E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co.

C.P.R. President Again Visits West

E. W. Beatty and Party Stay Over Night and Visit at Kimberley Monday

E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was in the city again this week, along with a party of officials, directors and friends, almost a year since his last visit. The president's special train arrived on Sunday evening from the west and after stopping here for the night, a trip was made up to Kimberley in Monday morning, leaving about half past nine, and returning in the early afternoon, after an inspection of the Sullivan Mine and the work on the new concentrator.

Included in the party along with the president were Sir Augustus Nanton, of Winnipeg, a director, Lady Nanton, Miss Nanton and a friend, Miss Mills, General Nanton, D. C. Coleman, vice-president and general manager, C. P. R., E. S. MacPherson, vice-president of the Spokane International, C. A. Cottrell, assistant general superintendent, Pacific Dicision, Vancouver. Mr. Flett, superintendent, Crows Nest Division, of this city, was also accompanying the party through his territory. At Kimberley officials of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., were there to meet the railway officials, including J. J. Warren, president, S. G. Blaylock, general manager at Trail, and Mr. Chapman, superintendent of construction, Kimberley. Mr. E. G. Montgomery, superintendent of the Sullivan Mine, showed the party over the work in progress, in which keen interest was displayed. The visitors inspected the big tunnel at the mine, now into the mountain over six thousand feet, an experience the ladies in particular were much interested in and greatly enjoyed. The Consolidated officials returned to this city with the railway party, and Mr. Warren proceeded east on Monday afternoon in the special train, while Mr. Blaylock returned to Trail.

Conductor W. F. Cameron was in charge of the president's train on the three runs, Hugh Brock being on the engine into Cranbrook, J. J. Fennessey up to Kimberley and back, while D. R. MacKenzie took the special out and made a record run to Crows Nest.

Although their time here was short, and fully occupied, it is understood from Mr. Beatty and Mr. Coleman that they were much interested in the developments taking shape so definitely at Kimberley, and well satisfied with railway conditions in the district. In view of the diversified industrial development now in progress or prospect for this district, an unusual degree of interest attaches to this section at the present, and the railway company may be expected in the van of things wherever expansion may call for it.

The president found time to receive a small delegation from the Cranbrook Board of Trade, takingt up with him some matters of importance to the district, and which if any action is obtained from the company, will be of inestimable benefit to the district. Naturally a corporation such as the C. P. R. does not commit itself on a project till it has investigated, and if they can be shown the necessity for any given project, it usually goes through.

The President finds that there is a steady improvement in business conditions throughout the Dominion, largely influenced by the prairie crop, and he sees no reason why there should be any interruption to this condition.

"Of course, it is inevitable that we shall run into air pockets," he said recently, "but this has always been the case. "I do not look for any big boom in business, nor do we want one now, but prospects at the present are decidedly satisfactory as far as I can learn from coast to coast.

"What Canada needs above all things else is people—immigrants. There is room here for carefully chosen people from northern Italy, the Scandinavian countries, Holland and Belgium, and a few from Central Europe. Such people can be brought to Canada to the advantage of both this country and themselves."

While head of the greatest corporation in the Dominion, and a very busy man, Mr. Beatty finds time to devote much attention to community service work. He finds an outlet for this in boys' work, in which he is greatly interested in Montreal.

WOMEN CONSERVATIVES TO HOLD NEXT MEETING AT WYCLIFFE

At a meeting of the Women's Conservative Association held on Monday evening of this week at the home of Mrs. F. H. Dezall, arrangements were made to hold a reception in honor of Mrs. W. J. Bowser, if she had visited the city this week-end as was hoped. Later word was received that Mr. Bowser and Messrs. Howe and Stevens, who have been touring the interior of late, would not be able at this time to come any farther than Nelson, Mr. Bowser having to return to the Coast, in preparation for the opening of the Legislature at the end of the month.

The next meeting of the Women's Conservative Association is to take place on Monday afternoon, October 16th, at Wycliffe, when the members will be entertained at the home of Mrs. E. L. Staples. Arrangements for cars will be made by the secretary. Mr. N. A. Wallinger, member-elect for this riding, who was to have spoken at the meeting on Monday evening, was unable to return from Elko in time to attend early, and so will be at the next meeting to address the members, when it is hoped there will be a good attendance.

AT WORK ON IMPROVEMENTS TO IRRIGATION SYSTEM ON SUBDIVISION

Work is now under way putting in extensive improvements in the irrigation system on the Malcolm Horie subdivision. The committee in charge of the work is Messrs. Rosevear and A. B. Smith, the former also acting as foreman. A new dam is being put in on Joseph Creek near the present one, and the ditches are being enlarged and put in good shape. The work will be carried on during the fall, so as to have things in the best of shape for next season. Between $3,500 and $4,000 in all will be spent on the work towards which the Government at Victoria has voted some assistance in the shape of a loan up to $3,000.

A number of members of the Cranbrook Golf Club were at Waldo on Sunday last taking part in the Waldo Tournament. With the home players there, representatives were on hand from Fernie and Eureka, as well as Cranbrook.

The visitors were very well looked after, and report splendid arrangements for their hospitality while there. The Cranbrook contingent is unanimous in stating that a very enjoyable outing was had. Those attending from Cranbrook were Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Spreull, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Beale, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Grubbe, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, Messrs. E. H. McPhee, A. Graham, H. W. Herchmer, A. ODD FELLOWS' GRAND MASTER VISITS WITH LOCALS THIS WEEK

Record Turnout Greets Head of The Order in B.C. On Official Visit

M. J. Phillips of New Westminster, Grand Master for B.C. of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was in the city early this week, arriving on Monday, and leaving again the following day.

On Monday evening at the regular meeting of Key City Lodge, the Grand Master was greeted with a strong turnout of members, close upon seventy being present, including a number of visitors from other lodges. Accompanying Mr. Phillips was Bro. W. T. Choate, a past noble grand of the Nelson Lodge. The initiatory degree was exemplified with two candidates for the Grand Master, and later he addressed the members of the lodge on the progress of the Order within his jurisdiction. Bro. Choate, who has been accompanying the Grand Master through the East and West Kootenays also addressed the Lodge.

Later a joint social and dance was held with the Rebekahs in the Auditorium, with Robinson's Orchestra in attendance supplying the music. There were short addresses at this time to the Rebekahs as well from the visitors, in the course of an intermission in the social proceedings.

Bro. Phillips left soon after midnight by car for Windermere, to catch the train from there to Golden, to pay a visit to the lodge there. The trip up that night was made in H. White's car, with Messrs. White, Harry Fyles and W. Wolfer, they returning the next day shortly after noon. Bro. Choate returned to Nelson from this city on Tuesday.

AVERAGE OF TWO CARS PER DAY REGISTERED AT CAMP LAST MONTH

Sixty-six cars were registered at the municipal tourist camping site for the month of September. This is only about a third of the number stopping there the previous month, but August is of course the heavy tourist month. In September of last year only twenty-seven cars were registered, so that this year registered more than a hundred per cent. increase over last year's figure. Last year in the month of October there were also twenty-seven cars registered during the month of October.

The feeling is that next year, with the opening of the Banff-Windermere highway officially, there will be an extraordinary increase in the number of tourists coming through, substantial though the number has been this present year. The completion and opening of that portion of the highway between Banff and the Windermere has been heralded all over the continent, and there is evidence on every side that great interest has been aroused in it.

G.W.V.A. NOTES

WEDDING

WILLIS — BLACKMAN

The wedding took place quietly at Christ Church on Saturday morning of last week, September 30, of Miss Mary Ethel Blackman, of Brighton, Sussex, England, and Mr. P. William Willis, of this city.

Mrs. P. Dallas acted as matron of honor in attendance on the bride, and Mr. Miles Gibson supported the groom as best man. Rev. F. V. Harrison, rector of Christ Church, performed the ceremany, which took place at nine o'clock, and was only witnessed by one or two outside the wedding party. The bride arrived in the city last week from her home in England. Mr. Willis is well known here, and on their return to the city after the honeymoon they will be welcomed by a host of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Willis motored north after the ceremony, intending to go to the Windermere, taking in the Hot Springs, and being provided with a permit as well to go over the Banff-Windermere road. On their return to the city, they will reside in the Atchison house on Burwell Avenue.

COSGRIFFE — McKAY

The wedding took place at Coleman, Alberta, on Tuesday morning, September 20th, of Miss Jessie McKay of that place, to Mr. Frank Cosgriffe, of Kimberley, formerly of Rossland, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Cosgriffe. Mr. and Mrs. Cosgriffe have been visiting in Rossland with the parents of the groom after having spent a week or so at Spokane. They will make their home at Kimberley.

BOY SCOUTS

What the Cranbrook Troop is Doing

Forty-one Scouts took part last Friday evening in a hike which took place to a spot about two miles out on the Wycliffe road. A camp fire was built, and games took place, and the usual rounds of story-telling, singing and yarns, and a corn roast was also carried out by the fire. Scout Master J. M. Clark went along with the boys, and also Messrs. F. G. Morris, Gordon McKenna and Cyril Shaw, a scout master from Calgary, who has come to reside in the city.

There are now 73 boys who have passed the tenderfoot tests, and fourteen have second class certificates. The following are those with proficiency badges: Don Burton, marksman, swimming, cyclist, horseman and musician; Alan Gill, swimming; F. Hartnell, marksman; H. Godderis, marksman, cyclist and carpenter; Murray McFarlane, cyclist; Reg. Parrett, horseman; Alex. Nisbet, marksman.

New recruits are coming in now, this week ten more passing their tenderfoot tests.

The postponed meeting of the Boy Scout Association will be held in the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening of next week at 8 o'clock. All those interested in this important boys' work are urged to attend so as to make it as representative as possible.

DISTURBED SITUATION IN ASIA MINOR IS SPOKEN OF BY NATIVE

Rev. E. O. Eshoo, of Persia, Christian Missionary, Tells of Conditions There

People who attended at the Presbyterian Church one evening last week were given a good opportunity of learning at first hand something of the workings of the Moslem Church in Asia, which has been much before the public eye of late owing to the possibility of trouble with the Turks in the near East. Rev. E. O. Eshoo, a native of Uramia, Persia, was the speaker, giving an address on conditions in his native country, and the plight of the Christians in the Moslem countries since the period of unsettlement of recent years set in.

Mr. Eshoo is a graduate of an eastern university, and has a good command of the English language, speaking very lucidly and quite grammatically. He is a naturalized citizen of Canada, and now, a middle aged man, he is going back to his native land to help in the period of readjustment. He gave a vivid description of the aggressive customs of the Turks contrasting them with the customs and conditions in Canada.

In Persia the Mohammedan religion holds sway, although in 1914 there were over eight thousand Christians there. There are no railways, newspapers, machinery, automobiles, hotels, large buildings and elevators, etc. The harem differs widely from the Christian home, as Mohammedan mothers differ from Christian mothers. There are no public schools and it is considered a great shame for a girl to have an education.

Mr. Eshoo modestly told of the part he took in organizing his people in 1915 to help hold the enemy back, and eulogized a party of twelve British soldiers who, with machine guns, kept many thousand Turks at bay.

The account of the terrible condition of the refugees was not exaggerated. Mr. Eshoo's own mother, 73 years old, was cut and beaten to death.

"To-day," said Mr. Eshoo, "conditions are far worse than they were in 1914."

The soil of Persia is very fertile, but it is not the condition of the soil but the condition of the people which makes the prosperity of a nation; as long as the women are kept down, so long will the country be kept down."

Mr. Echoo was offered a salary of $1,500 to sell Persian rugs, but accepted $250 from the Presbyterian Mission Board instead, and when later he had an opportunity to leave the war zone he would not accept it as he preferred to live or die with his people.

In closing this address, which, coming at the present time, was particularly interesting, Mr. Eshoo asked that the Christion churches in Canada, in the spirit of brotherhood, unite to plead with the Government for that stricken people, and that we as brothers and sisters use the mighty power for those in Persia who have accepted the Christian faith.

G. W. V. A. HOLD FIRST DANCE OF SEASON ON WEDNESDAY EVENING

The first invitation dance held by the G.W.V.A. at their Hall on Wednesday, the 4th, was a most successful affair from every standpoint. Over fifty couples were present to enjoy dancing to the strains of Robinson's Orchestra.

This first dance is but the beginning of a series of such entertainments to be held by the Association throughout the winter season. It is intended to hold one every two weeks, with straight dancing, and that preceded by a whist drive alternating. The next will be a whist drive and dance to be held about October 18th. The Vets. intend to cater to the older as well as the youthful folk; and think that the idea of having a whist drive will interest many.

The manner in which the dance on Wednesday evening was conducted and the whole hearted way in which the committee worked to make the dance one to which no blemish could be attached, will certainly make these semi-monthly affairs a popular institution before the winter months become a reality.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSES IN DEAL THIS WEEK; REX SELLS OUT TO STAR

A deal of some importance is being completed this week, whereby the Cranbrook Theatres, Limited, owners of the Star Theatre, are purchasing the Rex Theatre from Teddy Clausen. Possession will be taken from the beginning of next week, it is understood. The Star will continue to operate nightly as formerly, and promises the moving picture public the best that is offering in attractions this winter, having already contracted for a number of big pictures.

Mr. Clausen's plans following the change have not been learned.

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?

There are always two sides to a question, and just to show how figures may usually be quoted to buttress any argument on public policy, here are a few that came to notice this week. They are not specially quoted to support an argument in favor of prohibition against any other form of liquor control, but merely as of interest in view of the fact that last week a correspondent condemned prohibition in principle. The United States is held up as a glaring example of how prohibition does not prohibit anything it was intended to, but there is more than a suspicion that this impression has arisen because of the publicity given the activities of those who make it their business to bring the liquor laws of both Canada and the United States into disrepute, particularly along the border, and on the sea coast, or other places where there are geographical conditions that are favorable for the operations of these gentry.

But the United States is a large country, and it is a natural presumption that there are sections of it where there is more respect shown to the laws of the country, and to those places also seekers of information in respect to the workings of prohibition should go, if they are sincere seekers after truth.

Along the border would certainly not seem the logical place to gather data pro or con on any matter concerning the workings of liquor legislation. No matter what system of control was in effect, the chances are there would be the same rum-running activities on both sides.

Here are some figures, which may be taken for what they are are worth, concerning twenty-five American cities. They do not include either New York or Chicago, possibly because of the difficulty there may be in obtaining complete records, or for other reasons. These twenty-five cities represent a total population of over four million people, however, and not one of them is less than a hundred thousand.

It is shown that in 1917-18, wet years, the arrests from all causes in these cities was 1,225,-452. Of this total intoxication is made responsible for 408,111. In 1920-21, years of Volstead administration, arrests from all causes diminish to 1,089,905, of which intoxication becomes responsible for 241,112. This makes a decrease during the dry years, for all causes, of 136,457, and from intoxication of 166,689. All the cities listed, however, do not tell the same story. San Francisco shows an increase, not a decrease, and Minneapolis, Birmingham and Portland, Ore., are other points distinguishing themselves in the same way.

So there are the figures. Take them or leave them. They go to prove that figures may be made to prove both sides of an argument, and that the only way to arrive at a conclusion in a matter of this kind is to examine the principles involved. And in the meantime, the question for B.C. is how to arrive at the best system of liquor control, before the administration of the present Act becomes held as lightly as in the prohibition days preceding it.

Calgary, Alberta.—Calgary's reputation as the leading telephone city on the North American continent, with one instrument in use for every 4.10 persons, will be maintained this year, according to E. Eachers, who is in charge of the production of the new telephone directory.

FROM THE VIEW-POINT OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES

Kemal and Canada.

In any event, whatever wrong there may be in allied diplomacy up to the present situation, Kemal will place himself in wrong the moment he attacks the neutral territory of the Dardanelles. When he does this, he strikes at Canada as a signatory to the Treaty of Sevres.

Unless Canada is to be rated with that class of nation which recognizes treaties only as scraps of paper, an act of war against the internationalized territory is an act of war against Canada. Our vaunted nationhood means nothing unless it means a willingness to share the responsibilities of nationhood. To shrink before the first real test of international status, of membership in the League of Nations, is to violate self-respect, to prove subordination to selfish interest.

The Debt of Canada.

The net debt of Canada declined nearly $5,000,000 in August, but this particular swallow does not make a financial summer. The figures for a longer period are not so reassuring. In the year ending August 31 the debt was $43,000,000 greater than on the same date a year ago.

Putting The Railways Back Into Politics.

S. W. Jacobs, Liberal M.P. for Jacques Cartier, who is by way of being a "candid friend" of the Government, made a speech recently in Winnipeg in which he declared that the National Railways, removed entirely from the realm of patronage by the Meighen Government, are already being used for patronage purposes, and that the first qualification of the new directors will be that they are faithful Liberals. He said:

"At the present moment a number of officials of the Government railways are being replaced. These were *either Conservatives or were ap*pointed under the Unionist Government. Now a Liberal Government being in power, they must go, and Liberals must be given their places. Such is not in the interest of the efficient administration of any railway system, and without efficiency you have failure. Directors are about to be appointed. Every one of them will be Liberals. They will not be appointed because they have any railway knowledge or technical capacity. They will be appointed because of the political services they have rendered to the Liberal party. The mere fact that these directors will be appointed by the Government makes them the creatures of the Government. You cannot get away from it."—Exchange.

Mystery Mack of Montreal

A Serial written specially for the Cranbrook Herald.

1. The Stanton Murder

By DEAN KEATS

CRANBROOK, B.C.

SYNOPSIS

John Stanton, Ranmore Superintendent of the R.C.R., has been found murdered in his office. Mytery Mack of Montreal, well known detective, is called in by the railroad to probe the mystery. An initialled pocket knife, supposed to belong to Joe Murphy, who is known to have had cause to dislike the murdered man, is found in the room, but the detective also finds some clues that seem to indicate a feminine hand in the mystery. He commences his investigations by talking with a Mrs. Ruscom, whose hunchback son is also known to have borne a strong dislike to the murdered railroad official. Mack spent some time that night giving the exterior of the building and its surroundings a close examination, and in doing so unearths a woman's initialed handkerchief. This he places along with other feminine clues, and his next step is to go and see Murphy, whose knife was found near the murdered man. His interview with Murphy does not apparently lead to anything, the man proving a typical hot-headed son of Erin. He has another interview with Jed Rus*com, the hunchback, and becomes con*vinced of his innocence. Later, at his hotel, a note is put under his door endeavoring to fasten the crime on Murphy. Examination of the notes reveals the fact that it is of foreign origin, and putting this and other clues in his possession together the detective starts on his hunt for the murderer of Stanton. His suspicion rests on an Italian named Ferrera who has had disagreements with Murphy, and in the guise of a canvasser the detective locates the house. He next turns his attention to the mysterious notes he had been receiving. He pursues his investigations in different directions, and all the evidence he gathers points to the fact that he is narrowing down on his man.

He causes the arrest of Ferrara, and taxes him with the crime, and reveals the course of his investigations.

Mystery Mack paused for a second and studied the Italian's face, but the mixture of emotions there was hard to read. The policemen were watching the great detective as though he were a wizard.

"You knew that I had been detailed to take charge of the case, and you watched every move that I made, or had your friends watch for you. Josie had taken a position in the hotel where I have been stopping, and you forced her to help you. When you thought the time was ripe, you sent me a note, with Josie's aid, pointing the finger of suspicion at Bob Murphy. You did not belong to a black hand society, but you tried their methods, although you showed less skill in the details of your plans."

Mystery Mack paused again, and unfolded the three sheets of paper which had carried the mysterious messages, then holding them up one by one to the view of the Italian, he said:

"You forgot, for instance, that certain brands of writing materials carry water marks which can be plainly seen if you hold them up to the light. You forgot that the Jew who owns the little shop where you bought the pod of writing material might remember you, for he does not make many sales. You forgot that even though you printed the letters in the messages there were certain little twists and loops which betrayed the fact that the writer of those notes was a foreigner."

Mystery Mack laid the last of the notes down, and continued:

"You became alarmed through something that your countrymen had overheard when I was talking to Bob Murphy, and you decided that you would have to kill me too. So you sent me this last message, which very kindly offered me a chance to escape if I would give up the case; that was your last hope."

The famous detective rose and walked around his desk until he towered over the Italian, slumped in his chair. He said:

"Angelo Ferrara; I accuse you of the murder of John Stanton; will you plead guilty?"

CHAPTER X.

For a moment there was deathly quiet in the room, and the Italian did not stir.

The detective returned to his chair behind the desk and waited. Suddenly Ferrara leaped to his feet, and was quickly grasped by the two policemen, but the Italian was not trying to escape; he raised his arms above his head, and shouted:

"Yes, yes! I keela him, I keela him! You are a devil, but you hava founda me out; you speeka de truth. He ruina my Josie, and I keela him! A thousanda times I keela him if I could getta him. I nomore care. Takea me away; I keela him, yes I keela him."

Exhausted by his passion and the mental agony he had gone through while Mystery Mack told of the crime, the Italian slumped down into his chair. The policemen snapped the handcuffs on his wrists and almost carried him out of the room to the police wagon which was waiting below.

Mystery Mack looked tired, worn, as though, now that the guilty man were in the toils, he felt sorry for him. He looked up at the two remaining policemen, and said:

"I think the judge should recommend him to the mercy of the jury; you know, he had great provocation."

The policemen nodded their heads in agreement. One of them, a sargeant with his three stripes, said:

"That was a masterly third degree. I yonder if you would tell us how you managed to get the evidence which enabled you to tell the exact story of the crime to Ferrara?"

"It was simple enough," Mystery Mack said, "be seated, both of you, and I'll tell you just how I did it."

"Of course the very first thing that I noticed when I saw the body the first morning was that the shot had entered the body in a most peculiar way, as it went down through the top was no opening in the ceiling from which the shot could have been fired. It was plain from the blood stains that Stanton had been shot in the room. I was looking out of the window when I felt a slivered groove cut along the sill by the course of a bullet. Mys*tery Mack picked up a sliver from the* desk and looked at it, as he said: "This is the sliver which revealed that groove in the sill to me. Now that groove showed me that Stanton had been leaning out of the window, the other window, when the shot had been fired. The next thing I noticed was this!"

Mystery Mack held up to view the curled up hairs.

"I found these tangled around a button on the coat of the dead man, which indicated at once that there was a woman in the case. The hairs were dark, and beautiful, so I knew I must look for a dark haired woman.

"I found the knife beside the body, but concluded it had been planted as false evidence, as the bullet mark on the window sill showed that the murderer had never entered the room. *This locket in the pocket of the mur*dered man was a further evidence that Stanton had been shot because of a woman, and probably a foreign woman, as the locket was of foreign make."

Mystery Mack held up to view the linen handkerchief; as he said:

"This small handkerchief has two initials in the corner, as you will see. You will notice that they are 'J.F.'; it was doubtful whether it had anything to do with the case, but later I proved that it had.

"There you are, there is the evidence I had to work on, and gradually evolved the theory, which led me to the conclusions which formed the story of the murder as I told it to Ferrara.

"Of course I soon understood that Jed Ruscom had nothing to do with the murder, although he was the son of the dead man and was supposed to hate him. Jed had been watching Stanton's office the night of the murder, and helped me to piece together the theory which I was working out. Bob Murphy I dismissed from my thoughts. He was too utterly frank to be guilty, and there was no dark haired woman to connect him with the crime.

"It was when Ferrara sent the first mysterious note under my door that I got the first real lead which pointed to the murderer. Whoever had committed the crime was anxious to fasten the guilt on Murphy. The later threatening notes proved that my theory was right in that regard.

"I gradually connected up the evidence. I found the dark haired girl through a visit to the Italian section, and her name was correct for the initials on the handkerchief.

"Now I looked for the man who had written and sent the messages, and found him by tracing his purchase of writing material at an obscure little Jewish shop in the foreign quarter. He proved to be the Italian who had a grudge against the Irish section foreman, Bob Murphy, so that my theories were about connected up. The morning I saw Josie going in the back door of the hotel to work gave me the final bit which I needed, and I then asked you to arrest Ferrara.

"That was all, gentlemen, you see it was simple enough; it only required time, thought and patience."

"It takes more than that," the sergeant of police said, as he and his mate rose to leave the room, "it takes something that you have that the rest of the detectives on the continent seem to lack. No wonder they call you Mystery Mack!"

ALL THE YEAR ROUND MOTORING IS ONE OF VANCOUVER ISLAND'S CHARMS

TYEE CAUGHT ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

MALAHAT DRIVE

SPROAT LAKE, VANCOUVER ISLAND

The motorists' idea of paradise is a beautiful country where roads and weather permit continuous traveling. The nearest approach to that ideal in the north-western part of this continent is Vancouver Island. Nature has provided beauty and the right sort of climate; man has built fine roads. The temperature of Victoria, the hub of Island life, is so modified by the Japan current that its average mean temperature is 45 degrees F. There is a range of only 22 degrees F. between the mid-winter and mid-summer averages.

Sunshine is the rule, averaging nearly six hours for each day in the year. Of course, the summer days have longer hours, but there is enough sunshine all winter to keep vegetation green and gardens in bloom. While Victoria has few rainy days, the annual precipitation being 27.46 inches, which is less than that of any other Pacific coast point north of San Francisco, the city has abundance of water caught by neighboring mountains.

Although situated on the south*ernmost tip of an island, Victoria* is quite free from fogs. Because of its low range of variance in temperature and clearness of atmosphere, this city was chosen by the Canadian Government as the site for its two great observatories.

The motor roads of the Island are worthy of their setting. Victoria with its miles of residential streets and more miles of marine drives and beautiful views, is the starting point for many delightful trips. Among them are the 40 miles of Saanich Peninsula, skirting Cadboro and Cordova Bays; winding, thrillful roads that climb up to the observatories, and a fourteen mile run to the famous Butchart Estate with its sunken gardens, metamorphosed rock garden and exquisite Japanese garden.

The Island Highway is the pride of the Island. It is a 170 mile stretch of well-made road running from Victoria to Campbell Falls along the Gulf of Georgia. It is strung with picturesque towns and branch roads lead to such delightful resorts as Shawinigan Lake, Cowichan Lake, Cameron Lake, Great Central Lake, and many a trout stream. The southern portion of the Highway is known as the Malahat Drive, pronounced by the knowing ones as a perfect motorway.

MEAN NIGHTS & DAYS OF ITCHING TORTURE.

A well-known physician says that he comes across many terrible cases of secret skin disease. Because there's a natural disinclination to seek advice, the sufferer either neglects the trouble in its early stages, or else aggravates it by use of some poisonous mineral ointment. Whilst this may hide up surface trouble, it also drives disease further into the skin.

* * * *

You cannot thoroughly and permanently banish diseases like eczema, tetter, psoriasis, ringworm, etc., unless you first destroy all disease germs. Zam-Buk does this quickly and thoroughly.

Zam-Buk is unique in its germicidal and healing strength. Its soothing herbal essences penetrate into the skin right into the weakened and diseased inner tissues, killing the germs and uprooting disease at its very source.

The first dressing of Zam-Buk ends the dreadful itching and when all sore inflamed tissues have been thoroughly soothed and purified by Zam-Buk, every trace of disease is made to disappear, and there is a splendid new growth of clear healthy skin.

UNCOVER BIG BLOCK OF GALENA AT MINE IN THE WINDERMERE

(Special to The Herald)

Invermere, B.C., Sept. 27.—Miners working on the White Cap mineral claim owned by Mr. J. C. Pitts, the merchant of this place, have just uncovered a block of pure galena measuring in the rough 19 x 19 x 29 inches which by approximation would weigh in the neighborhood of one and a half tons of solid metal. It is Mr. Pitts's hope that some time in the future he will have it brought to town and set up as a mineral specimen.

While small in comparison this reminds one of the famous mass of copper found on a river running into Lake Superior on the South shore. It was discovered by the Indians in prehistoric period, and many of the famous explorers through that neighborhood mentioned it, particularly Alexander Henry, the elder, who examined it in 1766. David Thompson in his narative describes it very fully, writing of it while in that neighborhood in 1798, as set out in Tyrell's work (Champlain Society) he says:

"Learning from my men that a short distance up the river there was a large mass of copper, we left our canoe and proceeded on foot to it; we found it lying on the beach of lime*stone at the foot of a high crag of the* same. Its shape was round, in the upper part a low convex, all worn quite smooth by the action of water and ice, but now lying dry. We tried to cut a chip out from it, but it was too tough for our small axe."

Mr. E. A. Preble of the Biological Survey Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., commenting on this in a foot note in the work, says that this mass of copper now rests in the U.S. National Museum at Washington, and it is said to weigh about three tons. It was brought from its original resting place by Julius Eldred in 1841, claimed by the United States Government in 1843, and later by an Act of Congress Eldred was compensated for his expenses in connection with it to the extent of $5,664.98.

NOVEMBER SPORTSMAN'S MAGAZINE "ROD AND GUN" IS ATTRACTIVE NUMBER

There are several different features in the November issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, which combine to make it a particularly attractive number. The well known writer, Harry M. Moore, is at his best in "Sar' Ann," an interest gripping tale, and there are other stories that are of a high quality. The article "Logs," descriptive of the logging and lumbering industry and of scenes and incidents in the lives of the brawny men who labor in it, is one of outstanding quality. The de*partment, "Along the Trap Line,"* resumes in this issue, with Mr. M. U. Bates as editor, and this should be a guarantee that the department will enjoy all its old success, and will be of the same high standard that it has been in the past. The other departments are of their usual excellence. "Guns and Ammunition" includes splendid articles by E. T. Martin and E. T. D. Francis, as well as detailed accounts of the D.R.A. and the O.R.A. matches, and the other regular features of the magazine are of similar quality.

Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly at Woodstock, Ontario, by W. J Taylor, Limited.

Toronto.—American tourists last year spent $75,000,000 in Canada, according to an estimate made in an official report of the Dominion Government's Parks Department.

Last year more than 100,000 tourist motor cars entered Canada; that would mean upward of half a million tourists. This year the number will be much greater, for the tide is growing rapidly. The railways are having a very busy season.

Winnipeg.—After a careful survey of reports received from C.P.R. agents throughout the West, it is estimated that this year's crop will approximate 317,000,000 bushels, according to the weekly crop report of the C.P.R. agricultural department issued here.

Reports indicate that the Western crop generally is turning out well. Even in areas where poor yields were looked for, the conditions have proved better than anticipated.

Vernon.—Present indications are that the 1922 British Columbia apple crop will total about 2700 or 3000 cars.

Last season was the province's big crop year, when approximately 3500 cars were packed out.

The C.P.R. has made many provisions to take care of the valley's transportation demands. On nearly every side between here and Calgary refrigerator cars are waiting to be shunted to the packing houses, while houses are well stocked.

Calgary.—While Calvin Coolidge, Vice-President of the United States, was not inclined to talk about trade relations, tariffs or anything of that nature when he arrived here on the Trans-Canada train of the Canadian Pacific Railway, he waxed most eloquent in his praises of Banff and Lake Louise and of the Canadian Rockies along the route by which he had travelled.

"No wonder you Canadians are proud of your mountains," he asserted; "they are magnificent."

The Vice-President spent some time in conversation with J. M. Cameron, general superintendent of the Alberta Division of the C.P.R.

Montreal.—According to a joint circular issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, Mr. Allan Cameron is appointed Oriental manager, with office at Hong Kong, effective October 1.

It is understood that Mr. Cameron will be in charge of both traffic and operating departments. The extensive growth in recent years of Canadian Pacific activities in the Orient, with enlarged fleets and services which have added Manila to the ports of call, has involved also the transfer of the administrative headquarters from Yokohama to Hong Kong. Mr. Cameron is familiar with Hong Kong, as from January, 1901, to September, 1905, he was located there as general agent of the Asiatic business of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's line of steamers.

Mr. Cameron's first connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway was at Winnipeg as clerk of the local freight office in 1887.

Moose Jaw.—D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was a visitor in the city for a few hours, while en route to Victoria.

Mr. Coleman made the announcement that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had leased the last of its terminal elevators at the head of the Great Lakes, on a long term lease, to the Consolidated Elevator Co. interests. The capacity of the elevator is eight million bushels. The lessees will assume possession on September 1.

The leasing of the elevator is in conformity with the announced in*tention of the railway executives to* go out of the terminal elevator business.

Asked as to the completion of the Assiniboia-Lethbridge line gap, Mr. *Coleman stated that it was antici*pated that the gap would be completed late this fall. Much, however, would depend on whether the contractor would be able to hold his men during the harvest season.

Relative to the grading on the line from Consul east Mr. Coleman stated that the first thirty miles had been completed and the contractor was now working on the second thirty miles.

WILL DUMPING CLAUSE ON IMPORTED FRUITS BE RESTORED AGAIN?

Strong Representations Being Made To Ottawa From All Quarters of B.C.

Strong representations were made to Hon. J. H. King before he returned from this Province to the East, looking towards the restoration of the dumping clause in the tariff governing importations of fruit from the United States into Canada, and he is stated to have wired back a recommendation that this be done before he left. The Dominion Government had previously appointed a travelling representative to look into the situation, and in due course this official reported to Ottawa that he could find no evidence of dumping on the prairies as complained of. This did not satisfy Okanagan growers, who took the matter up with the official in question, and induced him to visit that Valley, and also the Washington and Oregon fruit districts to compare conditions. As a re*sult the previous report was altered,* and he agreed that fruit had been sent over the Canadian border to be sold at a price that had no regard for cost of production, which would warrant the restoration of the dumping clause. A strong committee went from the Okanagan Valley to wait on Dr. King, with the result that he is said to have recommended its restoration. Both sides of politics are working towards this end, the recent Liberal Conven*tion at Nelson passing a strong reso*lution on the question to be forwarded to Ottawa urging the same thing.

It has been stated that the Customs Office at Vancouver has received instructions to receive entries subject once more to the dumping clause, but such a ruling would most likely be made general, and no intimation has so far been received from Ottawa by the office in Cranbrook. In the meantime, fruit growers in different parts of the Province, especially in the soft fruit sections, have been hit the hardest blow in years. The strike on the American rail lines sent a lot of fruit over the line that otherwise would not have come, and at the same time served to restrict what small market comparatively Canadian fruit has hitherto been enjoying in the States. There have been big crops in both the east and west, adding to the difficulties of the situation.

JUDGMENT RESERVED ON CROW LINE DAY TRAIN BY RAILWAY COMMISSION

During the proceedings at the sittings of the Railway Commission at Lethbridge last week, Chairman Carvel threw out a compromise suggestion that it might be possible to arrange for a through mixed freight and passenger service to replace the present day trains on the Crow's Nest line.

In placing the case of the Railyay Company before the Commissioners, Mr. Walker submitted a statement showing that the cost of operation from September 1 to September 14 of the present year was $3,202,21, while the total earnings for that period, less mail and express earnings, were $903.40. From mileage from the mail car $58.56 was received, and from express a total of $1,005.16, roughly speaking, half of which was paid over to the Railway Company by the Dominion Express Co.

This left a net deficit of approximately $40 a day for the two weeks. In reply to the contention of the protestants that the period in question was a dull time in the summer as against the winter when travel was the heaviest, figures were submitted by Mr. Walker showing that between October 31, 1921 and March 31, 1922 the earnings were $49,431.70, while the gross earnings for the five months beginning April 1, 1922, were $55,-675.12.

Mayor Rosenberry of Pincher Creek stated that the night trains were at times in an unsanitary condition, owing to the crowding of the coaches.

J. B. Turney, speaking as a witness on behalf of the Lethbridge Board of Trade, protested that taking off the daylight service would mean putting Lethbridge back so far as train service went to the condition 20 years ago.

A resolution against the removal of the trains was submitted by the commercial travelers of the district. The Commission reserved judgment, which will be given out from Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ontario.—Every man in Canada who wants work can get it, according to managers of labor bureaux who are advertising for men. There is plenty of work, it is claimed, and more jobs than there are applicants for them. The majority of vacant positions is for laborers, though the situation regarding skilled labor is stated to be brighter.

A certain sallow Chicago swain has an amazingly large mouth which he contorted into an all-pervading smile when he wished to make a good impression. His sweetie had persuaded him to "ask father," and the youth was determined to show himself to good advantage.

"Mister Jones," he began, stretching his principal feature to the utmost geniality. "I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter. I—"

"Just a moment, young man," interrupted the old gentleman mildly, "would you mind closing your mouth for a moment till I see who you are?"

Xmas in the Old Country Special Arrangements

A visit to the Old Country is something that a great number of people are giving thought to at this season of the year, and many have already made plans to reach their friends in time for the Christmas and New Year Season.

Canadian Pacific steamships are deservedly popular for this trip, and to give extra special accommodation for those who are going overseas this season, the Canadian Pacific Railway has arranged for a special train to connect with the S.S. Montcalm, sailing from St. John on Tuesday, December 12th. Through tourist sleepers will be operated from Edmonton at 10.00 p.m. Thursday, December 7th, and from Calgary at 1.35 a.m. Friday, December 8th, making connection with this special train leaving Winnipeg at 9.20 a.m. December 9th.

Special tourist sleepers from Calgary, Edmonton, via regular trains will also be operated in connection with the sailings from St. John of the S.S. Montrose on December 1st, S.S. Victorian December 7th, S.S. Melita December 9th, S.S. Metagama December 15th.

All these tourist sleepers run right to the ship's side—no changes, no inconvenience. They are the gang plank to the steamer. 32-4

IMMORAL PENGUINS

Mr. T. W. Bagshawe and Mr. M. C. Lester, two members of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition, have reached England. Their expedition left London in September, 1920, for the Antarctic, intending to chart the western shores of the Weddell Sea. These gentlemen have reported many inter*esting incidents and observations,* of which the following is an example:

Penguins are strangely human in many respects. There are married couples, living together, some of the couples models of domestic happiness, others the reverse, just as in human beings; single penguins of both sexes, flappers and glad-eyers.

While some husbands remained faithful to their wives and some wives to their husbands, others did not. "Mrs. Harriet" was a glaring example of this, and "Mr. Harrison" suffered more than one sound thrashing when caught by the irate husband of "Mrs. Harriet" too near the domestic hearth. Then there was the case where the woman wore the breeches, and an errant husband was caught flirting by his wife, knocked down by her, and made to sit on their eggs.

Then there was a whole colony of birds living on a rubbish dump some distance away which were regular outsiders—the criminals of the place. A dirty and most unkempt lot, they were ostracised by the others on account of their continual brawling, thieving, and general low habits. The members of this colony made a regular habit of stealing the stones from other birds' nests and were always being chastised.

Penticton, B.C.—At a recent meeting of the United Seed Growers it was reported that the business booked so far this year is greater than the total volume of trade in 1921. Express shipments of fruit from Penticton this year are double those of the same time a year ago. There have been approxi*mately 20,000 crates of fruit* expressed from this point already.

Blacksnakes seeking a comfortable home, rent and taxes free, are invited to the golf links of the Coatesville Country Club, in Coatesville, Pa. Along the sides of the course underbrush has been permitted to grow thick, and tempting rock piles with full southern exposure have been placed to lure the snakes from adjacent lands. An educational campaign has been inaugurated among golfers with an aversion to reptiles in order that there may be no repetition of the deaths by violence which came to two of the organization's pets. Champions of the blacksnake declare that it is the most efficient natural enemy of the ground mole, which admittedly is the natural enemy of golf greens. Not only does the snake go right into the mole's borings and discourage that animal's operations, but it is alleged to kill off rattlers and copperheads. It is harmless to mankind, and is unlikely to appear suddenly to disconcert a player about to putt; for it works at night.

FERNIE PASSES BY-LAW FOR SCHOOL EXTENSION WITH LARGE MAJORITY

Effort To Be Made To Dispose Of Debenture Issue To Local Buyers

(Fernie Free Press)

The by-law for the purpose of authorizing the city to borrow $32,000 for a four roomed extension to the Central School was submitted to the tax payers on Tuesday and received an affirmative response in the ratio of 9 to 1. The total number of votes cast was 260, of which 234 were in favor and 26 against. The aggregate amount necessary for completing the addition, including the furnishings, will be in the neighborhood of $49,000, the difference being obtained through the statutory grant from the Provincial Government. Construction on the extension will be commenced immediately.

In connection with the debenture issue authorized when the by-law passed with such handsome support, an effort will be made to dispose of these debentures direct to the public, preferably among the citizens of Fernie. This method, called "over-the-counter bond sales," has been tested in the past and met with very good success. Some years ago the town of Kaslo sold school debentures to a substantial amount among its own citizens. Nelson quite easily sold bonds of the denomination of $100 locally, while in larger cities throughout this continent in late years very large issues have been taken up by the people at home.

It is hoped that when the council submits its proposal for the $32,000 issue that there will be ready response by the people of Fernie. At the present time in British Columbia there are municipalities that have collateral against loans secured from the banks in large issues of bonds. Most of these issues could be sold at a price which would yield from 6 to 6½ per cent. to the investor. This is a much larger return than is paid on savings accounts, and therefore, considering the reliability of the security, should be a great inducement for local investors to take up the entire amount.

As far as can be ascertained the debentures will be issued in denominations to suit the purchaser, principal payable at the end of 20 years. The main thing for the citizens to do at this time it to submit their applications to the city clerk for these bonds.

ACCUSED IN COLEMAN MURDER GIVEN HEARING BEFORE MAGISTRATE

Both Prisoners Are Committed to Stand Trial. R. B. Bennett for Defense.

Emil Piccariello and Mrs. Lassandro, accused of the murder of Constable Layson at Coleman recently, were given their preliminary hearing there this week, the court opening Monday. It is evident that intense interest is going to be aroused in that section by the case, the opera house where the magistrate held court being crowded, and a large percentage of those present were of the foreign element. Known as the "Emperor of the Pass," Piccariello seems to have lost a good deal of his customary sang froid, as he realizes the seriousness of his position, but Mrs. Lassandro, his accomplice, has apparently few qualms in regard to the matter, from her reported attitude maintained during the hearing.

By cross examination on both sides the details of the crime are coming out, and from a perusal of the evidence it would appear that the line of defence at the trial will be to attempt to prove that it was not Piccariello who fired the shots, but that they came from the car in which the woman remained seated, or elsewhere. If the responsibility for the murder of Constable Lawson is taken off from "Pick's" shoulders, he may escape the extreme penalty, and humane grounds would probably be invoked if the woman were found to have fired the fatal shot.

R. B. Bennett, K.C., of Calgary, will have charge of the defence of the prisoners at the assize trial, assisted by C. F. Harris, of Lethbridge, who has had charge of the defence in the preliminary hearing, and Messrs. Gillies & McKenzie, of Blairmore.

YOUTHFUL HIKER ON LONG JAUNT MAKES STOP IN CRANBROOK

Cranbrook is on the road for the long distance hikers, it would seem. There have been plenty of them in evidence here, and this week another put in an appearance in the person of Samuel Diamond, nineteen years and a half, who is walking from New York to Mexico, via Canada. He arrived in Cranbrook Sunday evening, and left on Tuesday. He makes expenses on the way by selling cards with his picture on at any price he can get for them. He came here from Calgary, and goes from here to Spokane, up across the border again, on to Vancouver and down to Mexico. On the conclusion of this little hike he plans on a bicycle trip around the world, visiting the big cities and capitals, and working his way across the ocean.

The youthful hiker is also out on the raid for his health, and during his trip thus far has put on some 20 pounds in weight. While here he was introduced to Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the C. P. R., who purchased one of his cards, and spoke with him. Young Diamond is a native of New York, and served for a year in the United States army. He was a newsboy in the suburbs of New York for five years. He has been on the way since April last, and expects to finish in about a year more. He has now visited eight states in the U. S., and six provinces of Canada. Supplies had to be replenished here, and having worn through three pairs of shoes on the trip, he was fitted out with a new pair here, and also procured a new knapsack, and was helped by the Herald to the extent of a little assistance towards a camera he needed to record something of his travels in picture form and his stock of cards was overhauled here also. Starting out with fifty cents in his pocket he made his way as far as Calgary working for his meals en route, and still had twenty cents to the good. At that point he started to sell his cards to meet expenses instead.

LIBERAL CONVENTION AT NELSON ENDS ITS LABORS LAST WEEK

The Liberal Convention in Nelson last week concluded its sessions on Friday, and the following day the local delegates returned to the city. A very enthusiastic gathering is reported, with a large attendance, Premier Oliver and most of the available members of the provincial government and the private members on the Liberal side being present, and the party members for the province in the federal house. M. A. Macdonald was re-elected president of the B. C. Liberal Association, and C. D. McNab of Waldo was elected treasurer.

In several of the questions before the convention the Kootenays had a special interest. Perhaps the biggest was the proposal to endorse a memorial from Trail asking for protective duties upon copper rods and other products of refined copper, but this the convention decided to lay over. J. F. Hucheroft of this city proposed a committee of three which should study the question during the ensuing year, and present the result of its deliberations to next year's convention. The proposal was not acted upon.

A resolution demanding from the government at Ottawa that the anti-dumping clause be put into effect against the United States fruit, was, of course of special interest to parts of the Kootenay, and the arguments in support were so well set forth by Okanagan men that no further argument was demanded.

There was an interestind debate There was an interesting debate on a resolution for exclusion of orientals. A. I. Fisher of Fernie declared that the solution must be on economic and not international lines, and illustrated his point by mentioning the case of the returned soldiers at Camp Lister..

"If the government will work out a standard of living, so that the soldiers can live, they will not let the orientals get an acre of land," he is stated to have said. "But if living conditions are made so onerous that they cannot live, the soldiers will have to go and the orientals will get that land. The government has several soldier settlements, and I believe the conditions at Lister are not different from those in other settlements. The men went into Camp Lister two years ago or so, but at the prices now given them, there is no chance of success, and the same applies to Vancouver Island. When they have asked the government the price of their land, instead of being told that appraisers will be sent to fix a value, they are told that the price of the land will be the cost of labor on the land and all the mistakes must be counted in. It is just like charging up against an Ontario farm all the labor put on it from the beginning. These conditions are placed upon the returned soldier, and makes it impossible for whites to hold on to the land, and it goes to the Chinese."

HIRING HELP SOLELY ON REFERENCES PLAN WRONG TALMADGE PLAY TEACHES

Good References Are Often Deceiving and Many Working Girls Without Them says Constance

A shining example of the fallacy of employing help solely on the reference plan is presented to employers in a delightful way by Constance Talmadge in her newest picture, "Good References," to be shown at the Star Theatre commencing Monday, October 9. In this picture the heroine is a poor girl seeking a job without references. She is turned down everywhere until finally she "borrows" the references of a sick friend. The scheme works and she gets a job, and proves quite efficient.

The trouble with many employers, according to Miss Talmage, is the fact that they themselves pay too little attention to the study of character and too much to looking up past records of achievement. "Many girls with little experience previously would prove excellent workers if they were only given a chance," she says. "But the employers are afraid to try them out. However, times are getting better, and I hope to see employers gain a broader and more human point of view. If a picture such as the one I have just made has any influence towards bettering the condition of deserving girls by calling attention to bad business practices, then I will feel satisfied. Knowing that references are sometimes misleading and often fail to do justice to the bearer, wise employers are hiring their assistants on a trial basis."

ONE OF A BIG BUNCH

An editor, going away for a vacation, left his paper in charge of a minister. During the minister's stay in his sanctum the following letter came from a country subscriber:

You know d—— well I paid my subscription to your paper the last time I was in town. If I get any more such letters from you as I received last week I will come to town and maul h—— out of you!

The minister answered:

I have been trying to maul that thing out of the editor for ten years past; and if you will really come to town and maul it out of him, then, my dear sir, I have twenty members of my church I will also get you to operate on.

All of which goes to show that the printer averages up pretty well with the elect.—The Business Printer.

ROBERT McKIM IN A POWERFUL ROLE

The producing genius of Benjamin B. Hampton, maker of great photoplays, is many sided. It is seen in his photodramatizations of the novels he films and in the musical scores that he writes for them; in the art backgrounds to interpret the subtle meanings of written titles and in the technical detail of his big productions. But next to the work of dramatizing, it is most apparent and most to be appreciated in his selection of the players to portray the characters of his film stories.

Mr. Hampton made a particular find in Robert McKim, the polished, masterly and subtle histrionic artist, who has appeared in many of his productions. In the "Mysterious Rider," adapted from Zane Gray's novel, a tale of love, thrills and adventure, with an ample spicing of delicious humor, Mr. McKim has a powerful and sympathetic role.

Movie custom, tradition and worship of the established once held Mr. McKim in strictly "villain" roles and he achieved great note for the excellence of his villainy. But Mr. Hampton saw that McKim was a great villain not because he was better fitted to be a villain than anything else, but because he was a great actor.

As "Wade" in "The Mysterious Rider," he has a part that is sympathetic all the way through, and he proves once for all the wisdom of Mr. Hampton's selection.

Mr. McKim forms one of of a powerful triangle who bear the histrionic burden of the play. Others of the cast are very effective and still further reflect the genius of the producer. "The Mysterious Rider" plays at the Star Theatre, Friday and Saturday, October 13 and 14.

STAR THEATRE, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th and 14th.

A distinct photoplay novelty is promised in "Footfalls" the William Fox super-special which will begin at the Star on Wednesday, October 11. Reviewers and audiences hail the production as a notable motion picture achievement. Those who have read the story of "Footfalls" by Wilbur Daniel Steele, which was awarded the first prize as the best short story published in America in 1920, will wonder how it could be presented faithfully as a picture play, for the central idea hinges upon sound and hearing. It is said, however, that by the means of a number of ingenious devices a sort of screen miracle has been achieved, giving a vivid impression of the sound and hearing of footfalls throughout.

"Footfalls" is declared to be a gripping and thrilling mystery photoplay, a cinedrama of an entirely new type. It deals with the experiences of a New England cobbler. He develops an extremely acute sense of hearing and a faculty which enables him not only to recognize any resident of the village by the sound of his or her footfalls, but to sense the state of mind of his intimates in the same way. The footfalls the blind man listens for most earnestly are those of an assassin whom he feel sure will return to the scene of his crime some day.

The cold nights of this week have started the curling bug working in the minds of some enthusiasts, but perhaps most of them will agree that it is a little premature yet to be putting golf clubs away to take up the broom. But with a big bonspeil coming off here this winter, it would be wise to organize in plenty of time to get things going smoothly when the weather permits of taking it up. Some of the crack rinks of the city are going to get all the practice they can in order that their home city may figure prominently in the bonspeil prize list.

JAIL-BREAKER IN THE TOILS AGAIN AFTER SPELL OF LIBERTY

McPeak Makes His Way to Midway, After Being at Large For About a Week

The adventures of Charles McPeake who broke from the custody of the police at Penticton on September 25th, by escaping from the provinical lock-up, were brought to an abrupt ending on Tuesday, when he was arrested at Midway by Constable Stewart, of the provincial police. He was taken back to Penticton that night, escorted by the constable, and was later committed by Magistrate Pope to stand trial on a charge of breaking from lawful custody.

McPeak was arrested on September 20 on a charge of having stolen property in his possession, and was remanded till September 25th by the Magistrate. On the morning of that day, however, he dashed away, after having scaled the stockade wall of the police station, and eventually he went to earth under the Salvation Army Hall in Penticton. From this place he was unable to escape, until the evening, when a woman living in a portion of the building, innocently dug him out, complying with his request.

A charge has been preferred against McPeak here for the theft of his baseball outfit which he had the use of while playing ball in this district this summer.

POLICE COURT CASES COME UP FOR HEARING DURING THE WEEK

Fred J. Mayoff was arrested during the past week by Provincial Constable Green of Kimberley at the instance of the city police on a charge of theft of a pack sack from the Century Restaurant, Van Horne Street. The accused duly appeared before Magistrate Leask and was committed for trial. A series of sneak thefts, par*ticularly of blankets is engaging the* attention of the police. At many places blankets are required, and this induces the "stony brokes" to pilfer from the more fortunate.

On Monday, October 2nd, a number of cases were disposed of at the city police court. Arvur Griffiths, on an intoxication charge was fined $50 or in default thirty days. Arvur got in a mix-up with his Tin Lizzie and fortunately for him wan unable to make it go, or else a more serious charge might have been preferred against him. Alexander Bertrand Ormache had a bout of fisticuffs with Dang, a Chinaman of the Union Cafe. Alexander, a veteran of the French army, objected to Dang's endeavors to oust him from the premises, when disorderly there. He was fined $20 on the assault charge, and promised to behave in future.
