GOVERNMENT BY THE LIBERALS IS INEFFICIENT

CONSTANT "TINKERING" WITH LAWS AND CREATING "SILLY RESTRICTIONS"

SO DECLARES LEADER OF CONSERVATIVE OPPOSITION

Mr. Bowser Fires Broadsides Into the Administration of "Honest" John Oliver

(By Our Staff Correspondent in the Leegislative Press Gallery.)

VICTORIA, B. C., March 2.—That by its constant "tinkering" with the game laws of the Province and the placing of "silly restrictions" upon the people which had the result of destroying the object to be desired—the proper enforcement of the regulations—the Government is showing its utter inability to intelligently deal with one of the most important assets of the Province, was the assertion of Mr. W. J. Bowser, K.C., Leader of the Conservative Opposition, when participating in the debate upon the motion for the second reading of the bill to amend the Game Act, a measure crowded with amendments to the existing regulations. He declared that under the former system of game wardens, men experienced in game lore, better results were obtained than now in the enforcement of the law. The tendency is, he said, to cast upon the shoulders of the farmers and sporstmen much of the duty which should be exercised by the law officers, but as that work is now being done by the Provincial police whose other important duties force them to deal with the game protection merely as a side line, it was inevitable that the results secured are small and the administration of the regulations inefficient.

The debate was enlivened by a passage between Mr. Bowser and Mr. Speaker, the former asserting the latter was too prone to take exception to alleged Opposition benches of the rules, while the Government members were allowed to transgress wherever they saw fit.

Mr. F. W. Anderson, Liberal member for Kamloops, adjourned the debate.

Mr. Bowser stated that his 17 years' experience in the House had taught him that no legislation created more discussion than that pertaining to the regulation of the game of the Province. As an asset not alone in providing residents of the Province with opportunities for healthy sport but also in attracting thousands to British Columbia, the game was of first importance. He touched upon the efforts the former Government made to frame sensible laws that would at once conserve the game and at the same time permit ample opportunities to those who desired to engage in hunting to do so, and he stated he believed the 1914 Consolidated Act, one brought down after much consideration of the whole subject, was a very fine piece of legislation which, as the years went on would need little amendment other than to meet changing conditions.

The present Government, inexperienced in game administration, had promptly proceeded to wipe out of existence the old system of administration whereby game wardens looked after the enforcement of the act, and placed the whole question of administration under a Game Conservation Board, at the head of which was placed Dr. Baker, a dentist, who could not give his whole time to the work. It was true that the new system resulted in some decrease in cost of administration but, Mr. Bowser averred, the chief question was, have game conditions throughout the Province been improved? Every year since the present administration took office there has been a tinkering with the regulations, a process, he supposed, that could not be expected annually in future years.

"What is the use of the Attorney-General pretending the prsent game regulations are being enforced under his system of Provincial police supervision? If he thinks they are, he is not posted upon conditions," declared Mr. Bowser, who opined it was unreasonable to expect from the Attorney-General, under whose jurisdiction the administration of thee game department falls, proper attention and judgment in a matter upon which he was not posted. It was absurd to suppose that, having done away with a department whose sole duty it was to enforce the law, and placed it under the Provincial police, to whom its enforcement could in the nature of things be but a mere side line, anything like proper enforcement could be expected.

"If the Attorney-General in his travels around the Province would get away from his Pullman car and out into the country, he would learn the real facts," suggested the Opposition Leader, who admitted it was quite true that convictions had been obtained by the police, but what did they amount to in comparison with the epidemic of poaching that was in evidence?

"The present system has proved the complete failure that was foreseen by everyone who knew a thing about the question. If the Government does not know it, which I have good reason to believe they do, at least the people are only too well aware of the fact and are extremely dissatisfied; they know the present system of enforcement is a mere farce. The fact of the matter is there is no respect for the present methods of administration of the game laws, and in consequencee they are worse violated than ever before. The one or two game wardens who belonged to the old system and were froced by popular demand to be retained by the present Government, have been responsible for 75 per cent. of the convictions. I venture to say that under the present conditions, if the old staff of expert game wardens were put back there would be many more prosecutions and convictions."

Attorney-General Farris interjected the remark that the records he had supplied to the House in the shape of asswers to questions asked by the Opposition refuted that assertion as to convictions.

Mr. Bowser declared that under the old system the sportsmen of the Provincee, to a man, were behind the Department in supporting the efforts at enforcement of the regulations; they voluntarily notified the game wardens of anything requiring attention, with the result that those who were inclined to break the law were aware that they were likely to be caught. Poaching became reduced to almost the vanishing point. The presenet regulations as brought down by the Game Board obliterated this old co-operative spirit and sought by compulsory methods to force the farmers and others to assist the Department in enforcing them. Instead of the former simple, short and intelligible regulations, free from annoying restrictions, which only irritated the people and tended to lessen the ease with which the regulations can be enforced, the present making of amendments and putting silly restrictions on farmers and sportsmen which would never be enforced, would not protect the game.

Mr. Bowser believed the proposal to raise a revenue from the fur trade was a good one, one which the late government had had under consideration when it was forced out of office. He referred to the tremendous increase in the fur trade in America, consequent upon the shutting off of Russia by the war, an increase shown by the steps being taken by a Canadian company to inaugurate yearly fur sales at Montreal. In a few years the value of the trade in British Columbia had jumped from about $100,000 a year to over two millions. But he regretted to say that under existing conditions in the Province there was every likelihood of a serious falling off in the number of fur bearing animals in some speciees. Fox and mink have greatly fallen off, beaver was becoming extinct until a prohibition against its destruction was ordered. This fact was attributable, he considered, to the lack of proper law enforcement. If the Province was not to lose its fur bearing animals the Attorney-General should make a change or he would wake up and find that they have followed the buffalo. In the face of the increasing revenue the Government would be well advised to resort to the old system.

"Put on game patrols, prosecute with a firm hand where there is a wilful disregard of the law, but use judgment and common sense rather than at present prosecuting with the sole idea of making a showing," urged the Opposition Leader, who asserted it was imperative that there should be at the head of the game department a man who understood the business. Running the department with dentists and clerks who know nothing about the game situation was a dangerous thing, he said.

Mr. Bowser proceeded to devote attention to what, he declared, were some of the more glaring shortcomings of the bill before the House. He was confident the Attorney-General who fathered it, did not actually know what was in it, but had been content to take the advice of the chairman of the board, "this, what shall I call him? This chechako in the game business." He referred to the definition of the term "guide" as the first of the series of silly restrictions having absolutely nothing to do with the protection of game. It simply meant that if a hunter gave a farmers' boy fifty cents to point out a pond where there are ducks, or a covey of grouse, the hunter is breaking the law, and so was the boy unless th latter had taken out a guide's license at $5.

Speeches of Creston Delegates at Annual Meeting of Board of Trade

Convey Most Encouraging Outlook

EDITOR C. F. HAYES ON THE VALUE OF PUBLICITY

In making response to the toast of "Publicity" at the recent annual meeting of the Cranbrook Board of Trade, Editor C. F. Hayes of the Creston Review, opened his remarks in a humorous vein, recalling the days of yore when it was alleged that the quickest way to get advertising results was to telephone, telegraph or tell the local ladies' aid. The basis, however, of the speaker's timely talk was the remark by Mr. McPhee, in introducing the toast, that it was up to all to talk about the district and tell the people east of us about it. Mr. Hayes wanted to know how people could talk about their neighborhood without some facts to go upon; pointing out that so far as Cranbrook and Creston were concerned there was only one source of information and that was the weekly newspapers published in these districts.

So far as getting the needed information to points further east the lacal newspapers were the sole and only avenues of intelligent communication. As illustrating what the Cranbrook Herald had already accomplished in this respect, Mr. Hayes recalled a personal experience of the very early '90's in Northern Ontario where the Herald had been sent by a newcomer to Cranbrook to the old eastern home, and how, as a result, the speaker had been most authentically informed the colonization seed sown by the Herald had directly and indirectly been responsible for the bringing of almost thirty adult residents to Cranbrook, some of whom were now prominent in the city's life.

Mr. Hayes followed with an incident of how an article dealing with pioneer life in Creston Valley, published in The Review, had been the means of acquainting the people of Creston of the existence of this particular bit of literature and how, when the department of colonization atOttawa had offered prizes recently for articles of that nature to be used in literature that would be issued to attract people from abroad as well as from the U. S., members of the Creston Board of Trade had induced the writer of the article to re-write the story and enter it in the colonization department's competition, with the result that there was every assurance that the article would be used in the irrigation-getting pamphlet which would be circulated in hundreds of thousands of copies. These, the speaker claimed, were just samples of the effective publicity work as well as every other the western country are doing week in and week out. All of which led Mr. Hayes up to his objective, which was that seeing how effectively the local press was co-operating in publicity work as weell as every other commendable effort it was high time the public were showing full appreciation of this good work.

The test of their sincerity in the premises was about to be made. In four years the cost of turning out a newspaper had doubled in every respect, but still the subscription price remained at the $2 mark. Nothing short of a jump to $3 per annum would suffice. When the new rate came into effect he bespoke the generous acceptance of the advanced price that the service rendered by the press entitled it to, keeping ever prominently before them the old but always true observation:

The constant gnaw of towser masticates the toughest bone;
The steady drop of water wears away the hardest stone;
The constant, cooing lover carries off the blushing maid.
And the town that advertises is the town that makes the grade.

Howard Moffatt arrived in the city the day prior to the death of his aged father and accompanied the body to its last resting place.

GUY CONSTABLE OF CRESTON, TALKS ON "RECLAMATION"

Mr. Guy Constable, one of the visiting delegates of the Creston Board of Trade, at the annual meeting of the Cranbrook Board of Trade, held here recently, in replying to the toast, "Reclamation," proposed by Mr. McPherson, expressed his pleasure at any time being the guest of the Cranbrook board, and especially at this time of their annual meeting and the visit of the Creston board delegation, making as he felt it did, the enary of the two boards into reciprocal relations which would be for their lasting good.

This was the first occasion that reclamation had been honoured with a toast outside the Creston Valley. Nearly all of the lands of the Province required reclamation in some form or another. Some areas required timber and stone removing, others required water putting on; in the case of the Kootenay Flats the particular problem was keeping the high water off during a period of some two months. Once that was done, the land was ready for the tractor and the gang plow.

The Kootenay Flats extended from the south end of Kootenay Lake to Bonners Ferry in Idaho, and contained an area of approximately 75,000 acres divided nearly in half by the International Boundary Line, leaving 35,000 acres in Idaho and 40,000 in B. C. The land was of great fertility, such that in these prodigal days one thought it was inexhaustable. One of the great problemss of the Province was agricultural production and nowhere was this more intensified than in Kootenay where there was a concentrated population with considerable purchasing power. Agricultural importations into the Province prior to the war were well over twenty million per annum. The Kootenay Flats would be a great producer. On the Idaho side much of this was being done as it was posible in years of low water to put in a crop. Taking their average results and applying them to our own portion we would produce:

Wheat, at 60 bushels per acre, 1,000 bushels, while the total three-year average for the Province was 643,551 bushels.

Oats at 100 bushels per acre, 3,000,000 bushelse, while the total three-year average for the Province was 2,847,240 bushels.

Potatoes, at 500 bushels per acre, 450,000 tons, while the total three-year average for the Province was 83,000 tons.

Timothy and Clover, at 4 tons per acre, 120,000 tons, which would be over 50 per cent. of the total three-year average for the Province.

In 1919 experiments were conducted in the growth of flax and results submitted to experts at Ottawa. A good length of fibre was grown and the experts report was that there was no doubt whatever that the production of flax for fibre on the Kootenay Flats would be and abounding success.

So far as inestigvation had gone at present, the project was entirely feasible. No engineering difficulties had developd and none were anticipated in the carrying out of the work. Final report was, however, necessary, and to that end the Provincial Legislature had last session passed a petition requesting the Dominion Government to enter into negotiations with the United States, and the Dominion Goervnemnt by order-in-council of Septemebr 22nd, last, had through the British Ambassador at Washington invited the United States Government jointly with them to appoint representatives for the purpose

CRANBROOK, BRITISH COLUMBIA

THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1920

FAKE PROHIBITION

If ever there was a fake pure and simple, the present Prohibition Act is one. Why there should be any quibbling over a re-submission in several forms or amendments passed by the Provincial Legislature to set the fake right, is hard to understand.

The people, not the members of the Legislature has a righ to treat with this question of personal liberty, and not the present Government, which in the past few years since the Act came into force has appeared unable or not willing to give the people what they voted for in the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors.

More intoxicated men are to be seen on the streets of Cranbrook under the present system in force (and Cranbrook is no exception to the conditions prevaling throughout the whole of the Province) than were ever seen in the days of the open bar.

Mr. George Bell, Government member for Victoria, who is the champion anti-boozist of the present Government, who is defending the present Act in the House, says there is vast improvement in the various sections, but we are fearful Mr. Bell, is too much of the parlor investigating sort. He has not got into the highways and byways for his information.

The advocates of prohibition have contended that the introduction of the law into B. C. would save the workers many hundreds of thousands of dollars in the aggregate, but this is now disputed and where men who ordinarily in the days of the open bar were accustomed to spending two bits or more a day for beverages are now patrons of establishments vending the stuff and spendings dollars where they never spent cents before and under the present system of importing liquors from other Provinces thousands of dollars in good, hard, cold cash of the people of the Province of British Columbia is going elsewhere to enrich the particular sections from which importations are made.

No one will advocate the revival of the old order of things, but from admissions of the prime movers in the cause of Prohibition when it was first undertaken, the Act is a farce and should be repealed and a new one submitted in some form or other where the bone dry advocates, the moderationists and the "wets' might have their say.

The soldiers who fought for democracy have all returned and they could also have their say as to what form of restrictions should be put upon the dispensing of intoxicants. This is their right, if we would keep faith with them. The moderationist would be satisfied and the teetotaler could have no complaint at a fair submission the question in a manner arranged to give all their say.

The Prohibition party should not object to a fair trial before the electorate of the Province after four years of the most absurd attempt at control of the liquor traffic that could be imagined. We would think and know, from the admissions of some of the most ardent advocates of the question of prohibition that they are thoroughly ashamed of their efforts or accomplishments and their views were met at every angle when the present existing Act was framed whereby the hotel men and many others whose businesses through the license system then in force which legalized the sale of intoxicants were wiped away as chaff before the winds.

Recently Mr. Cowper member for Vancouver, erstwhile critic of the Government made statements in the House which should satisfy the "dry" advocates that the present Act is a farce, a huge joke and should be wiped off the statute books and "a new deal with a new deck" not containing the joker be given to the people of the Province.

It is now quite certain the Government will submit a referendum soon and it is to be hoped it will be so framed as to give everyone a choice as to the manner in which the liquor traffic will be handled and forver put an end to the question.

If it is to be availbale at all, lets by all means have it by the licensing of those who would indulge and under Government regulation whereby the Government (the people) would get the benefits of the system or let's have it bone dry.

The joke has been in force long enough, let's have sane legislation created by the voice of the people at the polls and not a few not representative of the whole people.

ENCOURAGE THEM

The British Columbia Prospectors' Association of Cranbrook is one of the live community interest organizations born only recently, but if its accomplishments in the future compare with what has been done in the short space of time the organization has been in exisence, the benefits the district will derive from the propoganda the new organization is dealing in, will be hard to estimate.

Just at present, and after bringing this district prominetly before the Northwest Mining convention in Spokane, the association has undertaken the assembling of a display of minerals from this district at the convention to be held in Seattle soon. In this commendable undertaking the association should meet with the wholehearted co-operation of the citizens of the district and more especially those engaged in the mining industry.

Publicity is all that is needed to bring this most important natrual resource prominently before the investing world and men of means engaged in mining and there is no better avenue through which they and their engineers can be reached than the Northwest Mining convention which has as its object the bringing of the mineral resources of the Northwest prominently before the World.

The Prospectors' Association was likewise fortunate in securing a permanent space in Spokane for the exhibition of East Kootenay ores, and in this too much credit cannot be given the delegates to the convention representing the local prospectors' association and the Cranbrook Board of Trade, the latter assisting in a financial way in the undertaking.

Co-operation on the part of everyone interested in the future welfare of the city and district is the one thing needed most right now. We can "bring home the bacon" not in slices but in immense chunks if all will put their shoulder to the wheel in all community interest movements.

FROM THE VIEW-POINT OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES

Political Persecution

Government officials should learn that protection of the public and persecution of the individual are two entirely different things. If public interests demand a prosecution, it should be done without fear or favor and as soon as thee individual responsible for the enforcement of the law becmes aware of the infractions. Legislative enactments are presumed to be non-partisan, and as soon as they become otherwise, or are used to discipline a political opponent, they are a menace not only to individual liberty but to constitutional government, and trial judges should do their utmost to discourage this method of political persecution—Kaslo Kootenaian.

And Cranbrook Gets Some of It

During the next five years Canada is committed to spend $50,000,000 on the big highway scheme. For this purpose the Dominion Government has set aside $20,000,000 to represent forty per cent. of the whole, and as all the Provinces have entered the compact, thus assuring the raising of the necessary $30,000,000 to complete the scheme it means that this country is determined to have a main highway system equal at least to that of any other country. This huge amount of money added to the large sums that will be spent during the same period by the 890 municipalities on their street improvements, represents in round figures an aggregate expenditure of at least $40,000,000 per annum for the next five years on highways, roads and streets in Canada. Surely an indication of the spirit of the times.—Canadian Municipal Journal.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Extracts from the Cranbrook Herald of this date, 1899

Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Mansfield came up from Moyie yesterday.

The bicycle livery building that is being erected by Hobart W. Parrott, is nearly completed.

W. F. Gurd, the solicitor, is having a handsome office fitted up in the townsite building.

Tom Proctor, of Nelson, is talked of as one of the candidates in the Nelson riding for the Provincial house.

The Home Minstrels will play for the benefit of the Fire department and there is no guarantee feature about it.

J. C. Slater of Watertown, Ont., has arrived in the city and will take charge of the inside work of Leask's sash and door factory.

Col. Topping, of Trail, one of the best known mining operators in British Columbia, was a passenger on the train Friday en route to Montreal on business.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" Can't Harm Tender Little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

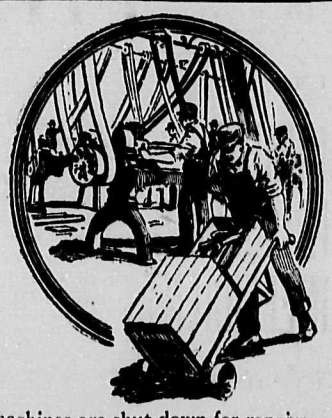
Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist fo a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS MAKING CAMPAIGN AGAINST ROBBERIES

In view of the considerable losses incurred through pilfering and careless handling of goods in transit, losses which amount in a year to close on three million dollars, the Canadian Railways have recently been conducting an active campaign against such robberies, not only in their own interests but also to protect the merchants and shippers who naturally suffer great inconvenience, even though the losses may be made good. The loss of portions of shipment frequently renders the balance of a shipment useless or depreciates its value, and affects the business of the merchant. As a result of this campaign, the C. P. R. for instance, have recently brought into court and secured convictions against several offenders.

Thus, at Ottawa, Ambrose Hilks, a teamster of a transport company, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment for breaking into a freight car and stealing a case of gin, while at McAdam Junction three men were condemned to five years penitentiary, two years penitentiary, and four years reformatory, respectively, for a series of thefts from freight cars involving many consignments of considerable value.

The subject of pilfering on railways has been taken up in England by the National Union of Railwaymen, which has recently circularized its branches, pointing out the moral obligation that devolves upon them to check the practice and help to remove the stigma which threatens their prestige. The branches have responded very favorably to this appeal, with beneficial results.



Continuous Production Cuts Costs

Every time your machines are shut down for repairs or replacements your production costs take a jump.

Machines and employees must be kept continuously busy in order to keep down these costs. Greater production is absolutely necessary to offset high prices of material and labor.

A Rough Road for Wheels But a Smooth Road for Passengers

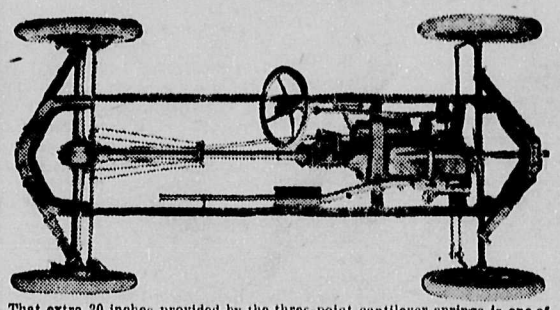
Watch Overland 4 on rough cobbles or unimproved roads. The wheels follow surface inequalities, but the wonderful new Triplex Springs give car and passengers remarkable riding steadiness.

The three-point diagonally-attached Triplex Springs give 130-inch Springbase to a car of 100-inch wheelbase.

This makes for the gently buoyant road action of a large, heavy car with the operating economy and convenience of handling of a scientifically designed light car.

Triplex Springs also mean care-free maintenance, so perfectly do they protect the delicate parts of the car from road strain.

Electric starting and lighting, door-opening curtains and dash light give but a hint of the completeness and quality which characterize everything about Overland 4.



That extra 30 inches provided by the three-point cantilever springs is one of the causes of extra comfort to the passengers and extra protection to the car

Where cases of real influenza have developed lately, they have proven to be equally as sever as the cases of last year, when the epidemic first put in an appearance, according to medical men.

It would be advisable, when one has any symptoms of the dread malady, to immediately summon their physician and exercise the greatest care to prevent fatalities. For everyone to take the best of care of themselves and not risk any undue exposure would do much towards stamping out the dread disease.

"THE LUCK OF THE NAVY" BEST THEATRICAL EVENT SEEN HERE FOR SOME TIME

Percy Huchinson and his all-English company of players, presented a most excellent attraction, "The Luck of the Navy" to only a fair-sized house at the Auditorium theatre last Saturday evening. The attraction was deserving of better support.

Every member of the company was an artist, and notwithstanding the company was nearly two hours late in arriving here from Nelson, the stage settings for the different scenes were pleasing and added to the occasion in, that the sameness which has greeted patrons of the house when other attractions have been put on, were missing.

The play rings with patriotism and abounds with many thrills of the kind which pleases, especially those who remembered the many intrigues attempted by the Hun secret service.

Should Mr. Huchinson and his company come this way again, it is safe to say that they will be greeted by a capacity house.

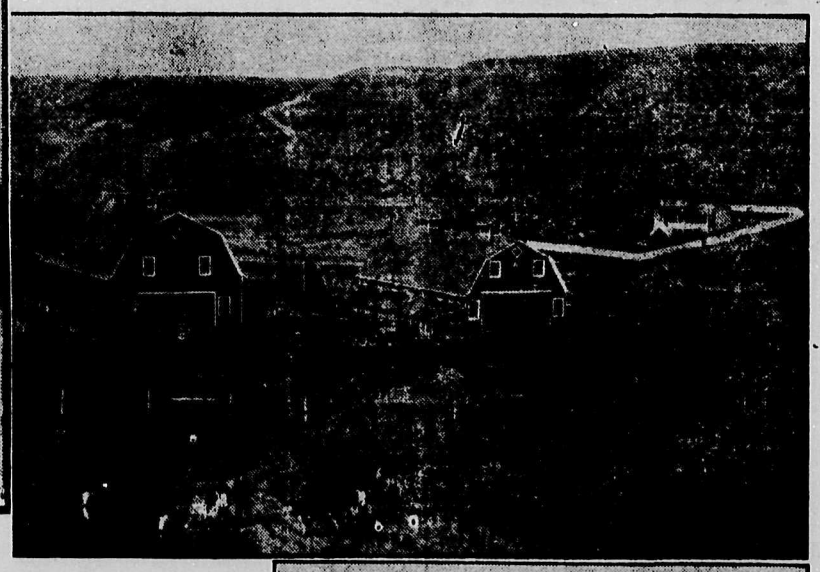
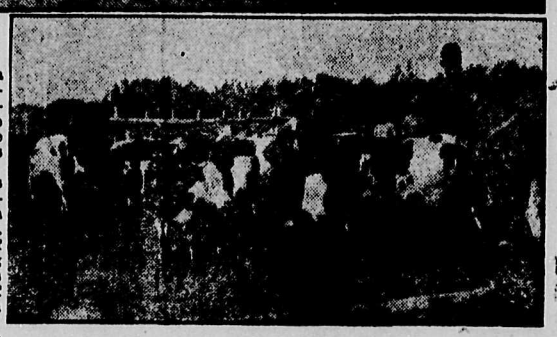
PROMOTING PURE BRED CATTLE





Alberta Stock Ranch : Purebred Calves for Alberta University Farm.

The livestock men of Alberta have adopted a novel means of promoting their industry, and, incidently, of bringing to the notice of the people both within and without the province, the standing of Alberta as a livestock country.

Thirteen of the largest breeders have donated thirteen steers, mostly purebreds, to the University Farm without any charge whatsoever. These steers represent the cream of twenty-four of Alberta's leading herds, and constitute what is thought to be the finest selection of its kind owned by any institution in Canada.

During the past a number of grade steers had been bought from time to time by the University Farm for judging purposes for the students of the College of Agriculture. The best of these were shown at the local live stock shows and later sold. It was next to impossible however to secure the class of stock best suited to this purpose with the funds available, as it entailed going to the larger breeders and paying top prices for selected individuals, and in all probability the breeders would not care to dispose of the animals of the age most suitable. It was felt that this work could be made more valuable to the province at large if instead of using ordinary grade steers, animals of higher merits could be obtained. In any case the cost of labor, feed and housing would be the same.

To Professor A. A. Dowell, Chief of the Department of Animal Husbandry, of the University of Alberta, came an inspiration whereby the University was able to get the required animals without paying a cent for them, yet giving their owners a good return. It appears that there are a number of breeders in the province of Alberta who are not in a position to do their own fitting and showing. Consequently their herds suffer from a lack of advertisement. Prof. A. Dowell evolved a plan by which the breeders in this position would get their herds advertised at the exhibitions, and the University Farm the desired class of animals. The plan suggested was that the breeders donate five or six calves of the three leading beef herds, and the University would use them for judging purposes for two seasons, and exhibit them at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago. Practically all of the breeders approached were perfectly willing to assist in carrying out this scheme. The plan was submitted to the Alberta Breeders Association at their annual convention held at Calgary last May, and, receiving the entire approval of the Association, twenty-four breeders offered the best calves of their herds.

Immediate steps were taken to visit the various farms, and after three month.. thirteen calves were selected from the twenty-four herds. Grades were not debarred, but pure breds were preferred.

The big difficulty that Prof. Dowell had in selecting these calves was not getting the owners to consent to part with them, but rather in refusing animals from breeders who offered them. Many of the breeders actually urged the University to send a representative to their farms, and take the best of any of their calves.

What is most outstanding about these calves is their uniformity, quality, and also their age. At the present time most of them are from five to seven months old, and without exception they can all account for a 100 pounds per month. All of the animals are on exhibition at all times in the University stables, and a placard hanging over each stall denotes the breeder, and the breeding, of each animal. The animals are kept in the pink of condition and it is the expression of many of the leading live stock men visiting the stables from time to time that, collectively, they are the finest lot of steers of their age owned by any one concern in Canada today. They represent the very best that there is in Alberta.

The best two or three animals of each breed will be exhibited at the International Stock Show at Chicago next fall by the University. The selections will be made by a committee appointed by each breed Association. All of the steers will be shown individually, and each will stand upon its own merits.

If the steers in this exhibit make a creditable showing in Chicago, it should prove an excellent advertisement for their breeders, as well as for beef producers and farmers generally, not only in Alberta, but throughout Western Canada. On the other hand, it gives to the students of the College of Agriculture, the future breeders of the Province, absolutely the best class of live stock for their judging work.

The live stock breeders who have made it possible for the University to assemble these excellent animals, and from whose farms the selections were made, are as follows: Shorthorns, The Hon. Duncan Marshall, Olds; Geo. E. Lane Company, High River; Two pure bred shorthorn calves were added from the University Farm. Herefords, John Wilson, Innisfail; S. M. of making such final inevstigations as may be required to determine the facts, with a view therafter to the execution by the respective Governments of an arrangement or agreement for the reclamation of the lands on terms and conditions which shall be just and equitable to all concerned. The wheels of state move slowly but an acknowledgement had been received from the U. S. Government with the advice that the matter was being considered by the proper department and in due course a reply would be given. The Dominion Reclamation Service expect a favorable reply, and they were also of the opinion that the problem would be greatly simplified if the flood lands were turned oevr to the Dominion Government for reclamation purposes. The Dominion Government already owned a considerable area of the lands and the fact that the project was an international one and that reclamation work would be largely on navigable waters, were additional reasons.

On the most reasonable basis there was room on the flats when reclaimed for 1000 families. The land had an actual value now of about $30 per acre and reclamation would increase that avlue to $200 per acre. Assuming such a value the area was good for an addition to the Provincial revenue of at least $70,000 per annum in taxes.

In the end public opinion in both countries was the influence which was going to put the project through. Boards of Trade and organizations generally throughout Kootenay and Northern Idaho and endorsed the project and he made a bid for the support of the Cranbrook Board and the Cranbrook people to the proejct which was within their sphere of influence.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

Two very desirable residential properties are advertised in the Herald "Want Ad." column today. Parties in search of modern homes should investigate these offerings.

Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. GOVERNMENT

Then in section 3 of the act the farmer was forced to report a deer killed by him, another annoying restriction. A regular farmer, if he killed a deer, was pretty sure to have gone to a lot of trouble to do it and did not want the additional trouble of having to write and explain. A few settlers, not regular farmers, might once in a while kill a deer that was not doing damag to crops, but even then they were pretty sure to need the meat and it was doing little harm. The fact that they would have to write a letter reporting their action would not debar them from breaking the law. In view of the fact that sportsmen were, to a considerable extent, decpendent upon the farmers for their shooting made it inadvisable to put foolish and needeles restrictions upon him. Rather were the farmers good friends of the game and should be encouraged in their natural desire to see the game protected and their moral support was a most valuable thing.

Then section 6 giving the farmers the right to kill 'members of the deer family" was objected to by Mr. Bowser, who asked was it proposed to grant them the right to shoot the wapiti on Vancouver Island and in the Lillooet section, animals secured by the late government and protected against slaughter to the end that they might increase in their one-time accustomed haunts? He remembered when the present Attorney-Geeneral allowed public-spirited sportsmen of Vancouver, at their own expensee, to ship the herd of wapiti on the Mainland into the Lillooet to save them because he, apparently, objected to buying a little hay to feed them. The wapiti should be excepted from the provision, he claimed.

Secion 8, providing for the elimination of the present seventy-five feet regulation as to notices around a game reserve and extending it to 300 feet, led Mr. Bowser to ask was the change designed to protect Dr. Baker and friends who, he had been informed, had a private preseerve in the Pitt Meadows section. His idea of the Game Act was that it was designed to preserve the rights of the public and not of some particular individual. It had been the boast of the late Government that anyone could enjoy shooting privileges under reasonable restrictions.

Then, too, the amendment prohibiting any person accompanied by a dog from shooting a deer was not necessary, said Mr. Bowser. The old section aimed at preventing the use of dogs trained for running deer, but now a man with a fox terrier, a spaniel or a bird dog could not shoot a deer should he be out after birds and chance upon a deer. The real damage was done by the systematic hounding of deer with dogs trained for the purpose. Such a practice was pretty well stopped under the old administration and could be now if there were proper game patrols. Then the power granted to a game warden to shoot any such dog was a dangerous one, Mr. Bowser argued. Supposing deer were bothering an orchard; was the owner to have his dog shot because it was driving the deer away? Valuable dogs might be killed by some official who possessed little or no discretion.

The requirement that every person finding poison bait used or placed in the haunts of fur-bearing animals should at once notify the game warden or constablee of the fact, was an absurdity, Mr. Bowser said. In the first place, how was the finder to tell whether it was poison or not? Was he to taste it or send it 400 or 500 miles to Victoria to have it analyzed? And yet the finder was liable to a fine if he did not so report. It was a case of forcing the people to do the work which men should be employed to do. The provision that a trapper was liable for poison bait on his line of traps was an outrage, said the Oppoistion Leader, who pointed to the possibility that such bait might be placed by another trapper who would consider it was not safe to have it near his own line. If the other got caught and lost his license so much the better for the first.

Mr. Bowser was proceeding to suggest that such a section gave an opportunity of a trapper, should theree be one disposed to adopt such methods, to put his opposition out of business.

"He might also put poison in his coffee," suggested the Attorney-General, amid laughter.

"What an argument!" retorted Mr. Bowser, who asserted he had been in the House for some seventeen years and he had never seen Ministers of the Crown deport themselves in the manner of those of the present Government. "Laughing and cackling is their chief argument. They might take a lesson in deportment from some other members of the House," he suggested.

"I mereely suggested that if a man would go so far as to put out poison bait to catch his fellow trapper, it might as well be suggested he would put poison in his coffee," replied the Attorney-General.

Mr. Bowser asserted such a thing as a "frame up" was not at all uncommon. He instanced the case in North Vancouver where police officers placed liquor in the cellar of a prohibitionist member of the Police Commissioners and the courts held it was a clear case of frame-up.

"Would you use that as an argument against the Prohibition Act?" queried the Attorney-General.

There were other sections of the bill to which Mr. Bowser took exception. That doing away with the hunting badge and requiring the huntsman "at all times" to carry his license card was a needless amendment, he said. Practical huntsmen knew the advantages of a badge which could be easily displayed, which was easily seen and could not be destroyed by wet. A paper or card license would prove simply a nuisance, liable to be lost, easily defaced and hard to get at when demanded.

The amendment in section 15 restricting shooting privileges to non-residents of the Province who are British subjects residing in the Dominion, to carry fire arms and hunt was an improper one, Mr. Bowser thought. Under the old act, and British subject could secure the privilege for a small fee. But now it was proposed to refuse the same privilege to British subjects from the Old Country or any of the Dominions overseas.

Why should, for instance, Englishmen, who were almost invariably good sportsmen, be prohibited from coming into the Province to shoot—men who should be encouraged to come? On the other hand, Mr. Bowser pointed out, Section 16 provided that upon direction of the Minister in the case of visiting officials from other Provinces, or other special cases, the Provincial Game Warden might issue, without fee, to any person a complimentary license to carry firearms and hunt big game and game birds for a term not exceeding two weeks.

"You don't intend to allow British subjects from outside Canada to come into the Province and enjoy the shooting, but some American friends of Dr. Baker, Mr. Vandervere, perhaps, the gentleman who figured in the plugging scandal, is to be given privileg under that phrase, "or other special cases." What right has the Game Warden, who is the Superintendent of Provincial Police, and who knows little or nothing of the game question, and takes less interest in it, to be permitted to issue complimentary licenses good for two weeks?" asked Mr. Bowser, who approved of the move to place a royalty on furs, but thought the scale of royalty should be set out in the act rather than left to the board to promulgate in regulations. The Legislature should fix the royalties, he argued.

Then, too, the casting upon the fur trader the burden to show that the skins were not caught out of season was wrong, for a trader would be receiving skins from many sections and, expert fur dealers held, it was impossible to tell from a skin whether it was or was not caught out of season.

"Another absurdity, was the way the Opposition Leader dubbed the amendment requiring a guide to prevent any person for whom he is acting as a guide from shooting or killing big game in excess of the legal limit. It was another case of casting the duty of enforcing the law upon private individuals rather than upon the officers of the law. Was it expected the guide was to follow a man around and knock up his rifle or jump on his back if he thought the hunter was about to shoot something he should not? Was it to be supposed any guide would be such a fool as to have a row with his party and throw up his job, probably the only one he had in the year and to secure which he maintained an expensive outfit, just to do the work the Government should do? Then the guide was supposed to report such violations. Was he to leave his party and hike to town to report? Mr. Bowser asked.

Then Mr. Bowser pointed to the section prohibiting a person from buying or selling or keeping upon certain premises, including social clubs, any part of big game or game birds. There were hundreds of good sportsmen who lived at clubs, but under the section they could not have the bird they shot cooked for their own meal. It would prevent every man without his own home, the bachelor, from enjoying the game he shot himself. On the other hand, the section permits the man with a home to enjoy the game. Then, too, there was the permission granted for storing game in cold storage. A fine chance for the "game hog" to go out every day and shoot the limit bag and store it, he suggested. The whole principle of cold storage, in respect of game was a bad one, he claimed.

"I see, too, you are going to have a secretary for the Game Conservation Board. I suppose he will either be a gentleman like my honorable friend's acquaintance Cook, or one who was involved in the plugging scandal or ——"

Attorney-General Farris intervened to declare the Opposition Leader was out of order and Mr. Speaker held that was the case.

"I notice that while you, Mr. Speaker, have improved notably in health, your hearing is not so good on the right side as on the left," said Mr. Bowser, intimating that Mr. Speaker was prone to watch the Opposition the while allowing Government members wide freedom in ignoring the House rules.

"We have the Civil Service Act under which appointments are made--and some pretty poor appointments, too. Now you put a section in this act to give power to the Game Board to name this secretary. If we have the Civil Service Act, and patronage is abolished as you claim, what excuse is there for this section?"

Mr. Speaker: "You are out of order. You have been discussing matters that should be discussed in the committee stage of the bill."

"Mr. Speaker I would think better of you if you would not interfere with me and assume a partisan attitude in defending the Attorney-General. I would have a far greater appreciation of your position if you would show a little more consideration to the Opposition," retorted Mr. Bowser, who claimed that in discussing various sections of the bill he was in order, as it was to the principles therof he was directing attention.

"The chair does not take sides either way," mildly replied Mr. Speaker.

"That is a matter of opinion. I would suggest that if my friends opposite are hurt by my criticisms they should take their medicine and not whine. We on this side have to and we don't continually appeal for protection to the chair to prevent discussion. We have rights here and we propose they shall be respected," declared Mr. Bowser.

"I hope my honorable friend is not directing his remarks to the Chair," suggested Mr. Speaker.

"I am, though Mr. Speaker. The next time I shall also have something to say if the occasion warrants it," retorted Mr. Bowser as he concluded his speech.

Sportsmen will find interesting reading in the report of the debate in the Legislature on the proposal to revise the game regulations of the Province, published in today's issue of the Herald.

"NO WOMAN BUT ME?" "SURE'—BUT HE LIED

Billie Billings' fiance loved her so much that the services of a policeman were required to prevent that untiring but unloved suitor from "cave-manning" her to his abode, in "A Tempermental Wife," starring Caustance Talmadge and which will be seen Friday and Saturday at the Rex. Miss Talmadge plays the role of the very jealous-natured Miss Billings, who determines that her husband must be a man who has never been interested in women and who, after marriage, will be interested in no woman other than herself. She finds such a man in the person of Senator Newton, from Nevada, an unmarried solon, suffering from such ailments as torpid liver, indigestion and flat feet. But they are married; and the senator proves to be a model husband until Billie runs off with a Bulgarian Count. How Billie tries to regain the confidence of her important husband makes a very interesting and pleasing story.

WALLACE REID "THE LOTTERY MAN" QESTIONS ABOUT MARRIAGE

Is marriage a lottery? Is there "one girl in the world for you," whom fate is certain sooner or later to bring into your path? Or is it all chance and propiniquity and, perhaps, a bit of moonlight? Wallace Reid holds to the "chance" idea at the start of his new Paramount-Artcraft picture, "The Lottery Man," which is showing at the Rex theatre Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Moreover, he starts a lottery with himself as the prize, expressing willingness to marry any woman possessing the necessary dollar for a coupon and the winning number. But something happens to make him change his views. She is "the only girl" and causes the most hilarious entanglements in the world. Wanda Hawley is the pretty trouble-maker, and the picture was directed by James Cruze.

BLANCH SWEET IN "A WOMAN OF PLEASURE" AT THE REX

The celebrated drama by James Willard, provides an admirable train of thought with which to arrive at just what there is in the so-caled "Woman of Pleasure," what her weak points are, what she is today in your eyes and what she really is in herself alone tomorrow. You shall like such a story as depicted in this pictorial photo-play coming to the Rex theatre Monday and Tuesday.
