Tourist Camp is Most Attractive

Happily combining the beauty of nature with just enough of the modern to give the necessary comfort and convenience, Creston View Tourist Camp is now open for the season, and is situated just outside the eastern village limits, with entrance off Canyon Street.

There is four acres of excellent shade, and grounds slope gently to an elevation that gives an excellent view clear across the flats. A cookhouse with a six hole camp stove, tables and all the other necessary kitchen equipment is available, and by the end of the week a store carrying all the necessary tourist camp supplies will be open. Town water is supplied from taps at the cookhouse as well as at the store, the the latter being convenient for car washing. There is also a good supply of portable chairs and tables for the use of campers.

By the middle of June there will be four cabins available. These are 10 x 12 feet, and fitted with two cot beds with springs and mattress, stove, table and chairs. These will be situated on the east side of the grounds, convenient to kitchen and water supply, and built far enough apart to permit ample space for users to park their cars right at the cabins.

With the area available it will be possible to establish locations for those pitching tents so as to afford the maximum of privacy and amidst surroundings that will surely entice the prairie dweller, particularly, to prolong his stay beyond the customary overnight visit.

Benches are being put in and a certain amount of playground equipment including swings, so that nothing will be lacking in appeal to both young and old.

The camp will be in charge of Messrs. Emil Johnson and K. E. Paulson who are personally supervising its layout and construction work and if the same care is shown in the conduct of the camp as is already shown in equipping it, Creston's auto tourist camp should prove one of the most popular in the B.C. interior.

The owners are at once starting to put out advertising cards, telling of the camp, and are putting up signboards and arrows at all likely points of direction. On this work Mr. Johnson was as far as Sandpoint, Idaho, on Wednesday, and every garage, camp and likely place to tack up cards between Creston and Lethbridge, Alberta, will be visited before the middle of June, in the effort to widely advertise the fact that Creston has a tourist camp of the very first rank.

Boxing Bouts Please Crowd

Tuesday night's boxing tournament at the Grand, which was staged by the local K.P. Lodge, furnisaed a great night'f sport for the admirers of the fistic art, and attracted a fairly large crowd, quite a number coming up from Bonners Ferry, where much of the boxing talent also hailed from.

In the flyweight preliminaries Don. Dodson of Bonners fought three rounds with Irwin Ferguson of Creston, and Erwin Paston of Bonners took on Bill Borden of Creston. Both of these were at 70 pounds, and were declared draws. At 85 pounds, Lambert Spencer also got a draw in his tangle with Van Clarke of Bonners Ferry.

Getting away from the youngsters the first bout was between Louis Brockley of Bonners Ferry and Philip Van Slatte of Creston, who weighed in at 120 pounds. In addition to the exciting milling this clash was also the humorous feature of the night. For the first two rounds the honors were even, but in the last two periods Van Slatte weakened, taking the count a couple of times and was finally counted out for good.

In the Kid McKoy vs. "Buster" Ross of Creston, at 145 pounds, Ross got the decision, and from the winner's style he should go a long way. If a good opponent for Ross can be discovered a real fight can be staged with the pair.

Gordon Spiers vs. Ed. Brockley of Bonners Ferry at 145 pounds was the four-round semi final of the evening. Both boys worked hard all the way but the decision was in favor of Spiers.

The main event was between Ted Bush and "Chuck" Mason of Bonners Ferry, at 140 pounds, was about the hardest fight Bush has ever run into. Mason's clinching tactics as well as hitting in the clinches did not appeal to the fans. However after repeated cautioning by the referee, Mason desisted and still had Bush working his hardest to stand the pace. The fourth round was Mason's best showing, and Bush was forced slightly to stall in the fifth to get his wind back. He came back strong in the sixth, and the decision in favor of Bush was popular.

Col. Mallandaine and W. J. Truscott were the judges. R. W. Maxwell and W. Ferguson kept the time, with H. O. Kirk as referee, assisted by Jimmy Lockhead.

Great Soldier's Warning Against War

One of the gravest errors some pacifists make, says Toronto Saturday Night, is to suppose that all soldiers of military ability favor war. This is far from being true and the fact is illustrated by the great British general, Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who has on many occasions raised his voice against war as an institution for the settlement of international disputes.

Quite recently he has spoken again, pointing out that the desire to avoid another war is common to most countries. It would be strange if it were not so, he says, inasmuch as the last war cost the world ten million lives or double the number lost in all wars of the preceding 120 years put together. It also cost not less than $350,000,000,000, a sum that the human mind is hardly competent to conceive, to say nothing of an incalculable total of distress, sorrow and injury. Its failure as a solution of international dispute is demonstrable from the fact that it left behind grievances and resentments that can not be eradicated within the lifetime of most adults now living.

Yet though war is condemned by the intelligent men of all the nations who twenty years ago thought of it lightly as an inevitable future development, not devoid of possible advantages, preparations go on much as they did prior to 1914. Sir William Robertson is genuinely alarmed over the tendency to increasing competition in armaments. All the great powers, with (we are glad to note) the exception of Great Britain, are today spending more money on armed forces than they spent five years ago. Even with a reduced scale of expenditure Great Britain is practically compelled to spend $1,275,000,000, irrespective of the contributions of India and other parts of the Empire, from the sheer necessity of fulfilling her military responsibilities in various parts of the world and protecting sea communications. France and Italy today have approximately as many men under arms as in 1914. Germany is complaining of her defenceless position, and if armaments are piled up by her neighbors, must some day be given permission to arm also. Many smaller nations of Europe are on a military footing and maintaining a threatening attitude toward each other. The United States feels that future security demands a vast additional naval expenditure.

What does all this madness portend? Peace is a game which all must play if it is to be maintained. Let us hope that the craze for armament falls of its own weight before the nations get at each other's throats again. The only vestige of a silver lining lies in the fact that machinery for the isolation and prevention of wars now exists, a factor never previously known in the world's history; but it is plain that the miracle which will convert the human mass from madness to sanity cannot be performed with a single gesture.

Every Day Circus Day

Capital Of Southern Morocco Never Lacks Entertainment

Every day is circus day in Marakesh, the capital of Southern Morocco, in which life goes on much as it did in the days of the Arabian Nights, according to a writer in the "Living Age." The hard-packed, reddish soil is an arena for all the fakirs and entertainers of North Africa, for the city is still the guardian of the old caravan route from the desert's rim to the sea.

Acrobats, snake charmers, story tellers, musicians, and the rest, daily and nightly entertain travellers who are armed with wicked knives, and display every skin shade from the blondness of the Riffian to the ebony of the pure negro.

Charting Swiss Glaciers

Ninety-two of the Swiss glaciers are being measured to see whether they advance or recede. A thin steel wire is fastened across the snout of the glacier attached to a dial on either side. At present fourteen are advancing and seventy-three receding.

Only Two Members Left

Marshal Joffre and Count Togo Wear Order Of Merit

The recent death of Marshal Foch, writes "Looker-On" in the London Daily Chronicle, leaves only one soldier entitled to wear the Order of Merit—his fellow-countryman, Marshal Joffre. The only other foreign member of this Order is the veteran Count Togo of Japan. At present there is no British soldier wearing the Order of Merit. Marshal Foch's death, too, leaves only one foreign Field-Marshal in our army. This is King Albert, of the Belgians, upon whom his Majesty King George conferred this rank eight years ago.

Tea Of Old England

For some reason Great Britain alone among Western nations has popularized the use of tea. It has become the national beverage. The "beer of old England" has given place to the "tea of old England," and in its sentimental associations a "cup of tea" can vie with a "mug of ale." It is not too much to say that the British fought the war on tea.

To Check "FLU," Grippe

Fights the Germs in the Throat Before They Invade Other Parts of the Body.

EFFECTIVE PREVENTIVE MEASURES EXPLAINED

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to garble the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure, to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline. Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding wastes. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

What Britain Has Done

Has Led the World In Disarmament Says Stanley Baldwin

"Years ago seaman sailed from Plymouth to discover a new world. We are going to rediscover a new moral world, which is a very much harder task," said Premier Stanley Baldwin, speaking at Plymouth, during his campaign tour of western England.

"We have led the way to disarmament," the premier said. "The fleet today is half the size it was in 1913. That is practical disarmament and no nation in the world can come any where near that, yet there are Englishmen who say we are lagging behind.

"My hope is that the new government will be able to conclude an agreement with the United States which will lift the whole problem of disarmament to a new plane of action and not talk."

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF EVERY MOTHER

The child in the home is a never-failing source of joy, but, at the same time a never-failing responsibility to the fond mother. It not infrequently happens that minor ailments of the child distress and puzzle her. She does not know just what to do, yet feels them not serious enough to warrant calling in the doctor. At just such times as these it is found that Baby's Own Tablets are the mothers greatest help and friend.

Most childhood ailments arise in the digestive tract—the bowels become clogged and the stomach sour. Baby's Own Tablets are a never-failing relief for this condition. They are a mild but thorough laxative and through their action on the stomach and bowels they banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever; allay the pain accompanying the cutting of teeth and promote health-giving sleep. Concerning them Mrs. W. Jennings, Mackay, Ont., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think so highly of them that I would not be without them. Please send me your little booklet on the care of children."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New De Luxe Train Equipment

Many Western Towns Honored By Lending Appellation To Luxurious Sleeping Cars

With a desire to honour some of the fast growing communities of Western Canada, the Canadian Pacific Railway is naming its new de-luxe train equipment in honor of these communities. Twenty-nine new sleepers of the latest type are thus called, and will be known in railway circles as the "R" series. They include eight sections, two compartments and one drawing-room, and the berth sections are equipped with semi-permanent partitions to insure greater privacy to passengers.

The new sleepers will make a great appeal to ladies, for they have a huge dressing room with plenty of lounge accommodation as well as up-to-date toilet facilities. Brown is the dominant colour scheme, carried out in tapestry, upholstery, berth curtains and carpets. All the latest safety devices are embodied in them, and marvellous ventilation is achieved through a forced process through the roof.

The points honoured in this manner by the Canadian Pacific are: Ravenscrag, Revelstoke, Red Deer, Ruby Creek, Ruskin, Rutherglen, Regina, Renown, Rosetown, Rosser, Rosemere, Riverton, Roblindale, Rathwell, Rocanville, Rapid City, Rosenfeld, Rosemary, Redcliff, Raymond, Romford, Reston, Regent, Renfrew, Redvers, Richford, Rossport, Renniel, Rossland.

This new series will be moved on that train over Western Canadian Pacific lines, as part of a million dollar equipment which makes up each No. 7 and 8.

Harvest Kelp From Sea Floor

Weed Is Being Tested For Value As Cattle Fodder

Seaweed is now believed to be an extremely valuable food for cattle and other live stock, and now a Los Angeles inventor comes forward with a machine for gathering it from the bottom of the sea. His machine, which was recently demonstrated in California, is mounted on a scow. An endless belt of spiked crosspieces runs from the surface of the scow to the harbor bottom, where blades tear off the kelp. The weeds catch upon the moving crosspieces and are raised to the scow, where they are piled up like hay to dry.

The kelp is then ground and fed to farm animals with their hay and grain. It may also be used as a fertilizer, and from it can be extracted large quantities of iodine and potash. Tests are now being made to determine its relative value as cattle fodder.

CANADA WILL NOT BAN LIQUOR CLEARANCES

Ottawa.—The government of Canada is not disposed at present to accede to the request of the United States that clearances be prohibited on liquor shipments, destined for that country. The door however, is not closed and the Dominion government is ready to give consideration to such representations as it may receive on this important matter.

The attitude of the government on the question of refusing clearance to liquor cargoes was indicated in the House by Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue. Mr. Euler spoke in reply to speeches by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre, and others in the Progressive and U.F.A. ranks, in which the statement was made that Canada was guilty of an unfriendly act in not acceding to the United States request. Demand for government action on the matter has been indicated by the presentation of numerous petitions during the session requesting the refusal of clearance to liquor shipments.

The minister pointed out the difficulties which inevitably arose when a country law was located next door to one which permitted the manufacture and sale of liquor.

He expressed doubt as to whether refusal of clearances would result in stopping the flow of liquor into the United States. He pointed out that if Canada was to amend the Customs law so as to refuse clearances to liquor shipments, this country would require a new and larger preventive force in order to enforce the law.

Farmers are becoming much concerned over the delay to seeding caused by heavy rains and continued cool weather. The Niagara fruit district has not reported any appreciable damage to trees and vines, but practically all farm crops are delayed.

Clergy and Tobacco

Heated Discussion Takes Place At Meeting In Toronto

Toronto.—Stormy scenes developed here at a meeting of the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church over the adoption of a report by a special meeting on the use of tobacco by ministers.

Heated discussion took place regarding a section of the report which read: "That the Christian character of those who regard the use of tobacco as an inocent gratification should not on that account be impugned."

Dr. J. Kerr denounced the use of tobacco and objected to the adoption of the committee's report.

"I cannot accept Dr. Bland's report," said Dr. Kerr, "for it implies that the use of tobacco is an innocent gratification. I do not believe it is. I think it is a wasteful habit."

He presented a resolution, later adopted, which deplored the effect of tobacco on the youth of the country.

Submarine Disasters No Longer Possible

Naval Officers Consider Demonstration Of Rescue Great Success

Colon, Canal Zone.—For the first time in the history of the United States a navy submarine and its crew were raised from the bottom of the sea in Panama Bay. On May 17, the S-11 went down to a depth of 87 feet, was found by the submarine S-12, and was raised by the rescue ship Mallard a few hours after going to the bottom.

Naval officers here were so impressed with the demonstration that they said no disaster such as followed the sinking of the S-51 or the S-4 was now possible.

The S-12 caught the signals just one hour after the first call from the S-11. Then the rescue ship Mallard started for the spot and sighted air bubbles at 10.30 a.m. Twenty-five minutes later a grapnel had been hooked on to the sunken submarine.

Resigns Chancellorship

Sir Robert Borden Has Tendered Resignation As Head Of Queens University

Kingston, Ont. — Announcement was made at Queens University that the chancellor, Sir Robert L. Borden, has tendered his resignation.

Canada's war-time prime minister was elected to the chancellorship five years ago to succeed E. W. Beatty, K.C., who was chosen as chancellor of McGill University, Montreal. Sir Robert presided at the convocation of arts and sciences graduates at the university nearly two weeks ago.

The name of James Richardson, of Winnipeg, is being prominently mentioned as a successor to Sir Robert, although nothing has been said at the university. Sir Robert's resignation will be considered by the senate and the trustees of the university.

Joint Radio Control

Plan Is Endorsed By the Royal Society Of England

Ottawa.—Joint control of radio broadcasting by the federal and provincial governments, with special preference given to educational programs, public information and entertainment, was endorsed as the best policy for the Dominion at a session of the Royal Society of Canada.

Another feature of the day's proceedings was the defeat of a recommendation submitted by a sub-committee which would have limited the printing of scientific papers in the official journal of the society.

The decision concerning radio control, made in response to a request by the Roayl Commission on radio for the society's opinion, was reached largely as the result of a report made by Dr. H. M. Tory, head of the Federal Research Council.

Mgr. Camille Roy, rector of Laval University, delivered his presidential address, in which he cited the society as a model for development of co-operation among all the races and intellectual spheres from coast to coast in the Dominion.

Following his address, Mgr. Roy presented the Sir Joseph Flavelle medal for outstanding work in science to Dr. A. H. R. Buller, University of Manitoba, and announced that the J. B. Tyrell medal for outstanding work in connection with the history of Canada had been awarded to Prof. George M. Wrong, University of Toronto. Mgr. Roy himself was made the recipient of the Lorne Pierce medal for excellence in pure literature, especially French-Canadian literature.

A Day Of Thanksgiving

June 16 Is Unofficially Announced As Date Of Thanksgiving For Recovery Of King

London, England.—It is understood that Sunday, June 16, has been selected as the date that King George will appoint as a day of thanksgiving for his recovery from his recent grave illness.

The programme as unofficially forecast, contemplates a special service at Westminster Abbey, attended by the King and Queen and other members of the royal family, to which the public will be admitted.

It is recalled the King, in a special message from Craigwell House on April 22, said he looked forward to joining with his people "on some appointed day" in thanking God not only for his own recovery, "but for the new evidence of growing kindliness significant of the true nature of men and nations."

Urged To Pay Interest

Montreal.—The government of Canada should pay interest on all money held by it and refundable to citizens. Such a course is required by equity as the government enjoys the use of such money pending repayment on account of taxes, etc. So states a resolution adopted by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and sent to all members of the House of Commons and the Senate.

EXPRESS SHIPMENTS BY AIR

Express shipments between Canada and European Continental countries are handled in part by air service under an arrangement reached between the Canadian National Express and the Imperial Airways, the French Air Union, the C.I.D.N.A. of France and other important continental air lines. The first shipment thus handled was flown recently from Croydon Aerodrome, near London, England, and consisted of a small lot of valuable Canadian furs shipped from Canada for a Paris salon.—Canadian National Railways photograph.

THREE MEMBER GRAIN BOARD IS RECOMMENDED

Ottaawa.—In order to give Leslie Boyd, chairman of the grain commission, and Matthew Snow, who is a memebr, an opportunity to confer over recommemndations they will submit to the agricultural committee of the House of Commons, the committee met only a few minutes this afternoon.

It was explained by Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, that the two commissioners who are witnesses before the committee have not had an opportunity to talk matters over, because Mr. Snow has been in the West and Mr. Boyd has been undergoing treatment in Montreal.

A three-member grain board, with headquarters at Winnipeg and some six sub-commissioners or field men to inspect elevators, deal with complaints and to investigate conditions in the various grain growing districts in Western Canada were urged by Mr. Boyd.

The sub-commissioners would be located at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina or Moose Jaw, Northern Manitoba and Southern Manitoba. There should also be additional elevator inspectors for the rush seasons. Three members of the board would be better than five as proposed, he thought. The members should meet often so that uniformity in its decisions could be obtained.

Mr. Boyd agreed with the suggestion that one member of the board visit the markets of Europe each year so that each member would get the overseas viewpoint once each three years. He thought the situation with the staff of the board under the civil service commission was fairly satisfaactory.

As to the claims of Regina for the headquarters of the grain board, Mr. Boyd agreed Regina was more nearly the centre of the prairie grain growing districts than Winnipeg, but most complaints had to be adjusted at the company headquarters, which were at Winnipeg. It was for this reason he favored Winnipeg.

Seeking Air Mail Route

Swedish Aviator Thinks U.S.-Scandinavian Summer Service Possible

Stockholm.—A possible summer route for air mail service between the United States and Scandinavia is being sought by Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish flyer, who hopes to set out about June 3, on a three-stop flight from Stockholm to New York. Ahrenberg believes it is practicable to operate an air mail service along the northern route between mid-April and mid-September.

The hop, skip and jump trip to New York should take about three days, Ahrenberg thinks.

Aims To Make Good

Man From England Has Determination To Win Out In Canada

Toronto. — Worth "20,000 quid" (£20,000), as he termed it, George Westbury, of Ascot, England, arrived in Toronto with £2 in his pockets, determined to prove to England's submerged classes that a man with pluck and determination can make good in Canada.

"I have two pounds in my pocket now," he said, "and I'd rather put a shot through my head than cable home for more money.

Amend Bankruptcy Act

Ottawa.—Second and third readings were given in the Senate to a measure amending the Bankruptcy Act. Senator Jacques Bureau, the sponsor, explained that the purpose of the bill was to require persons seeking to have debtors adjudged bankrupt to take legal action in the judicial district of the alleged insolvent.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 31

Liberal Nomination

West Kootenay Liberals are making no mistake in meeting in convention on Tuesday to select a candidate to carry the party banner in the federal contest. From present appearances the next Dominion election is hardly more than a year off, and twelve months is not a bit too long for the nominee to get around such a large riding and make a sort of informal acquaintance before the actual campaign opens.

Just who the delegates will choose is hard to forecast. If Frank Putnam allows his name to be placed in nomination it is all but assured that he can bring home the honor.

At all points in the riding it is pretty well conceded that his outstanding success as an orchardist; his experience in lumbering, and a well-deserved popularity with labor, would make him a sure winner against W. K. Esling, or any other opponent the Conservatives have to offer.

However, it is not at all likely that Mr. Putnam can be induced to enter the federal arena, and with him eliminated the choice would seem to lie between C. S. Leary, ex-M.P.P., of Nakusp, and D. D. McLean, who was the Liberal candidate in Nelson in the provincial election last July.

Both are likely looking, and given a year to familiarize themselves with the constituency and its needs, should have no trouble in disposing of W. K. Esling, who has proven considerable of a disappointment the past three years.

Highways

The opinion so freely and unanimously stated at the May meeting of Creston Board of Trade, that the roads in this district are the worst ever experienced, would appear to be the general feeling throughout the Valley, if one may judge by the flock of new Conservative associations that have come into being in the past six weeks.

These organizations have made their appearance at Kitchener, Canyon and Wynndel. While we have no definite information as to the why and wherefore of the Kitchener movement, the Review has it firsthand that at the other two points the decision to organize is solely due to inactivity in getting highway improvements under way this year.

As a very prominent Canyon Conservative puts it: More money has been appropriated for local work and by far the biggest-ever highway loan arranged for 1929, and here it is the end of May and travelling the poorest in years.

In addition to neglect of needed improvements, these new associations are not backward in announcing that they are going to see to it that when laborers are needed residents in the districts in which the work is undertaken get the preference. In other words they are to invoke a sort of anti-dumping clause to protect the home labor market.

Just how desperate the situation is can be effectively gleaned from the organization at Canyon, where we have the "dry" Wm. E. Searle heading an association that has, as part of its objective, the matter of advancing the interests of the "wet" Col. Lister. When it comes to sacrifice solely in the interests of the community, well may it be said, "Greater love hath no man than this!"

Must Make Good on Promise

While the opinion has all along prevailed that the local member would strafe Creston for its ununkindly consideration shown him at the polls last July, and while documentary evidence is not lacking to substantiate that impression, Col. Fred Lister must not be allowed to forget that he has very definitely assured that a sum of not less than $4000 will be available for gravelling and other improvements on the North and South Highway this season.

He is also reminded that a start should be made on this work immediately as the tourist rush will be under way very shortly and every bit of improvement the $4000 will assure is badly needed—and the more so now that it is definitely assured that a liquor store is to be opened at the middle of June, bringing with it, we are assured, a greatly augmented flow of the thirsty sons of Uncle Sam.

Now that the trucks and men that have been doing needed work in the Lister area have completed their gravelling etc., the member can make everyone happy by shifting the men and equipment onto the North and South Highway job.

Placing the Blame

In some quarters an attempt is made to excuse the local representative's inaction on highway improvements by trying to put the blame on the local general road foreman and the district engineer—severally and jointly.

Those who recall the days of 1920-28 and the colonel's specialty at denouncing road conditions as they then existed are hard pressed to account for the poor showing he has made to date; hence the play to make Messrs Davies or Ramsay the goat.

In the old days Mr. Ramsay was always up on his toes pressing for money and losing no time putting crews to work spending it. If times have changed the fault does not lie with Mr. Ramsay Either the department at Victoria or Col. Fred Lister are to blame and are not going to be allowed to crawl out from under their responsibility.

On his return from the session the local member boasted he had $60,000 of an ordinary appropriation, and was assured of another $250,000 from the loan. If his statement is correct and he really intends to have that amount expended in highway betterments in the riding it is about time the colonel was coming out of his long slumber; a few more weeks of this sort of sleeping sickness and the other constituencies will have picked off everything. Presidents Packman, Strudwicke, Searle and Mallandaine, it's up to you—and do it now.

Mrs. George Merrison and Mrs. Winchcombe were hostesses at the former's home on Barton avenue on Tuesday evening at a shower in honor of Miss Lillian Cherrington, whose marriage to Mr. Howard Allan of Trail takes place on Wednesday next. The evening was very pleasantly spent at bridge at which the guest of honor was winner of the high score prize, and before the serving of lunch the bride-to-be was happily remembered with a very attractive array of cups and saucers, accompanying which were the hearty good wishes of the donors for the success and happiness of the bride-elect.

A Munificent Gift

Mr. W. H. Askew, Of Scotland, Donates Large Sum To Aid British Colonization In Canada

The Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway announces a munificent gift on the part of Mr. W. H. Askew, of Ladykirk, Scotland, to the cause of British colonization in Canada. Mr. Askew who is a gentleman of means and well known in Scotland for his broad public spirit, has provided ten thousand dollars to enable suitable families from the border regions of England and Scotland to emigrate to Canada and engage in agricultural work.

Forty of these families are now on their way from Great Britain, and their departure has received wide publicity in the British press on account of the original circumstances under which these families are being moved.

The fact that Mr. Askew has provided ten thousand dollars makes possible, under the provisions of the Empire Settlement Act, an advance of a further ten thousand dollars for the forwarding of suitable British families to Canada. The Act in question authorizes the Secretary of State to co-operate with private organizatoins in formulating and carrying out schemes for affording joint assistance to suitable persons in Great Britain, who intend to settle in any of the Overseas Dominions. It is quite possible, therefore, that as a result of Mr. Askew's decision to assist prospective British colonists in the manner mentioned, three hundred families may be enabled to come forward to Canada. The number depends on the precise amount advanced to each particular family.

At Mr .Askew's request the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, has entered into an agreement with the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, for the recruiting, placement in agricultural occupation and all general admministrative work connected with the scheme.

The families which will arrive during the next week-end will be at once distributed on arrival in Canada in placement which has already been assigned; twenty-five families having been allocated to the Canada Colonization Association, subsidiary of the Department of Colonization and Development; others will occupy new cottages erected by the Colonization Construction Branch of the Canadian Pacific, and the remainder on farms prepared by the Canadian Pacific under the agreement made last fall with the Overseas Settlement Committee.

Asked for his personal comment on this new scheme Colonel J. S. Dennis, C.M.G., Chief Commissioner of the Department of Colonization and Development, said: "I have no hesitation, whatever, in saying that Mr. Askew's magnificient action is a strong reminder that the whole matter of the movement of British colonists to Canada calls for special efforts on the part of all organizations and individuals who are in a position to speed up the important task in question. As is well known we have always concentrated our efforts on the movement of the largest possible number of British settlers to Canada, spending large sums in that connection, but due to conditions which have existed in the last few years and the administrative difficulties, which seem to arise, now and again, under the apparently necessary numerous regulations which must be observed, results have been disappointing. The Askew scheme, however, as it is sure to be widely known in the future, marks a step forward in the progress of British colonization in Canada, and we are greatly pleased, of course, that Mr. Askew should have seen fit to ask us to join in this proposal, which is now eliciting much commendation in Great Britain, and will continue to reflect the greatest credit and satisfaction to its sponsor."

LATER EXPERIENCIES OF JEREMIAH

Golden Text: "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake."—Matthew 5.11.

Lesson: Jeremiah 20.1-6; 37.1 to 38.28; 43.1-7.

Devotional Reading; Matthew 5. 3-11.

Explanations and Comments

The Princes Fear the Influence Of Jeremiah and Seek His Death, verse 4.—Jeremiah was held a prisoner in the guard-house at Jerusalem during its seige by the Babylonians. He could still address those around him, and he prophesied the fall of the city and advised surrender. The effect of his words was to weaken the courage and purpose of the fighting power of the people. The princes denounced him to the king as one whose words weakened the defense of the city. "Let this man be put to death," they urged, for "he seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt."

"So, then, am I become your enemy by telling you the truth?"—Paul.

Jeremiah Is Cast Into a Dungeon, verses 5, 6. "He is in your hands," said the weak king, and with this gesture of helplessness acknowledged that he could not withstand them; they could do with Jeremiah as they would. "He was afraid of Jeremiah, afraid of God, afraid of his princes, afraid of his enemies, afraid even to be himself." — Emily Huntley. — "Zedekiah miserably vacillated between listening to the prophet's counsels of surrender and the truculent noble's advice to resist to the last gasp. Like most weak men, he was afraid to do right, and fancied that he was compelled by the force of circumstances to do wrong. So he drifted and drifted, and at last was smashed to fragments on the rocks, as all men are who do not keep a strong hand on the helm and a steady eye on the compass. The winds are good servants but bad masters." —Alexander MacLaren.

Four Hundred Years Ago

Luther's Catechism Is Still Being Used In Lutheran Schools

While text books change often and few studies today are a decade old, one yet in use can celebrate its four hundredth anniversary with the Lutheran World Congress, June 25 to July 31. "Luther's Catechism" was written four hundred years ago, and still is used in Lutheran schools. The Lutheran church is the largest Protestant church. Its membership is estimated from 75,000,000 to 80,000,000, mostly in Northern Europe and America. The three books translated into most languages in the world are: The Bible, in about 80 languages; "Luther's Catechism," in 137; "Pilgrim's Progress," in 107. The most translated hymn is Luther's "A Mighty Fortress," in 150.

How To Dye An Old Rug

Successful Method That May Be Used In the Home

Old rugs may be dyed at home in a practical manner reads an article in the May issue of "Successful Farming."

"First of all, spread the rug out flat and scrub thoroughly clean with one can of rug soap and water. Let it stand for fifteen minutes and then spray well with cold water from the garden hose, or rinse with buckets of cold water. For a 9 x 12 rug use six packages of one of the standard, well known brands of dye designated for silk and wool mixtures. Set the color with a half pint of vinegar, full strength. The rug will take the dye nicely while still damp but the drying takes some time."

A Logical Conclusion

Father—"Jimmy, why did you lick the little Jones boy?"

Jimmy—"You told me to."

Father—"I told you to! Why, my son, what do you mean?"

Jimmy—"Didn't you tell me the other day that it was more blessed to give than to receive?"

Father—"Yes, but—"

Jimmy—"Well, I had to give him a lickin' or receive one."

The Desert Song

— BY —

VIRGINIA MORRIS

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the story by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

CHAPTER I.

Greedily the copper coin of the sun was tossed by some invisible hand into the coffers of the desert. Now a purple radiance suffused the burning sands till the deepening twilight gradually wrapped its cloak all around. A few hours before a pure silver moon had been poised in the cloudless daylight sky, but as night descended this assumed a golden red and seemed to retain, concentrated in its mellow circle, all the glow and color of the desert landscape that was now clothed in a nocturnal mantle.

Out of the range of the moon's brightness silver stars began to show their glinting lights. A soft cool breeze slowly blew up, shifting the sand drifts into new undulation that stretched to far horizons. The majestic silence was so intense as to be almost audible.

One would have sworn that not a human being dwelt within ten leagues of the spot. Then all at once out there in the infinity of desert space arose a faint stirring. For a moment nothing was seen, but as the stirring grew into a definite far-off sound, under the rich light of the orange moon there appeared a tiny speck where sand and sky met on the distant horizon. Over the crest of the dunes another speck appeared, followed by countless others. But now the leader was distinguishable as a rider on a fleet-footed horse, followed by a ribbon of other desert cavalrymen clad in turbans and flowing robes, their rifles held high in their right arms to proclaim their warring spirit.

The swish of galloping hoofs raising granules of sand in a dusty trail behind them was at first the only sound to break the stillness. But as the last rider came into view over the crest of the distant slopes the voices of a hundred men filled the night singing the rousing bars of their tribal song, the song of the Riffs, those desert outlaws who have scorned the domination of the alien French.

Far across the desert these riders swept until they reached the crags where they had their secret encampment. Up a short trail their horses climbed to an opening in the rocks that formed a narrow cave. Here they dismounted. Some vanished to where a cauldron was stewing goat's meat for the evening meal.

In the fire's light Sid El Kar, Lieutenant to the Red Shadow—the leader of the Riffs, examined some messages that the horsemen had brought from scattered members of the tribe. The subordinate who stood beside him ventured a worried comment:

"I hope the French don't find us. This new leader of theirs, Captain Paul Fontaine——"

Sid El Kar uttered a vile oriental oath and spat in the sand. "To the devil with him. For five years the frog-eaters have been chasing our band and all they have caught—is our dust!"

"But," put forward the other, "it is different this last week since Captain Fontaine has taken command. Three times they have nearly trapped us."

Sid El Kar's mouth framed a contemptious sneer. He pointed to the tent that lay pitched closest to the fire.

"Our Red Shadow is a match for a million Captain Paul Fontaines!"

There were few faint hearts in the Riff band. They had confidence in their prowess as fighters and above all in the bravery of their mysterious and intrepid leader, the Red Shadow. A stranger out of nowhere, he had come to champion their cause against the tyranny of the French who believed that the desert people were best subdued by the imperious attitude of conqueror and vanquished. But even against the armed forces of the French garrison, the Riffs had succeeded in preserving their independence. Now led by this fearless desert Robin Hood, they defied the rule of the foreigners and defended their desert brothers against the domination of those who failed to understand their customs or their emotions. Surely the Red Shadow was sent by Mahomet to protect his children! None knew whence he came, but when the signal fires were lit and the Riffs assembled, the Red Shadow always appeared as if by magic. Then when the good work was accomplished he rode off, where no one could say.

Attracted by the savory scent of the cooking, other members of the band who had watered their horses and tethered them, now drew near the fire. To their companions who had remained in camp they recounted the news they had gathered on their latest expedition. The whole town, it seemed, was talking of this Captain Paul Fontaine who, with a regiment of devils from the Foreign Legion, had set out to discover the Riffs' hiding place. General Birabeau, commandant of the post, was offering him every assistance with additional horses and troops.

They had picked up another juicy bit of gossip, too. Captain Fontaine was in love, madly enamoured of a beautiful and chic French girl, Margot Bonvalet, who had recently come out from Paris. Her father, so one said, was a lifelong friend of General Birabeau, and it was at his quarters that she was staying — and breaking the heart of every handsome officer in the regiment. But her preference, it was clear, was for Fontaine who had promised her, with a gesture of bravado, that he would bring her the Red Shadow as a prisoner.

The threat caused a wave of merriment among tthe band. The Riffs would never fall under the power of the French!

"To kill the Red Shadow, Fontaine must kill us all!" shouted one of them lustily.

"May evil spirits possess them, Fontaine and — Margot Bonvalet!" added another fiercely.

All at once their talking ceased. They drew themselves to military attention. For before them stood the Red Shadow himself!

CHAPTER II.

Every line of his fine straight figure proclaimed the fighter. He wore a loose, bright scarlet burnoose, the hood of which was held firmly around his forehead by a white band. He was shod in gleaming black military boots and his sword was sheathed in the scabbard that hung beneath the folds of his cloak. His chin suggested that his face was as handsome as his physique but one could not be sure of this because his cheeks and eyes were concealed behind a scarlet mask. This, which he always wore, had helped to surround him with an aura of mystery for even his closet henchman had never seen him without it.

With a wave of his hand, the Red Shadow signaled his followers to be at ease. They relaxed from their military attitude and segregated into small groups. Their leader approached Sid El Kar and Hassi, who was another of his trusted fighters in spite of his advancing years.

"I overheard this talk of Captain Fontaine," he said, "and I scorn his threats! But I do not like the references to this girl they call Margot."

His listeners looked up in surprise. Then he continued, addressing himself to Hassi, "My friend, I want your promise. The sign of the Heart and the Head."

"It is gladly given," affirmed the oriental as he placed his right hand over his heart, then raised it solemnly to his forehead in the desert ritual that signifies a sacred pledge.

The Red Shadow lowered his voice to a whisper, "If anything should happen to me, no harm must ever come to Margot Bonvalet!"

The two Riffs regarded him with astonishment.

"Master, I do not understand," said the perplexed Hassi.

"No," agreed the Red Shadow, "you do not understand me. That is because you are Mohammedans while I am French."

"But," interrupted Sid Sl Kar, "none of the band knows you're French, except us two!"

"That is why I am asking this promise of you," insisted their leader. "No harm must ever come to Margot Bonvalet."

"Now, listen, Master," argued Hassi, "after all she's only a woman."

"That is the oriental in you," retaliated the Frenchman, "you cannot understand western love, but let me tell you this, I would not be your leader if it were not for this Margot."

Then for the first time he disclosed to them the motives that had led him, an outsider, to champion the cause of the Riffs and their people. A strange story it was that he told them! Eight years ago in Paris he had fallen in love with this girl. She had refused to take him seriously, had called him a silly boy—so he had enlisted in the French army to prove to her that he was a man. He set out from home with a contingent sailing for Morocco, under the command of General Fontaine, Captain Fontaine's own father.

This general had been notorious for his cruel treatment of the natives. Sometimes his own men used to refer to him secretly as the Butcher. One day he had commissioned the one now known as the Red Shadow to raid a certain village. The soldier had refused to exercise this unnecessary brutality and his superior had struck him full in the face, cursing him and calling him a cowardly traitor. To escape the inevitable sentence that the court martial would pass for insubordination, he fled to the hills where the Riffs made their lair.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.
