COAL DAMP EXPLOSION AT HILLCREST MINE

TERRIBLE DISASTER LAST FRIDAY CLAIMED LIVES OF NEARLY TWO HUNDRED MINERS—SCENES OF TRAGEDY AND SORROW AS BLACKENED BODIES ARE RESCUED—150 BURIED ON SUNDAY

Hillcrest, Alta., June 19.—One hundred and ninety-five miners out of 236 who went to work at the No. 1 mine of the Hillcrest collieries are dead as the result of an explosion of black damp which occurred in the mine shaft 1,600 feet underground at 9.30 this morning.

Forty-one men were rescued. Foreman J. S. Quigley is among the missing. The bodies are being brought from the mine as rapidly as trucks can carry them to the surface. The rescuers are working desperately to get the entombed miners to the fresh air as soon as possible in the hope that some of them may be revived. But each truck contains the charred remains of a victim of the worst mining catastrophe in the history of Canada, and even the friends and relatives of the men who are still missing have given up hope of ever seeing them alive. The forty-one men who were delivered from awful death in the depths of the wrecked mine were rescued early in the day. Every carrier that comes up now contains a lifeless form.

Did Not Know Cause of Explosion

General Manager Brown, of the Hillcrest collieries, in a conversation and guarded statement to a newspeper representative, said that he did not know what the cause of the explosion was, and would not conjecture an opinion. "There is so much confusion now that I am not in a position to give a detailed statement," said Mr. Brown. "I have not been able to make any investigation of the circumstances surronuding the disaster, all my time having been occupied since the explosion occurred in superintending the work of recovering the bodies. The explosion took place at 9.30 this morning, and 10 minutes later the rescue work was commenced, willing assistance coming from all quarters.

Rescue Crew Not Very Hopeful

"Two hundred and thirty-six men went into the mine. I am not in a position to say how many of these are saved. I trust this may be the case, although the rescue crew are not very hopeful. However, I want you to make it clear that at this stage I am unable to give exact figures of the number of men who are dead. The bodies will be checked when they come out of the mine, and placed in the washhouse to be made as presentable as possible to their grief-stricken relatives. I will not know the extent of the casualties till tomorrow. I will remain at the mouth of the mine all night, if necessary. I will stay till every man is accounted for by his living presence or his dead body."

Explosion Wrecked the Engine House

"Shortly after the explosion took place I sent a wire telling C. B. Gordon, Montreal, president of the company, of the awful happening. I received a reply from him as quickly as it could be rushed from Montreal, but it contained nothing of public interest. Most of the other officers and directors of the mine live in Montreal, although capitalists in Victoria, Nelson and other cities are also heavily interested. As far as I know, there are no Calgary officers. The explosion wrecked the engine house at the mouth of No. 1 mine, and black smoke shot up in the air for several feet. The smoke was what first attracted attention to it. At the present time I am not in a position to make a more extended statement. I will make a fuller explanation later when the rescue crew has completed its work and when I am certain as to details."

No Living Men Now in the Mine

A pall of gloom hangs over the little mountain town of Hillcrest. The town has about 1,500 inhabitants, and fully a quarter of these have been directly affected by the horrible tragedy. Many women have lost their breadwinners, and dozens are bereft of sons, brothers and sweethearts. The town is numb with grief and sorrow. Everywhere one sees girls and women seeking for their dead. Lumber trucks running two in a shift are being sent down into the black bit of death every few minutes, manned by willing crews of grim rescue workers. In readiness to render assistance of resuscitating in case any living men are brought out of the depths, doctors and nurses, trained and volunteer, await the call of duty. But it seems quite certain that there are no living men in the mine.

It is practically assured that the 41 miners who were delivered from a terrible death are the only survivors. Each time the trucks come up to the mouth of mine No. 2, through which the rescue crews are entering the caverns of death on account of the wrecking of the mouth of mine No. 1, which is clogged with a mass of debris, a silent form, black from the storm of coal dust which filled the air when the explosion took place, and cold in death, is brought to the surface.

The former companions of the dead miners place their smothered mates in a stretcher on trucks, over which are thrown blankets to hide the ghastly sight of the blackened bodies from the eyes of the crowd that has gathered in awe-stricken silence along the tracks on which the trucks are being run. A few hundred yards from the mouth of the mine the bodies are being carried into the washhouse, and after being made presentable are being taken to the miners hall in the town and laid out to be claimed by their bereaved families and friends.

At 10 o'clock that night there were sixteen bodies in the hall. As the bodies are brought out of the mine anxious, tearful women cast a horrified glance at the trucks eager to see if the remains are those of their loved ones, half afraid for fear they may be. Although the bodies are covered, these sorrowing women are sometimes able to tell by a glimpse at a shoe, an exposed hand or patch of clothing if the death trucks bear the objects of their grief, and frequently harrowing scenes result. Many of the bereaved are loathe to leave their homes. Overcome with shock and grief, they sit on the verandah of their humble cottages swaying to and fro in silent pain or moaning and sobbing in hysterical grief. For the most part the mourners are subdued in their expressions of sorrow, their agony too deep for superficial manifestation.

Interview with Survivors

A peculiar fact of the explosion is the fact that very few of the survivors seem to have any idea whatever of what really occurred. They know there was a noise such as would be made by the bursting of a mammoth shell, a falling of rocks and chunks of coal, cries of terror that made the walls of the mines ring with mocking echoes, then the most of them lapsed into stupor or unconsciousness. The newspaper representative interviewed no fewer than fifteen survivors, but not a single one of them had a comprehensive idea of what had taken place.

In the horror of the terrible calamity they temporarily lost their powers of observation and reasoning and remember nothing but the loud report and the hail of pelting rocks, coal fragments, a storm of coal dust.

Made Noise Like a Cannon

Herbert Yeadon, one of the survivors, told in a fragmentory way what he remembered of the occurrence.

"I was in the mine with six others about the end of drift No. 2 when the explosion took place. It made a noise like a cannon going off and we made a rush for the mouth of the pit. The gas was so strong however that we were driven back and the explosion in No. 1 mine blocked our way in the other direction. We lay down in a pool of water, remembering our instructions that this was the best course to take in case of gases escaping in a mine. Then all became black. I remembered no more. I knew nothing until I awoke in the open air underneath the blue sky restored to consciousness by operators who resuscitated me with a pulmotor. My companions were also saved by the same means."

150 Victims Laid to Rest

Hillcrest, Alta., June 21.—Almost directly under Turtle mountain, natural graveyard of victims of the Frank slide of a few years ago, was enacted this afternoon the last great tragic scene of the Hillcrest disaster. Over 150 bodies of miners were laid away with funeral rites, while around stood widows weeping and not a few sympathizers.

The funeral was an impressive one, all the more on account of its silent participants, and the little town of Hillcrest will for many a day date its time from this tragic Sunday. Even the elements showed sympathy with the mourners, for during the tragic proceedings fell fitful spurts of sleet, snow and rain, and the wind wantonly played with the wreaths and flowers which marked the narrow confines that held all that was mortal of father and brother.

In the quiet little valley, where yesterday the graves counted perhaps less than two score, today the number is augmented by 150. Other bodies are being prepared for the last rites and it is feared that several found a natural and permanent resting place beneath tons of rock and debris.

Outside Union hall, from which place the victims were taken to the grave, was today a scene of grief. Wives and children wept together and even strong men broke down. Widows were led away from the last fond gaze on the bodies of their husbands and moist eyes of onlookers were not a few. It was not infrequent that the lids of caskets were opened and kisses imprinted on the cold lips of the loved ones.

CRANBROOK TO CELEBRATE TWELFTH

Local Orangemen Prepare Good Program—Cash Prizes for Athletic Sports—Expect Many Visitors

A large number of members were in attendance at the meeting of the Loyal Orange lodge last Thursday evening when all the degrees from the orange to the royal arch were put on, there being initiations in each case. Among the visiting brethren present was Brother Matthew, student in the Presbyterian mission field at Elko, B.C., who addressed the meeting. J. F. Smith, a staunch Orangeman for over a quarter of a century, entertained with the bagpipes, and Brothers Campbell, Foster and Halsall gave several pieces on the fife and drums. Arrangements for the twelfth of July celebration to be held here are being rapidly completed. The Sunday parade of the local lodge to divine service will be to the Presbyterian church on Snuday evening July 12th, when Rev. W. K. Thomson will preach. The Twelfth, falling on Sunday, will be celebrated on the Monday following.

Three automobile loads from the Wilmer lodge are expected to arrive Sunday evening. The first train in Monday morning will carry Orangemen from Marysville, Kimberley and Wycliffe. Creston lodge, with others from Sirdar, Kingsgate and intermediate points will arrive about the noon hour, possibly by special train, while the lodges from the east will arrive at one o'clock.

In the afternoon there will be a grand parade to the city park, where speeches will be given from the bandstand. The address of welcome will be given by Mayor Taylor. At the conclusion of the program of addresses the following athletic events with cash prizes will be run off 50-yard race, boys under seven; 50-yard race, girls under 7; 50-yard race, boys under 10; 50-yard race, girls under 10; 75-yard race, boys under 15; 75-yard race, girls under 15; 100-yard race, Orangemen only; 100-yard race, open; 75-yard race, married ladies; 75-yard race, single ladies; 75-yard race, lady members of Lady Orange Benevolent association; potato race, boys under 12; potato race, girls under 12; best fife and drum band; tug-of-war, Orangemen, nine a side; lacrosse match, Cranbrook vs. Fernie or Nelson.

Cash prizes will be offered for the tug-of-war in which it is expected all lodges present will compete. The prize for the best fife and drum band will also be cash. In the other events, which have been so generously aided by the merchants, substantial prizes will be given, as the committee did not wish to professionalize the winners, which would be done by cash prizes. In the evening a dance will be held in the Auditorium for which one of the best orchestras in the district has been secured. The music for the day will consist of brass bands, fife and drum bands, and bagpipers. W. L. Scott, a bagpiper, who has for years supplied music on the Twelfth of July to thousands of Orangemen on parade in Belfast, Ireland, has been secured for the day. A fare and one-third is expected to prevail on the Canadian Pacific railway for the occasion.

SOCIALIST SPEAKERS IN CRANBROOK

Parker Williams Gives Scathing Rebuke to Conservative Party Bosses in This Province

In an address, which at times stirred the imagination by flights of oratory and at all times amused by its vein of satire, Parker Williams, Socialist member for Newcastle in the provincial house, addressed about one hundred people at the Auditorium last Friday evening.

Mr. Williams has been a member of the house for the past ten years and refers to its rulings and workings as "we," and related many instances of what "we," as a great trust body have done for the people of British Columbia. Mr. Williams scored the leaders of the political party in power in British Columbia from Premier McBride to W. J. Bowser and then took up Robert F. Green and Thos. D. Caven, members at Ottawa and Victoria, for this district

Aside from the personalities and the vigorous denunciation of the graft which exists in the Conservative ranks throughout this province Mr. Williams scored a powerful bit of logic in summing up his address. The electors of British Columbia are blinded to the graft perpetrated by their legislators, indifferent as to whether governmental affairs are honestly conducted, and intimidated by the Conservative ward heelers throughout the province, said Mr. Williams, and if they continue to vote at the dictate of the political bosses they are continuing to fasten the shackles around their feet and to bind their hands more firmly in base political slavery, destroying their own chances of success and their manhood, and at the same time the bosses are dissipating the natural resources of the province, squandering the money and plunging the province into debt.

Mr. Williams was preceded by Mr. Winch who elucidated the principles of socialism. According to Mr. Winch Socialism means the social ownership of all public utilities of manufactures and necessities. Socialism would do away with classes substituting in the place of the various classes of today, one class, which would be the working class. Socialism would mean the elimination of times of "over-production" and the consequent financial depressions of the present day. Socialism would mean the employment of every worker and the forcing of every one to work. In other words, said Mr. Winch, Socialism means the sacrifice of profits that everyone may enjoy the fruits of their industry and labor, that no man who labors will be without the necessities and comforts of life.

SOME GAME, THIS

Old "Dodgers" at Lacrosse Will Line-Up Against Present Stick Handlers

A number of the lacrosse fans around town have been talking "old timer" and "the way they used to play the game." Some of them have claimed that they used to play on good teams and have intimated that they still know something about lacrosse that our younger players have not learned. The younger players claim that they are "from Missouri," so a game has been arranged with much difficulty, a signing of articles, professional and amateur standing, etc., that will be a hummer.

The young fellows will have as their line-up: McKay, Duff, Bathie, Leitch, Lafleur, Crowe, McMillan, Powers, McDonald, Grey, Kay, Greaves.

The "Old Timers" team will be picked from the following: W. Matthews, Geo. Manahan, Maurice Quain, R C. Eakin, Arthur S. Ward, James Brechin, E. H. McPhee, Jim Sindall, Alec. St. Eloi, Walter Chambers, R. P. Moffatt, Barney Scott, R. S. Garrett, Wm. Greaves, Watson Hall.

Mr. H. W. Supple, manager of the Imperial bank, has consented to act as referee for the "old timers."

DR. TELFORD PROPHESIED MONARCH WOULD PRODUCE OIL

LOCATING BY INSTRUMENT.—DOCTOR CLAIMS IT IS SCIENTIFIC—HAS WRITTEN NOTES DEALING WITH UNITED OILS AND THE BLACK DIAMOND WELLS

Calgary, Alta., June 15th, 1914.

To whom it may concern:

On Sunday, June the 14th, I visited the Monarch oil well and tested holdings. Found strong indications, and would say oil should be struck at these diggings without a doubt.

J. LYLE TELFORD.

The above letter, contained in a sealed envelope, was handed to The Albertan on Monday by Dr. J. Lyle Telford, of Vancouver.

At the same time, the doctor also left sealed letters respecting the United Oils and Black Diamond wells, and in doing so requested the editor of this journal not to open the communications until a strike of oil had been made at the wells or until they had been found valueless.

As already stated, this took place last Monday, and yesterday, after the announcement that the Monarch company had struck oil, the letter relative to the property was opened, and appears at the head of this article.

It will be seen that in this instance, at any rate, Dr. Telford's statement proved correct. In his letter he declares he found strong indications, and would say that oil would be struck at these diggings without a doubt. As the public now know, this prophecy has become a fact.

Locating 10,000 Acres

Dr. Telford is at present in the Calgary oil field for the purpose of locating 10,000 acres of holdings for a Vancouver syndicate, who intend drilling here in a short time, possibly within the next two months. Dr. Telford is not going about the job of selecting oil bearing lands in the orthodox manner. On the contrary, he is using what he claims to be a scientific instrument for locating bodies of oil. He explained to the editor of this paper that he was not in the city for company promotion purposes or for exploiting his oil diviner. The machine was his own invention, and he had absolute faith in its power to detect the presence of oil beneath the surface of the earth.

The Dingman Well

It was stated by Dr. Telford in an interview that he believed the location of the Dingman well was situated approximately 450 feet from the site of the main channel of oil, and he added that it was on account of the great pressure of gas forcing the oil through the 450 feet or so of intervening material that caused such a marked degree of refinement as was found in the fluid emanating from the Dingman well today.

He also expressed the conviction that after allowing the Dingman well to flow continuously, under its present great pressure, the oil might gradually form a channel, which would become more and more porous as time went by, and might eventually result in the presence of crude oil in the well. On the other hand, should a well be put down over the main channel of oil, the pressure would gradually become less, and to such an extent as to fail to force oil through the 450 feet, with the result that the present well would become dry.

This, of course, is all conjecture on Dr. Telford's part, but he must be given credit for having, unasked, demonstrated his faith in the ability of his instrument to indicate the existence of oil by writing the letters referred to.

The communications dealing with the United Oils and Black Diamond wells will remain unopened in this office until each well has proved its worth or its worthlessness.—Calgary (Alta) Albertan, June 19th, 1914.

AN APPRECIATION

The Territorial Headquarters Staff, on behalf of the Salvation Army in Canada, desire to express, through the press, their deep and sincere appreciation for the numerous messages of sympathy and condolence received from comrades, friends, churches, societies and others. Since the event of the sinking of the S.S. Empress of Ireland, such mesages have been conveyed by cable, telegram, and letter from all parts of the world, and especially the Dominion of Canada.

It is our desire to let it be known that, particularly the assurances of prayer, have strengthened our hearts, have encouraged our confidence, and have stimulated our faith, and, furthermore, as the realization of the extent of our loss through this appalling catastrophe becomes keener day by day, the kind words of cheer and counsel will help us in our endeavors to carry on the great work of the Salvation Army in extending the Kingdom of God upon earth.

TYPHOID FEVER PREVENTION

The following extract is taken from a paper delivered by Sir William B. Leishman regarding inoculation against typhoid:

As to the application of typhoid vaccine in civil life, it seems to me that if we control typhoid in the army of peace, and we hope to do so in the future in war, that you in civil life should not hold your hands from the benefit of such typhoid vaccination, especially if you are threatened or exposed to typhoid in your immediate surroundings.

Measures of protection against typhoid such as improved water supply, an improved sanitation generally, instruction of the people as to the care necessary to prevent this disease is an excellent aid, but does not take the place of typhoid inoculation. This vaccine is a very simple thing to prepare. I have had brought to my notice in several ways during the few days spent in Canada that you suffer largely from typhoid in this country. For example, Ottawa has had a severe epidemic and typhoid is at large in various parts of your country districts. If you could organize a campaign against typhoid to persuade people likely to be exposed to infection to be inoculated, you would be doing great good to this country and to science in general, and in that way accumulate information that would convince every one.

I was bold enough at Montreal the other day to suggest that the authorities should vaccinate the whole population. That seemed a tall order, but I do not tee why it should not be done.

We do not know when we may catch typhoid ourselves; why throw away the chance of preventing such a happening? Think over the thing from that point of view, you will have three sets of people to convince. First, and most important, yourself, and it is up to you to convince the second set, the authorities, and thirdly, the people you are going to inoculate. The authorities are hardest nuts to crack. You may have trouble with them, but not with the people. The latter are extraordinarily emenable to the influence of the medical man whom they trust. If you are convinced and believe typhoid inoculation is a good thing, it will do you no harm if you inoculate yourself, except to cause a sore spot or sore head for a day or so. If you inoculate yourselves, very few people will refuse inoculation when it comes to their turn. Of course their is a prejudice against this form of treatment like there is is against vaccination for smallpox, but these prejudices vanish in the presence of danger. When the relatives and children are contracting enteric their friends will fly to you and you will have no difficulty to get them to accept treatment.

I believe personally most strongly in the benefits to be derived from this method of treatment, and if I may give you advice, should urge you to use it to the utmost in adding to the weapons which you use fighting this disease.

As pointed out in previous letters, typhoid prophylactic will be supplied free of charge upon application to the secretary, provincial board of health, Victoria, B.C.

After the first dose there is some slight reaction, the person inoculated feeling as if he had an ordinary attack of la grippe. This passes off in the course of a very few hours and does not prevent the person following his usual work. The second dose is given from seven to ten days after the first, and from this practically no reaction occurs. A third dose, for still more complete protection, is given from seven to ten days after the second.

Acting Secretary, Provincial Board of Health, Victoria.

Provincial Secretary.

ORIGINAL SIN

Not long ago a poor bricklayer told his wife that he was a failure, and, jumping over London bridge, he drowned himself in the Thames, leaving a wife and eight children "to mourn his loss." Had he paused awhile to meditate on failure's compensations he would be alive and placidly laying bricks today. Because he could not "get rich quick" like Wallingford or Andrew Carnegie he went and "did himself in." He forgot that it was he and not Carnegie who could lay bricks and build a library. In fact, the poor man was a mere ordinary, emotional, non-digesting human atom—and not a philosopher.

One need not be a Buddist in the final unemotional stage of one's life's career to realize that the man whose name appears daily in the papers and whose wealth is a byword in the country is by no means necessarily a successful man in the true sense of the term. Something more than early to bed and early to rise is required as a rule to make a man inordinately rich. Ingenious youth slights this rather baleful lesson, but a time comes when the question puts itself inevitably: Which is the more desirable and expedient—possible wealth at all costs, or a moderate competence as the result of little more than routine effort? Of course there is the third alternative of being poor but honest, two things which do not run in harness as easily as those who utter the platitude may suppose.

The old leaven of original sin stirs in most of us, and even a hard working editor might—if no one was looking—stoop to pick up an unconsidered trifle here and there—nay, the fellow hath often done it, and lieth in danger of being caught at it, some mis-begotten day, and beaten with heavy sticks.

IN UNION IS ECONOMY

Church union is still favored but it seems to be as far off as ever. The Presbyterian General Assembly favors consummation in the hope that unanimity will prevail in the church's final decision. At about the same time the treasurer of the church presents a rather pessimistic report concerning finances. The waste of money in maintaining churches in competition with other Christian denominations is the cause of the financial stringency in the church. Consider the money that would be saved by a union of the churches and consider also the men that would be available for fields not served by the church if there was one church where there are two, three and four today. The churches preach economy from the pulpit but neglect to practice it. They would rather keep up foolish competition in order to preserve doctrines that really should not separate the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational denominations at any rate.—Lethbridge Herald.

AT THE AUDITORIUM

Harold Ball Wright's "Shepherd of the Hills" Tuesday, June 30th

"The Shepherd of the Hills" the dramatization of Harold Ball Wright's novel, which holds the record for the largest sales of any American work of fiction, which has been made by Mr. Wright, with the assistance of Elsbry W. Reynolds will be seen in Cranbrook at the Auditorium on Tuesday, June 30th.

The scenes of the play are laid among the Ozark mountains of Missouri. It is a story of the hills and the simple life, yet it has plenty of excitement and an air of mystery that will hold the auditor from beginning to end.

The story has to do with the father of an artist, who, tired of city life, goes into the Ozarks for peace and quietude. He learns of a grievous sin committed by his son, whom he mourns as dead. The son had visited the hills some years before, when he fell in love with a simple country girl. He painted her picture and when he went back to the city, deserting the girl, he earned fame because of the canvas. The girl, deserted and broken-hearted, dies, leaving behind her a half-witted son.

It is to the home of this dead and wronged girl that the father of the artist comes, and here he is employed to watch the sheep. He grows to love the country and its people, and he and the half-witted boy, Pete, become friends.

Then there is a love story running through the play that adds to its attractiveness. It is the love of a young giant of the hills for Sammy Lane, a girl of unusual qualities.

There are several characters whose quaint humor is a decided novelty. Taken as a whole, the play promises to prove a refreshing change from the general run of dramatic attractions this season.

Messrs. Gaskill & MacVitty, the producers, are said to have given the play an elaborate mounting, the mountains of the Ozark affording an opportunity for some fine examples of the scenic painter's art. The cast has been selected for their peculiar fitness for each style.

Foolish Saving

A penny saved is not always a penny earned. Sometimes it is two pennies lost. The merchant who spends nothing on advertising loses much more than he saves.

The money spent for plate glass windows is not looked on as lost; nor is the money spent on better interior lighting.
Anything that increases favor, that adds to sales, that multiplies customers is very properly regarded as a good investment.
Advertising is a good investment—just as plate glass windows are. Advertising sells more goods to more persons than shop-windows do.

A WORD TO THE PUBLIC

Concrete Tanks and Troughs Never Rot or Leak

THE most practical tanks, whether for water or sewage, are built of concrete. They never rust, rot, dry out or leak. They never need new hoops or paint. They last a lifetime and seldom require repairing, which makes them the cheapest tanks that can be built.

Clean, Sanitary Watering Troughs

are just as necessary as the animals that drink from them. The farmer's best interests are being served when his stock is insured a plentiful supply of clear, clean water from a trough that is permanent and sanitary.

"What the Farmer can do with Concrete" is the name of a handsome free book that tells all about concrete tanks, watering troughs and other uses of concrete that will save every farmer many dollars. Write for it to-day.

INVERMERE

(Special correspondence).

Owing to a succession of hot days followed by warm nights the water in the Columbia and Kootenay rivers is rising very rapidly and if this state of weather continues without intermission for another week it is prophesied that trouble from that source may be experienced. The water from some of the tributaries of the Kootenay river has already risen so high as to be across the main road.

Arrangements are about completed for the district celebration of the first of July at Invermere. A program [illegible] has been arranged, which should eclipse the celebrations which have characterized that place in past years.

The informal opening of the Windermere District Hospital association took place this week. The formal opening will be held at a later period.

June 19th marked the second market day of the Windermere Co-Operative association.

On Monday evening of this week a complimentary banquet was given at the Hotel Invermere to Mr. E. R. Ennis, of Spokane, manager for Messrs. Burns & Jordan, contractors for the building of the Kootenay Central branch of the Canadian Pacific railway. Mr. Ennis has severed his connection with his old employers to go back and fill another position with a firm in Spokane. His place has been filled by Mr. Pope.

ELKO

(By Fred Roo.)

It's easier for a woman to run up a bill than it is for her husband to pay up.

If you want to get in the sunlight come down to Elko. Don't wait for the Moose celebration, come now, and wait for it.

It's about time the immigration department paid a little attention to the Roosville Valley road. Our member, R. F. Green, woke up the customs, and its a good point to have a provincial policeman, sawmills, tie camps, and a company expect soon to start boring for oil, will make the travel along this route look like a royal commission on Mulligan stews. It would help this western country a great deal if the cabinet ministers at Ottawa would clean out the deputies, as in a great many cases these people are making the ministers look in the eyes of the voters like the figure 0 with the rim torn off, and would give you the impression that the minister should pay more attention to the member for this district than the deputy, as the way these freak deputies are antagonizing some districts will make it hard for some of the ministers and members to hold their jobs at the next general election.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ayre and Miss Muriel, the champion lady chauffeur of the district, with Mrs. A. Boss and children motored down to Flagstone and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Joyce. Miss Muriel, who is only ten years old, handled the wheel and she is some chauffeur. All this week she has been giving motor parties to her girl friends. Every evening one could see her on the boulevards and avenues going like a prairie fire—Heletty, Scooticus, Cussieus—she can run her dad's buzz wagon at the rate of 90 miles per hour, and go around sharp curves on one wheel without turning a hair. The whole family are experts with an automobile. Her dad was a charter member of the Porch Climbers and Joyriders Legion, back in Brandon, Manitoba, and won the national Honkers medal, but Miss Muriel's feats with the Whimpuss makes him wonder at times whether he's motoring or aeroplaning. She is sure some pumpkins with a 5-passenger Ford and her dad can afford it.

A Vancouver old maid always wears cotton gloves, because she has no use for kids.

The writer returned after a visit to the famous Tobacco Plains, and finds not only is the oil excitement confined to Alberta, but a Spokane syndicate has leased the land between Gateway, Montana, S.A., and Rexford, along the Kootenay river, and E. J. Merrion, of Spokane, is organizing a company in Eureka in which Mayor Hamann is much interested in the affair and taking a great lead. At Roosville, J. McKechnie is operating a big tie camp. It was at this point some twelve years ago that M. Phillipps, Esq., J.P., the pioneer alfalfa grower of the Kootenays discovered oil seepage, but at the time could get no one interested, and now the bush men notice it all along their workings, and this point is just 26 miles due west from the Roosville post office to Flathead oil belt. It is 50 miles from Belton, Montana, to the international boundary line and 45 miles from Corbin to the boundary line, and just twenty miles from the coal camps along the Flathead river with a down hill pull to the Roosville Valley, and remember that oil is the same as water—runs down hill—and the majority of oil experts, like mine experts, they can tell you it's there when they see it.

SUNDAY COLUMN

(By "Cleric")

In reduction.—Frankly this column is an experiment. However, the editor and myself are not unaware of the fact that religion is fundamental in humanity, and this column will cater to the better part of man. The new feature will, we trust, help the busy business man, the horny-handed man of toil, the harassed mother, the S.S. worker, the boy and the girl. Make the new venture a success by meditating on the truths it conveys, and by telling your friends of it.

SERMONETTE

The Sin of Omission

"To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."—James 4:17.

St. James is the apostle of practical Christianity. St. Paul is the doughty champion of faith. Yet a proper understanding of both apostles will show that there is no clash, but a lively agreement. Luther polishly called the epistle of James a "letter of straw." This castigation was consequent upon an over-appreciation of Paul's central truth, "the just shall live by faith." An old professor of mine defined clearly and very correctly, I believe, the relative positions of James and Paul. "James," he said, "is thinking of a lazy, lifeless othordoxy; Paul of earnest but despairing legalism. The 'good works' of James involved true faith, they spring from it, are impossible without it, just as Paul's 'faith' necessarily prompts good deeds, is indeed the promise and potency of goodness." So then, these sacred writers are in perfect agreement. Each would have us know that righteousness is the fruit of faith, that a man is "justified by faith in Christ alone, but not by faith that is alone."

In the letter James deals very faithfully with the converts from Judaism. They were to be "doers" of the word, and not "hearers" only. He points out ways of doing good, showing that Christianity is intensely practical. He inculcates that the gospel is a social as well as a spiritual gospel. Nor does he forget to remind them that men are equal in Divine eyes, that the essential thing is character, not wealth. Moving from this to mere intellectual apprehension, he reaches the climax of his exhortations when he says: "Therefore, to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." It is quite plain that if we know ways of doing good and shun the opportunity, we are guilty of the sin of omission. Sin, then, is passive as well as active. Surely this is a truth that should make us bestir ourselves! There is a serious question

We are Offering for Public Subscription Shares in

ROYAL CANADIAN OILS LIMITED

(Non-Personal Liability) at $1.00 per share

Mr. F. C. Lowes, President of Royal Canadian Oils Limited, has transferred to this company many of his most valuable leases adjoining the United and Black Diamond wells, and close to the Monarch and several of the other good ones. He states that this is the only company with which he is connected, and that it is the company on which all his efforts will be concentrated.

The reputation of the firm of F. C. LOWES & CO., Fiscal Agents for ROYAL CANADIAN OILS LIMITED, is so well and favorably known that it is needless for us to mention it. Mr. Lowes states that he is thoroughly satisfied that Alberta is likely to prove one of the most valuable oil producing areas so far discovered and in inviting clients and friends to buy predicts that this will prove one of the most attractive issues on the market.

ROYAL CANADIAN OILS LIMITED (non-personal liability) is the owner of leases covering 4420 acres of the choicest holdings money can buy, some of which Mr. Lowes obtained several months ago, others more recently, as new development warranted, and still others are now under consideration.

It is the intention of Mr. Lowes to make this company one of the strongest operating in the province and he advises the public to subscribe liberally to the initial offering.

The Directors now offer Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Shares (250,000) of stock for sale at par, $1.00. In the next future offering of stock, each and every shareholder of the company will have the privilege of subscribing for stock at par in proportion to their holdings. The advantage of buying early will be readily seen.

SUNDAY COLUMN

contained in the following verse:
"We shall do so much in the years to come;
But what have we done today
We shall give our gold in a princely sum;
But what did we give today?
We shall lift the heart and dry the tear,
We shall plant a hope in the place of fear;
But what did we speak to-day?

TO S. S. WORKERS

I had given out the hymn before the sermon in church one evening, and had just said, "Let us rise and sing," when a little girl, not more than ten, hastily turning over the leaves of her hymn book, piped out, "Wait for me." The words came to my astonished ears quite distinctly. A year has passed but the child's request has not been forgotten. To me a lesson of incalculable importance was conveyed, and, perhaps, a lesson to all pastors and S.S. workers. I know what she meant, but do her words not express the thought, the wish, the need of the child the world over? "Wait for me"—I am only a child, I hardly know my numbers yet, explain words that I do not understand, do not give me too many ideas in one lesson, make one thoroughly clear to me, do not hurry me, give me time to think, wait for me. Take any S.S. lesson you like and you will find many words that a child of ten does not understand, e.g., "defraud," "lackest," "commit," "verily." Teacher, please wait on the child!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10. Boys and girls this is for you. The "Son of Man" is Jesus. The lost are those who have gone astray, that is, those who have done evil. Our text tells of the mission of Jesus to recover the lost, which means to make people who do wrong do right, to make men love Himself. Thus we see there is hope for everyone who is a wrong-doer, for Jesus came for the express purpose of helping, seeking, and saving him! To save means to snatch out of danger. One who sins is in danger, and Jesus rescues from peril when He makes a bad man good. But we must not forget that before He can save us, we must be willing, and the reason that we see so many bad people is just this lack of willingness. Jesus came to save us. If we are willing to allow Him, He will do it.

WITH THE SAGES

It is better to fail by doing right than to succeed by doing wrong.—Anon.

One good mother is worth a hundred school masters.—Herbert.

God and the doctor we alike adore,
But only when in danger, not before;
The danger over both are alike requited,
God is forgotten, and the doctor slighted.
—Owen

Don't grumble, don't bluster, don't dream and don't shirk, don't think of your worries, but think of your work.—Extract.

Kind words, kind looks, kind acts, and warm hand-shakes—these are secondary means of grace when men are in trouble and fighting their unseen battles.—Hall.

LAUNCHING OF "QUEEN ELIZABETH"

The battleship "Queen Elizabeth," and her sister ships, "Warspite," "Valiant," "Barham," and "Malaya," mark the commencement of a new era in British naval construction, being the first ship to carry the new 15-inch gun—a weapon which discharges a projectile of 1,950 pounds weight against the 1,400 pounds of the 14-inch and latest 15.5-inch guns. In addition, they will be the first ships other than scouts and torpedo craft to be driven solely by oil fuel, and with greatspeed of 25 knots—which is likely to be greatly exceeded on trial—will have the distinction of being the fastest battleships afloat.

Although officially designated "battleships," the "Queen Elizabeth" class are becoming looked upon as "battle-cruisers" from the fact that their speed is four knots in excess of the standard speed for line ships and obviously intended for overhauling the enemy's rear-guard and forcing an action—the generally accepted role of the battle-cruiser. In later ships a return has been made to the usual speed of 21 knots, the "Royal Sovereign" class which are now under construction having the same armament as the "Queen Elizabeth," but on something like 2,000 tons less displacement—the decrease being accounted for by the drop in speed, and the saving in machinery weight, engine room, and therefore dimensions.

The adoption of the 15-inch gun is, of course, typical of the British policy, which is "superiority both in numbers and individual power." It would have been simpler to have met foreign ships armed with ten or more 14-inch guns by the construction of similar ships, but equality does not postulate annihilation, and this is what will probably be the fate of the "Queen Elizabeth's" opponents. British gunnery experts do not, however, favor the placing of more than ten big guns in a ship, and even had the admiralty been anxious to retain the very successful 13.5-inch gun which has appeared in the "Orion," "King George" and "Iron Duke" types, their reply to say the "Pennsylvania" would have been a ship with ten of these pieces—twelve or fourteen such guns would have been more than can be adequately controlled, according to British practice. Eight guns being the ideal group, it becomes obvious that the only way out of the difficulty of providing a better and more powerfully armed ship lay in increasing the caliber of the guns—hence the advent of the 15-inch and the probable early reappearance of the 16.25-inch gun when the smaller weapon becomes generally adopted elsewhere.

In appearance the new ships will be very much like the "Iron Duke" class, with the amidships turret suppressed and an extra mast aft, instead of the stump between the funnels, which is such an unsightly feature of these vessels. There is the usual pile of chart houses and bridges forward, the heavy tripod mast with a double-storied control-top, big funnels, and torpedo net defense. The big guns are in four 14-inch turrets along the center line, the third and fourth superfiring axially. In easements in the superstructures are along the upper deck are spaced the sixteen 6-inch rapid fire guns, while eight 3-inch anti-æro guns are distributed over the upper works, and four more are carried at the stern of the ship. There are five torpedo tubes (21-inch), two on each side and one in the stern, all below water.

The dimensions of the "Queen Elizabeth" are: Length, 650 feet over all; beam, 94 feet, and draught, 27½ feet, giving a displacement of 27,500 tons.

For water-line protection there is a 13½-inch belt extending from the base of the foremost turret to just short of the aftermost, with 6-inch continuations to within about 20 feet of the extremities. Above is a 10-inch strake along the lower deck side a midship with 8-inch over the battery, the gun positions in the superstructures being similarly protected. Amidships the hull is civered with thin armor—two or three inches, probably—down to the keel, and a most elaborate system of internal under-water protection reinforces this. The thickness of the armor decks and bulkheads is uncertain.

The great speed has only been attained by the substitution of oil for coal, and a supply of 4,000 tons of this can be stored. With Parsons turbines generating 58,000 nominal horse-power and driving four screws, the designed speed is 25 knots.

Of the five ships, only the name ship and the "Warspite" have as yet been launched (March), and these two are due for completion in October; the remaining three should join the flag between spring and summer, 1915. At present afloat the only ships which can compare with them in fighting power are the U. S. "Texas" and "Oklahoma" classes, with the Japanese "Kongo," the Chilian "Al. Latorre," and the Turkish "Rechadieh."—Scientific American.

WILD-CAT SPECULATION

Our provincial governments are sadly lacking in preventive statesmanship. Only one province, Manitoba, has a law to prevent wild-cat speculation.

Here is a canker which is eating into the vitals of the nation, and yet only one provincial government in nine has had the courage to grapple with it. All sorts of laws are passed to promote or to hamper legitimate business, but the illegitimate runs wild without restriction.

If a postman steals a letter with a dollar bill in it, he goes to the penitentiary and his life is ruined. If the promoter of a wild-cat oil company, or fur-raising company steals a hundred thousand dollars from ignorant investors, he is accounted a great man gets his picture in the newspapers, and becomes a "leading citizen."

If Canada is to be the great nation that most of us hope to see it, we must distinguish between the essential and the non-essential. We must tackle the big evils, not the little evils. We must punish the big criminals and let the petty ones off with a reprimand. At present our crinmial law and our commercial status fail to mention the worst crimes com*mitted in the name of business.*—Canadian Courier.
