Mrs. C. A. Robinson returned to Trail on Friday after spending about three weeks at the ranch at Canyon.

Miss Tillie Hougland, who returned recently from Kimberley, left a few days ago on a visit at Vancouver.

The Canyon Hall Association are having a dance at the hall tonight.

A. D. Pochin arrived from Nelson at the end of the week, and is spending a few days at the ranch.

Andy Wickholm has just taken a contract with the C.P.R. for a supply of several thousand posts which he will commence taking out at once.

Canyon Mission Band gave a fare well party for Will Kidd on Friday night. Other guests were the pupils of the senior room from whom he received a signet ring, Holly Bond making the presentation and Bessie Hurl reading the address. Lunch was served by the Mission Band and the affair was much enjoyed by all.

J. G. Wearmouth is still enlarging his poultry operations, and has under construction an 18 x 30 foot addition to his poultry house. He specializes in White Leghorns.

Chas. Bliss of Porthill is having his picture shows regularly once a week at the hall, arranging his visits so as not to conflict with local entertainment effort.

Local hunters have been having big luck with the deer during the past few days. Amongst those to bring in a supply of venison are Jeff, Knott, Jock McRobb, Mr. Brett, John Bedry and the Vance boys.

Manford and Arvid Samuelson, Otto Johnson and Leonard Olson have returned to Lumberton, where they have a logging contract with the B.C. Spruce Lumber Company.

1928 Chautauqua Sure to Please

Creston's four-night Chautauqua opens at the Grand Theatre on Thursday, December 6th, and from present appearances will be quite the most popular of the many that have been seen in Creston.

The opening feature will be the three-act comedy, "Let's Go Some where." This is a story of the modern home in which the currents of the old and the new meet in tragic conflict.

The second night will combine a musical programme and lecture. The musical offerings will be of great variety, including whistling numbers. The lecturer is Charles H. Plattenburg, a well known authority on community building whose subject will be "A Modern Tale of Two Cities."

On the third night the audience will have the pleasure of witnessing "Peg O'My Heart," one of the greatest romantic dramas ever producrd.

For the closing night Chautauqua offers "The Massey Five," who bring a program of classical and oldtime violin work together with modern melodies that will please all lovers of music. They present an endless variety of musical selections that are sure to make closing night the most attractive of the four.

Season tickets will be on sale next week at $2 for adults and $1 for children, with tax extra. The guarantors are also planning to have a block of reserved seats that can be bought for the four nights, or for single programmes.

Wyndel

Mrs. John Bathie and Mr. and Mrs. McNish, who have been holidaying at Vancouver, returned home last week

"Slumberland" musical fairy play, in old schoolhouse, Saturday, December 1st, at 8 p.m. sharp. Admission 50 cents. Children 25 cents.

The first snow of the season arrived on Tuesday morning.

Local and Personal

Up to the end of last week 255 cars of apples had been shipped from all points in the Creston Valley. An unofficial estimate has it that about a dozen cars are all there are in storage and that these will all roll before the middle of December.

D. C. Howell of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., arrived on Monday and will be in charge at the Imperial Bank for the next three months. Manager C. W. Allan is leaving next week on an extended visit in Scotland.

It is officially announced that A. E. Davies is the new road foreman for the Creston-Boswell area, succeeding J. D. Spiers at the end of last week. Mr. Davies held the same position from 1924 until early in 1927.

Every editor an expert. The departments of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, are all headed by men of practical experience and nation-wide fame—that's why it's first in public esteem. The subscription price is only $1 a year or three years for $2.

The Anglican Young Peoples' Association were hosts and hostesses to about 50 couples on Wednesday evening last, when they entertained with a dance in the Parish Hall. Guests were provided with fancy hats and balloons and several novelty dances were held. Mrs. Lister's orchestra supplied the music.

Sealed tenders will be received up to Monday, November 26th, 1928, for the frame buildings on Lots 5 and 6, Sirdar Avenue, used as livery barn. Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. For full information apply H. S. McCREATH, Creston.

The Anglican Young People's Association has been reorganized with the following officers: President, Lewis Littlejohn; vice-president, Miss Joan Kemp; secretary, Miss Marjorie Hamilton; treasurer, Miss Mary Bush: executive, Miss Nora Payne, Charlie Botterill, Bob Long jr.

Creston's first westbound shipment of sheep went out on Saturday to the Swift Company at New Westminster. There were about 300 of all ages in the car, and most of them were from the Jas. Davis ranch. Mr. Davis has gone quite extensivelp into sheep at his place in the Lister area.

To still further increase the efficiency of his shop Sam Steenstrup has just installed a Harrison Calorific cutting torch. The machine is operated by acetylene gas and can cut a six-inch steel bar in less than two minutes. It is the only machine of the sort between here and Calgary.

Trinity United Church Ladies' Aid are having their usual Thanksgiving chicken dinner at the church hall next Thursday evening, from six to eight o'clock, with an admission of 50 and 25 cents. Following the dinner there will be a concert in the church to which the admission is 25 and 15 cents.

The I.O.D.E. at Fernie has just made its annual distribution of prizes to public school scholars in that town who took highest standing in Canadian history at the Midsummer exams. It is pleasing to note that Eric, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Bennett, formerly of Creston, captured first prize.

The Ladies' Guild of Christ Church will hold their annual bazaar on Saturday, November 24th. There will be the usual fancywork, plain work, home cooking and candy stalls. Mother Patch Pocket will be on hand as a special attraction for the children. Afternoon tea served. Doors open at 2.30 p.m. Everybody welcome.

Fifteen tables of players were in evidence for the bridge party given by Creston and District Women's Institute in the Parish Hall on Friday night. The high score prizes went to Mrs. Geo. Young and Bob Crawford, and the consolation honors were carried off by Miss Beth Putnam and C. W. Allan. Lunch was served and the evening thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Dr. J. H. Rivers, advance representative of Canadian Chautauqua, met the local committee this week and affected the following organization to put over Chautauqua programs here on December 6, 7, 8, 10. President, Rev. R. E. Cribb; secretary, R. J. Forbes. All guarantors are requested to meet Saturday evening, 24th inst., in the basement of Trinity United Church, at 7.30 sharp.

At a special meeting of the village council on Tuesday night Bert Boffey was awarded the contract of hauling about 500 yards of gravel for surfacing Hillside and Cemetery Roads as well as Vancouver Street, provided he accepts on the terms required by the commissioners. At the same meeting Ardrey Wilson was appointed caretaker of the firehall and overseer of village equipment until the end of the year.

Rev. M. A. Schuster, who has just completed a tour of Alberta and British Columbia, in the interests of the colonization effort of the North German Lloyd, was here at the first of the week and made an inspection of the Lister area as a possible new home for a number of families from Germany that the Lloyd firm are desirous of placing in western Canada. While here he also investigated possibilities of getting a tract on Koytenay Flats from Creston Reclamation Company, Limited. Mr. Schuster strongly favors the Sumas or Kootenay Flats and is particularly taken with the latter due to the lower price of the land.

Lister

H. M. Parker of Yahk, a former principal of Lister school, was a weekend guest of Col. and Mrs. Lister.

The Community Society are having a court whist and bridge drive at the schoolhouse on Saturday night at 8.30. Admission 25 cents.

The gravel supply at the former Head ranch is running low and before the end of the week the supply for this season's roadmaking will be on the haul from the Lyon ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Byrne of Wenatchee, Wash., arrived last week on a visit with the latter's mother, Mrs. A. Stuart Evans.

The whist drive at the Huscroft school last Saturday night was only fairly well attended, with the prizes going to Mr. and Mrs Ed. Smith.

John Finlay, who left here about three weeks ago looking for a winter's job, has pulled up at Silverton, where he is at work in one of the mines.

Rev. R. E. Cribb of Creston was here on Sunday afternoon for a United Church service at 4 o'clock, which was well attended.

Miss Curtis, principal of Lister school has the children hard at practice for a closing concert at Christmas time.

John Bird was a Thursday and Friday visitor at Cranbrook where he attended special sessions of the Ancient Order of Froesters who were favored with a visit from Archie Martin, high court secretary, proceedings winding up with a banquet.

Fred Powers, who has been working at Mullan, Idaho, for some time past, arrived home at the end of the week.

Judging by the noise created by their operations many deer hunters are abroad these days, but venison seems rather scarce as few are having any luck. One afternoon a resident was heard to remark that the countryside sounded like Vimy Ridge on April 9th.

Rev. A. S. Shuster, who is looking after the interests of a German colonization society, completed an inspection of likely districts in Alberta and B.C. with a visit to Lister on Sunday, when he was shown over the area by J. Bird. Mr. Shuster was here at the request of the provincial government and states the intention is to locate many hundreds of families in Western Canada during 1929.

Robots In the Air

New Device May Simplify Duties Of Airplane Pilot

A new gyroscopic device for steering airplanes, successfully demonstrated in Germany, indicates that one of the problems of safer flying which has occupied the attention of aeronautical engineers has been solved. In a test flight from Berlin to Breslau, in which three trans-Atlantic aviators participated, it was only necessary for the pilot to handle the controls during the take-off and landing. Once in the air, the plane was guided by an "iron man" and followed the exact course, set by the inventor, to its destination. Many stabilizing devices have been developed for air-craft, but this appears to mark the most advanced step toward lightening the duties of the pilot and giving him more time for navigational details and other tasks.

Troubled With Painful Eruptions Cuticura Healed

"I was troubled with itchy, sore eruptions on my head for over a year. They were very embarrassing in company as I wanted to be scratching all the time, and if I did scratch them a watery fluid came from them. They were very painful, and my hair came out in patches.

"I tried many remedies during that time but without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some. The irritation stopped after one week's treatment, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss B. Rendall, 309 Kensington St., St. James, Man., Sept. 7, 1927.

THE PRAYERS OF PAUL

Golden Text: "Rejoice always; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks."—1 Thessalonians 5.16-18.

Lesson: Acts 20.36-38; Romans 1. 8-10; Ephesians 1.15-23; 3.14-21; 1 Thessalonians 1.2-5.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 34.1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Paul Prays With the Ephesian Elders, Acts 20.36-38.—Here we return to the scene on the shore of Miletus, our lesson three weeks ago. When Paul ended his talk with the elders who had come from Ephesus to meet him, he knelt on the shore and prayed with them. No doubt Paul was accustomed to deepen and consecrate his friendship with his co-workers by praying with them.

"More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep and goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?
For so the whole round earth is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God."—Tennyson.

Paul's Thanksgiving and Prayer, Ephesians 1.15, 16.—"The Epistles of Paul generally begin with thanksgiving, the subject of which is the work of God already accomplished in those to whom he writes, and this thanksgiving is followed by a prayer in which the apostle asks that the gracious work may go on in their souls. After this, he passes to the subject he proposes to treat. In the Epistle to the Ephesians he commences with thansgiving and prayer; and, if I may so speak, he never gets beyond this, and all that he has to impart to his readers is included in the outpouring of gratitude and desire which runs through the whole of the first three chapters. All that follows from the beginning of Chapter IV. is only the practical application of this true apprehension of the divine work."—F. Godet.

Hence, as I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for the saints, wrote Paul, I mention you in my prayers (Moffatt's translation). Paul was in prison in Rome when he wrote these words, but the prison and its chains could not keep him from caring for his flock by bringing them in prayer to God.

"Paul in his prayers made mention of persons and groups of persons. Are our prayers as personal and specific as they ought to be? The very heathen rebuke us in this matter. On an old scrap of papyrus was written in Egypt, in 172 B.C., a letter from a sister to her brother, saying, "I continue praying to the gods for your welfare, continually making mention of you. When I got your letter, immediately I thanked the gods for your welfare." which of us is not rebuked by the figure of the affectionate heathen girl turning from her letter to a grateful prayer. Perhaps the whole trouble lies in our neglect of thanksgiving." —G. A. Johnston Ross.

Your Asthma, Too. The efficacy of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is not something that is merely to be hoped for; it is to be expected. It seldom fails to bring relief, and in your own individual case it will do the same. So universal has been the success of this far-famed remedy that every one afflicted with this disease owes it to himself to try it.

Chicken Hatcheries For Alberta

Company plans To Establish Hatcheries At Several Points In the Province

A chicken hatchery on a large scale is to be established in Alberta, according to L. M. Gaetz, a member of the firm of Canadian Hatcheries, Limited, of Vancouver, and a recent visitor to Edmonton. He stated that the plan of the company was to establish, eventually, hatcheries at several points in the province, where there is unlimited scope for baby chicks of high quality strain; also for eggs and poultry.

LAXATIVE FOR BABY THAT "STAYS DOWN"

Baby's tiny system rebels against castor oil and strong purgatives; but here's a medicine that just suits him. And it does the work quickly and so gently that Baby doesn't feel it. Fletcher's Castoria is soothing cross, fretful babies and children to sleep and making the feverish, constipated, upset ones well and happy, in millions of homes today. Castoria is purely-vegetable, harmless and endorsed by the medical profession. Avoid imitations. The Chas. H. Fletcher signature marks genuine Castoria.

The remains of a lost civilization are being searched for in Soviet territory. They don't say who lost the civilization, but we can guess.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS IN THE HOME

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she always keeps a supply on hand, for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers and making teething easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Saluste Pelletier, St. Dumas, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They have always given the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For a short interval the noble animal held his majestic pose, then swaying awkwardly, he disappeared from view. At the sharp crack of the rifle the man by Donald's side winced as though the bullet had seared his own flesh. Brushing the sleeve of his coarse mackinaw shirt hastily across his eyes, he muttered a curse, then turned and ran with stumbling steps to his waiting team, mounted the seat and clucked gently to his four horses. The big animals strained against their collars. The huge load moved slowly at first, then gathering momentum, rolled swiftly up the road.

Gillis brought five cayuses to the rear of the station and in a few minutes his practised hands loaded two of them with their luggage.

The small cavalcade moved up the dusty road in a single file, with Douglas in the lead. They overtook and met numbers of freight wagons going in and out, the drivers shouting greetings to each other in foreign tongues. They passed the track-laying machine, which was throwing the heavy rails about as if they were matches in giant hands. Guards stopped them without the zone of flying debris while giant blasts rent the air as if some titanic monster had torn the earth asunder. Huge rocks soared above the trees, then crashed to the ground with sickening thuds, while small pebbles spattered about them.

Through the trees they saw a cloud of steam and smoke. The air was shrill with incessant quick steam-whistles as a huge steam-shovel growled and tore like a ravenous monster at the gravelled hillside. Four men bearing a stretcher came slowly down the trail. A man on horseback, wearing riding breeches and leather leggings, rode in their wake.

"How are you, Doctor Paul?" greeted Douglas. "Is it a serious accident?"

"Tree fell on him. Broke both legs, and he is hurt internally—won't live," answered the doctor in a low voice.

Donald glimpsed the face of the sufferer showing ashen through a stubby beard. Bloody bandages framed two crimson-stained lips, from which issued the gurgling groans of agony. They moved on in silence for a few moments.

"When people ride in trains," observed Gillis, "there ain't one in a thousand that knows what it costs in sufferin' and lives to make it so's they can ride in comfort."

By mid-afternoon they came to the vanguard of the army of workers, the men who were clearing the right-of-way. At intervals they could hear the long-drawn cry of the choppers as the top of a giant tree shivered and then with a great rending crash fell to earth with a resounding roar. Here they came to the end of the new road, and with a feeling of relief they plunged into the cool shadow of the virgin woods. After the great clamour, the forest, through which the trail wandered deviously, seemed steeped in primal calm. The roar of the blasts no longer came in definite crashes, but was smothered by the distance to a muffled rumble.

A rider jogging down the trail reined in his horse and shouted a cheery greeting in true Western style. He was a clean-limbed, alert young man, with a frank smile, and seemed elastic with the sword-keen health of outdoors. He swung easily from the saddled and introduced himself.

"My name is Wilkinson. I am the District Ranger. It's getting a bit dry in spots, so I want you to be careful about your fires."

When Douglas told him the object of their trip to Summit Lake the Ranger smiled apologetically.

"My warning was unnecessary, then. I took you for a party of campers. I'm following the construction work, so will probably see you again before long."

He mounted his cayuse, waved his hand in farewell, then galloped down the trail.

The narrow path wound around the boles of enormous trees towering high above them, some of the tallest being nearly two hundred feet in height. Gillis appraised them with a critical eye. He was thinking of them as logs, calculated in terms of board feet, but over Donald their beauty and nobility cast a strange spell. How long had these monarchs enjoyed the repose so soon to be broken by puny man? Probably some of them were good-sized trees when Columbus discovered America.

The solemnity of the forest was at times broken by the sharp "ka-a-a-a-a-h" of startled deer as they caught their scent, or the sudden hum of wings as big blue-grouse shot up from their path. Once the horses pricked up their ears and snorted in fear as a bear crashed his way through the deep woods.

As daylight abandoned the forest and twilight made eerie shadows on the dusky trail, they swung to an open space on the banks of the roaring Cheakamus River, and made camp for the night.

At daybreak they began the upward climb, and by noon felt the buoyancy of the air in the higher altitude. They crossed rushing streams and skirted the shores of small lakes on whose waters rested flocks of ducks in gregarious raft-like formations. The cayuses with their enormous packs showed signs of fatigue, and Gillis called frequent halts as the trail gradually grew steeper.

"We are nearly there," cried Douglas eagerly.

A few minutes later they topped a heavily-wooded hill and swung in to a narrow path on their right. There was no need to guide the horses, as they knew that here were rest and food for them.

There was a sudden quickening along the line. Donald's horse broke into a run, with Andy's close behind, the latter holding to the rear of his saddle and making a wry face.

"I wish I knew 'ow to keep this 'ere blinkin' saddle from comin' up and hittin' me in the seat," said Andy querulously.

Donald reined in his eager horse as they emerged from the woods and an enchanting scene burst on his view.

"This blinkin' 'orse is. . . ." Andy stopped as his gaze followed Donald's. Both sat spell-bound, and the others joined them quietly.

The panorama spread before them was singularly wild and impressive. Below them stretched a lake of emerald hue, rippled here and there by occasional cat's-paws, but for the most part, placid enough to reflect the shores with mirror-like clearness. To their right lay an open valley, through which ran a crystal clear mountain stream, its banks fringed with willow, alder and blooming labrador tea. A rustic bridge of logs crossed the rushing stream to a cluster of well-built log cabins that were fenced in by a palisade of cedar posts. Inside the enclosure a patch of freshly ploughed soil stood out rich and dark against the carpet of green.

Under the azure sky, dotted with fleecy clouds, a brilliantly white skyline of ice-covered mountains, whose peaks flashed in the setting sun, circled this beautiful mountain valley.

From below were wafted the odours of an awakening earth. The sweet perfume of the newly-opened and sticky buds of the balm-of-gilead, the delicious aroma of the spruce and pine, the heavy, sweet smell of the water plants and the white orchis; all this fragrance was borne on the crisp, sparkling mountain air. Involuntarily the travellers filled their lungs with this life-giving atmosphere.

A beautiful gold-eye drake and his drab-coloured mate swam along the shore in search of a safe place to nest. From the centre of the lake a loon sent out its weird cry, echoing and re-echoing from the wooded hills like wild demoniacal laughter. A quick rush of wings overhead, then a mallard duck struck the water with a loud splash and immediately set up a sustaining quacking until answered by a more gentle note from the reeds, whence emerged a hen-mallard. The two met amid a great bobbing of heads. Gabbling in an undertone they swam down the lake together.

The elusive hooting of male blue-grouse came from the tree tops of the rocky slopes. A willow-grouse moved from a clump of bushes with a haughty step to show her finery by ruffling the feathers of her neck and spreading her fan-like tail. There was a sharp "plop" as a rainbow trout curved gracefully on the surface to leave a widening circle of ripples on the calm water. All through this sun-washed valley was the soft murmur of a land at peace—at peace because unspoiled by man.

Donald drew a long breath.

"Strike me pink!" breathed Andy in an awed tone.

"Holy mackerel! but ain't she a pretty spot?" came excitedly from Gillis.

As they rumbled across the bridge a man came to the door of the log cabin, ran swiftly to the fence and swung the gate open. With a hand held to his brow to shade his eyes from the slanting rays of the setting sun, he peered up at the horsemen. His eyes lighted up as he recognized Douglas.

"Hello, o' timer!" he shouted cheerily.

John Hillier filled the dual role of trapper and road-house keeper. His fantastic dress of deer-skin, the six-shooter slung at his hip, and the big sombrero that topped his shaggy grey head gave him almost a sinister appearance.

Old John's face was savage and wild, but his bristly moustache hid a mouth as tender as a woman's. Great shaggy brows beetling out over his grey mountaineer eyes could not conceal the softness that crept into them so often. His gentle eyes seemed out of place in that homely, battle-scarred face. It was like finding a touch of romance in a treatise on trigonometry.

B.C. Fruit Also Dumped

When it comes to dumping fruit it is now certain that U.S. growers are not the only ones resorting to territorial price reductions to unload their surplus.

About the middle of October we had the Board of Direction issue one of its "Effective immediately, for eastern Canada only" orders, which authorized a reduction of 30 cents a crate on the cheaper grades of McIntosh Reds, and following in the wake of the order our information is that 200 carloads of "Macs" were sold, in Ontario, principally.

Just how the Ontario orchardists liked this "dump" of about 150,000 boxes of fruit on his already crowded market does not matter so much. What really is of serious consequence is the feeling that has been aroused on the prairie through British Columbia selling eastern buyers McIntosh Reds at 30 cents a crate less than quoted purchasers in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Since inaugurating the Board of Direction the B.C. fruit industry has never been quite able to convince prairie interests that the board while helping the seller does not unduly increase prices to the buyer.

After this McIntosh "dump"—which has since been followed by similar action on all grades of Delicious—the B.C. grower must not be surprised if the much desired friendship of prairie interests in the matter of tariff adjustments is slow in materializing.

The Prairie Attitude

Early in December a likely looking delegation of Okanagan fruit men are to visit points in the prairie country conferring wher ever possible with farmers organizations and other likely bodies in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, hoping to be able to convince that sec ion of Canada that more protection for the British Columbia fruit grower in the way of preventing the dump of American fruit can be extended without at all seriously increasing the average price of fruit to the prairie consumer. At this particular time the task is going to be no easy one, as may best be judged from a recent editorial in the Edmonton Bulletin which reads as follows:

"British Columbia fruit growers complain that they are having a dull season; that while crops were generally good the profits are small; and there is a growing demand for the exclusion of United States fruit from the prairie market, based of course on the usual claim that the United States grower is "dumping" his fruit in Canada.

"With grain prices tumbling and no way of stopping the slump, the prairie farmer will feel a good deal of sympathy with the B.C. fruit grower who finds that he has little profit left after paying freight and the expenses of picking and packing. But his sympathy will hardly move him to join in the clamor for the exclusion of United States fruit.

"For one reason; because to exclude United States fruit would mean that the prairie people must go without fruit. To illustrate, last year the prairie market absorbed 400,000 cases of peaches. British Columbia produced 90,000 cases of which half were consumed at home. A prohibitive tariff in that case would have meant no peaches in the prairie cellars last winter. Or in the alternative, it would have meant that prairie consumers must pay high tariff charges on 360,000 cases of United States peaches in order that they might pay higher prices than they did pay for 40,000 cases of British Columbia peaches.

"For a second reason; British Columbia has a lawmade marketing agency which controls fruit prices. There is no limit to the height to which the government combine may raise prices save the limit of what the consumer can be coaxed or coerced into paying. With the United States fruit off the prairie market, nothing is much more certain than that the price of British Columbia fruit would go up until only the wealthy could eat fruit.

"With all sympathy for the B.C. fruitgrower, the people on the prairies can hardly be expected to want to deliver themselves over to the tender mercies of a B.C. fruit monopoly, controlling a supply altogether inadequate to the prairie requirements, and operating under the shelter of a tariff which excluded all competitors from the prairie market."

NEWS OF KOOTENAYS

Fernie curling club had 63 members last winter and finished the season $96 to the good.

There is an epidemic of dog poisoning at Cranbrook this month, according to the Courier.

The Anglican Church at Cranbrook took in $451 at this year's bazaar and sale of work.

Vernon is looking for at least an average winter. A ski club will be organized in that town.

The Herald advises Penticton poultrymen to kill off all the cockerels that are slow at feathering.

By volunteer help the skating rink at Rossland is being repaired. The city provides the building material.

Over 500 people attended the Armistice Thanksgiving service at Kimberley on November 11th.

Kimberley hunters are invading Kootenay Landing at the weekends and having good luck with ducks, especially.

The News boasts of the fact that Vernon is more free of codling moth than most areas in the south Okanagan.

Billiards are unusually popular at Kimberley this season and a five-team billiard league has just been formed.

If the Bulman evaporating plant is to be rebuilt at Vernon it will be necessary for the city to guarantee $50,000 of bonds.

Penticton's burying ground is filled almost to capacity and the cemetery committee are to purchase land for a new one.

Cranbrook has just enrolled S. H. Speers of Enderby in the business circle. He has opened up a gents' furnishing store.

It will cost about $20,000 to utilize either one of two streams that are available to augment Kaslo's domestic water supply.

The Herald claims that close to 1000 people attended the opening ceremonies at the Legion hall at Penticton on Thanksgiving Day

Up to the end of October the records showed that 2000 autos in excess of the 1927 showing had used the Banff Windermere road in 1928.

Kimberley curling club will charge a membership fee of $10 this winter. The club is looking for an ice maker at $150 per month.

Penticton complains that although the 1928 peach crop was double that of 1927, yet the total cash return is actually less than a year ago.

Kaslo council has passed the necessary bylaw compelling fuel dealers to have their coal weighed at a public scale before delivering to customers.

Mrs. Muskovitch has just been awarded $125 damages for injuries received at a wedding celebration at the Muskovitch home earlier in the year at Fernie.

Kelowna cannery is working steady putting up apples at the rate of 20 tons daily. Fifteen machines handling 25 apples per minute are running.

At Fernie the school board has just authorized the purchase of a microscope to enable one of the teachers to use picture post cards in teaching geography.

Fishing is good in the lake at Kaslo. One day last week Frank Chandler landed two 20-pound char at one haul. He was fishing with two lines at the one time.

At the Kimberley community Armistice and thanksgiving service recitations, band selections, vocal solos were mixed in with the prayers, scripture readings and address.

Grand Forks irrigation system will not look at the 25 per cent. reduction offered by the Tolmie government in the loan made the Grand Forks system. A cut about double that amount is wanted.

Canada On Easy Street

Hon. James A. Robb, Dominion Minister of Finance, is credited with the terse comment, "Canada is on easy street," when making announcement last month that even before due date, the Treasury had paid off $22,000,000 of the $53,000,000 short term bonds falling due on October 15, last, and that the balance would be paid on due date out of cash on hand in the Treasury. Even so, said Mr. Robb, there would be "some left over," and he had reason to hope, "if Providence continues kind to us and gives us good crops, and business keeps just as good as it is now, without even getting any better," to take care of further maturities coming along from now till 1933.

In other words, out of current revenues and without having to resort to the issue of refunding loans, Canada was able to pay off $53,000,000 of its public debt this year. And this does not represent the full amount of the debt reduction that has been effected this year, with a consequent lowering of the interest burden.

In the short period of six years the public debt has been reduced to an extent that means a lessening of the burden of interest annually in an amount of almost $15,000,000. And if Mr. Robb's expectations for the next five years are realized an equally large, or even larger, amount will be lopped off by 1933.

The most gratifying feature, however, is that this substantial reduction in debt and in annual interest charges has been achieved, not as a result of increased taxation, but concurrent with a general decrease in taxation, including lowering of tariff schedules, a lighter tax on business profits, reductions in the sales tax, smaller income taxes, reduced postage rates, smaller stamp levies on cheques, and the abolition of stamp duties on receipts. In a word, the removal of restrictions on the business of the country has been helpful in the development of business, and, as a direct cnosequence, larger revenues to the Government.

Another important factor has been the really phenomenal improvement in the management and finances of the Canadian National Railways as a result of which the Dominion Treasury is no longer called upon to pay out huge sums to cover operating deficits and in interest to the public on account of railway bonds and debentures. On the contrary, the C.N.R. now accumulates an ever increasing surplus to apply on its past obligations to the Government.

The year now drawing to a close will, it is confidently expected, disclose a record year in the history of the Canadian National Railways, while President Beatty is authority for the statement that 1928 will, in all probability, prove to be the banner year in the history of the Canadian Pacific.

A perusal of the press of Canada, and particularly of all financial journals in which are recorded the annual reports of the banks, trust, loan, mortgage and insurance companies, and all the large manufacturing and industrial concerns of the Dominion, discloses the fact that one and all are enjoying great prosperity, enormously increased business and substantial profits.

No one circumstance can be credited with the whole responsibility for this magnificent showing, although it is safe to say that the great grain production of the West, coupled with the betterment in the life stock industry, the increase in dairying, and other branches of agricultural expanson, form the background, and is largely responsible for the general speeding up in the whole business of the country, and is occasioning the transfer of other lines of industry from the East to various centres in the West.

The general betterment is the result, as Mr. Robb frankly recognizes, of a beneficient Providence without whose aid all man's efforts must come to naught. It is due, also, to the courage, industry and enterprise of the Canadian people, and to some extent to the steady improvement in world economic conditions, inasmuch as Canada is dependent so largely upon its export trade.

Present conditions are, therefore, good and sound, and future prospects are very bright. It remains for the people of Canada to take full advantage of the situation, not to rest on their oars, but to plan and work in order that our rosy expectations for the coming years may be fully realized. Every reduction in the public debt, every dollar saved in interest charges, every item of taxation lowered or wiped out, means further relief to all people and a further incentive to still larger development and growth. It is, therefore, to everybody's advantage and gain to work together in national co-operation.

Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Fox Ranching Profitable

Prince Edward Island Still Leading District In Canada

Fox ranchers claim that it is a profitable pursuit, and evidently there is something in it when the applications for registration continue to rise rapidly year after year. Applications received at Ottawa for inspection to Oct. 1 this year ran over 56,500, and more have come in since that time. Prince Edward Island is still the great fox-raising Province. Over 23,000 of the 56,500 applications come from the Garden of the Gulf. New Brunswick is second with nearly 9,500, and Ontario third, with 5,210, is the Province which is making the greatest proportionate increase.

WHEN YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND THIN

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Should Be Taken To Enrich the Blood

When girls grow weak, pale and thin, parents should not neglect these symptoms; to do so means danger. The girl in her teens cannot develop into robust womanhood without an abundant supply of rich, red blood in her veins. It is the lack of this that is the great trouble with nine girls out of ten. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have achieved world-wide fame for their remarkable blood-making properties. In these pills there is vigorous health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes for every weak, pale girl. The value of the pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Winnifred Rutty, Barton street west, Hamilton, Ont., who says:—"About two years ago my eldest girl got into very bad health. I took her to a doctor who advised having her tonsils removed, saying this was the seat of the trouble. We had them removed, but it did not help her, and she seemed to have absorbed so much poison from the trouble that she did not pick up at all. She could neither eat nor sleep, and what food she did take did not digest. Then she developed a cough that kept her awake at night, and went down in weight to 95 pounds. A neighbor said to me, 'You have tried so many things why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?' I got some and before she finished the second box she began to show improvement. She continued the use of the pills for some time and is now in the pink of condition, able to work and play, and eat and sleep with all her old-time vigor. These statements can be verified by neighbors who watched her restored from ill health to perfect health."

If your medicine dealer does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Greater Vancouver

The population of Greater Vancouver has increased by more than 109,000 persons, or approximately 46 per cent. in the last four years, according to statistics contained in the local directory. The population is given at 344,160 against 317,185 in 1927, and 255,000 in 1924.

TRAGIC STORY OF SINKING OF LINER VESTRIS

New York.—Two shiploads of survivors of the Lamport and Holt liner "Vestris" arrived here, unfold details of one of the most horrible of marine disasters.

An official inquiry has been ordered, based upon their almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay against Captain William J. Carey and his crew.

Interspersed in narratives of heroism—and of brutality—of narrow escape and long-suffering invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most, if not all, of the 108 now dead would be alive.

Even with the S.O.S. call too long delayed, efficient handling of the Vestris' life-saving equipment by those responsible would have brought most of the 108 out of danger, declared survivors.

Those are charges which United States Attorney Tuttle announced he will begin to investigate.

But Captain Carey probably had his reasons—yet he will never tell them. For forty years he had sailed in Lamport and Holt steamrs. He "came up" through the "fo'castle," as the sailors say, starting as a deck boy, advancing to ordinary seaman, then an able seaman, and finally "winning his ticket" and putting on the gold braid of an officer of the line.

When he took the Vestris out of port he was the ranking master of the Lamport and Holt fleet.

Two days later he stood on the bridge and knew his ship was gone. For the first time in his forty years at sea, Captain Carey gave the order to abandon ship. He never had lost a boat before. He stood at the rail and directed the mates as they had the boats lowered away.

He saw two boats loaded with "women and children first"—the first two boats to be put over-side. He saw them capsized and crumpled in the smoking seas.

He saw Lionel Licorish, a gigantic negro from the Barbados, leap into the water and save 16 people by pulling them to the sides of waiting lifeboats. He saw Archibald Bannister dive oversides and climb into an empty boat which had gone adrift and then coax and drag into it a full load of 22 persons. He heard women scream and saw men quake with fear. He saw human life fade out around him.

And all the time the first ship he had ever lost was settling deeper and deeper into the sea.

At last all were gone. One boat remained by the ship's side, a place in it for Captain Carey and another for Mike O'Laughlin, his chief radio officer.

But those were never taken.

Carey probably was the last man who saw O'Laughlin alive. That gallant officer was last seen still at his key near the master's bridge, and the hiss of the radio's spark was still mingling with the hiss of the seas which lapped upon the settling decks. O'Laughlin probably leaped into the sea and was sucked down by the ship.

But this to Carey—40 years with one line and this his first disatser—was the end.

Bent beneath his tremendous burden, he stood at the rail, the survivors said, as the water reached up for him and his ship.

There were lifebelts and liferings all around him—the things might have saved his life.

But Carey chose the course which many another true deep water sailor had chosen. He leaped into the sea and as the vessel went under water Captain Carey went with it— a dead ship going down with a dead skipper still in command.

What is more satisfying after the bridge game than a cup or two of Red Rose Tea? Millions of Canadians prefer it to any other because of finer flavor, remarkable strength and dustless purity. Put up in aluminum—the only material which completely protects good tea. 17EW

Prospect For Further Reduction In Taxes

Increase In Revenue Makes Cut Next Year Probable

Ottawa.—Prospects for further substantial tax reductions next year are said to be improving with the increasing receipt of revenue collected by the customs department. In September the customs receipts showed an increase of over two million dollars over September, 1927. In October the customs receipts are said to be up by over three and half millions.

The seven months collections from customs are up by over seventeen and a quarter million dollars. Despite tariff reductions in the last budget. A percentage of the increase is due to the bigger percentage of collections of money due and a curbing of customs dodging.

The October excise collections will when published show an increase of over three-quarters of a million over October, 1927.

The excise taxes are down about fifty thousand but this is credited to the substantial reductions in the tax itself which this year amounted to 25 per cent. The net increase for the seven months, however, is nearly three and three quarters millions.

All government departments are said to have been instructed to prepare their estimates carefully, and this is now being done so that with an increase in the revenue even under reduced taxation and a decrease in the expenditure, further tax reductions will be included in the "1929 Budget."

Grain Inquiry Commission

Royal Commission In Saskatchewan To Probe Methods Of Grain Mixing and Grading

Regina.—Definite announcement of the appointment and powers of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission directed by the Saskatchewan Government to investigate the present method and system of grading, mixing, handling and marketing of grain was made by Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture.

The commission consists of Chief Justice J. T. Brown, of the Court of King's Bench, of Saskatchewan; who is named as chairman, John A. Stoneman, Saskatoon, president of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, and Dean W. J. Rutherford, head of the College of Agriculture at the University of Saskatchewan.

Public sittings of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission will open at country points in Saskatchewan during the first week in December and will be continued as long as is necessary to enable farmers to present their cases.

Search For Small Continues

May Use Steam Shovel To Dig For Remains Of Missing Millionaire

Toronto, Ont.—Patrick Sullivan, special agent for the Misses Small, sisters of Ambrose J. Small, missing millionaire, may secure, is is said, a steam shovel outfit from Bolton, Ont., to excavate the Rosedale dump where both Sullivan and Dr. Langsner, criminologist, believe the remains can be found.

Sullivan anticipates that the work of excavating the dump will cost in the neighborhood of $5,600.

Despite previous assurances that he had abandoned his enquiry into the disappearance of Small, Langsner will return to Toronto from Montreal for further work upon the world-famous mystery, it is learned here.

"I have been in touch with Langsner and he tells me that he will be back here at work on the case before the middle of next week, perhaps before," Sullivan said.

Lava Flow Diminishing

Natives In Mount Etna Region Meeting Changed Conditions

Giarre, Sicily.—With the lava flow from Mount Etna diminishinb hourly in intensity, natives of the stricken region are gradually reeorganizing their economic life to meet the new conditions that nature has forced upon them.

There was some talk of tunnelling through the lava which has spread over the road as soon as the molten stream cooled and its flow subsided. This would restore the severed railway to normal service. One of the most radiant over the diminution of the lava flow was Leonardo Patane, whose age is 100, and who is known as the "Granda of Nunziata." This intrepid centenarian steadfastly refused to budge from the threatened village. He proclaimed to all and sundry that he would be the last to leave. Now he is exhibiting a broad and toothless grin, saying "I told you so" in Sicilian dialect to all visitors.

My aunt told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am telling all of my friends how good it is and I will answer all letters I get from women."—MRS. MARY SCHULTIES, Grainland, Sask.

New Zealand Elections

Government Forces Under Premier Coates Receive Setback

Wellington, N.Z.—Prohibition was defeated by a majority of around 100,000 votes and the government forces under J. G. Coates, prime minister, suffered a severe setback in the election.

Prohibition was on the ballot in the form of a referendum as to whether a licensing system should be adopted. The vote was overwhelmingly against continuance of prohibitions.

A new united party under the leadership of Sir Joseph Ward made its debut by gaining seats from Premier Coates' party all over the Dominion.

The final standing by parties was: Government, 28; United party, 26; Labor, 20; Independents, 6.

Most of the Independents are opposed to the government. The premier's party failed to gain a single seat. It held 53 of the 80 seats in the last parliament.

The new united party combines Liberals, Nationalists and others opposed to the reform and Labor parties.

Three ministers lost their seats—A. D. McLeod, minister of lands; O. J. Hawken, minister of agriculture, and J. F. Ralleston, minister of justice.

British Government Testing New Device

Simple Piece Of Machinery Said To Make Small Quantity Of Electricity Unlimited

London, Eng.—The Daily Mail gives prominent display to an article asserting that William Harrison, an elderly resident of St. Helen's, Isle of Wight, has invented a simple piece of machinery by which it is claimed a small quantity of electric power can be converted at trifling cost into relatively unlimited supplies of current at high voltage.

The device has been patented by Harrison and his sponsor, Councillor Thomas Wood, a manufacturer of St. Helen's. The Mail says that the invention has attracted keen attention from the government which is testing it.

It predicts that if the claims, which are contrary to all previous theories, are substantiated all present methods of manufacture and distribution of electricity will become obsolete.

May Move Weather Bureau

Headquarters Of Department Likely To Be at Ottawa

Ottawa.—With the retirement of Sir Frederick Stupart, director of the meteorological service of Canada, on January 1 next, it is expected that the headquarters of his department will be removed from Toronto to Ottawa. The growing service of the bureau to navigation, forest fire fighting, the work done by the Department of Marine and Fisheries and, more recently the aeroplane traffic together with the fact that all the other important branches of the weather service are located here, are given as the reason for the change.

Hudson's Strait Expedition

Quebec.—The Hudson's Strait expedition which started from Halifax, in July 1927, with the object of establishing aids to navigation and securing scientific data on ice, wind and weather conditions in the Strait the year round, has concluded with the return a few days ago of the C.G.S. Montcalm, in command of Captain John Hearn to Quebec.

Regina.—About 100 carloads of dressed poultry are expected to be sold in various parts of Canada and the United States by the central selling agency of the Saskatchewan and Manitoba poultry pools.

PLACE FOR THIS DOMINION IN EMPIRE AFFAIRS

Montreal.—A willingness to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of Imperial development Britain bore alone is the obligation which Canada and other Dominions should be ready to meet for their development in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

This is the message which Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs in the British government, left with the people of Canada before he left Montreal for Quebes, en route to England.

"There is room in our Commonwealth," said Sir Austen, "for the fullest development of Canadian nationality.

"We welcome your co-operation in all fields, and not least in the field of foreign affairs; but now that you claim, and rightly claim, a place in the field of foreign affairs, you must study them. You must take an interest which will make your papers afford you all the information necessary to enable you to form a judgment and you must be willing to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of imperial development we have had to bear alone.

"We shall welcome your assistance and even your criticism. But let it not be criticism only after the event, but a real partnership in forming the decisions."

Wheat Crop Estimated At Half a Billion

Figures Given For Canada's Production This Year

Ottawa.—Canada's wheat crop for 1928 is placed at 500,613,000 bushels in the crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of statistics. Last year's total was 440,024,700 bushels.

The crop of fall wheat this year is given as 18,966,000 bushels as compared with 22,226,000 bushels last year. Spring wheat total for this year is 481,647,000 bushels as against 417,758,000 bushels the year before.
