"The Big Parade"

"The Big Parade," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's war epic, which is showing at the Grand to-night and Saturday has seen wtinesed by more than four million Americans since its memorable opening late in 1925. The production ran for two years at the Astor Theatre, New York and holds the distinction of having broken all picture-run records at the Garrick Theatre, Chicago; the Aldine Theatre, Philadelphia; the Hanna Theatre, Cleveland, and the Majestic Theatre, Boston. In addition to its numerous great American runs, it has been most successfully produced in the European capitals, and witnessed by packed and enthusiastic audiences in long engagements in Canada. Truly, "The Big Parade" is the miracle picture of the century.

This screen version by King Vidor of Laurence Stallings' story establishes John Gilbert as the greatest drawing card on the screen, and Renee Adoree as a youthful character player of the first prominence in the film world.

The Charter of Anglo-Saxon Liberties

When King John, of England, placed his seal upon that historic document Magna Charta, on June 15, 1215, the date went into history as that of the "greatest of all events in the political development of modern freedom."

Nearly 700 years after the signing of the Great Charter of Liberty, a movement which had its inception in the United States gave birth to the International Magna Charta Day Association, with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn. The main objective of this organization is to have June 15 of each year observed as "Magna Charta Day," or "Inter-Dependence Day," in all the English-speaking nations of the world.

Observance of the day and of the charter which is the common heritage of these English-speaking nations is urged by the Association as an expression of the recognition of the common tie that binds these nations and the common debt they owe to those responsible for the Great Charter which is the foundation of modern ideals of liberty. The Association urges observance of the day also as a means of cementing the friendship and promoting mutual understanding between these nations which, speaking the same language, and having the same ideals, are acknowledged to be the greatest forces extant for permanent world peace. Magna Charta provides that basis of unity which these nations can commemorate. Its signing was an epoch-making incident in their common history concerning which no clash of opinion is possible. One American commentator says: "The yearly observance of Magna Charta Day not only helps to keep vibrant this Anglo-Saxon International Good Will but it serves to set out in sharp relief a wholesome example to the wide world."

The alternative title, "Inter-Dependence Day" itself is an acknowledgment that American ideals of freedom have the same fundamental basis as those of the British Nations, including Canada, and it is interesting to note that since the Association first was organized, the Day is observed annually in the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, the British Isles, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. That is, the nations which trace their laws back to the historic document forced upon King John by the Barons of England, join in remembrance of the freedom it has conferred upon all. Says J. W. Hamilton, Founder-Secretary of the Association: "More and more it has become the Inter-Dependence Day of the English-speaking countries, as men have come to understand the Inter-racial kindness its recognition indicates.

"The thought is American-born, a gesture of deference to the acknowledged fount of freedom, and a tender of goodwill to other English-speaking lands of the earth."

The Day is not observed as a legal holiday, but as one of remembrance. Teachers in the public schools, wherever the Day is observed, emphasize the significance of Magna Charta to their pupils, and explain its significance in the lives of all residents of English-speaking countries. In many places, too, it is supplemented by setting aside the nearest Sunday to June 15, as "Magna Charta Sunday" on which by pulpit reference or Sunday School lesson the goodwill which is the central feature of the observance of the Day is given prominence. It might as well be the basis of a valuable lesson in British ideals for the cosmopolitan people of Canada—and for that reason it is interesting to note that Canada as a nation has endorsed the idea of Magna Charta Day.

Briefly stated, Magna Charta established trial by jury, restrained the Crown from using harsh and arbitrary methods of raising money, virtually placed control of taxation in the hands of the people, gave protection to minors and widows, established uniform weights and measures, limited fines and protected merchants, established the law of evidence, and, generally, assured the rights and freedom of the subject. These are the most important features of that charter which occupies so conspicuous a place in history and which established the supremacy of the law of England as the controlling power over the people.

The 39th article of the charter which is the basis of jury trial, declares "no man shall be taken, or imprisoned, or outlawed, or banished except by the lawful judgment of his peers." Another short article is significant of the desire for justice for all. In it, the King declared: "To no one will we sell, to no one will we refuse or delay, right or justice."

FLU Germs Breed In the Throat.

First Appear As A Common Cold, But Gain Tremendous Headway In Six Hours

SOME SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFLUENZA.

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline. Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding germs. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Disease Of the Nerves Which Must Be Treated Through the Blood

St. Vitus dance is a disease of the nerves brought on by a morbid condition of the blood. It is a common disease with children, but sometimes attacks adults. The treatment of this trouble to be successful is through the blood, because rich, red blood is the life food of the nerves. In this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved beneficial in even the most severe forms of this trouble, because they enrich the blood supply, thus carrying the necessary food to the nerves. In proof of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind we have the statement of Mrs. William Stead, Wiarton, Ont., who says:—"My eldest girl at the age of nine years suffered from an attack of whooping cough which left her very weak, and finally developed into a severe attack of St. Vitus dance. She was under a doctor's care, but with no beneficial results. We also tried other treatment, but with no better results. To make matters worse, she was taken down with measies. Again the doctor was called in, as she became so weak, and her limbs so trembly that we had to take her about in a little hand wagon. I thought a change of air and scene migh help her, so we sent her by boat to Port McNicol, a distance of about a hundred miles. She seemed to improve while there, but as soon as she came home her strength was gone again. I took her to another doctor, but with no better results. I was distracted to see how helpless she was becoming, so decided o give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I got six boxes, and they did what neither doctors nor other remedies had even started to do. They built her up completely; the St. Vitus dance disappeared, she has no sign of weakness and can run and play with the other girls, a thing she could not even try to do for about eighteen months. She walks to and from school, a distance of about a mile, which, of course, is proof of her present good health. I have much to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for, and always recommend them in all cases of weakness."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Good Friend To Trappers

Radio Makes Life In Northern Wilds Less Lonely

The trapper's life in the wilds of northern and central British Columbia is not the lonely existence it used to be, for the radio is keeping the isolated cabin homes of these forest nomads closely in touch with the world's activities.

The radio has been a wonderful boon to the Canadian trapper and only the lowliest of them have not equipped themselves with radio sets. Indeed, owing to the distance to be covered and the various technical difficulties to be overcome to obtain satisfactory reception, most of them have bought powerful sets. No longer does the trapper find that nights are made for sleep alone. After following the trapline all day the modern trapper spends the evenings in his cabin smoking his pipe and listening to the news of the day and the orchestra broadcasts from hundreds of miles away.

Uniform Prize Ribbons

Uniformity In Color Is Agreed Upon For Fairs and Exhibitions

The Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, has informed the Canadian Association of Exhibitions that it is willing to co-operate with the association's suggestions for uniformity of color in prize ribbon awards throughout Canada.

Hereafter at all fairs and exhibitions under the jurisdiction of the association first prize will be denoted by red, second by blue, third by white, fourth by yellow, fifth by green, and sixth by pink. Sweepstakes winners will be awarded the red, white and blue combination and the grand champions red and blue.

Much confusion has resulted in past years at fairs and exhibitions by the failure to adopt a standard system of colors with regard to awards.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED ON REPARATIONS

Paris.—The German experts and their creditors came to an agreement on revised reparation annuities as proposed by Chairman Owen D. Young.

These annuities average 2,050,000,000 gold marks (about $492,000,000) for thirty-seven years; 1,700,000,000 marks ($408,000,00) for twenty-one years, and 900,000,000 marks (216,000,000) for the final year.

Under the agreement as concluded, these annuities will run from September next, instead of from April 1 last, as originally calculated. The Dawes plan of payments will meanwhile continue in force.

The situation was explained by Thos. W. Lamont, United States representative, as follows:

"Both creditor and German experts have heretofore declared themselves willing to accept the annuity figure of 2,500,000,000 marks as suggested by the chairman, although a difference existed on the question of interpretation.

"This difference has now been removed and a common basis for interpretation acceptable to both the creditors and to Germany has been found, subject, however, to agreement on the outstanding conditions which still remain for discussion and settlement."

It was further explained this agreement was no one's victory, for both Germans and creditors gave way to make it possible.

The general opinion of the experts was that a most important step had been taken toward final elimination of the Great War. There was no disposition to cry victory because there remained a number of knotty points among German conditions and allied reservations, any one of which if not satisfactorily disposed of might make final agreement impossible.

Would Make Divorce Much Easier For Deserted Wives

Ottawa.—An amendment to the bill respecting the domicile of married women, although opposed by a large section of the house, passed when Parliament went into committee to consider the bill. The amendment makes it possible for a woman, deserted by her husband and left living alone for two years, to establish her domicile in any province of Canada where a divorce court exists for the purpose of obtaining divorce.

The bill, as amended, passed the committee stage and now stands for third reading. The amendment was passed by a vote of 36 to 28.

During the debate, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, declared that conditions in Canada would be worse than in Reno if the bill as amended became law. In Reno, a person desiring to obtain a divorce was required to wait three months before taking proceedings. Under the bill before the house, such persons could go to a province where a divorce court existed and begin proceedings immediately.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, pointed out that a woman wishing to obtain a divorce must establish her domicile to the satisfaction of the court.

A Reciprocal Visit

Australians Invite Canadian Boys To Make Return Tour

Victoria.—"We are leaving Canada with the hope that a reciprocal visit to Australia will be arranged for Canadian boys," Major John J. Simons, leader of the Young Australia League, stated prior to embarking on the liner "Aorangi" homeward bound.

"We have had a wonderful tour, and its success has greatly exceeded our expectations," he added.

The aim of the League in fostering these tours, Major Simons said, was to create better understanding beween he English-speaking peoples of the world, and in this, he thought, the League had been in a large measure successful.

Salmon Treaty Approved

Committee Evenly Divided and Chairman Voted In Favor

Ottawa.—On the casting vote of the chairman, William Duff, Liberal, Antigonish-Guysboro, the marine and fisheries committee of the House of Commons approved the Canada-United States sockeye salmon fisheries treaty. The convention was signed at Washington on March 27 last.

When the division was called, ten members of the committee voted against the pact and ten in favor, with the vote a tie, Mr. Duff, as chairman, then voted for the treaty.

Sewer Gas Explosion Causes Much Damage

One Person Believed Fatally Injured When Blast Rocks Ottawa

Ottawaa.—Explosions of sewer gas in four parts of the city caused probably fatal injuries to one and hurt a number of others, at the same time destroying considerable property where the blasts were most severe.

There was panic in several sections when the booming of the explosions, accompanied by leaping pillars of flame and water, shook dwellings and rattled the windows of houses and office buildings. Women and children ran screaming from their homes.

In the streets, man-hole covers were thrown into the air a height of 50 or 60 feet. Confusion reigned. Fire alarms brought apparatus to scout fires, and patrol where there was likelihood of any outbreak.

St. Martin's Reformed Episcopal Church, built in 1876, and a landmark in the Sandy Hill district, was churned into wreckage as though it had been blasted by high explosives. Several stores in its vicinity were also destroyed, but persons in these latter buildings were not badly hurt.

Capital Invested In Canada

Canadians Own Over Half Of Securities In Dominion

Ottawa.—Canadians own from 55 per cent. to 65 per cent. of the securities of all enterprises located on Canadian soil. British investment in Canada at the beginning of 1928 was two-thirds that of United States investments in this country, or $2,209,517,000, as compared with $3,286,786,000.

The total British and foreign investment in Canada at the time noted amounted to $5,742,043,000, the balance of $245,740,000 coming from alien countries other than the United States.

Rebels Kill Ambassador

Constantinople. — Authorative information has reached Angora from Afghanistan, stating that Afghan rebels captured and killed Guhlam Djelani Bey, Afghan ambassador to Turkey who was recalled by former King Amanullah to aid in the fight against the rebels. The report said that Guhlam was tortured to death.

Ottawa.—After a somewhat tempestuous passage, all estimates of the department of immigration have been finally approved by the supply committee of the House of Commons.

The Bull Dog Breed

Feet squarely planted on the deck of a Canada-bound liner, this young Britisher roguishly shrugs a left shoulder at the photographer. Member of an agricultural family coming forward under the auspices of the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, he looks forward to a romping, healthy life in Canada—thanks to the Askew Scheme.

APPEAL IN TAX CASE IS WON BY WHEAT POOL

Ottawa.—Judgment was given by the exchequer court in favor of the Saskatchewan Wheat Producers, Limited, in their appeal from the assessments in the years 1925 and 1926, by the minister of national revenue, at $154,143 and $302,489 respectively.

These amounts represented deductions set aside for elevator and commercial reserves, and for operating expenses.

Mr. Justice Audette held that the deductions were merely temporary loans made by the farmers in the pool and were not gains or profits within the meaning of the act.

The judgment says in part:

"The deductions are so much less of the price, the proceeds of the farmer's grain, which he leaves, by agreement, in the hands of such associations for the purposes of handling his grain to his best advantage.

"Under all circumstances of the case, I find that the deductions in question are but temporary loans and advances made by the farmer, out of the price of his grain, to the pool capital for carrying on and acquiring elevators — the value thereof being credited to him as his own, having been his own all through under the true meaning of the provincial act and the contract made thereunder, and that the association acting in such fiduciary capacity for the grain growers, accounts for every cent it receives, and retains nothing that amounts to gain or profit."

Slaughter Of Tribesmen

2,000 Arabs Reported To Have Been Slain In Tribal Fight

London.—A Jerusalem dispatch to the Express says desert runners brought to Beyrout word that 2,000 Arabs were slain at Elsarar, Nejd, in a battle between Ajmann and Jelawah tribes.

The fight was attributed to a breach of desert hospitality.

The sheik of Ajmann visited and was entertained by the sheik of Jelawah, but no sooner had he left the tent of his host than he was attacked.

The Ajmann tribesmen promptly retaliated and in the following conflicts both the chiefs and a thousand tribesmen on each side were reported to have been killed.

Saskatoon, Sask. — Every effort will be made to have the Melfort-Aberdeen branch of the Canadian National Railways completed this fall, W. A. He stated grain would be hauled over the line this year even if it were necessary to use skeleton tracks for small distances.

Five Italian Fliers Killed

Rome.—The crew of five of a military bombing 'plane were killed when it crashed into Mount Orsaro near Corniglio, while on a night flight. The dead were two lieutenants, two under-officers, and a soldier mechanic. A sudden violent storm had come up while they were flying over the Apenine mountains.

Unemployed In Britain

London.—The number of unemployed in Great Britain on May 13 totalled 1,104,700 persons, a decrease of 28,005 under the previous week, it was officially announced here. The number was also 13,690 below the unemployment figures of May 18 1928.

CRESTON, B.C., FRIDAY, JUNE 7

An Effective Editorial

Last week's review of the deplorable highway situation the local member has allowed to develop in this district has already brought results.

At the first of the week a definite statement was forthcoming that $32,000 had been appropriated for widening and otherwise improving the Creston-Kuskanook road. And from an authoritative source it is learned that work will get under way any day now improving the North and South highway.

In connection with the grant for the Kuskanook road if anywhere near the maximum amount of improvement is to be had for the money spent the best plan would seem to be to put on every possible workman and push things at top speed for the next three weeks.

After that the auto tourist rush will be at its height, and the time that must of necessity be lost by the workmen getting out of the way of cars and waiting for the dust to settle after each auto has passed is bound to waste considerable time.

While some satisfaction is expressed at the money being at last available, there is also round condemnation of the member for waiting until this late date in having the work started.

In March the department announced an appropriation had been made for the work and had a start been made early in April residents along the route could have worked to advantage on the job and the highway put in first-class shape at the opening of the tourist season.

With the money only now forthcoming the rancher, who would have welcomed employment the past two months, will not figure promiently on the payroll because of having to stay on his place for the berry season, and considerably less work accomplished for the money expended due the handicap encountered with so much traffic passing along the highway.

Insofar as traffic conditions are concerned the same argument will apply to North and South highway improvements. But let's not be too harsh with our representative. In connection the North and South highway let us not forget that its better late than never.

Giving the Credit

In connection with the opening of the government liquor store opinion seems to be divided as to who should get the credit for having the wet goods emporium established at Creston, and adhering to our policy of always giving credit where credit is due the Review is quite frank to state it believes the local member played some considerable part in the great work.

In arriving at any conclusion in the matter it is well to remember that the present government takes credit for disconnecting the Liquor Control Board from politics, while the former administration stoutly maintained that there was no political interference.

Ever since 1920, when government control was endorsed by the vote of the people of the province, there has always been some demand for the opening of a liquor store at Creston, but the board has hitherto refused to favorably consider any such request.

Even in the quite prosperous times the district enjoyed prior to the blizzard, and the affluence following the lighter but more profitable crop of 1927, the board could not see Creston as a likely location for a vendor.

But here we are in 1929 with more hard times talk and more commercial pessimism than has been talked in years, and yet in spite of all the blue ruin the "non political" board suddenly decides the time is opportune for starting up in Creston.

If, followiog 1924, with an apple crop of 250,000 boxes and quite satisfactory prices the board could could not see an opening here for a store, how comes it in 1929, following an apple crop of about 150,000 boxes aad somewhat disastrous prices, that the board's policy is so suddenly reversed and a store is favored? True there was a petition favoring a store, and there was also one against it, and insofar as quantity and quality of the signatures are concerned it was a standoff.

Obviously someone higher up wised up the Liquor Control Board as to the new policy that should obtain as to Creston, and it should not be hard to guess the identity of the gentleman who was able to stir this "higher up" to action. And by the same token, why all this ralk about the board being outside political influence?

The Review has considerable pleasure in submitting this view of the matter. About a year ago much was heard about time for a change, and more than a few swallowed their well known "dry" convictions to effect that province-wide change. It is more particularly for the benefit of those who stifled the still small voice and put party and community selfishness ahead of principle, that this aspect of the matter is ever so respectfully submitted.

Vendor Well Chosen

Having discussed to our own satisfaction the genesis of the local liquor store, it will be in order in closing the incident to express the widespread satisfaction that is felt with the announcement that H. W. McLaren will be in charge. Certainly no better man could have been secured for the position.

If our information is correct very wide powers are conferred on the vendor as to whom he shall sell and the quantities that may be obtained within any stated period.

While certain broad general principles are laid down for his guidance in conducting the store, still he is very largely his own boss, and in a position to permit the sale of intoxicants to develop a state of affairs in the village that was never intended by those who voted in favor of government control.

And it is in this seeing to it that things do not get out of hand that Mr. McLaren comes worthy and well qualified. After ten years of police work in the district no one could be better informed in this respect, and certainly the new vendor comes endowed with all the essential qualifications to successfully meet all emergencies.

In short, if Mr. McLaren will show the same regard for the public in conducting the liquor store that he did as police officer his work cannot fail to give satisfaction, and the Review but reflects public opinion generally in predicting that the vendor will so conduct the business, with credit to himself, and to the satisfaction of the district—insofar as it is possible to give satisfaction in such a position.

In addition to his efficiency as a police officer Mr. McLaren has been a respected and valued citizen, and everyone is pleased to hear he is to remain in Creston, and the hope is everywhere expressed that in the less strenuous activities of vendor his oldtime health will be restored.

Local and Personal

The social under Women's Institute auspices at Trinity United Church hall on Tuesday afternoon was only fairly well attended. Mrs. Hayden and her workers in the recent membership drive were at home to Mrs. C. H. Hare's winning combination and the rest of the membesship. In a bowling contest with the teams captained by Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Hare the former's side were winners by three points. There was a Tour of Nations contest, which was won by Mrs. Maxwell; a recitation by Miss Reid of Erickson school staff and community singing led by Miss Muriel Knott. Refreshments were served.

For the June meeting of Creston and Disnrict Women's Institute on Friday, 14th, Inspector Manning will give a talk on the recent National Educational Congress held at Vancouver last month.

The hail and rain on Friday night put an end to the tulips. Shipping of these flowers has been quite heavy from Creston this season, and it is estimated that between daffodils and tulips close to 2000 dozens were shipped east.

Judge Nesbit, country court clerk Townsend and C. B. Garland of Nelson; along with Barrister Laws and court reporter Perry of Fernie, were Creston callers on Thursday last when the judge tried a logging wage dispute case.

During the electrical storm on Friday evening the residence of D. Learmonth was struck by lightning, but due to the rain and quick work of the Learmonth family the resultant blaze was extinguished before much damage had been done.

C. G. Bennett of Fernie, who was in charge of the Bank of Commerce up till 1925, was shaking hands with old friends on Sunday and Monday. He motored up with Mrs. Bennett to spend the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Staples.

P. B. Fowler of Victoraia, who was the manager of Creston branch of the Bank of Commerce up till 1914, was renewing acquaintances in town at the weekend, when he was a guest of Col. and Mrs. Mallandaine. He left on Monday on a trip to England.

Another turnover in village residential property was completed on Friday when H. W. McLaren completed the purchase of the comodious residence of Mrs. C. Cotterill on Victoria Avenue. The house was built a few years ago by the late James Stocks and has ample grounds and splendid location.

The rain and hail storm of Friday and the showery weather that obtained over the weekend produced precipitation of 1¼ inches according to official measurement. The soaking came just right for garden stuff, and will also benefit the strawberry crop. The hail did some damage to cherries, however.

H. W. McLaren received official notification at the end of the week of his appointment as vendor, and is this week at Cranbrook familiirizing himself with the various lines of "wet" goods and the methods of carrying on the business generally. His appointment to the position is very popular with everyone.

Cresnon school trustees were in conference on Saturday afternoon with Mr. Dawson of Kaslo and Inspector Manning, discussing the inauguaration of manual training. The proposition is to have one teacher to nave charge of of the work at Creston, Kaslo and one other school in the inspectorate, who will put in two days here, two at Kaslo ans one day at the other point each week. This matter as well as the new heating plant will come at the annual school meeting in July.

About a dozen officers and members of Cranbrook Masonic Lodge, along with Masons from Kimberley and Fort Steele Lodges and other visitors were guests of Creston Lodge on Friday night, when W. B. Bro. S. Clark and other officers of Granbrook Lodge conferred the third degree on a local candidate in most impressive fashion. At the close of lodge there was a splendid banquet spread and the usual speechmaking in which the visitors had a prominent part.

Prominent Agriculturists To Meet

Canadian Wide Gatherings Of Seed Growers and Scientists At Winnipeg

(By E. Cora Hind)

June 8 to 15, are to be important days for agriculture and livestock in Canada for during those eight days the year's work and findings of the Plants Breeders Of Canada, the Canadian Seed Growers, the Canadian Technical Agriculturists, and the Western Canada Society Animal Production, will all be discussed and action taken on such important subjects as the standardization of names of seeds of vegetables and flowers for registration and appraise and determine the extent to which the Seed Growers Association might go in encouraging the production of field root, vegetable, garden and forage crops suitable for registration. Special interest will centre on the question of the registration of Alfalfa and other cross fertilizing crops.

From the cereal breeding committee will come a report which will be the basis of a discussion on the desirability of retaining generation numbers and special attention will be given to whether or not "number three registered" should be eliminated. It is expected that a decision will be arrived at as to the "proper type of Marquis wheat required for registration."

The Canadian Seed Growers will have only two addresses from their own members. President H. G. B. Strange, will deal with the work generally, and Prof. T. J. Harrison, will speak on his recent trip to Europe, and the types of barley required for the British market.

The Animal Production men are bringing two world famous men whose addresses will be shared by all the organizations. These are Dr. F. A. E. Crew, Ph.D., D. Sc., professor of animal genetics, University of Edinburgh, and Dr. W. L. Williams, Professor Emeritus of Veterinary Surgery, Cornell University. The animal production section will also have as a special speaker, Dr. Alfred Savage, B.S.A., B.V.M., Animal Pathologist at the Manitoba Agricultural College, who has been working in collaboration with Dr. Williams. The Canadian Technical Agriculturists are bringing Dr. H. B. Humphrey, Pathologist in Cereal Rust Research Investigation of the United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. W. E. Grimes, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Kansas Agricultural College, and Dr. M. J. Dorsey, Chief of Pomology Agricultural Station, Urbana, Ill. It is doubtful if these gatherings have ever been graced by a more renowned group of specialists.

The Provincial Government of Manitoba and some of the important business bodies of Winnipeg are showing their appreciation of the importance of the gatherings by offering luncheons and dinners.

Monday night, June 10, the Provincial Department of Agriculture will give a dinner in the H. B. Co. store, when the Minister will preside and Premier Bracken will be the speaker; Tuesday, noon, the Seed Growers will be the guests of the Canadian Wheat Pool; Tuesday night, the guests of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at the Royal Alexandra Hotel; Wednesday night, the Seed Growers and the Technical Agriculturists will be the dinner guests of the T. Eaton Company, and will be further entertained by a motor drive after dinner.

Thursday, June 13, there will be an excursion by motor to the Dominion Experimental Farm, at Morden, supper there and a return to the city by moonlight. It is hoped that a number of wives will come with their husbands to these meetings, and special entertainment is being provided for them.

The Province of Manitoba and the City of Winnipeg feel deeply honored at the opportunity afforded of entertaining such important bodies, and hopes to give them a profitable and very happy time during their stay.

Canada's First Passenger Train

Seventy-six years ago on May 16th, at 8 o'clock in the morning, the first passenger railway train to run in Canada, pulled out of the old station nearly opposite the Queen's hotel on Front street, Toronto, and made its initial trip to Aurora, Ontario. Up to that time the only form of transportation was the old horse-drawn stage coach and the carrier's wagon. The train consisted of a 24-ton engine with 5-foot driving wheels and a 14x20 cylinder, a box car and a passenger car. Alderman John Harvie was the conductor, and passengers had to purchase their tickets from him on the train. The fare was $1 each way. The journey occupied two hours. The engine drawing the train was named "Lady Elgin" after the wife of the governor-general.

Always Ready and Reliable.—Practically all pains arising from inflammation can be removed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Simply rub it on the sore spot and it is quickly absorbed by the skin. Its healing power is conveyed to the inflamed tissue which is quickly soothed. This fine old remedy is also a specific for all manner of cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. Keep a bottle handy always.

Foundation Of the Farming Industry

Cow Serves Mankind In More Ways Than Any Other Animal

The cow really forms the foundation of the farming industry. Not only does she supply the world with all the milk products, such as butter, cheese, milk, and cream, but almost all her flesh can be eaten, and beef is the staple meat of most countries. Her hide is used for making leather, and her hair for mixing with plaster. Glue is made from her hoofs, and gelatine powder from her joints. When everything else is removed her bones are ground into fertilizer in so many ways.

The Oil For the Athlete.—In rubbing down, the athlete will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil an excellent article. It renders the muscles and sinews pliable, takes the soreness out of them and strengthens them for strains that may be put upon them. It stands pre-eminent for this purpose, and athletes who for years, have been using it can testify to its value as a lubricant.

Will Trek To Alberta

Another of the Hutterische Bruder Gemeinde colonies, organized near Freeman, South Dakota, by Russian immigrants about 50 years ago, will leave South Dakota when the Wolf Creek group, numbering about 150, treks to Alberta. An option on their property, comprising 5,400 acres of improved land, has been obtained by A. W. Harper, Minneapolis banker, who plans to dispose of it in tracts of 160 acres each.

How To Measure Height

To measure a tree, set a stick straight up in the ground. Use a plumb line to get it absolutely perpendicular. Measure the shadow it casts, and the shadow cast by the tree. As the shadow of the stick is to the length of the stick, so is the shadow of the tre to its height. Figure it out.

The Pessimist (proposing): "Darling, I love you. Will you be my widow?"

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES

Golden Text: "We will drink no wine."—Jeremiah 35.6.

Lesson: Jeremiah 35.1-19.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 107.1-9.

Explanations and Comments

Jeremiah's Test Of the Rechabites, verses 1-5.—"Among the people who crawled into Jerusalem to escape the dreaded Nebuchadnezzar, was a tribe that excited much curiosity because of its strange manners. The sheik's name was Jaasaniah—he whom Jehovah hears. They refused to shelter in the houses or permanent buildings, but pitched their dusky tents in an open space within the city walls. Their record was honorable, and reached far back into the early days of Hebrew history. From the wilderness march of the Exodus the Kenites kept up friendly relations with Israel during the intervening centuries, and it was of them that the Rechabites had sprung (Judges 4.17-24; 1 Sam. 15.6; 1 Chron. 2.55.) About the time of Elijah, and perhaps through his influence, the leader of one branch of the tribe was Jonabad, the son of Rechab. He was dismayed at the abounding corruption of the Northern Kingdom, then under the fatal spell of Jezebel and Ahab. In his endeavor to save his people from such a fate, this man, afterwards Jehu's confederate in the extirpation of idolatry, bound his people under a solemn pledge to drink no wine for ever; and not to build houses, to seed, or plant vineyards, but to dwell in tents."—F. B. Meyer.

These Rechabites and their stanch adherence to the principles laid down by their ancestor, afforded Jeremiah an excellent opportunity for an object lesson. Accordingly, he led them into one of the rooms ranged around the temple courts and bowls full of wine set before them, using the large vessels from which the wine was usually poured into cups. "Drink ye wine," Jereiah bade them. It was a severe test of their principles, for it was the prophet himself who bade them drink.

"On the shore of almost any lake you can find an allegory of human life. Farthest back from the line where the great opposing forces meet is the sand, tossed there because it is light. Then come the pebbles, which yield less readily. And finally, at the forefront, the solid rocks that the waters can neither break nor move."

Sore Corns Drop Off If You USE "Putnam's"

When you notice any sign of callous on the feet or toes—that's the time to paint on a few drops of PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. Do this, and you prevent corns. No matter if the corn is hard or soft. Let it be on top or between the toes, Putnam's will remove it without pain. Insist on PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. It does the work—and roots out the corn, quickly and without pain.

Sunspots and Rabbits

The number of pelts received by the Hudson's Bay Company from year to year since about 1840 showed marked periodic variation. According to an investigation made at the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, the number of rabbit pelts was, on the average, three times greater one year beforethe minimum of sunspots than at the maximum.

Conditions Better In Great Britain

Great Improvement Shown In Basic Industries

"Conditions in Great Britain are materially better than they have been since the strike and there has been a great improvement in the basic industries," said P. A. Clews, European Traffic Manager of the Canadian National Railways, who has come to Canada from London on a short business trip. "There has been a marked revival in the coal trade," he said, "and the severe weather which reigned all over Europe last winter helped the British producers to regain some of their lost markets."

Last year, Mr. Clews said, the Canadian National Railways dealt with the largest freight traffic in Europe in their history. "The tourist movement to Canada is increasing astonishingly" he added. "The people in Europe are becoming more and more interested in the possibilities of spending a holiday in the Rocky Mountains, particularly in such places as Jasper National Park, which appeals greatly to their imagination."

The Desert Song

—BY—

VIRGINIA MORRIS

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the story by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

Old Hassi nodded. He remembered the night well, remembered the masked figure who had stepped into their camp and shouted defiantly, "Give me twenty of your young men who are not afraid to die! And if the law is wrong, we'll overturn the law!"

"I was only a boy indeed," continued the Red Shadow, "but I dreamed of saving the people of Morocco from injustice. When I returned to Fez, they forced me to esign from the army. I acted as if that blow had made me stupid, almost half-witted. I spent all my time picking wild flowers and so they searched high and low for the Red Shadow, never suspecting that he was the stupid, timid boy living right in their midst."

Then complications had arisen. General Fontaine died and the Red Shadow's own father, General Birabeau, was sent out from France to command the post at Fez. He had come with one purpose uppermost in his mind—to wipe out the Red Shadow. How was his son, Pierre, to meet this situation? Could he betray the people he had learned to love? He could not. And yet it was no less difficult to keep his parent from suspecting that his boy was an enemy of the French.

"So I continued to play the fool," he went on, "and I succeeded in deceiving my father. Now because he thinks I am a weakling he hates me. That is bad enough, but to see Margot despise me too! Why, I came to Morocco to show Margot I was a man!"

Back among the tents there came a scurry of excitement. A volley of gutteral oaths filled the night as a dozen of the Red Shadow's men dragged in a prisoner caught by the sentry. He was thrown unceremoniously in front of the fire—five feet of insignificance dressed in bulging riding breeches fashioned out of enormous checks. It was hard to say which was the most ludicrous, his outlandish clothes, his mustache on his tiny face, pale with consternation.

Hassi drew his sword, "Let's kill him! He's a spy! I'm after blood."

The stranger's squeaky voice protested, "Well, don't look at me. I'm anaemic!"

The menacing face of Hassi terrorized him.

"You can't kill me, I'm an American! I'm no spy, I'm only the society correspondent for the Paris Herald. I didn't even mean to come here. Early this morning I went out horseback riding with my friend, Pierre Birabeau. Later he gave me the slip and I thought he had headed this way."

At this point the Red Shadow came forward. He spoke in the Riff's native tongue. What he said meant that the prisoner should be released.

CHAPTER III.

Like most girls who have read story books and believed in them Margot Bonvalet was beginning to find life a bit disillusioning when she came to actually living it. She had arrived in Fez expecting to find there all the high romance of the sentimental novel. Her Paul would be a dashing hero in his uniform of the Foreign Legion. He would sweep her into his arms and carry her away on horseback, far out into the desert,—and there would be a wild courtship under the Morocco moon. But instead, she had made the disappointing discovery that Paul was first of all the soldier and only the lover when there was nothing else to interest him. His devotion to military duty made him more of a machine than a dauntless knight.

He left her alone a good share of the time and she found it necessary to rely on inconsequential flirtations with the officers or tedious conversations with General Birabeau's son, Pierre, who worshipped her at a respectful distance but who scarcely qualified as a suitor since Margot regarded him as a mollycoddle. There were no other women at the garrison except Susan, the secretary and sweetheart of Bennie Kid, the Paris Herald reporter, and Azuri, a dark-skinned native girl who was not officially one of the household but who lurked about at all hours when she might glimpse Captain Fontaine.

Margot and Susan were chatting together when Bennie returned from his desert adventure. Susan fell gratefully into his arms, then babied him with solicitous pats and anxious questions. He waved her aside. A man could not bother himself with love when he had just risked his life among the dreaded Riffs themselves.

"Bennie did you see the Red Shadow?" Susan queried.

"Yes— and what o tough guy," Bennie replied, "Why he came riding into camp on a tiger, using a rattlesnake for a whip. And because he was hungry he ordered a live cow. When it was brought in he took out his sword and cut off a slice for himself."

Susan's eyes were popping. "Raw, Bennie?"

"It was the rawest thing I ever saw done to a cow!" he assured her.

Just then Pierre Birabeau appeared in the doorway. Margot hadn't missed him for Pierre always took a nap in the afternoon. To Margot he was a nice boy though somewhat of a bore. Would she not have been astonished could she have watched him a minute before when he had hastily stuffed a scarlet burnoose into the heavily carved chest in his bedroom? Yet he had not been cautious enough, for Azuri, crouched behind a chair like some lithe animal, had seen him.

Pierre ventured timidly toward Margot and handed her a small bouquet. "See Margot, I've got some lovely wild flowers for you!"

The girl looked at him despairingly. "Wild flowers! Oh Pierre, why don't you go out and fight the Red Shadow? If only you would do one thing to make me proud of you!"

Suddenly she caught sight of Captain Fontaine coming across the court yard. When he entered she greeted him ardently.

"What luck, Paul?"

"Great luck, Margot! I nearly caught the Red Shadow. I found his secret hiding place and I've covered it with a concealed machine gun. Next time he goes there we'll mow him down."

"Bravo!" shouted General Birabeau who had arrived in time to hear Fontaine's confident boast.

"Oh, that's great!" put in Pierre. "But father, wouldn't it be funny if he didn't go there again?"

The General did not bother to answer his son and Pierre who was well accustomed to snubs, resumed silence. His father's interest was primarily in Paul. He had been watching the progress of his romance with Margot and had noted the soldier's neglect and the girl's dissatisfaction. For the sake of his friendship for Margot's father, General Birabeau sincerely desired her happiness. He saw a way of promoting it.

"A boat of the French Line stops here tonight, Paul," he told him. "It's just finishing a Mediterranean cruise. You and Margot might take the Bridal Suite and as Governor of the Post, I can marry you."

Margot interrupted. "As the bride, don't you think I deserve to be consulted?"

Paul laughed. "You could hardly be married in that riding habit, Margot!"

Margot tossed her head. "I don't suppose you thought that we two might go riding in the desert together!"

"You see, Paul," General Birabeau told him good humoredly, "Margot hoped you'd pick her up on your horse and carry her across the hot desert sands."

Perhaps Paul's sense of the romantic was partially awakened. At any rate the plan for a hasty marriage appealed to him and he begged General Birabeau to make out his passport. Then he turned to the girl.

"Margot, I'll be back for my answer in five minutes. If it's no, I'll make you say yes!"

"There, Margot, there's romance for you!" remarked the General.

As Paul crossed the inner court, Azuri sneaked up beside him. He turned on her with a furious contempt.

"Azuri, you can't follow me like this."

She rubbed her sensuous body against him. "Lover, come with me tonight to the hills—and tomorrow morning in your arms, I will whisper to you the name of the Red Shadow!"

"I don't believe you. You don't know."

Azuri twined her arms about his neck and placed her warm dark cheek next to his. "Paul, I cannot give you up to this French woman!"

Fontaine wrenched himself free and taking the girl by the shoulders he threw her roughly to the ground. Her dark eyes flashed jealously as she rose slowly, showing her gleaming white teeth, and sneering.

"Azuri—that name means tiger claw. When she loves she loves for always and when she hates—she hates!"

And Azuri crept out toward the desert, leaving this half muttered threat ringing in Fontaine's ear.

Radio Difficult To Transmit In Forest

Mysterious Barriers Exist Largely When Trees Are Sappy

When radio messages are received with comparative ease in the Arctic, and the long and short waves of electrically energized ether are received in mines deep underground, it is startling to find that difficulty is encountered in establishing radio communication in the forest. There are mysterious barriers that exist in the forest, the transmission of radio energy being affected to an unknown extent by what is called the absorption of trees. This seems to occur in spring, summer, and fall when the trees are sappy. With all the advances made by radio, it is still necessary for the protectors of our forests to use the telegraph and telephone.

Donald MacMillan To Head Expedition To Northern Lands

Donald B. MacMillan, explorer in an address has briefly outlined plans for his projected expedition into the Arctic this summer.

The schooner Bowdoin will leave from Wiscasset Harbor, June 22.

The summer will be devoted to exploration of unknown spots in Labrador and Baffin Land. He expects to return in September.

The party will work among the Nascope Indians, whose hostility to white men was overcome on a previous expedition, when they were assisted through a period of famine. Plans include a study of the great ice cap in Baffin Land, of which little is known, Commander MacMillan said.

A Strange Cargo

One of the strangest cargoes ever to be shipped on an aeroplane arrived at Croydon airport recently. When the large air freighter pulled up at the hangars, the load inside proved to be twelve monkeys, and a baby bear. They were shipped to a private animal dealer in London, from the East Indies, the distance from Amsterdam to Croydon being covered in the air freighter.

Ideal--Wherever alterations are required

IN many a fine, old-fashioned farm house there are rooms much larger than people today consider necessary. This available space can be partitioned off into extra rooms with very little work and at surprisingly small cost by the use of Gyproc Fireproof Wallboard. And the Gyproc walls and ceilings of the new rooms will match the older walls—no matter how solid they are—for seasoned rigidity, good looks and permanence.

Gyproc is the perfect building material for all modern farm construction—for homes, barns, poultry houses, granaries and garages. It is pure rock—cannot warp, shrink or burn. With the use of joint filler and tape its sections meet in a tight, flush joint that insures a flat, smooth surface and takes any decoration.

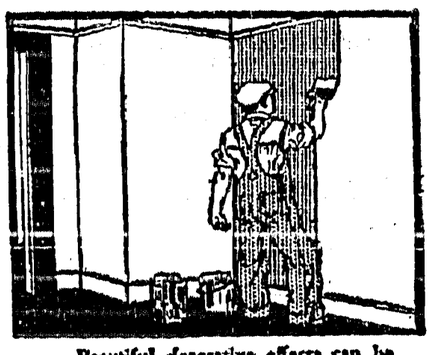
Broad, ceiling-high sections of Gyproc can be nailed directly to joists and studding—easy construction with a minimum of labor.



Beautiful decorative effects can be obtained by applying Alabastine, paint, paper or panels right over Gypcoa walls and ceilings.
