Big Music Day On Monday

Lieurance Orchestra Pleases Chautauqua Patrons With Fine Program

Rightly called "the big music day" of the Chautauqua program, Monday brought the Lieurance Symphony Orchestra to the city. This organization was formed by Thurlow Lieurance well known American composer and investigator of Indian music, and it was quite fitting that on the same day Princess Oyapela, interpreter of Indian folk lore and legend should also appear.

The Lieurance Orchestra is a strong musical company of ten, made up of four first violins, three second violins, cello, bass viol and piano. They presented fine programs, leaning towards the classical, yet always with an admixture of popular music that held the rapt attention of their audiences. In the evening Mr. J. Horace Smithey, a Metropolitan baritone, also appeared, and charmed the tentful of listeners with his well-trained, sympathetic and admirably controlled voice.

The orchestral ensemble numbers comprised a number of well known items including the Rachmaninoff Prelude in C Sharp Minor, a Mozart Overture, and the old familiar "Home, Sweet Home," translated into the tastes of many nations, interpreted as an Irish jig, a Scotch reel, a wierd Chinese melody and others. A string quartette comprising three violins and cello gave "The Mill" a readily understandable descriptive piece, and a pretty minuet in G. Accompanied by this quartette, two violins gave "The Bee," and Moszkowski's "Spanish Dance" and the "Gypsy Air" given as solos on the violin by Miss Weinstock were quite deservingly given hearty applause, the latter being one of the gems of the evening. A fine rendering of Sullivan's "Lost Chord" as a cello solo by Mr. R. G. Spurling was encored and an equally unassuming but effective second number given in the Old English song, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

By special request Princess Oyapela appeared in an interpretation of two Lieurance Indian songs, assisted by Mr. Smithey and the full orchestra. The "Canoe Song" especially appealed to the crowd, and was enthusiastically encored.

Mr. Smithey gave his best as a rare treat with his part of the program and received a very flattering reception. His songs included the light and heavy, serious and sentimental, into all of which he was able to put the requisite atmosphere and proper degree of color. "Farewell" and a lullaby were two of his best songs but "On the Road to Mandalay," "Tommy Lad," and "Kitty O'Toole" were also first class and appealed strongly.

Chautauqua has always put strong emphasis on its musical programs, and the Lieurance Orchestra was as good as the best—with a good program of first class music, but not so onesidedly classical as to be over everyone's head.

SIGN UP CHAUTAUQUA FOR NEXT YEAR; ALMOST COMPLETED

For the first time in the five years during which Chautauqua has been coming to Cranbrook, a deficit will most likely face the committee at its close. What it will amount to cannot as yet be determined. An attempt has been made to analyse the situation, and the committee pretty well has generally agreed that certain extraneous circumstances have contributed some share of the difficulty encountered this year. It has been held considerably earlier than in previous years, and an effort will be made next year to put it on later, say some time in July or August. This course will make it easier to arrange the Junior Chautauqua work, regarding which there was some misunderstanding this year. It will also tend to make the evenings in the tent more comfortable.

The weather this year has not been of the pleasantest while Chautauqua has been in progress. Almost every day there has been some rain, and the temperature in the evening has been unusually low for this time of year.

Notwithstanding the deficit this year the committee decided to go ahead and sign up for next year, leaving the contract in the hands of the executive for their final approval. Most of the old guarantors have gone on again, and some new names will also appear among the signatures. Up to the time of going to press forty three signatures had been affixed to the contract, with the expectation that there would be no difficulty in getting the remaining few repuired. Fifty is the number the local committee has set in the past to go on the contract, though the Chautauqua people would be satisfied with less. But the committee has felt that in a city this size fifty names should be the minimum.

The week's program is being concluded today, with the Scotch-Canadian party on in the afternoon and for the evening prelude, and Pitt Parker, crayon wizard, cartoonist and entertainer, in the evening.

MISS WOODLAND GETS APPOINTMENT AS SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Miss A. Woodland, Vice-Principal of the Central School, has been offered the position of principal commencing at the opening of the fall term, at a salary of $2250 per annum, in succession to Mr. Arthurs, who has resigned. Miss Woodland was an applicant for the position, and the school board at a meeting last Friday decided to offer the appointment as above. It is understood that Miss Woodland is accepting. Although something of an innovation for Cranbrook, the decision of the school board seems to be a popular one judging by what comment has been heard. Miss Woodland has been at the Central School for a considerable time now, and there is no question as to her popularity among both the pupils and parents. One other appointment was also made to the Central School staff at this time, and the other vacancies will be considered at a special meeting of the board to be held during the next few days.

"WHAT IS SUCCESS?" ASKS LECTURER AT CHAUTAUQUA

Dr. Jas. L. Gordon made a good impression with the Chautauqua audience an Saturday evening with his lecture announced as "Grace, Grit and Greenbacks." "How to Succeed," or "The Vocabulary of Success" were other titles which might be given to his address, and which seem better to fit it. Dr. Gordon was in a happy vein and brought out some very strong points, and kept his audience with him throughout by his witty interpolations and ready fund of apt quotations and anecdotes. Speaking of success, Dr. Gordon divided his subject in four parts. The first was the dictionary version where success meant merely a succession of things. As for instance the ascendency of the North American continent over the old world. This is the new dawn, and it heralds the best civilization in ten thousand years. There is no better place in the world today than Western Canada.

The second interpretation is the individual meaning of success, for every man has his own idea of it.

The third is the popular meaning of success. For instance when a man makes a million dollars he is seldom asked how he got it. It is popularly accepted that he has succeeded. "It's funny, funny, funny, but it's money, money, money," that counts in the popular idea of success. "Let me say to you in all seriousness," said Dr. Gordon, "that when a man throws his conscience overboard he is a failure, and all the money in the world will not change it. One dollar always has our respect but $100,000 will be known by the company it keeps. All the money in all the banks, in all the provinces of the Dominion of Canada, will not make a man a success."

The fourth interpretation of success was the highest of all the regard for good and the doing of good in all circumstances which is so important a matter to the world today. Civilization is not being built for millionaires and if we want to know whether a man is successful you should multiply him. What kind of a country would there be if it were filled with millionaires alone? Canada need be in no hurry to build up an aristocracy—the soldier who fought for civilization should be number one in our new aristocracy.

The 19th century saw the rise of the United States but the 20th belongs to Canada. Canada is the hinge between the United States and the British Empire and what is being done here is being done for Great Britain. "Britain is great and the man who does not know it is an ignoramus," said Dr. Gordon with some fervor. "Clemenceau, Wilson, and Venezelos, have gone, and the Kaiser has gone, thank God. They have all gone, but the little Welshman, Lloyd George, of Great Britain, who stayed through it all and is still on top. The democrary of great Britain has stood the test and it is up to you here in Canada to do your job."

We have the divine signature as it were written upon every one of us, for no two are alike. Yet men must be weighed as well as counted. If we don't win here there is not another place in the world with the same opportunity as Canada.

Gity Council Has Busy Meeting

Regular Session of City Council Deals With Big Stack of Business

The city council at its session last Thursday was called upon to deal with all kinds of business and did not adjourn until a fairly late hour. All were present with the exception of Alderman Binning.

A letter from Mr. Baird, Inspector of Municipalities, Victoria, informed the council that the proposed grant to the Recreation Club of $500 would not be in accordance ith the provisions of the Municipal Act, and so the matter will be dropped. This is the grant which excited so much discussion at a meeting about two months ago, and to which Alderman Santo took a decided objection.

A representative of the Board of Fire Underwriters for British Columbia, was present to address the council, and was supported by Messrs. M. A. Beale, J. W. Spence, J. Martin and J. Cholditch, local fire insurance agents. It was stated in this connection that although some reduction in fire insurance rates had been made some time ago, investigation of conditions here did not seem to warrant it. Mr. Noble, the Underwriters' representative, condemned the city's fire fighting apparatus and equipment, saying it was out of date and insufficient, and useless to meet the demands a big conflagration would make upon it. According to his own personal observation there were accumulations of rubbish in the lanes which constituted distinct hazards and which ought not to be allowed. Fault was also found with some of the hydrants, which it was claimed would not deliver water at the proper pressure, and would be worse than useless when put on to a long hose line. It was urged that the city take cognizance of these facts, and that the departments concerned work in harmony. The equipment of the fire department was inadequate at the best, the engine being out of date, and spare parts hard to obtain. It was pointed out also that it was the practice frequently to take the fire team out of the fire hall and use them sometimes at quite a distance, which would mean a lot of valuable time lost in the event of a fire call. The fire and police committee will consider the matter.

In connection with the proposal to provide the city with a new fair grounds and park site, the necessary by-law, calling for the raising of the sum of $10,000 by way of loan, for the purchase of the site and erecting the buildings, is to be submitted to the electors on Wednesday, July 6.

Another by-law went through its preliminary stages last Thursday, and will shortly become law, in the shape of the poll tax by-law, under which those not already contributing to the city or government through the regular channels of taxation will be called upon to pay into the city treasury the sum of $5 per annum.

The Stock Breeders' Association, through a delegation, urged some amendment to the existing pound by-law, which it was claimed was working some hardship upon the farmers and stockmen of the district. To this the Mayor promised consideratoin.

Another delegation requested the extension of water facilities to the Fairview addition. Referred to the water committee.

The usual reports were received from the City Foreman, the Fire Chief, the Dairy Inspector and the Superintendent of the Electric Light Dept.

"THE RIVALS" TAKES WITH BIG CROWD ON WEDNESDAY

The Chautauqua tent had the best crowd of the week on Wednesday evening when Sheridan's comedy "The Rivals" was presented by the Coffer-Miller Players. There was not quite the crowd that jambed the tent to overflowing last year, nor in the estimation of some was the play quite such a popular choice as then. But there was plenty of fun in the inaptitudes of Mrs. Malaprop's "parts of speech" and Bob Acre's courage as he rises to the occasion for the duel. Some clever acting characterized Jess Coffer's impersonations as Bob Acres and Sir Anthony Absolute, the old gentleman's volatile temper being shown off most laughably. Martha Miller, as Mrs. Malapop did exceedingly well showing off that good lady's "concentricities" to a fine point. Jack Absolute, the scheming double personage, Lydia Languish, the haughty and unbending niece of Mrs. Malaprop and Sir Lucius O'Trigger, the Irish baronet and instructor of Bob Acres in the gentlemanly art of duelling, all supported their principles admirably, and contributed to the success of the play as a whole.

Organizer Jago, of Mission, B.C., was in the city for some time this week in connection with his work as provincial organizer for the Loyal Orange Lodge. He left again on Wednesday.

WYCLIFFE MAINTAINS POSITION AT HEAD OF BASEBALL LEAGUE

League Standing

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Wycliffe	5	0	1000
Fernie	4	1	.800
Cranbrook	2	3	.400
Waldo	2	3	.400
Wardner	1	4	.200
White Spruce	0	5	.000

Wycliffe continued its winning career in the baseball league on Sunday last by beating the White Spruce nine at home by 4-3. Fernie beat Wardner by 16-7, and has drawn away well into the second place, a long gap in the percentages now separating Fernie from Cranbrook in the third place. Another win by Fernie and a loss by Wycliffe will tie for the first place. The Cranbrook nine went out to Waldo for their game on Sunday, and got a real good licking by 19-5. By pulling this off Waldo tied with Cranbrook for third place in the league, and White Spruce still have their first game to win.

In next Sunday's games White Spruce is at home to Cranbrook, Wycliffe and Wardner meet at Wycliffe, and Waldo and Fernie meet at Waldo.

Get Back to the Old Standards

Judge Alden, in Fine Lecture, Sets This Down as Greatest "Need of the Hour"

Probably nothing quite as unique or moving, in both a humorous and serious sense, has ever been heard before in Cranbrook as the address given on Tuesday evening at Chautauqua by Judge Geo. D. Alden. It was announced as a lecture, but some better designation should be found for it on the program. There is nothing of the stiffness of manner nor bone-dry subject that some have connect with the title of "lecture," but nevertheless the speaker left with his hearers a far more profound impression that many another adopting more conventional methods, could have done.

Judge Alden is a New England lawyer, obviously with a legally trained insight into the heart of things. He comes from Pilgrim Father stock and has inherited the same steadfastness of purpose and loyalty to an ideal that set the good-ship "Mayflower" on its great voyage west.

One might well wonder what draws a man like Judge Alden from his own more lucrative life work. It isn't the ease of a lecturer's life, for it would seem to be full of discomforts and annoyances. The answer would be found in his intense enthusiasm for the betterment of his national manhood—a feeling that having by some rich personal experience gained a new outlook on life, a new classification of the fundamentals, there is only one thing to be done—to give out the message broadcast.

Judge Alden, while attempting to charge himself with provincialism in his outlook on "the needs of the hour" yet proved himself the broadest of men and an adept in prescribing for the ills that seem to beset human nature in a commercial and social way. His clever references to the shortsightedness of the New Englanders who while decrying the sins of those sitting in the seats of the mighty were displaying the selfsame faults in their own lives, were only used that he might drive home to his hearers their own proneness to them. The Judge knows the psychology of an audience, but he also knows human nature and showed his breadth of sympathy and understanding.

His fund of wit and humor seemed illimitable, but his anecdotes all had a point, and the most trenchant truths were sandwiched between laughable allusions so closely that everyone had to take them in. The smiles scarce-ceased before they broke out again, but there seemed no incongruity to it.

Judge Alden said that the theme of his lecture, "The Needs of the Hour," involved certain relationships which everyone finds themselves in. He divided these relationships into four groups, the commercial, political, domestic and religious, and from these he deduced some plain truths in regard to a man's associations with the masses.

Speaking avowedly as an American of the Americans, Judge Alden went on to divide the national history of his country into four distinct epochs. The first the period of the Pilgrim Fathers, that little band of Britishers who pushed out over the open sea and landed on the New England shores; then came the days of '76 when the English colonists revolted from the autocracy of a German who had taken his seat upon the British throne; the third period was the time of the civil strife of '61, and it was pointed out how it was due to England that a united America remained after that strife by withholding official recognition from the belligerent South.

"But," said the speaker, "we have turned from the age when honor and good held sway, and the age of gold and the spirit of greed and graft sules today. Someone has said that the

A Deal Likely To Make History

Complications Arising Out Of Famous $150,000 Vancouver Liquor Store Deal

Premier Oliver has cast his hat into the ring in the Vancouver dispute between the proprietors of The Vancouver Daily Sun, erstwhile press organ for the Liberal interests there, and The Vancouver World, until recently the Independent, Prohibition organ, but acquired by Mr. Charles E. Campbell, president of the Vancouver Liberal Association, strong government follower and now the government vehicle through which the provincial government's policies will be aired in contradiction to the efforts of the government hitherto to utilize The Daily Province, an Independent, but none the less influential figure in the newspaper field.

Over his own signature, in large sized type, two columns wide, a big article by J. S. Cromie appeared on the front page of the Sun last week in which he asserted that having demanded of Premier Oliver three months ago that a check be put to crooked deals which he alleged without particularizing were being transacted or else the Liberal party would be wrecked. The answer Cromie says, came through Campbell to the effect that the Sun must be put out of business. Campbell ultimately offered $150,000 to buy the Sun which Cromie refused. The article concludes with a profession of acting solely in the interest of subscribers and the public. It is reproduced on another page.

The squabble between the proprietors of the Sun and World has become acute of late consequent upon allegations by the former accusing the government of certain actions, one of the chief of which was the acquisition of the Campbell warehouse at a cost of some $150,000, for the purpose of the Liquor Control Board. This interchange of pleasantries which has resulted in the institution by Mr. Campbell of an action of libel against the Sun and its proprietor, Mr. R. J. Cromie, as well as a similar action by Mr. A. B. Buckworth, general manager of the P.G.E., the provincial government owned railway line, because of certain alleged implications as to fixing railway rates on the P.G.E. in favor of a friend, Mr. Edgett, has kept the press-reading public of Vancouver and the province at large interested for the past three or four weeks.

All the trouble started while Premier Oliver as in the East, and now that he has come home the contest is becoming heated.

Premier Oliver has issued a lengthy reply to the Sun's statements charging that it is all the result of the refusal of himself to assist the publisher of the Sun in regard to difficulty the latter was having as to adequate paper supply, but making little reference to the real issues which have been raised.

Mr. R. J. Cromie of the Sun has published the following statement in reply to Hon. John Oliver:

"Premier Oliver is absolutely right when he claims that I wanted him to go after the paper companies. Who else would I appeal to if not the Premier? However, with conditions as they are at Victoria, Premier Oliver is not in a position to give the people, The Sun, or any one else, justice.

"One thing now perfectly plain to the public is that some of the Premier's ministers have gotten entirely out of hand and, regardless of whether or not he is an accomplice to the bold ways in which they are out robbing the public, the Premier is trying to shield them.

"When Premier Oliver attempts to answer charges involving large amounts of public funds by making personal references to me, he is undignified and ridiculous and brands the Oliver government with the yellow and black stripes of scoundrelism.

"Premier Oliver asks the public not to believe any of the reports that had been published. Does he thing the people cannot read and write the same as himself?"

FAREWELL TENDERED CITIZEN LEAVING SOON FOR "OULD IRELAND"

Mr. Jack Armour was the honored guest at a very pleasant function at the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening when close upon a hundred of his friends were invited to a farewell tendered to mark his impending departure from the city. Mr. Armour sails early next month for the north of Ireland. The decorations in the hall were in Irish effect, and Irish music had a prominent place in the dances. During the evening Mr. Armour was made the recipient of a presentation by his friends in the shape of a handsome black club bag, Mr. Thos. Caven officiating at this part of the proceedings. This was also accompanied by a nicely executed address done up in Irish green. Dancing held sway till close upon three o'clock when the party broke up after a very pleasant time.

OPENING OF LIQUOR STORE HERE DELAYED FOR SOME TIME

The hotel men of the city are entertaining some little feeling on account of the fact that they were ordered to close up their bars aganst the sale of beer before the government store here was opened for business. The bars shut down so far as beer was concerned on Wednesday morning. It is understood that the stock of liquor for the government store is now en route here, but it will likely be some days yet before the store opens for business.

It has been understood for some time that Mr. John Taylor of Moyie was to be the government vendor in Cranbrook, but in view of the fact that the salaries to be paid are not as high as expected, he may not accept the position. It was thought some time ago that about $2400 per year would be the salary attached to the vendor's position, but it is understood now that this has been pruned considerably. In Nelson and elsewhere the previously designated vendors are refusing the position on this account, and this is delaying the smooth working of the new law for a time.

Some bars in Vancouver have already announced that they are going to continue selling beer as formerly till prevented by the government, and the matter of taxing the liquor brought into the province privately is also going to be made the subject of a test case right away, according to word from Vancouver.

Only two permits have been sold in Cranbrook so far, one for beer and one for whiskey, and all over the province a day or two ago only about four hundred permits had been disposed of.

SHOULD STRIVE TO DEVELOP REAL HOME SPIRIT FOR FUTURE

It often happens that one of the numbers on a Chautauqua platform occupying a comparatively inconspicuous place on the program, turns out to be one of the best. So it is that some are inclined to give Miss Lethe Coleman, who appeared on Tuesday afternoon, and with none too large an audience, credit for putting on one of the best numbers of the entire week. For sheer grace and polish, her lecture on "The Homing of the People" was the best of its kind, and dealing after all as it does with a vital subject to the Canadian West, it is a pity more could not have heard Miss Coleman. There is nothing radical in what Miss Coleman advocates in regard to her subject, but the sane consideration of aspects of the question which are often overlooked is what she emphasizes.

She showed how a home is to be thought of as a great deal more than merely four walls and a collection of furniture. It must be filled with the proper atmosphere by parents who are sensible of their responsibilities. More and more, Miss Coleman pointed out, women are being attracted away from home life into the more spectacular realm of business, where success can be achieved in a more tangible way than in the home, and after all, when the men are so keen after the pursuit of success of this kind, can the women be blamed for joining in the chase? Nevertheless, Miss Coleman is old-fashioned enough to believe, while not being dogmatic about it, or carrying idea to extremes, that women belongs essentially to the home, and ought to be prepared to give to the home what added experience and capabilities her business training gives her. It is the development of the domestic life of the nation which has brought about national development, and anything that hurt the child or the mother was detrimental to the nation. Miss Coleman pointed out the wonderful opportunity in Western Canada, still a new country, to provide homes for the countless thousands who will sooner or later be making this country their home. But care should be taken to lay the foundations aright, and to see that not merely buildings but real homes are put up so that those upon whom the future of the nation was going to depend could do their work well.

Miss Coleman concluded her address with an appeal for a pause in the mad rush through life once in a while at least to give us time to take in the beauties of life, to which too often we have become insensible.

The boys of the Cadet Corps, about thirty strong, are going into camp for a week or so commencing about the 20th of June. They will be in charge of Mr. Arthurs, who has had the cadet work in hand since its organization in the spring. Mr. L. C. Eckert will assist Mr. Arthurs at the camp.

Mike Benniger, who was motored to Cranbrook on Wednesday evening of last week for an operation for appendicitis, successfully underwent the operation and is making a nice recovery. The trip, which was made in Ron. Lidgate's Ford, was negotiated in four hours and twelve minutes, which constitutes a record run between Creston and Cranbrook.

Boy'S Vacation Important Matter

Camp Should be a Character Builder—Not Merely Matter of Pastime

Now that Chautauqua is over our thoughts will run to vacation. Plans are now under way for a Boys' Camp. Please don't forget this, and anxious parents may rest assured that unless a worthwhile camp can be held there will be no camp so far as the "Y" is concerned. There must be an objective to every camp. The program must be carefully thought out to make sure that the objectives are covered. It is not enough to have the proper number of activities, they need careful relating and proper balancing. It must not be a mere loafing period, or a camp for "Fun" with a capital F only. Leaders must be found who have personality and character of the right kind. The location must be found where a real boy's program can be put across. A site suitable for older folk or even girls might be a very poor locaton for a boys camp.

Regulations and discipline must be kept in the background, an atmosphere must be created that will give the boys to understand that what few rules there are have been male for the benefit of all campers and are to be strictly observed.

Some things to be done:

1. Give every boy a good time.
2. Keep him clean, happy, active, eager and snappy.
3. Develop initiative and a sense of personal responsibility.
4. Teach him to love fields and flowers, trees and birds, lakes and stars, and all of God's great outdoors.
5. To continue the essential four fold development.
6. Promote and foster the spirit of friendly rivalry, and fair play in games and contests.
7. Teach by example and precept clean living and speech.
8. Build up a strong physical body by well balanced and properly directed play and exercise, well balanced rations, and plenty of sleep in pure camp air.
9. Lay the sure foundations upon which the boy will build a life devoted to true Canadianism and consecrated to real service as a Christian gentleman.

These are some of the things that go toward making a worth-while camp. Every real boy with "zip" and "go" wants to get out into the woods and water when summer comes. Tired of his school books and desk, the deep shadows of the forest, the thought of camp fire, the leaping fish and the freedom of all out-of-doors call him. It's more fun to go with "the bunch" than it is to go out alone.

Now let everybody get under this proposed camp and boost.

It is possible that the location may be named next week with the cost to each boy for the outing and the names of the men who will be at the camp as leaders.

The Union Cafe building near the depot is being brightened up with a coat of paint, and will greatly improve the looks of the town from the station platform, the only way some people have of sizing up the place.

An old-timer of Fernie and the East Kootenay passed away last week in the person of Mr. D. V. Mott, who passed away at Fernie at the age of 72. He went from Macleod to Fernie over twenty years ago, and in those days became widely known in the lumber business, being the founder of the Elk Lumber Co. He leaves a widow and a son and daughter in Fernie.

A good deal of residential property in the city has been turned over of late, and the real estate business in this line continues brisk. Martin Bros. have put through a number of deals in the past week or two and have others pending. They sold the MacKinnon house on Garden Avenue at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Meighen to Mr. and Mrs. A. Bowley, who will occupy it in due course. Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Parker have also bought the Callanan house recently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fry and lately owned by a mortgage company. Mr. and Mrs. Bond have recently acquired the W. McKenzie house on Clark Avenue, Martin Bros. negotiated these deals.

The building boom that now seems to have commenced in the city ought to presage good times in the near future. Two good sized contracts now in hand are the new theatre on Norbury and A. A. MacKinnon's new foundry on Cranbrook street, foundation work on both of which is now proceeding. The new cement garage addition for F. H. Dezall has been completed and is now being used, and a little later it will be further improved by a full concrete floor. Several other contracts are either already let or in view, and there are a number of smaller jobs in process such as house additions and betterments.

CRANBROOK, BRITISH COLUMBIA
THURSDAY, JUNE 16th, 1921

COMING BACK AGAIN

Faced with a deficit as a result of this year's Chautauqua, even though it be only a small one, some will wonder why the committee has seen fit to sign up another contract for next year. Neither has it seemed difficult to get sufficient names to fill up the contract. If Chautauqua was the purely mercenary organization some have tried to make out, then these fifty odd men have been badly duped. But the shoe is on the other foot. The more one looks into the Chautauqua idea, the farther the mercenary consideration in connection sinks into the background. It is not to be compared with any ordinary road show for the simple reason that the type of platform artist Chautauqua attracts is not the kind that could logically be expected to take a hit or miss chance through the country.

Moving pictures are considered to have an educational value today, and to secure the really high class pictures the theatre men are required to agree to a contract price, or in other words, to pay a guarantee. It is a straight business procedure when something out of the ordinary value is to be considered. Those who say that Chautauqua ought to come into a town or city strictly on its own merits would probably be the first to object to the increased price, for this is what would inevitably happen. It could be done, but the ticket would cost more for a program not as good.

Chautauqua is educational, and on that account the figuring has to be done in something representing more lasting values than dollars and cents. This is what the local committee recognizes, and it is going to pay what deficit is called for, and hopes by the rearrangement of some details in connection with it to make the 1922 Chautauqua a signal success. What criticism has been heard has not been directed at the Chautauqua idea, but in connection with its working out. One night this week Chautauqua went up against a full sized minstrel minstrel show as a counter attraction, and if the latter did not suffer, neither did the former in point of attendance, apparently. This is a hopeful sign, and goes to show that there ought to be room once a year for the Chautauqua provided the contributing conditions are propitious.

THE PREMIER'S REPLY

Those who were in hopes that Premier Oliver would on his return to Victoria issue a clear-cut statement to set right his position in regard to the allegations made by the Vancouver Sun as to the purchase of the liquor warehouse at Vancouver recently, were disappointed at the nature of the statement he gave out. Instead of going right to the heart of the allegations made against the government he seeks to make it appear a matter of personal animus. The Premier asserts that when the publisher of the Sun approached him for assistance in the matter of securing the assurance of the continuance of his supply of newsprint from the paper company, he considered The Sun had no case at all. If this were so, why did the Premier consent to go and interview the paper company himself? It is out of this little matter that the Premier attempts to trace the motive for the publisher of the Sun coming out as he has of late in opposition to the government.

But what the people are interested in is the matter of the warehouse deal which the Sun brought to light of day. Did the government pay fifty per cent. over market value for the place, the title to which could be clouded owing to the encroachment of the building on to adjoining property, and why was the deal surrounded with secrecy, instead of being done openly or by tender, when other buildings just as suitable might haev been found? It is these questions which call for an answer instead of sending forth a mass of personal denunciation and attempting to find cover under the smoke.

The Premier says that the deal will mean a saving of rental charges if spread over a period of years. The Premier in taking this view is pre-supposing that the new government control act is going to have a longer lease of life than many of the electors are prepared to give it. There is no longer very much wonder why the government did not put the measure before the people at the time of the plebiscite or the subsequent election. It would never have passed. Now all the cajolery of the government to "all good citizens" to support the new measure cannot make a success of it. The people did not pass on the act as it has now appeared, and the responsibility rests clearly on the shoulders of the government.

CALGARY EXHIBITION TO FEATURE MASSED CHOIR CONCERTS DAILY

In the program which will be presented at the 1921 Calgary Exhibition, to be held June 30th to July 8th, the management considers it has the highest class and most entertaining features that have ever been secured for a Calgary Exhibition.

An attraction which will undoubtedly be the most popular for many years is the massed Festival Choir of 200 voices, composed of the five Calgary choirs which competed in the recent Alberta Musical Festival. The choir work at this Festival was so good that one of the adjudicators, Mr. W. H. Hall, professor of choral singing at Columbia University, New York, said "The choral work at this Festival has reached the highest mark I have ever heard on this continent."

A forty-five minute concert will be given each evening by the massed choir, accompanied by a thirty-piece orchestra, which will include choral numbers, solos and other special numbers.

Another feature which will delight all Exhibition patrons will be fireworks. A remarkable display of aerial fireworks will be given in addition to a reproduction of the naval battle at Dover each evening following the regular platform program, which in itself would constitute a wonderful evening's entertainment.

The live stock and industrial exhibits this year promise to be exceptionally good, and the prospects for the best all round Exhibition that has ever been held in Calgary are particularly bright.

WINNIPEG.—As a result of a meeting held here recently by a representative body of farmers it was decided that farm laborers in Manitoba should be paid an average of $50 with board during the seeding season. This will mean a drop of from 25 to 50 per cent less than that paid last year. There is said to be no surplus of farm help.

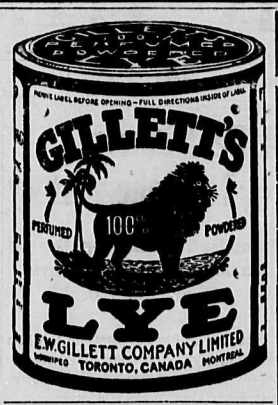
The drummer looked across the aisle. The seat beside the pretty girl was vacant. Going over, he said: "Is this seat engaged?"

"No," said the girl, "but I am, so it won't do you any good.



FROM THE VIEW-POINT OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES

No Splitting Up

It is to be hoped Ottawa will give no encouragement to the separatist movement. There are already too many provinces in Canada. The people have nine legislatures, besides a federal parliament and nine sets of provincial officials of all sorts. Ontario and Quebec are populous enough to carry the load, but no one can look at the palatial quarters in which the governments of the western group of provinces are housed without feeling that living up to provincial status must strain their resources. As population increases the strain will lessen, but the present is no time for adding to it by carving up British Columbia.—Toronto Globe.

Oriental Ownership of Lands

The survey recently undertaken by the provincial department of agriculture to ascertain the number of Orientals owning land within the province revealed a far worse condition than was suspected by the most pessimistic. Altogether there are 1080 Asiatics engaged in agriculture; including land owned and leased they control 26,918 acres. The land owned outright by Orientals totals 14,050 acres and is held by 492 Japanese and 11 Chinese; of the leased land, 103 Japanese control 1781 acres and 369 Chinese hold 11,087 acres and the figures grow apace. The Chinese specialize in truck growing and the Japanese in the production of small fruits.

These figures will surprise some people who were not inclined to take the matter of Orientals very seriously. Residents of the Fraser Valley can testify as to its importance but there are few white people remaining in some parts of the Pacific Great Eastern and Lillooet areas to tell anything of it there; they have been supplanted by Asiatics.—Vancouver Sun.

Joking With Justice

As the Leipzig Court develops its stride the attitude of the whole tribunal and its interpretation of tha provision of the Treaty of Versailles which was responsible for its creation becomes more and more farcical. To bring in a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the submarine commander who actually confessed to the torpedoing of the hospital ship, Dover Castle, because he was merely carrying out the orders of his superiors means that the real culprits and their tools are going to escape punishment. But surely such a flagrant travesty of justice and such an insult to international law may not be continued in violation of the spirit of the Treaty. Germany was required to establish this Court and she has done so. But she must not be permitted to take cover under a type of legal technicality which in itself lays the foundation of a case against those who really should be in the dock.—Victoria Times.

Sinn Feiners in U.S.A.

Real Admiral Sims is getting hauled over the coals by his government for speaking the truth. Plain speaking is often considered officially objectionable when it offends the susceptibilities of any element in the United States. and when the person responsible is in another country. The Americans are very thin skinned where the Irish question is concerned, and perhaps the implications of Admiral Sims are felt all the more because the Republican party is in power. The American visitor to Britain said that the blood of British and American boys was on the hands of Sinn Feiners in the United States because they placed obstructions in the way of the most effective operation of the Allied naval forces during the war. It was a crime against their adopted country and against the country of their birth to use such obstruction, but it is no crime on the part of Admiral Sims to tell the British people about the matter. He was in command of the American ships attached to the Grand Fleet. He ought to know.—Colonist.

VANCOUVER.—Many novel features are incorporated in the boat which has just been launched here for the Hudson's Bay Company for service on the Peace River. The boat is sixty feet over all, with a beam of eleven feet and four feet depth of hull. The boat has a phenomenally light draught for so large a craft of but nine inches, with a maximum of not more than twenty inches when the boat is fully loaded. The vessel is capable of a speed of seventeen miles an hour.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Extracts from the Cranbrook Herald of this date, 1900

L. B. VanDecar and Frank VanDecar have dissolved partnership.

The feast of Corpus Christi was celebrated at the Mission on Sunday last.

The McNab Lumber Co.'s sawmill is now running in nice shape and is cutting over 20,000 feet per day.

Hon. Frank Lascelles, who shot and killed his Chinaman a week ago, has been adjudged insane, and has been taken to New Westminster.

M. J. McDonald, an employee of Robinson & McKenzie's sawmill, was struck and killed by an incoming freight at an early hour on Monday morning.

That Dominion Day will be celebrated this year in a manner which is characteristic of everything which the town undertakes is now an assured fact.

"It's the greatest body of ore on the American continent," said Senator Turner of Spokane after an inspection of the Sullivan Mine at Kimberley, in company with Mr. Hull, of Toledo, Ohio.

nation which turns from God to gold will go down to defeat. In the last decade some of the American people have gone around crying out against the Rockefellers and the Morgans and their 'tainted' money. I am convinced," the Judge said trenchantly, "that the only 'taint' they are worrying about is that 't ain't' theirs." These people were after all only types of our own ways and desires, and the spirit of profiteering has been over us all. But the national spirit was not to be mended till the individual spirit was changed.

"The needs of today," went on the Judge, "are to be found in the teachings of Christ made two thousand years ago. Religion declining in the minds of men is responsible for the evils of today. A man who has no respect for God has no respect for himself, and lack of self respect is the incubator for all the spirit of graft and greed of our age. At the centre of civilization is Christianity, and at the heart of Christianity is Christ."

"Fear and cowardice are the only things these days that make us pray for help," went on the speaker, "you never hear of prayer in prosperous times, yet how readily we call out if we are caught out on the sea in an open boat with the waves rolling high about us. Churches are just as much a necessity for men as for women and children.

"We English-speaking races should stand together in a great brotherhood relationship for the support of civilization, with a love and friendship for each other that no foe will ever show its head to challenge the peace of the world," was another of Judge Alden's admonitions toward the close of his address.

Preceding Judge Alden's lecture the Tennessee Duo presented a prelude program of music and readings, appearing also in the afternoon. By common consent they were the weakest number on the program, generally speaking. One or two of their numbers were good and brought some response, but on the whole they were not of the usual Chautauqua class.

J. McDonald, of Kimberley, spent Friday of last week in town.

WINNIPEG.—Immigration authorities here report the number of emigrants from the United States into Western provinces for the first three months of 1921 as 2,749, value of effects $366,965, while the money that was brought amounted to $1,010,053. Distribution of immigrants for January and February: Alberta, 461; Saskatchewan, 287; Manitoba, 112; Eastern British Columbia, 64; and Western Ontario, 43.

9,178 SETTLERS VIA C.P. FLEET

English Settlers Brought $175,000 Here to Buy Land

Despite the strengthening of restrictions against fresh immigration into this country, and the continuation of the ruling that all new settlers must show $250 in cash and their railway fare to their destination before being admitted into the Dominion, these new settlers continue to arrive in large and increasing numbers.

During the months of January, February and March no less than 9,187 new colonists entered St. John via the Canadian Pacific vessels alone, being 1,450 in January, 2,045 in February and 5,692 in March. These numbers would have been considerably larger, so the shipping men aver, if the $250 requirement had been dropped to the former $50 rate, as it was recently thought would be done. In fact, steamship officials state that many hundred intending immigrants cancelled their bookings upon learning that the high rate was to be maintained.

In detail, the Canadian Pacific records for the three months are as follows:

During January, five of the company's steamers arrived at St. John, N.B., with a total passenger list of 3,856, of which 1,450 were new colonists for Canada and 1,307 for the United States.

In February, six steamers arrived with a total of 5,022 passengers, of which 2,045 were new colonists for Canada and 1,430 for the United States.

Nine steamers arrived in March, bringing 9,851 passengers; 5,962 being new colonists for this country and 509 for the United States.

As to the type of colonists on these incoming vessels, the case of the "Minnedosa"—the last to arrive in March—might be cited as fairly representative.

She brought sixty-five farmers together with their wives, ninety children and $175,000 to invest in Canadian lands. These new settlers were personally conducted to their western destination by A. M. E. Hill of the C.P.R. Colonization and Development Department. Most of these were for the district around Lloydminster, a flourishing town on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary. There were also 40 domestics bound for Regina and forty for Toronto.

From which it will be seen that this country is procuring a goodly share of the sort of newcomer it most requires.

A GLIMPSE OF CANADA'S AGRICULTURAL WEALTH

A table given in the report of the Dominion Minister of Agriculture for the year ending March 31, 1920, places the value of all the field crops in that year at $1,812,915,500, and the value of dairy products at $247,531, 352. The number of horses in the country is given as 3,667,369, the number of milch cows as 3,548,437, other cattle as 6,536,574, sheep as 3,421,958 and swine as 3,040,070. Except in swine these numbers are slightly in advance of those given in the previous year and swine are quoted as more numerous than in 1915, 1916, and 1917. A noteworthy statement is that in three years of the war the Imperial War Office was supplied under the supervision of the Dairy Branch of the department with hay, oats and flour to the value of $98,631,568, representing 481,250 tons of hay, 76,495,221 bushels of oats and 984,782,080 lbs. of flour, for which approximately 24,000,000 bushels of wheat were required. Another statement of special interest is that the live stock that came under the supervision of the officers of the Markets and Intelligence division of the Live Stock Branch, during the year was in excess of 2,800,000 head, valued at over $200,000,000. During the year 3,788,138 pounds of wool were graded by the branch for farmers' co-operative organizations. The dairy business is shown to have developed greatly, especially in the prairie provinces, where the output of creamery butter has increased in a decade from 5,478,304 pounds to 25,356,711 pounds. The number of publications issued during the year by the Publications Branch of the Department was 2,400,000, including 200,000 market reports. A vast variety of information is given in the departmental report, which details in a comprehensive, well digested way, the operations during the year of all the eperimental farms and stations and all the branches and divisions.

"WHAT'S A WHATTER?"

One who responds to all questions with "What," or merely repeats the question with a querulous and rising inflecton, is called a "whatter in a clever article in The Literary Digest. The article goes on to describe and differentiate between the "whatter" who "whats" merely to gain time for his slow brain to function; and the "whatter" who "whats" out of sheer dislike of admitting that he is deaf and cannot hear.

The loss of time in business through the malpractices of the "whatters" is incalculable, states the author, all of which is regrettable as the "whatter" can have the "what" extracted while yet young.

If school teachers were to respond to the exasperating query of the "whatter" in class, by asking another question of a different nature, they would expose the practice of "whatting," and perform a very useful service to those whose minds are deadened and made turgid by the "easy-way" habit of "whatting."

Of course, the "whatter" does not always "what," sometimes he says "pardon me," 'excuse me," "I did not catch" or just merely "huh," according to his breeding and present mood. But the basis of the "what" is the same—to gain time for feeble minds ot function.

Commend Willis Piano

June 8th 1921.

Willis Pianos, Limited,
Dear Sirs,

The Willis Piano you supplied for our use at the Chautauqua is one of the best all round instruments I have used for a long time. It possesses a lovely touch and the tone is deep and resonant. I would say without hesitation that your pianos are as nearly perfect as it is possible to make them.

With many thanks, I remain, yours faithfully,

MARION J. HUNT.

Fernie, B.C., May 10th, 1921.

Mr. Consumer:

Are you aware that Fernie Beer is the most popular appetizer of the day? It is in evidence at all good Hotels and Clubs. Likewise it is to be found in many of the better class homes. It gives zest to the most jaded appetite, and in addition is a decidedly wholesome and palatable drink.

Have you tried our Bock and Porter? If not, a great pleasure awaits you. These facts are backed by our many satisfied customers.

We are now in a position to supply your table with these beverages, also with Aerated Waters in all flavors. When ordering your supplies, be sure these are on the list.

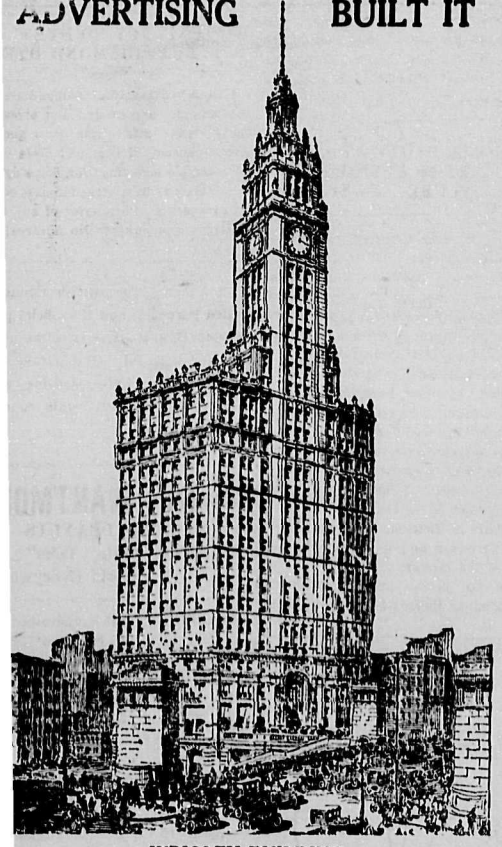
ADVERTISING BUILT IT



WRIGLEY BUILDING

Wrigley's new office building in Chicago is at the new Boulevard Bridge, Michigan avenue and the river and heads the vista looking north on Michigan avenue, so Mr. Wrigley chose a beautiful design which makes the building a decorative feature of the Chicago lake front and harmonizes with the Chicago Beautiful plan.

The main building is 16 stories high, surmounted by a tower 42 feet square and rising 398 feet from the street level. This tower will contain a clock with dials on four sides, each 20 feet in diameter and will be surmounted by a searchlight pattern 9 feet in diameter.

The building is covered with enamel finish terra cotta on all four sides. It is regarded as one of the most beautiful buildings in Chicago and people and press are enthusiastic about it. The Chicago Tribune published a picture labeling it "A Jewel of the Link."

Wrigley recently completed new factories at Chicago and New York, and the Canadian and Australasia Wrigley companies have built new factories at Toronto and Sydney.

All this new construction work in the space of a few years is certainly a tribute to the power of advertising and the accumulative effect of a multitude of 5-cent sales.

In addition to its activities in connection with the settlement of vacant Crown lands in the western provinces the Department of the Interior, in co-operation with provincial officials, has compiled and published very full particulars regarding unoccupied, privately owned, farm lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. This information which has been published by districts is issued free of charge and includes such details as the price at which land may be purchased, the terms of sale, acreage suitable for cultivation, nature of soil, and value of buildings. With such information in his possession the intending purchaser may negotiate with owners of land in any district in which he is particularly interested.

In their endeavor to find a suitable location prospective homesteaders or purchasers will find of marked value the dual service which the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Branch, is now in a position to render.

The war changed many things. It gave woman the vote and made breeches for women conventional.

Beauty appeals to the outdoor girl, and she loves the Canadian Rockies which rise a mile or more above Lake Louise and Banff because they are unexcelled in beauty and majesty. The Alpine Club of Canada has many women members, the most expert of whom do not hesitate to attempt the conquest of any peak men have ascended. In 1901 Mount Assiniboine was ascended for the first time by Sir James Outram. Three years later Miss Gertrude Benham, an English girl, was the first of her sex to reach the summit of this great peak, the Matterhorn of the Canadian Rockies. Both were assisted by Swiss guides. Several made the ascent during the camp of the Alpine Club last summer.

MICHEL CONGREGATION HONORS RETIRING METHODIST PASTOR

A pleasing event took place in Michel Hall on Wednesday evening, June 8, when the congregation of the Michel Methodist Church met to do honor eo the retiring pastor, Rev. S. V. H. Redman, who has been transferred to Langley Prairie. Mr. Redman is well known in Cranbrook. There was quite a representative gathering of the community, and during the evening a splendid program of music yas rendered under direction of Mr. M. M. Scurrah, choir leader of the church, who also acted as chairman of the proceedings. Perhaps the most important item of interest during the evening's proceedings was the presentation to Mr. Redman of a gold watch and chain, engraved as follows:

"Presented to S. V. H. Redman by the congregation of Michel Methodist Church, June 1921."

The presentation was made by Mr. Scurrah on behalf of the congregation, and Mr. McKenzie, who spoke of the work of Mr. Redman during his pastorate, and expressed regret at his departure. Mr. Redman very feelingly replied and pointed out that the success of the church was not due to the efforts of the pastor alone, but to the co-operation and unity of the people. Rev. C. E. Greenstreet, of the Anglican Church, on being called upon to address the meeting, also expressed his regret at the departure of Mr. Redman, and spoke of the very friendly relations of the two churches in the past, hoping for a continuance of the same feeling in the future. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid. Thanks are due to the energetic committee who had charge of the arrangements for the evening for the success achieved.

MORE ATTENTION SHOULD BE PAID TO HOUSING OF POULTRY

Not all who keep chickens either in town or country know how to secure the best results from their flocks. From lack of knowledge the chicks often develop into spindle-legged, small-bodied, poor-laying creatures. And yet any amount of instructive literature is published and can be had without cost by applying to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. Housing shares in importance with feeding, if the best results are to be gained. In this connection it is interesting to observe that a revised edition of the bulletin on Poultry House Construction by F. G. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, to meet the constantly increasing demand for information coming from almost every class of the community. The bulletin, which is based on trials of various kinds of poultry houses in different parts of Canada, treats of the subject clearly and comprehensively. Plans and building instructions, with illustrations and diagrams, are so given as to enable anyone to erect such a poultry house as may be desired.

INCORPORATION AS "CLUBS" OF NO AVAIL FOR SALE OF BEER

At the Coast and some other sections of the province there has been a rush on the part of some bars to gain incorporation as a "club," thinking that the interpretation of a public place in the new liquor act now in force will allow club premises to escape the classification of "public place" in which no drinking is allowed according to the new law. Such a hope is only going to bring disappointment to those putting reliance in it, word having come from the liquor board that while the government has no option but to grant incorporation to these "clubs" so long as the formalities required are complied with, having granted the incorporation it is quite within the power of the government also to cancel the charters of concerns that are using the process merely for a blind to continue selling beer contrary to the spirit of the new law, and this will be done. Some in this city who sought to learn from Victoria whether there would be any encouragement offered in the matter of incorporation as "clubs" received a straight intimation that the subterfuge would not avail.

It lays bare one loophole in the act, and the chances are there will be some of these "clubs" willing to take the chance and the government will soon be called upon to show its hand and makes its first effort at real enforcement of the new law.

THE CULTIVATION OF ROOT CROPS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Although it generally costs more to grow root crops, such as mangels, carrots and turnips, than it does to grow corn, at the same time roots, alfalfa hay, straw and grain, when fed to steers, give as good results as corn silage does.

The average yield of mangels is under twenty tons an acre, owing as a rule to uneven stands of large, coarse roots which come from poor seed or poor soil preparation, or both. Consequently, mangels rarely give the returns they should.

Knowing this, the object of the grower should be to improve on it and obtain a one-hundred per cent stand so that, with rows planted three feet apart and mangels twelve inches apart—and with careful cultivation—the yield with a ten-pound average per root would be seventy-two tons per acre.

The most important thing to know in growing root crops—and this should be from personal experience, not from the outside of the seed packages—is the quality of the seeds. The seed bed should be carefully prepared and land that is liable to form a crust after seeding should be seeded more heavily, and when the crust does form it should be broken with a hand rake or light harrow.

The best preparation for roots is clover or alfalfa and this should be ploughed in the summer or early fall; manure disced in and re-ploughed in spring, and, if necessary, well worked up by discing, harrowing or packing. Roots should be seeded in rows three feet apart directly frost danger is over. As soon as seed is up, the rows should be chopped out, so that the plants are ten to twelve inches apart; then they should be hand-thinned and blanks filled in after thinning.

The plants should be established without irrigation if possible, because in this way they are forced to make a large, deep root system, which is essential for them later on during hot, dry weather. However, if the land is very dry, irrigation should take place before any other preparations for seeding are made.

If the first irrigations are marked deep, (with a six inch plough) a deep root system will be established, and roots have to follow the moisture and thus they are kept in the deeper, cooler areas of the soil. The depth of the irrigation furrow should be decreased gradually, as the roots spread out sideways and the tops shade the soil. Roots should remain in the ground as long as possible, as the cool nights and days increase the growth.

When the crop is harvested, it should be placed in rows for the sun to dry and harden. Crop should be carefully handled when hauled and when in pit or cellar there should be abundant ventilation until heavy frost is expected.

Although irrigation is necessary at times, it can never take the place of good cultivation; in fact better cultivation is necessary when irrigation is used if a hundred per cent. stand is to be attaned.

She, (gushingly)—"There are days when we seem more in unison with nature than at other times; when our hearts seem to beat in accord with the sublime harmony of the universe. Have you ever noticed it?" He—"Indeed I have. It is always that way with me on pay day."

INDIAN PRINCESS CONTRIBUTES CHARMING NUMBER TO PROGRAM

Cree Lady Delights Chautauqua Audience on Monday With Indian Lore

Charming in looks and manner, and dressed in appropriate costume, Princess Oyapela on Monday afternoon at Chautauqua gave a graphic and varied interpretation of the customs, songs and literature of the red man. There is no question as to the appeal she made to the children and also to the grown-ups, let it be said. The enthusiasm which greeted her second appearance may be taken as proof positive that the princess is to be regarded as one of the headliners on the program.

She is the neice of the chief of the Creek Indian tribe (not Cree) who originally had vast areas in Georgia and Florida as their hunting grounds. Princess Oyapela is regarded as one of the literary minds of her race, having obtained a university degree. She displayed also a high degree of ability in dramatic acting, conveying the real spirit of the red man to the minds of her audience vividly. At the outset she laid much of the blame for the red man's degradation on the white brother and pleaded for sympathy for her race now living under the white man's unnatural conditions, never meant for the Indian.

Speaking of the age-long superstitions held by her ancesters, she stated that they supposed themselves to be descended from Karseeta, "the woman who fell from Heaven." The origin of the earth, sun and moon was due to the Big Turtle, Little Turtle and Mud Turtle. Indeed, certain animals were held to have each had their place in the making of the universe, notably the eagle, fox, bear and moose. Other superstitions held by this tribe prompted them never to put shoes or mocassins on a dead man or he could never reach the happy hunting grounds. A woman must never cry in a tepee but always cross the threshold before giving vent to her grief. The snake symbolized "the evil one," and it brought luck to kill the first snake one saw in the spring. The eagle from its power of soaring into the sun was supposed to bring messages from that luminary to the "sun-priest" of the tribe. The bad talk spread of gossips became cyclones which spread destruction. Kind thoughts and gentle words, on the other hand, resolved themselves into clouds which sent refreshing rain and dew.

As regards language, each tribe had its own dialect which probably was not understood by a distant tribe, but individuals could nevertheless converse by means of the sign language, of which graphic illustrations were given. A proposal of marriage in the sign language was gone through, and for the benefit of the many young ladies present it was both accepted and rejected by signs.

Before a marriage the custom was for a young blood to send his mother or sister as an ambassador to the female relatives and brothers and uncles of the girl of his choice and, strange to say, the father of the prospective bride was hardly consulted. The marriage dances were next portrayed with musical accompaniments, the young mens', womens' and young bucks' dances being illustrated with real Indian fervor, as was the wierd Hopi snake dance later on. Princess Oyapela explained that these dances were really religious ceremonies of her race.

The Indian canoe song, in which the nIdian princess acompanied the singing male voice with her paddle, gave her oportunity to display that grace and suppleness so characteristic of her race in weilding the paddle. This item was much appreciated.

In conclusion, Princess Oyapela delighted the kiddies by relating several Indian animal stories for their benefit.

SOUTHERN ROUTE FOR HIGHWAY TO COAST IS DEFINITE REPORT

The Penticton Herald of last week carried the following item in connection with the completion of the work on the provincial highway over the Hope Mountains:

"Work on the Hope-Princeton link of the trans-provincial highway is to be commenced at an early date, according to a gentleman who visited the town this week. He said he did not wish his name to appear in connection with the matter but produced for the inspection of a representative of the Herald a blue print showing what he stated was the route over which it had been decided by the department of public works to construct the road. He said he had just received a communication indicating for certain that work was to be started right away.

"The blue print showed the proposed route to follow the road already constructed out of Princeton for some 17 miles. It then struck west and followed Whipsaw Creek. From the Creek, after a couple of loops, it passed across Strawberry Flats and followed Skagit Creek to Cedar Falls, from which point it ran along the Skagit River to the end of the road constructed by the sappers and miners in 1861, and followed this road to Hope via Sumallow Greek to Beaver lake, and thence along the Nicolum river. It was also stated on the print that the grade at no point would be more than eight per cent."

QUARTETTE OF LADY ENTERTAINERS ON CHAUTAUQUA PLATFORM

"The Dixie Girls Quartette" provided the seasoning levity for the second day's Chautauqua and lived up well to their reputation. Miss F. Hapke, soprano, Miss M. Shocker, mezzo-soprano; Miss H. Hornsberger, contralto; and Miss Dillen, accompanist and reader, made up the personnel of a very accomplished and versatile quartette of ladies.

The real southern negro "Spirituals" brought the house down, being very well done, and the afternoon sketch "A White Lie" was also admirable, gaining much applause for the four clever actors. There were some very finely executed trio numbers on their program, including the well known "Annabel Lee" and humorous "Scandanavian" number, and a darky "Lullaby." The pick of their musical program however, was possibly "The Rosary" rendered as a duet. Some popular rendings and monologues, including the old time "Sambo and the Moon Man" and some well rendered solo numbers also brought the Dixie Girls much well merited applause.

That it isn't all fun being on a Chautauqua circuit is indicated from the fact that the four Dixie Girls spent about nine hours on a freight train on Saturday coming from Creston for the afternoon performance. Nevertheless they gave their audience a treat both afternoon and evening and sometimes had the additional troublesome element of the sharp, noisy showers of rain on the tent to contend with.

FOUR OR FIVE DOLLARS A BOTTLE PRICE AT GOV'T. LIQUOR STORE

It was announced at the Coast last week following a meeting of the cabinet that the price of liquor at the government stores which were supposed to open for business on Wednesday of this week would be between four and five dollars a bottle for Scotch whiskies of the ordinary brands, in the reputed quart bottles. The imperial quart varieties will sell around seven dollars a bottle, according to brand. These figures were given out by the attorney-general following the cabinet session at which the matter was taken up.

The order has gone forth that the selling of beer and near beer at the hotel bars here and elsewhere should cease as from Wednesday of this week, June 15th. In the meantime the government store has not been made ready for business, so that the man who has wanted to get his bottle, case or barrel of beer, of bottle of Scotch legitimately has been out of luck.

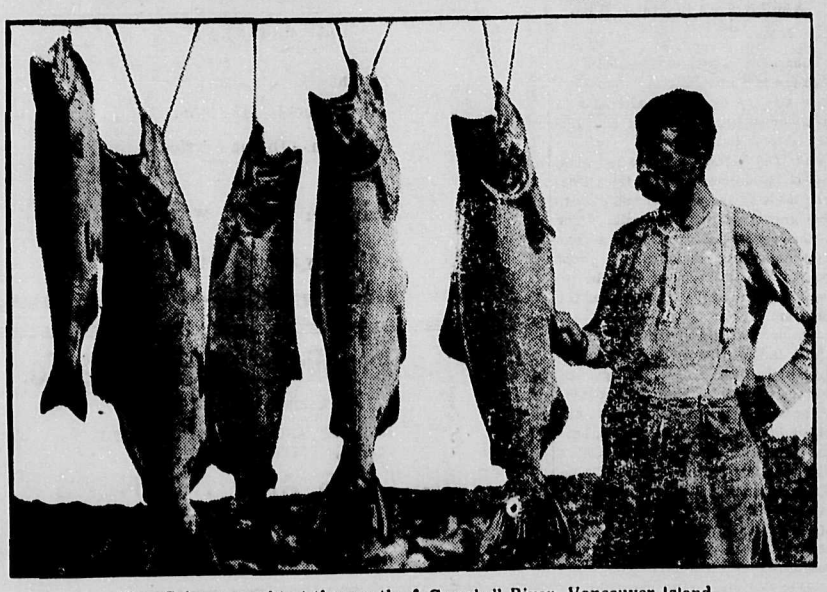
The Home of the Big Tyee



Tyee Salmon caught at the mouth of Campbell River, Vancouver Island.

On the rim of the world in Western Canada, just off the mainland of British Columbia, lies Vancouver Island, an outpost of the Empire. This Island, which, on a map of the world, looks almost negligible in comparison with the vast area of Canada, is as big as several of the Kingdoms of Europe, and is in reality made up of 15,000 square miles of magnificent and diversified country.

One of the Island's chief attractions to the traveller, if he is anything of a sportsman, is the fine fishing and hunting to be obtained among the mountain fastnesses, the giant timber, and in the waters of the lakes and streams. A day or two's run out from Victoria, the capital of British Columbia, situated on the southern extremity of Vancouver Island, will take one to the heart of the primal solitudes, the sanctuary of all sorts of game from the black bear and the elk, to the beaver and the squirrel, from the quail to the eagle. But perhaps the sport which has made Vancouver Island famous is more its fishing than its hunting, for the salmon caught in the waters here are the biggest and gamiest in the world.

There are two streams on the Island which rival one another from a sportsman's point of view The first, which has been fished by all sorts of people from princes and prelates, down the social scale, is the Cowichan River, named for a famous Indian tribe which used to inhabit this part of the country, and about whom there are many tragic and romantic stories. The Prince of Wales, during his week's visit on Vancouver Island tried his luck in this stream; the Duke of Devonshire and many of his predecessors have spent a holiday here; and King George himself, when he was in British Columbia, caught some rain bow beauties in this famous water The river itself is over twenty miles in length from the lake to the sea, and has numbers of splendid "reaches" and good pools. Indian guides are a necessity. These fellows will take the canoes up the river for you, and you may trave up by motor and come down the stream with them. Fine steelheads are caught here on the fly in the winter and early spring months, and after the first freshets in the spring the rainbow and cut-throats begin to run, affording sport to the fly-fisherman all summer until the river gets too low. Some Dolly Vardens are also to be had. At the mouth of the river—Cowichan Bay—salmon run winter, spring and fall, some specially large ones coming in during the latter season.

But the most thrilling sport of all is to be obtained at Campbell River, the stream which for the present marks the northern boundary of the transcontinental Highway, and which is situated about two days' easy motor drive from Victoria. The Campbell River takes its rise in the mountain lakes in the interior of the Island and comes pounding and roaring down to the sea, as noisy and impetuous as a wild beast suddenly unleashed, except for the spots where it widens out into the Campbell Lakes, and here it is as peacefully serene as the blue sky itself Eight miles in from its mouth it passes down a great cliff to find another bed for itself over a hundred and fifty feet below. The falls here, are among the most magnificent to be found in the West. All along the Campbell River, where the current permits, is fine trout fishing, but it is not the joy of landing the speckled beauties which brings most fishermen to this stream.

During the months of August the magnificent specie known as the big "Tyee Salmon" (King Salmon) come to the mouth of this river on its way to the spawning beds; and to appreciate just how endlessly exciting fishing can really be, one should see what goes on here at the height of the season. The fish run up to sixty pounds and over, and it is no uncommon sight to see a half a dozen boats all playing tyees at the same time. The water itself is never quiet, for here you feel the current of the boisterous river, and the swell from the sea. Add to this the noise of men and women shouting, your own lines singing in your ears, the boat laid over almost on its side from the pull of the heavy fish fighting for its life, and you have enough "thrills" to make you remember the occasion. Many is the tyee that gives the fisherman from a half hour to an hour's hard work before he is finally gaffed.

The traps and seines of the commercial fishermen are threatening the magnificent rivers of British Columbia, and the Government is endeavoring to cope with this menace. At present the case is before the federal authorities, and lovers of good sport will hope to see such laws enforced as will preserve our fisheries for all time to come. — N. deBertrand Seguin.

CELEBRATION COMMITTEE THANKS CITIZENS FOR SUPPORT GIVEN 24th

As chairman and secretary of the 24th of May Celebration Committee and the G.W.V.A. respectively, we wish on behalf of the Association to thank the various committees and individuals who so willingly and ably assisted in making the Celebration the success which it was. Only those who have actually been engaged in the same kind of work are in a position to appreciate the various duties imposed upon an active committee of this kind, and the fact that the day was so successful can only be attributed to the energetic support of those who worked for the success of the day.

At present it is rather difficult to say just how profitable the day was. However, there is every reason to believe that the net result of the celebration wil be in the neighborhood of $1200 or $1300.

Dr. Rutledge and the other members of the race track committee encountered many difficulties in attempting to arrange for a proper racing program, as owing to the very unreasonable attitude of two supposedly big horsemen, who at the last moment endeavored to coerce the committee out of an extravagant guarantee, it was found impossible to procure horses in the short space of time intervening from more than one quarter. One man wished to have his purses guaranteed and $300 in addition, to leave four running horses here for the day, and another owner balked at the last minute in an effort to hold up the committee. So the fact that the horse race committee presented such a program speaks worlds for the work they did on the part of the day's sports.

The 23rd was pretty well taken up locally by the big circus and unfortunately this circus showed in Fernie on the 24th, necessitating the cancellation of the special train from that point, the committee not feeling very confident of meeting the heavy guarantee required to obtain the special. The band from Fernie also had to be cancelled. This action was particularly regrettable from the fact that a great many people from Fernie and intervening points had planned on spending the day here.

The street parade was a success and represented a great deal of arduous work on the part of the committee, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Little. The various entries deserve a great deal of thanks for the interest and work they put in to make the parade a real attraction. The clown band organized by Nigel Thompson, and the phony band, directed by the local Sousa, Mr. Steve Clark of Wycliffe, added plenty of spice to the procession and were enthusiastically appreciated.

Mr. Morris of the Manual Training School, Mr. Sullivan of the Courier and Mr. Clark of the Y.M.C.A. are to be congratulated on the success of their eforts in connection with the field sports for the pupils of the public and high schools. The size of the entry lists and the multitude of prizes competed for speak more than anything else for the work they did in putting the meet over.

Such a keen interest was shown by the young people in the sports that it is to be hoped another year will see a greater variety of events, which will probably tend to distribute the prizes among a greater number.

It is probably well to mention at this point that when the next 24th of May arrives the Navy League boys will put on a very attractive feature for the sports and parade.

At the fair grounds the people who assisted in the taking of tickets and accommodating the spectators in any way contributing to the common cause deserve a large measure of thanks. The members of the Recreation Club and those of the Joy Club who labored so faithfully in satisfying the thirsty and the hungry in spite of the inconviences of the task. The ladies in particular who held forth in the booths found the heat and dust of the afternoon very trying and they are to be commended on the way in which they stuck to their guns in spite of these conditions. Mrs. Clapp and others attended to the Joy Club booth, Mrs. Spreull, Baxter, Staples and others for the Recreation Club.

The dance given to complete the day's entertainment was a huge success due to the professional manner in which it was arranged for and handled by Frank Passmore.

We also take this opportunity to thank the various firms and individuals who unstintingly assisted in a financial way with the preparations for the celebration and may say that it was due to the donations received that the Association can at least see its way clear to wipe off the indebtedness under which they have carried on for some considerable time.

Again we take the opportunity of thanking one and all for their valued and valuable assistance and assure each and everyone that the Great War Veterans Association of Cranbrook deeply appreciate the manner of the help, financially and socially, which was extended to them in their carrying through the most successful celebration which has perhaps been the good fortune of Cranbrook and district to enjoy.

H. B. HICKS, Chairman,
A. CROWE, Secretary,
24th of May Celebration Committee.

OPENED CHAUTAUQUA WITH BELL RINGING AND VOCAL PROGRAM

It always takes a performance or two before a community gets worked up to the real warmth of the Chautauqua spirit and this puts the artists on the platform for the first performance or two at something of a disadvantage, inasmuch as they neither have as a usual thing either the large or keenly interested audiences as at later performances. This was evident on Friday last when the Bell Ringing Quartette opened the Cranbrook Ctautauqua program in the afternoon. There was a fairly good attendance, but not as large as at subsequent performances.

The company was made up of a male quartette consisting of H. C. Wilson, first tenor, Mr. J. Hunt, second tenor, H. L. Frost, baritone and F. E. Maburg, bass. They gave a very varied program both afternoon and also in their evening prelude, comprising vocal solos, quartettes, monologues. bell-ringing and novelty numbers. Their opening number in the afternoon, "Jolly Fellows," was a good one, and the song-story of the goat who was too wise to die was also a good one. "Different Kinds of Women" was given very cleverly in the afternoon and repeated in the evening to everyone's delight—it proved one of the hits of the day. The second tenor's solo "Marjorie Gray" in the afternoon was a good rendering of an old favorite, and the following number, a monologue by Mr. Wilson, of a young man weighing the pros and cons as to whether he should propose to "Marjorie" was another very popular number. "Mother O' Mine" was the best solo number in the afternoon, given by the baritone, Mr. H. L. Frost, and in the evening he essayed a setting of "In Flander's Fields." Without any detriment to this effort, we venture the opinion that this is something of the class that music cannot give any enhanced popularity. Some words have become immortalized by the music they have been set to—but not so "In Flanders' Fields." Without any today it is and always will be the outstanding war poem—always a poem and never a song.

The bell ringing numbers were popular but seemed to meet better response in the evening, when "The Rosary" was very well executed on the bells, and also the martial hymn tune, "Onward Christian Soldiers." "The Bells of St. Mary's" was also well received. Even a common hand saw can give out music, as was well demonstrated by Mr. Wilson, who made his saw sing in fine style, though there were a few doubting Thomases who believe he hummed a little to help out.

LIBERAL PARTY AT COAST IS ANXIOUS TO SECURE NEWSPAPERS

The following appeared in some of the Coast papers last week:

"Rumors in Vancouver and Victoria political circles are to the effect that the leading Victoria daily will shortly be purchased by Liberal buyers in the interests of the Liberal party. It is also rumored that an endeavor will be made by other Liberals to secure a controlling interest in the British Columbia United Farmer, a semi-monthly farm paper published in Vancouver, with a circulation of approximately 5,000. The Liberal party would then be in control of a morning daily in Victoria, an evening daily in Vancouver and a small influence among the farmers.

"So far as the plan involves the rural paper there will very probably be a hitch. The British Columbia United Farmer is now the official paper of the United Farmers of the province and it is unlikely that they will permit party politics trifling with their organ and still retain connection with it."

COLONY OF MENNONITES TO LEAVE PRAIRIES FOR STATES; LAND IS SOLD

The old colony, Swift Current, Mennonite reserve, containing 107,000 acres of the best agricultural lands in Saskatchewan, has been sold to Florida capitalists headed by James J. Logan, Jacksonville, Fla., and Jas. F. Taylor, Tampa, Fla., for a total of $4,800,000, and the first cash payment involved has been depositel by the purchasers.

This means that about 75 per cent. of the Mennonites in the Swift Current district will leave shortly to settle on a large tract of land in Forida.

Under the terms of the contract the vendors leave their farms with their personal belongings only, all chattels, farm machinery, houses, churches, schools, etc., becomng the property of the purchasers.

There are 400 complete sets of buildings in excellent repair, 50,000 acres in crop, 80,000 acres under cultivation. In the territory bought by the Floridans are the towns of Dunelma, Neville, Springfield, Wymark and Blumenhof.

The purchasers intend to start at once to bring in American farmers.

It has taken since October 27, 1920, to negotiate this deal, which was finally closed when half a million dollars was deposited as part of the purchase price. The trek to Florida by the Mennonites begins shortly. The colony there will start development of a large tract of land reclaimed south of the Everglades, near the Lake Okeechobee district.

CALGARY, ALBERTA

Definite announcement that the fall session of the provincial legisature, foreshadowed at the last session, will be held to be called not later than November 1, has been made by Premier Oliver. As now proposed, the session will terminate before the Christmas holidays. The fall session will do away with the necessity of the customary session commencing in January.

In making the annuoncement, Premier Oliver stated that the proposed fall session was being held in order that the financial condition of the municipalities may be considered, and whatever action may be deemed necessary following the proposed investigation by the government during the summer months, can be taken. This would enable the municipalities to secure advantage of any legislation to be passed as from the first of the year rather than having to wait until well on in April were only the usual spring sitting held.

There is no present idea, the Premier stated, of permanently altering the time of the legislative session, and this year's fall meeting will not necessarily establish any precedent to be thereafter followed.

Relative to the proposed investigation into municipal afairs, the Premier made it clear that the government has never intimated it would name a commission. But it had promised the municipal representatives that it would take steps to investigate the whole matter of municipal finances with a view to evolving some remedies for the present situation. What form that investigation will take has not yet been decided, the Premier stated. The matter was in the hands of the Minister of Finance.

ENCOURAGING CANADIAN FORESTRY

Scene of a Forest Fire.

It was only during recent years that the public of Canada began to fully realize the value of the trees of the country, and the necessity for protecting them. One never knows the worth of a tree until its shade is gone. Canada was so rich in forests that the people imagined that their forests were inexhaustible. But year after year devastating fires swept over the wooded areas to such an alarming extent that the people at last realized that steps would have to be taken to save the trees.

Twenty years ago the Canadian Forestry Association was inaugurated. To-day under the presidency of Mr. C. E. E. Ussher, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, it is one of the most flourishing organisations in the Dominion.

The produce of the forests is one of the greatest assets of Canada. The pulp and paper business and the lumber business supply tens of thousands with profitable employment. The object of the Canadian Forestry Association is to preserve existing forests, to encourage tree planting, and provide the most up to date forestry administration.

The Association has now 12,500 members, the majority of whom are not financially interested in timber limits, saw mills or paper mills. It is completely independent of government departments and commercial bodies and has the more easily, on that account, won public confidence and attained great influence through its aggressive educational campaign. From the beginning the association has aimed to encourage a spirit of intelligent partnership between the federal and provincial governments and the wood-using industries in connection with the protection and management of the forests.

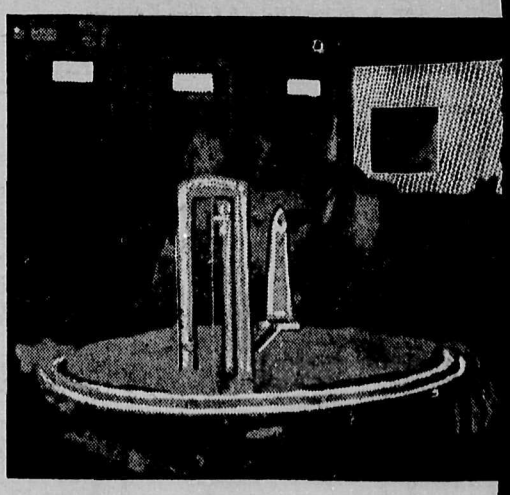
To diminish much more than in the past the destruction of the forests by fire is considered by the association to be by far the most important problem. After that it gives due consideration to replanting and general forest management. The very effective results of its educational campaign are due to the variety of practical methods that are followed. These include publicity work through the newspapers; a speaker's bureau of three hundred voluntary workers; travelling lecture cars in the East and in the West; the preparation of travelling lecture sets of lantern slides, and lecture manuscripts; an illustrated forestry magazine; the placing of "sermonettes" on the menu cards in railway dining-cars, and little warnings in cigarette packages, etc.

Tree planting in the Prairie Provinces is making rapid headway at present. On April 10th, 1921, a tree planting campaign was started There are now more than 50,000 plantations of trees in the three prairie provinces, and more than 50,000,000 seedlings have been furnished from the Dominion Government nursery at Indian Head, to prairie farmers. Fully 90 per cent. of them have been successfully grown. A railway car equipped as an auditorium with motion picture machines visits many districts, and lecturers explain the object of the tree planting campaign. It is expected that 200 prairie communities will be covered before the present tour closes.

The primary object is to enlist the personal interest of settlers in constructing a shelter built of trees showing them exactly how to proceed and supplying complete data ensure success.

"The economic importance of constructing windbreaks of trees," says Mr. Robson Black, executive secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association "cannot be overstated Thick shelter belts are a powerful preventive of soil drift, and of wind damage to crops. A thick growth of trees protects the land to a distance equal to ten times the height of the trees. There is also to be considered the need of every farmer for fence posts and fuel and small construction timber. He may very easily and cheaply produce such necessities on his own property.

"Our tree planting campaigns are heartily endorsed by agriculturists and foresters for they are thoroughly practicable. They have the financial backing of one of the prairie provinces, Saskatchewan, and of railways, land companies, and several wholesale houses in Winnipeg



The new Forest Fire Finder, an instrument recently invented to locate a fire quickly. It is expected to reduce the danger and loss from fires to a minimum. The instrument has been installed in the look-out towers in California forests and a fire can be detected 50 miles away.

Said Sun Must be Put Out of Business

Vancouver Publisher Gives Version of Efforts Made to Give Him Quietus

Under the heading "Policy of the Vancouver Sun" the following appeared last week. It throws some new light on the controversy now raging at the Coast in regard to the Campbell liquor warehouse deal.

Some three months ago, the publisher of The Sun called upon Premier Oliver and laid before him informaton regarding several transactions, which in the interests of good government, should be stopped.

The motive for doing this was: First;unless some check was put upon the crooked deals which were being transacted, it was inevitable that they would wreck the Liberal Party and everyone connected with it, and do the province great harm. Second; that as a result of some unexplainable hold which certain interests had upon the government, the claims of The Sun against these interests could not even be looked into. Third; burdened down with heavy taxes, the people of this province have all the load they can carry without having the cost of inefficiency and graft piled on.

Premier's Decision

Various charges were given to the Premier verbally, in writing, and finally by wire. Premier Oliver's only answer came through Charles Campbell, who telephoned asking for an interview, purporting to represent the Premier. This was given at Mr. Campbell's house and we were told that after receipt of our messages, the Premier and his cabinet met and had decided that The Sun must be put out of business. Mr. Campbell asked me if I would not sell The Sun. He was told "No." He asked me what I did want, and was told that unless Premier Oliver got in and house-cleaned some of his cabinet, The Sun would do it for him.

Several days later, the Premier left for the East. Some days after his departure, Mr. Campbell again phoned and said he had something very urgent and important. At his house that evening he informed me that Messrs. Farris, Hart, Pattullo, King and McLean, all Cabinet Ministers, had been in the city for three days and were still here.

Decided to Buy Paper

He said the Party had decided to buy a newspaper; that he was to run it and have charge; that they would prefer to buy The Sun and would pay me $150,000 cash for the paper as it stood; that I had better sell, because if I did not, they would go right after The Sun and put it out of business. He said some eastern money was being put up, mentioning the name of Howard Robertson, of St. John, N.B., but at any rate, they were arranging for plenty of funds; also, he knew numbers of advertisers, who, through the party, could be influenced in favor of a government paper; further, that they would buy a job printing plant, close down the Government Printing Office at Victoria, and get the work sent over to his plant here.

I reiterated my previous statement that The Sun was not for sale. He then asked me if I would buy his stock in The Sun which amounted to one-fourteenth interest, some ten thousand shares. I declined to do this, but Mr. Campbell said he would call at my office the following morning and get my final answer.

Position Plainly Stated

The next morning at 11.30 he called and was told that I would not buy his stock; that meantime I would not sell The Sun for double the price offered by him, and that under the present ownership, The Sun would prefer to take its chances and stick with the public rather than get mixed up with a bunch of crooked politicians, certain members who, in my opinion, would wreck any newspaper or individual having anything to do with them.

That afternoon, the eevning papers announced the purchase of the "World" by Chas. E. Campbell and associates, to be run as an Independent Liberal newspaper.

These are actual facts, made without color or embellishment, and subsequent events have proven most of them true. They are not related for the purpose of hypocritically soliciting commendation, but are given publicity only for the purpose of showing the people just what they are up against.

Won't Shield Corruption

The overtures and enquiries being daily made as to what The Sun wants and will take to abandon its present program, our answer is that we will not become a shield for officiel corruption: nothing more, nothing less, nothing else. A score of "World" newspapers and libel actions by Mr. Campbell and the government, will not suppress the indignation of a robbed and outraged public who are being bled white.

The policy of The Sun will continue to be controlled by a feeling of obligation to our subscribers. While some people do not always agree with us, the general approbation shown us by the public, has given courage, and is what has enabled us to build up and make a success of this newspaper. This is only another way of saying that the necessity of dealing honorably with our readers, controls the policy of The Sun.

"CANADA AT THE CROSSROADS" IS LADY JOURNALIST'S SUBJECT

Concerning the lecture of Miss Agnes Laut, well known journalist and publicist in both the United States and Canada, at the first evening of Chautauqua there is some little difference of opinion. "Canada at the Crossroads" was her subject, and while she had a solid array of facts marshalled as to the direction in which Canada's expansion must be made, no directions were given as to how to get there. The audience was told of conditions in some lines of commercial endeavor which seemed to be holding up the development of the country, but no cognizance was taken of the state of affairs leading up to them. After all it is not the diagnosis that saves the patient but the prescription.

Miss Laut left Canada twenty years ago to carry on her work as a journalist, but makes frequent visits to this country yet. Her lecture was brimful of facts concerning the resources and activities of the country, some of which she warned her hearers might not be very pleasant. Canada is entering upon a new era, she said, the possibilities of which no one could foretell. She put her faith on Canada emerging successfully with high ideals, but urged that the country be built up on facts solidly. "Every great nation has a crisis to overcome, and is not our opportunity now at hand?" she asked. "The civil war silenced all parties in the United States, and for the first time they became united. Will the ties we made in the great war do the same for us here in Canada?" Canadian progress has always been hampered by factions and parties, but by union in the face of danger may still be made to fulfil her destiny.

Capital would flow into Canada with the high tide of immigration, and Miss Laut went on to indicate how in the development of the natural resources of the country, the land, the oil, the lumber and minerals, capital was a crying need. She pointed how markets existed the world over for our products, and still Canada was importing. Canada should be a country of producers, and is bound to prosper if she looks after her own trade in the world's markets. "We need immigration and capital," said Miss Laut, and they will pour in if you will let them." Capital and labor must work together and absolute unity is necessary to put Canada over the top in peace times as well as in war. The ascendency of the British Empire today depends upon our doing our job. "We have the young men back from the war," Miss Laut said, "ripe with experience — young men with old heads on their shoulders. It is up to you to see that as they fought for you over there that they get their chance to fight for the prosperity of Canada They have a real interest in the cause and they have it coming to them, and I am satisfied they will make Canada the best country in the world."

A good many of the audience availed themselves of the opportunity to meet Miss Laut personally and enjoyed her frank and open manner, and her habit of throwing off the facts about the country which she has at her finger's ends.

UNION SERVICES IN BIG TENT ON SUNDAY ARE WELL ATENDED

Very successful union services were participated in by the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian Churches on Sunday last at the Chautauuaq tent. Both morning and evening there were good congregations, and at the latter members of four railwaymen's organizations attended as a memorial to their fellow members who have passed out. In the morning Dr. J. L. Gordon preached, and in the evening Rev. E. W. MacKay of Knox Church delivered the address. Special music had been arranged for the day under the direction of Mr. L. D. Rengger, and a massed choir from the three churches led the singing. Special musical numbers were given by Mr. Rengger and Mr. Vincent Fink in the morning, and a ladies' quartette and a male quartette in the evening as well as an anthem by the choir.

THEORY AND EXPERIENCE

How silent is theory in the presence of experience!

The other night we attended a meeting of parents to discuss various problems attendant to the bringing up of children.

Most of those present had very young children and were there to find ways and means of meeting the situations that they saw ahead.

There were oratorical child experts of large training who spoke; there were physicians, welfare workers, and teachers. There was a lot of fine theorizing and many brilliant ideas were voiced.

Then after all experts got through, a very small and very much frightened woman got up.

She had a weak voice and was lacking in fine diction and commanding presence.

But we noticed that everybody listened. They recognized her as a woman who had reared three boys successfully under the most adverse circumstances imaginable.

Here was experience. Thousands of times this woman had not known how on earth to meet the situations that confronted her. Thousands of times her heart had been torn with worry for fear that she was not taking the right course. She had taught, cajoled, bullied, spanked, bribed, threatened, reasoned, wept, and the hundred and one other things a successful mother has to do.

A good many times she wasn't able to afford any but the poorest clothes for them, even denying herself everything.

There had been many mornings when she did not know whether there would be any dinner or supper. But she had never faltered. She had fought on.

She didn't talk long she just stated some of the fundamentals of child psychology from hard practical experience and sat down.

Now the gist of her talk was this:

Play with your children. That is, get down to their level and grow with them.

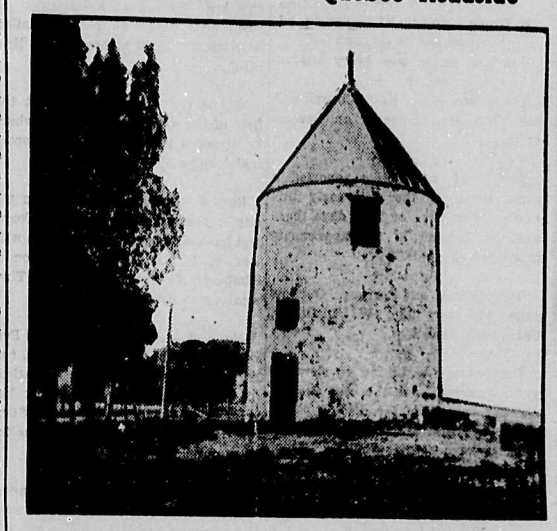
She also said that to make the child respect you, you have to make yourself worthy of respect; and we saw some people in the rear of the room give a conscious-stricken squirm.

She said that child raising is a business and that it is necessary to study it as closely as any other business to succeed.

She spoke against the private school as undemocratic, and met the issue of the so-called bad associations in the public schools by saying that there were bad associations everywhere and that if the child was not taught to know right from wrong his fall was due sooner or later anyhow.

When she finished the applause was long and loud—and the experts led it. —Toots.

Old Windmills of the Quebec Roadside



By courtesy of the C.P.R.

Old Grist Mill. near Varennes, Province of Quebec.

Landmarks of the Quebec roadsides, everywhere hold one with fascinated interest on account of their connection with the past, and because as a rule they are such as occur nowhere else this side the Atlantic.

Shrines, large and small, elaborate and simple, erected by communities, or by some Societé or by private persons. Large "Crosses" marking off the miles and cross-roads; and along these roads, at somewhat infrequent intervals, one happens on old mills driven by water-power, or possessed of wind-driven sails, or standing like storm-swept ships-at-sea when gales have licked away their canvas. The "gales of time" have in many instances made mere "playthings" out of these old mills erected in olden days of the grand seigneurs.

An especially well-preserved old mill of "the towered wind-mill type" is to be seen on the Varennes road. It arises on the level meadow-lands of the south shore of the St. Lawrence as naturally as its forbears arise on the landscape back in old Normandy. There is an air about this old tower built so solidly of rude field-stones as to make you think it at one time a tower of defence, as it might easily have been against the plundering savages who no doubt frequently came this way when the tower was built. Sometimes I think we do not realize the value which such old buildings and bits of architecture from another age mean to us as an illuminated page of the country's history. This mill is more surely than as "a landmark," of interest only, to voyageurs on the Varennes road! Out of it our present-day architects might very well find many a suggestion for producing a distinct and all-Canadian type of architecture. We have grown too much in the habit of thinking these old mills belong only to the past and that their day is entirely over except as historic wayside landmarks. Our landscape gardeners in particular might very well take hints in "effect" from their old lines! "Irrigation works" might even find suggestions, from these old Norman-French mills and granaries, for "pumping stations." A stronger appeal to the public would be made were real beauty added to usefulness. One sometimes hears complaints that artesian well "pumps" take from the beauty of the landscape, and so, directly, from the value of property, otherwise in the happy possession of charming views.

"The Round Tower" of the olden days, such as this one at Varennes, appears full of suggestion for all sorts of uses, but of course the original use as "mill," where the countryside brought its grain to be ground into flour, has in most instances passed away, even in Quebec; while the old mills driven by water-power are, in many instances, still in constant use after centuries of faithful service.

Certainly none of these old towers should be allowed to fall into decay or be torn down for any purpose whatsoever. These first guide posts in the history of the country's milling, even now, are as priceless old manuscripts, in our library of accomplishment.—V. H.

A car belonging to the B. C. and Alberta Power Co met in a head-on collision with an Alberta car at the foot of the cut bank hill on Sunday last. Both machines were put out of business, and it will take about $1,000 at least to repair the damage. There are one or two bad curves at the place where the accident occurred and drivers cannot be too careful in approaching them. — Fernie Free Press.

Cranbrook district's debut into fame as a moving picture scenario centre is going to take place very shortly, in fact, it is now in progress. Mr. Voschel, of the Universal Film Co. has been in the city this week, and others are already on the ground at Bull River where some of the scenes are to be "shot." Some stars of Universal fame such as Priscilla Dean, and others will be here to make the pictures, and different parts of the country are to be utilized in the film work.

A special car attached to No. 68 on Tuesday evening took the two dozen or so Dokkies from Cranbrook to attend the K.P. festivities being held at Lethbridge. The party is expected back today.
