LIBERALS NOMINATE MR. DUNCAN ROSS

At the Liberal Convention for Comox-Atlin District held in the I. O. O. F. Hall at Nanaimo on the 19th inst., at which were present about one hundred prominent Liberal delegates from different parts of the constituency. Duncan Ross ex-M. P. was nominated to carry the Liberal banner to victory.

Cumberland was represented by our local solicitor Mr. P. P. Harrison and Messrs John Bruce, James Reid, Thomas Carey, P. Dunne and James Stewart.

Comox by Alex. Urquhart, W. R. Robb, Joseph McPhee, William Grieve and J. Halliday.

Alberni and all other places were fully represented.

The party could not have been more fortunate in their selection, for outside the redoubtable William Sloan and "Billy" McInnes, it would be very difficult to find a person possessing the undoubted ability, reputation and strength of personality, as Mr. Duncan Ross.

The Liberals are very enthusiastic and feel convinced that their choice will sweep the field.

Mr. Ross will be in Cumberland at the latter part of this week, when the public will have an opportunity of hearing "Reciprocity" and other matters of interest, dealt with by him, in a manner which will leave no doubt as to his ability and fitness to represent this large constituency.

The close season for salmon has been suspended on the Fraser River for this year.

COAL OUTPUT TO BE INCREASED

Mr. W. L. Coulson, general manager of the Canadian Collieries, Ltd., who was a visitor to Victoria last Friday, said his company would start work on a new mine in 60 days. The mine which will prove an important addition to the well known collieries, is southeast of the present workings near tidewater. The company will probably have to sink its shaft between 700 and 1000 feet for the proposed workings, which are expected to employ a large number of men While they are sinking the shaft for the coal, Mr Coulson said, the company will go steady, remembering that great coal pits grow from small beginnings. Some idea of the magnitude of the poesent workings may be gathered from the fact that, in the past twelve months, Mr. Coulson estimated the output as considerably over 900,000 tons. This year he has no doubt but that they will easily exceed a million tons output:

H. C. Clements the Conservative candidate for this constituency, will deliver a public address at Courtenay on Saturday evening. If it can be arranged, Duncan Ross the Liberal candidate will also be present and address the meeting.

Mr. Ralph Simpson of England, and Miss Agnes Struthers, daughter of Mr. John Struthers, of this place, were united in marriage on Tuesday evening in Holy Trinity church. Rev. Johnson, of Vancouver officiated.

"Whether the election in Comox-Atlin is deferred or not, I shall fight it out to a finish," said Mr. H. S. Clements, Conservative candidate for Comox-Atlin, before leaving the city this morning to fire the first gun in his campaign at Wellington, over the gulf, tonight.—Province of the 19th.

Florence had grown up as a settlement about a spring of water some time before the advent of the railroad Builders of the line got into trouble with the inhabitants and in revenge located the station half a mile away from the spring, thinking new settlers would come to them. In this they were disappointed. The point was an isolated one and the station a deserted spot between trains.

Eastward and westward the single track of railroad drifted to shimmering points on the horizon. To the south dreary wastes of sand glistening white under the burnished sun and crowned with clumps of grayish green sagebrush stretched to an encircling rim of hills. Cacti and yucca palms broke the monotony of the roll of the plains to the uplands.

Sahuaros towered over the low station, which was built in the style of the old Spanish missions. Its red roof flared above the purple shadows cast by its walls. In the fathomless blue above a buzzard sailed majestically down an air current and hovered motionless over the lonely outpost of civilization.

Within the station a telegraph sounder chattered and chirruped. "Ole Man" Terrill was at the instrument. His duties were over for the forenoon, the eastbound express, which, with the westbound, composed the only trains that traversed that section of the road each day, having arrived and departed a half hour before, and he had cut in on the line to regale himself with the news of the world. But there was a dearth of thrilling events such as his rude soul delighted in. The Apache uprising that was feared had not taken place. Colonel Hardie of Fort Grant had the situation well in hand. The nihilists were giving their latest czar a breathing spell. No new prizefighter had arisen to wrest the championship of the world from John L. Sullivan, who had put all his old rivals "to sleep." "Ole Man" Terrill proceeded to follow their example. He had been up late the night before at a poker game. His head fell forward with a jerk. Aroused by the shock, he glanced drowsily about him. Heat waves danced before the open window. Deep silence hung over his little world. Again his eyelids closed, his head dropped, and slowly he slipped into sleep.

Tragedy was approaching him now, but not along the wire. Down an arroyo, or "draw" (the dry bed of a water course), that wound in a detour around the town of Florence and debouched into the open plain near the station, crept two men in single file, each leading a horse. They were Buck McKee and Bud Lane, who had ridden north from the town that morning with the declared purpose of going to Buck's old ranch, the Lazy K. They had circled about the town, timing their arrival at the station a little after the departure of the train which was expected to bring Dick Lane's money.

McKee emerged first from the mouth of the draw. He wore a coarse flannel shirt, loosened at the throat. About his neck was a handkerchief. His riding overalls were tucked into high boots with Spanish heels and long spurs. A Mexican hat with a band topped a head covered with coarse black hair, which he inherited from his Cherokee mother.

Save for the vulture floating high in air not a living thing was in sight. With the caution of a coyote McKee crept to the station door and peered blinkingly through the open door into the room. The change from the dazzling light without to the shaded interior blinded him for a moment. He heard the heavy breathing of the sleeper before he saw him.

Returning to the mouth of the arroyo, McKee motioned to his companion to bring out the horses. When this was done the two men cinched the saddles and made every preparation for sudden flight. Lane and the horses remained outside the station behind a freight car on a siding, while McKee stole softly through the open door to "Ole Man" Terrill's side.

Now, the agent used as a safe deposit vault his inside waistcoat pocket, the lock upon which was a huge safety pin. For further defense he carried a revolver, loosely hung at his hip and easily reached. His quickness on the draw in the hour of need and his accuracy of aim made him a formidable antagonist.

Some men are born into the world to become its watchdogs, others to become its wolves. The presence of a human wolf is, as it were, scented by the human watchdog even when the dog is asleep. McKee was known instinctively as a man-wolf to the born guardians of society. Slim Hoover, himself a high type of the man mastiff, used to say of the half breed: "I can smell that b'ar grease he slicks his hair with agin the wind. He may be out o' sight an' out o' mind, when somethin' tells me 'McKee's around.' Then I smell b'ar grease, an' the next thing Rucky shows up with his ingratiatin' grin. It's allus 'grease before meet,' as the sky pilot would say."

"Ole Man" Terrill was of the watchdog breed. Whether warned by the instinct of his kind or wakened by the scent of McKee's bear grease, he suddenly opened his eyes. Like all men accustomed to emergencies, he was instantly in full possession of his wits, yet he pretended to be slightly confused in order to get a grasp upon the situation before greeting his visitor.

"Howdy, Buck?" he said, adjusting his revolver as he swung half round in his chair that he might reach his weapon more readily in an emergency. "Bustin' or busted?"

"Well, I'm about even with the game," replied McKee, pulling from his pocket a bag of tobacco and papers and deftly rolling a butterfly cigarette. "Goin' to shake it before I lose my pile. It's me fer the Lazy K. Dropped in to say goodby."

Terrill, who had recently had an expensive seance with McKee at poker, remonstrated.

"You ought to give me another chance at you, Buck. Yer goin' away with too much o' my money."

"Well, ole man, I'm likely to rob you uv a lot more ef you hain't keerful," answered McKee.

"You can't jest yit awhile," said Terrill. "Dead broke."

"Aw, come off! Everybody knows yer a walkin' bank. Bet you got three thousan' in that inside pocket uv yourn this minute."

Terrill started at McKee's naming the exact amount he was carrying. He forgot his customary caution in his surprise. "Well, you did jes' hit it, shore enough. I believe yer half gypsy instid o' half Injun. Jes' like yer knowin' I stood pat on four o' a kind when you had aces full an' throwin' down yer cyards 'fore I c'u'd git even with you. How do you do it, Buck?"

McKee gave a smile of cunning, inscrutable superiority. "Oh, it's jes' a power I have. 'Keen sabby,' as the greasers say—I'm keen on the know how. Why, I kin tell you more about the money. It's fer Jack Payson"—

"Now, there's whar yer way off as a cleervoyant, Buck," said Terrill triumphantly. "You guessed onceť too often. The three thousan' is county money, consigned to Sheriff Hoover. Jack Payson has jes' lef' with a package from K. C., but it wasn't money. It was a purty gilt chair—a weddin' present fer the gal he's goin' to marry."

At that moment the sounder of the telegraph began clicking the call of the station. Terrill whirled about in his swivel chair and faced the table.

McKee stood close behind him. His lips twitched nervously. His eyes narrowed as he watched every movement of the agent's big shoulders as he operated the key. At the same time the half breed drew his revolver and covered the back of Terrill's head.

The agent completed his message and turned to continue his interrupted conversation. He found himself gazing into the muzzle of a 44—big, it seemed, as a thirteen inch gun. "Why—what?" he stammered.

"I'm actin' jes' now as Slim's deputy," said McKee. "Unbutton an' han' that money over."

Once having his victim in his power, all the innate cruelty of the Indian blood of his maternal ancestors flashed to the surface. Terrill was at his mercy. For one desperate moment he would play with him, even torture him as his forefathers had once made miserable the last moments of a captive. He knew that unless he silenced Terrill his life must pay the forfeit. Death was the penalty of detection. The arm of the express company was long. Ultimate capture was certain.

Gazing into the muzzle of a 44.

Pursued out of Arizona by the sheriff, he would be trailed through every camp and town in the far west.

With an oath, Terrill tried to rise and face his antagonist, reaching for his revolver as he did so. The butt of his weapon had caught in the arm of his chair, hampering his movements.

McKee threw him roughly back into the chair.

"Throw up yer hands!" he cried. "Don't try that!"

Up went Terrill's hands high over his head. He faced the open window. Not a sign of help was in sight.

Quickly the agent turned over in his mind various schemes to foil McKee, who now stood behind him with the muzzle of his revolver pressing into the middle of his back. Each was rejected before half conceived.

McKee laughed sneeringly, saying, "You oughtn't to be so keerless to show whar you cache yer roll."

Terrill made no reply. His hope of escape was slowly fading.

McKee had reached his left hand over his prisoner's shoulder to disarm Terrill, who moved slightly away from him, drawing in his feet as he did so.

One chance had come to him. He knew that if he failed death was certain, yet he determined to take the risk in order to retrieve the slip he had made in admitting that he had money in his possession to a gambling crony, and so to keep clean his record for trustiness, of which he was so proud. This last desperate resource was an old wrestler's trick—one with which he had conquered others in the rough games of the corral.

Again Terrill moved to the right and farther under McKee, who had to extend his arm and body far beyond an upright position. Holding his revolver against Terrill handicapped the half breed in his movements.

With a quick turn Terrill grasped McKee's left arm, jerking it down sharply on his shoulder. With his right hand he grasped the back of his antagonist's neck, pulling his head downward and inward. Using his shoulder for a fulcrum, with a mighty heave of his legs and back he sought to toss McKee over his head.

So surprised for an instant was the cowboy by the suddenness of the attack that he made no effort to escape the clutches of the desperate express agent.

There was a muffled report.

The two men fell in a heap on the floor, McKee on top. Dazed and shaken, McKee scrambled to his feet. The air was pungent with odor of powder smoke. Terrill rolled over on his side, trembled convulsively and died. He had paid the penalty for a moment's indiscretion with his life.

McKee quickly unfastened the pin and seized the roll of bills. Skimming through the package, he smiled with satisfaction to see that the most of it was in small bills and none of them stained.

Carefully avoiding the fast forming pool of blood which was oozing from the hole in the dead man's head, he hurried to the door.

A glance showed him the coast was clear. Running across the tracks, he joined Lane, who was waiting for him behind the freight car with impatience.

There was a muffled report.

In silence they mounted their horses. For a short distance McKee led the way upon the railroad track in order to leave no hoofprints and then struck across the desert toward the hills in the south.

"Why did you shoot?" gasped Lane.

"He drew on me," snarled McKee. "It wasn't Dick's money, but you'll get half. Shut up."

The burning sun rose higher and higher. The buzzard dropped lower in the sky. The silence of death brooded over the lonely station.

Like Father Like Son.

There is a probability that Mr. Raymond Asquith, the British Prime Minister's son, will before long embark upon a political career. Recently he was invited by the Liberals in a London constituency, which has been represented by a Unionist since January of last year, to become their prospective candidate, but he replied to the effect that he considered it more appropriate for a young man to make his debut as an applicant for Parliamentary honors in a country division.

Wrote Six Novels In One Year.

Rev. J. Jessop Teague, who has been elected by popular vote to a London living worth $4,000 a year, is better known to the patrons of circulating libraries under his own nom de guerre of Morice Gerard. He has been described as possibly the most prolific writer of fiction of the day. In 1906 he published no fewer than six novels in the space of twelve months, and his output has been well maintained since.

One-Fifth Save.

Something like one in every five of Great Britain's population is a depositor in the postoffice savings bank, the average deposit being about $75.

A HUNGRY PYTHON.

The First Course of His Meal Got Him Into Serious Trouble.

In my travels I visited the jail at Thayet-Myo, in Burma. On the morning of my visit there had undoubtedly been an unusual occurrence. A python twenty-two feet long and twenty-eight inches in girth had entered the vegetable garden and crossed it to the fowl pen. Besides the fowls, there were some five ducks in the pen. Now, the front of the pen was fenced with diamond mesh galvanized wire netting of a strong type.

The snake could not resist a fat duck, so, putting its head and neck through the stout diamond frame, it seized and swallowed one. I have no doubt whatever that it would have "mopped up the bunch" inside the house, but that in adjusting No. 1 to make room for No. 2 it became aware of an uneasy feeling owing to the wire around its waist. Neither have I any doubt that in addition to becoming uneasy it became seriously alarmed.

Being now unable either to disgorge or to get away, it tore off the whole section of netting, 6 feet by 8, and returned with the necklace or waistband through the cabbages. Not unnaturally, I think, the sentry, seeing a 6 by 8 foot wire section of fencing marching through the cabbage patch without any visible means of support, gave the alarm and then opened fire.

The prison guard rushed out and also opened fire, and very shortly our hero lay dead in his frame. He was skinned and his skin cured and dressed in the jail, where they are noted for this kind of work.—Forest and Stream.

A COMPETENT WITNESS.

The Mule's Testimony Was Taken and Accepted by the Judge.

The originator of a widely known probation system, Judge William J. Pollard of a St. Louis police court, is the subject of a Boston Herald story which illustrates his unique way of dealing out justice to minor offenders. A driver had been brought before Judge Pollard, charged with cruelty to animals. He had been driving a galled mule, but he had an expert witness in a veterinarian who testified that the sore on the mule's back did not pain the animal in the least.

The judge listened attentively to the long technical opinions and then demanded to know the mule's whereabouts. He was informed that it was harnessed to a wagon which stood on the street in front of the courthouse. The judge then ordered that court to be adjourned for five minutes.

He took his cane and proceeded to the street, went up to the mule and with the end of his cane gently touched the sore spot on the animal's back. The mule promptly tried to kick the dashboard off the wagon. Once again the judge touched the sore spot with his cane, and the mule responded as before.

Judge Pollard returned to the bench. The prisoner was called before him.

"With all due respect to the expert testimony you have had introduced in your behalf to show that the mule's back does not pain him, I will fine you $50," announced the judge. "I asked the mule if the sore hurt him, and he said it did."

Punctuality In London.

There is plenty of rush and hurry in business London, just as in America, but the English ways seem to be much more systematic and dignified. The man of business is always attired with care—pink necktie, chamois gloves, frock coat, spats—for business procedure in England must be met with due compliance to English ideas of propriety.

Appointments must be made by written notes—not typewritten, mind—and when the appointment is made it is to be kept to the dot. I kept nine appointments in one day and found every man ready and waiting. When you think that old London is slow just wake up. They don't make much fuss about things, but they just plan and do what they set out to do.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

The Egg and the Shell.

Eggshells are made chiefly of carbonate of lime, and the yolk is half water, half oil and albumen, while the white of an egg, as it is called, consists of water chiefly with albumen and a little phosphorus and sulphur. The yolk always floats at the top of the white, so to be as near as possible to the hen when she sits upon it to hatch it, while two cords attached to the yolk, one at each end, prevent it from actually touching the shell.

Ignorance.

A Scottish minister was asked to pray for rain. He did so, and the rain came down in floods and destroyed the crops. Irritated at the result, one disgusted elder confided to another that "this comes o' intristin' sic a request to a meenister wha isna acquent wi' agriculture."

Why They Are Cleaner.

"They ought to be," replied her husband. "They change them so much oftener."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Cost of Warship.

The cost of the chief parts of a modern British battleship are as follows: The two 12-inch turret guns, with their mountings and protection, cost $500,000, and $650 is the price of firing each shell. The torpedo tubes cost $15,000 each, and the weapons themselves $3,000 each. The armor—about 4,900 tons—costs something like $600 a ton. Lastly, it costs about $70 an hour for fuel.

NOW OR NEVER IS THEIR SLOGAN

American Speakers and writers Say We Must Get Reciprocity Now or Give it up Forever

"Now or never" is the slogan of the Reciprocity protagonist in the United States. President Taft expressed this belief in his famous speech to the New York newspapermen when he said: "The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it up now, or give it up forever."

Since President Taft has spoken many others have reiterated his words. The Boston Commercial Bulletin declares:—

"As Canada is undoubtedly destined to make as big industrial strides in the future as in the past decade, it is evident that with the lapse of time she will become less and less desirious of renewing negotiations with the United States. The time, therefore, has come for us to strike. Shall we let the opportunity pass?"

Commenting on this utterance The American Economist observes:—

"This is another way of saying that if we are going to cheat Canada in a Free Trade reciprocity dicker we had best do it right now, because, if we wait too long, Canada will get her eyes open and refuse to be cheated. Is this fair or decent or is it merely a demonstration of Yankee smartness? The Canadians are not fools. They have developed their industries under a Protective tariff and now have an industrial future. The time for us to strike passed long ago."

Going further west we find The Minneapolis Journal echoing Mr. Taft's New York speech in this fashion:—

"The Taft policy spells not only North American commercial union, but also the doom of the British imperialistic unity. Too late, provided Congress acts, the British are awakening to the value of the prize they so fatuously rejected. Too late, if Congress rises to a level of this, perhaps the greatest piece of statesmanship effected by an American President since Thomas Jefferson annexed the West. Today England is our best customer, and Canada our third best. But our foreign trade wanes, and that of Canada grows. If we push Canada into England's arms, the trade arrangements between the two will tend more and more to shut us out."

The smitten man (fervently)—"Love you darling? Why, before I met you, I thought only of having a good time in life."—Puck.

The microscope in the hands of experts employed by the United States Government has revealed the fact that a house fly sometimes carries thousands of disease germs attached to its hairy body. The continuous use of Wilson's Fly Pads will prevent all danger of infection from that source by killing both the germs and the flies.

WEAK STOMACHS MADE STRONG

THROUGH TONIC TREATMENT WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

After all has been said about indigestion and stomach trouble, there is only one way to get a real cure. The stomach must be made strong enough to do its own work. Indigestion disappears when the stomach has been made strong enough to digest ordinary plain food. This strength can only be given the stomach through the tonic treatment supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, strengthens the nerves and thus enables the stomach to perform the duties which nature intended it should. In every neighborhood you can find people who have been cured of indigestion or other stomach troubles after a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the best proof that they are the one remedy to successfully do this. Mr. D. B. McLean, Sterling, N.S., says:—"For a couple of years I suffered very much from indigestion with most of the accompanying painful symptoms. As a result I became very much run down, and as the medicines I tried did not give me any relief I grew melancholy and unhappy, and felt as though my constitution was breaking down. Quite accidently my attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them, and I am happy to say that they effected a complete cure, and made my stomach as strong as ever it had been. I am glad to say a few words in praise of the medicine that cured me, and I hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

Enrich the blood and you banish most of the every day ailments of humanity, and you can enrich it quickest and best by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

With and Without Geography

A little girl was well up in most of her studies except geography. The other day her teacher sent to her mother to see that the girl studied her lesson. The next few days showed no improvement, and the teacher asked whether she had delivered the note.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"What did your mother say?"

"She said that she didn't know geography an' she got married, an' my aunt didn't know geography and she got married, an' you know geography and you haven't got married."

CURED IN ONE MONTH

If every woman who has Kidney or Bladder trouble, could go to Davisville, Ont., and talk to Mrs A. Simpson, they would do just as she did—take GIN PILLS and cure themselves. "For 14 or 15 years I had Kidney or Bladder trouble, suffering at times intense pain. I doctored continually but nothing gave me permanent relief until I was persuaded to try Gin Pills. Within a couple of days I received great relief, and after taking one box was completely cured."

RAPID GROWTH

The Following Figures Show the Marvellous Development of Canada

Twenty-five years ago today the first transcontinental train of the Canadian Pacific Railway pulled out from Montreal for the Pacific Coast. It was a memorable occasion, marking the consummation of the greatest work that Canada had ever undertaken.

For a country with less than four millions of people to build a railway across the North American Continent—the first, and still the only actual transcontinental line connecting the two great oceans—was a remarkable achievement whose importance was accentuated by the fact that for many hundreds of miles its lines traversed regions altogether unknown—where men did not live—around the rock-bound northern shores of Lake Superior, across the far western plains then in utter solitude, and over Nature's majestic sky-scrapers in the Canadian Rockies.

No less wonderful has been the growth and expansion of Canada's great national highway during the intervening quarter of a century. The company did not merely remain a common carrier—it become more—a developer and Empire builder—and so potent a factor in filling the wants of others as well as the vast army of travellers that both on land and sea the C.P.R. today is a name to conjure with. From comparatively small beginnings, as seen by twentieth century eyes, it has developed into a world encircling institution with magnificent fleets on ocean and inland waters—an immigration agency that has peopled half a continent, even to furnishing ready-made homes to the home seekers—a forceful factor in the development of mines and mining—an inaugurator of huge irrigation works where thousands are employed in building its rolling stock, has its own telegraph and express services that reach everywhere, and a chain of palatial hotels to comfortably house those who travel, and it even employs Swiss guides to pilot daring mountaineers to dizzy heights and runs sanitariums and summer resorts where the pleasure seeker may holiday and the health of the invalid be restored. Its record fully justifies the name happily bestowed upon it by an eminent European — "Providence Incorporated."

The total earnings in 1886 were a little over $10,000,000, and the net earnings less than $4,000,000, the surplus after deducting fixed charges being $653,444. This year's gross earnings will probably be over $104,000,000 and the net earnings about $37,000,000. The mileage then was 4,651 miles; today it is, including controlled lines, about 15,500 miles. The number of passengers then carried was 1,899,319 and the tons of freight aggregated 2,046,195. The approximate figures for the past twelve months are over 12,000,000 passengers, and 21,350,000 tons of freight. A comparison of the figures shows that a considerable reduction in the rates has taken place. In 1886 the average earnings per passenger per mile was 2.10 cents and freight averaged 1.10 cents per ton per mile. Today the figures are for passengers 1.93 cents per mile and for freight 0.800 cents per ton per mile. A comparison of the equipment then and today shows how the company has kept pace with the requirements of the traffic:—

First and second class passenger cars and colonist and baggage cars	304	1,757
First-class sleeping and dining cars	47	311
Parlor, official and paymaster cars	27	63
Freight and cattle cars	3,523	50,863
Conductors vans	178	880
Boarding, tool and auxiliary cars	71	3,684

Still more marked is the increase in the marine department. In 1886 the CP.R. fleet consisted of two steamers on the Great Lakes. Today, it has flags on many waters. Its red and white checkered house flag floats over sixteen Atlantic liners, four Pacific liners, twenty-two steamers on the Pacific Coast service, five on the Great Lakes service, twenty-two on the inland waters of British Columbia, and two in the ferry service on the Detroit river—a total of 71 vessels—and this number will be increased by the building of several new steamships for the ocean service and by the acquisition of the Dominion Atlantic railway and its steamships.

There seems to be no finality to the company's work. In addition to the large original cost of the railway and equipment hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended on improvements such as double tracking, reduction of grades, curves eliminated, replacing wooden bridges with steel structures, erecting new stations and enlarging old ones, etc., and the policy of extending branch lines wherever needed is still being vigorously pursued.

In one way only has the C.P.R. remained "as it was," and that is in the retention of the services of officials and employees. It is practically manned today as it was a quarter of a century ago, with, of course, the addition of many thousands required by the expansion of the road. The total number employed now reaches 80,000 and these are stationed in almost every civilized country on the face of the earth. There was no pension fund in 1886, for none was needed. Today there are over 500 of the old faithful workers on the pension roll, none of whom receive less than $20 a month—a positive contradiction of the proverbial saying that corporations have no souls.

All this show that the Canadian Pacific is, as stated, more than a transportation company in the generally accepted sense of the term. It is an Empire builder and its name will ever be remembered as the creator of Western Canada and a great developing factor wherever its lines penetrate.

Taft's Tight Trousers

When President Taft was seven years old his mother bought him a pair of short duck trousers. The first time they were washed they shrank badly. The boy was fat, but his mother wedged him into the trousers against his protests. He went out to play, but in a few minutes returned.

"Mamma," he said, "I can't wear these pants. They are too tight. Why, mamma, they are tighter than my skin."

"Oh, no they are not, Billy," returned his mother. "Nothing could be tighter than your skin."

"Well, all the same, these pants are, I can sit down in my skin, but I can't in these pants."—Knoxville Sentinel.

"Why, your doll can talk!"

The equally astonished reply of the inventor's child was: "Why, don't all dolls talk?"—Clark's Book Herald.

Nothing or Nobody

"You don't get along very well with your mother-in-law, I hear," said a friend to a young husband.

"No, I don't," answered the bridegroom. "Nobody can. Even the food she eats doesn't agree with her. When she comes into the room everybody shuts up. The other day she got into a folding bed and the bed shut up."

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach and the best preparation for that purpose is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. General use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

"Johnny," said his teacher, "if coal is selling at $6 a ton and you pay your dealer $24 how many tons will he bring you?"

"A little over three tons, ma'am," said Johnny promptly.

"Why, Johnny, that isn't right," said the teacher.

"No, ma'am, I know it ain't," said Johnny, "but they all do it."

If George Ade is out of a job the next year or so, he may easily acquire a position in the "Cabinet" of Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey. Mr. Ade looks so much like Mr. Wilson that when holiday visitors, political dubs, and jobless constituents come around to shake the hand of the Governor, he could "let George do it," and no one would know him from the real goods.—Chicago Tribune.

The Trouble With Him

Simpson was one day arrested and brought into the police court.

Said the justice: "What is your name?"

"S-s-s-s——"

"What is your name?" demanded the justice.

"Why S-s-s-s-s-s——"

"I don't understand. What did you say your name is?"

"Why, my n-name is S-s-s-s-s——"

Turning to the policeman the justice said: "Here, officer, what is this man charged with?"

"Faith, your honor, and I think it's sodywather."

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Spring Finds the Human System

Loaded With Impurities, Which Cause Pains, Aches and Feelings of Fatigue

When the Liver and Kidneys Are Overworked and Break Down Get them Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S

KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In the spring the human system is loaded with poisons which have accumulated as a result of artificial winter life. There has been too much breathing of poisoned indoor air, too little outdoor exercise, too much eating of heavy indigestible food, especially too much meat and too little fruit.

The liver and kidneys struggle to overcome this condition, but the task is too great for them and they get sluggish and torpid, fail in their work and often become diseased themselves.

They must have help such as is given them by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no great mystery of how these pills purify the blood and take away the cause of tired, spring feelings, backaches, headaches, bodily pains or derangements of the digestive system.

If the blood is to be purified the liver and kidneys must do it. And they will, if you awaken their action by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It will not take long to get these blood filters into working order if you use this treatment. A few hours will bring improvement and you will learn how to keep these organs healthy and active. One pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Daughters of Mrs. Emmott

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the —— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

BLOOD CRYSTALS.

The Latest Scientific Discovery Causes a Sensation.

"Blood Crystals" are the latest scientific discovery, likely to have a distinct and important bearing in criminal trials of the future. It is now possible to state definitely, thanks to the crystallization process, to what species of living creature any specimen of blood may belong; a full account of the marvels of this discovery is contained in an article in Pearson's Magazine, from which we quote: "Probably the most epoch-making work in biology since the time of Darwin. That is how scientific men in various parts of the world regard the newest discovery in relation to blood. With as much certainty as you and I can say of a series of colors—'that is, white, black, blue, red, yellow, and green'—it is now possible to identify any number of specimens as the blood of a man, a horse, a dog, a whale, a sheep, a wolf, a fox, an orang-outang, a baboon, a seal, a sea-lion, etc., merely by considering the crystals which the coloring matter forms. More—and the fact is pregnant with meaning—it is possible to say whether the blood is of a white man or a negro.

How the discovery affects our knowledge of natural history may be told in two sentences. In the old method of classifying animals according to their tribes, the bear was always placed in the same family as the dog, the wolf, and the fox. By the new method of comparing the blood crystals of these animals it has been proved conclusively that the bear is closely related to the sea-lions and the seals, and is not related to the dog, the wolf, or the fox. I have already stated that, by reason of these crystals it is possible to distinguish the blood of a negro so clearly from that of the white man that the expert could make no mistake one from the other. The inference to be drawn from this fact—and it is one which involves no illogical optimism—is that experts will soon be able to distinguish the blood of the American from that of the Chinaman, the blood of the Italian from that of the Englishman, the blood of the German from that of the Frenchman, and so on."

Built In a Day.

What probably constitutes a record in the building of churches has recently taken place at Preston, a small town in the West of Australia. From foundation to weathercock the whole building was completed in sixteen hours.

At six o'clock on the Saturday morning all that had been done was to set in the ground the four corner blocks on which the building was to stand. By seven o'clock sixty-five carpenters were hard at work. Shortly after half-past ten the floor was laid, and the four frames of the building were being hoisted into position. Now the skeleton of the church—66 1-2 feet long and 31 feet wide—was standing on the blocks.

Meantime dozens of painters were busy, and other helpers gathered from all parts were working with might and main to complete the outside, which was done during the afternoon. All the forces were then concentrated on the inside. By ten o'clock the seats had been installed, the matting laid, the platform and vestries carpeted, the preacher's desk put in, and gas and water laid on.

Midnight on Saturday saw the church, capable of holding 300 people, fully complete, and on the following day three services were held there, at each of which the "record" church was crowded to overflowing.

Rasp Got the Pig.

Surely one of the hardest tests of a sheep dog is to be put in charge of a pig. That, according to one of the contributors to "Shepherds of Britain," is what happened to Rasp, a famous Midlothian collie. The owner found on his return home one day that the pig had escaped and sent the dog to fetch it. "So off went Rasp in quest of what proved one of the most stubborn of the members of the bucolic family she ever encountered. Having been absent about twenty-five minutes, she at last appeared with a few sheep in front of her. But in the centre of the sheep was the pig, experience having taught her that the little rebel could not be driven alone."

Genesis of Life Insurance.

Life insurance originated in 1706 in London. In that year there was formed the first life insurance company. It was called the Amicable Society For a Perpetual Assurance Office. It was a mutual benefit concern. Each member, without reference to age, paid a fixed admission fee and a fixed annual charge per share on from one to ten shares, and at the end of the year a portion of the fund accumulated was divided among the heirs of those who had died in accordance with the number of shares each dead person had held. Out of this company, with its crude and imperfect methods, life insurance as it exists to-day has grown.

Wasted Sympathy.

A kindly old lady who attended a performance at the Haymarket theatre in London was much impressed by the singing of a nightingale and a lark, which forms an interesting feature of the performance. In fact, she was so much impressed that she sent an agent of the Society For the Protection of Animals to see if the birds were properly fed and cared for. He found that both nightingale and lark were purely mechanical in appearance, only a small wooden box and key to wind the machinery.

Grand Advice.

A shoemaker came to the minister asking his advice because that sweep, his landlord, had given him notice to quit and he would have nowhere to lay his head. The minister could only advise him to lay his case before the Lord. A week later the minister returned and found the shoemaker busy and merry. "That was gran' advice ye gied me, minister," said the man. "I laid my case before the Lord, as ye tell't me, an' noo the sweep's deid."—Geikie's "Scotch Reminiscences."

The Stumper Stumped

A political speaker, while making a speech, paused in the midst of it and exclaimed: "Now, gentlemen, what do you think?"

A man rose in the assembly, and with one eye partially closed, modestly, with a strong Scotch brogue, replied: "I think, sir, I do, indeed, sir—I think if you and I were to stump the country together we would tell more lies than any other two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself during the whole time, sir!"

SAFETY FOR CHILDREN DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows, or should know, the danger her baby runs during the hot summer months. Summer complaints come quickly and develop so rapidly that often before the mother realizes her baby is ill he is beyond all help. Every mother of small children should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. A Tablet now and then will keep baby's bowels working regularly and his little stomach sweet—this is the secret of keeping baby healthy and of warding off cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and all other dreaded summer complaints. The Tablets are guaranteed free from all injurious drugs and may be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Any woman who carries a parasol smaller than the hats she wears is too much given to exaggeration.

Regarded as one of the most potent compounds ever introduced with which to combat all summer complaints and inflammation of the bowels, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial has won to itself a reputation that no other cordial for the purpose can aspire to. For young or old suffering from these complaints it is the best medicine that can be procured.

Couldn't Get In

Two Irishman who had just landed in this country had become accustomed to sleeping in a hammock on shipboard, but they had had nothing to prepare them for a sleeping-car experience. They had a section, and after some difficulty Mike managed to get into the upper berth. After a while he leaned over and called to Pat below:

"Say, Pat, air ye in bed yet?"

Like you?

Went Him One Better

Andrew's grandmother had been telling him Bible stories, his favorite being that of Daniel in the lion's den. At the age of four he was taken to a circus for the first time. When the lion tamer put his head into the lion's mouth Andrew's excitement knew no bounds.

Jumping up and down he gleefully screamed: "Gee, that knocks the spots off Daniel!"

GREAT WEST CUT PLUG SMOKING TOBACCO

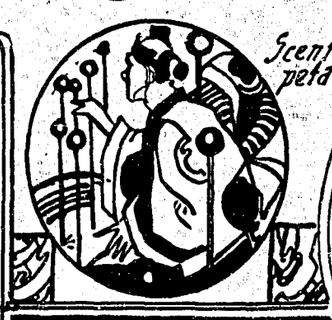
10¢ EVERYWHERE

MADE FROM ENDS OF RIBBON

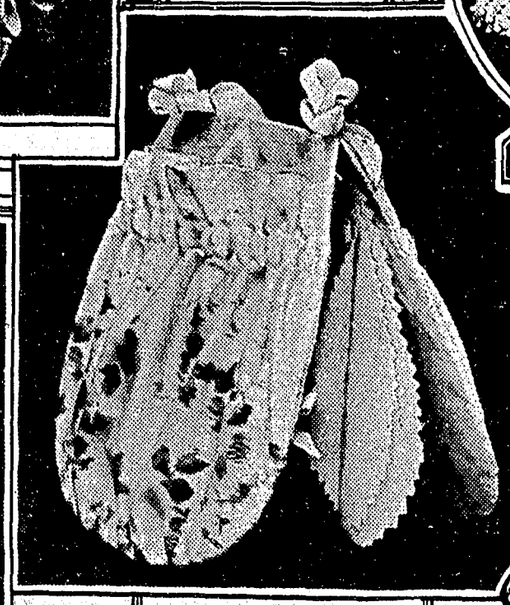
A basket of pins.

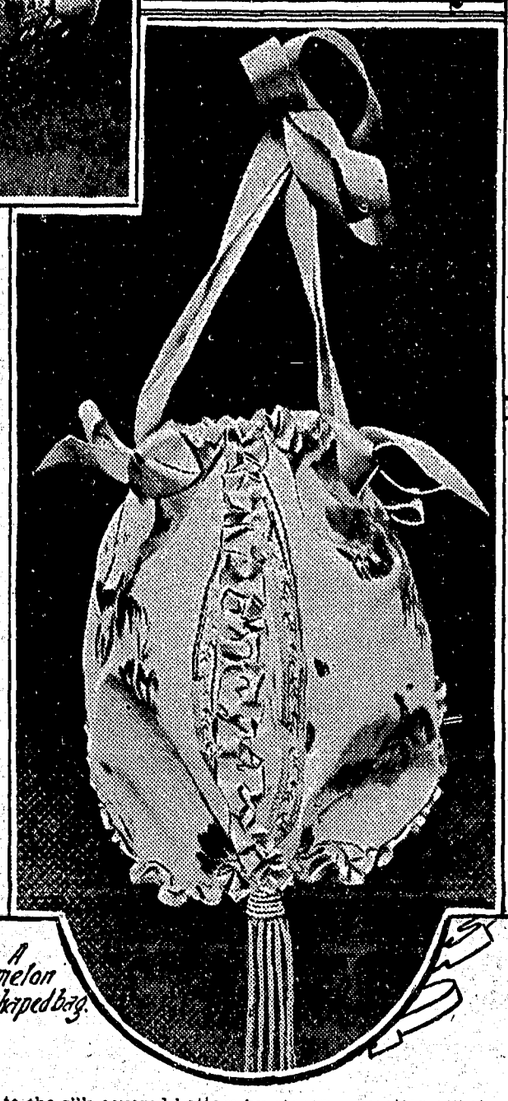
Built over a box.

Always in style.



Scented petals.





A melon shaped bag.

For thread and needles.

The new square receptacle.

BEFORE you are suggestions for small pieces of ribbon that every woman finds herself possessing at the end of a dressmaking season. The silken strips left over from other fancy work are always too lovely to throw away and frequently too short for any large piece of work. Here, then, is the story that will clear the ribbon box and at the same time add to the number of dainty accessories that most women like to make.

For thread and needles there is a useful little case shown that any one can make. The exact size and amount of ribbon cannot be given here, for each woman's idea of a suitable case will vary; and, more important, the size of the odd pieces of ribbon will very naturally determine the cutting out of the cardboard foundations. All that this article can attempt is to show the construction of each hint. Of course, there are general rules that can be given. Any shirred pieces are sufficiently full if 1½ times a straight measurement be allowed. By that is meant that if the ribbon is to be shirred on a straight edge four inches long, a piece six inches long will be enough. This gives an easy fullness. If greater be wished, twice a length will be ample.

Cut out two oblong pieces of cardboard and round the lower ends. Cover with plain silk by whipping two pieces that you turn in at the outer edges. Baste the silk on the board before attempting to whip tightly into place.

Now cut a piece of contrasting silk, dresden in the picture, and let it be as wide as once and a half the width of the card foundation near the top, for this is to be a shirred outer pocket to hold the spools of thread.

Whip on the shirred silk. Make another form just like this for the outer "leaf" of this needle book. Cut out several leaves of soft French flannel, pink the edges and attach on the inner surfaces of these. Sew the stiff forms at the top and decorate with tiny bows of narrow ribbon. How much in each bow? you ask. Just as much as you wish or can use.

The melon-shaped bag is made of three strips of ribbon. The lower ends are pointed and the sides of the rather wide ribbon are whipped together. At each seam a little quilling of plain ribbon is placed. This also runs around the top edge. A gilt tassel is used to decorate the lower end of this bag, and ribbon strings are used to carry the receptacle for the handkerchiefs or sowing on the wrist. This can be a bag four inches long or fourteen, just as the ends of your remnants decree.

Here's a use for a candy box. You doubtless have seen unusual shapes in bonbon boxes and have never realized how well they can serve for foundations. The sides must be broken from the bottom and used for a pattern, from which you will cut silk forms and whip into smooth coverings. Then join together and to the silk-covered bottom by strong silk. Cut four pointed pieces, the bases corresponding with the sides of the box; cover and attach as shown in the photograph. At the pointed top of each flap sew a ribbon. The four strands must be tied together to close the box. Place a little gold or silver lace at the junction of the lower part with the top flaps, and finish with a line of ribbon and bows at the corners.

Outside pockets are suggestions worth while. The bag shown is made of wide blue ribbon sewn to a silk-covered square of cardboard. The top edge is turned in to form a full hem and a double drawing-string is run through a casing. On the lower part a straight piece of figured ribbon is shirred and then caught up at intervals by little rosettes of baby ribbon. From each one a line of backstitching drops down to the bottom, forming pockets all around the outside. In these thread, thimble, etc., can be carried.

A square receptacle is shown that suggests a use for part of an ordinary pasteboard box. The bottom and two long sides are used. These you must cover with figured silk. Then a little departure is made. Make a little bag of plain silk or ribbon that will exactly fit in at the short end of the box. Give it drawing-strings and sew it firmly in, so as to close one end. Another bag divided into two or three compartments will close the other end. The top, you will notice, is left open. The whole idea is unique and easily followed in large or small size.

But when pincushions are mentioned, then indeed are suggestions legion. The little doll's head with its surrounding petals is a hint for small pieces of ribbon. These straight ends are folded into points and merely tacked together. In each point there is sewn a little piece of scented cotton and pins are stuck in the ends. A double row of these useful forms is attached to the base of the head.

Always in style is the Japanese doll, with its little crossed kimono of ribbon and its padded base for pins. This latter can be a pincushion covered with gathered ribbon, or it can be soft cotton. Two bows of ribbon decorate each side.

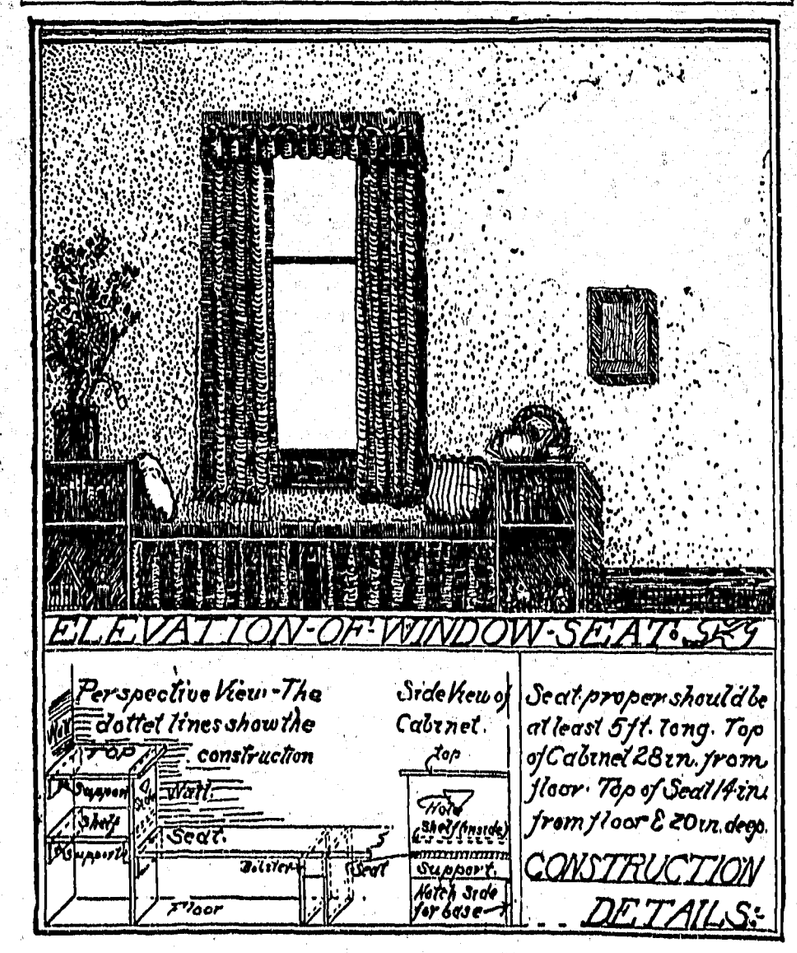
The little basket is the last idea for eager needlewomen. Cut pieces of cardboard with rounded tops and cover with silk. Then attach to a square base by whipping the edges together. Force into the basket a silk pincushion. The handle is of wire covered with cotton, muslin and finally wrapped with plain ribbon. It is attached to opposite sides, and bows of narrow ribbon are used to finish the useful idea.

Surely there are profitable hints for every reader. From odds and ends of silk or ribbon many attractive bags and boxes can be made. These but show the way to a profitable expression of needlecraft.

Goldfish

IT IS not generally known that if a sick goldfish be put for a minute or two in salted water it will recover health and animation—that is, if it be simply "droopy" and not affected by a serious disease. Never, however, put a fish that is well in anything but fresh water, for salt water will surely kill it.

THE HOME DECORATOR



Cabinet and Window Seat

THE arrangement of cabinet and window seat shown in the illustration provides an excellent lounging place where one may read with a good light from the window and favorite books conveniently at hand, while the children can stow their toys under the seat or in the lower portions of the cabinet.

An exact dimension for the length of the seat cannot be given, because rooms vary in size. However, as it is a lounging place, five feet for the seat proper should be allowed at the least. The cabinet to the left in the illustration is supported on one end by the wall at one of the angles of the room. Should you wish to build the seat and cabinets away from the wall at the ends, add a side piece and one support to the bill of material.

Material

Poplar, white or southern pine, 1 inch in [illegible] Have the [illegible] these pieces to the required sizes and plane them smooth:

2 cabinet tops	21 by 20 inches
2 seat boards	10 inches wide by any required length
3 shelves	16 by 20 inches
2 bolsters	14 by 20 inches
2 supports	3 by 20 inches
3 cabinet sides	27 by 20 inches

15 pieces is the total.

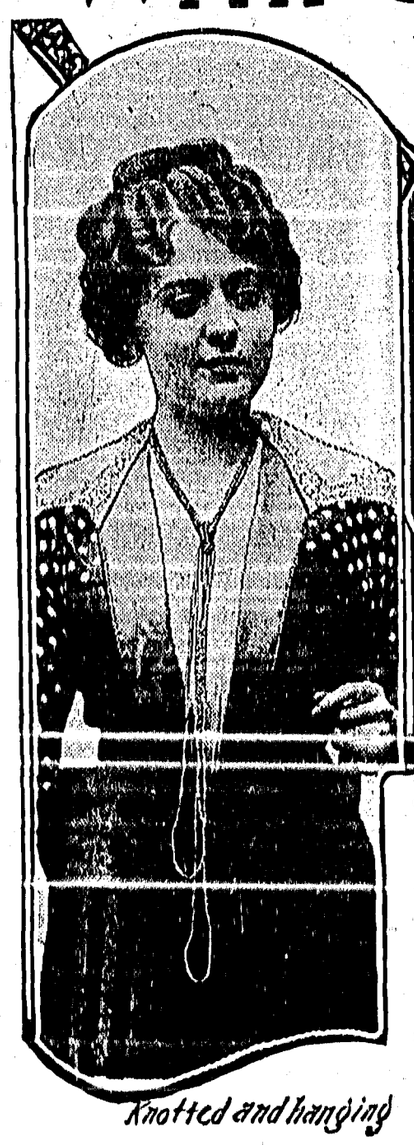
Lumber for construction, purchased and planed at the mill, of course, provides this ideal seat; however, any person clever with tools can make such a seat with odds and ends of stout boxes and the like.

The appearance of the sides of the cabinet will be improved if an inverted triangle or heart shape be cut in the space midway between the shelf and the top. The notch depicted in the illustration in the lower inside edge of the cabinet side is to allow the passage of the baseboard. Draw a full-size plan of the side of the cabinet, showing triangular cut or heart and the notch drawn like the profile of your baseboard; then let the mill people follow this drawing. The seat should be bolstered at least once near the center, and twice if the seat is long.

The flounce under the seat should be made of green denim, the same olive green color suggested for the complete and harmonious ensemble of the room. This flounce is supported by a brass rod and carried along just beneath the seat, affording a good hiding place for toys and the like.

The cushion on the seat should be at least three inches thick. The outside covering of olive green denim should conceal an inner cushion made of muslin, thus keeping the stuffing from working through the outer cover. This muslin cushion may be stuffed with cotton wadding, tow or hair. (Full directions for making such a cushion will be given in the article to follow, describing the making of slip covers, etc.) Should the seat be a long one, it will be advisable to make it in sections, as it is easier to clean when so constructed.

WITH ONE STRING OF PEARLS



Knotted and hanging

Forming a collar.

A Grecian fillet.

WHEN one string in its time plays many parts it is due to the cleverness of the owner. If you are clever, you probably will enjoy a resume of the pearl string; if you are [illegible] do things, here is the story.

If you own a long string of pearls or coral beads, or, in fact, of any kind, do not let it stay in its one form. Use it for three or four different purposes.

First, it can be twined around the hair in three bands quite like the Grecian headdress. If too long, knot the beads in two or three places at the top. Clasp the ends of the string at the back and pin the hair over the ends. When worn with a convincingly beautiful result, you can unclasp the ends and straighten out the beads.

Now they are ready for the next change.

Do you need an ornament in the form of a cabochon on fichu or hat? Just cut out a circular disk of net or scrim, cover it with satin or silk and wind the string of beads so that a rosette will be formed. This can be caught in place by a few stitches in a few minutes.

The main use for a string of beads is, of course, decorative, but it need not hang in one straight line of color around the neck. Knot the strings halfway up, making a double string.

For a change, wind the string about the neck to right or nine strands to form a dog collar. In other words, a string of beads need not remain in its original state. Turn it to another use if you wish.

And just as a parting suggestion, buy a string of beads and break the thread. Use the little forms for embroidery in this great season of embroidery. It is much cheaper than buying them by the dozen strands at exorbitant prices per strand.

White beads can be colored by applying stench dyes or paint.

CAMPAIGN ECHOES

In this election campaign the Liberal coat is going to be washed with some very hard soap, but the color is not going to fade. After the election it will still be Grit in tint, a good honest, old-fashioned shade. The air will presently be full of the smoke of battle, and language of a picturesque tone, and the fighting will be severe, but the result will be the same. Sir Wilfrid is sure of victory, but Mr Borden is equally sure, of course. According to the extreme papers on both sides —neither side can lose. The Tory papers are already weakening a little, and are saying now they fear that there are thousands of electors who have not sufficient moral courage to vote against reciprocity. Mr Borden and his janizaries have started out on a campaign of fake statements which opposed to the wholesome truths of the Liberals, cannot be effective. The dishrag Tory papers all over the country are making the picturesque statement that after the 21st of September the name of the Liberals will be mud, but they are using so much mud themselves for ammunition that their cheerful utterances are likely to come home to roost. The Tory potrags in this province have not yet said that the foreign electors will go to the polls with Liberal five dollar bills in their pockets, but the guerilla warfare has not yet begun. When it does, these papers in their sirm bang way will have an interessing time. The more dignified newspapers are already dealing each other some solid wallops of rhetoric, and the atmoshere in the Eastern provinces is full of the lean shafts of satire and wit. In British Columbia the fighting has hardly more than begun.—Saturday Sunset.

The cheapest and meanest argument employed against reciprocity is that which Hon. R. L. Borden and Premier McBride are making when they claim that reciprocity will undermine Canadian loyalty ahd lead to annexation. For snivelling cant and insulting hypocrisy that argument cannot be duplicated, Premier McBride insults the intelligence of the people of this province when he uses it. The hollow sham of it should make him blush for he well knows that when British Columbia had no other trade markets than those of the south, when she was totally without connection with Eastern Canada, she always remained loyal to the flag and the Empire. If Premier McBride out of his intellectual shallowness can evolve nothing more brilliant he has yet said about reciprocity he ought to conceal his ignorance of the question by a discreet silence. —Saturday Sunset.

Change of advertisements will not be received at this office later than 12 o'clock noon on Tuesdays.

"Not T.B." is the verdict pronounced by the higher authorities at the recent Conservation convention held in Nanaimo.

If we have any desire to get that nine thousand dollars that the provincial government is almost begging us to take for sewer construction, we had better get busy before the fall rains are on. No one will deny, but that we are badly in need of a sewer system as all the drains are in a deplorable condition, and our sidewalks if not a menace to health, as far as contageon goes, are to life and limb, in their present rotten condition, and may at any time be the cause of an action against the city for damages. This is the last year that we have any guarantee that the above amount will be forthcoming. When we hear of and see other small towns in this province, with no better prospects and not any more prosperous than this town of ours, busy with improvements, the present unsanitary and unbusinesslike condition of this town, does not reflect very much if any credit upon us. The fault does not lie with the city council, but with those who failed when they had the opportunity of supplying the necessary funds for very much needed city improvements. There are people who will block every progressive movement for fear that it will draw a few extra dollars out of their pockets.

Now that the result of the Conservative convention held in Nanaimo has been proclaimed, with its spirit of dominant partyism so much in evidence, and Mr T. E. Bate out of the running, it will be a decidedly easy victory for the Liberals in this part of the constituency.

COMMUNICATIONS

EDITOR NEWS:—In your last issue I noticed your friendly wish that our townsman, Mr Thos. E. Bate, would receive the nomination for Comox-Atlin. Whilst the result shows that he had not the slightest chance though he was the choice of Cumberland, Courtenay and Alberni Conservatives. It is freely said that the result was simply cut and dried by the party machine, and that the convention was merely a matter of form. That being so, where do the people come in? The members of the party associations meet in good faith, make their choice, put their hands into their pockets to send delegates to support that choice, the delegates give their time, use their energy and influence to elect their man, only to hear that the matter was cut and dried. Does this account for the presence of Premier McBride and Dr Young at the various conventions? It is time that the so-called independent electors should smash the machine and demand that their voice prevails. They have found this necessary over the border. It appears to be equally so here. ELECTOR.

The "political pot" will soon be on the boil.—Let her boil.

City Council

The city council met in regular session on Monday evening, there being present Aldermen Banks, Parnham, Willard and the mayor.

The minutes of previous regular and special meetings were read and adopted.

Communication was received from Vancouver Rubber Co., re supplying city with 400 feet of hose and repairing hose at present in use. The council did not decide on the purchase of new hose, but will have some of the old hose repaired.

Accounts:—

D. Hunden	$16.50
Electric Light Co.	57.63
Police caps	8.00
Freight	3.35
E. G. Prior & Co	60.00

The half-yearly report was presented by the city clerk, which is as follows:—

Receipts	$11480.46
Expenditure	10975.11
Balance	$ 505.11

The matter of repairing front of City Hall was left to the Board of Works, which was also empowered to proceed with construction of cells and police office at an estimated cost of $75.

Ald Willard suggested that a meeting of property holders be called to consider the matter of sewerage and sidewalks for the cit. It was decided to call a meeting for Wednesday evening, Aug. 30th.

The Liquor Licence By-law will be taken up at a special meeting to be called by the mayor.

The Pool Room By-law was reconsidered, adopted and finally passed, and to go into effect on September 1st, 1911.

Fire Wardens will look over the town to see where additional hydrants can be placed to advantage.

Alderman Maxwell was the only alderman present in answer to the summons of the Board to attend and show reason why his seat should not be declared vacant. He asked why such such summons had been sent him, as he was just as much qualified at the present time as he ever was, but was not particular if his seat was declared vacant, and if he had been disqualified by the recent change of business in which he was interested, he would have notified the council to that effect.

Ald Willard said if that was the case Ald Maxwell should have taken his seat at the board when he entered the council chambers.

No further action was taken in the matter, the mayor stating that he thought the council had been a little hasty in their action of previous regular meeting.
