RECEPTION AT UNION BAY

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Give Reception in Honor of Their Son and His Bride.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Baldwin, Union Bay, in honor of their son, Mr. J. H. Vaughan Baldwin, and his bride who has just recently arrived from England. Quite a large number of friends assembled Wednesday from 3 to 5, when afternooon tea was served and a pleasant time spent.

ROYSTON

THE PEOPLE AT ROYSTON ARE SAYING—

That the python which appeared on board the British steamer the other day has nothing on the sea serpent which is out in the bay at Royston.

That after the sea serpent, it is customary for whale to appear.

That the three candidates for the Mayoralty chair have been looking over the ground pretty steady lately, and a good fight is expected on election day.

That one of the aspiring candidates was looking over the ground the other night to see if a new Boulevard would not bring the desired results.

That Ex-Mayor Roy has longing eyes on the vacant chair and will no doubt show some speed when the last lap comes.

That a full meeting of the Council will meet at an early date when the aspirants will be expected to toe the line and show the ladies what they can do to make Royston the Blackpool of the Pacific.

That the beach at Royston is becoming more popular every day, judging by the crowds that come to bathe every evening.

That Mayor Dowdall has been prepering his speech for the past three weeks, and it will be a masterpiece, judging by the dictionaries he is devouring every hour.

That housebuilding is rapidly proceeding, and some of the builders are becoming expert with the double-bladed axe.

That the two yachts at anchor are likely to be put to sea any day and have their sails set for the great race, which will be held the same day as Lipton sails his "Shamrock."

That the Cumberland girls have their weather eye open for the boys who slip over after dark to see the Comox girls—so look out, boys.

That the gentleman with the complexion akin to that of an aboriginal native has not been drinking freely of "pop" or listening attentively to love stories—his skin, like is heart, is as tender as a maiden's, and Old Sol is doing the trick.

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE FUNDS FOR RELIEF OF SUFFERING MILLIONS

Provincial Organizer of Canadian Jewish Relief Fund in Cumberland Organizing.

Mr. S. H. Anschell, provincial organizer of the Canadian Jewish Relief Fund, arrived in town Thursday in connection with efforts to arrange a campaign to raise funds to help the millions of human beings who are dying of starvation and typhus in Europe.

Appalling Conditions.

Henry P. Davison, chairman of the Board of Red Cross Societies, representing twenty-seven nations, says that sixty-five million people are facing starvation, and thousands upon thousands are dying of typhus, besides millions of children dying in Central and Eastern Europe.

The World's Problem.

"We are in the presence of an emergency so great that small ideas go ill with it. We cannot allow a plague-spot between the Baltic and the Black Sea to go uncleansed and hope ourselves to remain immune

"Deadly infections diseases leap over national boundaries. Even the sea is no sure barrier to them. European typhus actually threatens this continent."

These are the words of Dr. Copeland, the Health Commissioner of New York, who was sent to investigate conditions in Eastern Europe, in order to be able to gauge the full depth of the awful conditions existing there, and the steps necessary to prevent the spread of disease on this continent.

FIRE CHIEF QUENCHES FIRE BEFORE BRIGADE PUTS IN APPEARANCE

But Mr. Banks Mildly Indignant at Fire Starting on Roof of His House.

Mr. T. E. Banks, who among his many other activities is also Fire Chief of the local Fire Brigade, feels that the fire which started on the roof of his house at 6.45 o'clock Thursday evening, used very poor judgment—almost as bad as picking the pocket of the Chief of Police!

A spark evidently had lodged close to a chimney and ignited the shingles. The first intimation the family had of the occurrence was when the telephone operator called up Mrs. Banks and asked her if she was aware her house was on fire! Mrs. Banks did not know. The family were having supper at the time.

At the same time an alarm had been sent in for the Fire Brigade and in a short time the brigade had manned the truck and rushed to the scene of the fire—but they were too late! Mr. Banks in the meantime had quenched the fire with the use of the garden hose.

VOTERS' LIST CLOSES THURSDAY NEXT

OVER HALF THE PERSONS IN THE COMOX DISTRICT WHO ARE ENTITLED TO VOTE HAVE FAILED TO TAKE THE NECESSARY STEPS TO HAVE THEIR NAMES PLACED ON THE NEW VOTERS' LIST—REGISTRATIONS CANNOT BE RECEIVED AFTER THURSDAY NEXT.

Only two thousand five hundred citizens in the whole Comox Electoral District have their registration forms in the hands of the District Registrar, Mr. John Baird. Thousands of people apparently are indifferent at present about getting their names on the Voters' List, but unless they wake up and sign the necessary form, when the interest and excitement of election time arrives, they will not have a vote.

From present indications the new list will have considerable bearing on the future of this Province and Dominion. In a couple of months the Prohibition Referendum is to take place, unless the government delays it. A provincial election is almost a certainly in the near future, and a Dominion election is in the air. It is said by those in authority that this list will be utilized for the three events.

Those entitled to vote should realize the importance of getting on the roll at once—there are only four more days left in which to do so. All registration forms must be in the hands of the District Registrar by July 15.

NANAIMO OUT-SWATS LOCAL BALL TOSSERS

With Very Strong Team, the Hub City Boys Win Game By Five Runs to Three

The local baseball players are to be congratulated on the excellent showing they made against the formidable Nanaimo team, being beaten by the narrow margin of 5 to 3. A team which had been chosen from five different clubs represented the hub city. The local boys showed them a few things at that. Boyd, pitcher, for Cumberland, struck out 15 men during the game of nine innings, whilst Ferguson, pitching for Nanaimo, was only able to strike out three men. Had Boyd received the assistance from his fielders, Cumberland surely would have won.

GAME TOMORROW

The Courtenay team is due here tomorrow to play the local boys on the "Y" grounds. The game is to start at 2.30, and as both teams are about evenly matched a good game is anticipated.

ELLIOTT MUST PAY COSTS OF ACTION

Premier is Allowed His Costs as Well as the Two-Bits in Famous Libel Action.

VICTORIA.—R. T. Elliott, K.C., must pay all the costs of the Oliver-Elliott libel suit which was won last week by the premier with a verdict of 25 cents damages.

This was the decision of Mr. Justice Macdonald of the Supreme Court. The costs will be heavy.

H. A. Maclean, K.C., counsel for Mr. Elliott, claimed that although the premier got the verdict it did not mean that Mr. Elliott, the loser, should bear the costs. Mr. Maclean quoted section 73 of the Supreme Court Act.

"This shows that if you recover no more than $50 in an action in court you are not entitled to costs," said Mr. Maclean.

He explained that there are three kinds of damages: 1, contemptuous damages, where a shilling or so is awarded; nominal damages, where 40 shillings are awarded; and punitive damages, where the award is more than 40 shillings. He asserted that although M. B. Jackson, K.C., M.P.P., counsel for the premier, right up to the very last of the case urged punitive damages on the jury, the jury gave him only contemptuous damages. Mr. Maclean proposed that at least it should be no worse than both parties bearing their own costs.

Mr. Justice Macdonald did not think it necessary even to hear Mr. Jackson oppose the claim of Mr. Maclean.

"I think it clearly a case where the plaintiff is entitled to costs," said the judge.

COURTENAY POLICE TOOK LONG CHANCE

Fired Gun at Retreating "Black Jack" Players Whom He Suddenly Confronted.

When Chief of Police Dryden of Courtenay jumped through a back window right into a group of citizens who were enjoying a quiet game of "black-jack," in the back of the Riverside Hotel on Dominion Day eve, he came like a bolt from the blue. Before the players had recovered he had collected all the loose change there was on the table, presumably as evidence and had told those present to stay until he had got their names and numbers. Most of them did, but two made a break for a back exit. According to Chief Dryden's story, he called on them twice to stop, and when they did not he pulled his gun and fired in the direction in which they had gone. The hole in the door stands in mute witness of the affair, at about the height of a man's chest, and if either of the citizens who had departed so hastily had taken less haste to get away or had decided to return and see how things were developing they would undoubtedly have got punctured..

The police commissioners of the city have not taken any action in the matter yet, but have it under consideration. As the matter stands, Chief Dryden is in possession of the "bank" and there's a neat little hole drilled in a back door in the Riverside Hotel.—Argus.

PAVEMENT DANCE

Will Be Held on Monday Next in Aid of the Funds for the Memorial Hall.

A Pavement Dance will be held on Monday evening next, July 12, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the G. W. V. A. Admission for gents is 75 cents and ladies 25 cents. The proceeds will be devoted to the funds of the Memorial Hall.

OLD-TIME RESIDENT OF LADYSMITH DIES

The death occurred in Ladysmith Hospital Wednesday of Robert Weir Watson, a native of Lanarkshire, Scotland, at the advanced age of 80 years. Deceased, who was well known throughout the district, where he had resided for 32 years, was a prominent member of the Masonic Order, to which he had belonged for 58 years. He leaves a widow who resides in Ladysmith.

CARRIAGE OF ORIENT MAIL

VANCOUVER.—Refusal of the Canadian Pacific to continue carrying Oriental mail is said locally to be due to the great and constant increase in the American mails for the Orient routed through Vancouver. Word from Montreal indicates that the company will carry purely Canadian mail for the Far East for the reduced subsidy offered by the government.

Council Meeting

The regular fornightly meeting of the City Council was held on Monday last, making the fifth Monday in succession on which a meeting has been held.

His Worship Mayor McDonald occupied the mayoral chair, while Aldermen Piket, Bannerman, Wier, Thomson, Parnham and Brown and City Clerk Mordy were also in attendance.

Nothing of a very contentious nature was before the council. The usual routine business was dealt with.

Health Officer's Report.

The report of Medical Health Officer Dr. E. R. Hicks was before the council, and read as follows:

During the first two months of the year there were no infections in the city. About the 1st of March influenza made its appearance in the district, being brought here by a family who had recently arrived from England. It was prevalent in the city during March and the early part of April. There were 79 cases in the city, with no deaths. In the whole district, including Bevan, Union Bay, Royston, Minto, Camp and the New Townsite, there were about 400 cases, with one death. In the 1918 epidemic there were over 1600 ases, with 28 deaths. In nearly all cases those attacked were persons who were not infected in the 1918 epidemic. There were a few exceptions, but in those cases the attacks seemed milder.

Mumps has been epidemic in the district since the early part of March, and is still prevalent in the city.

There were two cases of erysipelas in the district, one in the city and one in the New Townsite. Both made good recoveries.

Measles, which has been epidemic in Victoria and Nanaimo, has made its appearance at Union Bay, Courtenay and Camp, and no doubt will be showing itself in the city.

To Analyze Milk.

Some aldermen being suspicious of the purity of some milk delivered in town, the council decided to have the Health Officer analyze samples.

Financial.

Miscellaneous accounts were before the Council and after consideration were referred to the Finance Committee for endorsement before being paid.

The Finance Committee reported a sum of about $8000 in the bank; after various bills have been paid there will be in the neighborhood of $6100. The council, on the motion of Ald. Brown, seconded by Ald. Wier, decided to reduce the bank overdraft of $3000 by $2500.

Board of Works.

Ald. Thomson reported progress on Dunsmuir Avenue. He said Mr. Walker, the superintendent of the Barrett Company, supplying the "Tarvia" to the city, had been in town inspecting the street and thought the work was quite all right. It only needed a little "binding," he said, on top, after which the "Tarvia" could be applied and a good road should result. Mr. Walker gave much information and encouragement to the Board of Works, though he said they should not expect too much from the first oiling.

Fire Wardens.

For the Fire Wardens, Ald. Brown reported six hydrants needed repairing; also that they should be painted a uniform color—red and white. This wil lbe attended to.

The cause of city water being slightly discolored, said Ald. Bannerman, was the clearing up of the dam, which will be attended to.

One or two aldermen would have had further discussion on the Licence Bylaw, but His Worship and some aldermen thought as the matter was now settled the matter should be dropped.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING MONDAY NEXT

Mr. H. S. Fleming, President of Canadian Collieries, Will Address Business Men.

A special meeting of the Cumberland Board of Trade has been called for Tuesday evening next, in the Council Chambers, when Mr. H. S. Fleming, President of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir), Limited, will address the members.

The B. C. Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold its convention next year in Nanaimo.

RANGERS BRINGING FIRST CLASS TEAM

Vancouver Rangers are due here this afternoon to play the Cumberland United team a return game. From word received from the Mainland Jim Miller is bringing over "some" team. He has not yet got over the shock his team received when the lowly Celtics trimmed them, and trimmed them good. Consequently the Rangers are bringing over their strongest possible team. In all probability Collinson, the crack left half-back, will be making the trip across.

The selection committee of the local club have been doing some moving around of the players, as the following line-up for today's game will show: Goal, Clark; backs, Smith and Wilkinson; half-backs, Brown (Capt.), Stobbart and Sullivan; forwards, Bannerman, Wyllie, James, Boothman and Harrison.

The game is set for 5.30. Get out and root for the boys—but watch your step—no rough stuff.

STRAWBERRY SEASON TO END SUDDENLY

The 1920 strawberry season at Gordon Head and Keating is coming to a sudden end, officials of the Fruitgrowers' Association say. The crop this year is only 60 per cent. of a crop. This is because of weather conditions. The growers are letting out the 300 girls who are picking berries in the district, although many of the girls only started last week. The berries will continue to come in for the next ten days, they say, but the quantity will be decreasing each day.

Because of the cold weather the season opened late. Then came the sudden stroke of hot weather, which is rushing everything through.

Editor Islander.

Sir—I think that the City Council is to be commended for the passing of the Beverage Licence Bylaw, 1920, even if it was only done by the casting vote of the Mayor. I believe that I am correct when I say that it meets with the approval of the majority of the residents (and it is the majority that counts, these days) of Cumberland, and more particularly by the taxpayers who are called upon to grin and bear the ever increasing load of taxes that are being imposed on this community of property owners, 38 or 39 mills, which is it? Think of it, and compare it with the rate at Courtenay, which I am informed is 22 mills.

I refer particularly to Clause Six in the said bylaw, which calls for the licence fee of $200 being placed upon the vendors of "near beer." The collection of the above by the city should have the effect of either bringing about a reduction in the rate of taxation, or be of considerable assistance towards increased efficiency in the administration of city affairs.

In passing this by-law the city are only following upon a precedent that has already been and is being adopted by other municipalities of this province.

Of course the hotelkeepers were up in arms and deputized the City Council. That was naturally to be expected—hit a man's pocket and he will, whether right or wrong, invariably register a kick. But I fail to see where he is imposed upon or unfairly treated.

The fixing of a yearly licence fee of $200 on the sale of "near beer" practically prohibits the handling of that particular beverage by restaurants, ice cream, candy and other stores in town, which no doubt must be collectively considerable, and gives to the hotelkeepers a monopoly on the sale of that popular drink. Yours truly,

LOOKER-ON.

LAMBETH CONFERENCE

Matters of World-Wide Importance Coming Up for Consideration This Week

From the first in 1867 the Lambeth Conferences have been held at intervals of about ten years (in 1878, 1888, 1897, 1908), the one now being held having been postponed from 1918 on account of the war. Beginning with an attendance of seventy-six Bishops, the number has gradually increased, until this year nearly three hundred are expected to be present. This will be the first time that the same Archbishop of Canterbury has presided over a second conference. Dr. Longley, Dr. Tait, Dr. Benson, Dr. Temple, each presided at one; this will be Dr. Davidson's second. The influence of the Conference is very great.

Among the subjects to be considered at this Conference are: Christianity and International Relations; The Christian Faith in Relation to Spiritualism, Christian Science, Theosophy; Our Relation to and Reunion with Other Churches; Missionary Problems; The Position of Women in the Councils and Ministrations of the Church; The Opportunity and Duty of the Church in Regard to Industrial and Social Problems; Problems of Marriage, etc.

The first week of July is devoted to the presentation of the various subjects; the next fortnight to their consideration by the several committees to which they are referred; then will follow another fortnight of consideration by the Conference of the reports of the various committees with the resolutions they recommend for adoption. On Sunday, August 8, there will be a concluding service in St. Paul's Cathedral.—Canadian Churchman.

SWAT THE ROOSTER

Absolute Waste to Keep Male Bird With Hens After the Breeding Season.

The presence of male birds in the flock during the summer months has a decidedly detrimental effect upon the quality of eggs, and poultry producers lose many thousands of dollars annually through the presence of partially incubated and bad eggs in the produce they market. Reports are now being received from all parts of the country of the number of partially incubated eggs appearing in current receipts. Producers do not realize that it is unnecessary for a fertile egg to be placed under a broody hen to cause the germ to grow; a temperature of seventy degrees is sufficient to start incubation. If the heat is constant the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and the egg becomes bad. Such eggs have no place or value in shipments, and should they get to the consumer the consumptive demand immediately falls off.

More Money for Infertile Eggs.

The male bird is not essential in egg production; his usefulness is over when the supply of fertile eggs for the season has been secured. The hens will lay just as many eggs when the male bird has been removed and the eggs will be more sutiable for consumption, packing or storing. Further, there is a distinct financial gain to the producer who markets infertile eggs, because the best trade in many cities offers a premium of from one to five cents a dozen for infertile eggs.

Serious Economic Waste.

Then there is the question of feed. It costs money to feed poultry, and with feed at its present value the consumption of feed by males kept for no particular purpose is a serious economic waste. The reason for this is that the best prices for live and dressed fowl prevail in the spring and early summer. During the summer the price declines, and by the early fall when many producers decide to market their male birds, a lower price than prevailed in the spring has to be accepted; the producer thus losing the amount per pound the market has declined, plus the value of the feed consumed by the birds during the summer months. This fiancial loss takes on a more serious aspect when it is coupled with the amount charged back by the whosesaler for the bad and partially incubated eggs that have been marketed.

Farmers and others selling eggs for market should, therefore, need no urging to kill off, dispose of, or at least remove the male birds from the flock after the breeding season.

"Gracious! Thirty cents a box for those strawberries? Why, they're such miserable little,(half-ripe things they would sure give one the colic."

"But look at de size o' de boxes, lady," returned the huckster. "Youse don't get enough o' dem to do youse any harm."

Life is full of uncertainties, even to those who expect the worst.

DOOR STOPPER WORTH MILLIONS

Rock Used to Keep Door Open Turns Out to Be From Rich Island of Phosphate.

A little island, a mere dot of land barely five miles in circumference, standing alone in the wide Pacific, is likely to save the world from starvation.

Ocean Island, by which name it is known, is nothing more than a vast deposit of exceedingly rich phosphate of lime, a pinch of which will enable any plant, in any soil, to double its fertility. It is the finest fertilizer, and valuable also to chemists in the making of munitions, matches and a host of other articles. Ocean Island played its part in helping us to win the war, and now it is to come to our aid in combating the serious shortage of food with which the world is faced.

Thousands of years ago countless myriads of sea birds, undisturbed by the presence of man or animal, made this vast coral rock their home, and created vast deposits of guano, which, mingling with the coral rock, so rich in lime, and aided by other agencies, produced a phosphate—a buff-colored rock that contains all the essential virtues of a prime soil fertilizer. It is almost magical in the harvests it produces.

The island is a British possession and the richest tract of land for its size under the Union Jack.

How its rich beds of phosphate were discovered is one of the great romances of industry. Some years ago the Pacific Island Trading and Guano Company, a New Zealand concern, had an unpretentious office in a back street in Sydney, New South Wales. A buff-colored, irregular shaped piece of rock kept the front door open. This little bit of rock held its humble position for many years, kicked here, tossed there, sometimes taken up and examined curiously, but always returned to its lowly occupation.

Key to a Treasure.

One day a man who was interested in guano, and knew a little about rock-phosphate, put the block in his pocket and walked off to his tiny bedroom in a lodging-house. Here he subjected the rock to a series of tests, and in a few days was so amazed and satisfied with the results that he hastened to the office to trace the history of the door-stopper.

The only thing he could learn about it was that it had been brought from Ocean Island by a trader. Off he went to the island by the first trading schooner available, to return a few months later and announce that the piece of rock which was used to keep open the office door was the key to a treasure island containing millions of tons of high-grade phosphate of lime.

Australian capitalists were offered the chance of forming a company to work the newly-discovered phosphate fields, but they turned the proposition down.

Now a Busy City.

A group of London fiananciers were then approached, who, realizing the possibilities of phosphate rock as a fertilizer, accepted the proposal. On this lonely and despised Pacific island they have built up a vast industrial settlement, a miniature city, throbbing with all the accessories of a great commercial enterprise. Day and night there are the mighty crash and whir of machinery, the shrill shrieks of locomotives, the deafening rattle of trucks rushing along the railways loaded with the precious phosphate for the crushers, dyers and bins, where it is treated and made ready for the tramp steamers which carry it to every nation actively engaged in agriculture.

Over two thousand native laborers principally recruited from the Gilbert and Ellice Islands, are engaged in the industry, under the supervision of a staff of highly-skilled white men.

Richest Natives in the World.

Although the birds were responsible for its rich treasure of phosphate, none are found on the island today, except the imported domestic fowl. The total native population, a very picturesque race, numbers only 500 souls, and they are the wealthiest natives in the world. Much of the land still belongs to them, while by arrangement with the British government the company working the phosphate fields has to pay a royalty of sixpense on every ton shipped, which is used by the Administration for the benefit of the island natives.—Tit-Bits.

Fashions in LIGHTING

They were considered as permanent a part of the house as the fireplace or the kitchen sink.

They were called "fixtures."

Walls might be re-papered, decorations and hangings made over in newer style, but the ugly chandeliers with their dust-catching whirligigs and spangles remained unchanged, defying the march of time.

Even after the advent of electricity, folks continued to look upon the lighting fixture as something fixed.

But Dame Fashion, in collaboration with the scientists who are constantly making improvements in electric lamps, has now taken charge of the lighting business. She has given us fashions in lights—just as we have fashions in hats and gowns.

Lamp shades change from season to season, and from year to year.

the shifting styles in lighting equipment have come as a steady improvement and economy of electric lamps.

Each change of fixtures and lamps means that the householder will have more or better light, or cheaper light—and frequently such a change means all three.

However, do not be alarmed,

PRESTO!

Here's one on old Mrs. Gleaner,
Who was using her vacuum cleaner;
When baby at play,
Got right in the way,
And since then nobody has seen her.

A FLY REPELLANT

Mixture That Will Relieve Cows of the Troublesome Pest

In the summer flies attack sows, causing much misery to them and financial loss to the owners. A contented cow always produce much more milk than a discontented one.

There are many so-called repellants on the market which are absolutely worthless. Good money is wasted every time these are produced. It is possible to obtain reliable repellants, however, and some of them very cheap. Here is one recommended by the Utah Agricultural College:

One pound of common laundry soap, four gallons of warm water, one gallon of crude petroleum and four ounces of powdered napthalin. Shave the soap into the warm water and stir until it is thoroughly dissolved. Put the napthalian in the crude petroleum and stir it likewise until it is dissolved. Then pour the soap and water in the petroleum and napthalin and mix thoroughly.

Apply the solution with a brush to the parts of the cows' bodies which are attacked by flies. This solution has been used and found economical effective and durable by many farmers.

ROD AND GUN

Anyone who has essayed to climb any of the Rockies will recognize in John Harker's "Mount Stephen With Martha" the actual portrayal of experiences of the novice in mountaineering. The author of this, the first of a series of humorous Martha series, is a well known member of the Canadian Alpine Club and his amusing story appears in "Rod and Gun in Canada" for July. "At the Mercy of the Flames" is the title of a thrilling story of actual experiene with a bush fire written by a fire ranger, Earl Dalton Tipping. The concluding instalment of Harry M. Moore's interesting story "The Silver King" appears along with several other good stories in this issue of Canada's national sportsmen's monthly. The various departments dealing with the ativities of rod, gun and canoe in Canada are up to their usual high standard. Several valuable articles appear giving valuable hints to campers and outdoorsmen in this month's issue. "Rod and Gun in Canada" is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

SILENT MEN PRINCIPALS IN A DEADLY STRUGGLE

Jealousy Said to Be Motive of Murderous Assault by Deaf and Blind Man.

NOTTINGHAM—Two deaf and blind men, who lived alone, were the principals in a strange affair at their home.

The two men, George Meakin and John Pykett, are both cabinet makers. They had lived on friendly terms until recently, when it is said that Meakin became jealous of the other man's friendship with a woman.

A few nights ago a policeman heard screams in the house, and, forcing his way in, found Pykett badly wounded about the hands and face.

According to the story he told at the police court, Meakin admitted that he had put a gas pipe, attached to a burner, on Pykett's pillow, and, after turning on the gas, attacked the sleeping man with a razor. "I meant to murder him," Meakin is alleged to have said.

He was remanded on a charge of attempted murder.

There is a hope that the injured man will recover.

CHANGED ASPECTS OF AN OLD FRIEND

It is hard to get used to a dollar that is worth only about fifty cents. Association and sentiment combine to persuade us that it is still a dollar and ought to buy a dollar's worth. When it takes two of them to do that our thrift is offended.

There is nothing for it but to get over that and see the inflated dollar as it is and let it go for what it is worth. If it can't buy what we need the simplest remedy is to send others to help it, if we have them. Otherwise to postpone the need.

Th most tempting use to put dollars to is to pay off debts incurred when they were still dollars. That is about the only way to be a before-the-war dollar's worth for a current dollar.—Life.

BRITAIN REMAINS CENTRE OF FINANCE

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

It is not too much to say that the recent statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer amazed the world by its showing of Great Britain's financial position and her plans for the future. Few people had any idea whatever that she had made such stride toward the recovery of her pre-war status. In recuperative powers no other country has shown anything approaching those of Great Britain. Now arises an American writer, Mr. B. M. Talbot, to tell the American people, through the columns of the Sun and New York Herald, that London, and not New York, is the centre of finance, and that nothing is more unlikely than that the United States will ever wrest this sceptre from England. The notion that Britain had passed her zenith as a great financial power arose in the popular mind when she was shipping gold to New York and when she was borrowing from the United States. The tremendous expense and wastage of the war were considered fitting reasons for Great Britain abdicating the financial position she had held for centuries. But it appears now that these expectations—perhaps in some quarters they were hopes—are baseless.

Factors in Supremacy.

British trade is mounting rapidly to the volume that existed before the war; but Mr. Talbot points out that to be the financial centre of the world, it is not necessary that a nation shall be also the trade centre of the world. It need not be the place where the most goods are manufactured or shipped to other countries. He says:

"To be the financial centre London or New York must have the best facilities for handling the business transactions necessary in order that goods may be exchanged between one country and another. There must be smooth working banking machinery first of all. That condition is so broad as to be nearly all inclusive. It involves properly operated money markets, stock and commodity exchanges, brokerage facilities, stable currency, broad bill market and numerous other services, such as may be found within a narrow radius of Wall Street or Lombard Street. Insurance is another important factor. Tariff laws are another.

The Spirit of Adventure.

Last of all and most important of all, perhaps, is the spirit of restless adventure on the part of capital. Capital is notoriously timid, but American capital is scared pink in comparison with British capital. The idea compared by the famous heading in the Literary Digest, "Hawked, the Britisher, Who Took Chances Like a Yank," does not apply to finance. American capital does not take chances like British capital, not because it is inherently more timorous, but because it does not need to take chances. It makes its investments at home. As Mr. Talbot says, when America needs cotton, she finances it in the Southeastern States. Britain has to go to the United States or to Egypt. America's oil, tin, iron ore, cereals, timber, tobacco and other products can be financed within her own borders, while Britain has to go to the ends of the earth.. If her capital is to be employed at all it must seek far-away fields. Every nation in history that was made at one time or another the financial centre of the world sent ships to distant shores to traffic with unknown races. This is why the great maritime powers have always been the great money powers from Byzantium down to Holland and Spain.

The Flag Follows Trade.

In olden times capital used to follow the flag. First there would be a war and an army of occupation, then the tradesmen would follow. Nowadays the flag is more likely to follow the trader. In this furthering of foreign trade, Mr. Talbot says that the British have much better banking facilities, and, of course, an incomparable merchant marine. Nevertheless, Britain had to construct these tools. She had to meet and defeat competition from France, Holland, Spain, and, more recently, Germany. He believed that England's geographical position has had much to do with her financial position. For many generations her livelihood has not been drawn from her own soil. She has been compelled to send her traders to all parts of the world to bring back necessary supplies. The time came when they brought back more than England needed for herself, and this surplus was then sent in her ships to other countries and sold. Her barter and trade had reached such proportions in Napoleon's time that he referred to England as a "nation of shipkeepers." She was a nation of shopkeepers, just as she was a nation with the greatest navy in the world, because she had to be in order to remain a free people.

BREAD BITS

Ordinary white bread contains 40 per cent. of water.

The "fat" in bread is just 1 per cent. of its total ingredients. The rest is made up of protein (the basis of life), starch, sugar, dextrin, cellulose (indigestible), and mineral matter.

New, moist bread is exceedingly hard to digest, because it produces no appreciable flow of saliva in the mouth during mastication. A slice of ordinary old bread is not digested until it has been in the stomach two and a half hours.

During the process of baking, bread loses a large quantity of its nutriment. Just short of three-quarters of the "fat" is lost, and an inroad is made on the protein, etc.

Wheat can be eaten in its entire state if soaked for a long time in water, then boiled in milk, and sugar added. This is "frumenty."

Real brown bread is made from stone-ground flour, manufactured from the whole grain.

An expert has stated that if this wholemeal bread had been eaten and white bread forbidden, the present national decay of teeth would never have happened.

Flour made from the whole grain has twice the protein and only a third of the water in ordinary "white" flour.

Bread is such an excellent food because but 4½ per cent. of its solids escape absorption by the body.

If milk were drunk with bread practically every crumb would be absorbed in nutriment.

ALBERTA LIQUOR LAW ULTRA VIRES

Supreme Court Concure in the Original Finding in Gold Seal Liquor Case

EDMONTON.—The fight of the Gold Seal Liquor Co. of Calgary against the recent legislation enacted by the provincial government making the importation and exportation of liquor in the province of Alberta illegal has been definitely settled in the supreme court. Justice Hyndman concure in the finding of Justices Beck and Ives and declared the legislation ultra vires of the powers of the local house.

The action brought by the Calgary liquor concern against the Dominion Express Co. for refusing to carry packages containing liquor has been bitterly contested in the Alberta courts. The appellate division of the supreme court at first divided equally on the question, Chief Justice Harvey and Mr. Justice Stuart holding that the act was quite within the powers of the house, while Justices Beck and Ives held that it was beyond the powers of the house.

The case was re-argued in the Edmonton court before Mr. Justice Hyndman, the point at issue being confined entirely to the question of the constitutionality of the act.

Notwithstanding the ruling of the appellate division, the locks are still on the doors of the liquor company's warehouses in Alberta. It is regarded as a certainty, however, that the decision means that the wholesale liquor business will revert to the old order of things.

A SEAFARING MAN

McGregor—A sailor? Ye don't look like a seafarin' man lae me. In fact, I dinnia believe ye've been tae sea in yer life.

The Tramp—Never been to sea? Then how the devil do ye think Oi came from Oireland? In a cab?

Mac: "I'm smoking a terrible lot of cigars lately!"

Great Bankers.

Britain owes much to her bankers. As the American writer says, the United States has few such born bankers as the Goshens, the Cunliffes and the Rothschilds. But Reginald McKenna, who is now recognized as one of the greatest bankers in the world, was a politician only a few years ago. This inference is that one does not require a lifetime to become a great banker. Is there any likelihood of the financial centre shifting permanently? Well, the steam vessel built up the Western Hemisphere, and an invention that would shift millions of population might very well shift the financial centre with them. Britain will never be bankrupt unless some catastrophe should overwhelm Europe, and she might even then ride out the storm as she has survived other European cataclysms. Her loans through the war amount to about $8,330,500,000. The American loans are about a billion dollars greater, and include four and a quarter billions loaned to Britain. If Britain has to write off all her loans it will not bankrupt her. The United States will not be asked to write off what Britain borrowed for the purpose of lending to her allies.

A SILENT ALARM CLOCK

An alarm clock which awakes a sleeper without ringing a bell has been made by an enterprising electrical engineer. It is set overnight so that at a given time it switches on a powerful electric lamp, the rays concentrating so as to fall on the pillow of the bed. The sun's rays falling on a sleeper always wake him, and the electric-light alarm answers the same purpose.

THE VOTERS' LIST

Unless Commissioners are holding back registrations in large numbers, it looks at present as if thousands of persons in the Comox Electoral District will not be included in the Voters' List. Up to the present the number of registrations received by Mr. John Baird, Registrar for the Comox Electoral District is only about two thousand five hundred. It is estimated that there are about seven thousand electors in this district, and with only four days to go before the list closes, but a little over one-third of these persons have their registration forms in the hands of the District Registrar.

The situation is undoubtedly serious, but it can hardly be contended that the fault lies elsewhere than with the electors themselves. While the time allowed by the government for compiling the Voters' List has been shorter than usual, much publicity has been given to this matter.

The Prohibition Referendum vote and Provincial and Dominion elections will be here shortly, and thousands of British Columbia citizens are going to be without a vote. If they have not got sufficient interest in the country's welfare to take the slight trouble to sign an application form, little sympathy will be extended them when they have to obey the results of the other fellow's vote.

EMPIRE NEEDS GREAT NAVY

Premier William F. Massey, of New Zealand, declared in a speech at an entertainment given by the Savage Club, that the British Navy "must be supreme at all costs." "I was one of those who at Paris thought the League of Nations would in a few years be strong enough to exercise a profound influence in preventing war," he continued. "I must now admit that the League of Nations is a great disappointment. We look around and see two great powers, Japan and the United States, building bigger and more powerful ships than ever. Those powers clearly do not believe that the League of Nations can end war. It would be calamitous if when war comes other nations should possess more numerous and more powerful ships than Great Britain, whose Empire depends on her sea power."

THE DARDANELLES

(Victoria Times)

The fortifications along the Dardanelles have been destroyed and, for the sake of the peace of Europe, it is profoundly to be hoped their destruction is permanent. Some day Russia will enter upon an era of sane and sound development and progress and the country around the Black Sea, perhaps the richest section of land on earth, will be producting in vast abundance goods for which there will be a world-wide demand. Never again should the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus be obstacles to the development of that trade, instead of facilities to promote it. The policy which authorized Turkey to dominate and fortify the two straits so that Russia could be hemmed in from the Mediterranean was nothing else than stark insanity, since, on the face of it, it was bound to breed not one war but a whole family of wars, the outcome of which was sure to be a demonstration of its futility. The day in which any nation, not to speak of a gigantic power like Russia, can be kept in a condition of economic strangulation by such means beyond a very small time, has disappeared forever. By the treaty with Turkey the Bosphorus and Dardanelles are thrown open to the shipping of the world and steps should be taken to insure the permanence of this condition. It would not take anybody holding Constantinople long to make the Dardanelles impregnable; indeed it could be done in a very few weeks. This is a matter which concerns Russia more than it does any other country in Europe, and it is desirable, therefore, that when she is ready to assume her international obligations she will be a party to the agreement that the two entrances to her back yard shall remain unfortified.

MANY UNIVERSES IN THE MILKY WAY

That there is but one great universe, pancake-shaped, measuring some 175,000,000,000,000,000 miles in the plane of the Milky Way and one-tenth as much the short way across, was the old-fashioned view submitted by Dr. Curtis of the Lick Observatory to the National Academy of Sciences, says the New York World. This theory of a universe relatively small was not accepted by other scientists, Dr. Shapely of the Mount Wilson Solar Observatory holding that our galaxy itself might be ten or more times larger than the Milky Way, and that beyond it there are undoubtedly other universes. It seems that there are, in dim star-clusters seen through the telescopes, visible hints of their existence. Of such "island" universes there may, in this hypothesis, be millions, billions. Who knows?

Even if there is only the familiar little old pancake-shaped universe, so much of which is visible of a clear night to inspire human thought, that does not greatly help finite mind to grasp the practically infinite. Dr. Curtis's modest universe may span 30,000 "light years," in every one of whose ticking seconds light travels 186,000 miles. To imagine a railway train running a mile a minute, day and night, does not aid imagination. It merely turns infinity of miles into infinity of time—say 105,000,000,000 generations of human life on the globe—a long journey.

Kent found two things for awe and wonder—the starry heavens and the mind of man. The thought of the finest scientific mind upon the universe, visible or invisible, draws little attention from the problems of nations and the daily grope for food and raiment. A penny closely held hides the superbest constellation in the skies.

Canadians do not always bear in mind, says the Montreal Star, the historic truth expressed by Sir Lomer Gouin, that Canada is laid on foundations built by the great men of two races, La Fontaine and Baldwin, Cartier and Macdonald. The first pair gained political authority, the second made Confederation a reality. The pride of nationhood which moves Canadians today is, therefore, a heritage of no single racial element, but is fairly claimed by both French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians.

Just as the City Council had got nicely settled down to business on Monday evening, a gentleman caused some amusement by poking his head in the hall and asking in a loud voice: "Is Donald in? Come here a minute." His Worship adjourned the meeting for a few moments.

JUST 25c. AND ALL IS WELL

The jury hearing the libel suit of Premier Oliver against Lawyer Elliott for the sum of $50,000 apparently did not take into consideration the high cost of living or else considered that a man in a position to pick up good land cheap did not need the money, and only awarded the premier the sum of twenty-five cents. This judgment may or may not carry costs but this point will be argued in court. Both gentlemen express themselves as greatly pleased with the verdict, so it will go down in history as one court case which has accomplished that great feat.

Premier Oliver was openly accused of attempting to secure land for his son from Petley & Keith, who were negotiating with the premier in his official capacity re the taxation of their lands. These gentlemen apparently had disposed of the particular parcel of land desired by the premier, but in order to accommodate an official with whom they must deal, they bought the land back and offered it to the premier at a very reasonable price. As the premier's lawyer stated in court, "there might have been an idea in the minds of these people that they were influencing the premier, but if so the evil is in the minds of these people and not in the mind or acts of the man who has earned the sobriquet of Honest John." He might have added that "to the pure all things are pure," thus carrying his honest line of reasoning to a logical conclusion. It would be impossible for any person to believe that a man who has been mixed up in politics as has Honest John could have had even a shadow of suspicion that these men were attempting to do him a favor for any ulterior motive. Perish the thought!

Premier Oliver estimated that Mr. Elliott, in expressing a suspicion of the honesty of the honest one's action, had damaged his reputation just $50,000 worth. After hearing the evidence and looking the two men over, the jury, in its wisdom, brought down a verdict for two-bits. A certain brand of honor carries a bigger discount in the courts of justice than the German mark on 'Change.—Kamloops Sentinel.

GUERNSEY COW BRINGS $17,700

A record price of $17,700 for a Guernsey cow was paid at a sale of cattle, held at Midlothian, Illinois, in connection with the annual meeting of the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

THE REASON.

"Why is it that you never ask your lady customers what size they wear when they come in for new shoes?" asked the friend.

"Well," replied the shoe dealer, "it is a lot easier to measure their feet than to argue with them."

THE ALTERNATIVE.

A Georgia magistrate was perplexed by the conflicting claims of two negro women for a baby, each contending that she was the mother of it. The judge remembered Solomon, and drawing a knife from his boot, declared that he would give half to each.

The women were shocked, but had no doubt of the authority and purpose of the judge to make the proposed compromise. "Don't do that, boss!" they both screamed in unison. "You can keep it yourself."

REASON ENOUGH

"What's the matter? You look pale and feeble."

"Been through quite an ordeal. Was up to Flubdub's house last night."

"Well?"

"And drank some home-made wine manufactured by his wife and smoked two of his Christmas cigars."

JEWEL CARMEN INTERPRETS BIG ROLE IN HER NEW PLAY

William Fox Star Handles Part Cleverly in "The Girl With "The Champagne Eyes"

A remarkable combination of star story and characterization are brought together in the new photoplay, "The Girl With the Champagne Eyes," that William Fox has made and in which Jewel Carmen is the leading figure. It is startling in the boldness of the theme and the clever way in which it is handled.

This picture will be shown at the Ilo-Ilo Theatre this evening.

The heroine is a thief, but a tremendous and soul-stirring explanation is made for the reason she has become one.

But the tenseness is made infinitely greater by reason of her allowing an innocent man to be convicted of a crime she commits. Later she aids in his escape from prison and then falls in love with him. Here is a situation that is powerful. This girl has, through her own crime, wrecked all the prospects and reputation of the one whom she was destined to love more than all others. Naturally she is spurned by him. Naturally he fears and dreads her very existence. And yet together with the only other being for whom she has any attachment, an elderly man who has fathered her, they are all fugitives from the law and seek seclusion in the icebound north among the roughest and most dissolute of men.

Through all this, the remarkable woman who has stolen with her hands to keep her body unsullied, has kept her capacity to love pure.

Here is a photoplay that is vivid and striking and that pulls the heart-strings. We see the beautiful Jewel Carmen in a role that is worthy of her beauty and her talents. We find her receiving solace in the children of a father who has been killed because one dissolute man dared to interfere with another wretched creature who sought her love. She wins in the end the love of the man whom she first had injured and then later blessed with her devotion.

What Jewel Carmen has demonstrated in her interpretation of this role is that she has kept a spark in her heart that was clean and lovely and that was capable of being awakened, and made possible her redemption from any sort of misdoing, once it had been quickened to brightness.

ADVOCATES MUSIC IN SCHOOLS

P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, recently said he was glad to see the people of his country awakening to a new interest in music in school and community. "The great interest," said he, "will no doubt react on music in the schools. Both have educational value of a high order.

"It is to be hoped that music may very soon find its way into all our schools, both public and private, as an essential part of their work, and that courses in music may be offeed in a much larger number of our colleges and universities. These should be supplemented by a great national conservatory of music with sufficient income to do the work for which so many of our young men and women go to other countries."

"THE SUPERMAN" AT ILO-ILO MONDAY

One of the Most Thrilling Sensations of the Screen, Containtaining Every Element of Human Nature.

There is one thing which we want to tell you about "The Superman" and that is that it is not to be taken seriously. The fundamental plot is melodrama, with a cast of Italian actors who perform their roles in a way which to American standards is decidedly funny. To add to the comedy turn as viewed in this country, are "kidding" subtitles written in the George Ade "Fables of Slang" style, which for the most part are rather good. These titles take it for granted that the spectator knows what is coming next in the unfolding of the ancient vintage plot and makes fun of it. To begin with the early scenes are interspersed with verses of a doggerel poem which end with an author's note that he couldn't think of any more rhymes so had to quit.

What ansonia, the film's athletic, strong man hero does in the way of providing action will make the inimitable Douglas Fairbanks green with envy. This is an Italian "Modern Musketeer" and "His Majesty, The American" rolled into one, with a touch of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" thrown in.

A certain royal prince of some mythical European country aspiring to the throne, conspires to remove a princess and her little daughter who stands between him and his ambitions. Sansonia, who is an athletic workingman who lives somewhere around the neck of the woods where all this conspiring is taking place, is the instrument that fate has decreed shall frustrate the bad prince's evil designs. After being pursued and pursuing, both in the air and on the ground, in buildings and on the top of them, Sansonia brings the two heirs back to the royal court, the prince is punished for his misdeeds and Sansonia is on the way to the priest to get hitched up to a good looking girl, who seemed to have been brought into the story, so he would have somebody to marry, seeing that according to European standards he couldn't have the princess.

Don't infer from this plot that the picture is not a good one. It certainly is—but somehow it is different to the ordinary American picture. It is a first-class comedy and you will get many laughs witnessing it. It is shown on Monday at the Ilo-Ilo.

$2.50 A SEAT

On its recent Sunday opening in the Superba Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal., "The Virgin of Stamboul" averaged $2.50 for each seat in the house, thereby establishing a new record in the moving picture business. The total receipts for the day amounted to $1,543.

Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, and who now is at Universal City attended the opening. His delight was overwhelming.

"At eleven o'clock Sunday morning the theatre was three-quarters full. At twelve-thirty there was a line in front of the theatre. That line continued all day and until after nine-thirty at night.

"There is no doubt that in this Priscilla Dean picture we have the biggest attraction of Universal's successful career.

"If the house had been larger, it would have done three times as much business," he said the next day.

It was the planchette, a sort of writing ouija board, that turned Bispham's thoughts to opera. He was thirty-five years old when he first came into prominence, but he did not know whether his future lay in concert or in the unexplored region of opera. At a dinner with a Swedish nobleman who had been making psychic investigations the singer, half-jestingly, asked the planchette which way he ought to turn. The device, under the hands of the psychic, answered "Opera by all means," and further inquiries brought the advice that Mr. Bispham ought to familiarize himself with the roles of Amonasro, Wolfram, Kurwenal, and Beckmesser, adding that his opportunity to sing these parts would come within a few months. The singer was impressed by the psychic demonstration and studied the music named. Within three months he was invited to sing some of these roles at Covent Garden, and he was prepared. Mr. Bispham does not attempt to explain this phenomenon. He says merely that "there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in our philosophy."

According to Representative Royal C. Johnson, of South Dakota, the nation's greatest victory memorial is to be erected in Washington in the form of a fine auditorium built for the holding of music festivals, conventions, conferences, etc. Congress has donated the site for the building on the spacious Mall, about half way between the White House and the Capitol, and has authorized the George Washington Memorial Association to collect the necessary funds for its construction and maintenance —$10,000,000.

"Sally In Our Alley!" What an inspired song, and as popular to-day as it was 200 years ago, when it had a great vocal hit in that famous passong was written in the 17th century by the romantic henry Careg, reputed to have been the natural son of the Marquis of Halifax, George Saville. For many years it was believed that Careg was the author of "God Save the King," but this has been disputed many times.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN "HER FINAL RECKONING"

Paramount Star Has the Role of Tiger Woman in "Her Final Reckoning"

To portray the role of a "tiger woman" artistically, necessarily calls for talents of a high order. There have been many actresses in days gone by who possessed the requisite talents, notably Sarah Bernhardt, Mms. Rejane, Jane Hading, Mme. Modjeska and Fanny Davenport; but if the opinion of critics may be depended upon, none of these artists have been more generously endowed by nature in this respect than Pauline Frederick, one of the foremost picture stars of the country.

Miss Frederick is essentially an actress of the first class, and she combines with her histrionic ability, beauty, personal charm and magnetism possessed by few actresses in the movies. She is a dramatic actress and hence in the portrayal of such roles as Marsa, in "Her Final Reckoning," in which she is to be seen at the Ilo-Ilo Theatre on Tuesday evening, she is artictically at her best. In this photoplay she plays two roles, appearing first as her mother and later as herself. Through the system of multiple exposure photography, she is simultaneously seen as her mother and herself in the same scenes in which the mother and daughter are supposed to meet, the effect at times being most startling.

In discussing her newest vehicle, Miss Frederick made this statement:

"The play, 'Prince Zilah,' upon which 'Her Final Reckoning' is based, won success for the most famous actresses in the world, including Sarah Bernhardt, Jane Hading, Modjeska, Ellen Terry and Eleanor Duse. The play created a sensation when first produced, and was soon novelized and published in serial form. Later, as a book, it was translated into many languages and had a tremendous circulation throughout the world.

"The original presentation was made with Jane Hading as the star, and the play ran for one entire year at the Gymnase Theatre, in Paris. The feminine star role is Marsa Tcheretoff, whose mother was a gipsy and her father a Russian. Marsa possessed a large fortune which enabled her to live in the romantic atmosphere she craved. Her sensational love affair held a great deal of heart interest, and it is said that when the story appeared in serial form in a Paris magazine the shop girls neglected their work to surreptitiously devour the latest instalment of the romance.

"The role of Marsa is a splendid one for me, as it enables me to appear in a sort of tiger woman character which I have long desired to do. For a long time in France 'Prince Zilah' was the key to dramatic success, and all the famous actresses of the time demonstrated their emotional talents with this vehicle."

Miss Frederick has had a long and interesting stage career. She is a native of Boston and is quite cultured. She is of medium height—just five feet four inches, to be exact—has blue eyes and brown hair, and weighs about 130 pounds. She is an out-of-doors girl and delights in hunting, being a crack shot. She is also a musician, a motorist and a linguist, speaking several languages fluently.

ROMANS ROAM ON DWAN ESTATE

The sunken gardens, pools, marble statues and Grecian columns of Allan Dwan's estate in Los Angeles were transformed into a background for a Roman debauch which figures in the producer's newest feature, "The Sin of Martha Queed," to be presented by Mayflower. Two hundred "Roman Senators" and dancers were used in the scene.

MISS COOPER IN GINGHAM ROLE

Miriam Cooper whose sloe-eyed loveliness adorned R. A. Walsh's "The Deep Purple," will play an important role in the producer's next subject, work on which has just been started. Miss Cooper will be remembered as the heroine of Walsh's screen version of "Evangeline" and a large number of celluloid successes. In the new Walsh production, which will be presented by Mayflower, the dainty actress again essays the role of a trusting country lass.

MY LOST DOLLAR

By Stephen Leacock in "The Sphere"

My friend Todd owes me a dollar. He has owed it to me now for twelve months, and I fear there is little fear of his ever returning it. I can realize whenever I meet him that he has forgotten that he owes me a dollar. He meets me in the same frank, friendly way as always. My dollar has clean gone out of his mind. I see that I shall never get it back.

On the other hand, I know that I shall remember all my life that Todd owes me a dollar. It will make no difference, I trust, to our friendship, but I shall never be able to forget it. I dont' know how it is with other people but if any man borrows a dollar from me I carry the recollection of it to the grave.

Let me relate what happened. Todd borrowed this dollar last year on the 8th April (I mention the date in case this should meet Todd's eye) just as he was about to leave Bermuda. He needed a dollar in change to pay his taxi. And I lent it to him. It happened quite simply and naturally. I hardly realized it till it was all over. He merely said, "Let me have a dollar, will you?" And I said, "Certainly. Is a dollar enough?" I believe, in fact I know, that when Todd took that dollar he meant to pay for it.

He sent me a note from Hamilton, Bermuda. I thought when I opened it that the dollar would be in it. But it wasn't. He merely said that the temperature was up to nearly 100. The figure misled me for a moment.

Todd came back in three weeks. I met him at the train—not because of the dollar, but because I really esteem him. I felt it would be nice for him to see someone waiting for him on the platform after being away for three weeks. I said, "Let's take a taxi up to the club." But he answered, "No, let's walk."

We spent the evening together, talking about Bermuda. I was thinking of the dollar, but of course I didn't refer to it. One simply can't. I asked him what currency is used in Bermuda and whether the American dollar goes at par (I put a slight emphasis on the American dollar), but beyond that I could not bring myself to make any reference to it.

It took me some time (I see Todd practically every day at my club) to realize that he had completely forgotten the dollar. I asked him one day what his trip cost him, and he said that he kept no accounts. A little later I asked him if he felt settled after his trip and he said that he had practically forgotten about it. So I knew that it was all over.

In all this I bear Todd no grudge. I have simply added him to the list of men who owe me a dollar and who have forgotten it. There are quite a few of them now. I make no difference in my demeanor to them, but I only wish that I could forget.

I meet Todd very frequently. Only two nights ago I met him out at dinner, and he was talking, apparently with self-consciousness, about Poland. He said that Poland would never pay her debts. You'd think a thing like that would have reminded him, wouldn't you? But it didn't seem to.

But meantime a thought—a rather painful thought—has begun to come into my mind at intervals. It is this. If Todd owes me a dollar and has forgotten it, it is possible—indeed, it is theoretically probable — that there must be men to whom I owe a dollar which I have forgotten. There may be a list of them. The more I think of it the less I like it, because I am quite sure that if I had once forgotten a dollar I should never pay it on this side of the grave.

If there are such men, I want them to speak out. Not all at once, but in reasonable numbers, and, as far as may be, in alphabetical order, and I will immediately write their names down on paper. I don't count here men who may have lent me an odd dollar across a bridge table! and I am not thinking (indeed I am taking care not to think) of the man who lent me thirty cents to pay for a bottle of plain soda in the Detroit Athletic Club last month. I always find that there's nothing like plain soda after a tiring ride across the Canadian frontier, and the man who advanced that thirty cents knows exactly why I feel that I have done enough for him. But if any man ever lent me a dollar to pay for a taxi when I was starting for Bermuda, I want to pay it.

More than that: I want to start a general movement, a "Back to Honesty" movement for paying all these odd dollars that are borrowed in moments of expansion. Let us remember that the greatest nations were built up on the rock of absolute honesty.

In conclusion, may I say that I do particularly ask that no reader of this paper will be careless enough to leave this copy round where it might be seen by Major Edward Todd of the University Club of Montreal.

POLICE CHIEFS WANT ANTI-LOAFING LAW

MONCTON.—Among the resolution of public importance adopted by the conference of the chief constables of Canada, was one requesting the executive to take up with the department of justice the desirability of putting into force the anti-loafing law, in vogue during the war. The convention was unanimously in favor of continuing this law. Next year the convention will be held at Montreal.

DADAISM

There is a strange artistic and literary cult at present in France which styles itself "dadaism," says the Christian Science Monitor. As far as a complete outsider can see, dadaism is a pot-au-feu composed of cubism, futurism, vorticism and other similar ingredients. Its portraits resemble nothing so much as an old-fashioned plate of clam chowder, seen from above. When it deigns to copy old masters, as it did upon at least one occasion, it added a pair of moustaches to a reproduction of da Vinci's Mona Lisa. In poetry the dadaists are equally fertile in imagination. The humble letter R, which Juliet's nurse called "the dog's letter," will fill out two or three lines of dadaistic verse, all by itself. Much of their poetry resembles a child's first attempt to write upon the typewriter—for all the characters of a universal keyboard are indiscriminately employed. It is an attempt to express in words the most florid effects of a jazz band.

One of the amusing results of this new movement is that the cubists and all the other "ists" now find themselves regarded by dadaists as academic and demode. The cubists appear to be rather annoyed. They have been driven to parodying and burlesquing the dadaists—a perfect illustration of the proverb of the pot and kettle.

At the last census, 1911, the population of Scotland was 4,760,904. It is believed that at the end of the fifteenth century the population of Scotland did not exceed 500,000. At the time of the union with England in 1707, the population is estimated to have been abut 1,000,000.

Pirates Rob Ship's Passengers

Women Fleeing Before Bolshevik Advances Are Among the Victims.

Pirates held up the French Packet Souirah, which left Batum May 6 for Marseilles, and after robbing the passengers went ashore in boats which they compelled the crew to man.

Among those robbed were several women whose husbands are connected with relief work in Armenia. They were fleeing before the Bolshevik advance and were compelled to give up their money and jewelry at the point of the revolver. The pirates boarded the steamer at Batum, either as passengers or members of the crew. At nine o'clock on the night of May 6, fifteen men sprang up from various parts of the ship, covered officers and passengers with pistols and took possession. The women passengers were later taken off by a French restroyer.

CRIMINAL INDIFFERENCE TO STARVING EUROPE

Chairman of Jewish Relief Committee at Victoria Issues Startling Figures

George G. Bushby, chairman of the Victoria committee of the Canadian Jewish Relief Committee issued the following statement in regard to the efforts which are being made to raise $25,000 for the relief of the suffering thousands in Central Europe:

"As chairman of the Victoria Committee of the Canadian Jewish Relief Committee, I wish to draw to the attention of the people the campaign which we are trying to carry on for the relief of the starving children of Eastern Europe, while at the same time we are attempting to prevent the cruel scourges of typhus from reaching Canada from that infected region.

"If the dread epidemic of typhus is not halted and confined in its present permanent seat of infection in Eastern and Central Europe it will sweep over this country in a wave ten times greater than did the influenza epidemic, and in a form ten thousand times more disgusting.

Black Plague.

"The black plague originated in Eastern Europe and Central Asia, destroying 23,000,000 people, and almost destroying the civilization of that day.

"Means of communication are rapid in these modern times, and the means of dissemination of infection are therefore more perfect than was the case during the black plague of Europe, so, if typhus is not stamped out or kept under control at the seat of infection, it will spread like wildfire in every direction.

Typhus Terrible.

"The report of the Council of the League of Nations, dated June 26, 1920, states that the typhus, the worst of Europe's many legacies from five years of war, is virtually unchecked in many parts. Poland is thoroughly infected, the disease having raged there continually since the beginning of the war. In 1916 there were 34,538 cases. In 1917 there were 43,840, and the number in 1919 increasing to 231,206, while the first two months of 1920 developed 46,500 cases, at which rate the present year will far exceed the records of the previous ones.

"In addition to the Polish situation, typhus is raging in Serbia, Roumania, the Baltic States and Russia. On the strength of this report by international experts the Council of the League has voted three million pounds sterling to be expended immediately in an attempt to stem the tide if contagious diseases that is sweeping over Central and Eastern Europe.

Amazing Indifference.

"The people of the community must take this matter seriously; they must drop their attitude of indifference which is little short of criminal. In the case of the starving peoples of Eastern Europe the indifference of the citizens, with the exception of a few of the poor and a sprinkling of the well-to-do, is, to avoid a stronger term, positively amazing, while apparently it will be time enough to trouble about the typhus when the typhus is raging here.

"The time to fight the typhus is now, and the way to fight it is by helping to clean up the infected areas in Europe, and it takes money to carry on this fight.

No Children Under Three Years.

"Good people of Victoria, just devote ten minutes for thinking this matter over ocarefully. During that ten minutes try to see your own little ones in the process of starving to death. Try to visualize a land where there are no children alive under the age of three years. Try out your own soul and let your conscience be your judge."

There are probably a lot of good people in the world who do not look the part.

CELTICS DEFEAT RANGERS

Formidable Contenders in the League Easily Outclassed By Cellar Celtics.

The Vancouver Celtics, with a team greatly strengthened, just simply walked walked around the Rangers to the tune of 3 goals to 1 on Saturday last. Bradley, a halfback, late of Liverpool, was in the line-up for the winners. Practically through his fine playing the Celtics were able to trim the Rangers so easily. C. Hazeldine scored the first goal for the Celtics, Robertson scoring for the Rangers. The junior, Bradshaw, who played such a magnificent game at Cumberland, then got busy and scored two goals in quick succession.

The Rangers were a beaten team right from the start, and at the finish of the game walked off the field quite down-hearted. It was different with the Celtics, though. The players were in high glee and their supporters sent up cheer after cheer. Jim Miller, the manager of the Rangers, is still wondering how it happened.

PRINCE OF WALES TOLD HIS WEIGHT

LONDON.—Dispatches tell of incidents in the tour of the Prince of Wales in Australasia. At one railway station, which was crowded with sightseers, a man called out:

"Hi Prince! Will you tell me what your weight is?"

"Oh, certainly," replied the Prince. "It is 140 pounds. I suppose you have a bet on it."

"Right you are," the man replied.

"Well," said the Prince, "I hope you have won."

"No, I lost," the man shouted, "but you are a good sport, and I thank you."

There have been added to the Prince's collection many whale's teeth. These are so valuable, according to the standards of the Fijians, who presented them, as practically to be the gold reserve of the islands.

FIGHTER AND MANAGER TRAPPED IN BUSH FIRE

NELSON.—Eddie Fingard, claimant of the Canadian middleweight boxing championship, and his manager, Jules Levine, escaped from the Boulder Creek bush fire late Friday night after being encircled seven hours and climbing over all the logs in the world. When the heat became intense they made for the creeks, Fingard, who carried an axe, making his preparations to die by bleeding to death if necessary, while Levine selected drowning as the preferable form of release.

They got trapped through being impressed into the fire line and taking a hand in saving the horses. Jack Levine, brother of Jules, sent out an S. O. S. call for them the night of the fire. The three arrived from the prairie lately to work the camps for a casualty company.

PROSPECTIVE CHAMPIONS DEFEAT CUMBERLAND BY NARROW MARGIN

In spite of the hot sunshine, the match on Saturday last between Nanaimo and Cumberland in the Inter-City League was a keen contest from start to finish, though some of the players certainly appeared to be of the opinion before the game was over that the summer time is not the proper season for football.

Cumberland had the game all to themselves the first twenty minutes, and had the forwards taken advantage of one quarter of the opportunities of scoring, the local team would have had a lead of at least three goals in the first half. But though they continued the pressure until half time, Cumberland was not able to penetrate Nanaimo's good defence. Half time arrived with a blank score.

After crossing over Cumberland commenced at once to press hard, and they had many chances in the first quarter of an hour after changing ends to open the scoring. However, every one of their shots at goal was wide of the mark, and except on one occasion, when he made a really brilliant save, Routledge really had little to do. At this time Cumberland was playing a great game, their short passing being particularly snappy, and time after time they worked their way down the field only to be repulsed by the Nanaimo back division or to have the whole value of the attack nullified by poor shooting at goal to wind up with.

Their forwards could not find the goal mouth with their shots, though on more than one occasion it looked as though a goal must result from their concerted attacks, the ball either going wide or else over the cross-bar. Only on one occasion did Routledge really have a dangerous shot to deal with, and then running out and picking the ball off the feet of his opponents, who had the goal seemingly at their mercy had they not dallied with the ball too long; with a long kick down the field he cleared in brilliant style.

Nanaimo Scores.

During the last ten minutes of the game the Nanaimo team literally played around the visitors, their superior condition standing them in good stead. With but fifteen minutes or so to go, a melee occurred in front of the Cumberland goal, and though Clarke, their custodian, got to the ball as it was driven goalwards, he did not clear, but either fumbled or else was guilty of the error of watching one man only for he held the leather for just a fraction of a seond between his legs. Husband, seeing the opportunity, rushed in from the left with a rare burst of speed and tipped the ball into the net for the first, and as it happened, the only score of the game.

Played Well But Could Not Score.

With but a few minutes to go, Cumberland made super-human efforts to get on terms, but the pace had been too hot for them. Both teams came within an ace of scoring during the last few minutes, Cumberland in particular having some fine openings. No further score resulted, though, and Nanaimo left the field winners in a hard-fought contest by the margin of one goal.

The defence on both sides was excellent, Wilkinson, for Cumberland, playing in quite his old-time form, and kicking with admirable judgment and force, while his partner, Zaccarrelli, was not far behind him in the matter of efficiency. The Nanaimo back division was also splendid, but the forwards on both sides lacked ability to finish their assaults by scoring goals. Their condition enabled Nanaimo to win with what can only be regarded as a lucky goal, for while Husband was quick to take advantage of the opportunity offered, and therefore deserves all the credit possible, Clarke had ample time to have cleared entirely had he gathered the ball and thrown it from him.

This makes Nanaimo strong favorites for the championship of the Interity Summer League. However, there are still a few macthes to play and anything is liable to happen.

VANCOUVER CELTICS ARE IMPROVING FAST

Vancouver Celtics are coming up strong now. They claim to be able to beat any team in the league, after defeating the Rangers so decisively. The Nanaimo team will certainly have to play a hard game if they want to obtain the full quota of points when they meet the improved Celtics today.

A polished mirror casts reflections, but a polished man doesn't. That's the difference.

WOULD SEND WAR VETERAN EAST FOR OLYMPIC MARATHON

Officials of the Great War Veterans A. A. A. are making an appeal for financial assistance in order that British Columbia's leading long distance runner, Claude Parr, a veteran of the Great War, may compete in the Canadian Olympic trial at Hamilton, Ont., on July 19. Parr won in the B. C. trials, but owing to lack of funds the G. W. V. A. A. finds it impossible to include him in the team selected for the eastern trials, and the veterans of Vancouver are now making an effort to raise the necessary amount, approximately $300, to cover the runner's expenses and those of a trainer. It is desirable that Farr should leave not later than July 12, and all sportsmen and others interested are urged to send in contributions to Mr. A. S. Heber, secretary of the sports committee of the G. W. V. A., 901 Hastings Street West.

Farr was undefeated in the brigade and divisional championship distance events in France and defeated Tom Longboat overseas. He was beaten by Joe Keeper by four seconds during one of the big events overseas, and at Aldershot ran second in the army championships, a field of 718 runners competing.

McCARTHY DEFEATS BURNS

At Fernie on Dominion Day Charley McCarthy, claimant of the Canadian lightweight title, defeated Roughhouse Charley Burns, taking a decision in fifteen rounds. Frank Pete, Seattle, won a decision over Stanley Clements, Vancouver, in ten rounds.

RANGERS PLAYING CUMBERLAND TODAY

Vanouver Rangers are due to play in Cumberland this afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 5:30. This match will practically decide who takes second place in the league.

MISS KATHLEEN TICKLE.

A lawyer pleading before a Scotch judge with whom he was on intimate terms, had as a client Miss Kathleen Tickle. The lawyer began:

"Tickle, my client, my lord—"

"Tickle her yourself, Henry," interrupted the judge.

"WHAT WE WANT TO KNOW"

1. Just who is the "Inquisitive Editor?" It seems to worry some people. Take care, curiosity killed the cat, you know!

2. Is the picking of a summer girl easy? It seems that way, but watch your step, little boy, she may be laughing up her sleeve.

3. What was the best thing in town this week? Certainly not the Kewpies, so it must have been gossip concerning them.

4. If the moon could whisper, what would it have told our gossips Monday morning?

5. Who's been trying to land three birds with the same stone? Why not use a brick?

6. Why brown eyes cause so much comment? Let's give the blue ones a passing chance.

7. Why Union Bay gossip is so dependent on the shipping?

8. Yes, "Mother Machree" is certainly a grand old song, but why serenade "In the Garden of My Heart" at midnight?

9. Why a certain "Lizzie" sinks into insignificance when driven by—who?

10. Will Royston Beach be lively next week? Well, we don't know, but they say the "Gang" are moving down, and although they are not Midnight Whirlers—you'd be surprised.

It is unlucky when you are hungry to come home and find a black cat in the pantry.

LAWBREAKER VISITS McLEAN'S STORE

An early visitor to the jewellery store of Mr. McLean this morning was a lawbreaker in the shape of a young heifer. About 7:30 she stood gazing intently at the window, her nose a few inches from the glass, then, whether from disgust or satisfaction we know not, she let out a prolonged "M-o-o-w" and sauntered up the sidewalk.

She was violating a local law which says she should not be at large before 8 a.m.
