to the minimum, and the industry he is developing are worthy of a more hearty support from all interested in the dairy business—and in this connection we in the Creston Valley are as vitally concerned as those ranching nearer the location of the factory.
