Thomas Midgley Murder Victim

The entire community was deeply shocked on Friday last when the news spead rapidly that Thomas Midgley had been foully murdered at his ranch on Kootenay Flats, opposite Sirdar, and about 17 miles from Creston.

The crime was discovered on Wednesday afternoon on the return of Mrs. Midgley and her adopted daughter, Miss Eva Midgley, from a visit to Trail, the ladies being accompanied to their home by Ike Lewis, when the late Mr. Midgley failed to meet them at Kootenay Landing.

Not finding deceased at the house the three made a search of the grounds boathouse, and barn, and then returned to the house for a more thorough search, and on entering the bedroom were horrified to find blood stains on the floor near the head of the bed and further examination revealed the fact that the body had been dragged across tht bedroom, livingroom and kitchen, and part way down to the boathouse and then carried to the wharf, where bloodstains were again noticed on the planking.

Satisfied Mr. Midgley had been murdered Mr. Lewis and the ladies seturned to the Lewis home and provincial police McLaren was wired at Creston, on Wednesday evening, "Midgley missing, will meet you across river Thursday morning.' Mr. McLaren immediately notified police headquarters at Nelson and early next morning left for the scene of the tradegy, with Constables Gammon and McKenzie arriving frow Nelson on Thursday noon to assist with the search.

Dragging operations were commenced forthwith but it was not until Friday afternoon that the body was recovered near the boathouse in about 30 feet of water, being weighted down with a pail of sand, scrap iron and a logging chain.

It was immediately brought to Creston and on Saturday a coroner's jury consisting of; M. J. Beninger, C. B. Twigg, Chas. Murrell, G. H. Kelly, W. Morrow and A. N. Couling, with coroner Col. Mallandaine in charge, opened an inquest. After viewing the remains and taking some preliminary evidence the body was released and on Sunday was taken to Nelson for the burial.

The inquest was resumed on Wednesday when several witnesses were examined. Dr. Hendeason gave it as his opinion that the late Mr. Midgley was shot while asleep, and that death was instantaneous. No water was found in the lungs when the body was recovered from the river. After the fatal shooting the body was wrapped in a pair of blankets taken from the bed, the legs tied with wire at the ankle and to this wire was attached the pail, chains, etc. The doctor was of the opinion that death took place three days prior to the finding of the body in the river on the Friday.

The shooting, however, would appear to have taken place on Monday, April 1st Both Mrs. Ike Lewis and Ronald Cam told of taking mail to the Midgley ranch early and late on Tuesday afternoon but they could find no no one at home when the door was rapped on and some shouting done. They, however, observed nothing about the place that would indicate anything so serious had happened.

Mrs. Midgley, Miss Midgley and Ike Lewis gave a complete recital of the events in conection with their visit to the ranch, Miss Midgley dealing with their search of the premises in detail, and stating that there was evidence in the way of muddy tip toe foot prints that would indicate that the murderer had returned to the house after depositing the body in the river and tried to wash up the bloodstains in the kitchen.

John Wymott Williams, who lives within four miles of the Midgley ranch and who is wintering the Midgley herd of cattle, also gave evidence, but not one of the witnesses could shed any light on the mystery, all the evidence indicating that there would be little money in the house, neither had the late Mr. Midgley a bad friend.

At the telegraphed request of the prosecuting attorney and Inspector Dunwoody of the provincial police, who was bresent, the inquest was adjourned for one week.

The late Mr. Midgley was 64 years of age, who had resided on his ranch for the past 12 ar 15 years, and was very highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

The West's Ocean Port

Announcement that the rails of the Hudson Bay Railway had reached Churchill on Good Friday, is the most welcome news the people of Western Canada have received for some time, heralding, as it did, the realization of a long entertained hope. For many years Western Canada agitated for the building of a railway to the Bay. It was vigorous, even violently, opposed by Eatern Canada interests, and, politically speaking, the voice of the West was weak in comparison to that of the East. The West, however, kept up its campaign of education as to the merits and feasibility of the route, and ultimately all political parties in Canada became committed to the project.

Finally, plans for a Hudson Bay Railway assumed definite shape in 1910, when a branch line of the Canadian Northern was completed from Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., to The Pas, Manitoba, and the building of a Government line from The Pas to Hudson Bay was authorized by Parliament. Work commenced the following year with Churchill as the objective.

Following a change of Administration at Ottawa, Churchill was abandoned as the proposed terminal, and Port Nelson chosen. The location of the railroad was accordingly altered. The right-of-way was cleared and graded to Port Nelson and steel laid, before the end of 1916, as far as Kettle Rapids, 332 miles from The Pas.

Owing to the war and consequent lack of men and steel, operations were suspended and for some years only part of the completed railway was kept in repair.

The work thus commenced by the Liberals in 1910 was continued by the Conservatives until war, and the after-war period of financial depression stopped the work. The work, however, had only been carried on in a more or less half-hearted manner with the result that progress was slow, and the country, as a whole, lacked confidence in the undertaking, the East regarding it as a waste of public money and in the nature of a political sop to the West.

With the acceptance by Hon. C. A. Dunning of the portfolio of railways in the Mackenzie King Government, a marked change took place. It is an open secret that Mr. Dunning made the immediate and vigorous construction of the road a condition of his entry into the Government. He frankly told the people of the West that he regarded it as "his Job" to complete the railway in the shortest possible space of time.

The task of reconditioning the roadbed which had fallen into disrepair was begun, and, in view of divergent views which prevailed as to the relative merits of Churchill and Nelson as terminal harbors, Mr. Dunning secured the services of the most eminent British harbor engineer to decide the question. He reported strongly in favor of Churchill, and his report was immediately accepted, and the road again diverted in that direction.

Since then there has been no let-up in construction. It has been pushed forward day and night, in season and out of season, with the gratifying result announced on Good Friday.

In the meantime Mr. Dunning grappled with the problem of building an effective harbor at Churchill and establishing the feasibility of the ocean route through Hudson Straits. Airplane and other surveys, radio, and every modern invention was called into use, and in two years public opinion in the West was not only justified, but the East was largely converted, especially as huge and very valuable mineral discoveries in the northland made accessible by the railway quickly followed.

Although both steel and telegraph have reached Churchill it will require some months yet to fully ballast the road to make it capable of efficiently handling trains. There is an enormous amount of work to be done to build necessary harbor facilities at Churchill. That work is in progress and being prosecuted with the same vigor as characterized the building of the railway in the last three years. Hundreds of carloads of supplies, material and equipment for the harbor are even now distributed along the the railway to be rushed in at once now that the rails have been laid.

It is confidently anticipated that before the end of 1929 freight will be moving steadily from the prairies to the West's own ocean port of Churchill, and Mr. Dunning has already announced that the Crow's Nest Pass schedule of rates on grain will apply to the Hudson Bay route.

The new route will, it is believed, effect a veritable revolution in Western transportation. In preparation for it both of our great railway systems have been building north and south lines within recent years, whereas formerly their policy was to so construct lines as to move everything from east to west and west to east.

With the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway one of Canda's ambitions is being realized. It is in these Western Provinces that depth is to be given to the Dominion, something it has lacked since Confederaion brought a Dominion into existence consisting of a long narrow strip extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific just north of the International boundary line.

FLU Germs Breed In the Throat.

First Appear As A Common Cold, But Gain Tremendous Headway In Six Hours

SOME SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFLUENZA

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline. Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding germs. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

Big Amount For Research

Ontario Government Increasing the Contribution For This Purpose

In conformity with the Ontario Government's offer "dollar for dollar" plan of assistance for industrial research in the province of Ontario, a bill has been introduced in the Legislature increasing the contribution of the provincial government to the Ontario Industrial Research Foundation from $1,000,000, as provided in the 1928 act, to $2,500,000.

Last year legislation was provided for the subscribing by the Ontario government of $1,000,000 if the same amount were subscribed by private interests. So enthusiastic was the response that that amount has been over-subscribed and this amendment provides for its increase to $2,500,000, to be granted on the same terms.

Sore Corns Drop Off If You USE "Putnam's"

When you notice any sign of callous on the feet or toes—that's the time to paint on a few drops of PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. Do this, and you prevent corns. No matter if the corn is hard or soft. Let it be on top or between the toes, Putnam's will remove it without pain. Insist on PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. It does the work—and roots out the corn, quickly and without pain.

The Up-Keep Of Roads

Well-constructed highways are necessary in Canada to meet the insistent demands of traffic, but well-maintained roads are even of more importance in the interest of economy. Consequently, provincial road administrative organs and engineers are devoting a great deal of thought and attention to the care and protection of roads. In 1927, the mileage of roads under maintenance in Canada under the patrol of gang system was 44,416 miles, at a cost of $16,024,617.

FOR MOTHERS OF YOUNG CHIDREN

Mothers are quick to praise anything which brings health and comfort to their little ones—any medicine that will make the baby well and keep him well will always receive hearty recommendation from the mother. That is why Baby's Own Tablets are so popular. Thousands of mothers throughout the country, not only use them for their own little ones but are always delighted to be able to recommend them to other mothers. Thousands of mothers have proved Baby's Own Tablets to be without an equal in relieving their little ones of any of the many minor ailments which arise out of a derangement of the stomach and bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal laxative—easy to take but thorough in action. They banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms and make the teething period easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Foe To Asthma. Give Asthma half a chance and it gains ground rapidly. But give it repeated treatments of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and it will fall back even faster. There is no half way measure about this remedy. It goes right to work and drives asthma out. It reaches the inmost breathing passages and leaves no place for the trouble to lurk. Have it by you for ready use.

Gold Fish Not So Delicate

Only temporary suspension of the activities of a bowl of gold fish resulted when the temperature dropped to 14 degrees above zero and the fish were encased in a solid cake of ice. Pensions Act Modified

Amendments Will Make It Easier For Alberta Cities

Amendments to the Old Age Pensions Act passed before the legislature prorogued, will bring some relief to the cities in connection with the fear that a great number of the old age pensioneers will drift from the rural municipalities into the cities.

An amendment to section four provides that any person having been granted a pension whilst resident in a municipality or an improvement district, shall be deemed to continue to be a resident of that district so long as he continues to reside in the province. This was in line with the suggestion of G. H. Webster, Liberal, Calgary.

In connection with the maintenance clause, an amendment was passed providing that no person will be called upon to supply maintenance if his or her earnings are such that they do not come within the scope of the Income Tax Act.

SUBSIDY SYSTEM FOR PROVINCES IS CONDEMNED

Ottawa.—Manitoba would not have been "one cent better off today" had she retained all her natural resources from the time she was made a province, declared A. R. McMaster, K.C., senior counsel for the Dominion, appearing before the Manitoba natural resources commission and concluding his argument against the claims of the province for compensation from the Federal Government for alienated lands.

"Her natural resources," he said, referring to those which remained unalienated, "are now being returned. Those alienated are more than offset in value by the Dominion's expenditure in their administration since 1871. What Canada has done for Manitoba has more than compensated for any possible loss."

While admitting that to follow the order-in-council of the Federal cabinet, Manitoba must be placed in a position of equality with other provinces and must not be discriminated against, Mr. McMaster urged that "the Dominion must not be placed in a worse position than she would have been in had Manitoba kept her natural resources from the first and administered them herself.

The subsidy system, he declared, was vicious. He urged that the commission be chary in increasing such payments. It was a bad principle for one government to collect taxes and another to use them for revenue. The practice should be kept in as narrow confines as possible, curtailed as far as was practicable, in justice to all.

"Manitoba is not a poor sister." he continued. "If she is treated with lavishness there will be demands for similar treatment from east and west. One claim will lead to another, it may become—and I see a real danger here—an endless ring of demands upon the Federal Government.

One of two things would be the result of such a situation. Either Dominion service would have to be curtailed or else taxation would have to be increased. The one avenue open to the Government of Canada to increase revenue was through its customs duty, he believed. And this would touch the pocket of the consumer.

Mr. Justice Turgeon, chairman of the commission, asked Mr. McMaster what he would suggest in place of subsidies which he was condemning. Mr. McMaster replied that he would rather see a lump sum paid to Manitoba, if compensation were necessary, than have an increase in allowances. But that was his own opinion, he added. He had no instructions to offer any such suggestion.

Mr. Justice Turgeon pointed out that the subsidy system was provided for in the Confederation pact and was meant to take the place of surrendered avenues of revenue through customs duty.

Two Killed In Plane Accident

Pilot and Passenger Lose Lives In Crash At Khedive, Sask.

Khedive, Sask.—To the sudden panic of a passenger, unnerved by the swooping ascent and gyrations of the aeroplane in which he had sought the thrill of a first flight, is attributed the tragic crash here that cost the lives of Flying Instructor Roland Ford, of Regina, and John Sydorchuk, a C.P.R. section foreman.

Trapped in the enclosed cockpit of a dual-control Velie Monocoupe when the right wing of the 'plane, in which the two were flying, fouled a telephone wire, they were plunged downward with terrific force, and death either came instantly from concussion, or else they perished in the flames that immediately enveloped the crumpled machine.

The coroner's jury which investigated the tragedy came to the merciful conclusion that the victims were either dead or stunned and were thus oblivious to suffering. On the other hand, a Regina pilot who visited the scene and examined the wreckage of the plane in the light of all the circumstances, expresses the opinion that the crash was not sufficient of itself to cause the deaths of Ford and his passenger. He believes the two fought vainly to escape from the blazing cabin before sucumbing to the flames.

Scholarships For Research Workers

Students Of Outstanding Merit Have Been Selected For Awards

Ottawa.—Sixty of the applicants for post-graduate scholarships from the national research council of Canada have been granted either fellowships, studentships or bursaries for 1929 according to announcement made by the scholarships committee of the council. Out of the hundred applications before the council those of outstanding merit have been selected for the awards.

The list contains names throughout the breadth of the Dominion and allows for the expenditure of approximately $50,000 for reearch which will be followed at various Canadian universities.

The purpose of the annual endowment of individuals with money grants by the national research council is to assist in building up in Canada a corps of thoroughly trained research workers capable of undertaking and directing scientific research on Canadian industrial problems or in connection with the development of Canada's natural resources.

The scholarships go to university graduates who are following some line of scientific investigation at university laboratories.

Serious Epidemic Of Meningitis In China

Steamship Officials Take Steps To Prevent Spread Of Disease To Other Countries

Shanghai, China.—The meningitis epidemic having reached serious proportions here officials of steamship lines have decided not to accept steerage passengers from Shanghai bound for Canada and the United States. The action was taken in an attempt to prevent the possible spread of disease to these countries.

Owing to lack of statistics accurate information of the number of cases was lacking but it was known to be large. In the Shanghai area authorities estimated, there were one thousand caes being treated. Many deaths have occurred within a radius of one hundred miles of Shanghai.

Making Tour Of Canada

League Of Nations Officer To Help In Membership Drive

Ottawa, Ont.—One of the highest officers of the League of Nations is a visitor in Canada. M. Joseph Avenol, Deputy Secretary General of the League, arrived in Vancouver from the Orient and will tour Canada from the Pacific to the Atlantic, speaking on behalf of world peace and the work accomplihsed by the League.

M. Avenol has been in China conferring with members of the Nationalist Government which has been formally recognized by the League as the de facto administration in that country. It is now a long time since Soviet Russia exercised any influence in the councils of Nationalist China, and M. Avenol expects to report to Geneva a great strengthening of Chinese co-operation with the League as a result of his visit.

The Deputy Secretary-General will be a speaker on behalf of the big coast-to-coast drive for new membership to be launched April 16 by the League of Nations society in Canada. The present membership of the League is 21,000 and it is expected this will be well over 50,000 on the completion of the membership campaign.

Pacific Yields Clue To Aviation Tragedy

Parts Of Airplane Found May Solve Ocean Mystery

San Francisco, Cal.—Parts of an aeroplane, twisted into weird shapes and water soaked, were brought here to determine whether they might aid in the solution of a tragic ocean mystery, either during the Dole flight to Honolulu or army and navy manoeuvres off the coast.

Most of the evidence indicated they were parts of a United States government craft which disappeared in 1922 or 1923 during a flight off the Pacific coast, attendants at Mills Field, the municipal airport, said after a brief examination.

There were also several indications that the hardly distinguishable struts, rudder and frame might be parts of the 'plane in which Captain William P. Erwin, American war ace, and Alvin E. Ichwaldt were carried to their death while 500 miles from here on their way to Honolulu in 1927.

Aviation Course By Mail

Boston.—Learning to fly, by mail, is now possible under a plan being carried out by the Massachusetts State Department of Education. Since the department's recent announcement that it would offer a correspondence course in aeronautics, more than 400 inquiries have been received from 23 states of the union, Canada and Haiti.

Laurentian Spring

The photograph reproduced above is a purely amateur study, but it is a fine illustration of how the great Laurentian district north of Montreal lends itself to pictorial art. It is used by the Tourist Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway to lure the fisherman from his home as, although it does not demonstrate the piscatorial possibilities, it does show something of the great natural beauty which every true angler appreciates equally with opportunity to demonstrate his art.

CANADIANS IN U.S. ARE SUBJECT TO DEPORTATION

Washington.—Thousands of Canadians are certain to be affected by the "absolute deportation" law, which passed near the close of congress. Walter W. Husband, assistant secretary of Labor, one time commissioner-general of immigration, said the illegal residents are divided into three groups.

In the first group are those who entered this country without payment of the head tax of $8 between 1917 when the tax was first imposed, and June, 1921, when the first immigration exclusion act went into effect. This group is the least seriously affected. They cannot be deported as the statute of limitations has outlawed their offences. Steps are being taken in congress to validate their residence.

In the second group are those who entered without paying a head tax between June 3, 1921, and July 1, 1924, when the policy of strict exclusion went into effect. Members of this group also are in no danger of deportation, as the statute of limitations has operated to protect them from prosecution. But unless they take steps at once to validate their residence, they can never safely leave the country, even for a short visit to relatives in Canada. If they cross the international border they can never get back except by complying in all particulars with the present immigration laws.

Men and women who have slipped into the country since July 1, 1921, comprise the third group and are affected by "absolute deportation" law. They are not protected by any statute of limitations, as the 1924 law specially provided that the statute would not apply. The government reserved the right in that law to proceed against illegal residents at any time, even 20 years hence.

Many in this group have obtained employment, have built homes, and to all intents and purposes are permanent residents, but if they are known to the immigration authorities they are in grave danger. If they are arrested, found to have evaded immigration laws, and sentenced to deportation, they can never hope to return to the United States.

Express Confidence In Bracken Government

Labor Resolution Defeated 31 to 19 In Manitoba House

Winnipeg.—By a vote of 31 to 19, confidence in the Bracken Government was expressed by the Manitoba legislature, when a Labor resolution demanding an investigation of the Seven Sisters Falls power agreement by a committee of the House was defeated.

The issue had been regarded by the premier as one of want of confidence. John Queen, Labor leader, was the sponsor of the resolution.

In the division the government had the support of the Liberal members, including H. A. Robson, Liberal leader, Conservative, Independent and Labor members supported the Queen resolution.

When the session opened Premier Bracken and the leaders of the various groups paid tribute to the late Sir Hugh John MacDonald. By a standing vote, a resolution of sympathy was unanimously adopted.

Uruguayan Fliers Safe

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, APR. 12

Shall the Fall Fair Quit?

Creston has a reputation for doing its best when it knows the worst. The "worst" that is facing it in this particular instance is the loss of the annual fall fair.

Already two annual meetings have been held with a view to electing a 1929 board of directors, but in neither case was the attendance equal to 50 per cent. of the number required to make up an executive.

A third and positively the last call is made for another meeting at the town hall on Monday, April 15th, at 8 p.m.

There is no occasion for the Review to point out the benefits accruing from an exhibition. We believe everyone admits that the fair is worth while for several good and sufficient reasons.

Our interest is primarily to point out that on Monday night a final decision will be made regarding the holding of a fair this yerr.

If you want a 1929 exhibition please be on hand, and as nearly on time as posible.

Local and Personal

Creston Motors announce the arrival of a carload of new Chrysler Plymouth in coupes and sedans and invite your inspection. The Plymouth claims to be Canada's lowest priced full size car.

Members of the Stockbreeders' Association are reminded of the annual meeting on Saturday afternoon at the Creston Hotel. Last year's hay cut on the flats is stated to have been in the neighborood of 1600 tons.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found notice from the village that immediate steps will be taken to enforce collection of overdue 1929 dog taxes. A fine of $10 or 30 days in jail is the penalty for non-payment. 'Nuf sed.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden and family have arrived from Kimberley to take up permanent residence in Creston. Mr. Borden has purchased the Eastwood property east of town, near the former Cook ranch-C.P.R. crossing.

The adjourned annual meeting of the fall fair was again favored with a poor attendance on Friday night. A final effort is to be made to keep the exhibition alive at a meeting called for 8 p.m., Monday night at the town hall.

Mrs. Hopwood and daughters, Hazel and Helen, were Spokane visitors a few days last week. Mrs. Hopwood will be remaining there for some time as she is taking a beauty culture course. The two girls arrived back on Sunday.

The Beaver Brotherhood announce an illustrated lecture for Saturday evening, April 20th, in Trinity United Church hall to which an admission of 25 cents to adults, and 10 cents will be charged to children. Full particulars next week.

Jas. Cook is taking a few weeks enforced vacation due to a bad gash he put into his left hand just above the first finger, while cutting kindling on Thursday last. The wound was very painful for a few days but is now mending nicely.

J. P. McDonald, in charge of forestry work in this district, returned Thursday last from his visit to Fernie. He is accompanied by his mother who will reside with him at Creston. They are occupying the Lantz (Trotter) place on Hillside Road.

John Eastwood, who has been a resident of Creston for the past sixteen years, has sold his residential and garden property to Mr. Borden of Kimberley, and on Tuesday last left for his old home in England, where he will reside in future.

W. M. Archibald of Rossland was a Sunday and Monday visitor at Creston He brought along plans and got under way at planting out the grounds aroundd his new residence under construction here. Mrs. Archibald accompanied him.

The horticultural experts at Victoria have just issued the first 1929 crop bulletin and according to it in the Creston district the outlook for the apple crop is favorable. Pears will be heavy and plums light. Little damage occurred in the case of small fruits.

The Creston Post of the Canadian Legion this week purchased the two former Berg lots on Barton Avenue, oppostite the town hall from F. H. Jackson. In the near future the Legion plans to construct a suitable hall for their own use.

Creston was favored with another two-inch snowfall on Monday morning. This appears to have been the tail end of a storm that sweyt southern Alberta on Saturday giving the prairie six inches of snow on the level and some drifts six feet high.

Hiking appears to be a favorite pastime with the local girls' clubs. On Tuesday of last week the Ellen Dow Auxiliary of St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church had a tramp to Wynndel, on which they were they were accompanied by Mrs. McCreath and Miss E. Carrie of Nelson.

From Silverton comes the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Helen Hunter, former primary teacher at Creston school. On April 29th she is to wed Henry Chester of Cranbrook, also well known at Creston where he was assistant C.P.R. agent to A. R. Swanson for a couple of years.

EGGS FOR HATCHING—From Barred Plymouth Rocks, Agassiz Experimental Farm strain. These hens had a flock average of 229 eggs per birb in pullet year. $1.50 per setting of 15 eggs. Also for sale Barred Plymouth Rock cockerel, experimental farm rtrain, $3. Mrs. Carl Wigen, Wynndel.

The Review has it on very high authority that sometime this month an inspector from the B.C. Liquor Control Board will be here to select a building and arrange for opening a government liquor store at Creston. The Legion has been very definitely advised that no more club licenses will be issued.

The members of Creston Masonic Lodge were at home to their wives and lady friends at a court whist in the Masonic Hall on Wednesday night which was a most enjoyable affair throughout. It was in charge of Messrs. W. Fraser, M R. Joyce, L. Littlejohn, with Mrs. McLaren, Mrs. Forbes and Mrs. Joyce in charge of the refreshments. The high score prizes fell to Mrs. Mallandaine and R. J. Long, and consolation honors went to Mrs. Garlick and Sam Steenstrup. Twelve tables were in play.

Miss Alma Johnson left on Tuesday for a short visit with her sister at Killam, Alberta, before proceeding to Springfield, Missouri, where she will be in charge of a rest home for missionaries. Her sale of household effects on Saturday was quite successful. W. J. Truscott wielded the hammer and prices averaged up well. Miss Johnson has rented her home to Mr. Barnes, a recent arrival from Waldo, who is working on the C.P.R. section crew.

FOR SALE—Black currants, strong one year old plants, Boskoop Giant and Black Naples, $2 per dozen. $15 per 100. F. H. Robson, Wynndel.

Idaho Hears of More B.C. Dykes

BONNERS FERRY, April 4—Reports from Porthill are that the work of reclaiming several thousand acres of Kootenay Valley bottom land on the Canadian side of the line will begin this month. Four large dragline dredges are expected to arrive within the next two weeks to begin work of throwing up the dikes and digging the ditches, according to the reports.

While the rumors cannot be confirmed at this time, it is held highly probable the Canadian reclamation work will start this spring. It is known that negotiations were under way last fall for reclaimsng practically all of the valley land north of the line, but winter arrived with the plans lacking the necessary authority from the Canadian government. It is understood that this authority has now been given.

The reclamation work, it is also understood, is linked with the purchase of the Idaho Continental power plant on Boundary creek. The plant is located about 10 miles up the creek from Porthill, and last fall the flumes and dam were repaired and the plant put in first class shape. It is probable that a 16 mile transmission line will be run to Porthill and down into the Canadian districts.

It is said that the Canadian bottom land is now being sold to bona fide farmers on terms of one third down and the balance to be paid on the crop payment plan. None of the land, it is believed, will be sold to investors or speculators, the Canadian government insisting that it be taken over by farmers who will immediatly put it under cultivation.

There are approximately 40,000 acres of river bottom land along the Kootenay on the Canadian side. At present this land is almost worthless, as it is overflowed annually by the flood waters of the Kootenay river, just as the land in Boundary county was overflowed before reclamation was effected on this side of the line. If all of this land can be brought into production and added to the Boundary county reclaimed districts it will mean an almost unbroken stretch of 70,000 to 75,000 acres of highly fertile land stretching between Bonners Ferry and Creston, B.C.

The plans of the Creston people for reclaiming their overflowee land has met with the approval of the drainage commissioners on this side of the line. The two projects are identical in character. With the completion of both it is thought an international effort might be made for the control of the Kootenay river to alleviate the annual flood conditions which in unusually high water work a hardship on the land owners within the reclaimed areas. The draining of the Canadian lands would also draw the people of the entire Kootenay Valley into a closer relationship, with mutual interests and accompanying neighborliness, which would be welcomed on the Idaho side, as it no doubt would be on the Canadian side.

A 15 passeng parlor coach bus is now being operated between Nelson and Kaslo.

The C.P.R. has a crew out trying to locate an easier grade for the line between Castlegar and Trail.

Cranbrook board of trade is dickering for 200 acres of land on St. Joseph's prairie to be used for an airport.

Mild Weather Thaws Igloos

Eskimoes Are Made Homeless By Action Of the Sun

It might be expected that winter would be winter at Tavane Bay. For Tavane Bay is 250 miles north of Fort Churchill, where the Hudson Bay Railway, through Manitoba's rich northern mineral fields, will end. But the North has been much maligned. Even the Eskimoes will tell you that. As usual, this past winter, the Eskimoes of Tavane Bay built their igloos, their little round houses of snow and ice. As usual they were buried now and again by blizzards. But quite out of the usual was the thaw which struck them just after Christmas. The temperature soared to 21 degrees above zero. The walls of the igloos collapsed, and dozens of families were made homeless. Yet the Eskimoes were cheerful. Their attitude was: "Who said our country was frozen up?" And building materials were cheap. As soon as the weather was normal again, they set to work and rebuilt.

Escalloped Macaroni With Cheese

- 1½ cupfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk.
- 3 cupfuls cooked, drained macaroni cut in two-inch lengths.
- 1¼ cupfuls grated American cheese
- 1½ tablespoonfuls flour.
- 1½ tablespoonfuls butter or butter substitute.
- ½ teaspoonful salt, scant.
- ⅛ teaspoonful pepper.
- Few grains paprika.

Make a white sauce of the flour, butter, seasonings and the milk undiluted. Stir in the macaroni. Thoroughly oil a rather shallow baking dish, put in a layer of the macaroni, then one of the cheese, continuing in this way until all is used and making the last layer one of cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until browned, about thirty-five minutes.

The Oil For the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the home.

Was Used To Swear In New Vice-President Of United States

A most unusual Bible was used to swear in the new Vice-President of the United States, Chas. Curtis, of Kansas. It is the property of E. M. Geis, of Salina, Kansas, and is 350 years old. The Bible has been in the Geis family at least five generations. It was printed in Cologne, Germany, in 1564, and was copyrighted by Emperor Ferdinand. It is bound in wild boar skin with wooden inner covers. The book is printed in two tones, red and black, in clear faced type, and contains many woodcut pictures. One scene shows an angel driving the devil out of Paradise. Satan is shown as a large horned dragon. On the frontispiece, which bears the German imperial seal, are depicted a series of scenes, the first being the medieval artist's conception of the fall of man. Eve is shown handing Adam an apple. The second is of an angel driving the two out of the Garden of Eden.

A TIRED FEELING IN SPRINGTIME

Not Sick, But Not Up To the Mark—You Need the Help Of That Sterling Tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—They Give New Vitality.

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks the vital force and energy pure blood alone can give. In a word, while not exactly sick, the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon them. A blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic is needed to give renewed health and energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-round blood builder and nerve tonic but are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood and with this new blood returning strength, cheerfulness and good health quickly follow.

If you are pale, easily tired, or breathless at the least exertion, if your complexion is poor or you are troubled with pimples or eruptions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need to put you right. If you have twinges of rheumatism, are subject to headaches and backaches, if you are irritable and nervous, if your sleep does not refresh you, or your appetite is poor, you need the treatment Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can give—you need the new blood, new strength and new energy this medicine always brings. Mr. A. Marcotte, North Ham, Que., writes: —"I have found great benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began using them I was in a badly run-down condition, and at times felt scarcely able to work. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have changed all this and since taking them I am enjoying the best of health. Every man who feels run-down and easily tired should give this great medicine a fair trial."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a merciful act to rid it of these destructive parasites, especially when it can be done without difficulty.

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

Golden Text: "Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful." 2 Chronicles 30.9

Lesson: 2 Chronicles 30.1-27.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 145. 8-17.

Explanations and Comments

Ritual Was Made For Man and Not Man For Ritual, verses 1-4. Nisan, the first month of the Jewish year, corresponding to our month of April, was the regular time for keeping the Passover. In the reign of Hezekiah, however, the Passover could not be kept at that time, because a sufficient number of the priests had not sanctified themselves (had not undergone certain washings, abstinence and forms), nor had the people assembled at Jerusalem owing to the fact that the temple was not cleansed until the sixteenth day of Nisan, and the fourteenth day was the time for beginning the Passover. Accordingly, the King with the princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, had taken counsel together and had agreed to keep the Passover in the second month. The law (Numbers 9.10, 11) allowed those who for good reasons were prevented from observing the Passover at the regular time to celebrate it in the second month, and this decision seemed right to the king and the whole assembly.

Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown contrasts Hezekiah's broad-minded action with the narrow scruples of those chief priests and Pharisees who were intent upon putting Christ to death upon the cross at another Passover, and who would not venture into Pilate's judgment hall lest their holy feet should suffer defilement and make them unfit to share in the sacred feast. "No one is entitled to speak with greater authoriy on the limitations of ritual than a strong advocate of the sanctity of ritual like the Chronicler; and we may well note, as one of the most conspicuous marks of his inspiration, the sanctified common sense shown by his frank and sympathetic record of irregularities of Hezekiah's Passover. It says much for the healthy tone of the temple community in his day that he does not attempt to reconcile the practice of Hezekiah with the law of Moses by any harmonistic quibbles."—W. H. Bennett.

"Everything regarding form is elastic in the interests of the soul."—W. L. Watkinson.

Donald turned to Wainwright. "Are you going to let her run? Is it safe for her to enter a race with all these men?"

"I couldn't stop her now, and besides," he added with a touch of pride, "she can hold her own with any of them."

The old trapper made his way to Donald's side. His leathery old face, with its multitudinous wrinkles, wore a perturbed expression. "That feller Lafonte is cultus. He's full of dirty tricks; 'taint safe for Connie to ride."

Donald turned anxiously to Wainwright.

Connie's father shook his head. "I am afraid it is too late now." Then in a lower voice he added: "You must know the reason for her entering this race."

Donald looked puzzled for a instant. Suddenly it dawned on him. "The purse?"

Wainwright nodded. "It would break her heart if I forbade her to ride, now that she has gone this far. She must have decided suddenly, as she never mentioned it to me."

The Rennie Company had put up a purse of two hundred and fifty dollars. There was to be a collection taken after the race to add to this purse.

The horses trotted down the course. Connie's was rearing and prancing, and it was with difficulty that she managed to get him to join the others. She leaned forward to whisper words of quieting in this twitching ears. Down the course they came. They were in nice alignment as they passed the judges' stand.

"Go!"

Connie on her spotted cayuse showed a bright splash of colour in the midst of her darker competitors.

Lafonte's dark face lighted with a savage gleam as he swung his horse to the inside or "pole."

Running neck and neck with him was his hated rival, Paul John, leaning low on his horse's neck and shouting unintelligibly in Chinook. Connie was with the stragglers five lengths in the rear. This was new to Pegasus, and he was bewildered by the crowding horses about him. As they turned the corner of the course, Lafonte's horse stumbled, and before he righted Paul John had slipped into the lead. Cursing wildly, Lafonte settled himself in the saddle, his horse's head at the flank of his rival.

Hundreds of times Pegasus had travelled this field with Connie clinging to his back, slowing up for shrubs and trees and making sudden bursts of speed in the open. That had been vastly different to being surrounded by running horses and listening to the wild cries of their riders and the roaring of the excited crowd.

At the moment Lafonte lost the point of vantage to his rival, Connie leaned forward and emitted a peculiar clucking sound at the same time striking her moccasined feet into the horse's sides. Pegasus's ears twitched back at the sound of the voice he loved. "Now I know what you want," he seemed to say, as his beautiful neck stretched out and his hoofs spurned the ground. His graceful body lowered until it appeared to the spectators as though he were just skimming the earth. He moved with a springy stride, the muscles of his sinewy frame working with a sliding movement beneath the glossy skin. Gradually he drew away from the horses travelling with him. Foot by foot he crawled upon the leaders.

The party in the judges' stand came to their feet to shout appproval. The girls were cheering wildly for Connie as she crept nearer the front.

Donald was leaning forward with flushed face, his eyes glued to the spotted cayuse, a deep admiration in his heart for the intrepid little rider.

Little Andy jumped on the rail. "Strike me pink!" he yelled, "look at that 'oss run!" His eyes were bright with excitement. "A 'undred dollars on the spotted 'oss!" he shouted hysterically.

"I'll take you," said a voice.

"'Ere you are, mate; let's make 'er two 'undred. I'm for me 'ome girl. She saved me blinkin' life, God bless 'er!"

As they neared one of the corduroy bridges Connie was neck and neck with Lafonte. The latter glanced up as Pegasus came opposite. The roar of the crowd came dimly to Connie's ears above the swish of air and the rumble of hoofs as they struck the culvert. An evil look crossed the half-breed's face. He swung his horse sharply to the right. Connie's horse floundered. Struggling to right himself, he fell off the bridge and landed with a dull thud on the soft ground below. The forward motion of the cayuse had stopped so suddenly that Connie was thrown like a projectile to a clump of bushes fifteen feet distant.

For an instant the big crowd was paralyzed. Then there went up a great groan of horror. The old trapper came to his feet, his eyes flaming, a hectic flush on his cheeks. Like a flash his hand flew to his six-shooter, and the long barrelled Colt was trained on Lafonte. As he pulled the trigger Douglas struck his arm and the bullet sped harmlessly over the horseman's head.

"My God!"

The words whistled through the set teeth of big Jack Gillis. "Let me get at him!" he cried hoarsely, as, pale of face, he struggled through the crowd. He would have thrown himself in front of the oncoming rider if strong hands had not clutched and held him. Connie's father fell back a step as if struck a sudden blow, his eyes wide and staring. Andy's head fell forward, and he groaned aloud. Janet covered her face with her hands and sat down weakly.

Donald leaned from the judges' stand, his face pale as death. A vision of Connie's broken body came before his eyes. "Oh, God!" he cried aloud in a voice vibrant with pain. He covered his eyes as though in dread of looking at the spot where she had fallen.

A shout came from the crowd—then a cheer that seemed to rock the hills. "Look! look!" they shouted.

Donald's heart was beating tumultuously. Could he believe his eyes? Connie was standing upright. She appeared to sway slightly; then, like a flash, she was at her horse's head.

Trembling and snorting, Pegasus came to his feet. With a bound she was on his back and seized the reins. Pegasus reared like a stag and was off down the course at the tail end of the race.

As Connie passed the judges' stand she was well up with the tail-riders and gaining steadily. Her face was pale and tense. A smear of red showed on her arm, and a little stream of blood trickled down her forehead from the wound invisible in the thickness of her hair.

The crowd became suddenly quiet as Connie thundered past — a silent tribute to her glorious pluck. But as she crept toward her original position they roared their applause. Pegasus was showing an endurance and speed that had never been equalled in all of that district. As they turned to come down the home-stretch Connie was a good fifty yards behind the leaders. Lafonte's wiry cayuse was again in the lead by a few feet.

The shock and strain were beginning to tell on Connie. She leaned forward and in a broken, trembling voice she cried: "Oh, Peggy! Win, Peggy! Please! Please! I don't want to lose! I've got to win! Go! Go!" She was sobbing hysterically now, and her small hands were patting the horse's neck.

Pegasus had never heard that tone of supplication in the sweet voice of his mistress before. Nobly he responded to the call. She felt his body lower under her as he sat himself to the herculean task of overcoming his rivals' enormous lead.

Lafonte was using the whip. Paul John, hanging so persistently to his flank, angered him. They thundered across the corduroy, and at the sound of Pegasus's hoofs on the cedar poles Lafonte turned to glance behind. A look of astonishment crossed his face as he saw the golden-haired rider so close. With a curse he struck his hores a brutal blow that caused the animal to lose its stride momentarily and fall back in line with Paul John.

Slowly, but surely, Connie's spotted cayuse was closing the gap between himself and the two leaders, sweeping along at a terrific pace, his body and limbs moving with the rythmic grace of a thoroughbred. Connie was leaning so low that the heavy white mane of her horse was brushing her face. Her hair was streaming in the wind like fine-spun gold. The party in the judges' stand rushed to the railing, leaned anxiously forward to get a glimpse of the running horses as they turned the coner, and cheered lustily as the three riders thundered over the small bridge and came toward the finishing line. Connie was at Lafonte's flank now.

Pegasus's remarkable speed fanned the spectators' excitement to a fever heat. Andy had done so much shouting that his voice was reduced to a whisper. Standing on the top rail, his arms waving, he was shouting huskily, "Come on, Connie! Come on, Connie!"

Donald's dark eyes were glowing as he watched the slender figure clinging to the flying horse's bare back. "What a pity if she loses." he said under his breath. Leaping to the rail, he joined in the shouts of encouragement to the straining Pegasus.

With one hundred yards to go, Connie uttered one last appeal to her flying steed. Above the drumming of hoofs the spectators heard her voice ring in passionate entreaty. "Now, Peg! Now! Go! Go!"

With nostrils distended, his breath coming in choking gasps, his eyes bulging, and the voice of his adored mistress ringing in his ears, the gallant animal with a burst of speed that made the onlookers marvel, ranged himself alongside his labouring rivals.

Ten yards from the finish—five yards—they were neck and neck. Then, summoning his last ounce of strength, Pegasus leaped forward as though he would annihilate time and distance. With eyes nearly blinded with dirt tears and the roaring air, Connie saw Pegasus hurl himself past the winning post—a winner by half a length!

The ear-splitting roar that went up from the race-mad crowd must have caused the marmots on the slides near the distant glaciers to seek their holes in terror. A flock of mallard ducks, which had floated peacefully near the centre of the placid lake throughout the day's commotion, rose with frightened cries to seek a more secluded spot in which to finish their afternoon's siesta.

The crowd had seemingly gone mad. The atmosphere pulsated with a wild tumult of sound. Hats were thrown in air and throats were strained with shouting.

Donald found himself with his arms about Andy, dancing and cheering in a frenzy of joy.

WINDOLITE The Improved Glass Substitute

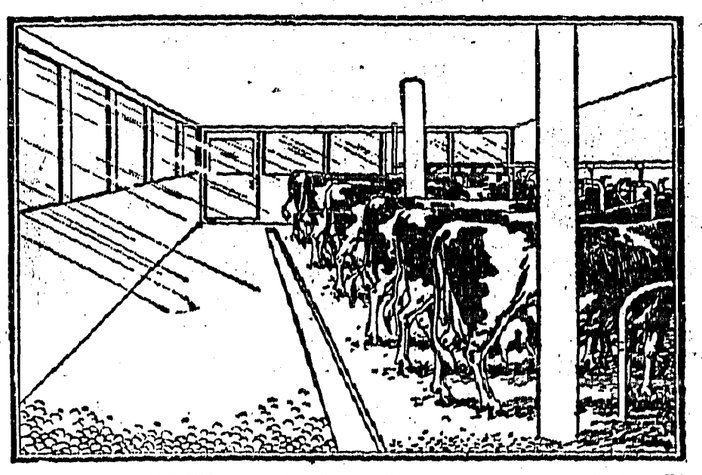
MADE IN ENGLAND



COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light but strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, schools, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out cold—will not crack or chip.—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs., while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness, weighs about 135 to 130 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.
