THE CRESTON REVIEW

Vol. XXI. CRESTON, B. C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1929 No. 36

Alice Siding

George Willis got back last week from Alberta, where he had been for a couple of months helping with the harvest.

Hallowe'en passed off unusually quiet in this section. Hardly a gate was missing.

Miss Helen Moore of Nelson spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Moore.

Miss Annie Parkin, who has been on the boarding house staff at at Sirdar the past three months, has returned to Creston and is again with the Creston Cafe.

Ole Ringheim, who has been off work for a few weeks due to injuries to his hand sustained at gravel haul work, is able to be on the job again commencing this week.

Jack Barraclough was a business visitor at Nelson the latter part of the week.

The long stretch of indian summer weather is enabling the farmers to do a lot of fall ploughing this season.

The government road crew and trucks are busy this week doing a stretch of gravelling from the school toward Wynndel, getting the gravel from the R. Stewart pit.

Principal Lukas has issued the October report of Alice Sining school as follows: Highest standings: Grade 8—Bessie McDougall, Betty Ostrensky. Grade 7—Betty Smith, Harry Mather. Grade 6—Charles Ostrensky. Grade 5—Jessie McDougall, Bobby Parkin. Grade 4—Hazel Miller.

Lister

E. H. Smith has commenced the erection of a new residence on his property in the Huscroft area. Building is in charge of R. R. House and G. H. Priest.

W. H. Dobson of Calgary, the Ogilvie firm representative, was a business visitor on Monday.

Hallowe'en passed off very quietly in Lister district.

Rev. A. Garlick was here from Creston on Sunday morning for Church of England service and was favored with the usual large congregation.

Of the numerous land sales here seven of the purchasers are now residing on their properties and all of the others will arrive between now and spring. With few exceptions all the improved places that have houses on them are now sold.

Since last report sales of Lister farms have been made to Otto Hoehne, who has purchased the former Gus. Charleson place of 20 acres along with 40 acres of unimproved land near old sawmill. Otto Wovries has secured the former A. R. Webb and Fraser places which are of 20 acres each. Paul Meyer of Nelson is now the owner of former Conquest and John Davis farms, each of 20 acres. Herman Sommerfeld has bought the former Fred Bagshaw place along with 20 acres of improved land anjoining, on which latter there is no house. Paul Lutz has purchased the former John Johnston farm of 20 acres

The October report of Lister school shows the following taking highest standings: Grade 6—Douglas McKee, Frank Yerbury. Grade 4—Douglas Sinclair, Ruby Ross, Kirk Beard. Grade 3—Cyril Bird, Gladys McCullough, Raymond McKee, Manning Powers, Kitty Beard. Grade 2—Vivian Ross, Alice Wellspring, Margaret Dent, Erank McCullough, Eric Jacks, Margaret Sinclair, Millie Beard. Perfect attendance—Cyril Bird, Kitty Beard, Millie Beard, Frank McCullough, Gilbert McCullough, Raymond McCullough, Douglas Sinclair, Margaret Sinclair, Alice Wellspring. The per centage of attendance was .96 for the month.

Crestwood

Messrs. Krouse and Ellensburg of Idaho were business visitors at Crestwood last week.

E Bell of Tulmes, California, was a visitor at Cloverdale ranch last week.

E. Larson has been in Spokane the last few days on a business visit.

The dragline is operating in the vicinity of Porthill, having cut into the dig lake at that point, and it is rapidly draining out. This will spoil a lot of good duck shooting, but wheat growing is the more important now.

Mrs. Ted Smith and Mrs. Shoop have returned to Bonners Ferry for the winter.

Mr. Holben is ploughing at the Davis shed area and expects to seed considerable land there in she spring.

Messrs. Holben and Bishop have been in Spokane for the past week.

E. Bishop has about 100 acres already ploughed for spring seeding, and expects to put on three shifts at once to hurry up proceedings while the good weather lasts.

Roses, hollyhocks, Sweet Williams and evening primroses are still blooming at Clo erdale Ranch.

It is reported that a very valuable lead of galena ore has been located on the middle point of Lizard mountain immediately back of Crestwood by Walter Thomas and Art Hurry. We understand four claims have been located on this lead owned co-jointly by R. S. Bevan, Angus Currie, W. Thomas and Art Hurry, who expect to build a trail up to same in the early spring and do extensive development work.

Sirdar

Ernest McCabe, who has been a patient in the Cranbrook hospital, returned home on Sunday.

Miss Williams has returned from Calgary, Alberta, and is again in charge of the C.P.R. boarding house.

Mr. Pakol and sister, who have been in charge of the C.P.R. boarding house the past few months, left on Thursday for Kimberley.

P. Cherbo and his mother are Kimberley visitors this week, making the trip in Mr. Packol's car.

Miss Janet Smith arrived on Wednesday and is on the boarding house staff.

Mrs. Sam Lombardo left on Tuesday on an extended visit with her parents in Michel.

Jas. Wilson returned on Sunday from a business trip to Cranbrook.

J. Jarvis, C.P.R. yard fireman, returned on Saturday from a few days' visit at Cranbrook.

A very successful concert was given in the community hall on Wednesday by the Girl Guides and Boy Scouts. Great credit is due them for the excellent manner in which they played their parts, and also to C. Price of Cranbrook, who had trained them so well. The intak for the evening was $28.

LOST—About October 19, at Wynndel bridge, steel tape in leather case, with name on case, reward. Leave at Review Office.

Wynndel

Miss B. Geliette, Leonard and Jim Gellette, accompanied by their aunt, Mrs. Lester, left last week for Nelson.

Miss M. Joy is home from Nelson, where she has been visiting for a few days.

W. Greig left last week for Calgary, Alberta, where he will spend the winter.

Mrs. Hook and children of Spokane are visitors with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Grady.

Birth—At Trail, on October 30th, to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ringheim, a son.

The usual hallowe'en party for the children was held in the schoolhouse on Thursday evening, some of whom were fancy dress. The costume prizewinners were Nesta Huscroft as Piorette, and Sidney Davidge as indian.

The November meeting of the, W.A. will be held at the home of Mrs. Hulme on Wednesday, November 13th. The sale of work is on November 16th at the old schoolhouse.

Bible Society Meeting

The local branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society held their annual meeting on October 30th in the Presbyterian Church. There was a good attendance, representatives of all the denominations being present. In the absence of Rev. A. Garlick, president, Rev. R. E Cribb presided. Rev. P. McNabb read the scripture lesson and led in prayer. Dr. Lillie, treasurer, presented a highly satisfactory report of the financial condition of the branch. Rev. Nelson Harkness, general secretary of the society in British Columbia, delivered an illustrated lecture on "Open Doors," showing what marvellous work has been done by the society in the last 125 years, and the opportunities presenting themselves for the circulation of the word of God. The same officers were appointed for the ensuing year. They are: President, Rev. A. Garlick; vice-presidents, Rev. R. E. Cribb, Rev. P. McNabb; treasurer, Dr. Lillie; secretary, Mrs. M. J. Boyd. The amount forwarded last year from Creston was $170, all of which went for the translation, publication and distribution of the scriptures without note or comment.

Local and Personal

Dr. and Mrs. Lille are Blairmore, Alberta, visitors this week.

WANTED—Baby sulky, in good shape. Mrs. Bert Boffey, Creston.

COW FOR SALE—Jersdy cow, will milk all winter, Bert Boffey, Creston.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurack and family were motor visitors to Bonners Ferry on Sunday.

STOVE FOR SALE—Coal heater, in good condition, $10. John Bird, Camp Lister.

The local school went on the winter schedule on Fridry morning, opening at 9.30 a.m.

S. A. Speers was a business visitor at Nelson a couple of days at the first of the week.

Cold weather and your car. Maple Leaf Anti-Freeze at Creston Drug & Book Store.

Miss Laura Holmes left Friday for Vancouver, where s e is taking a course in a business college in that city.

Vital statistics for October show six births, one marriage and two ceaths. Of the increased population four were girls.

Mrs. George Merrison left on Sunday for Winnipeg, Man., where she will spend the next few months on a visit with relatives and friends.

The Premier Garage has just been advised of substantial reductions in Ford prices effective immediately. Watch for announcement next week.

There will be the usual Armistice remembrance exercises at the monument on Monday morning, commencing precisely at 11 o,clock with the two minutes silence. Rev. R. E. Cribb will be the speaker.

C. O. Rodgers was at Nelson on Monday for a meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern B.C., of which he is vice-president.

In connection with the Mother Goose bazaar the United Church school is having on the 16th, there will be the usual tea and light refreshments served.

Fred Lewis, jr., of Yahk was a week-end visitors with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis. The C.P.R. sawmill is still in operation at that point.

Services have been withdrawn in all the local churches on Suuday evening, as the ministers will be taking part in the Armistice thanksgiving service at the Grand theatre at 7.30.

Fred Smith is in charge of construction of a new six-room residence that John Garfield is building on the Pearce ranch on Goat River bottom, which he purchased about two years ago.

W. E. Searle left a few days ago for Bellvue, Alberta, where he has secured winter employment as engineer in one of the mines.

M nford Samuelson has been appointed secretary of Canyon Farmers' Institute, succeeding W. H. Kolthammer. The institute have now just taken delivery of another shipment of stumping powder.

George Hewitt, who has been working at carpenter work in Calgary, Alberta, for the past eighteen months, has arrived home and will spend the winter here.

A. G. Samuelson and L. Moberg are at present employing a crew of fourteen men cutting poles, posts and ties on the former J. B. Winlaw limit on Goat River bottom.

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF CRESTON

BY F. J. SMYTH

(Written for The Creston Review)

CRESTON is quite an industrious spot just at present. The picking, grading, sorting and shipping of this season's apple crop is in full swing at the time this is being written. Not only apples and other fruit, but a lot of wheat has been shipped out of there also. One can look around Creston and see plenty of activity. The place is growing and the people seem prosperous. Then there is talk of bigger and better things. Not only talk, but things are being accomplished.

Big Irrigation Project

One of the big projects now under way is the installing of an irrigation system for East Creston. The water will be taken from Arrow Creek and the ditch is eight miles in length. It is a gravity system and the water will come through a 21-inch concrete pipe for the main line. The system when completed will cost close to $150,000, but it is estimated that it will just about double the production of the area served. Not only will it insure an increased yearly fruit production, but it will make possible the growing of potatoes and all other varieties of vegetables.

Reclamation Works

Around Creston when they talk of reclamation it is not in acres but in thousands of acres. The possibilities of the Kootenay flats are unlimited. As an instance, this season two farmers from the United States, Lawrence Bishop, of Pullman, Wash., and M. C. Holben, of Genessee, Idaho, sowed 800 acres to wheat on the old reclamation farm across the Kootenay River. It was new ground and the work was done hurriedly, but their crop averaged about 25 bushels to the acre. The wheat was hauled to Creston and shipped to the elevators at Vancouver. The wheat was hauled in bulk by trucks from the farm and was loaded in box cars by a blower arrangement driven by an engine taken from an old model T. Ford car, but it did the work perfectly. Next year these same two men will have close to 6,000 acres in wheat, as this additional ground is being reclaimed and put in shape for a crop. Two combine harvesters were used this season in cutting and threshing the crop. Howard S. Amon, an engineer and promoter, is in charge of the reclamation work. A movement is on foot for the reclamation of 8,000 or 10,000 more acres of land on these flats.

Just across the line in Idaho several thousand acres of land have been reclaimed with wonderful success. It is stated that next year some of these farmers will also market their wheat in Vancouver. The wheat will be loaded on barges and brought down the Kootenay river to Nelson to be loaded in cars and shipped to the coast.

Box Factory

I was shown through the sawmill plant of Chas. O. Rodgers. The plant is located close to town and it turns out a varied and wonderful assortment of stuff. To date this season it has turned out approximately 130,000 apple boxes, 35,678 strawberry crates, 13,622 pear boxes, 31,758 plum crates, and 7,976 raspberry crates. The Wynndel district alone took 25,000 strawberry boxes. The veneer for these smaller crates and boxes is made right in the plant. During the small fruit season some fifteen girls are employed running the stapling machines and putting on the tin tops. Besides supplying the home demand, boxes and crates are shipped to Kaslo, Procter and other points in the Kootenays, and as far east as Taber, Alberta. Most of the lumber turned out at the mill is shipped to the prairies, a great deal of it being used in the oil fields near Calgary. Last summer quite a large order for barrel heads came in from a lime quarry near Lethbridge. A little readjustment of the machinery made it possible to fill the order, and promptly at that. This plant is a valuable asset to Creston, giving employment to quite a large number of men and women during the busy season. The monthly payroll now runs around $4,000, but during the summer months it runs close to $7,000.

Fine Opera House

Mr. Rodgers also runs the electric lighting system for the town and is the owner of the three storey opera house. An additional lighting plant is in course of construction by another company, and this should be operating before very long. For some reason unknown to the writer the streets are miserably lighted, and at night strangers have to feel their way and grope around in the darkness. Visitors comment on this, and there does seem to be a short sighted policy in vogue somewhere.

Apple Packing

The packing and shipping of apples is now in full swing. A trip through one of these sorting and packing plants is full of interest. Truckloads of apples come in from the orchards just as they are picked. A box at a time is dumped on the conveyor belt and as the apples travel along girls sort out the different grades. The better grades are wrapped and packed in boxes. A box holds from 60 to 160 apples, according to size, and so expert have these girls become that they can wrap a box of apples in about four minutes. Covers are put on and the boxes skidded down a chute and are ready for shipping. The Creston Co-Operative Fruit Exchange has already shipped 49 cars or 30,000 boxes, and shipments from the packing plant of the Creston Fruit Growers' Association will run about the same. The first named act as selling agents only. Both institutions handle a large variety of pears, plums and other fruits as well. Owing to the dry season this year's crop is not as heavy as usual, but prices are better and the growers will come out well on the right side of the ledger.

Creston has made meteoric strides since I first knew the place. In March, 1899, I walked through Creston on my way from Kuskanook to Moyie. Then there were a few straggling buildings below where the railway was to run, and there was little thought that the place would ever become an important and prosperous fruit growing centre. Among the first settlers were Fred G. Little, afterwards given the title of "mayor." Jack Dow, John Arrowsmith, George Huscroft, C. O. French, R. J. Long. Long ran the first hotel, and

Canada Among the Nations

Canadians of all classes can hardly fail to feel a thrilling pride in the rapid strides forward made by their Dominion in the realm of international affairs. Since that fateful day in 1914, when the world was plunged into war, and Canada at once, and without the slightest hesitation, took its place in the front rank of the Allied hosts, the growth of this country in world estimation and influence, has been one of the remarkable features of the international situation.

Hardly a year has passed without witnessing some new advance step taken, or some noteworthy achievement added to the record, revealing Canada's new and higher status in the councils of the nations.

Concisely, but eloquently, Sir Robert Borden outlined the Dominion's growth in international stature within the short space of the last two years in a memorandum prepared and submitted by him to the Institute of Pacific Relations now in session at Kyoto, Japan. Since 1927, when the Institute last assembled, Canada had adhered to the multilateral pact for the renunciation of war, has given adherence to the optional clause in the statutes of the Permanent Court of International Justice, has exchanged ministers with France and Japan.

Canada, too, has aligned itself whole-heartedly with Premier Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover in their fine effort to promote mutual understanding and goodwill between all sections of the English-speaking world, thus paving the way for a larger measure of world disarmament, and making an immensely important advance toward the goal of permanent world peace.

Nor has Canada confined its efforts to the signing of treaties and the making of gestures. When the unfortunate incident of the "I'm Alone" arose,—a happening which in days gone by might have precipitated almost immediate war, and certainly a feeling of hostility containing the seeds of future trouble, Canada kept cool, and through the medium of diplomatic correspondence between Ottawa and Washington, a basis of arbitration was quickly and mutually arranged to the satisfaction of both nations. Speaking of this correspondence, Sir Robert says:

"The diplomatic correspondence on the subject between Canada and the United States is admirable in tone, and the questions of fact and law presented are set out lucidly and temperately on each side."

In the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations, Canada's voice is always heard in support of all measures calculated to make for peace. This Dominion is a real leader at Geneva in all efforts to promote international understanding and goodwill, and in the devising of ways and means to remove causes of suspicion and irritation.

Co-incident with the rise of Canada as a factor in international affairs, the foreign trade of the Dominion has increasde by leaps and bounds until now this country can boast of the second largest world trade per head of population. Canada's ministers at Washington, Paris and Tokio, are reinforced in this work of creating international goodwill and prestige for Canada by a large and steadily increasing number of trade commissioners in all parts of the globe.

Canada's strong position can be made stronger through the united sympathy and effort of the Canadian people. Sir Robert Borden, while voicing unqualified praise of the anti-war pact, declared that the peace of the world cannot be secured by treaties alone, nor can it be maintained by force. The same foundation which assures ordered liberty and justice in a modern civilized state must be created on an international scale if peace is to endure.

The education and idealism of the people, their inherited respect for law, and their determination to maintain order and justice against crime and lawlessness," Sir Robert said, "are the real foundations upon which stable government rests. In the world there must be an international public opinion upon which will be established between the nations the enthronement of public right and justice."

Canada, no less than other countries, has everything to gain through the development of such an international public opinion. Only by the maintenance of peace can Canada's great foreign trade continue to prosper and grow. The development of an international public opinion must begin within each national unit and spread through the whole body of humanity.

Canada has that international viewpoint. It is growing stronger, and every true Canadian will exert himself or herself to foster it. It is one of the greatest things in the nation and in the world today.

Both the Mediterranean and the Gulf Stream which flows like an individual sea in the Atlantic, are very salty and of a deep and beautiful blue in color.

Newspapers were the only material used for the whole of a house, with the exception of the frame work, the windows and the floors, built in Massachusetts by a married couple.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions any drugstore.

England Not So Slow

When Necessary Can Show Other Countries What Speed Is

The distance between Paddington and Swindon, in England, is seventy-six and one quarter miles. The Great Western Railway of that country has announced that it has cut the time of one of its passenger trains between these stations to seventy minutes. That looks as if these Englsih trains are operating at about sixty-six miles an hour.

Sometimes we think that we are masters of all the speed on this side of the water. When our trains average fifty miles an hour we consider that we are not letting any grass grow under our feet.

Not long ago a British aviator went out and flew a seaplane at a speed of 368 miles an hour. That was the fastest time ever made by any kind of vehicle capable of carrying a human being.

It must be admitted that when the Old Country people set out to make fast time they are in a hurry. It is quite erroneous to harbor the opinion that they are slow. They have a leisurely way in certain affairs, but in others they are speedy.

NERVE TORTURES

A Condition From Which Both Men and Women Suffer

Hardly any condition of ill health causes more real suffering than a shattered nervous system. And often, unfortunately, but little sympathy is shown for the sufferer, from the mistaken notion that the nerves can be controlled. Men and women with nerves out of gear often become irritable and are blamed for ill temper, when it is not their fault. Their poor health is the cause. The tired, over-busy wife and mother, whose household cares have worn her thin; the breadwinner whose anxieties have worried him until he is really ill, are among the nerve sufferers who become run-down. Their nerves, like all bodily organs, need rich, red blood. In all such cases the best and simplest treatment is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enriches the blood and builds up the nervous system and brings good health and cheerfulness. Mrs. M. Cross, Richmond, Que., tells how this medicine ended her nervous troubles. She says:—"I have suffered from nervousness and dizzy spells, and the hundred and one things which in such a condition make life a misery. The first thing I found to help me was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Under the use of this medicine I found my nerves grew steadier, the dizzy spells grew less frequent, and I became brighter and more cheerful. I took the pills for some time and found that they enrich the blood, build up the nerves and are a fine medicine bor both old and young."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Safer To Stand Up

Mussolini Had Amusing Experience At Theatre In Italy

You don't have to believe this, but a gentleman returned fromabroad says that an American girl studying Italy went into a moving-picture theatre and suddenly realized that she was sitting just behind none other than Il Duce Mussolini himself. His visit was incognito, and successfully so, for no one recognized him in the half light of the cinema. He was enjoying everything hugely until, in the midst of a newsreel, a portrait of himself in heroic pose was thrown on the screen. The spectators of course, all arose, cheering wildly, all save Mussolini himself, who sat through the demonstration, fidgeting. His had been, obviously, a rather nice point—whether to stand up and risk being recognized honoring himself, or to remain modestly seated. After the excitement was over an old Italian lady who had the seat next him leaned over and said: "Signor, that's how we all feel, but it's safer to stand up."

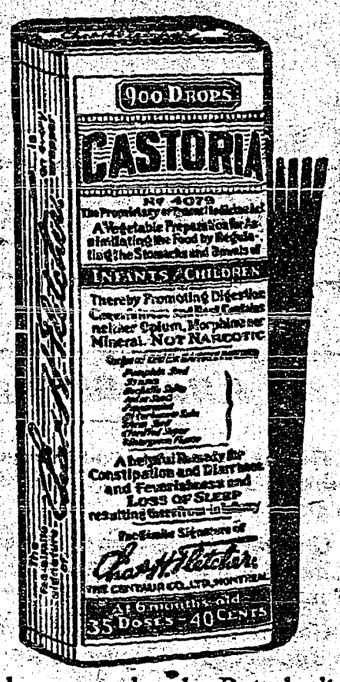
Watch the Lanterns

The Farmer's Advocate says: As the days shorten the lantern comes into use in choring, night and morning. Plenty of hooks should be provided, and wires as well, along which the lantern may slide. Carelessness with the lantern has resulted in many disastrous fires."

The Union of South Africa, in 1921, had a white population of 1,500,000 against 5,000,000 blacks.

Feet Sore? Use Minard's Liniment.

When BABIES are upset



Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Commands Atlantic Liner

Ronald Stuart Was First Canadian To Win the Victoria Cross In British Navy

At least one Canadian holder of the coveted Victoria Cross "worked his way" to England for the Prince of Wales' dinner on Nov. 9, and none can deny that he earned his passage. This is Commander Ronald Stuart, V.C., captain of the Canadian Pacific liner, "Duchess of York," the first Canadian to win the Victoria Cross in the British Navy.

Commander Stuart brought the C.P.R. steamer "Princess Elaine" to the Pacific coast on her maiden voyage last year and was later elevated to command of the crack Atlantic liner which he now sails.

"Made In Turkey" Week

Owing to the success of the first exhibition in Constantinople of Turkish national products, it has been decided to fix a week in August every year and to exhibit and sell only articles produced in Turkey.

Little Lottie—"I don't think so—he's so good nobody likes him."

WHAT WILL IT DO?

Women are saying: "Pinkham's Compound keeps me fit to do my work." "I was nervous and all run down. Now I eat better and sleep better—". "It helped my thirteen year old daughter."—"I took it before and after my baby was born." —"I am gaining every day."

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Aspirin! For there is scarcely any sort of pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

You need not hesitate to take Aspirin. It is safe. It is always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

VICTORY FOR FERGUSON FORCES IN ONTARIO

Toronto.—Premier G. Howard Ferguson, with his Conservative government intact and a greatly increased army of supporters, is now more solidly entrenched as the dominant political force in the province of Ontario.

Their ranks shattered by the defeats inflicted by the Conservatives in rural strongholds they regarded as invulnerable, only a corporal's guard of opposition strength will face the government when the legislative assembly, the 18th in the history of the province, convenes to enact the legislation for a greater Ontario, on which Premier Ferguson based his appeal to the people.

In giving the Ferguson government a mandate to administer the affairs for a third successive term, the people of Ontario gave the administration the strongest legislative representation ever accorded a government in the province.

The sweeping victory which exceeded the hopes of the most optimistic government supporters was a ringing answer to the prime minister's declaration that he was willing to stake his political life on the government's policy of control and sale of liquor by the government—the issue on which he was returned to power in the 1926 general election.

The standing as compared with the 1926 election follows:

Party	1929	1926
Conservatives	93	77
Liberals	9	21
Progressives	3	11
U. F. O.	1	13
Ind.Conservatives	1	0
Liberal-Progressives	1	0
Deferred	1	0
Doubtful	3	0
Total	112	112

The landslide that swept the Ferguson government into power with at least 93 supporters in a house of 112 members carried down to defeat with it J. G. Lethbridge, the 74-year-old Progressive party leader who waged a hard fight in West Middlesex, which he had represented since 1919. He lost the seat in a three-cornered contest to Dr. L. W. Freele, the Conservative candidate by the slim minority of 39 votes.

W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., the Liberal leader, saw his forces, which numbered 21 in the last house, dwindle to nine. He was re-elected in Onatrio South, but his majority of more than 2,000 in the 1926 election was cut down to a bare 1,000.

Edmonton Students Hear Unusual Lecture

Former German Officer Gives Address At Edmonton Military Academy

Edmonton, Alta.—With a former commander in the Imperial German navy relating his own experiences in the battle of Jutland, famous naval encounter of the world war, the Edmonton military academy heard an unusual lecture here.

Erich Alleweldt, who fought as a German officer in all the major naval engagements of the war, and to whose address the academy listened, came to Alberta two years ago, and is now a progressive farmer in the Brightbank district.

Albertan Wins Huge Sum

Quebec. — George Kowalchuk, of Hackett, Alberta, and James Westcott, of Springvale, Mass., won the first two prizes each amounting to $79,399.50 in the Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstake on the Cambridgeshire race at Newmarket, England. The sweep was arranged so that each horse was drawn by two ticket holders. Both of these men drew Double Life.

Dunning Will Come West

Ottawa, Ont.—Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways, will join Premier Mackenzie King on the latter part of his western tour and return with him to Ottawa. Mr. Dunning will meet Mr. King at Regina, when the prime minister is returning, and will be present at the various meetings held on the eastward journey.

Received News By Radio

And V.C. Holder In Isolated Settlement Will Attend Prince's Dinner

Winnipeg.—Word of the Prince of Wales' dinner to be given November 9, in honor of all those who won the Victoria Cross, trickled into a little settlement 100 miles from Salmon Arm, B.C., recently. Major J. McGregor, stationed at the little settlement, received the news over the radio.

Major McGregor, whose valor on the field of battle while serving with the 2nd Canadian Rifles, earned him the V.C., lost no time in setting out on a hurried trip to New York from where he sailed on the S.S. Olympic for London. He raced 100 miles by auto to the railway station at Salmon Arm, where he arrived only fifteen mniutes before his train left.

Solved His Problem

Immigrant Out Of Work Broke Window To Get Jail Term

Saskatoon, Sask.—Failing in his search for emplyment during the past month and being without friends in this country, Joseph G. Jackson, immigrant, solved his part of the unemployment problem by throwing a brick through the plate glass window of the government liquor store on Third Avenue.

The crash of the glass evidently went unnoticed at the time so Jackson hunted up a sergeant of the police and told his story, and was taken to the cells. In police court he admitted his guilt and stated that he fully expected to go to jail, and was not disappointed for Magistrate Brown sentenced him to six months in Prince Albert.

Will Erect Modern Elevators For Crop

France To Have Up-To-Date Facilities For Handling Wheat

Coulommiers, France.—France is to have a modern system of grain eelvators. Strange as it may seem, there are but few elevators in France, and most of those that are modern are at the ports.

France's wheat crop is stored rather haphazardly. Jean Hennessy, Minister of Agriculture, told a congress of farmers here that the government would help to build enough up-to-date elevators to handle 30,000 bushels, a tenth of this year's harvest.

Canadians Are Defined

Dominion Statistician Settles Controversy Of Long Standing

Ottawa, Ont.—Every one of Canadian nationality is a Canadian; every one born in the Dominion is of Canadian birth; and every one whose family has been of three generations' residence or more in Canada is a Canadian "in a special sense," according to a report issued by R. H. Coates, Dominion statistician.

The report would seem to settle a controversy of long duration as to just what constitutes "a Canadian."

Is Protecting Employees

Chairman Of Chicago Firm Guarantees Stock Market Account

Chicago, Ills.—In a copyrighted article, the Herald Examiner said that Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the Board of Sears-Roebuck and Cmpany has guaranteed the stock market accounts of the more than 40,000 employees of the company.

He has pledged his personal fortune of millions of dollars to prevent any employee facing the danger of having his savings swept away, the story said.

Arab Boycott In Jerusalem

Jerusalem.—Two hundred Jewish shopkeepers of the old city submitted a memorandum to the high commissioner, Sir John Chancellor, declaring that an organized Arab boycott of Jews was still going on. Arab pickets were said to be watching the entrance of Jewish shops destroying all goods purchased there by Arabs.

Sir Alan Cobham has just completed another trip of 60,000 miles. He is by all odds the king of the air, although that fact is seldom mentioned.

FAMOUS WOMAN EXPLORER

Lady Richmond Brown, distinguished woman explorer, who has arrived in New York from England. In January she leaves for the wilds again, at the head of an American-Indian expedition, with which Mr. M. Mitchell Hedges, famous explorer, will be connnected. She was with Mr. Hedges when his party discovered the Chucanaque Indians in a hitherto totally unknown part of Panama.

An All-Canadian Menu

Food From Every Province Will Be Feature At Winter Fair

Ottawa.—A menu featuring foods gathered from coast to coast will be a feature, arranged by the ariculture department for the opening of the National Winter Fair at Toronto, on November 20.

There will be oysters from Prince Edward Island, fish from Nova Scotia, maple syrup from Quebec, beef from the west, fruit from Ontario and British Columbia — a little something from each and every province to suit the epicurean tastes of the cattlemen.

New Position For Dr. Gunn

Victoria.—Dr. W. R. Gunn, at present identified with the health of animal section of the Federal Department of Agriculture with headquarters in Toronto, has been appointed livestock commissioner for British Columbia, according to announcement of the provincial minister of agriculture, Hon. W. Atkinson. Dr. Gunn will assume his new duties on December 1.

May Abolish Capital Punishment

Question Is Now An Issue In British House Of Commons

London, Eng.—The House of Commons adopted an amendment for appointment of a committee to report on the possibility of abolition of capital punishment.

When debate opened on a private member's resolution for abolition of the death penalty, Right Hon. John R. Clynes, secretary for home affairs, expressed government sympathy with the idea, but said the question of an alterntaive to such punishment was the rock on which all projects for abolition had split.

He agreed with the amendment finally adopted for study of the matter, which he hoped might lead to some practical result. In the course of the discussion Lady Astor expressed great disappointment in the attitude of the minister. She had broken a ten-year custom earlier today by appearing at the afternoon session without a hat as most of the other women have done regularly.

Writ Has Been Issued

General Higgins Asks Transfer Of Salvation Army Property

London, Eng.—A writ on behalf of General Higgins, the new commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, asking for transfer to himself of army property now held in the names of the executors of the late General Bramwell Booth has been issued.

The writ was served immediately on General Booth's executors, Mrs. Booth, Commissioner Catherine Booth, his daughter and a solicitor, Sneath. The situation at present is that while all property of the army in Great Britain is controlled by General Higgins, its ownership remains in the hands of General Both's executors.

Fort William's Founder Dead

William P. McKellar Came To Lake Head In 1863

Fort William, Ont.—Founder of the city of Fort William, Peter McKellar, is dead, at the age of 91 years. He was the last of the McKellar brothers who came to the lake head 66 years ago and formed the nucleus of the first settlement. McKellar was the first to discover gold, silver, copper, iron and lead in the Fort William area. He was a member of London and American Geological Societies.

Favorite Star Goes C.P.R.

Travelling from Winnipeg to Montreal by Imperial Limited, crack Canadian Pacific Flyer, Colleen Moore, smiling Irish actress, opened her eyes to more than average wideness as she got her first glimpse of the prairies and the East from the luxurious compartment of a Canadian Pacific train de luxe. She told interviewers that she had been in a condition of amazement all through her trip and the word "wonderful" was continually on her lips. She is shown here stepping from the train at the Windsor Street station, Montreal, just before receiving an ovation from her countless admirers who gathered at the depot and later at the theatre where she appeared in person.

DOMINION STATUS FOR INDIA WILL BE CONSIDERED

London, Eng.—A London newspaper published what purports to be a summary of the report of the Indian central committee, appointed under Sir Nankaran Mair, from members of the Indian legislature, to work in co-operation with the Simon commission on statutory reform. The commission has concluded its work after a month in London, and is ready to submit a unanimous report to the viceroy of India, with whom lies discretion regarding publication.

The newspaper report, however, suggests the committee practically recommends something like Dominion status for India and full autonomy for the provinces.

The newspaper continues that the report recommends formation of an Indian privy council under the chairmanship of the viceroy. It demands that the Indian parliament be given greater control of the army votes, and expresses the opinion that India, if left free, would desire to recruit its police service largely from England, but that India would be able to maintain her own judicial service.

Delhi, India.—Viceroy Lord Leroy was said today to intend to issue a proclamation which will deal with the question of Dominion status for India, and announce the summoning of a conference in London to discuss the future constitutional development of India.

It was assumed that pending the decision of the British government in regard to recommendations that may be made by the Simon commission, the proclamation will make no distinct promise that will indicate the policy of Great Britain.

Plan Pacific Air Liners

Monster Dirigibles To Operate Between California and the Philippines

Akron, Ohio.—Two monster dirigibles, the largest in the world, are to be constructed and placed in regular operation between Southern California and the Philippines, in 1933, by the Pacific Zeppelin Transport Co., according to Paul W. Litchfield, chairman of the board. The Pacific liners will carry 80 passengers and ten tons of mail, express and freight. They will cut in half the crossing time now made by the fastest boats.

Submarine Sets Depth Mark

Spezia, Italy.—The Italian submarine "Tito Speri," 830 tons, submerged to the extraordinary depth of 343 feet in tests and remained there 20 minutes. Experimental hydro-phonic communication was carried on from the depth with the submarine "Selesa" on the surface.

Stratford Players Coming

Famous Festival Company Is Again Appearing In Western Canada

Regina.—Fro an engagement of three nights, beginning on Monday, Nov. 11th, the famous Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Company, from the Memorial Theatre at Shakespeare's birth-place, will appear at the Grand Theatre, Regina, presenting in the order named, "Much Ado About Nothing," "Romeo and Juliet," "Julius Caesar," and "Twelfth Night."

The splendid artistic qualities of this organization are well known to playgoers through the appearance of the company here last season, when an entirely different repertory was presented. The plays on the present list are those that were revived at the Memorial Theatre last summer. The company is almost the same as last season, with only such changes in personnel as have been necessitated by the altered repertory. Among the players are: George Hayes, Wilfrid Walter, Roy Byford, Eric Maxon, Gordon Bailey, William Calvert, Oliver Cromble, Kenneth Wicksteed, Ernest Hare, R. Eric Lee, Jack Bligh, Geoffrey Wilkinson, C. Rivers Gadsby, Noel Iliff, Joyce Bland, Fabia Drake, Mary Holder, Olive Walter, Miriam Adams, Dorothy Francis and Maud Garth. Monday evening, "Much Ado About Nothing"; Tuesday evening, "Romeo and Juliet"; Wednesday matinee, "Julius Caesar"; Wednesday evening, "Twelfth Night."

HOME BREW

At the August conference of Valley school trustees to discuss the erection of a consolidated high school at Caeston a now-forgotten adjournment was taken in order to definitely ascernain whether the School Act had been amended making it compulsory for each trustee board to pay the fees of students attending high st some other point. Information obtained by the Fernie trustees would indicate that such an amendment has been made, but only as effecting high school pupils under fifteen years of age. Where a student is in his or her sixteenth year it is still up to the parent to liquidate for any such higher education provided.

A story that is fully entitled to a place under the "Believe -it-or-not" heading comes from New Denver where, according to the Leaser, Postmaster Thompson has just suffered the loss of his artificial eye due to an explosion while he was taking a nap one day last week. People with glass eyes should, apparently, be very careful what brand they indulge in, or else see to it that they do not doze off while under the influence. The price of boose is reputed to be plenty high enough, without having to foot a medical bill for repairs for the after effects of seeing double, particularly when one is too sound asleep to fully enjoy the thrill.

THANKSGIVING

By REV. R. E. CRIBB

Man has always viewed the harvest season with a sense of awe and reverence. Whether we turn to the legends of primitive peoples, or to the nature-myths of ancient Greece, or to the Semetic literature, we find a stirring of the heart of man brought about by the harvest occasion.

There have always been those, in ancient as well as in modern times, who have been "born blind" to this sense of awe. But the great individuals of all peoples have been prone to pause at this season, and in pausing have felt their hearts moved to "thank whatever gods there be."

Even in these days of scientific agriculture, growth is one of the unsolved mysteries of life. We may well marvel at that paradox of nature, whiche causes a slender stalk of wheat to draw up many hundredweight of moisture against the attraction of the whole earth.

The building of cell upon cell, each with its own function, must seemingly ever remain a mystery. What it is that lies in the nucleus of a seed, what is life, are questions not yet answered by man.

We have called the processes of growth by certain names, which we describe as laws. But as Janet pointed out, to speak of laws, is to merely cloak our ignorance. Spencer in his last book says "We are obliged to confess that life in its essence cannot be conceived in physico-chemical terms."

In the legends of Hiawatha, we have a splendid example of what the primitive American Indian thought of the harvest. Hiawatha is an indian brave who is fired with a great ambition to serve his people.

He goes into seclusion where he wrestles with the powers of nature. Through his victory he is empowered by the Great Spirit to give to his people the fruits of agriculture, represented by corn. The legend breathes of the spirit of sacrifice and portrays the hard toil of reaping the blessings of the harvest.

In the nature-myth of Ceres, the goddess of vegetation of the ancient Greeks, we have the story of a mother's persistent love for her daughter, Persephone. Persephone is stolen by Hades to be his wife and rule the lower regions with him. Ceres is so broken-hearted that the earth refuses to bear its fruits for mankind.

So woeful are the prayers of men that finally Jupiter decrees that Persephone be restored to her mother, certain months of each year. Springtime, to the Greeks, was the time of Ceres' joy over the coming of her daughter, winter was the time of Persephone's sojourn in Hades.

These two legends, in common with many others, coutain what are called instinctive and natural ideas of mankind. The American Indian, living in a rigorous climate, saw that the harvest entailed sacifice and toil on the part of man; the Greek, blessed with fertile valleys and ideal weather, felt the gods almost altogether were responible for the harvest.

In the first, man's share is emphasized; in the second, the beneficence of the deity. Due to that peculiar insight of the Hebrew, we find in the bible many references to both these factors of the harvest. Man's toil is lifted to a high moral plane and the deity is regarded as one of mercy and lovingkindness.

At the harvest time we are reminded that we have partaken of the spirit of Hiawatha. There has been the sacrifice of toil, of weary limbs and aching back.

There have been long hours of laber entailing a self-denial of many fleeting hours of pleasure or idleness. Patient study of and obedience to the laws of growth in nature have been an axacting price in the field and orchard.

But when we have said all this in regard to man's share in production, we must also admit that God's share has been great. "Beware," said one of the most aggressive and successful men of biblical times, "lest thou say of my own hand have I gotten me these things." For without the sunshine and the rain which "He sends upon the just and the unjust" our efforts are futile.

To our modern minds comes the realization of the value of orderly processes of growth in the world. We did not invent these processes. Indeed, whence cometh this ability of man to discover, analyze and use these laws?

We are reminded of another significant scriptural saying "I have given thee the power to make wealth." Harvest time reminds us of our dependence upon God. We are thankful that He has not allowed us to toil in vain, our sacrifice and toil have been vindicated by Him. Once again God has met his self-made obligations to the sons of men.

Since the war, we have felt that peace is a greater blessing than an abundant harvest. The thought comes that even as we are learning how to work with God in the field and orchard, so perhaps we are also learning to work with Him in our desire for "Peace on earth, good will to men." We can be assured of this, that when we earnestly seek peace and labor for it, as we labor for the harvest, that God will also grant peace unto us.

Local and Personal

C. F. Hayes and W. Fraser left on Wednesday for Kimberley where the former as Masonic D.D.G.M. for East Kootenay, is making an official visit to Selkirk Lodge that evening.

At the annual meeting of Creston branch of the Bible Society on Wednesday last all the old officers were re-elected. The treasurer's report showed $170 nett collected at Creston a year ago.

Almost half the cars using Creston View tourist camp were from Alberta. One-fifth were from British Columbia points, and one-fifth from points in the United States. About ten were from Ontario.

There will be no evening service in the Presbyterian Church on Sabbath, November 10th. There will be spenial reference made at the morning service to "What the Presbyterian Church in Canada is Doing."

Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone returned to Vancouver at the end of the week. They have been residents of Creston the past six months, Mr. Livingstone having had charge of the grounds at the W. M. Archibald residence.

All are reminded of the Liberal rally in the Grand theatre this Friday evening, 8th, which will be addressed by Hon. J. H. King, minister of healnh, and D. D. McLean, of Nelson, the Liberal candidate in West Kootenay.

Due to the editor leaving for Kimberley on Wednesday the Review makes its appearance a day earlier than usual, which accounts for the absence of the October school report and budgets of news from Erickson and Kitchener.

Creston Knights of Pythias are looking for a big turnout at the meeting this Thursday evening, 7th, when Grand Chancellor Lampert of Idaho, and members of the fraternity from Idaho and Washington, will pay Wild Rose Lodge a fraternal visit.

W. M. Archibald made a flying visit to Creston from Trail on Monday morning, coming over in his DeHaviland moth plane and making a perfect landing on the flats about opposite the Presbyterian Church. He left for the east the same afternoon.

L. A. Oampbell of Rossland, president of the West Kootenay Power & Light Company, was a visitor here on Friday, returning from Bonners Ferry, and was accompanied by Mr. Crowe, solicitor for the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company, Trail.

The feature of the November meeting of Creston and District Women's Institnte on Friday, 15th, will be the report of the 1929 Kootenay-Boundary Institute conference at Nelson last month. The repart will be given by the secretary, Mrs. W. R. Long.

The November session of the village council will be on Tuesday evening, due to Thanksgiving Day falling on the regular meeting night. The commissioners are looking for visits from two delegations, one of whom will discuss the matter of the village taking over the public library.

Sanford Evans, who is making an enquiry into the fruit industry in B.C. for the provincial government, will be at Creston Thursday afternoon and Friday up till 4 p.m. Ranchers and organizations who wish to discuss fruit growing and marketing problems should make it a point to look Mr. Evans up. So far as we know no public meeting is held.

According to the official records the Valley was favored with just a little over an inch of rain during October—1.14 to be exact. The warmest spell was on the 14th and 15th when the mercury got up to 73 in the shade, and the coldest was the 31st when 23 above zero was recorded. Only on six mornings last month did the mercury go to 32 or lower.

In the recent 12-months' egg-laying contest at Grand Forks a pen of Barred Rocks from the McAlpine poultry farm came sixth in a class of about 50. First prize went to a pen of White Leghorns with a total pen lay of 878 eggs, while the McAlpine pullets accounted for 803. The best single bird lay was 232 eggs. One of the McAlpine pullets had a record of 210, sixth in honor roll.

Col. Mallandaine was at Bonners Ferry on Wednesday where he was attending a sitting of the International Waterways Commission, which heard the application of West Kootenay Power and Light Company for permission to erect a dam below Nelson, which it is stated will raise the level of the Kootenay Lake six feet. The application was objected to by all the owners of dyked lands on the Idaho side.

An important business change is reported at the first of the month when Messrs. Rose & Timmons disposed of the garage business at the corner of Canyon Street and Barton Avenue, khown as Creston Motors, to Geo. Merrison and L. C. McFarland, who have taken possession. Mr. Merrison was in charge of the Kootenay garage here up till early in August, and Mr. McFarland comes Vulcan, Alberta, and will be moving here to take up residence before the end of the month. They are retaining the Chrysler and Plymouth sales and service and will do a general garage repair business. for which latter Mr. Merrison has splendid reputation as a workman.

Arrangements are now comeleted for the observance of Armistice Day, and as last year, the observance will include a thanksgiving service at the Grand theatre on Sunday night, commencing at 7.30, in which all the local clergy will take part, with Rev. A. Garlick delivering the address and the Players orchestra will lead the music. On Monday there will be the exercises at the monument commencing precisely at 11 o'clock, at which Rev. R. E. Cribb will be the speaker. All returned men are asked to gather at the Lamont building t 10.45 so that the march can commence sharp at 10.50. There will be the usual place in the service for the placing of wreaths on the monument, and the Last Post will conclude proceedings. As Monday is also Thanksgiving Day a large turnont is looked for.

soon afterwards Chas Faas and W. H. Crawford came over from Slocan City and started a store, which later blossomed into the affluent Creston Mercantile company. As early as 1895 C. C. French helped to drive a bunch of cattle through the Crow's Nest Pass from the prairies to the old reclamation farm on the Kootenay flats. The reclamation farm was then being handled by a company headed by George Alexander. Now, after all these years, this project seems to be coming into its own.

Waterpower Possibilities

There are enormous water power possibilities close on hand in the Goat River canyon. It will be an easy matter to dam the water in this deep narrow gorge and harness sufficient power for Creston and all the country surrounding.

The Imperial Bank of Canada and the Canadian Bank of Commerce have branches there, and both institutions seem to be busy handling the financial affairs of the community.

Business Section Moved

Almost the entire business section of Creston is now on the upper side of the railway, as well as all the churches and the larger portion of the residential district. It afforded me pleasure to see several of my old time friends there prospering. I knew W. H. Crowford thirty-three years ago, at Slocan City when he and his partner, Chas. Faas., were developing the Crusader and Alpine groups of mineral claims. Money realized from the sale of these properties gave them their start in business in Creston. Faas sold out some years ago and is now making his home in Alberta.

When I walked into S. A. Speers' magnificent store my mind wandered back to the days when I knew him as a clerk in R. Campbell's store in Moyie and later when he opened a little store of his own at Curzon Junction, near Yahk, during the construction of the Spokane-International railway. Fate has been kind to Sam, and I'm mighty glad of it.

The drug store where the late P. D. Hope once held forth is now run by George H. Kelly. It is a nifty and up-to-date place. The Burns meat market is another place that attracts the eye of the stranger, equipped with frigidaire and precooling systems. Vases of flowers stand on the different show cases, and don't forget that flowers add to the attractiveness of even a meat market. Frank Putman ran this shop in the early days, when it was open only two days a week. Putman quit cutting T-bone steaks and making sausage several years ago, and is now one of the leading fruit growers in the valley. R. J. Long, who ran the first hotel, is also a prosperous orchardist

H. S. McCreath started in the draying business when the town was small. He has kept pace with the times and now operates four trucks and conducts a large feed and fuel business.

Wm. Fraser conducts a prosperous bakery business, and Robt. Walmsley is still the old reliable accountant and real estate insurance agent that he was in the pioneer days of the town. Frank Jackson handles real estate, is a heavy property holder, and is a valued member of the town council.

Col. Ed. Mallandaine is the waterworks magnate, and is one of the oldest residents there. He was one of the engineers in the building of the Crow's Nest Pass railway, and showed good judgment when he located in Creston. He has a fine home just under the brow of the hill.

Dr. G. B. Henderson, pioneer physician there, stayed with the town during good times and bad times, and now has a good practice and has one of the finest homes in the place.

J. Atwood, former C. P. R. agent at Moyie but now retired, has a fine orchard not far from town, and although his permanent home is in Cranbrook he and Mrs. Atwood spend considerable time at the farm.

R. S. Bevan, Guy Constable and Frank Rose are among other old timers still there.

Well Kept Hotel

The Creston Hotel is well conducted by M. J. Beninger and his wife. It is one of the best kept small hotels I have ever stopped at. I cannot say as much for the restaurant service in the town. Good food seemed to be spoiled by poor cooking, and although in the centre of an apple district the restaurant at which I boarded did not have an apple on the table at any meal. But I am told this is characteristic of fruit growing districts.

Archibald's Wise Choice

An indication of the favorable opinion men of large affairs have of Creston as a place of residence is evidenced in the locating there of W. M. Archibald, general mine manager of the Consolidated company. Mr. Archibald has a thirty-acre orchard tract close to town and has just completed the building of a palatial brick residence, with large garage and other buildings. His work takes him far and wide, for his field of action embraces western Canada. But when he comes home for a rest from his labors he wants a place where flowers and fruit grow, where the scenery is peaceful and refreshing and the climate unexcelled. He is a man of means and could have selected any place between Vancouver and Winnipeg, but he picked on Creston and is to be congratulated on his wise choice.

Creston has a good exhibition building, baseball park and curling rink. The town and whole surrounding country has an air of prosperity and permanency.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Marie, of Roumania, most unconventional and perhaps loveliest and loneliest of Europe's queens, celebrated her 51st birthday on October 29.

It is announced that E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has accepted appointment to the Canadian Olympic committee.

During September, the first month of the apple-shipping season, 89,476 barrels left Halifax for the overseas markets. This was more than double the exports of September, 1928.

Kaye Don, noted racing car driver, announces that an automobile in which he will seek a world's speed record, at Daytona Beach, Florida, has been nearly completed.

During his speech to the Canadian Club, while in Quebec, Premier Ramsay MacDonald confided to his audience that he proposed to make a trip to Hudson Bay, no matter who attempted to deter him.

Six men, jumping simultaneously from a 19-passenger airplane, demonstrated the possibility of safe descent from a disabled 'plane. The demonstration was made at Roosevelt Field, New York.

Pleased With Trial Shipments

Good Market Created In Dutch East Indies For B.C. Apples

From trial shipments of apples made in 1928, it has been definitely ascertained that there exists a market for British Columbia apples in Malaya and Dutch East Indies. During the three years a steady increase is shown in the number of boxes entering Java—nearly 50 per cent, since 1926, and the prospects are that 1929 will see a still further increase. Australia, the nearest, is naturally the chief source of supply, followed by the United States Pacific coast.

Crude Petroleum Production

Alberta Produces About 86 Per Cent. Of Total For Dominion

Figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that during the first six months of the present year 470,238 barrels of crude petroleum, valued at $1,643,025, were produced in Canada. This is an increase of 168,676 barrels, or $682,267 over the first half of 1928. The Province of Alberta contributed about 86 per cent. of the total for the Dominion, having produced 405,970 barrels.

Plaintiff Lost Damage Case Through Cleverness Of Lawyer For Defence

A legal friend of mine told me the other day a good story illustrating the value of cross-examination in the hands of an expert at the game. At the time when the present Lord Birkenhead was plain Mr. F. E. Smith, he was retained by a tramway company in a running-down case. The plaintiff, a man of the laboring class, had had his arm injured, and he claimed that the injury was permanent and prevented him from working. If his case were correct, it was a case for heavy damages. Mr. Smith, however, was convinced that the man was exaggerating. The difficulty was to prove it. After several more or less irrelevant questions had been put and answered, Mr. Smith said to the plaintiff quite casually: "Would you mind showing the jury how high you can lift your arm since the accident?" The man, apparently with some difficulty, raised it to his shoulder. "Now," said Mr. Smith in the same casual tone of voice, "show us how high you could lift it before the accident." Up shot the plaintiff's arm, well above his head! The future Lord Birkenhead's insight into the man's mentality had won the tramway company their case.

Shipment Of Pure Bred Rams

Four Carloads Shipped From Ontario To Western Canada Points

What is hoped to be the first of a series of shipments of purebred rams from Ontario to the western ranches has just reached the prairies. The four carloads of 275 good purebred rams included Lincolns, Cotswolds, Leicesters, Hampshires, Southdowns and Cheviots, all selected by officials of the Canadian Co-Operative Wool growers Limited, who, along with the wool committee of the National Research Council, have been active in promoting sheep and wool interests in Canada. In the past large consignments of these sheep have been sent to the Western States for breeding with the native stock.

Canada's Sound Position

Prosperity Due In Large Measure To Agricultural Development

"We are all primarily conscious of the fact that this country, measured by any of the yardsticks by which the prosperity of a nation can be gauged, is a very prosperous country, notwithstanding disturbing stock markets and a rather unusual grain situation, both of which are, we hope, temporary," stated E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, at a dinner given in his honor by the St. Catherines Chamber of Commerce.

"There is, perhaps," continued Mr. Beatty, "no one reason to which we can attribute all the improvement in Canadian conditions in the last few years, but there is one which stands out above and beyond all others, and that is the impetus given by successive crops, large in volume or in money value. We hope the time will come when our prosperity will be said to be equally balanced as between agriculture and the development of natural resources and industry, but for the moment we are preeminently still an agricultural country and that when providence ordains that our crops shall be large we are almost inevitably prosperous."

WORLD PEACE THROUGH MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING

Golden Text: "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah as the waters cover the sea."—Isaiah 11.9.

Lesson: Isaiah 2.2-4; 11.6-10; 19. 23-25; Acts 17.22-28; Ephesians 4.4-6, 13-19; John 4.20, 21.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 98.1-9.

Explanations and Comments

Isaiah's Prophecy Of Universal Peace, Isaiah 2.3-4.—In the midst of foes within and foes without, at a time when the fear was overwhelming that Assyria would capture Judah, the prophet Isaiah had his vision of a time of universal peace. "It shall come to pass in the latter days"—thus his prophecy begins. The expression "the latter days" has the general meaning of "future time." In the far-distant time, Mount Moriah, on which the temple was built (the mountain of Jehovah's house), which stands here for Jerusalem, "shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills." "Interpret the words figuratively as meaning that the fame of Jehovah will become so great that it will eclipse that of all other deities. The metaphor may be based upon an ancient belief that there was a mountain reaching from earth to heaven, on whose summit the gods dwell."—Cal Eiselen. "And all nations shall flow into it"; the time will come when other nations will acknowledge the supremacy of Israel and will say, "Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob," the seat of God's universal dominion; "and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths."

"Jerusalem, Isaiah tells us, shall be so lifted up as to become literally the light of the world, the true source of law and teaching. Well, history has fulfilled this prophecy, though not possibly as Isaiah anticipated. The actual Jerusalem is a little grey city, much scarred by millenniums of fighting in the uplands of Palestine; but, none the less, directly and indirectly, whatever our Christian world has of faith or vision today, has come from that city and from those who have walked its streets. Truly in this sense the mountain of the Lord's house has been exalted above the hills."—Gaius Glenn Atkins.

Therefore they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks, for in that glorious future nations shall not lift up sword against nations, neither shall they learn war any more. The plowshare was used for the stirring up of the soil, but it was only a small piece of iron somewhat resembling a sword in shape, and could well have been made out of a sword.

"Then I dipped into the future far as human eye could see;
Saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be. . .

and the battle flags were furled

An Early Tractor

Thirty years ago, on Sepetmber 6, 1899, a steam tractor was demonstrated near Morris, Man. A roller was attached behind the ploughs, and it was claimed that a perfect seed-bed was created from raw prairie without back-setting.

Nature's Speed Artist

Insect Size Of Bee Travels 815 Miles Per Hour

The fastest known bird is the spine-tailed swift, which reaches the speed of 220 miles an hour over the mountains of Asia; the tarpon, of Florida, the fastest fish, can cover 80 miles in an hour; and the Indian cheetah, the speediest animal on legs, is credited with 60 miles per hour. Man has beaten all these records; but he is still second to an insect, a fly no bigger than a bee which has been recorded to do 815 miles per hour.

THEY SAY
Cow Clipping Pays!

A CERTAIN farmer wanted the facts about clipping cows so he wrote us for names of those owning clipping machines. He wrote them. Now he himself is so pleased with the Stewart clipping machine he sent us the letters which made him decide the clipping machine is a good investment. Here are some of them:

Vankleek Hill.

"I think a clipping machine is a sound investment, paying for itself — yes, ten times its price in one clipping. Why? Because it eliminates the lice nuisance and naturally it takes less feed to keep cattle in good condition.

Bowmanville.

"It is the easiest way to keep cows clean. With the old hair off the lice do not bother. A farmer cannot afford to keep cows and not clip them, is my experience."

Tavistock.

"It certainly reduces bacteria. It is a good investment to have the machine because it keeps down all the dirt and the milk keeps a lot better."

Aylmer.

"We have clipped our cows now for the last ten or twelve years. It sure does away with the lice and when you get rid of the lice the cows milk a lot better. It not only keeps the manure from clinging to their hams, but when the udder is clipped dirt don't stick to it and get in the milk. The cows look a lot better to sell."

HOW TO CLIP COWS

Manure, the principal source of bacteria, cannot collect and at milking time rub off into the pail if hair on udder, underline, flanks and tail is kept clipped short all winter.

Lice seem to congregate along the spine, which explains why some farmers clip a six inch width from tail to ears.

Farmers who have warm stables and drinking water inside, usually clip their cows all over in the fall.

Buy a clipping machine and make more money from your cows—with less work.

Stewart No. 1 Clipping Machine is easy to use and anyone can clip with it. Strong, sturdy, easy-running and will last for years.

At your dealer, $15.00.

The Singing Fool

By HUBERT DAIL

Copyright, 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, singing waiter at Blackie Joe's New York night club, wins fame as a composer of popular songs. He marries Molly Winton, a ballad singer, and makes her famous, too. When their baby, Junior, is about two years old, Molly elopes with John Perry, Al's best friend, taking the child. A week later Al learns she is at a New York hotel, ready to sail for France that afternoon. He calls her on the 'phone, and begs for the chance to say goodbye to Junior. Molly consents, so Junior is taken to the park entrance. It is a tragic farewell, for Al adores his boy. Junior says, "Do you feel bad, daddy?"

CHAPTER XX.

"I'm all right, Junior," said Al. "No, I don't feel bad. I'm just awfully happy to see you. I'll tell you something — you're going far away to another place on a great big boat. Take care of mother and don't let anything happen to her. Be good to her. And remember—you'll see daddy again; we must both wait for that time."

In the distance the nurse-maid was consulting the chauffeur as to the time. He looked at his watch and decided they should be getting back to the hotel. Al looked up to see the severe-faced nurse standing before him.

"I'm sorry," she said firmly, "but it' time for the young gentleman to return to his mother."

Junior turned on her quickly. "But I don't want to go."

The nurse tried to smile, but Junior continued with baby sternness. "If you take me away so soon I won't like you."

Al rose, gathering Junior in his arms. "Sh-h—Junior. It isn't nursie's fault that you have to go. You must be a good boy, every way, every day." Then Al turned to the nurse. "I'll bring him over to the car. Will you please go on ahead?"

The nurse preceded them, while Al made that one hundred-foot walk to the car last as long as possible. Would this really be the last time he ever saw Junior? Perhaps not, but it was quite possible that Junior would be a strapping youngster the next time they came together. If so his adorable baby sayings and his sense of baby gaiety would be gone. His sweet, confiding ways would be replaced by a boyish self-sufficiency. He might even forget his father entirely.

These thoughts travelled like burning darts through Al's mind. was it humanly possible for him to give up this little bundle of humanity? Could he live afterward? And then came the thought — take Junior by force, jump into taxi and drive off with him. For a moment this idea persisted with startling intensity. It would be so easy, and he would be justified in doing it!

But, no, Al just couldn't do it — he wasn't made that way. He was kind, generous, chivalrous. He loved Molly in spite of what she had done to him, and he knew she adored Junior. No matter how Molly had hurt him, Al's nature would not let him pay her back in kind. Let Junior go with her and perhaps she would relent and return with the child within a few months. He knew she would take good care of his son.

Al kept his facial muscles firm and controlled until the instant of saying goodbye and putting Junior into the car. Then he had to turn his face away again as he pressed Junior to him. He said haltingly:

"Don't forget, Junior, your mother loves you—you're going to be awfully happy with her. Don't worry—about daddy."

Even the strange nurse was touched by this father's tragic face. Then Al, afraid of breaking openly, quickly passed Junior to her in the car. The motor purred, the door closed, the Rolls-Royce started to move. Al saw Junior's face, dim in the limousine's interior, gazing at him in wide-eyed, troubled wonder.

Al was smiling. It was a desperate effort, but Junior must remember him that way. As the car gained momentum the baby face appeared at the rear window; Junior was waving a frantic farewell. Al started to walk after the car—faster, faster. Now he broke into a run. His heart was breaking, but still he smiled and answered Junior's wave. He stumbled and almost fell, then caught himself up and ran the faster. But the little face at the window became blurred by the intervening distance and suddenly the car itself disappeared down the crowded Avenue.

When Al definitely lost sight of the car he stopped in his tracks. People on all sides were staring at him, conscious that he was passing through a terrible ordeal of some kind. As long as Junior was in sight he had kept up a brave front; now his figure sagged, and he stumbled blindly toward the nearest bench.

He sat with his arm flung across the top of the bench and his head in his arms. He felt that he could not bear to face the life that moved around him, so steadily and relentlessly, a law unto itself and ignoring his despair. He heard the steady hum of the motor cars up and down the Avenue, carrying women home from shopping tours, bridge parties and tea dates, carrying men home from offices. Faintly he heard the footsteps of the pedestrians who passed only a few feet away.

Many curious glances were directed his way. If he had been a down-at-the-heels derelict of the great city he could have sat for hours in that position without attracting any notice at all, but it was unusual to see a fashionably dressed young man with a silver-topped walking stick across his lap sitting on a bench just outside the park's stone wall in a posture suggesting despair. Two girls, passing close by, giggled, believnig Al drunk. But when he raised his eyes and stared at them vaguely they relapsed into silence and hurried away.

Finally he stood up and turned back toward the bench where he had sat with Junior. Reaching it, he stepped close and touched it. He must always remember this bench, the scene of his good-bye to Junior. He took note of the fact that it stood beside a small, bare oak tree with a curiously gnarled trunk.

The winter day was darkening already; nurses from the fashionable houses along the Avenue were bringing home their baby charges who had been playing all afternoon in the park. There was a procession of them — babies in perambulators, little tots of two, three and four, carried in their nurses' arms or trotting along beside the women. Many were dressed similarly to Junior, some looked very like him. And Al stood, slightly away from the sidewalk, peering eagerly into the little faces, listening to the chatter and childish laughter. These youngsters —they were going home to happy nurseries, to fathers and mothers who loved them and were united.

How uncanny it was, thought Al, that this procession of babies passed him just at this time, when he had lost Junior. He stood like a statue until long after the last youngster had disappeared and the last remonstrating tone of the chattering French nurses had died away. Then he turned south toward the city's skyscrapers, already ablaze with light in the distance. Skyscraper apartments — home—reaching into the cold blue winter evening sky! Everything he saw brought comparisons emphasizing the pain of his loss.

He walked slowly, asking himself —Where was he going? Back to the apartment where Celeste, the maid, waited with pitying eyes, back to Junior's nursery? No, he couldn't do that. He must tell Celeste tomorrow that he was giving up the apartment. He would go to a hotel to live.

But what were his plans? He must have plans, something to engage his interest, or he would go crazy with the pain of his loss. That was Al's big problem at the moment, and he knew it. Without plans he would be continually whirling in an emotional chaos.

He had plenty of money — that didn't worry him. And he knew that Molly had salted away everything she had earned as a revue singer. She was amply able to provide for Junior. Besides, John Perry had made himself rich as a booze racketeer. No, the money angle could be set aside.

HOW TO RELIEVE CHILDREN'S COLDS

Avoid Serious Results By Using Baby's Own Tablets

When a child shows the first symptoms of a cold, such as sneezing, redness of the eyes, clogged or running nose, prompt measures for relief may avert serious results. Mothers should always have on hand some simple safe and effective remedy for immediate use.

Baby's Own Tablets act quickly, contain no opiates or narcotics, are tasteless and harmless. Concerning them Mrs. Jos Cadieux, Holyoke, Mass., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and find them a very satisfactory medicine. When my little boy had a cold I gave him the Tablets at night and he was well the next day. I gave them to the children for constipation and they are always benefited. I think Baby's Own Tablets are much easier to give a child than liquid medicine. I strongly recommend all mothers who have young children to keep a box of the Tablets in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Holland Builds Largest Locks

Third Longer and Half as Wide Again As Panama Canal Locks

The most important of the numerous canals in Holland is that which since 1876 has connected Amsterdam, Holland's second seaport with the ocean. With the gradual increase in the size of the ocean-going vessels, says the Netherlands News Bureau, this canal had to be widened and deepened until at present it belongs, according to its dimensions, to the same class of large, internationally known artificial waterways as the Panama and Suez Canals. The North Sea canal has only one set of locks. These separate the turbulent waters of the North Sea from the calm, unruffled surface of the waterway and the many neighboring smaller canals and ditches. The locks are located at the coast near the town of Ijmulden, one of the important fishing centers of Holland.

As the canal has grown, so have the locks. Those in use at the present time admit ships of about 20,000 registered tons to enter the canal and thus reach Amsterdam. The ever increasing tonnage, especially of the modern liners, made imperative the construction of new locks which would be able to accommodate ocean vessels of any size. The locks have been under construction for a number of years and are expected to be ready early in September.

They will be the largest locks in the world; in length they exceed the locks of the Panama Canal by one-third, in width by one half. The largest ships afloat, the Leviathhan and the Majestic, will be able to pass these locks without any difficulty. The preliminary depth of thirty-eight feet will give to the canal a profile with an area of about 14,000 square feet. This is more than the Suez Canal and a little less than the Panama Canal.

The gates weigh nearly 1,200 tons each. They are opened by rolling them back into recesses of exactly their size in the north wall. As no dry dock is available in the neighborhood which could accommodate the gates in case of necessary repairs the recesses had to be fixed up as dry docks. There are two gates in the western end of the lock chamber, one of which can be used as a reserve lock to replace either of the other two. The lock chamber can be filled in less than seven minutes. When the tide is very high it will take a little longer. The whole lock is operated electrically.

A Clever Goose

A bright light of the goose world, in England, is Jimmy, a goose owned by a South Elssal miner. Leaping through a hoop, washing his face, toe dancing and jumping over his owner's arm are some of the tricks he boasts of. He partakes of his meals sitting in a high chair at the table and his manners are said to be perfect. He also stands at attention and salutes whenever the national anthem is played.

Worms, by the irritation they cause in the stomach and intestines, deprive infants of the nourishment that they should derive from food, and mal-nutrition is the result. Miller's Worm Powders destroy worms and correct the morbid conditions in the stomach and bowels that are favorable to worms, so that the full nutriment of the child is assured and development in every way encouraged.

Test Was Successful

New German Device Drives Car By Liquid Gas

A new type of automobile, with liquid gas as the propelling agent, has been successfully tested at Essen, Germany, by Max Valler, the inventor.

The car was set in motion by the force of the loud sputtering escaping gas from three steel tubes attached to the rear of the driver's seat. Speed and halting the car was controlled by opening and closing the escape valves.

The car reached a top speed of about 37 miles an hour, but the inventor said that with perfection of the method he expects vehicles to surpass all speed records, and predicted that the method would revolutionize the motive power for airplanes.

Little Helps For This Week

"For the Lord God will help me."—Isaiah 1. 7.

Be but faithful, that is all;
Go right on, and close behind thee
There shall follow still, and find thee,
Help, sure help!
—Arthur Hugh Clough.

What I can do with my single arm may be mean enough; but that is not the question. The thing to consider is, what can I do with God to help me? And the difference of the one and the other is the difference between a man trying to push a train of cars up grade by his single puny strength, and the same man on a locomotive with the steam up, moving the whole mass by a turn of the wrist.
—Robert Collyer.

Montreal Youth Defeats Eight Nations In Oratorical Contest

Roche Pinard, of Montreal, representing the student orators of Canada, won the highest international honors in competition with eight others before members of the diplomatic corps and an audience of about 8,000 in Constitutional Hall at Washington. Herbert Shaumann, of Germany, was second, and Roberto Ortez Griz, Mexico, third.

Pinard took as the subject of his oration "Canada among the nations," and his address and the manner of its delivery in the French tongue was adjudged the best among those made by the youths of England, the United States, France, Germany, Denmark, Mexico, Cuba and Peru.
