Cumberland Cops The Colonist Cup

It must have been a source of great gratification to the teaching staff of the Cumberland Public and High Schools on Friday last on the occasion of the annual school sports held at Courtenay, to see such a large and enthusiastic turnout. Four years ago the school sports had its birth, the local teachers, led by Mr. H. E. Murray being responsible for the inauguration of the annual meets. The local teaching staff have been well supported in their efforts by the great co-operation of the principal, Mr. Apps, who entered into the project with a will and has become one of the leading lights in the Upper Island School Sports.

On account of the sports being held at Courtenay this year, the brunt of work fell in the Courtenay teachers and it is a tribute to the thoroughness of their efforts that the events went off as smoothly as they did, considering the large number of competitors.

In the High School sections only Cumberland and Courtenay were entered and all through the day the competition between the two schools was most keen, with Courtenay having a slight lead until the final half hour or so when the Cumberland boys piled up enough points to give them the victory, the scores being Cumberland 57 points, Courtenay 55 points. Cumberland High School thus captured the coveted Colonist Cup, making it two out of four attempts that they have had this distinction.

In the Public School section, Courtenay had a good lead, with 56 points, Brechin being second with 45, Cumberland third with 41, Nanaimo, 40 points, having to be content with fourth place. Other schools in order of merit were: Comox 39, Tsolum, 36, Minto, 23, Harewood 19, Bevan 16, Union Bay 6 and Royston 4.

The weather was not what one might call ideal for a track meet but fortunately the rain held off all day, the events being run off according to schedule. Perhaps the two features of the day were provided by the Cumberland boys when the High School relay team won handily and by the seventeen-year old Cumberland Japanese scholar, N. Hayashi ,when he cleared 20 feet 8 inches in the running broad jump thus, creating a record for this district. Cliffe Laver, of Courtenay, and Norman Hill, of Cumberland were also consistent winners for their respective schools. Full list of winners were:

Road To Jock's Point Commenced

Word was received just prior to going to press that a gang of fifteen men had commenced work slashing and getting ready for the road which is to be built as far as Jock's Point and which it is felt will ultimately be a portion of the road linking Port Alberni and Cumberland. Mr. R. A. England is the foreman of the gang working under the direction of the district road engineer, Mr. W. P. Bevan. A great deal of pressure has been brought to bear on the authorities showing the necessity of such a road, the newly organized Cumberland Board of Trade being one of the main factors in getting the work started. This road to Jock's point will be of great benefit, not only to residents of the district but to visitors from outside points as an A1 camping site is reputed to be in the vicinity of the point.

School Dance Very Successful

The financial result of the dance given by the teachers and pupils of the Cumberland Schools last Friday evening in the Ilo-Ilo Hall was very satisfactory. Approximately one hundred dollars were cleared to swell the fund for the building of a cement tennis court for the schools. The Maple Leaf Orchestra donated the music for the dance, and the teachers and pupils feel exceptionally grateful to the orchestra for aiding them 'n such a way.

The Hall was prettily decorated with fir boughs and paper flowers. The dance also served another purpose, that of celebrating the winning of the Colonist Cup by the Cumberland High School. Immediately before refreshments the "High" boys shouldered their principal, Mr. Shenstone, who carried the cup into the middle of the floor. Mr. Shenstone congratulated all those who took part in the sports and called the attention of those present to a great athlete, Nobuo Hayashi, who played the major part in winning the cup. Hayashi was chaired across the floor to the cheers of the assembled company. Archie Dick then called for three cheers for the teachers Miss Partridge and Mr. Shenstone who had given them valuable assistance Following this all competitors drank from the cup, which was later passed round the hall for each person to sup from.

Festivities were closed at two o'clock everyone having enjoyed the evening immensely.

A communication was received from the Domestic Science teacher Miss Till, tendering her rsignation to the board. The letter was received and filed. A letter was also received from a Dr. Thompson who wishes to lecture on Health subjects at the school It was decided that the school be put at Mr. Thompson's disposal on the evening of Tuesday 19th.

A very satisfactory High School report from Inspector Sullivan was read by the secretary. An application was received from Mr. H. A. Glaspell, of Grand Forks, asking if there were any vacancies on the staff of the Cumberland School, and if so, would the board consider him as an applicant.

Over $200 Towards Court

The school reports for the month of May were read. It was mentioned that the school choir sang at the musical festival and owing to the splendid help of their instructors were only four points behind the choir which took premier honors. The schools also did very well at the Upper Island School Sports. The teachers and pupils of both schools are at present raising funds for the building of a cement tennis court, a dance in aid of this being given last Friday. There is now a little over $200.00 in hand and the teachers consulted the Board as to the advisability of having the cement court built in the near future, the balance of the cost to be paid in the fall. A committee of Mr. Henderson, Mr. McLellan and Mr. McKinnon was formed to look into the matter.

A New Map

Principal Apps informed the Board of a new kind of map which was demonstrated at the school, and which would prove most beneficial to teachers and pupils. The maps are for both history and geography and would cover world geography, current history, clasical history, and general geographical terms, such as astronomy, etc.. This subject was left for discussion at a meeting before the next school term in autumn.

It was brought up at the meeting whether or not any advertising for personal gain should be allowed to come into the school or school grounds and after some discussion it was prove dthat no matter of this kind must come into the school or school premises during school hours.

The committee reporting on the matter of chairs and tables for the primary grades as advised by the inspector, said that there are tables in the school. Trustee MacKinnon was asked to get prices on the kindergarden chairs.

It was regularly moved and seconded that tenders be called for ten cords of wood.

Trustee MacNaughton suggested to the Board that it might be advisable to have a little more singing taught in the school and informed the trustees that Mr. Parnham had kindly offered to train the children once a week after school hours. Principal Apps stated that chorus singing was given to the classes with the exceptions of the four upper grades. As no more business was forthcoming the meeting then adjourned.

There was little discussion on the fisheries vote, the chief contribution coming from A. W. Cricketers To Play Return Game With Courtenay Eleven

The Cumberland Cricketers are endeavoring to arrange a return game with the Courtenay eleven for the coming week. The locals feel that as many games as is possible should be played owing to the scarcity of teams at this end of the Island. It is expected that Nanaimo will send a team up to Cumberland before very long and a series of games with a team got together by Dean Quainton will probably take place in August. If the warship "Durban" comes to Comox Harbor in August it is felt that a game could be arranged with the sailor boys. Archdeacon Collinson has also been approached with a view to a team from the Cowichan district playing a game here.

The members of the local club are practicing steadily but there is plenty of room for more members .If enough members could be obtained games could be played between members any evening during the week. The initiation fee has been placed at $1.00 and the membership fee for season 1928 at $2.00. The club find all the equipment and as cricket material runs into real "jack" the executive of the local club would like to see a few more join up. If you cannot play cricket but want to help the club, why just send a donation along. It will be gratefully accepted.

At the benefit whist drive and dance held in the Veterans' Hall on Saturday evening last, sixteen tables of whist were played, whilst a large crowd also turned up for the dance which followed. The prize winners were Mrs Aspesy and Mr. Cyril Davis firsts, Mrs. Sommerville and Mr. Smith seconds. The hall, music and refreshments for the dance had been very kindly donated and a nice sum was realized for the benefit of a member of the Eagles' Lodge.

Canadian Legion Whist Drive and Dance Saturday night in the Memorial Hall. Whist 8-10. Dance 10-12. Admission: whist 25c; dance 25c.

Rev. Montague Bruce Addresses Reorganized Local Board Of Trade

Dinner at Waverley Hotel Attended by Many Enthusiastic Members

Some thirty odd members of the Cumberland Board of Trade met at the Waverley Hotel on Wednesday night and welcomed to the district the Rev. Montague Bruce, president of the Vancouver Island Associated Boards of Trade, Mr. J. E. Sladen, secretary of the Saanich Board of Trade and four members of the Courtenay- Comox Board of Trade in the persons of Mr. P. L. Anderton, Mr. W. McPhee, Mr. C. S. Wood and Mr. Ben. Hughes.. Mr. F. C. Lang the Cumberland president of the Board of Trade was in the chair and after an excellent repast served by Mrs. Dallos, Mr. Lang in a few words outlined the reason for the gathering that evening and introduced Mr. Bruce. The popular president of the associated Boards was enthusiastically received . After thanking them warmly for the kind way they had received him said he was very pleased to see such an enthusiastic bunch of fellows and after going over the ground of Cumberland's breaking away from the Boards of Trade of the Island said that on this "the third time of asking" they would be more successful, in fact he said he knew they would and if he, personally could be of any assistance he would be only too pleased to lend that assistance. He briefly outlined the work undertaken by his own board of trade at Saanich and passed on to the members of the local board a few pointers, but one thing he said he must impress upon them all if the work of the Board of Trade was to prosper and that was "to keep religion and politics out of all their deliberations." He congratulated them on the reorganization of the Cumberland Board of Trade and said he would be most happy to welcome them at the convention of the Island Boards at Qualicum Beach next month.

Mr. Sladen, of the Saanich Board of Trade briefly addressed the gathering. He stressed the point, however, and believed it, himself, sincerely, that no man should listen to all this talk about conservation of natural resources. Wealthy countries like England and the United States had developed their natural resources to the limit whilst the poor countries like Mexico had allowed their resources to remain undeveloped. He was not an advocate of taking everything out entirely; put back wherever it was possible to put back. He said he had travelled ten thousand miles to settle on Vancouver Island and take life easy but he had found such great possibilities here that he had become greatly interested in public matters.

Mr. T. H. Carey proposed the toast to the Saanich Board of Trade, whilst Messrs. Anderton, Woods, McPhee of neighboring Board alsso spoke. Mayor Maxwell, who was present on being called upon to say a few words, said he was very pleased indeed to see the local Board reorganized, although he said, at first, he himself was somewhat lukewarm about the affair as he had seen boards of trade come and go in Cumberland, but he felt sure that if the same enthusiasm displayed that evening was kept up, Cumberland Board of Trade would be as active a body of men as any on the Island.

For parking on the Island Highway in the city of Courtenay, contrary to the regulations under the Motor Vehicle Act, Herbert Roy, of Royston, and C. Shillito, of Union Bay, appeared in the Provincial Police Court on Friday night. The latter pleaded guilty and was fined $10.00 and costs. Roy(represented by Mr. P. P. Harrison, pleaded "not guilty," but after hearing the evidence Magistrate Hames found him guilty and also assessed a fine in this case of $10.00 and costs.

Mr. Abell was un avoidably delayed at Alberni by car trouble but it is hoped that the Cumberland people will have an opportunity to hear his lecture in the near future.

The Cumberland Islander

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY AT CUMBERLAND, B. C.

EDWARD W. BICKLE

CONGRATULATIONS

CUMBERLAND High School athletes scored a notable victory at the Upper Island School sports held at Courtenay on Friday last when they succeeded in gaining possession of the coveted Colonist cup, given by the Victoria Daily Colonist to the High School gaining the most points in the annual competition. We congratulate the local High School on their remarkable performance of Friday, more remarkable perhaps on account of the injury sustained by George Brown a few days before the sports whilst training, necessitating the bringing into the relay team a substitute at the last minute. Noboa Hayashi was approached and consented to enter in place of Brown and in spite of lack of training nobly assisted the locals in winning the Colonist Cup.

While we congratulate the representatives of the High School on their fine showing, we also extend to the Public School athletes, best wishes. The Public School contestants eventually become the High School athletes, so, the younger members should receive all the encouragement and assistance citizens can give them. The Public School athletes from Cumberland did not make as good a showing as expected. Frankly speaking we were surprised that they made as good a showing as they did Budding athletes can not hope to win races by training a few days or a couple of weeks before any event takes place. It is the continually plodding along in face of all hardships that brings out the best in one, and our advice to the young athletes is to keep their training up now that they have started. Because the school sports are a thing of the past—for twelve months anyway, is no reason why training should stop.

These Upper Island sports have assumed considerable importance and are viewed annually by an increasingly large number of adults.

The suggestion has been put forward and we honestly believe it to be a good one, that the sports be held at some place which would be most suitable to the majority. Qualicum Beach has been one place suggested and as it is almost midway between the northern portions and the southern portions of school inspectorate no. 3, no opposition to the sports being held annually at Qualicum is anticipated.

THE SPIRIT OF SUCCESS

THE EFFORT to accomplish; it is success. We fail only when we acknowledge failure and lie down defeated and disheartened. But while we "carry on," never knowing we're beaten, still striving to accomplish something worth while doing, aiming to serve our fellows and reap what we have sown, we do not fail.

Lots of men are beaten according to the onlookers, when they are really victors and winners, The "thin red line" that retreated from Mons, holding the Germans back doggedly, disputing with the Hun every foot of the way, strewing the road with their dead bodies, but delaying the enemy's "smash through," were beaten by all the rules of warfare, but it is counted unto them as victory.

Columbus was beaten, according to the scoffers of his day, before he started across the ocean; he was beaten when his crew mutinied and when adverse winds delayed his ship's progress, but he emerged triumphant. The men who built the C.P.R. were beaten many a time; they could hardly give the stock of the C.P.R at twenty-five dollars a share; often they could not meet their due payments or in order to meet them, put their own private fortunes into the bag and borrowed right and left to pay their men and meet their obligations. But who dare say that Canada's great railway builders were beaten?

So we might continue. Illustrations of the truth we have stated are met on every side. We know a newsboy in a great Canadian city who, in spite of a most serious physical handicap, has risen from the rank of newsboy at a street corner until today he is the head of a big distribution business. He could not fail; he kept on plugging and won. So we say to you good folk who are always prophesying failure for the other fellow; put your hammers away and cheer instead of knocking. The fellow that you think is failing is only going through the experiences that every successful man has had to undergo. Success springs from the seed of failure. "Except it die," says the scripture of the seed, "it cannot live." In death it finds life. In failure we find success. In defeat we reach victory. The effort to accomplish is, of itself, success.

ALBERTA STEPS FORWARD

SAVE THE FORESTS is one of the planks in the platform of the Alberta Fish and Game Association. This policy is also embodied in the member's pledge in each of the local associations.

The sportsmen of Alberta consider that the care and protection of Canada's present forests and reforestation are essential to the maintenance and to the augmentation of this great natural resource.

They stress the fact that the destruction of national wealth, when not accompanied by intelligent reforesting measures. They also stress other facts, namely, that the robbing of the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains of its tree life will bring disaster to the farmers of the prairies, through interference with water supply conservation; also that when the forest disappears, so does the wild bird and the wild animal life, not to speak of game fish in the attenuated streams.

CANTEEN FUND BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Canteen Fund for British Columbia is that portion of the Canteen Fund which was allotted to this Province in accordance with the terms of the "Canteen Funds Act, 1925." The amount received from the Federal Government was $251,995.02.

Immediately after the receipt of this amount in February, 1926, the Trustees invested the major portion of it in Dominion Government bonds, bearing interest at 4½ per cent., maturing February 1st, 1946. These bonds, which have a par value of $240,000, were purchased at a cost of 233,185.95 and are held for safe-keeping in a safety deposit box in the Royal Bank, Vancouver.

The First Annual Report and Financial statement issued by the Trustees as on March 31st, 1927, showed an income from interest of $12,032.09, which, added to the original allottment made a grand total received to that date of $264,027.11. Disbursements made to March 31st, 1927 were as follows: Purchase of bonds, $233,185.95, expense account, $35.17; relief expenditures, $9,087.65. This left a balance, cash in bank, of $21,718.34, carried forward.

Relief

The major portions of expenditure made have been for relief purpose. The general policy of the Trustees has been to grant assistance to ex-service men and their dependents for relief of distress when caused by illness emergency or death. No grants have been made for a straight unemployment relief ,although in a large number of cases unemployment has been a partial excuse at least why applications for assistance have been made For example, a man who is out of employment may have illness in his family ,which necessitates some assistance being granted, whereas if he had been steadily employed he would not have needed this assistance.

In cases of death assistance has been given in a number of cases in the payment of funeral expenses, when an ex-service man himself dies in destitute circumstances the funeral expenses are paid from the Last Poas Fund, but in the case of dependents, assistance, when needed is given from the Canteen Fund. It is generally known, of course, that if a man's death is due to war service his burial expenses are paid by the Department of S.C.R..

Under the category of emergency cases assistance has been granted in several instances to men who had the misfortune of having their homes burned or their furniture destroyed.

Up to the present time assistance has been granted to 659 men or their families for whom individual files are kept in the Secretary's office. As there were only 218 such files made to March 31st, 1927, it can be seen there has been an increase of new applications which have been approved during the past year of 441. Of the total amount expended in this way, approximately 45 per cent has been expended in the Cities of Vancouver and Victoria, the remaining 55 per cent. having been distributed amongst other parts of the province.

ON FEEDING BABY

Nurse baby if you can. If a mother cannot nurse her infant, or if additional food is required, Eagle Brand Condensed Milk will be found ideal. It is made from carefully selected raw milk which is obtained under ideal sanitary conditions and surroundings, from healthy cows that are kept in perfect health by frequent veterinary inspections. The milk is condensed in modern factories where cleanliness is supreme. It is imperative that all utensils, bottles, nipples, etc., be sterilized in boiling water before using, when preparing baby's food. Make up feeding dilutions fresh at each feeding, mixing only such quantity at a time as intended for immediate use. In measuring Eagle Brand use a clean, dry spoon and do not dip spoon into can, but pour from can to spoon, allowing the milk on the spoon to level itself. In artificial feeding no set rule can be given for all infants. Each infant's desires must be carefully studied. The Borden Company, Montreal, issues a carefully prepared feeding chart, sent free on request, which may be used as a guide, but, of course, one should have the advice of the doctor in attendance on feeding and all other matters affecting the child's welfare.

HEALTH SERVICE of the Canadian Medical Association

Question concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

Typhoid Fever

Typhoid Fever is usually caused by using contaminated water or milk. The most effective and practical way to prevent Typhoid Fever is, therefore to safeguard water and milk supplies. To do this is, without question, the responsibility of every municipal government. To do this is also the common-sense procedure of the families who have their own water and milk supply.

If this care is taken, there is little danger of contracting typhoid fever as long as no other water and milk is used. During the summer many go out into the country on short and long trips. It is at such times that water and milk, which are not safeguarded as to their safety, are frequently used.

Amongst those recovering from typhoid fever are some cases who continue to pass out the germs of the disease. Such persons are known as "disease carriers." As to whether or not these carriers are dangerous depends largely on their occupation. Carriers should not be employed in the preparation, serving or handling of food.

It was demonstrated beyond question during the Great War, amongst Canadian soldiers and those of other countries, that the use of typhoid vaccine gives practically a sure protection against this disease.

Because of these facts we advise inoculation against typhoid fever for anyone who is at all likely to use water and milk from sources he does not know, and who is not prepared to boil, or otherwise make safe, the water and milk before using.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agriculture purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding Pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is not timbered, i.e., carrying over 5,000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range and 8,000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Cimmissioner of the Land Recording Division, in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner.

Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres, before Crown Grant can be received.

For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timber land, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

Mill factory or industrial sites on timber land, not exceeding 40 acres, may be purchased or leased, the conditions including payment of stumpage

HOMESTEAD LEASES

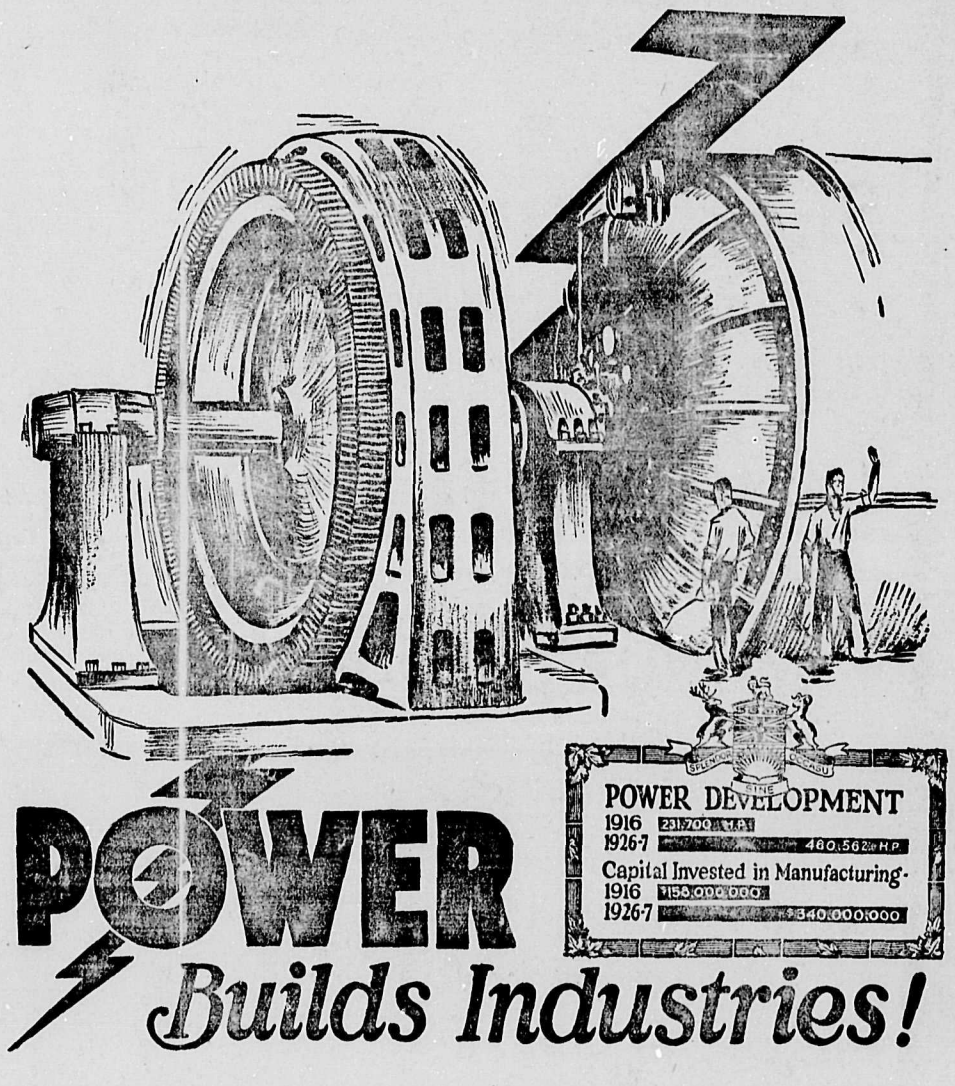
Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtained after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commission. Annual grazing permits are issued based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.



POWER Builds Industries!

BRITISH Columbia's Power resources are the envy of the world. With Power, the riches of the world can be won; with Power, ores can be mined . . . smelted; transportation problems solved; manufacturing industries developed, and with them population . . . pay-rolls. Power is British Columbia's strongest bid for more industries . . . more people.

Of the millions of horsepower available in our province, but half a million are now harnessed to turn the wheels of industry. The great hydro-electric development at Bridge River will ultimately generate more than 600,000 horsepower, while the output at Bonnington Falls and other points is being steadily increased. The Campbell and Chilko Rivers, on the mainland, and the Nimpkish on Vancouver Island, are capable of tremendous power development for the conversion of our forest and mineral resources into fabulous wealth.

Two of British Columbia's Electric Power systems are among the greatest in Canada, each generating more than 400,000,000 kilowatt hours in 1927. This represents an increase in the last ten years of 98% . . . truly a remarkable achievement!

Foreign authorities speak of this record as a measure of the great vitality of British Columbia.

Today we rank third in power and industrial development among Canadian provinces. We have made greater progress per capita than any!

It is the policy of British Columbia to foster the development of the hydro-electric powers for the benefit of the public. They are allotted to private enterprises on condition that they will be developed within a certain time, so that no exploitation of public assets may take place.

Millions of dollars are now earmarked for Power development in our province. Dams are being built, turbines installed . . . transmission lines erected to care for the imminent industrial development.

Thousands of dollars are being expended weekly on materials and wages; thousands are feeling the immediate benefits of this enterprise.

Side by side with our power development, Industrial Expansion has kept pace. Today 17% of Canada's external trade is handled by British Columbia. During the past decade, our basic industries have increased 101.3%. Our total payroll, including all classes, is estimated at 210 million dollars. Today, our Lumbering, Mining and Fishing industries employ 72,517 people, paying them 175 million dollars in wages . . . distributing an average wage ranking among the highest in Canada.

These 175 millions in wages are a great contribution to our annual internal trade in the province. They have given our industrial workers a buying power ranking second in the Dominion and have largely been responsible for our ever increasing prosperity, as evidenced by the fact that the number of automobiles registered in the province last year was 76,187 as compared with 8,596 in 1916.

British Columbia's steady and varied industrial development has changed the conception in Eastern Canada and the United States of our province. No longer are we entirely dependent on the East for our manufactured products. British Columbia is increasingly furnishing her own needs. She now ranks third in the whole Dominion as a manufacturing province.

Our phenomenal Power and Industrial growth has focused the attention of the great industrialists and investors on our province. Today, British Columbia in the eyes of the world, stands for Power, Progress and Plenty. May our efforts of the next ten years stabilize and increase our Prosperity!

WESTMINSTER GLEE SINGERS TO GIVE RECITAL

Under the distinguished patronage of H.E., the Governor-General, Lord Willingdon and His Grace Archbishop Matheson, Primate of All Canada, the Westminster Glee Singers will give a recital here on Tuesday, June 12th, in the Imperial Pavilion, Royston, under the auspices of the Elks.

This body of singers enjoys a unique reputation. It is composed of men and boys selected specially from the greatest of English cathedral choirs, and constitutes a complete choir with a repertoire of one hundred and fifty pieces, both sacred and secular.

Some of the finest voices from Westminster Abbey, St. George's, Windsor, Christchurch Cathedral, and Old St. Paul's, are included in the organization which was established by Edward Branscombe, formerly and for ten years solo tenor at Westminster Abbey, for a tour of the British Empire.

Recently the Westminster Glee Singers completed two years' travel in Australia, New Zealand, and India, and they are going to Australia again, this time via Canada, in response to an insistent public demand. During their tour they gave 625 performances.

The soloists include such noted singers as Edward Branscombe himself, Donald Reid, solo alto of St. Paul's Cathedral, in addition to a marvellous body of boys' voices, composed of choristers representing the finest type of English Cathedral singing.

The programmes are made up of all sorts of secular music that singing can illustrate, and will include madrigals, glees, part-songs, solos with vocal accompaniments, numbers for boys' voices only, and male quartettes.

The work of the choir has been marked for its perfection of balance of tonal values, the beauty of expression, splendor of sonority, and absolute coordination and precision, particularly in the unaccompanied features.

Whether in the boys' singing, or in the men's work, or in the combined performance of the whole choir, those who know something of the beauties of English Cathedral song will renew old and precious memories when they hear this body of singers.

Captain A. M. Hilton was fined $1.00 and costs by Magistrate Hames, being charged with common assault. Dr. H. P. Millard was the complainant defendand did not deny the charge but pleaded provocation .

New Motor Regulations

Periodical Brake Inspection Made Compulsory

In order that automobile accidents may be cut to a minimum the Provincial Police Department are now enforcing new regulations that affect every driver of a motor vehicle. Included in the new regulations is the clause that brakes of all motor vehicles must be inspected at least once every six months, and that a certificate giving proof of this inspection and signed by an owner or manager of a motor repair shop or garage be available to police officials at all times.

No brakes shall be deemed to be adequate within the meaning of the clause unless they are so constructed and adjusted as to be capable of stopping the motor vehicle when operated on a dry, hard, level highway, free from loose materials, within the following distances in respect of the following speeds of the motor vehicle, namely: In the case of a motor vehicle exceeding 6,000 pounds gross weight, within fifty feet from a speed of twenty miles per hour upon simultaneous application of both foot and hand brakes, within seventy-five feet from a speed of twenty miles per hour upon application of the foot brake alone, and within seventy-five feet from twenty miles per hour upon application of the hand brake alone; and in case of all other motor vehicles, within fifty feet from a speed of twenty miles per hour upon application of the foot brake alone and within seventy-five feet from a speed of twenty miles per hour upon application of the hand brake alone; and no motor vehicle shall be driven or operated on any highway unless there is carried thereon and made available for inspection upon request by any officer or constable of the Provincial Police Force or the police force of any municipality, a certificate signed by the owner or manager of some motor vehicle repair shop or garage in the Province stating the date within the period of six months last preceding on which the brakes of the motor vehicle were inspected and tested by him and certifying that they were found to comply in all respects with the requirements of this clause.

Driving Signals

The view of the department is that driving signals should be given as a matter of habit. If the habit is acquired then the signal will not be omitted on some occasion when its omission may mean an accident. The records of the department show that many accidents would be avoided if the proper signals were given. This is particularly true in the case of intersection traffic. Police authorities from now on will insist upon the strictest observance of the regulation.

The definition of a "head-light" has been changed to include "cowl or parking lights." There has been a good deal of carelessness on the part of drivers in the matter of lights. Some are inclined to dress their cars up with all manner of lights until they look very much like Christmas trees. Others, with absolute disregard of their fellow-drivers and contrary to law, travel along the highways with lights aglare. Others again have lights of unequal candle-power, contrary to the regulations, and not a few travel with but a single headlight.

Raucous and harsh horns will hereafter be prohibited. This will include exhaust ,compression or spark plug whistles, and motorists are prohibited from giving unnecessarily or unreasonable loud or harsh warnings.

When a motor vehicle is so constructed or loaded as to prevent the driver from obtaining a view of the highway to the rear by looking backward from the driver's position, the motor vehicle must be equipped with a mirror so located as to reflect to the driver a view of the highway for a distance of at least 200 feet to the rear of the motor vehicle.

Loaded Vehicles

Motor vehicles upon which are carried any lumber or thing which projects more than four feet from the rear of the motor vehicle or trailer, must have attached and displayed at all times at the rear end of the projecting load a red flag not less and twelve inches square, and during the period from one half hour after sunset to one half hour before sunrise there shall be attached and displayed at the rear end of the projecting load a red light.

The department feels that some of the motor driving public have not given that consideration which ought to be given to the pedestrian and to their fellow-motorists. They not only endanger their own lives but those of their fellow citizens . Many accidents undoubtedly could be avoided if a little more care were exercised by motor drivers. Regulations are necessary, but no matter what the regulations and how diligent the police, unless there is co-operation on the part of the driving public, accidents will happen. The police authorities invite co-operation of the automobile drivers. They particularly invite sane and reasonable drivers to report cases of reckless driving. The private citizen will but be doing a real public service if he reports the reckless driver, and thereby probably prevents what if unchecked, will lead to accident.

Cougar Makes Home in Abandoned Farm

But Owner Returns After Many Years and Captures Interloper

Sayward, June 2.—Mr. John Cleary, a one-time resident of Sayward, returned, a short time ago and decided to again take up farming in the Upper Valley. Mr. Cleary was a pioneer of the district and left during the war to join the 102nd Bn. then getting under way at Comox. He saw much service in France and since his return has been making his headquarters on the Fraser River, and more recently at Rock Bay, where he has been employed by the Hastings Mill Co.

All these years John has kept his old homestead, and when he learnt through the columns of the Courtenay newspapers that his section of the district was to be opened up by a new road, he was not long in making up his mind to return and start farming operations again.

The house and out-buildings were just as he had left them, but almost buried in forest growth of various kinds. In looking around, he found that in a very substantially-built shed, some quite large animal had been making its home there for a long time, and concluded it must be headquarters for a cougar family.

After setting a trap and waiting a day or so he was rewarded by catching one of the largest male cougars ever seen in these parts.

Minto

Mrs. Randall is at Esquimalt enjoying a two weeks' holiday with her sister, Mrs. Mearns.

Suyumi Uchida, a Minto schoolboy, met with a painful accident last Thursday. Practice for the 1st June sports had set the scholars on the running and jumping rampage and the little fellow jumped and missed, falling on the concrete step and developed concussion of the brain. He was taken to the Cumberland hospital and recovered so he was able to be removed home on Sunday.

Mrs. Gunn and her daughter, Mrs. Willoughby, left the Valley on Monday morning on the E. & N. for Victoria. Mrs. Gunn goes to Resthaven Sanitarium to convalesce for a few weeks after her illness, and Mrs. Willoughby goes back to her home in Calgary.

Mrs. Frank Williamson and little girl from Vancouver are at Crowton with Mr. and Mrs. R. Williamson for a short holiday.

Mr. William Gray, one of our Native Sons, enters the matrimonial state on Saturday, June 9th, when in the English church, he conducts Miss Catherine Richardson to the altar. To honor the bride, friends in the Valley held a shower on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis, when many useful gifts were handed over as tokens of good wishes to the youthful pair.

We are rather proud about Minto School winning the "Alan Neill Cup" at the sports last Friday. Annie Hutton, Edith Morgan, James Monks, and Horace Calnan did the needful to bring home the bacon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Popham leave the Valley on Saturday, starting their long train ride to Montreal, where they get the boat sailing on the 15th inst. for Liverpool.

Miss Joy Piercy, from Renton, Wash. is spending her two weeks' holiday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Piercy.

Mrs. Fred McKenzie and son left Cadaman on Saturday last for Minto to be present at the wedding of her brother, "Bill."

Mrs. Baker from Pemberton Meadows, a sister-in-law of Mrs. E. Popham, came to the Valley last Monday to make a valedictory visit to her friends before they leave for England. Mr. and Mrs. Popham are living with Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Smith in the meantime, and by a strange coincidence, Mrs. Baker came from the same district in faraway Shetland Islands, as Mr. Smith. Needless to say, old memories were revived.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Cumberland General Hospital met at the Hospital on Thursday afternoon of this week. Routine business was carried out and two new members welcomed. This was the last meeting of the season.

May Improve Coal Situation

From the Nanaimo Free Press of June the 3rd.

Premier McLean delivered rather an interesting address at the Liberal Rally on Friday night. Of course he was there to present the best case he could for the government of which he is the head, but he did not delve too deeply into party politics. Rather he confined himself to the actual record of the Government which has now been in office for four years, and which is now considering another appeal to the electorate. He had an interesting announcement to make as to the Government's proposals with regard to the coal industry. The consumption tax on fuel oil which the late Mr. Sloan was able to persuade the Legislature to adopt has been declared ultra vires both by the Supreme Court of Canada and by the Privy Council. Since this happened successful trials have been carried out by the American Shipping Board with pulverized coal. One of the ships of the Board in a trans-ocean voyage, made a remarkable record, and demonstrated that pulverized coal for ship steaming purposes can compete with fuel oil. Following the result of this trial run of the freighter Mercer, Mr. A.W. Neill, the member for Comox-Alberni, asked the Dominion Government to equip one of the coastal steamers of the Canadian Merchant Marine with a pulverizing apparatus, and also to give the new equipment a trial in one of the Government buildings in Vancouver. We understand the Federal Government acceded to Mr. Neill's request, but up to the present time there has been no news of any trial.

Meantime Premier McLean has been busy along the same lines according to the announcement he made at the meeting here on Friday night. Working in conjunction with the Federal Government, he has made arrangements with a coastal tug company to carry out on their boats experiments with a pulverizing apparatus. The Government is making a grant of twelve thousand dollars towards the experiments, and should they prove successful a new market will be opened to Island coal. We would not go so far as to say that the use of pulverized coal would rehabilitate the coal industry, but at present it is the only avenue of relief from the pressure of fuel oil competition. And with both the Federal and the McLean Governments exploiting this avenue of relief, there is at least some hope for the future.

He was rather inclined to blow his own trumpet and the other men sitting at the same table in the restaurant began to resent it.

"All right," said the man who believed in himself. "I'll show you it's not all talk. Mention one thing you can't do, and I'll undertake to do it myself."

"Man," said one of his companions a Scotchman, "you're a sport. I can't pa ymy bill, for a start, and I accept your offer."

A very bored Englishman, attended by his valet, was travelling from New York to California.

On the first day of the railway journey both were mildly interested though critical. On the second both were restless. On the fourth they were faintly impressed but limp with weariness.

"So this is America, Sir," said the valet. "Fancy their having made such a stir about Columbus discovering it. My word! I don't see how he he could have avoided it!"

Another Scotch Story

A Scotchman was found dead in front of a one-cent punching machine. The coroner found that death had been caused by over-exertion. Investigation disclosed a sign reading: "Your penny returned if you hit hard enough."

Radios were his line so much down and so much a week. As he knocked at the door of a certain house he remembered that he had been there before and received a curt dismissal. This time, however, it was different.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said the housewife cordially. "Come in, won't you?"

Two minutes later he found himself in a room with five children, howling and sqabbling and creating a terrible racket. The woman had locked the door and gone off to do her shopping.

After an hour had passed she returned.

"Now," she said sweetly, "if you still think that I need a radio in this house, I am ready to listen to you."

Without a word the salesman reached for his hat and quietly left the room.

Up to Date Mary

Mary has no little lamb,
Like she had long years ago.
But she has a pair of calves,
That she delights to show.

They go with her to school each day,
As faithful calevs should do,
Where Mary draws a teacher's pay,
For imparting knowledge true.

Ye pedagogues of other days
Would deem her calves too shocking,
But Mary says it always pays
To buy high-priced stocking.

And Mary wears expensive gowns,
That are very light and airy,
Not so showy for their cost,
But they show a lot of Mary.

Trolley mishap puts fifty telephones out of order

Jerking from its overhead wire, a street car trolley pole struck a 50-pair telephone cable in the business section of New Westminster recently, causing a short circuit which burned the cable in two. As a result, 50 telephones were put out of order.

Obviously the trouble could not have been foreseen or prevented. However, our maintenance men were speedily on the job to make the necessary repairs.

CHAPTER VI

The silence which followed had in it something of the element of fear. Mitzi was deliciously afraid because she had broken her word. Pauli and Bruce were afraid that they had not heard correctly, and Carl was in terror lest this thing prove a joke—the sort of joke that had been played on Tantalus in—terror because he was afraid to believe the evidence of his own ears.

From the dining room they heard Behrend's deep voice, the Professor's lower tones, the laughter of little Kurt as Baruska teamed him and cut clumsy capers for his amusement.

"What did you say, Mitzi?" asked Carl finally.

Mitzi drew a deep breath. Well, better make a clean breast of it—she was in for it now. She looked from one to the other. Bruce stolid enough but his eyes shining. Pauli, her whole little figure one tense appeal Carl, motionless, almost expressionless, yet Pauli knew that his heart was praying—"don't let it be a lie—ah, don't let it be a lie!"

"Fritz had supper with the paper's critic, as I told you," Mitzi explained, "last night. And Bergman was there He told them he'd taken the play—Fritz wrote the announcement for tomorrow's paper . . . .and got a dozen proof sheets to surprise you today . . oh, good heavens! What will he say to me—now that I've told?"

Behrend's voice assailed their ears.

"Do come in"—

Mitzi turned her eyes a little dim, from the look she saw on Carl's face, on Pauli's—and, yes—by all that was wonderful on Bruce's too. She said, trying to laugh but not succeeding . . "Fritz will destroy me!" and ran into the dining room. Carl looked helplessly from Bruce to Pauli.

"Can it . . . ? Do you suppose . . ? Oh, is it true?"

Bruce said, practically:—

"Open the manuscript . . . .there'll be a note there—I fancy—

Carl went to the desk, stumbling a little. He picked up the long, thick envelope. His hands shook. The others followed him.

"Oh, what's in it?" asked Pauli, anxiously, and Bruce dropped a steadying hand on Carl's shoulder.

"Hurry up, can't you?"

Carl turned and with a gesture of helplessness handed his friend the package.

"Open it. I—I can't! Why did I wait? Why did I take it for granted that . . .?"

Bruce opened the envelope . . . and drew out the folded manuscript of the play . . . . thick, closely written . . . . Carl groaned . . .

'Idiot! Fritz and his practical jokes.'

A paper fell to the floor. Pauli followed it with her intent eyes. She said, pointing:—

"Isn't that"——

"A letter!" Bruce shouted and stooped to recover it. Holding it, he looked inquriingly at Carl.

"Read it!" Carl ordered.

"It begins with the usual felicitations," Bruce told him, "and goes on: —'I have given 'The Enemy' a careful reading. It is a fine play, and if you will consent to change the ending I will be proud to produce it. I return the manuscript to you and will be glad if you will make an appointment with me at my office so that we may talk over the necessary changes. With congratulations, my dear sir, believe me, your admiring and obedient servant."

Bruce broke off. He extended the letter towards Carl.

"I have changed it!" Carl shouted "Already—oh, it can't possibly be true. Read it again. No, give it to me. I'll read it for myself."

He snatched at the letter. Held it close to his eyes—read—line for line—threw it down on the desk and turned to the girl.

"Pauli!" he said.

The tears brimmed over and ran down her cheeks. She said, with shaken lips:—

"Carl, dear"—

They looked at one another. They had forgotten Bruce. Bruce turned from them and went slowly into the dining room. He thought—that settles it— it's all over. He said to himself, with a certain savagery:—Well, you're glad, aren't you? Glad they're getting what they want? Glad it's come right for them? His heart answered, Yes, but what are you going to do now? They don't even need you any more!

Suddenly he was sick for England—the green checkered fields, the great trees, knee deep in grass, the silver winding of rivers, old houses, serene in sunlight or sleepy with sound of rain upon their roofs; hedgerows, dewy and great roses blowing in English gardens; sick for the sound of English voices, for his mother's slow, gentle smile—for home. Home was the place one went to finally, when one was wounded; one went there and salved the hurts with the old familiar things of one's birthright!

Behrend said:—"Do hurry! what on earth is keeping all of you?"

Bruce looked back at Carl ani Pauli. They were standing as he had left them there—like statues—needing, he thought, with an unusual flight of fancy for him, the right word, the magic gesture to melt them into each other's arms, passionate flesh and blood. He answered Behrend over the ache in his throat:—

"There's a letter to be answered at once." He started to pull the dining room doors to, and Behrend said, querulously:—

"What are you doing that for? Can nothing wait until after diner?"

Bruce made a gesture, an apoloegetic gesture, in the direction of Pauli, and Carl. He took his place at the table. The professor and Mitzi looked at him, one gently, the other keenly. Both knew, both knew of his hurt. Mitzi knew more, but, having had her say, was determined not to "let it go further." The professor said quietly:—

"We'll not wait longer and bowed his head to pronounce the blessing.

Amoment later there was a clatter of silver and china and the sound of voices talking all together.

In the other room Carl said, huskily:—

"Now—I'll write the first words on my typewriter!"

"To Bergman?" Pauli asked, persuading herself that they would be, but somehow disappointed, she added, 'Oh, Carl, I can't tell you how happy I am."

"Nor I you," said Carl, standing in front of the machine. "No, not to Bergman—to—Pauli."

She leaned over his shoulder. Slowly with one inexperienced finger he struck the keys. Under her eyes it was spelled out there, magically, marvellously—

"I . . . LOVE . . . . YOU . . .

He asked her whispering:—

"Ah!"

He asked her whispering:—

"Pauli—you'll marry me, Pauli, SOON?"

She leaned over him smiling, crying She put out her hand—the keys rattled violently—three times.

" Y—E—S—!"

His hand lay over hers on the keys. Pressed down hard. Her face, bent to him was radiant. And from the dining room Behrend's irritated voice reached them.

"Oh, shut the doors, then. I can't endure a typewriter."

They turned, a very little. Bruce was at the doors, drawing them together. He said, with a ghost of a smile and an apparition of a wink:—

"So sorry!"

The doors shut.

Carl got to his feet. He pulled Pauli into his arms. He cried out to her:—

"Pauli, see—I can write! Ah, you darling, you never doubted, did you? Pauli, I shall be a great author—and always—your lover."

The telephone rang sharply. The lovers looked at it as if not comprehending the meaning of the signal, Pauli said, oddly, on a little sighing breath:—

"Oh—I—Carl, I'm afraid."

Carl laughed.

"of what Of happiness? Our troubles are over! This is—just the beginning. How does the old tale go, Pauli my heart? And then they lived happily—forever after?"

The telephone rang—and rang. She said whispering:—

"Answer it."

"Kiss me!"

Her hands crept up, up, toward his shoulders. Fell to her sides. She thought she heard a stirring in the dining room, beyond the doors. She pleaded:—

"Oh, what does it amount to?" He moved away from her, a little unhappily, took down the receiver. He said "We'll take a flat and get some furniture"—

"Carl!" said Pauli laughing.

He looked down at the thing in his hand, smiled, put it resolutely to his ear.

"Hello? Yes, Fritz. We're waiting. What! When? It doesn't seem possible. You're sure? How soon can you get here? All right, then. Goodbye."

As he was speaking Pauli had taken the piece of paper from the typewriter, folded it and put it in the bosom of her dress. She turned now, alarmed, as a woodland creature is terrified at an alien breath, an alien step. She asked trembling:—

"What was it?"

"Fritz isn't coming," Carl said replacing the instrument. "The Archduke has been killed in Sarejevo!"

He ran to the dinnig room doors—flung them open.

"Fritz phones—the Archduke shot—a student—in Sarejevo"——

Every one, save little Kurt, rose mechanically. Mitzi impulsive, swayed. Mitzi burst into tears. Bruce whistled under his breath and the Professor went white. Baruska stood there at the kitchen door, looking bovinely from one to the other. Jan's head appeared over her shoulder, staring. Behren's face flamed red with a rush of angry and astonished blood. He smote his fist down among the china and glass.

"Killed! Killed! By God, this is terrible! This is a challenge."

Arndt said, "he was warned." He added, "Does Fritz say more?"

"No. He can't get here. He'll ring up later or join us somewhere. He says the city's in a turmoil."

Bruce spoke deliberately:—"This is rotten news, but"—

Behrend turned on him. Rotten? Is that all you can say?" He sank back into his chair. His gesture said "Well, one must go on living." He picked up his knife and fork.

Pauli stood where Carl had left her. She called:—Carl!"

He went back to her. The doors were open, but no one was heeding them just then. He took her into his arms. He said:—"Pauli, Pauli, what is it to us?"

His lips touched her closed wet eyes, her satin smooth cheek. His arms tightened. He kissed her, profoundly, on her warm, red mouth.

CHAPTER VII

Behrend rose from his seat at the table and came fusing to the doors, his napkin in his hand. He said:—

"What's all this? Come in, can't you and tell us what Fritz"——

He broke off. He had seen them draw apart. His slow mind labored after his eyes. He repeated, a little testily but without any amazement:—

"What's this—this?"

Carl said definitely:— "Pauli and I, sir—we're to be married. Bergman has accepted my play."

"But?" argued Behrend.

Pauli ran toward him. She pulled at his coat sleeve, held out her hand to Carl. They went, linked into the dining room, Behrend's heavy, expostulating, frowning a little at an event which he had not personally engineered.

Mitzi and Bruce and Arndt looked up expectantly. Bruce knew about the play and now the woman's eyes read the other news in Pauli's eyes, i nCarl's bearing. Dr. Arndt was quiet, grave, preoccupied with foreboding.

"My play's accepted," Carl said, "and —congratulate me."

"My dear boy!" Arndt was on his feet now. Carl laughed shakily.

"Not on the play. Let that wait. On Pauli. She'll marry me, if" —

Behrend said, over the turmoil, and plaintively, "But one doesn't approach marriage like this!"

Dr. Arndt had an arm around his daughter and a hand fast in Carl's. Baruska, as if forewarned by a sixth sense, was standing at the sideboard, crying bravely ito a dish of potatoes. Jan's shock head appeared at the kitchen door, in his hand a glass from which he drank in appropriate gestures. Somewhere on the fringes of the group Mitzi was crying and laughing, trying to get within kissing distance of her friend. Alone, like a little island, stolid and engrossed, small Kurt sat still in this ocean of clamor, these tides of emotion, and ate— and ate —and ate.

Dr. Arndt said:—

"Nonsense. In this case how foolish for our Carl to approach me on tiptoe—in a morning coat—to demand Pauli's hand. See, he has it already, and hasn't he been son to me all these years?"

Mitzi came up then, fought her way through, kissed Pauli soundly; She said something that sounded like, "Be as happy as we are"—

Bruce didn't speak, not really. He just managed to commandeer a hand of each at last, and shake them painfully. His eyes shone. He was glad for them—so really glad—and his heart was a brittle piece of glass in his breast—so infinitely fragile, so cutting.

Behrend stomped in and made himself the keystone of the group. He kissed Pauli in a practical sort of fashion, thumped Carl on the shoulder. He said:—

"Well, it's settled. Now, for heaven's sake, dinner."

From little Kurt's blue eyes, now a trifle glazed with sufficiency, there shot a gleam of admiration. This man was not to be deflected. This man was beyond diversion. This man knew what he wanted—all qalities very appealing to childhood.

Eventually they sat down and were served. It would seem that that the Archduke was forgotten in the rush of questions.

Arndt smiled faintly. He had been watching Pauli. Her eyes, her brilliant eyes, her tremulous color, the rosy blossom of her surrendered lips He thought, "She is very like her mother—my little Pauli. God bless her: keep her safe. Boy, if you aren't good to her!"

He answered Behrend at length:—

"That depends August. Not that I know much about it. But it seems to me to turn on the question of the play's being a success."

Behrend said impatiently:—

"But of coure it will be. What are you thinking of?"

"Carl and Pauli," Arndt answered. He saw that the two of them were engrossed in talk and laughter with Bruce and Mitzi.

Behrend waved his large capable hand, the rings on it so imbedded in flesh that they had lost the heart to sparkle.

"Of coure to that also. One has always known that. Well, what a day—Carl's birthday, the play—and a wife!"

Arndt said sombrely:—

"Yes, and a murder"—

"Murder! Ah, the poor Emperor what a day for him—what a day!"

Arndt, too, was thinking of Franz Joseph—of the tragedy that followed him—first the wife, Elizabeth of the long black hair and the face like carven ivory; then the son, the till son, dead in the hunting lodge, the girl by his side—and now this.

He pushed his plate from him, sickened. His eyes thoughtfully rested on his child and her chosen husband. He saw them look at each other, deeply; he saw them smile secretly. He thought "It can't touch them; how could it? Young and hopeful hearted and in love—why should it?"

Diner, the belated, the interrupted, the magnificent dinner, was over. Mr. Behrend found a large chair, into which he carefully inserted himself. He was puffing, he was magenta in the face with excitement, goose and Karlowitzer. He was also drowsy.

After a time Dr. Arndt beckoned Pauli and Carl into his study. Bruce and Mitzi were talking. Behrend slept with one eye open ready to deny to all accusers that he slept. In the study, book lined, shabby, comfortable, the three conspirators sat down Arndt said:—

"I needn't tell you how glad I am and how much I love Pauli—how I pray for her happiness. I needn't tell you Carl, that I trust you"—

They both kissed him. Pauli in her impetuous, loving passionately grateful manner; Carl simply and straigtforwardly, in the old European fashion customary between father and son, strange to English and American eyes perhaps—but singularly touching.

Dr. Arndt asked:—,And when are you children planning your marriage?"

Carl answered, "as soon as possible."

Arndt flung out his hands in a gesture of resignation. He said, whimsically, Of coure, but"——

Pauli told him hastily. "We—oh, I shan't leave you so quickly, father—Carl was only joking"—

She looked appealingly at her lover. Her eyes said, "Don't you know I, too am of your desire? Soon, soon? But he's old and I'm all he has."

Her father saw the look and correctly interpreted it. He said, smiling:—

"Carl's face tells me that he isn't joking Pauli. Well—what had you planned?"

"A little flat," said Carl, eagerly, "near here-some furniture—just a few sticks, you know, to start with"—

The professor smiled.

Do you know?

That a 300-ton news mill produces sufficient paper for 8,000 sixteen page newspapers every minute, and that this paper is made at the rate of forty-five miles per hour? Some machines tenders may ride forty-five an hour in the Old Tin Lizzie, but did they ever think of figuring how many miles per hour the paper machine runs?

That three hundred tons of news per day is a very nice production for a paper mill, and yet it is only four minutes' supply for North America?

That on a news machine, running about nine hundred feet per minute, the sheet is five-eighths of an inch thick and carries two hundred parts of water at the slices, and three seconds later at the couch roll it is only three one-thousandths thick and has but three parts of water?

That when the paper machine is running around one thousand feet per minute it is unrolling a thirteen-foot log into a half-mile sheet of papaper in three minutes?

That twenty-two thousand newspapers and periodicals in the United States using newsprint consume three million tons, or, for every working day, a strip of paper thirteen feet wide that would encircle the globe?

Fined Under Liquor Act

As a sequel to the accident at the foot of the Sandhill at Deep Bay recently, in which two youths lost their lives, Charles Winfield and Cecil J. Winfield appeared in the Provincial Police Court during the week. The former was charged with selling beer in the Bowser Beer Parlor to minors, to which he pleaded guilty, but made the statement that there was nothing about the appearance of the young men to indicate they were minors and the question of their being otherwise never occurred to him. A witness, who was in the premises at the time, gave similar evidence. The accused was fined $300.00 and costs.

Cecil J. Winfield, the proprietor of the premises, was charged with selling beer contrary to the regulations, this charge arising from the evidence given at the inquest to the effect that a dozen bottles of beer had been purchased and taken from the premises. Although disclaiming all knowledge of the transaction, he pleaded guilty and was fined $50.00 and costs.

Attend the garden party to be held at Beaufort House Grounds on Wednesday next under the auspices of the Holy Trinity Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary. Novelty Side Shows Afternoon Tea ,etc. from 3 to 6.
