Street Extensions Before Council

Will Lengthen Princess Street and Victoria Avenue Each 900 Feet—Vancouver Street Extension to be Investigated.

Street extensions featured an uneventful November session of Creston village council on Monday night, at which Reeve F. H. Jackson presided, and Councillors A. Comfort and C. Murrell were in attendance.

There was a letter from J. F. Murrell notifying that he had recently purchased two acres of land from the Burn Murdoch estate at the north end of town, which he proposed to subdivide into town lots. The letter informed the council that this two acres was at tne head of both Victoria Avenue and Princess street and that if the town wanted to continue these two streets on to thr north side of the village boundary he was prepared to sell the right of way or make them a trade. After discussing the whole matter thoroughly the council agreed to offer $290 for the necessary 900 feet that will be required to extend each thoroughfare with a width of 60 feet.

The other highway extention is that of Vancouver street through from Barton Avenue to Creston Avenue, about opposite the new hospital. The reeve and Councillor Murrell were authorized to interview the interested property owners in this matter.

There was a etter from the department of education at Victoria stating that Clause 5, Section 3 of the act is still in force, which makes it obligatory upon teachers of elementary schools and boards of trustees to see that proper discipline is observed by pupils as specified in the clause referred to in a letter sent the department by the council at the October meeting. The letter will be referred to the school board.

The council will see what can be done to provide improved highway facilities at the rear of the premises on the south side of Canyon street from the bank corner through to the Imperial Oil Company warehouse. A petition was to hand on this score signed by the firms interested.

If the provincial police, on enquiry, find that admission can be secured to the sanitarinm at Kamloops for the head of a somewhat recently arrived family, the council will donate $25 to assist with the securing his removal to that institution.

No letter has been received as yet from the police in response to the council's October enquiry concerning regulations governing the parking of busses on Canyon street. Accounts passed for payment totalled $430, of which about $115 was for street grading. Chairman Comfort of the roads and streets committee was authorized to secure fifty yards of gravel for highway betterments.

The Ex-High toppled the league-leading Creston Review from their pedestal Friday evening in a rough, hard-checking game. Battling their way to a 5-point lead in the first quarter they managed to hold it throughout the last three, despite the determined efforts of last year's champs. The winners developed their best combination-play to date, an aggressive forward line being supplemented by an air-tight defense. Mary Abbott and Agnes Crane were a large factor in the victory. The Review attack seemed disorganized by the hard checking of their opponents. Final score 14-9. The Teams:

Ex-High—Payne 9, Abbott, Tompkins 2, Speers 1, Crane 2, Lewis. Total 14.

Creston Review—Levirs 5, Lewis, Payne, 3, Palmer, Bourdon 1, Henderson, Jorde. Total 9.

Creston Motors also upset the dope when they took the favourites, the Parmacy. Leading 9-4 at half-time, they increased their lead in the next quarter and then held the druggists in the final stanza without a basket being made. To Kate Payne and Dot Wightman goes the credit for a strong defense, while Liz. Armitage did most of the scoring. Final score, 13 7. The teams:

Creston Motors—M. Armitage 4, McCreath, Avery, E. Armitage 7, Payne, Wightman 2. Total 13.

Pharmacy—Tompkins, O. LaBelle 1, Moore 1, Learmonth, E. LaBelle 2, Y. LaBelle 2, Olivier. Total 7

The second annual meeting of the Kootenay Basketball Association was held at Nelson on November 10th, with Messrs D Corrie and F. Levirs as delegates from Creston. Representatives were present from Kimberley, Fernie, Trail, Nelson and Creston.

It was decided to abide in play-off games by the official basketball rules, rather than to try any of the innvations suggested this year at the oast. Among other matters discussed were the affiliation fees, he system of refereeing to be used, and the necessity for league executives maintaining firm control over the activities of teams.

Officers for 1934-35 were elected as follows: President, F. P. Levirs, Creston; first vice-president, Mr. Hartely, Trail; second vice-president, Mr. Farenholtz, Nelson; secretary-treasurer, D. Corrie, Creston.

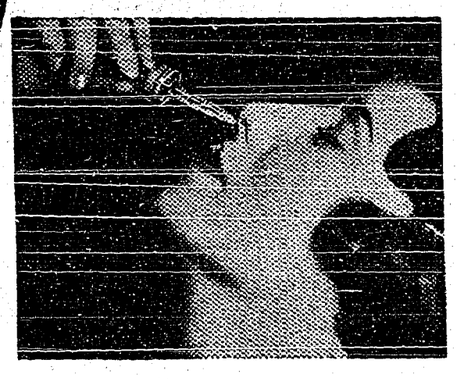
VICKS VA-TRO-NOL for Nose & Throat

...New Formula
BY MAKERS OF VICKS VAPORUB
Remarkably Successful



Quick!—At that first nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—just a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol. It stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds entirely.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages, reduces swollen membranes, clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Better CONTROL of Colds

This new aid in preventing colds, together with Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment for colds, forms the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—to help reduce their number and duration. The Plan is explained in each Vicks package.

Why at 40 You Think You're "GROWING OLD"

It's Frequently Just an "Idea." Not "Old Age." And According to Scientists, May be Something No More Alarming Than A Touch Of Acid Stomach

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches. Stomach upsets. Dizziness. Nausea.

Well, scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is merely an acid condition of the stomach. The thing to do is simply to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed.

Try this. You'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'", or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 18

THE CHRISTIAN AS CHURCH MEMBER

Golden text: "We are members of his body." Ephesians 5:30.

Lessons: Matthew 5:13-16; Acts 2:41-47.

Devotional reading: Ephesians 3: 14-21.

Explanations And Comments

Responsibilities of Christians, Mt. 5:13-16. In our First Quarter we had three lessons from the Sermon on the Mount, the first one being the twelve verses which precede in Matthew's Gospel our text for to-day. They began, you will recall, with the statement that seeing the multitudes, Jesus went up into the mountain; and when he had sat down, his disciples came unto him: and he opened his mouth and taught them, saying. The Beatitudes followed. Verses 13-16, our text to-day, give Jesus' succeeding words which emphasize the influence and responsibility of disciples.

"Ye are the salt of the earth," Jesus declared. Salt was used in sacrifice by Jews, Greeks, and Romans, and was an emblem of purity and of the influence of a holy life upon others. Salt preserves from corruption: Jesus was reminding his disciples by his statement that it was their duty to keep others from moral corruption. There was an old Roman proverb to the effect that "nothing does more good than sunshine and salt."

"There has scarcely been a town in any Christian country since the time of Christ where a century has passed without exhibiting a character of such elevation that his mere presence has shamed the bad and made the good better, and has been felt at times like the presence of God himself."

"But," continued Jesus, "if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted?" They must beware lest they lose their Christian character and become as useless in his Kingdom as salt that has become good for nothing and is cast out upon the ground and trodden under foot of men. This was no mere figure of speech.

Another figure Jesus gave to stress the service that his disciples should render. "Ye are the light of the world." They were conspicuous witnesses for him, comparable to a city which could not be hid, for it was built upon a hill. It has often been suggested that from the Horns of Hattin, where the Sermon on the Mount has been localized, Jesus may have pointed as he spoke to Safed, a conspicuous hilltop city.

Ye are the light of the world from whom you receive your light. And as Phillips Brooks reminds us, the soul must stand in the sunlight to bear witness to the sun.

Hard On The Widows

Sterner regulations covering divorce and marriage have been issued by the Serb-Greek-Oriental Church through its synods. The most stringent of the regulations forbids widows to remarry until 10 years after the husband's death. A widower, on the other hand, must wait only 40 days before remarrying.

Little Journeys In Science

THE SECRET OF THE FIREFLY

(By Gordon H Guest, M.A.)

Light is produced by numerous living creatures, such as the firefly, the glow-worm, and certain varieties of squid and fish. This light is accompanied by very little heat and hence is called cold light. The search for heatless illumination is a fascinating one because cold light is more efficient than electric light. If the scientist can discover completely the secret of the firefly, he will be able to produce light much cheaper than warm light. At the present time the consumer of electricity for the production of light pays not only for the light, but also for the heat which is always given off along with the light.

The bodies of animals have a marvelous mechanism for the changing of foods into heat, and in certain cases into light and electricity. A steady combustion takes place within the body of an animal during its entire lifetime and it possesses efficient heat-regulation so that it is quite independent of cold. The firefly can flash its light, and electric fish can generate sufficient electricity to ring a door-bell.

Three are a great many light-producing organisms. Scientists have found that there are at least 40 orders of animals which contain one or more light-producing forms, and that there are two groups of plants, namely fungi and bacteria, which are luminescent. Fireflies, glow-worms, jellyfish, brittle-stars, molusks, and squid are all light-producing organisms. It has been observed that even the eggs of some animals are luminous. Light-producing animals are never found in fresh water, but they all live in the sea or on land. Most of the luminescent sea animals are found many feet below the surface.

The glow of damp wood (known as fox-fire) is due to fungi, a low order of plants to which mold and mildew belong. The phosphorescence of dead meat or fish is caused by bacteria. It has been only in recent times, since scientists have perfected the microscope, that the phosphorescence of the sea, the shining of damp wood, and that of dead fish and meat have been shown to be due to different forms of living organisms.

Cultivation Of Seaweed

How to scientifically cultivate seaweed may be studied by Philippine Government authorities. Seaweeds, or edible algae, abound in the coastal regions of the archipelago and are used in preparing salads, soup and pickles. The Fish and Game Administration has been directed to collect data regarding the extent of the present seaweed industry.

Line your roasting pan with Canapar Cookery Parchment. The fats and juices won't burn. The meat is more succulent—and you save yourself all the bother of scraping or scouring the pan afterwards.

You can cook three vegetables at once in the same pot—when you place each in a bag of Canapar. No odors escape. All the goodness is sealed in. Use only ONE burner and turn that down low. Save fuel! Boiled or steamed fish is better, and less work, cooked in Canapar.

Just rinse the sheet of Canapar and use it over and over again. It won't absorb odors. Many women use it for a dish cloth. It's just like silk when wet—is very tough and does not shed lint.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward wildwest outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now, is returning to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling Hour-glass cattle and protests against it.

Spike Goddard and Sam Dustin, fearing the old prospector may tell others the things he has seen as to the branding of Carr's cattle, plot to get him to show them the location of the mine and then to kill him.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Kane nodded. His conscience was by no means clear. He knew that he had spoken unguardedly and he remembered how interested Raynor had been.

"Of course Spike and I are goin' to stake you," said Dustin. "But we've got to know more than we know now. A big mine'll cost money. We've got to be able to show the goods to capital. See? When can you take me up there to see the place?"

Kane eyed him but Dustin's face was impassive. After all his demand was only reasonable. No one could expect men to "buy a pig in a poke." He nodded quietly.

"Give me a couple o' days," he said. "Then I'll hike back up there and take you with me. I'll show it to you. Just you and me, hey?"

"That's all. We'll take a pack-pony for grub. I've got some business to 'tend to before I go."

He stopped Spike Goddard midway between the house and the corral and told him his plan.

"You mean you're goin' out into the hills with that old rat by yourself? No one else? Then he don't come back? That's takin' a most God's awful chance," said Spike who knew. But Dustin frowned him down.

"I mean that I'm goin' out into the hills with old Dad Kane to look into a prospect with him. I want Peyotl Gregg to go with us. If any accident should happen to Kane, it will not be my fault, will it? I'll be leavin' with him on Monday. In the meantime, Spike, I've got some of old Joe Carr's paper. He borrowed twelve thousand from old Pegram on a note and the old Shylock was damned eager to sell it to me. We've sure as good as got old Joe Carr's half of the Hour-glass sewed up."

"Yea? Well . . . Gerald Keene owns the other half, don't he?"

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it. You tell Peyotl Gregg to make up a couple o' packs and to be ready to hit the trail first sign o' light Monday mornin'. See?"

Spike glanced at him pityingly.

"Old man Kane's as crazy as a hoot-owl," he said. "All prospectors are crazy. Peyotl Gregg ain't got brains enough to fill a water-bag. An' you're goin' off into the hills with a string o' jackasses an' two crazy men. I'm glad I ain't goin' in Kane's place."

Dustin looked long at him and 'urned away.

"In that case you're sure playin' in luck," he said.

CHAPTER V.

The Hour-glass ranch basked in the red-hot sunlight and the four men playing cards in the strip of shade behind the bunk-house grunted appreciation of the game and of the hot wind that bent the mesquite tops. Lee and Spears and Bains were playing Mississippi River poker with a pack of twenty cards while Fort, the fat old range cook, assisted with advice from the sidelines. At a sudden noise he rose erect and stared down the trail.

"My God, fellers," he said in an awed tone; "look at Montgomery-Ward, will yuh. . . ."

They looked. For a brief moment they were stricken dumb. Then they laughed as a gray pony, hardly visible beneath its load of illy stowed equipment, turned in at the gate and moved slowly toward the corral. His ill-adjusted saddle made the pony seem to move sidewise and the four continued to stare as the rider dismounted and moved stiffly toward them. No word came from the poker players as the man came up to them. In non-committal silence they regarded him.

"Any chance for a job here?" he asked.

Silent Lee jerked a finger at the ranch-house.

"Old man Carr's in there," he said. "He does his own hirin' an' firin'. See him if you want a job."

"Thanks. . . ."

The man strode over to the house and up the wooden steps. They saw him knock at the door; they heard a bull voice shout "come in" and they saw the newcomer drop his hat at the doorsill before entering.

"Southern bred man," quoth Baines; "but, my God, fellers! Have we all got to sleep in the bunk-house with that?"

"Uh-huh! I reckon so. You know how hard up we are fer men. Old man Carr's hirin' anything that wears pants. Look at Lee. . . ."

Lee started as though stung and regarded him passionately.

"Here he comes back," said Spears. "Reckon he's hired?"

As the newcomer strode back to them they examined him more carefully.

Beautifully tooled boots adorned with silver-inlaid Mexican spurs covered his feet. Immaculate white goatskin chaps covered blue denim pants. . . . That was as it should be. . . . A blue silk shirt lay open at the neck where its gap was filled with a scarlet neckerchief. A four-inch alligator's skin belt carried a row of shining brass cartridges and an open holster, in which lay a heavy six-gun with a walnut handle. Lee noted three new notches filed across the wood and he grinned. Fort alone took one look at the man's face that was tanned to the color of a young pecan nut and looked puzzled. That face did not agree with the blatant newness of the equipment. The mouth was wide and mobile, the nose had just a touch of the aquiline; enough to give character to the face. No two men ever quite agreed about the eyes. They were certainly slate-gray with sparks of hazel light in them like cat's-eyes but there was, too, a sort of dancing, playing light that might be deceptive. He swept off a twenty-dollar Stetson and half-nodded.

"My name's Stone, gentlemen," he said quietly.

"Spell it with an S I reckon," said Baines who passed as the bunk-house wit.

"No, sir. . . ." The man's eyes lit a little and he half-grinned. "I've always spelled it with a U. . . . UB, you know! You-be-damned Stone . . . . Mr. Carr says I'm hired."

"All right, Mr. You-be-damned Stone. Pitch your war-bag in the bunk-house. You got another name?"

"Two of 'em. But I reckon Stone's enough. Outside they call me Duro . . . . That means, hard, I hear. Makes my name Hard Stone. . . .

Little Helps For This Week

"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God." Romans 8:28.

Ill that He blesses is our good,
And unblest good is ill;
And all is right that seems most wrong,
If it should be His will.

To those who know themselves all things work together for good. The good which God gives seems very good, and only because they know that they deserve them not. The evils which God allows seem also good because they see in them His loving hand put forth to heal them of what shuts God out from the soul. They love God intensely, in that He is so good to them in each and every way. They love God for what seem evils knowing them to be from His hand real goods. For He by whom "all the hairs of our head are numbered" directs everything which befalls us in life, in perfect wisdom and love to the well-being of our souls.

Sopwith Is Real Sport

Admits Mistakes And Says He May Challenge Again

Mr. Sopwith, on his return to England, informed the press that the reason he had not the America's cup with him was that he had made more mistakes than his opponent. This sportsmanlike statement was accompanied by the remark that he was prepared to challenge again. Perhaps the next time he will be successful. His Endeavour proved herself to be the superior of the Rainbow in many respects, a fact which was admitted by numerous American yachtsmen. In any event, his words are of a nature to remove any ill-feeling that may have grown out of the technical protests. — Montreal Gazette.

Plenty Of Work Ahead

Will Be Over Year Before "Queen Mary" Ready For Service

Although many of the Queen Mary's "black squad" will be thrown idle or diverted to other jobs following upon the vessel's successful launch on September 26 it is estimated that about 3,000 men will still find employment for more than a year ahead.

There is a great amount of work yet to be undertaken in transforming the giant steel hull into a floating luxury hotel, and there will be few idle moments between now and the spring of 1936, when according to schedule, she should enter the North Atlantic service.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, NOV. 16

HOME BREW

The chairman of the village street and roads committee appears to have hit upon a good idea in renting the public works department steam roller to follow up road grading operations that have been undertaken this fall. A high class job has been made of Wilson Avenue and if all the other streets have been dolled up are as satisfactory certainly the money that has been expended has been well spent.

The Review is hopeful that the public works department has not overlooked the bright idea passed along some weeks ago as to a considerable part of the money available for relief work being spent on operating rock crushers and turning out a big supply of roadmaking material for use next year. Even on old road maintenance in these parts many hundreds of yards can be used, and with the necessity of providing highways on the lands now being dyked on the flats there will be a much greater call for crushed rock. And talking about roads on the flats it is to be hoped action will be taken to improve travel conditions on the existing highway to the ferry. If complaints reaching the Review as to the bad state of the road are only half true, action in the direction of improving the ferry road is already overdue.

The board of trade has scored still another win. After more than a year of effort on the part of the board the Canadian Pacific Railway has now introduced electric light into its depot at Creston which improves the appearance of things materially about the station interior, but it is to be hoped the improvement is not to stop at what is at present in evidence. The village has been good enough to place a street lamp that pretty well lights up the north end of the platform but the old-time darkness still obtains at the south end, and it is to be expected the company will loosen up sufficiently to make a real job of illuminating things externally as well as internally. When one considers the thousands of dollars of revenue the company collects at Creston it is hard to understand the shabby lighting system palmed off on such a good customer.

To the resident on the outside looking in, it is not exactly easy to account for some considerable hostility that has developed toward the Natural Products Marketing Act as administered in connection with the disposal of the fruit crop. This radical bit of legislation was enacted at the request of the producers, it was fashioned by a group of orchardists who designed it for the very specia purpose of making more money for the growers. In British Columbia it is being administered by a trio of growers—a trio whose management was approved by Creston orchardists at the same meeting at which they expressed approval of the new marketing plan. And to all this can be added that the board chairman, W. E. Haskins, did no end of good work for the growers in the quite famous cent a pound movement a year ago. Having been brought into being and now handled under 100 per cent. grower say-so it seems to the Review that the growers are not playing ball in refusing to accord the new regulations—and those named to enforce them—every ounce of possible support. If some considerable contempt for the act manifest in Creston is being repeated in the other fruit growing districts hope might as well be abandoned of marketing salvation ever being brought the grower by legislative enactments.

And if it is a bit mysterious as to why the new order of things fails to thoroughly enthuse local growers, still harder is it for the man on the outside to figure out how the truckers can make ends meet—that is, if the grower is selling according to grades and prices fixed by the Tree Fruit Board. With transportation available at the freight and express rates now effective, the truck driver who can successfully meet rail competition must be a full brother to the matrimonial optimist who insists that two can live cheaper than one. In its effort to cope with the trucking situation it is possible the board has overdone the thing, but if undue hardship is being worked it would also look as if some growers are, in part to blame. Locally it is fully recognized that it has been the appearance of the truck in the transport business that has brought down freight rates, and if it has been found necessary to curb the activities of those who operate auto transport, investigation will probably reveal a good and sufficient reason.

And while discussing fruit marketing, the Review would like to concur in the recent move that has relieved W. G. Littlejohn of the responsibility of directly enforcing the details of the new act. As Creston's representative to the B.C. Tree Fruit Board his status is just the same as the local member of the provincial legislature. No one expects the M.P.P. to see that law and order is maintained in the valley; that is the work of the provincial police, and Mr. Littlejohn's position in connection with the fruit marketing act is precisely the same. That he was willing to take on the work of an enforcement officer is striking proof of his personal nigh regard for the act, and if one may judge by the abuse that has been heaped upon him he appears to have made not too bad a job of commanding respect for regulations whose legal standing has been open to question. Had he had direct control right from the start the Review is convinced the situation would have been still better controlled. Under all the circumstances Mr. Littlejohn has been the right man in a tight place.

Armistice Day Exercises Impressive and Well Attended—Two Addresses—Guides and Scouts in Parade.

With simple but impressive exercises and a representative turnout of citizens, Creston very fittingly observed Armistice Day with the usual exercises at the monument commencing at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The number of ex-service men in the parade was somewhat larger than on former occasions and on the march to and from the cenotaph they were accompanied by a group of Boy Scouts in charge of Scoutmaster Ed. Gardiner, and almost the entire membership of the local corps of Girl Guides, in charge of Mrs. A. R. Lynn.

The parade and service was in charge of Sergt. A. W. Sinclair, who was assisted by bugler H. E Cox who sounded cease fire just prior to the two minutes' silence and followed with Last Post as the half-masted colors were hoisted to the masthead The invocation was by Rev. A. O. Thomson, and there were two addresses, by Rev. M C. Percival and Col Mallandaine. The musical numbers included O Canada, one verse of "O God Our Help in Ages Past," and the national anthem. All the local organizations laid wreaths at foot of the pillar.

Rev. M. C. Percival based his remarks on the passage "What mean ye by this service?" and in practical terms pointed out that the Jews had retained their identity as a peop e through 3000 years by the deveiepment of character and remembrance of their ideals. As the horrors of the great war fade into the past, and the rising generation repeat the words of the text, our answer on Remembrance Day is that the same ideals that caused the Canadian army to pour out its blood for God and freedom on Flanders fields are still the ideals of Canadian men and women.

Col. Mallendaine in his accostomed lucid and direct style cited figures to show that Canada from an insignificant permanent militia force in 1914 had sent to active service more than half a million men. This force distinguished itself in the four years of fighting and earned itself a place amongst the great nations of the world. Surely this is a magnificient heritage but is Canada doing its full duty by its heroes? Too often the maimed or burnt out soldier is treated as a criminal or a beggar by the pension authorities, and the spirit of the government promises at the first armis tice has not been carried out In closing the speaker made a timely plea for better consideration of the returned men by citizens in all walks of life.

At the conclusion of the exercises the veterans paraded to the cemetery where the graves of fallen ex-service men were decorated.

In the Junior League openers Friday afternoon, the High School had a bad day, losing all three games. Canyon won both theirs and Erickson girls lost to Creston Public School. The two games bet een the High School and Canyon were played at Canyon.

Death of John E. Stevenson

Creston has lost another of its quite well known citizens in the death of John F. Stevenson, who passed away at Creston Hospital late Monday evening, in his 74th year. Deceased, who operated a fruit tract at the corner of Wilson Avenue and Fifth street—on the lower side of town, had not been in good health for the past few months, but his condition was not thought to be serious until he re-entered the hospital about two weeks ago. Deceased was a native of Hastings, Ontario, where he learned the trade of cheese and buttermaking, and in 1888 came west to operate a cheese factory in Manitoba, near Winnipeg. Since then he travelled considerably on both sides of the line, and for a time held down a homestead at Almeda, Sask., coming to Creston about 1920, when he bought some stump land that he developed into a very fine vegetable-fruit tract. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon from Trinity United Church, with the pastor, Rev. A. Walker, officiating, and many of the friends of deceased were out to pay their last respects. At the grave the burial exercises were in charge of the Orange Order; the chaplain, Hilton Young, reading the service, and six members of the order, W. H. Crawford, D. Learmonth, John Spratt, Matt York A. Halstead, as pallbearers. Deceased was unmarried, and one of a family of eleven, of whom eight are still living. Two brothers, Dr. W. F. Stevenson of Belmont, Manitoba and Thomas Stevenson of Vidora, Sask, were with him when the end came and had charge of funeral arrangements.

The Better Way

A news item containing only a few lines appeared recently in one of Western Canada's daily papers. It was not featured in big type nor with display headings as are murders, accidents, strikes, meeting of protest over relief quotas, etc., but it nevertheless recorded an event of real importance to the community concerned which might well be accepted and acted upon by other communities all over the country.

In order to provide a measure of relief assistance to people in need of it, the local authorities decided that, instead of continuing with a policy of giving direct relief to the exclusion of any and all other forms of assistance, they would provide a measure of work, and the news item to which reference is now made recorded the results, which, briefly, were:

One hundred miles of rural telephone lines badly in need of repair were re-constructed, the old poles cut off and re-set, ten rural systems were reduced to seven, the old wire and insulators thus saved were utilized to repair the lines on the seven systems, between 30 and 40 residents of the community were each given fifteen days work, and the only cash outlay for new materials was $4.25.

Several highly important things were thus accomplished. First and foremost these men instead of being placed deeper in debt, as they would have been if merely handed direct relief, were given remunerative work which enabled them to discharge some of their past indebtedness. Secondly, the rural telephone systems which serve their own community were re-established for the benefit of the people there, and these systems likewise were again placed in a position as feeders to the long distance Government system. Thirdly, all the money expended, except $4.25, went to the people of the district who most badly needed it, and no additional capital debt was placed on the rural telephone company, while the reduction of ten systems to seven should make for efficiency and less cost in operation.

It would appear to be gain to the people all round,—in work provided, in past debts or taxes reduced, in restored and improved telephone service for the community and the probability of larger future revenues to the Government long distance system. It was worthwhile, constructive work without the imposition of any additional burden of debt.

Attention is called to this incident for one reason, and one reason only, and that is, to suggest to readers of this column, and in particular to those occupying some position of authority in their particular community, that they take a look around their own districts and see if there is not some kind of useful community work in which their own people in need of assistance could be employed to their benefit and to the benefit of the community as a whole.

There are other rural telephone lines in Western Canada badly in need of repair and rehabilitation; there are local roads that call for improvement; there are school buildings that require attention and repairs; there are other things, large and small, that have been neglected because of lack of funds. Why not make a survey of the community, and then organize the people to attend to all such matters, giving those in need of assistance an opportunity to work off burdensome arrears of taxes or earn a few dollars, instead of relying solely upon the distribution of direct relief.

By the one method municipalities are placed in a stronger position financially because their tax arrearages are reduced; by the other both municipalities and its residents are placed deeper in debt. Furthermore, by the one method the community as a whole is bettered and improved and its services and institutions efficiently maintained, and the morale of its people strengthened; by the other neither the municipality nor its residents have anything to show for their added liabilities but the fact that they maintained their existence, leaving to the future the ultimate discharge of those liabilities.

What one community has done for its own advancement and the welfare of its people, many other communities can do, if they will. It requires thought, study, planning and organization, and a will to work. Meeting the absolute necessities of people through the distribution of direct relief is, no doubt, an easier way,—for the time being. But sooner or later the burden must be carried, and paid off, and the longer the grappling with it is deferred the larger, heavier, and more difficult the burden becomes. Why not tackle it now in a forward-looking, constructive way?

One method, it may be said in conclusion, inspires new hope and confidence, with one good example encouraging another, whereas the other method leads to deeper discouragement and a further loss of that self-reliance and determination to provide self-help which is essential to the maintenance and further progress of any people and of all communities.

Empire Air Routes

Sir Philip Sassoon Says Flying Time Must Be Speeded Up

Flying times on the long-distance Empire air routes must be progressively and drastically reduced, declared Sir Philip Sassoon, British under-secretary for air, on his return from a tour as far as Singapore, longest air tour ever undertaken by a government official.

The air ministry, the post office and Imperial Airways had reached the conclusion schedules must be speeded up, said Sir Philip. Measures particularly must be taken for development of the air mail service, he added, with extension of night flying. Sir Philip, an aviation enthusiast, said he had often landed at night-time and he considered commercial night-flying was a practical proposition.

Work Among Treaty Indians

Canada Has Faithfully Fulfilled Trust In This Respect

Canada has been faithful to her trust regarding the 112,000 treaty Indians in the country according to Herbert N. Awrey, Department of Indian Affairs, who addressed the Rotary Club in Ottawa.

Mr. Awrey who is known to the Indians of Northern Ontario as "Shunia Ogema," or "Big Money Man", described his adventures as an Indian Commissioner deputed to pay the Indians the money guaranteed to them by treaty with the government.

Pointing out that eleven treaties had been signed with the Indians since Confederation, Mr. Awrey remarked that in 1933, $4,088,000 had been expended on them plus $650,000 interest from funds held in trust for them by the Dominion and $234,000 in annuities.

Tracts of land had been wisely set aside at the outset for the Indians where they could live in communities and now there were 2,200 of these reserves in Canada. Money from land or timber sold was held in trust by Canada and the fund now totalled $13,800,000. Interest from this amount goes to the Indians. Provision for education is also generous.

R. J. C. Stead thanked the speaker and expressed the view that other government employees should outline the work they carry out with such integrity and regard for the public interest.

Girl Proved Innocent

Truth Stranger Than Fiction In Chinese Murder Story

Stranger than fiction is the story concerning the release from prison of a 20-year-old Chinese girl in Tsinanfu who was serving sentence on the charge of murdering her brother-in-law. She was released after four years imprisonment and was asked to re-enact the crime as she had been accused of poisoning her relative, with soup. She did, and it was noticed that several drops of what seemed water dropped into one bowl when the steam reached the ceiling. Investigation revealed a large, venomous snake occupying a swallow's nest, and that venom dripped from his jaws into the soup when the hot steam reached his hiding place. The girl is once more free.

BRITAIN PLANS TO PROVIDE MORE WORK FOR IDLE

London.—The "permanent" and unavoidable surplus of unemployed in Scotland should not be more than 69,000, and in South Wales 39,000, declare the reports of special commissioners who have concluded an investigation for the government of the more seriously depressed areas.

The reports cover Scotland, Durham and the Tyneside, Cumberland, South Wales and Monmouthshire. They recommend improvement of existing industries of those areas; introduction of new industries; transfer of surplus unemployed to other parts; training of juveniles and schemes of land settlement and afforestation.

The stragetic advantages from the defence viewpoint of the West Cumberland and Cardiff areas are cited in connection with proposals for the establishment of government factories there.

Relief schemes generally are discounted as merely palliative, but the reports suggest the government be prepared to hand out subsidies covering the first two years' wages of unemployed absorbed by any private firm that is prepared to create factories.

Preparation of a government scheme for aiding the worst-distressed areas will be spurred by the reports and it is expected that legislation may be introduced early in the new session, opening at the end of the month.

Waiting Request From League

France Is Prepared To Send Troops To Saar

Paris. — Foreign Minister Pierre Laval told Roland Koester, German ambassador to France, that France stands ready to send troops into the Saar Basin if the League of Nations so requests.

He denied, however, that special military movements already have been ordered.

The ambassador replied Germany had no intention whatever of disregarding conditions fixed by treaty in order to assure free voting in the Saar.

Farmers Battle Police

Fourteen Picketers Are In Jail As Result Of Skirmish

Mundare, Alta. — Fourteen men were in jail, one man suffering from a deep gash over an eye, and several others nursing bruises caused by police clubs in the hands of R.C.M.P. officers in a battle to round up grain strike picketers here. The men are held without bail.

The battle started when John Lomash, anti-striker, stopped here with a wagon lot of wheat and got the aid of R.C.M.P. Constable Pearlson. Constable Pearlson drove with him toward an elevator and 20 picketers advanced, upset the wagon and caused Pearlson to land on his head.

Reinforcements from the Vegreville detachment of the R.C.M.P. under Inspector Scott raided the picketers, and with clubs and drawn pistols waded in when the men refused to submit.

Steve Hawko received a gash over the left eye in the battle and several picketers were clubbed over the back. Finally, 14 were herded together and marched to the town cell. Only one R.C.M.P. man was hit by a picketer, it was announced.

Nine of the picketers were taken to the Fort Saskatchewan provincial jail, and a camera held by one of the picketers which recorded phases of the battle was confiscated.

The grain strike is based on protests of certain groups of farmers who are protesting against what they call low grading and certain dockages. Mundare is a settlement of Central Europeans and is about 50 miles east of Edmonton.

Vancouver.—Two of British Columbia's most colorful political personallities, an ageing veteran of civic administration and a more youthful campaigner whose plans for national monetary reform created Dominion-wide interest last spring, will seek the Vancouver mayoralty in the elections of December 12.

G. G. McGeer, K.C., Liberal member of the British Columbia legislature for Vancouver-Burrard, added another item to an ambitious political program when he announced he would oppose Mayor L. D. Taylor's quest for re-election. Mr. McGeer had previously stated he would seek the Liberal nomination in the federal constituency of Vancouver-Burrard for the next elections.

Before "Gerry" McGeer's announcement, Mayor Taylor was the only candidate definitely in the race for the next two-year term of office at the head of the city council.

May Be Important Find

Tar Sand Has Been Struck Near Hudson Bay Junction

Regina.—Samples of tar sand discovered in boring operations in Hudson Bay Junction vicinity have been received by company officials here.

Companies in joint drilling operations there are the Trail Blazer Company and the Senator Oil and Gas Company, of Ottawa. The tar sand was struck at 590 feet and the drill continued another 20 feet still in the tar sand.

Operations were forced to stop owing to the tar sands backing up in the drill tubing. As a result work has ceased until further casings can be obtained. The drill before it hit the tar sands went through from the surface, 40 feet of limestone under the top soil, 40 feet of gypsum streaked with lime, a small sand strata and then the tar sands.

The geology of the under-surface is reported to be favorable for the discovery of oil, according to Mr. Groat. Samples have been brought to Regina and they show a high quality product, but so far any analysis is unofficial. Just as soon as further casings arrive drilling operations will continue.

The prime minister addressed the members of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaux and other tourist publicity experts representing the transportation companies, municipalities and private organizations and members of the senate tourist committee, at a dinner which concluded the nation-wide tourist conference called by the Canadian Travel Bureau.

Death Rate Lower

Has Decreased In Canada During The Period Of Economic Stress

Toronto.—Canada's death-rate has decreased during the past four years of economic stress until now it is the lowest in the history of the country, according to Dr. Grant Fleming, director of the department of public health and preventive medicine at McGill University, Montreal.

Dr. Fleming spoke on "Health and the Depression" at the 10th annual meeting of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council here.

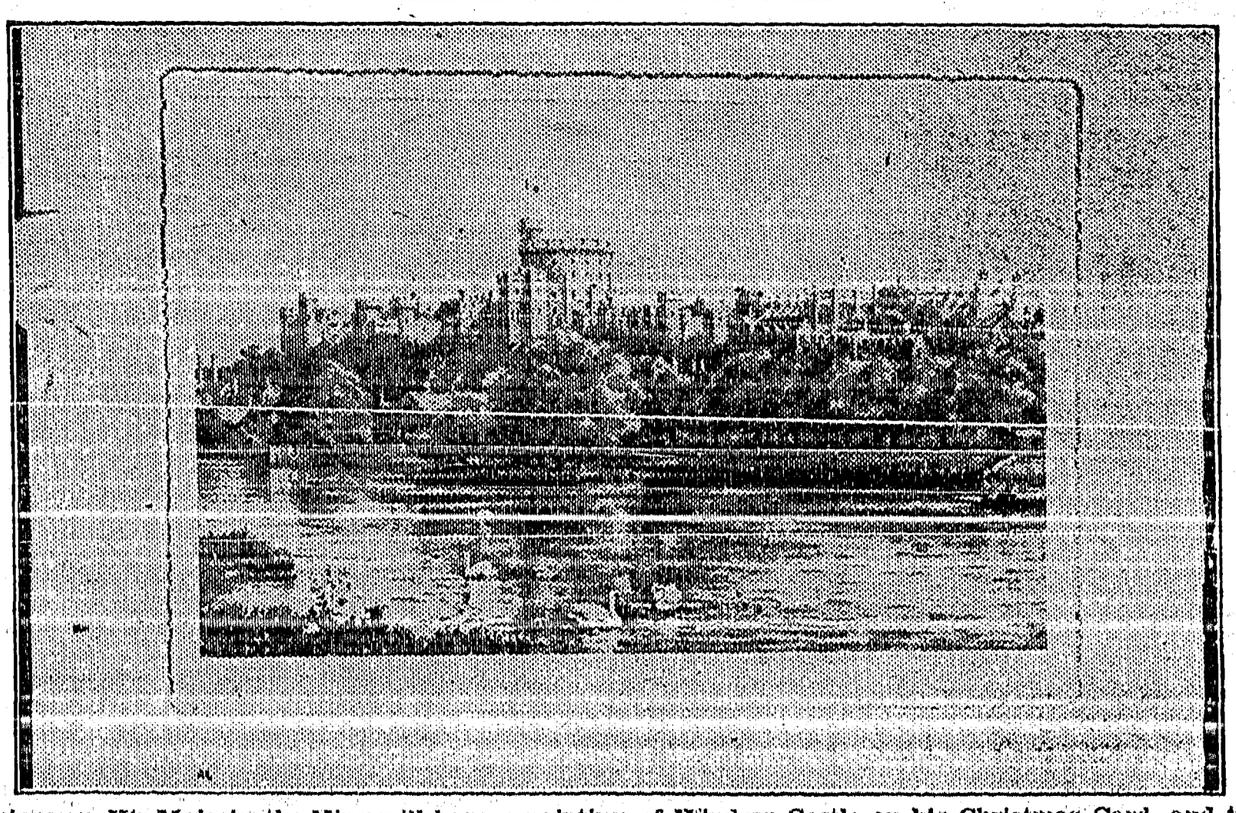
THE KING'S CHRISTMAS CARD



This year, His Majesty the King will have a painting of Windsor Castle on his Christmas Card, and the view will be taken from the river. "Direct thy steps to Windsor's stately courts—explore her halls, her towers, her sacred fane. And treat thine eye with grandeur. Look around and mark the teeming landscape strew'd with gems of architecture; mansions, villas, domes, replete with art and science, taste and beauty."

MOST EMPHATIC ENDORSATION OF NEW DEAL IN U.S.

New York.—Power of the old-line conservative Republicans was broken in the congressional elections and the Democratic party, or the New Dealers, found themselves masters of the senate and house of representatives, rapidly moving toward complete and solid control of governorships and legislatures in 23 states.

In the fifth winter of a depression the voters of the United States declared with no uncertain voice for the policies of federal relief and government control of business and agriculture instituted during the past two years by President Roosevelt.

The Rooseveltian New Deal tide spared neither age nor reputation in its devastating sweep.

The country has given Roosevelt the signal to go ahead with his ramified new deal by sweeping Democrats into federal and state offices in unprecedented numbers. Far from losing ground, as is usual in off-year balloting, the jubilant Democrats invaded such Republican fortresses as Pennsylvania and seemed assured of commanding two-third majorities in both branches of the next congress.

With the overwhelming stamp of approval placed on his experiments, President Roosevelt may be expected to push ahead with two plans close to his heart—the St. Lawrence seaway and increased international trade.

Recently Roosevelt has sworn the it remains to be seen, if the great it remains to be seem, if the great body of Democrats will not prove so unwieldy as to force his hand. Many of them verge close to the outermost border of the left; others swing as decidedly to the right. Only time can tell which carry the weight.

Want Grain Grading Probe

Investigation By Board Of Grain Commissioners Asked By Alberta Liberals

Edmonton. — An investigation by the board of grain commissioners into grain grading, holding of an immediate Alberta general election, and powers for the debt adjustment board of this province to reduce principal and interest were some of the demands made in resolutions passed by the central Alberta Liberal economic conference in sessions here.

"Certain manipulation" at the end of terminals was charged by delegates who urged the grain grading inquiry. They also commented upon what they described as a five-cent spread between track and street prices. It was also claimed that grain similar to what had been graded as No. 2 last year had been graded No. 4 this year in one instance.
