'Mac' Demand Exceeds Supply

Creston and Erickson Roll 18 Cars on Opening Day—Steady Movement Prevails—Wealthy Price Cut to 55 Cents.

Fruit shipping history in Creston Valley was made on Saturday morning on which date the single day outgo of McIntosh Red apples from Wynndel, Creston and Erickson totalled 18 cars—almost a solid trainload--of which Erickson contributed 11 carloads. Along with the freight movement the l.c.l. express outgo that morning ran close to another carload—from the three points mentioned.

In addition to quantities moved on opening date, shipping houses report there is no letup to the demand. More orders than can be filled are coming in from overseas, eastern Canada and prairie points. Due the new and stringent regulations as to sizes filling of orders as received is not so easy as in former seasons.

This year there is no household, or orchard run, grade in McIntosh. There are the usual Extra Fancy and Fancy wrapped, and then there is the loose pack which goes out in the new jumbo crate which holds about 65 pounds of apples, and the shipper can have them with or without lids. Without lids the new container costs 15 cents plus nails and making. However, this price is not th concern of the grower as the cost of the jumbo is met by the buyer—the price of the package being plus the board price. Cee grade households are moving in similar fashion—in boxes, with or without lids, what is termed an old box costing 10 cents, and the new box is 13 cents.

While to date the Mac movement has been heavier to the "bulk" grades particularly to prairie points, business offering from eastern Canada as well as the Old Country is for the fan ies, and already the two local houses have made shipments to Montreal as well as London.

In order to speed up a clean up on Wealthys the price on the household grade has been cut to 55 cents and it has helped some. The Exchange has rolled two cars of these the past week. The season is practically over for tomatoes, cucumbers and peppers, and with their disappearance mixed carlots are unknown.

Pears are also finished. The Exchange is this week packing a car of Anjous for export and what there is in cold storage of Flemish Beauty add Clearguu will be gone before the week is out. With cold storage available the Exchange reports insufficient pears to fill orders, which are still coming in.

Between them the two local houses are employing about 60 hands in the packing sheds at Creston and Erickson, of which three dozen are girls on tne sorting and packing. In the Creston warehouse the Exchange has a staff of half a dozen girls working exclusive y on the jumbo crate apples

Both houses report the crop of McIntosh promises to considerably exceed the early season estimates. Both in quantity and size the Macs are beyond expectations and the weather at present obtaining is just what is required to put on color. From present appearances it will be the end of September before this variety will be cleaned up.

Boswell brought in the last of the Cox Orange to be handled through Creston this season on Monday. The balance of them will be loaded in cars barged in from Procter, as in the old days before the boat service was discontinued.

McIntosh apples are moving into the packing houses at Creston in quantity this week. The crop promises to be bigger than first anticipated

Miss Gwen Webster has returned to duty at Vancouver General Hospital, after a month's holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Webster.

All the local hunters were out at the weedend for the opening of the duck, goose and grouse season. From all accounts all had at least average luck.

Guy Constable and Jas. Compton have been canvassing the district, getting signatures to a petition to see just exactly how many are prepared to take the proposed irrigation.

The heavy wind that blew for about an hour around noon Wednesday brought down quite a lot of McIntosh apples, and also did some damage with the winter varieties

Wynndel W.I. Hallowe'en Party

Will be Free Juvenile Costume Affair with Prizes—Elect New Secretary and Director—Bank Funds for 1935 Flower Show.

The September meeting of Wynndel Women's Idstitute was held at the church on Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs Vic. Johnson, in the chair. Minutes and financial statement read and adopted.

The flower show was a financial success and next year it is hoped the flower section will be enlarged. It was voted an additional $10 be placed in the savings bank account for 1935 fair or flower show.

Mrs. J. G. Abbott, convenor of the hospital committee, reported on a visit to Creston Auxiliary meeting, and that she had flower vases purchased for our room. She stated blankets were needed and outlined methods used to re make the old ones, and that she had donated three pounds of wool to the Institute for this purpose. The idea of having new blankets made for the room was discussed, also the completion of furnishing the room and articles necessary. It was decided to give the hospital committee authority to do this as they saw fit.

There was a discussion on how to dispose of afghan which is now completed and it was agreed to sell tickets at three for a quarter and draw for same at the hallowe'en party. Hallowe'n party talked over and decided to have the Institute sponsor same as usual, the children to masquerade, and the public to act as judges. Proceedings will commence at 8.30 prompt.

Connell--Crawford Nuptials

A wedding of much local interest was solemnized at St. Stephen's Presbyterian manse, Creston, early Friday evening, when Miss Florence, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Connell of Erickson, was united in marriage with Benjamin, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crawford.

The ceremony was witnessed by relatives of the contracting parties and was performed by Rev. A. O Thomson. The bride was attired in a smart costume of eggshell flat crepe with brown trimmings, and accessories to match, carrying a boquet of white asters. The bride was attended by Miss Marion Carr, R.N., gowned in a brown wool suit and carrya boquet of mauve and white asters. The groom was supported by his brother, Tom Crawford.

After the ceremony the party adjourned to the home of the bride' parents at Erickson where a wedding supper was served, with just the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties present. The table was decorated in pink and white streamers and centered by a three tier wedding cake.

The happy event unites two popular members of the younger set. The bride has been prominent in the activities of Trinity United young people, while the groom was a prominent figure in basketball, playing guard on the champion Cardinals.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford are to reside at West Creston where the groom has charge of the public school, and have the best wishes of all for a happy and successful future.

Harry Helme with his truck has caught on for the haul of sand and gravel for the new hard surface road that is being put down between Creston and Erickson this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Phillips of Kimberley were here during the past week, arranging for the harvest and shipping of the crop of McIntosh Red apples on the ranch here.

The original settlers at Lister last week heard with regret of the death of Geo. Paton of Nelson, who passed away in hospital at Vancouver, and who was buried in Nelson at the end of the week. Deceased was employed here as accountant in the office of Supt. Rowbury during development.

Flats Dyking Work Progresses

All Machines Now at Work and Making Good Headway—Diversion Goat River Proceeds—Have Own Lighting Plant.

With a battery of two ten-yard capacity wheel scrapers, handled by 75 h.p caterpillar tractors; a caterpillar "bulldozer" of 35 h p, capacity; a 40-foot boom dragline; heavy grader propelled by a 30 h.p. caterpillar tractor; team, and a full complement of manual labor, the dyking of 8800 acres of the fertile Kootenay Flats lands at Creston is now in full swing and operating well up to expectations of Creston Dyking Company, Limited, who are contractors for the work of the big recla ation project.

The dyke starts from the Creston side from the bench in close proximity of the J. W. Dow ranch and swings south to closely follow the north bank of the Goat river, to a point just beyond the crooked bridge. At this point there is under way a diversion to turn the Goat into the Kootenay. From this diversion the dyke follows the east bank of the Kootenay River for nine and a half miles, to Indian point, where it swings east to join the bench again in the vicinity of the Winlaw sawmill at Wynndel.

The dyke is 60 feet wide at the base and will have a ten foot top. Construction is on the basis of two to one slope on the inside and three to one on the outside. The dyke facing Goat River at the Creston end will be nine feet high, while at the north end at Wynndel it will be built to height of 15 feet. Along the bank of the Kootenay River, which is seldom overtopped, the dyke i from five to seven feet in height. Total length of dyke is about 13 miles.

In preparing the dyke base all the natural topsoil of every sort has been taken off to a depth of two feet. In the centre of the base the dragline has been used to put in a core ditch which has put down to a depth of from four to six feet. The idea of this operation is to cut a trench below all sand, gravel or other porus materials that might provide a leak if not attended to in this fashion. The core ditch is then filled with clay or other suitable material.

The dyke proper is constructed from a borrow pit situated about ten feet distant from the dyke base. All top soils have been removed from the borrow pit to free it from sod or other poor material. The dirt is scooped up by ten-yard hydraulic scrapers hauled by 75 h.p. caterpillars and carried up onto the dyke where it is automatically dumped and spread to a depth of four inches. When loaded the scraper and "cat" have a combined weight of 35 tons, which does an excellent job of packing the dyke material as it spreads it.

At present the dragline is at work digging out a channel 100 feet wide and 500 feet long to divert the waters of Goat River into the Kootenay, at a point just beyond the crooked bridge. At normal stream flow the Kootenay is four feet lower than the Goat which assures a quick get away of the floods on the Goat which come much earlier than high water in the Kootenay.

The "bulldozer" is b ing used to clear off the scrub timber, such as willows, etc., along the borrow pit and dyke line. It is equipped with a heavy blade in front and with 35 horsepower caterpillar driving force does a wonderful clean up job pulling out by the roots and shoving to one side trees with a trunk diameter up to six inches. With the blade attachment it is al o a handy machine for filling in the core ditch or handling earth removal on the same principal as a grader. On bigger timber teams, powder and hand work is used on clearing operations.

The grader, with 30 h.p. caterpillar driving power, is used in removing the sod and other undesirable top soils on the dyke base as well as the borrow pit.

The company plans to work 24 hours a day, with three eight-hour shifts and will provide employment for not less than 30 men. To expedite night operations the firm have installed its own 1200 watt Kohler portable electric light plant. To avoid all possible delay the telephone line has been extended to the works on the flats, and to avoid any shortage of operating fuel a 500 gallon portable tank has been installed for the gas supply.

And speaking of minimum of delay this can well be illustrated by an incident of Saturday morning last when one of the bearings on the big wheel scraper broke. A new part was wired for to Seattle, and shipped out the same morning by airplane to Spokane, where a dyking company car met the airship and rushed the needed part to Creston, the big machine being out of commission less than 24 hours.

Plans are to first of all put in the dykes at Creston and Wynndel ends and then concentrate on the works along the Kootenay River. Working three shifts it is not expected the job can be completed inside six months. Winter operations are not feared as even the wheel scrapers will do a good job in four inches of frost.

Russia And The League Of Nations

Soviet Russia having applied for admission into the League of Nations, the burning topic at Geneva and in many of the European capitals is whether that application should be approved or rejected. Russia has the powerful support of Great Britain, France and Italy as well as of some other countries, but is opposed by a number of the smaller nations, including, so it is reported, Belgium, Poland and Greece, while Switzerland, the home of the League, is said to be sharply divided on the question. The London Times has expressed the belief that Canada and Ireland will line up with the opposition.

Unless unanimity can be reached through advance negotiations and conferences, the forthcoming meeting of the General Assembly of the League will be the scene of an animated, possibly bitter, debate, with the further possibility of the failure of Russia's application because an unanimous decision cannot be reached. It looks like a knotty problem to solve, yet most people in this country would be inclined to regard it as a very simple one.

It is not necessary to recite the reasons which led to the establishment of the League of Nations, nor to set forth is aims and objectives. Its very name implies that it was the intention of the founders that it should include not some nations, but all nations. As long as certain nations remain outside its membership, the League is not as strong as it should be. It is weakened by the absence of even one nation. In the past one of its great weaknesses has resulted from the refusal of the United States to join, plus Russia's absence, and the early stipulation that barred Germany. Now that Russia is willing to come in, why refuse to permit it?

The only answer forthcoming is that the Government of Russia is Communistic. Premier Tsaldaris of Greece is reported as saying that he will vote against Russia's election to membership on the ground that it would sanction international Communism. This may be offered as an excuse, but surely it is not a valid and legitimate reason for exclusion.

Italy is a member of the League, but that does not constitute sanction of international Fascism by the other nations of the world. Other nations may set up or bow to dictatorships or other forms of autocratic government, some might turn socialistic, others become more and more democratic, and others again return to absolute monarchies. Such developments are the right and privilege of the people of the nations concerned, but they do not constitute reasons why they should be treated as outlaws among the nations of the world.

The people of any country have the sole right to determine their own form of government,—that which in their opinion is best suited to their particular conditions or state of development. This is one of the fundamental principles underlying the structure of the League of Nations, namely, self-determination of peoples and nations. Failure to recognize it, and give effect to it, would quickly destroy the usefulness of the League and ultimately destroy the League itself as an organization.

There are times when, following internal upheavals and revolutions, a nation may lose the diplomatic recognition of other nations, but this is largely because the fact is not clearly established as to which of the contending groups really enjoys the support of the people in such country and can therefore be safely recognized as "the Government". But when a Government once becomes established, recognition of it by other nations as a rule quickly follows. The means by which it came into being, its principles and policies are a matter for its own people to approve or disapprove, and recognition by other nations does not necessarily imply approval.

The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (Russia) has an established form of government; has had for years. It is recognized by most of the other nations. Agreeably or otherwise, it is accepted by the Russian people. What reason is there, then, why Russia should not be recognized by the nations acting jointly through the League of Nations and full membership in that body be granted to it? It is silly to argue that the granting of such membership in the League is to sanction international Communism. One might as well argue that to now admit the United States would be to give international sanction to all the policies and implications of Roosevelt's "New Deal", or in the case of Germany to place the stamp of approval on Hitler and his Nazi policies and programme.

Regardless of what one may think of Russian Socialism and the policies and methods of the Soviet Government, and quite opposed as one may be to the introduction of similar policies and methods into their own country, people the world over should wish Russia well. It is far better for the world that Russia should succeed and not fail in its experiment, and certainly it would be unchristian and cruel towards the Russian people to desire failure. Even though the Russian system may not be desired nor prove beneficial elsewhere, it may suit Russia in its present state of development.

The best way to promote international understanding and goodwill, and thus promote the cause of peace, is for the nations to get together,—the closer the better. And the best way yet devised for such getting-together is in the General Assembly of the League of Nations. Therefore, let every nation in who is willing to join, and do everything possible to bring in those which presently are averse to joining.

Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic Cramps and Stomach Pains

Dr. FOWLER'S EXT-OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Prompt treatment with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in such cases relieves the pains, checks the looseness of the bowels, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness, and oftentimes the collapse associated with attacks of this kind.

It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach, and bracing up the weakened system, thus making it a remedy for the treatment of bowel complaints of both young and old.

Famed Racing Husky Dead

St. Godard Mourns Loss Of Nine-Years-Old Team Leader

Emil St. Godard, world champion dog racer, mourns the death of his gallant leader Toby, one of the greatest dogs that ever stepped in harness.

Toby died at Teterborough, New Hampshire. The veteran of races across the continent suddenly suffered stomach trouble, and although three doctors worked on him they failed to save his life.

Toby was nine years old. He was part husky and part greyhound, a combination of staying power and speed. He was raised in the St. Godard kennels and won 28 long distance classics.

Toby led the St. Godard string in six of the gruelling 200-mile derbies between The Pas and Flin Flon. He was also well known to sportsmen in Ottawa, Quebec and New Hampshire.

It's tough all right," said Emil, when friends heard the news. "Toby was a wonderful dog. I intended to leave here in August to start training again in New Hampshire. I will have to train a new lead. I have several of Toby's pups at the ranch and expect to work one of them in Toby's place."

DOCTOR SAID SHE MUST REDUCE

Fat a Danger to Her Heart

Overweight is not merely a matter of appearance—it affects health, too. Excess fat robs the system of energy—the internal organs grow lax and slow down under the burden—and undue strain is put on the heart. Here is an instance. A woman writes:—

"I have been treated by specialists, who tried to reduce my weight, as I suffered with heart attacks. But no matter what they gave me, nothing would reduce me. Since taking Kruschen, everyone wherever I go exclaims about how much flesh I have lost. I took it at first for rheumatism, and it has done me a world of good, as well as greatly reducing my weight. Before Christmas I weighed 224 lbs. Now I am considerably less—in fact, a coat I had worn last year I have had to take to be altered before I was able to wear it again. I have not really made any difference with my diet, so there is only Kruschen to thank."—(Mrs.) M. S.

The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the wastage and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes—but surely.

Alberta In The Lead

Province Has Highest Marriage Rate In Canada

A bridegroom of 84 with a bride of 18; 10 brides under 16; three mothers who have borne their third child when but 16 years old; two men who married when they were more than 80 years old are some of the highlights of a report compiled from the vital statistics records of Alberta. The province has the highest marriage rate in the Dominion and the highest birthrate west of Quebec.

Englishmen are still the greatest progenitors, followed by Ukrainians and Germans. Alberta does not follow the majority, for November proved the popular month in which to be married.

Alberta boys apparently do not care to assume marital duties as readily as do the girls, for while there were only 76 grooms under the age of 21, no less than 1,416 girls of a total of 5,054 became brides before they reached their majority.

Japan Grows Own Wheat

Country Now Able To Supply Its Own Requirements

The Japanese government's five-year wheat growing project, inaugurated in 1932 by the ministry of agriculture and forestry to enable the country to supply its own requirements of the cereal, has achieved its objective two years ahead of time.

Estimates submitted at a conference in Tokyo of the chief officials of the wheat encouragement bureaus in the various prefectures showed the wheat crop in Japan this year will yield 44,849,900 bushels, while the estimated consumption of the country is 45,000,000 bushels.

Since the domestic crop is now practically equal to consumption, the officials have decided to relax their efforts to increase production and to concentrate their attention on effecting improvement in quality.

Although bread by no means supplants rice, which remains the staple cereal, it has been popular as a food for several years and army regulations prescribe mixing wheat with rice before boiling it for soldiers' rations. The wheat constituents counteract the tendency of polished rice alone to cause beriberi (kakke as it is called in Japanese).

Many households consequently now mix some wheat with the rice before boiling it for the family table with resultant good effects on the general health.

Due to the world rise in wheat prices, Japanese flour mills have been falling back recently chiefly on domestic wheat. It is likely that the mills will continue to import a fair quantity of Canadian and Australian wheat of qualities not yet produced there, for mixing purposes, for some time at least.

The Art Of Making Tea

Method To Use In Order To Obtain The Full Delicious Flavor

No beverage in the world is as universally popular as tea. It is used in nearly every civilized country and this delightful drink not only refreshes and invigorates the mind and body, but also serves as the medium by which people meet in a spirit of friendship and understanding the world over.

If the following directions (which were supplied by "Salada" Tea) are followed, each cup will yield the full delicious flavour that makes tea so enjoyable.

1. Use a tea of fine quality.
2. Use fresh water always.
3. Use an earthenware tea-pot.

Scald out the pot to make it warm, place in it a level teaspoon of tea for every cup desired, and one for the pot. Add fresh boiling water. Allow to steep about five minutes and stir slightly before serving.

Tea made according to the above rules will be fragrant, delicious and completely satisfying.

Is Densely Populated

The most densely populated small area in the world is 112th street between First and Second avenues, New York, Miss Marguerite Wales, social worker, said. The block is only 700 feet long, but 2,700 people make it their home. Seventy per cent. of them, Miss Wales said, are on relief.

ADVOCATE STEPS TO FACILITATE TRADE WITH U.S.

Winnipeg.—Early action by the governments of Canada and the United States toward reciprocal trade concessions was urged by the ninth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here.

Support of reciprocity came as the convention adopted the annual report of the policy committee, which also urged a trade mission to China in 1935 to stimulate Canadian trade in the Orient.

Economy in government and a national unemployed relief policy with the Dominion contributing equitably on a basis of provincial needs also were approved. Administration of relief should be under provincial departments or commissions.

Land settlement as a step toward solving unemployment was advocated. The convention also recommended a Canadian wheat institute to stimulate marketing and use of Canadian wheat in markets of the world and co-operation between federal and provincial governments for protection of the public in sale of securities.

The convention approved steps taken by various federal governments to negotiate trade agreements that would secure concessions for agricultural products in new markets, and urged that every advantage be taken of every possible opportunity to extend this principle.

Appointment of committees by the incoming national council to study the problem of immigration and another to deal with upset social conditions and allied problems was decided Duplicatory taxation was condemned and steps toward elimination asked.

"This chamber approves the report presented by the joint international committee and the conclusions reached by it at its meetings," declared the policy section dealing with the reciprocity question.

"It notes that on June 12, 1934, the president of the United States was granted by congress authority to enter into foreign trade agreements and to modify existing agreements. It expresses the opinion the governments of Canada and the United States should enter into negotiations at the earliest possible date to determine the extent to which mutual concessions can be arrived at with a view to accelerating the movement of trade between the two countries.

Immediate removal of duplicatory taxation and steps to cut costs of government in the federal, provincial and municipal field were written into the policy report as a result of previous action of the convention. It asked reduction of membership of the federal cabinet, house of commons, senate and provincial legislatures. End of duplication and overlapping of government services such as administration of insurance, company law, agricultural and health and social services, was advocated.

Wants Money Back

Has Unused Railway Ticket Purchased In 1870

Chicago.—John Watt isn't going to take that train ride he bought a ticket for 1870—so he wants his money back.

The Chicago office of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways reported that Watt, who lives at Auburndale, Mass., bought the ticket in Chicago for passage between Detroit and Boston.

Watt presented the ticket and it was forwarded to the general offices in Montreal, with the request for his money back.

The ticket, Watt said he was told, was good "until used."

Sir George Perley

Ottawa.—Born in Lebanon, N.H., on September 12, 1857, Sir George Perley is celebrating his 77th birthday. He first entered the House of Commons as member for Argenteuil in 1904 after two defeats, in 1900 for Russell and in 1902 in a by-election in Argenteuil.

Deplores Intrigue

De Valera Of Irish Free State Refers To Russia And League

Geneva.—Small nations raised their voices as the League of Nations assembly opened general discussion—Austria in fervent declaration and the Irish Free State in fervent protest.

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, rigidly guarded by secret service men, stated Austria's case, reiterating Austria's insistence on independence.

Long, lean Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, followed Schuschnigg and somewhat heatedly declared he did not object to Russia's entry into the league, but he did object, vigorously, to the backstairs intrigue going on over the wording of the invitation to Russia. De Valera demanded the whole matter be put before the league assembly.

Schuschnigg stressed his words as he declared the intention of his government to preserve Austria's internal and external independence. He denied the Austrian co-oprative state was reactionary. "We are not reactionaries," he said, "but sufficiently realists to dispense with a backward glance at the policy of an earlier day."

Mr. de Valera said flatly that he didn't like the lobbying that has been conducted to secure Russia's entry. He objected to the "hotel-room intrigues", the drafting and redrafting of the form of invitation.

He was ready to vote for Russia's entry, he said, although the ideals of the Free State and of the Soviet were poles apart. From inquiries he has made he gathered that Russia would have the necessary two-thirds majority vote to enter the assembly, and that Russia was ready to join.

"Then why not get down to business at once, and bring the matter before the assembly without attempting to deprive any state of its right under the convention to object to Russian membership," he demanded.

Chinese Demand Food

Inland Province Faces Famine After Summer-Long Drouth

Nanking, China.—The wolf growls loud and louder in famine-stricken Anhawei province.

A summer-long drouth that has seared fields, dried water sources and made desolate that thickly-populated countryside gave no sign of ending, and hungry desperate farmers swarmed into smaller towns demanding food from rice shops. These closed, fearing attacks.

Advices from the inland province —where the rigors of the winter are as great as those of summer—indicated relief must be forthcoming promptly if widespread disorders and banditry are to be averted.

There were grim stories of hunger-crazed wolves sweeping down on helpless villagers, farmers using their last small supplies of drinking water in fruitless efforts to save parched crops, peasants dying everywhere of hunger, disease and polluted water supplies.

Will Enforce Bird Act

R.C.M.P. Official Issues Orders To Arctic And Sub-Arctic Posts

Montreal.—Instructions were sent out at the closing session of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation here by Colonel J. W. Spalding, deputy commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, to officers of the force in 140 Arctic and sub-Arctic posts to see that the Migratory Birds Act was obeyed by white men and Eskimos. He stated if there were a like decrease in the number of migratory birds in the next 30 years as there had been during a like period in the past, Canadians of the future would never see wild geese or ducks.

James Brown, of Montpelier, Vt., was chosen president. John Farley, of San Francisco, was elected first vice-president.

Nickel Production

Ottawa.—A huge increase was shown in the production of nickel for the six months ending June, when it amounted to 65,333,686 pounds as against 22,760,201 pounds for the corresponding period of 1933, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

Cargo For Churchill

Livestock Pool And Wheat Pool To Forward Shipments On S S. Brandon

Saskatoon, Sask. — Co-operatives will play the chief part in furnishing cargo for the second voyage of the S.S. Brandon from Churchill this year. The Saskatchewan Livestock Pool will furnish all the cattle, sending 250 head to the Co-operative Wholesale Society of England. In the hold will go a cargo of wheat from the Saskatchewan wheat pool, which may have the same destination.

The Brandon will leave for London or Birkenhead during the latter part of September. J. C. Hackney, manager of the livestock pool, said the pool will try to make the cattle shipment a representative consignment from northern Saskatchewan, from as many producers as possible who can supply first class quality. It is expected that they will be drawn chiefly from the Prince Albert area.

Stronghold Of Peace

Adolf Hitler Pledges Germany To Peaceful Measures

Berlin.—Adolf Hitler again solemnly dedicated Germany to the cause of peace. The reichsfuehrer received the diplomatic corps in the reichspresident's office, last occupied by the late Paul von Hindenburg, and told the assembled envoys:

"The unalterable goal of my policy is to make Germany the stronghold of peace."

Indians Claim Rights

Mistawanis Tribe Alleges Band's Funds Improperly Spent

Prince Albert, Sask.—Aged Chief George Dreaver, 78-year-old head of the Mistawanis Indians, testified in the exchequer court hearing of the band's petition of right here that in speeches made at the signing of the treaty in 1876, commissioners of Queen Victoria promised that medicine would be supplied free to the Indians on their reserve located west of here.

In their petition the Indians allege that the department of Indian affairs improperly spent $21,275 of the band's funds. Medicine and education, which they claim were to be free, were charged against funds held in trust by the government for the band. Other expenditures for farm instructors' salaries, education and maintenance of deaf and dumb members of the band, overcharges for 20 head of horses and payment of treaty money to two women not members of the band were improper and without sanction, it is alleged.

Electric Lights In North

Mission Hospital Generates Its Own Electricity

Ottawa. — Encountering severe gales, ice, rain and fog, the steamer Nascopie, carrying the 1934 department of interior's expedition to the posts in the Canadian Arctic archipelago, continues to make progress on this season's patrol.

A highlight of the visit to Pangnirtung was the installation in the Anglican mission hospital of a plant for the generation of electricity, a donation by the family of the late Sir Edward Kemp, Toronto. The hospital was ablaze with light before the steamer left to proceed northward.

Would Stop Hasty Strikes

Chicago.—Action aimed at preventing hasty calling of printers' strikes was taken by the International Typographical Union, in convention here. Delegates voted to change the union rule which required a strike vote of local members within 24 hours after its authorization by the executive council of the international, to allow the council discretion in fixing the time for a vote.

Germany Offers To Pay

London. — German importers of yarn, facing a complete shutdown at the source of supply, have offered to pay £250,000 owing to Lancashire cotton companies in 12 monthly instalments, it was announced. In the offer, it was declared essential that delivery of yarn to Germany recommence immediately.

MOTOR MAGNATE PREFERS BICYCLE

Recently Lord Nuffield (formerly Sir William Morris), famous British automobile magnate, stated that the best days of his life were spent on a bicycle and that for health and pleasure he still preferred to tour the country by that means. As a sequel to that statement the British Cycle and Motor-Cycle Manufacturers and Traders Union sent a deputation to Lord Nuffield's home at Cowley and presented him with a new bicycle. This picture shows the happy peer riding his new steed.

TELL OF HUGE PROFITS FROM WAR MUNITIONS

Washington.—The vast Du Pont Corporation of Delaware was shown before United States senate munitions investigators to have done a war order business totalling $1,245,000,000 between 1914 and 1918—part of the profits from which went into General Motors stock.

Pierre Du Pont, member of the munitions manufacturing family, told investigators that $47,000,000 of the corporation profits were spent to buy one-fourth of the common stock of General Motors.

Three brothers—Irenee Du Pont, Pierre S. Du Pont and Lamont Du Pont—and their counsin Felix Du Pont, were in the room.

The testimony brought out that Du Pont was the first United States company to receive great war orders. In the first year of the war, from September, 1914, to September, 1915, it received $265,000,000 worth of war orders from Europe. In all of 1915 orders totalled $323,000,000. During the year before the war the company's business amounted to only $36,000,000.

The end of the war brought a cancellation of $260,000,000 in contracts held by the Du Pont Company.

"The war's end meant a great change for us," said Pierre "a great change."

A report said the company showed a net loss of $10,601,000 in 1919.

Appeal For Unemployed

Legion Head Suggests Plan To Help Them Keep Confidence

Calgary.—A plea to all Canadians that efforts be made to prevent unemployed persons from losing confidence in themselves, their country and beliefs, was made here by Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, president of the Canadian Legion.

"It is only by proper application of sympathy and understanding we shall be able to help them back to normal life," declared General Ross, "and I can suggest no work more appealing to service clubs than the task of rebuilding these men into normal, healthy citizens."

The Canadian Legion, General Ross intimated, was studying a plan that would provide vocational and physical training for returned men out of work.

Export Of Feed

Would Withhold Shipments To The United States

Melita, Man.—Reeves of 12 municipalities in southeastern Manitoba petitioned the Manitoba government to withhold export licences for feed into the United States until the needs of dried-out areas in the province are fully met.

It was estimated 32,100 tons of fodder will be required for livestock quartered in the southwest this winter. Practically no grain was threshed over a wide area.

Big Ben Is Burnished

Historical London Clock Has New Coat Of Paint

London.—Big Ben has had his faces washed and all dolled up with crimson paint and bright gold.

A drab and gloomy landmark when it was put in splints for overhauling, Big Ben reappeared in the same glittering finery as it did in the early sixties.

The gold is real gold, too, applied in the form of the thinnest of gold leaf.

Receives Appointment

Winnipeg.—Appointment of W. A. Mather, formerly assistant to the vice-president in Montreal, to be general manager of Western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway was announced here by W. N. Neal, vice-president of Western lines. Mr. Neal also announced appointment of C. A. Cotterell, general superintendent of the British Columbia district, to the post of assistant general manager in charge of the British Columbia region including Vancouver Island.

"No lonely winter for me ==we have a telephone"

"Last winter was such a lonely one for me," said Mrs. Danmore. "We had no telephone, with John away so much of the time I felt isolated. I'm not going through a winter like that again. We have a telephone now."

Everything seems to be working harmoniously in connection with the new fruit marketing regulations. Following his choice as local director at the growers' meeting on September 11th, W. G. Littlejohn has been conferring with all the shipping interests and visiting the different points in the valley to get thoroughly acquainted with the whole situation. Considerable study has been given as to how best to handle the whole truck situation and if regulations which have been prepared are approved by the central board at Kelowna it looks as if an eminently fair solution of this problem has been worked out by Mr. Littlejohn and Mr Borret, who is still here.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Bound for England after six years as British high commissioner to Canada, Sir William Clark sailed from New York to Great Britain.

The British Columbia government will construct a new bridge across the Fraser river at New Westminster, Premier T. D. Pattullo has announced.

A new deal for soap-box orators was declared when Robert Moses, commissioner of New York parks, announced that nine city parks, in addition to traditional Union Square, will be available for open-air meetings.

The general business outlook in Great Britain has brightened since June, Sir Josiah Stamp, well-known British economist and a director of the Bank of England, declared before members of the Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce.

An Irish Free State army aeroplane with three occupants crashed in the garden of Judge Meredith's home at Dublin. Lieutenant Arthur Russell and Private Twomey were burned to death; Sergeant Canavan jumped clear of the wreckage but was seriously injured.

With a view to developing a market in Japan for British Columbia sheep, the government has made a trial shipment of Shropshires for breeding purposes, Premier T. D. Pattullo said. The shipment was made by the Heian Maru.

Film Stars' Handwriting Analysed

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT
(Grapho-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: This article will be found especially interesting, dealing as it does with well-known film stars. What does YOUR handwriting tell? See the invitation following this article).

A correspondent sends me samples of the writing of several well-known people, and asks me to analyse the writing for her. There is so much of interest in these analyses, that I am making them the subject of a special article.

Perhaps you have wondered why many men have been led into the different pursuits in which they have gained fame and fortune. It is immensely interesting to think of what might have been if different individuals had been born with traits of character that were entirely different from the real characteristics of their nature.

Men and women are born into this world with definite talents and abilities that they must learn in order to take full advantage of them. Some go through life and never learn their proper talents, while others find and develop them early in life.

Ramon Novarro, the prominent film star, is particularly fortunate in finding his talent and making it the driving force of his life. His writing shows, as well those who have seen his films know, that he is a great dramatic actor—that he can interpret a role in a way that few people can even approach, but he has also another ability and another very outstanding talent with which he has won recognition—his ability in music. The rhythm and breaks in his writing show immediately to the handwriting analyst—a talent and appreciation of the musical arts.

As an operatic singer, Ramon Novarro has achieved fame that is not often given to a man. His talent in music is well-known, and is, perhaps, his first choice of expression.

He has still another characteristic, another ability. His writing shows an ability to use his hands in a creative way—perhaps in painting, sculpture, or some other means of expression. Few men are born with such pronounced artistic ability in so many lines—drama, music and the sculpture arts.

Take the handwriting of John Boles, another star. The dominant trait in his character is his self-reliance. This is the quality that makes him depend only on himself for anything that he wants done. He is not surly (quite the contrary) to his many friends, but, at the same time, he looks to one man only to get it—and that man is himself.

John Boles could not be anything else if he desired—there is an independence of thought and action that will not allow him to think of help when he has a problem to face. He is close-mouthed about his personal affairs, and will usually have them solved before other people have heard about them. Decisive, quick thinking—a man of action—John Boles.

If you want a personal reading of what your own writing reveals, send a letter in your normal handwriting, and state your birthdate, with 10 cents coin, and a stamped (3c) addressed envelope. You will be surprised at the revelations of your character and talents. If you enclose more than one specimen for analysis, please enclose coin for each. Address: Lawrence Hibbert, Grapho-Analyst, c-o Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg. Replies will be mailed as soon as possible, but please allow at least two weeks for reply.

Gold Strike

Find Of Great Importance In Northern Saskatchewan

Strike of gold on the shores of Lake Athabaska in north-western Saskatchewan is a find of major importance, according to Hon. T. C. Davis, K.C.

Mr. Davis returned from Edmonton recently, where he met several prospectors just back from Lake Athabaska. Reports were favorable to the gold find, he said.

The strike lies 60 miles east of the Alberta boundary in Saskatchewan, and is easily accessible by water, since the quartz lies right on the lake shore. Assays as high as $150 have been reported.

Fat which has become slightly tainted, or fat that has been used for deep frying, may be clarified and rendered sweet again by boiling it with a few slices of raw potato.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

By JACK MINER, Canadian Naturalist

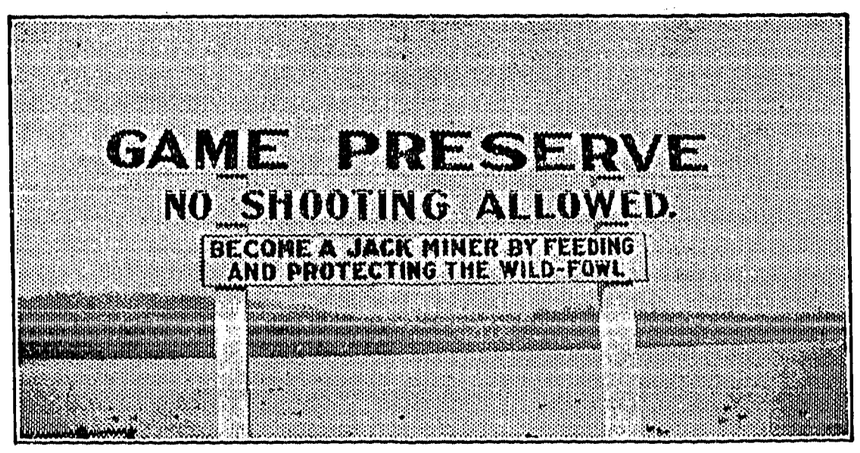
"The little boys that I worked with in Sunday School twenty-five years ago are to-day the live wires of our church executive. In other words the Sunday School boys of to-day are the foundation of to-morrow's Church and Christianity. And without some form or way of introducing our children to Jesus and His ways our Church and Christianity are bound to go down, and if we allow our established Christianity to go down we lose the very soul of the most prosperous and looked-up to continent on the earth to-day. We will die as other nations have whenever we ignore the blessed privilege that our loving Saviour bled and died that we may live.

Moreover, I wish to say that I know no better or more permanent way that a young man can develop a smiling countenance and Christian courage and loyalty in his own heart then by teaching a class of boys in Sunday School. In other words the more we invest in the Sunday School the greater our daily income of blessing is.

Personally I have nothing to boast of, but all to thank God for, as there could be no underprivileged, handicapped, uneducated, man rise up and have his grey hairs respected by all classes of people more than I have in the last twenty years. It all started when my little seven-year-old boy took me by the hand and led me to the way of the Sunday School over thirty years ago. Remember, Sunday School and Christianity are the foundation of our public schools and all other good things that follow. The best public school teachers I have known, producing the best results in the public schools, were, in every case, Christian Sunday School teachers.

My public school education was extremely limited to the first, or A.B.C. book, but through the Sunday School, and it alone, I am now able to read and write and am now writing my third book. As far as education is concerned, the same can be said of my father, who never went to public school one day in his life, but his Sunday School teacher taught him to read.

Thus I have just reason to bow down and thank God for the Sunday School and its influence.



Jack Miner's Influence.—The photo shows a sign placed by a lake in British Columbia on Vancouver Island, which is 5,000 miles more or less from Jack Miner's home.

ISAIAH COUNSELS RULERS

Golden text: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusted in thee." Isaiah 26:3.

Lesson: Isaiah, Chapters 7, 31, 36 and 37.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 21:1-7.

Explanations And Comments

Trust not in Egypt, but in Jehovah, 31:1-3. When Isaiah tells about his call to be a prophet, in the sixth chapter, he begins by saying, "In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw also the Lord." Others saw only the dying king; Isaiah always saw through events to God who is back of them. The rulers of Judah realize that there is imminent peril of Jerusalem's being taken by the Assyrians, but they give no thought of God. Isaiah pronounces woe upon them for going down to Egypt for help, relying upon the horses, chariots and horsemen of that country in the hour of their peril, and failing to seek the help of Jehovah. "Jehovah, too, is wise," the prophet proclaims (he speaks satirically), and he will bring calamity upon the evildoers. The Egyptians are men, not God, as the great men of Judea seem to think; their horses are flesh, not spirit; when Jehovah acts, both helper and helped will fall and be destroyed together.

"This satire was the shaft best fitted to pierce the folly of the rulers of Judah," Dr. George Adam Smith comments. "Wisdom, a reasonable plan for their times and prudence in carrying it out, was the last thing they thought of associating with God, whom they relegated to what they called their religion—their temples, worship, and poetry."

A Call to Reform, 31:6-9. Turn ye unto him from whom ye have deeply revolted, O children of Israel; put away your idols.

"It is the duty of nations as well as men to own their dependence on the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon; and to recognize the sublime truth announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord." (Lincoln).

Turn to Jehovah and your foe, the Assyrians, shall fall, not by the sword of man, but by the stroke of God. "In the great crisis of her history, the invasion by Sennacherib, Judah was saved, as England was saved from the Armada, neither by strength of her bulwarks, for they had been burst, nor by the valor of her men, for the heart had gone from them, but because, apart from human help, God himself crushed her insolent foes in the moment of their triumph."

Little Journeys In Science

ATMOSPHERIC PHENOMENA

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Dust, commonly associated with the gritty particles which fill the air in the course of "dust storms", is in reality responsible for some of the greatest beauties in nature. Blue skies, purple twilight and rain drops are caused by small dust particles which fill the air. Day would be almost as black as night, scientists say, if it were not that the particles of dust break up all the components of white light except the blue which we see in the sky. Sunset, with its richly-colored clouds, is the result of dust particles blotting out all the seven colors which combine to make white light, except those we see reflected in the sky. Twilight is the reflection of the slanting sunlight from particles of dust high in the air.

To dust, too, is due the rain and snow fall. Moisture in the clouds forms into drops or flakes by clinging around the small dust particles suspended in the air. Rain clouds usually travel about a mile above the earth.

The "ring around the moon" which is a common phenomenon in cold weather, is caused by ice crystals in high clouds. The crystals break up the moon's light and scatter some of the colors, reflecting others, and giving the familiar effect. "Sun dogs" across the sky are produced in this same way.

Sun spots activities projected on the atmosphere, are responsible for two other common spectacles in the sky, the aurora borealis and the rainbow. Contrary to popular belief, the rainbow forms a full circle in the sky, and not the arc with which we are familiar. Could man ascend high enough into the air he would perceive the rainbow in its entirety. This has been accomplished by airmen in recent years.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

CHAPTER I.

"When you tell me that you're going out to Crevasse County to claim your half of the old Hour-glass ranch, I tell you, Mr. Keene, that you're just asking for trouble."

Simon Burwell, first vice-president of the Drovers Bank in Cato, leaned back in his chair, spread his hands tip-to-tip and stared at his visitor. He took him in from head to foot and frankly liked what he saw. Then he studied an open letter on his desk.

"Your uncle was a good friend of mine," he said. "But he was very careless or unwise to make the will he did. . . ."

"What do you mean?" Gerald Keene straightened up in his chair and Simon Burwell grinned at him.

"Don't carry a chip on your shoulder, my boy. I'm not criticizing old Peter. Why, boy, I loved him. Your uncle lived many years in the West. He and old Joe Carr were partners for years. It was quite natural that when Peter died he should leave the Hour-glass ranch to his partner, Joe Carr. But when he dragged you into the matter he only complicated matters. How long since you saw your uncle?"

"I never laid eyes on him in my life," said Keene. "He was my mother's brother and the family was widely separated. I happened to learn of the bequest quite accidentally. I had been . . . in business . . in the Northwest and I happened to drop in at my old home. There I learned about the will so I got the letter from Judge Frame to you to identify myself. The old judge told me that you have always handled the ranch's business. That's so, isn't it, sir?"

"It has never kept me busy, I'm sorry to say," said Burwell. "There is no business worthy speaking of. You're the half owner of a big ranch that doesn't pay a dollar of dividends . . . and won't. Have you seen your uncle's will?"

Burwell did not wait a reply. He went to a wall safe and came back with a slim document that he read meticulously, accenting every word.

"You see, he left the Hour-glass equally to you and old Joe Car and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Car has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What ails him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades. . . . You may as well know the worst at once, Mr. Keene. . . Old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager in Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under your hat! . . . I believe, though to save my soul I couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is bein' right now, very thoroughly and consistently looted."

"Huh! . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell noted vaguely that they were shot with oblong hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on, please . . ." And he htiched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and put up a ranch house. They called the place the Broken Spur and it was mostly given over to raisin' underbred stock. They didn't have to buy good stock with old Joe Carr's blooded Hereford bulls on the open range. All I really know is that bad spirit developed between the two spreads. I don't know what started, but I do know that over a year ago Jim Girton, sheriff of Crevasse County, notified both ranches to pay off their men on different days. That was because every pay day in Seco was a regular Civil War. Anyhow . . . old Carr claims, somewhat loudly, that Dustin and Goddard have been looting the Hour-glass, but he's never been able ot prove it. All I really know is that, with cattle and water and land and grass, old Joe is gettin' deeper and deeper in bad water. That's all I can tell you; that you're half-owner in a big ranch and that, if you're not mighty careful, you'll have your head pulled under."

"Huh. Still I don't quite see. If old man Carr is losin' money, who pays it out? Where's it comin' from?"

"I've tried to tell you. God help you if you try to keep old Joe Carr's head above water. He'll only drown you both. But you'd better run out there yourself, Mr. Keene, and take a look at things."

"Thanks. I'm going to do exactly that."

As Gerald Keene rose and took his hat, Simon Burwell got a glimpse of gray eyes that narrowed in the glare and of a mouth that was almost straight above a full lower lip. The knowing vice-president grinned a little.

"I think my visitor will go far," he mutteredd. "I never even asked him what his occupation is. . . Huh. A man used to selling bonds'll not learn much about a ranch. However . . . Old Judge Frame evidently takes an interest in him. . . . And I'm well quit of the business." But he rose and walked to the long window and watched his late caller as he left.

A half-hour later Gerald Keene plunged through the door of a hotel room, slammed the door and gripped the shoulder of a man who was sitting in a chair by the window watching the world spin past between the toes of his boots on the sill.

"Duro," he said, "we're in a mess right up to our hocks. I swear I don't see any answer to it. . ." His lean face lit and his eyes twinkled. There are eyes that gleam and eyes that twinkle. These twinkled. There is a difference. One has humor; the other has none. Stone studied his friend for a brief moment.

"Shoot," he said.

"Well, I gave old man Burwell my letter of introduction and he told me all he knew about the Hour-gass ranch. It seems that by my uncle's will half the ranch is mine; the other half belongs to his old partner, Joe Carr. He lives on the Hour-glass with his daughter and has made a flat failure of it. If either of us dies, the other gets the entire ranch. . ."

"What could he tell you about your uncle?" demanded Stone.

"Very little; only that he was a lovable old fellow and that he was mighty fond of Carr. Oh! He told me, too, that two men, Dustin and Goddard, in the past few years have bought up a lot of 'scrip' and started a ranch next to the Hour-glass. They call it the Broken Spur. Burwell says old man Carr drinks a bit and is convinced that Dustin and Goddard have been systematically lootin' the Hour-glass for years. Too bad about old man Carr's drinkin', isnt it?"

"It sure is. You can reform anybody but a systematic drinker. Go on."

"That's all. Burwell said theres a regular feud between the two ranches that reached the status of a Civil War on pay-days. I reckon old man Carr's been shootin' off his mouth too much after a drinkin' spell. You know how it is. They say a lot more'n they ever started to say. Could you find out anything?"

"A little. While you were over at the bank I hunted up a man I know. You see, I used to work for the Lazy M in Nebraska. They were a member of the Stock-raisers Association an' that's a lucky bet in a cattle country. Just because Nebraska went crazy over Free Silver's no reason her people shouldn't be sane in spots. Old Ben Lyon, who used to be their attorney, is practicin' here now. I saw his shingle. I went to see him while you were with Burwell. . ."

"Well . . . go on . . ."

Stone thoughtfully rolled a cigarette and went on as though talking to himself.

"Ben says he's known Joe Carr since he was a pup. He says that, drunk or sober, old Carr is as straight as a lariat but that for some years he's been up against hard luck. Just plain up against it. About three years ago a pony slammed him against a buckin'-post in a corral and busted hell out of his right leg. That's when he began to drink, I reckon. It busted him up a good deal. Not enough to keep him from ridin', but enough to make him a poor bet on a ranch that needs two good eyes. He's got a fine manager in one Frank Crewe, but they just can't make both ends meet."

LURES

Life would defeat us as we go by
Yet, can she cheat us, though she may try?

Though she forget the promises made,
Think, can we yet be wholly betrayed?

For all her scorning,
Of hope's bright gleams,
In Youth's glad morning
She gets fair dreams.

She gave us laughter
And love's sweet cheer;
Then what comes after
We need not fear.

Though youth must perish
This boon endures;
Brave hearts still cherish
Bright, bygone lures.

Infantile Paralysis Vaccine

Canadian Research Worker Has Developed Vaccine For Dread Disease

Discovery of an apparently effective infantile paralysis vaccine was explained to 3,000 delegates and lay members at the closing session of the American Public Health Association convention.

Dr. Maurice Brodie, young Canadian research leader formerly of Ottawa, Ont., now connected with the New York City health department, described recent experiments with the poliomyelitis vaccine which apparently has proved successful on a group of human volunteers, including Dr. William H. Park, head of the New York City health department research laboratories, Dr. Josephine Meal, Dr. Brodie himself and number of children.

The Alberta honey crop of 1933 was almost twice as large as that of 1932 and was readily marketed at increased prices. As a result, owners of commercial apiaries in the southern part of the province report a fairly satisfactory year.

"What became of that bill the store sent us?"

"Oh, I sent it back marked insufficient funds."

Only Way To Solve Problem Of Highways' Peril

In Great Britain they put on a "safety-on-the-highways week." The result was that in that particular week 126 persons were killed and 5,595 injured, the second highest casualty list for British highways on record.

The experience suggests that carelessness on the highways calls for something sterner than experiments in good precepts.

The cold truth is that the only way a certain type of driver can have it impressed upon him that he must drive carefully is through the medium of a stiff fine and in many cases the cancellation of his license.

One year of a most vigilant watch for traffic offenders, with the offenders dealt with ruthlessly, might do more to solve the highways peril problem than all that has been written and talked about it these past ten years.—Ottawa Journal.

A Banker's Passport

Carries Engraved Portrait Clipped From Ten Dollar Bill

All passports bear a photograph of the holder, but there is one properly authorized and issued to a Canadian without his photograph—it carries an engraved portrait clipped from a $10 Bank of Montreal bill. The holder's name is Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, a director and formerly general manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The circumstances under which Sir Frederick clipped the bill and attached the engraving to his passport application are not known, but this well known Canadian excercised the usual caution attributed to bankers by retaining the serial numbers in order that the bill might be replaced by a new note.—Financial Post.

Little Helps For This Week

"I have called upon Thee for Thou wilt hear me O God; incline Thine ear unto me and hear my speech." Psalm 16:6.

"Ye people pour out your heart before Him: God is a refuge for us." Psalm 42:8.

Whate'er the care that breaks they rest,
Whate'er the wish that swells thy breast;
Spread before God that wish, that care,
And change anxiety to prayer.

Trouble and perplexity drive us to prayer, and prayer driveth away trouble and perplexity.

Whatsoever it is that presseth thee, go tell to thy Father, put the matter into His hand and so shalt thou be freed from the dividing, perplexing care the world is full of. When thou are either to do or suffer anything go tell God about it, acquaint Him with it, yea burden Him with thy trouble, and thou hast done with caring. No more care, but quiet sweet diligence in thy duty and dependence on Him for the carrying of thy matters. Roll thyself and thy cares as one burden on thy God.—R. Leighton.

Bees As Messengers

German Beekeeper Finds Them Better Than Carrier Pigeons

A German beekeeper has found new use for bees. They are no longer to be mere honey-gatherers and wax-builders, but messengers! He has written messages on scraps of paper and fastened them to the backs of bees. The bees have quickly brought them back to the hive, and never has a bee failed to deliver the goods. The beekeeper, Herr Berhard Guhler, says bees are less likely than pigeons to fall into the wrong hands.

Way to Ease Headaches, Pain Almost Instantly

METHOD OFTEN RELIEVES NEURALGIA AND RHEUMATIC PAINS IN MINUTES!

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

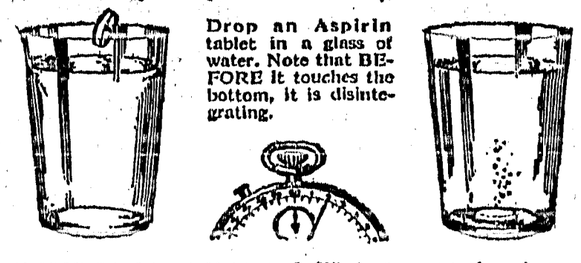
Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast



Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.
