BRITISH EMPIRE MOURNS LOSS

London, Nov. 15.—Field Marshall Earl Roberts died last night in France from pneumonia.

A telegram from Field Marshall Sir John Frenoh apprised Lord Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, of the death of England's greatest soldier. The telegram read: "I deeply regret to tell you that Lord Roberts died at eight o'clock this (Saturday) evening."

Field Marshal Lord Frederick Sleigh Roberts was the son of the late General Sir Abraham Roberts G.C.B., and Nora Henrietta, daughter of Major A. Bunbury, of Kilfeacle, County Tipperary, He was born at Cawnpore, India, September 30, 1832, and was educated at Eaton, Sandurst and Addiscombe. He received his first commission as second lieutenant in the Bengal Artillery in 1851, and after passing through various grades, was promoted to Lieutenant-General in 1883. He served with distinction throughout the Indian Mutiny campaign, receiving the Victoria Cross for personal bravery in the field in 1858. Throughout the Abyssinian campaign of 1868, Lord Roberts held the position of Assistant Quartermaster-General: he super intended the re-embarkation of the whole army, and was selected by Sir Robert Napier as the bearer of his final dispatches.

At the beginning of the Afghan campaign he was appointed commander of the Kuram field force, and subsequently he had the chief command of the army in Afghanistan, where he achieved most brilliant triumphs. After the massacre of the British embassy Sir Frederick Roberts reoccupied Kabul at the close of 1879. Towards the end of July, 1880, a terrible defeat was inflicted by the troops of Ayoob Khan, at Maiwand, on General Burrows, the remnant of whose force, with difficulty joined General Primrose's garrison at Kandahar. An attack on that city seemed imminent, but Ayoob Khan hesitated and lost his opportunity. Meanwhile a bold resolution was taken at Kabul. Sir Frederick Roberts, gathering together a force of over 9,000 picked men, marched to the relief of Kandahar, allowing Abdurrahman Khan to occupy Kabul, and leaving to General Stewart the duty of leading back the rest of the troops by the Khyber Pass to the Punjaub. Sir Frederick Roberts, cut off from direct communication with his countrymen, disappeared, as it were, from human ken for three weeks during which time the national anxiety was extreme. At last he emerged victorious from the

Would He Do It Now?

In the course of one of his customary diatribes against the Canadian militia, F. B. Carvell, the Liberal member for Carleton, N. B., made the following attack upon General Sir John French, who today is the hero of the British army in France, and whose name is destined to go down in the annals of British history as one of the greatest soldiers the Empire has ever known. On June 1st of this year, in the house of commons. Mr. Carvell referred as follows to General French:—

"The principal cause of the trouble with the minister (Col, Hughes) and his top heavy militia is a report of a General by the name of French, who came to this country some years ago, and, in my judgment, his visit was one of the greatest misfortunes that has befallen Canada, I told the Minister of Militia publicly and privately that in adopting the ridiculous and unreasonable report made by this gentleman (General French) he had committed a great mistake. His (General French's) ideas are rid. iculous."

What does Carvell think of this today? What do the Canadian people think of it?

The Saturday night dances, which were such a success last winter, will be recommenced early in the new year.

CHURCH CONCERT VERY SUCCESSFUL

The houseful who were entertained on Monday evening in the City Hall with a program under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of Grace Methodist Church, had a good time. Besides the music there were a recitation, a dialogue and several tableaux. Mr. Taylor with his Boy Scouts added much to the interest of the entertainment. Others taking part were Mr. Wm. Hicks, of Victoria; Misses M. McKenzie. L. Saville, Ruth and Mary Ellen Haywood, Edith Bickle, A. Wilcocks, Agnes Frame, and Mary Elliott; Mrs. Brown and Messrs, Pearson, Kirkham, Banks and Gallagher. Several recalls were given and were gracefully responded to.

The Pastor, as chairman, welcomed the audience, particularly those not affiliated with the Methodist Church, and expressed for himself and the Ladies Aid much gratification at the excellent attendance.

Before closing with the National Anthem the committee and all those who took part so very acceptably were given a hearty expression of appreciation.

Italy Calls Up Last Reserves

Lima, Peru, Nov. 20.—The German steamer Luxor with three thousand tons of coal suddenly left Coronel without having clearance papers. The Chilean authorities have ordered the capture of the Luxor.

London, Nov. 21—Two big battles, either or both of which may have decisive results ore being fought in Poland, and a third of almost equal importance is progressing in East Prussia. Of the the three battles one is at its height between the Vistula and Warthe rivers, and in which Russia claims partial success, is exciting the greatest interest. The Germans have brought up at least half a million men in an effort to break the Russian line at this point. Weather conditions, the frozen ground and the situation of the battlefield, favor a battle decisive to a degree not equalled on any other field in the present war. The other battle in Poland is taking place north of Cracow, and both Russia and Germany claims it is proceeding satisfactorily.

London, Nov. 21.—Italy has called her last reserves to the colors and her full fighting strength will be under arms before the end of the year.

London, Nov. 21.—The British admiralty has laid down further mines and given instructions that pilots must be taken on in order for any ship to traverse the eastern shores of Great Britain.

London, Nov. 21.—A despatch from Petrograd says: It is announced that the siege of Przemysl is rapidly approaching its end. The trenches surrounding the fortifications are in the hands of the Russians. Many of the trenches are filled with lime, confirming statements of prisoners that cholera is raging in the garrison of Przemysl.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION—NIGHT SCHOOLS.

"No wind serves him who addresses his voyage to no certain port."

For many years past School Trustees all over the world have been realizing that the education of the boy and girl ought not to stop when they leave the day school, but should be continued beyond the years of adolescence even to seventeen and eighteen years of age. After this fact was fully recognized classes were formed in order to give the young people a chance to voluntarily attend night schools and continue their education, which already many thousands have done greatly to their credit and profit.

Progressive countries, however, have long since gone beyond the stage of voluntary attendance and now make such continuation classes compulsory, also providing means whereby such study is carried on before the hour of seven o'clock in the evening. This system is considerably beyond our present stage, but the School Trustees of Cumberland, supported by the Education Department, propose to give the people of this city and environs an opportunity to proceed with their studies and fit themselves more completely for their daily employment. As the ability of a nation to hold its own against other nations depends upon the skilled activity of its units, so it is to the benefit of all that the workers make themselves efficient, reliable, trustworthy artizans and tradesmen.

It is for this purpose that classes are about to be formed in Cumberland and for the benefit of those interested we may state that all the work will be built upon the needs of the district; hence the curriculum will be based on mining.

It is quite possible to use the mines as a great technical school. Theory and practice would be able to walk hand in hand, as they always ought to do. The grimy work of the mine will be brightened by intelligence and understanding, and the technical work will be found to provide a broad basis for general intelligence and will require but the co-operation of the people with the instructors to make the school a success.

The parents of those boys and girls who left school last term should take particular notice of this work and induce their children to continue the studies begun in the day school. They should endeavor to have their children catch the "night school habit. The neglect of the years between fourteen and eighteen in a boy's or girl's life has often a deplorable effect in counteracting any habits of concentration and study which have been developed at school. If these years are wasted the youth are undoubtedly handicapped for further effort. The necessity for mental alertness to grasp opportunities and to improve existing conditions is felt more now than at any previous time. According to the amount of well-directed energy, industry and thought that we throw into our work so shall we succeed.

There will be no age limit for those who want to join the classes and all the work will lead up to what is necessary to pass the examinations for fireboss, overman or manager.

It is intended to make the preparatory course free, and a grounding in arithmetic and business English will be given. Following on this class will be more advanced work, at which popular talks on such subjects as Gases, Ventilation, Lighting and Mechanics will be regularly delivered.

To realize the possibilities of this scheme in any full measure transcends the power of the school trustees and the Education Department. These bodies can supply the necessary funds and exercise the necessary regulating functions, but it is for the workmen, both employers and employees, to turn out and make these classes a success.

GRATEFUL FOR CANADA'S AID.

Through the prompt action of the Borden Government Canada enjoyed the distinction of being the first of the overseas Dominions to come forward with food supplies for the Motherland. That action is being appreciated in Great Britain, as it has been appreciated and endorsed by the Canadian people. The London "Morning Post," one of the most influential papers in the United Kingdom, says:—

"The patriotism of the Dominions in placing their food supplies at our disposal at a time of crisis suggests a policy of mutual trade benefit in the future. Australia, which in common with the other Dominions, has long given the United Kingdom a trade preference. is now considering how to ensure, by force, if necessary, that its supplies of food are placed at the disposal of the Mother Country before all competitors. In the same way Canada and New Zealand have displayed a most filial desire to secure for this country a constant and abundant supply of food. Friends in need are friends indeed. When peace once more dawns in the world these gracious and kindly acts are not likely to be forgotten by the British people."

The "Manchester Guardian," dealing with Canada's aid, says: "The cry against emigration in this country must be forever silenced, now that we have seen our own emigrants stand by the Old Country when their help is needed."

Hon. Wm. Templeman Passes Away Suddenly

After less than two days' serious illness Hon. Wm. Templeman, one of the most respected and prominent of Victoria's citizens, passed away at his residence in Victoria on Sunday, November 15th. On the Friday preceding he had visited his office, chatted cheerfully with friends, and, though complaining of a slight indisposition, expected that a little rest would remedy it. Saturday morning, however, found him worse, and later he became delirious. On Sunday he lapsed into unconsciousness, and at 3.20 p.m. succumbed.

Having been closely identified with the municipal and political activities of the community for thirty years, during which period he directed the policy of the Victoria Times, of which journal he was the proprietor, he had a wide circle of acquaintances. To his friends, and, in fact, to all among whom his name was recognized as a virile force in the affairs of Western Canada, the news of his death will come as a distinct shock. While he appeared to bear up under the blow sustained only four months ago by the demise of Mrs, Templeman with fortitude, those among whom he moved daily realized that his strength had been seriously shaken. His constitution was tried further only a short time ago by an operation, but his demeanor and cheerfulness on Friday led to the belief that complete recovery might be confidently expected.

Hon. Mr. Templeman was seventy years of age, having been born at Pakenham, Lanark County, Ontario, on September 28, 1844. He was the son of William and Helen (Taylor) Templeman, natives of Scotland. His early education was received in the schools of that district, and, when seventeen years old, he determined to obtain a knowledge of the printing business. The Herald, Carleton Place, was the first newspaper to which he was attached. There he served a four years' apprenticeship, and, having been admitted to the craft, he proceeded to see something of the world and to obtain a fuller grasp of his business. Two years were spent in this way, and returning to his native place, he established the Almonte Gazette. It supported the policies of the Liberal party, and now, as it approaches the fiftieth anniversary of its inception, is considered one of the leading papers of that part of Canada.

Mr. Templeman's connection with Victoria began in 1884. The Times had been founded just six months prior to his coming, viz., June 9, 1884, and Mr. J. C. McLagan, who later established the Vancouver World, was its proprietor, and when Mr. McLagan went to the Terminal City it was quite natural that Mr. Templeman should find himself in the commanding place with respect to the newspaper of which he soon acquired full control. From that date until the present the Times, under Mr. Templeman's direction, has unswervingly upheld the policies of the Liberal party.

British Empire Mourns Loss.

trackless region between Kabul and Kandahar. Immediately he grappled with Ayoob Khan, inflicting on that pretender a crushing defeat. On the return of General Roberts to England he was loaded with honors; he was presented with the freedom of the city of London, received the thanks of parliament and was created a baronet.

After the defeat of General Buller at Colenso on December 15, 1899, Lord Roberts was appointed commander-in-chief in South Africa, with Lord Kitchener as his chief of staff.

Lord Roberts returned to England in 1901, leaving the task of finally subduing the Boers in the hands of Lord Kitchener. He was appointed commander-in-chief of the British army in succession to Lord Wolseley, was created Earl Roberts of Kandahar, Pretoria and Waterford.

London, Nov. 17.—Lord Kitchener, Lord Curzon and the Earl of Crewe, in the house of lords today paid tributes to Lord Roberts. "His accomplishments as a soldier and his character as a man," said Lord Kitchener, "will be an abiding memory, not only in parliament, but in the whole nation. His fame will be forever associated with the memorable march to Kandahar."

Premier Asquith, in moving a resolution in the house of commons today regarding a monument for Lord Roberts, said the field marshal's death had robbed England of its eldest and most illustrious soldier, a man who had fought his way upward step by step, unaided by any influence except his own skill.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition in the house, seconded the resolution for the erection of the monument and the measure passed unanimously.

The official press bureau gives a touching account of the funeral services for Lord Roberts at the headquarters of the British army in France.

"The route of the cortege from the house where he died to the Mairie where the funeral service was held was lined by British and French troops. The coffin was borne on a gun carriage. It was an impressive ceremony. The guard of honour were Indian and British troops. General officers acted as pall-bearers. Those following the casket, including representatives of the family of Lord Roberts, and of King Albert and of President Poincare, the Prince of Wales, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and Gen. French.

"The simple funeral service was conducted by Chaplain Anderson, of the British forces. At the close of the service the British bugles rang out with "The Last Post.' As the coffin was removed to a motor ambulance for conveyance to Boulogne, French trumpeters across the square blew a fanfare and the guns of Lord Roberts' old regiment roared out a last farewell. A double rainbow gleamed on a mass of dark clouds and an aeroplane circling above, one of the aerial guards watching and protecting the procession, dipped in salute."
