A PRETTY ENGLISH GIRL

MISS MARGARET LINBACK WRONGFULLY IMPRISONED.

Charged With the Robbery of Miss Gerry's Jewelry—Her Innocence Vindicated—The Siege of Bage Raised by the Insurgent Forces—The Anti-Parnellites Claim to Have the Present Government in Their Power—The Impending Revolution in Italy—Lieut.-General Henry Considers Canada to be in Danger.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Margaret Linbeck, a handsome and highly educated young Englishwoman who was formerly lady in waiting in the household of Lady Jane Douglas, of England, has through her attorney filed suit to-day in the court of common pleas against Commodore Eldridge Gerry to recover the sum of $50,000 damages for alleged false arrest and imprisonment. At the time of the alleged false arrest, Miss Linbeck was employed as companion to Commodore Gerry's daughter. The suit makes public for the first time the facts of a robbery that occurred at Commodore Gerry's Newport cottage August 17th of last year. While the Commodore and his family were absent and only the servants in charge, someone entered the room of Miss Gerry and stole all her jewelry and diamonds. Commodore Gerry it is alleged, caused the arrest of the plaintiff, charging her with robbery? Her innocence it seems, was quickly established and she was released. So far as it is known the robber has not been captured.

The Siege Raised.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 16.—The minister of foreign affairs, acting for President Peixoto, authorized the representative of the United Press to send the following: "The siege of Bage, by the insurgent forces has been raised. After the rebels had resisted for eighteen days the sorties of the Government troops, who are commanded by General Carlos Telles, the latter made a final sortie and put the insurgents to flight. It was a complete route for the insurgents, who abandoned their baggage and munitions of war. The government loss was 36 killed and 90 wounded. The insurgents lost 400 killed and many wounded. Two days after the battle, one of the two columns that had been despatched to the relief of Bage, arrived at that town. The relieving party at once started in pursuit of the insurgents, but it is understood did not succeed in catching up with the main body of insurgents. Many of the latter deserted. It was found that the insurgents had sacked several houses and several men were found with their throats cut. Two government soldiers, who had been captured by the enemy, were burned alive. General Carneiro, who is on the frontier between the states of Parana and Sabta Catarina recently fought an engagement with the insurgents and defeated them. The British steamer Hilda which has arrived here from Porto Alegro, capital of the State of Rio Grande Do Sul, reports that the government is in undisturbed possession of the coast of that state."

Engagement of Nictheroy.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 16.—Last evening the insurgent's ships took up positions in readiness to engage the Nictheroy early this morning. Hot encounter was begun at daybreak at close quarters. Eventually the ships were repulsed with heavy loss.

Reported Favorably and Passed.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—To-day, M. Perncarr, reporter of the Budget committee, favorably reported to the Chamber the bill introduced by Burdeau, for converting the four and a half per cent. rentes into three and a half per cent. Minister Aves, and Palinmery and the Duke La Rochefoucauld, of the committee, opposed the bill.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The conversion bill, as presented, was eventually passed by a vote of 485 to 1. The bill was then taken to the Senate by M. Dubost, Minister of Justice.

Relief for Irish Tenants.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—At a meeting of the National League held in this city to-day, Mr. Leamy, ex-editor of United Ireland, who presided, said he hoped the anti-Parnellite members of the House of Commons would insist that a bill for the relief of the Irish evicted tenants would be forced through the House at the earliest period next session. He added that the Irish Parliamentary party would do nothing to imperil the Government for a year or two, knowing that it could turn the Government out of office at any time it felt called upon to do so.

The Mother Country Left Far Behind.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Daily Chronicle in referring to the report of the British Consul at Chicago says: The British Colonies left the mother country far behind at the Chicago fair. Great Britain was much worse represented than any other great nation. We are inclined to lay the blame for this upon McKinley's shoulders.

Canada Not Safe in the Event of a War.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Lieutenant-General Sir Tompkyns Henry delivered a speech in London this evening on the defences of the British Empire. He expressed the opinion that the English colonies generally with the exception of Canada were perfectly safe in the event of war with the United States. He said it would be impossible for Great Britain to prevent Canada from being annexed to the United States.

A Revolution Impending in Italy.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "Intimates of the Pope, believe that a revolution is impending in Italy. The bishops and higher clergy are on the side of law and order. The ranks of the Sicilian priesthood are regarded at the Vatican as being in sympathy with outrage. The Vatican shares the anxiety of the Quirinal.

Imperial Consideration of the Colonies.

LONDON, Jan, 16.—The Marquis of Lorne at a meeting of the Imperial Institute last evening, at which Lord Knutsford presided, stated that something might be done to improve the news transmitted from and to the colonies. And the statement that any arrangements to ensure the transmission of news directly from the mother country to the colonies and vice versa would be a great boon, met with great applause.

Fight With Anarchists.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A dispatch to the Central News from Rome says: A squadron of cavalry patrolling Massa and Carrara had an encounter to day with a band of anarchists 500 strong, who were apparently engaged in destroying the Fassola bridge. The anarchists stood their ground until several were killed or wounded, and then fled. They were pursued by the cavalry and finally dispersed. Eight persons altogether were killed and numbers were wounded. Among the wounded are many soldiers. Many arrests were made.

5,000 Workmen Strike.

ROME, Jan. 16.—About five thousand working men have struck in Massa and Carrara. Both towns are occupied by troops and all the shops are closed. The inhbitants are frightened and many families are provisioning their houses as if for a siege. Bands of revolters parade the roads making requisitions on the people for arms and food. A three o'clock this afternoon the people of Massa were thrown into a state of consternation by hearing a fusilade in the hills near by a squadron of cavalry had encountered a mob of 500 men at the Fassola bridge about two kilometers from Massa. After a stubborn fight the mob was dispersed. Many were wounded and several were killed. Troops guard the railway at all points to prevent the tearing up of the rails. Some soldiers are in active pursuit of bands in the mountains. The cabinet council has given Premier Crispi a free hand as to the time when he shall declare the province of Massa and Carrara in a state of siege. The proclamation will be issued to-morrow unless the situation improves in the meantime.

Laidlaw Wins the Skating Race.

MONCTON, N. B., Jan. 16.—The skating race to-night between Breen and Laidlaw, at the Metropolitan rink was one of the most interesting of the series between the men. Laidlaw won by about 25 feet. Time 9 min. 45 sec.

Anti-Papacy and Dynamite.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 16.—A dynamite cartridge was found under the stage of the opera house in this city to-day with a fuse attached. It is believed that the explosive was placed there during Mrs. Margaret L. Sheppard's course of anti-popery lectures some weeks ago.

Created Apostolic Prothonotary.

QUEBEC, Jan. 16.—The Abbe Laflamme, rector of Laval University, ex-president of the Royal Society of Canada, and one of the foremost scientists of the Dominion, has been created apostolic prothonotary. Abbe Laflamme has alleady been offered a bishopric but refused, preferring to pursue his scientific researches.

The Nelson Monument and Dynamite.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—The case of Mercier, Pelland and Demartigny charged with attempting to blow up the Nelson monument with dynamite, was called in the police court to-day. James Cochrane, local contractor, certified that he had examined the monument and expressed the opinion that even had the explosion taken place, the damage would have been very small The case was again postponed.

General Taylor Dead.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Jan. 16.—Gen-Nelson Taylor, formerly of Stockton, Cal., died here to-day of pneumonia. A widow, one son and two daughters survive him.

Manchester a Port of Entry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Secretary Gresham is officially advised that the English Government has declared Manchester, England, to be a port of entry, thus enabling people in this country to ship direct to that city. This is a result of the recent opening of the Manchester ship canal.

Shooting in Defence of Romanism.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 16.—J. V. McNamara, the "Priest of Rome," lectured here to-night. In the course of his remarks he severely denounced Roman Catholicism. A riot followed during which several shots were fired. One man is reported to have been shot.

San Bernardino Has a Blaze.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 16.—At 6 o'clock this evening fire broke out in the residence of Newton Brown about one mile south of the Stewart Hotel. There being no water accessible, the house with contents were completely destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is about $16,000 covered by $1,115 insurance.

Fiendish Incendiaries in Mexico.

ESCALON, Mex., Jan. 16.—Advice has been received from the Sierra Mojada mining camps situated in this district, of a terrible holacoust. In the lower part of the town there were a number of huts located very close together. These were set on fire by a band of unknown incendiaries, and before the inmates could escape, eleven men and several women and children were burned to death. Ten others were burned so badly that they will die.

FIRE IN VICTORIA.

Mr. J. Sehl's Fine Residence at Laurel Point Destroyed.

VICTORIA, Jan. 16.—[Special]—The palatial residence of Jacob Sehl, for years an ornament of Laurel point, admired alike by citizens and travellers entering the harbor, last evening became a thing of the past, a two hours' fire reducing it to a smouldering heap of ashes and involving a loss of upwards of $30,000, besides the sentimental consideration of the complete disappearance of the household goods collected in a lifetime.

The house destroyed was one of the finest in the city, both in the beauty of its outside appearance and in the elegance and completeness of the furnishings, and it was also one of the largest private residences of which Victoria can boast. It was built about seven years ago from designs made by the architect of the theatre, who persuaded Mr. Sehl into allowing him while here to make the plans for a palatial residence. It was built of wood upon foundations of stone and brick, starting upon the solid rock of the point. The cost was $25,000. The furnishings are valued at about $7,000 or $8,000, and it is not at all improbable that when everything is counted up this will be found within the mark. The insurance is $10,000 on the house and $3,000 on the furnishings. The companies interested are the Liverpool, London & Globe, and the Western.

Later estimates of loss by the fire, which yesterday destroyed Jacob Sehl's palatial home, is $29,000, on which there is $13,000 insurance. During the fire a 30 mile gale raged and the escape of surrounding property is little less than marvelous.

Ernest Bodwell is spoken of as a candidate for the Provincial Parliament in Cowichan district, Premier Davie's present constituency at the approaching general election. This is taken to mean that Davie will run in Victoria City, and that in event of a Government victory Bodwell be the new attorney general, the Premier taking other portfolios Bodwell, though young as a lawyer, ranks second to none in the province, he has not yet sought political distinction, but comes of a family prominently connected with public affairs in the Dominion.

BY WIRE FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

Current News from the City by the Golden Gate.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16.—The Canadian-Australian steamer Miowera, arrived here at 10:30 this morning to undergo repairs, she having been hard and fast on a coral reef at the entrance to Honolulu harbor for over a month, but eventually successfully floated by Captain Metcalf, Lloyd's agent here. The steamer left Honolulu on the 5th instant, one day before the Australian and consequently brings no news of importance.

American ship Charmer arrived from New York to-day with general cargo having made the voyage in one hundred and thirty two days. She reports having seen nothing of ships Louisiana, Isaac Reed, George Curtis, Manuel Ilaguno and Alameda, all of which are long overdue.

Six persons had a most miraculous escape from instant death this morning about 6 o'clock. About 500 tons of rock which had been loosened by the rains of yesterday came down from Telegraph hill with a rush on a two story house occupied by Peter Brown, his wife and three children and a Greek named C. Fussulus. As soon as the timbers began to crash, all made a break for one room and as a mass of rock fell on the roof, the latter formed an arch over the occupants of the house, all of whom were rescued, uninjured, excepting Brown's daughter, twelve year's of age, whose legs were cut and torn. William Cooper, a fireman, took the little girl out of the ruins and on returning for the others fell through one of the timbers and broke his right leg.

In regard to the item published in a local paper Saturday last, that the ex-Queen of Hawaii had given up the contest for her throne and would sue the United States for damages, Samuel Parker, prime minister of the queen has wired Secretary Gresham denying these assertions in toto. Both Parker and W. C. Peterson, ex queen's attorney-general, state that they saw Liliuokalani half an hour before they sailed from Honolulu on the ss. Australia and she was very firm in her determination to maintain her claim to her throne. The possibility of presenting a claim for damages had never been mentioned.

An attempt has been made here to spirit away, by means of requisition from Governor Pennoyer of Oregon, Henry Henrickson, the principal witness for the prosecution in the case of John P. P. Hansen, charged with attempting to blow up the tug Ethal and Marion, with dynamite last April. A requisition was presented to Governor Markham and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Henrickson for robbery committed in Astoria some thirteen years ago. A detective was detailed to point out Henrickson to an officer from Oregon, who recognized him as one of a party whom he had seen in conversation with Secretary Furuseth, of the Coast Seamen's Union. This fact was communicated to the chief of police, and on enquiry it was found to be a scheme to get Henrickson out of the way, while Hansen's trial, which takes place to-day, proceeded.

The Origin of Junius Discovered at the Antipodes.

It appears that the famous Junius letters were written by Sir Philip Francis, whose grandson in Australia has just offered the explanatory papers for sale. This, if true, will settle a long discussed and vexed question. No undisouvered star in the planetary sphere has ever excited the interest which the disguised personality of Junius has.

The issue of standard silver dollars from the mints of the Treasury offices for the week ended Jan. 13th was $282,956; for the corresponding period last year it was $219,849. The shipment of fractional silver coins from the 2nd to the 11th inst., aggregated $167,899.

A NEW READING OF U. S.

The United States and Its Superstitious, Mascots, Fetishes and Idols.

(Specially Contributed to THE TELEGRAM.)

The initials U. S., besides being significant of a vast country with a population of over sixty-five million people, will soon be the sign mental of Uniquely Superstitious, and the legend of a population mostly — fatuous

It is surprising and somewhat shocking to read day by day and week after week the daily and weekly press of the States, containing reports and accounts of the mascots, fetishes, idols and general foleries set up, worshipped and indulged in by the citizens of a nation hitherto exemplary and eminent for its common sense and practicality.

In the Chicago Tribune of a recent date, there is an account of a columns' length, concerning the dealings of a catskin merchant in the city of Axunge with gentlemen (?) in the profession of gambling; and this mascot-trading is not confined to the Windy City alone, but extends indefinitely through the States, including all the larger cities such as San Francisco, New York and even "cultured Boston."

It appears that these expert shufflers deceive themselves as readily as they would an opponent. Stygian black is the favorite color, and the prevailing demand for the sable hue is readily met by the handicraft of the dyer; and it appears that some of these knights of the card table are so extravagant as to have and wear a separate skin for each day in the week.

Should a successful chance-demon die, there is a rush on the past of his surviving brethren to secure his mascotic remains, bidding and paying exorbitant amounts for them, and this presumably, even had he died of a loathsome disease. There would still be fickle fortune's virtue in it! The dealer does not defend the custom from an ethical point of view, but he skips back some centuries to when Egypt worshipped the cat, and gives that as some sort of a reason why the skin of the latter-day, or night, felines, should possess some fetish-value for men (?) living in the eve of the twentieth century.

It may be argued in defence that they who live on chances, are the most likely, as a class, to indulge in such witless whims, and that they form but a small part of the whole. But, in some form or another, this new reading of U. S. ramifies through the whole of the Stars and Stripes country—social and constitutional. From those men who would probably kick a cat were it alive and in thter way, yet wear its skin as a fate protector, to young ladies in society with covetings to be circled in the four-hundred-charm, is a far cry and long way, yet thay are alike in their petish worship.

Another American writer recently wrote, that most society girls were in possession of a St. Joseph's image for the propitiation of a speedy marriage and a good husband. One young lady of fashion had set up a shrine of several grotesque idols and heathen images, which she sacrificed to with trifles of candy, flowers and bits of money. This same fin de siecle young person, had the rattle of a snake which was killed after sundown, also a precious bit of hangman's rope within her jewelled watch case. And this is a daughter of the great republic!

Surely the strain of the Pilgrim Fathers and the early Puritans must be getting thin in these days. A return of that "simple faith" which is better than Norman blood should be welcomed in these times of gnat straining after superstitions and camel swallowing of utter foolishness. The girl at Vassar, the student at Harvard, the broker in Wall street and the jetsam and flotsam in the Bowery seem all alike impregnated by this empirical humbug. A man of millions in ascending steps will descend again if he forgot to put his left foot on the first step, and a beggar will refuse a gratuity from a man who squints; and so the all-prevailing feeling of superstition runs up and down the whole social gamut.

For this, some fiction is largely responsible, while the general press is not altogether free from blame, in its expression and writing up of such stuff—not always in a satirical vein. There is usually a lurking suspicion that the writer, whether he or she, is not wholly free from this mental manacling.

Of course it is admitted unreservedly that the United States, as a country, is not the only one given up to this latter-day idolatry, but she is fast becoming the centre and home for faking of unlimited kind. Charlatans and mountebanks of all varieties, life-readers and phrenological fakirs of many phases seem to find the readiest response and an abiding place in the proverbial "land of the free."

To the average mind which holds its sanity and finds its sufficiency in the "daily round and common task" lived purely and worked rightly, Mr. Stead and his Julia, Mrs. Besant and her astral bodies and the canonizing of Joan of Arc by a number of cultured men, is all of a piece and on a par with the mascot and the gambler, and the society girl with her shrine for matrimony.

No country is wholly free from the disease—for it is a disease—but the United States is becoming, if not already become, most unusually, unwarrantably, and unwholesomely tainted with a mental corruption, which will make it likely for the initials U. S. to be rendered and read as Uniquely Superstitious.

William II. is Nothing if Not Extreme.

The Toronto Week says that a less imposing picture of nineteenth, almost the twentieth century, of royalty than that presented by the recent cablegrams of the Emperor of Germany standing on the threshold of his mansion, with his wife and family looking from the windows, and slaughtering hundreds of almost tame partridges as they were driven before him by a detachment of soldiers, it would be hard to imagine.

True, But, in These Times Hard.

Mr Fletcher, the editor of the Daily Chronicle London, has been speaking on the subject of "Christian Ethics and Practical Politics." Mr. Fletcher is reported to have said, with emphasis: "You can govern in accordance with the principles laid down by Jesus Christ in the Sermon on the Mount—the charter of man's redemption which He sealed with His blood—and it is only in so far as you can honestly attempt to do so that you can hope to arrive at anything like a civilized order of things."

Tebele or Not Tebele.

In the Revue Chretienne, Paris, for December, Mr. F. H. Kruger, who seems to understand the subject thoroughly, gives an account—not at all complimentary to the British—of the origin of the war, and of the tribe against whom it is waged. He tells us that in Great Britain and the United States the name of the tribe is invariably written erroneously. The speech of the tribe belongs to what is called the Bantu family of languages, which distinguish the singular and plural of substantiatives by prefixes. The singular of "the" in Tebele is ou. The plural of ou is ma. Therefore maTebele—which ought always to be thus written—means men of the tribe of Tebele. They should be spoken of in English as the Tebele or Tebeles. If you say the maTebele you double the article.

World's Fair's Galore.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Besides being a permanent exhibition in itself, Rome has decided to have a special exposition. The opening of the grand exhibition here, which is to be a Chicago World's Fair on a smaller scale, and in which many features of the American exposition are to be copied, has been definitely fixed for Sept. 20, 1895, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Breach of Porta Pia. The executive committee has organized and the various bureaus of the exposition will get into working order before the end of the month. Preliminary correspondence indicates that every country represented at the Chicago exposition will take part in the event at Rome.

How They Do It.

The following item shows how they do it on the other side:

TACOMA, Jan. 13.—[Special]—One of the double-column, big, black-lettered captions in to day's issue of the Tacoman reads as follows:

WE'RE AFTER IT.

THE LEDGER'S PUBLIC PRINTING STEAL REEKS WITH INIQUITY.

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS TALK.

IT CHEATS WITH ITS FAKE TYPE; IT CHEATS IN ITS DISPLAY HEADLINES, AND LIES IN ITS REPORTS.

The story is told fully in the headlines given above.

PRESIDENT DOLE'S REPLY.

President Dole's reply to the polite request sent to him and the Provisional Government at Honolulu by President Cleveland, through Minister Willis, to step down and out and make way for the restoration of Queen Liliuokalani, is an extraordinary state paper to emanate from the head of an assumed independent Government. The first paragraph of the reply is simply a plea for annexation by the United States, proving conclusively that Dole and his Government consist of a gang of American annexationists, placed in power by Minister Stevens with the help of a company of marines drawn by him from an American ship of war on substantially false pretences. The native Hawaiians do not seem to have had anything to do with the overthrowing of the queen. It was evidently, as Mr. Blount stated in his report, the work of a gang of American sympathisers, mostly themselves Americans, aided and directed by Stevens, the American minister. It was to undo as far as may be this wrong committed against a friendly Government by the American minister, who did not scruple to use the troops of the United States to carry out the purposes of himself and his fellow-conspirators, that President Cleveland has been struggling. By acting the part of an upright ruler in this matter, a ruler who respects the rights and independence of a neighboring state however weak, President Cleveland has brought down upon his head the loud abuse of all the jingoes, swashbucklers, and blackguards in the United States, and their congeners in Hawaii. Among the latter must now be classed President Dole and his government. Mr. Dole in his reply expresses the deep disappointment of the Provisional Government, that the proposition for the annexation of Hawaii by the United States, which had been favorably received by President Harrison's administration, was rejected by President Cleveland; and goes on to say that while accepting this as the final conclusion of the Cleveland administration, he refuses to accept it as the last word of the American government. This president of a pretended independent republic argues vigorously that the mutual relations of the two countries, their geographical position and past history, all point with convincing force to political union as the inevitable result.

In support of this view Mr. Dole refers to the opinions of prominent American statesmen, including the late James G. Blaine; and says that his government will continue to make the project of political union with the United States a conspicuous feature of their foreign policy, hoping that sooner or later it will be accomplished. In other words President Dole and his colleagues expect that the next Republican administration will do what President Cleveland's administration refuses—that is to annex the islands. In the meantime he refuses to recognize the right of the president of the United States to interfere in the domestic affairs of his government. In conclusion President Dole respectfully and unhesitatingly declines to entert in the proposition of President Cleveland, that the provisional government should surrender its authority to the ex-queen. The matter is now in the hands of Congress. Minister Willis has been instructed to keep the state department informed of the course of events, and until further notice to consider that his special instructions have been fully complied with. There can be no doubt of the uprightness of President Cleveland's policy and intentions throughout this whole troublesome business, and we think that it is equally certain that his policy is approved by all the best elements of the American nation. It remains to be seen whether Congress will support the president, or whether it will bow to the clamor of the American jingoes. We shall not take upon ourselves to say what the result will be; but this we do say, that it will not be for the credit of the United States if President Cleveland's honorable policy is not sustained.

THE GOVERNOR of Alaska is said to be moving to put down the practice, heretofore very common in that territory, of white men openly cohabiting with native women. Mr. Sheaky, the governor, is a family man and a Presbytarian, and looks upon such open and shameless immorality as an abomination that ought not to be tolerated. He is said to have made up his mind to enforce the laws in this particular. All God-fearing people will wish Governor Sheaky success in his "squaw crusade."

RAIROAD CONSTRUCTION in the United states fell off much during the past year, as as compared with previous ones. The Railroad Gazette of New York estimates the mileage constructed last year at 2,585 miles, against 4,090 miles in 1892, and 12,900 in 1887.

THE Colonist of yesterday reports the destruction by fire on Monday evening of the magnificent residence of Jacob Sehl, at Laurel Point. Particulars are given in another column. The loss is estimated at upwards of $30,000.

A CIVIL WAR is in progress between Nicaragua and Honduras, and San Salvador threatens to take a hand in it against Nicaragua, the government of which is alarmed in consequence. These Spanish republics are wonderful institutions, and very fertile in civil wars. They also, most of them, produce good coffee. It would be better if they confined their attention to cultivating it and let civil wars alone. The republicans of the peninsula want to set up a republic in old Spain also, though if the people there had but the wisdom to know it, the king and his mother are much cheaper, and their government just as good. But we suppose the Spaniards, like other people, can only be taught by experience, and, as appears to be the case, scarcely even by that.

A DESPATCH from Cape Town received in London confirms the news of the massacre of Captain Wilson's party by the Matabeles. "The British force," says the despatch, "succumbed after a desperate struggle. They resisted to the last and many Matabeles were killed, but their numbers were so great that the resistance on the part of the small but valorous British force was of no avail." They were all slain to a man. It will now be the business of the British to avenge them, and utterly to subvert the power of the Matabeles and of Lo Bengula, their king. Under ordinary circumstances to do so, might be wrong, but the Matabeles have exercised their power over the native tribes which they conquered in a manner so cruel and bloodthirsty, that it is a service to humanity to put an end to it.

A SEVERE STORM of wind prevailed on Monday and Monday night in Victoria and around it, both on land sea. Some damage was done to shipping, but how much is not yet known. The gale damaged considerably the telegraph and electric light wires, and demoralized the telephone service. The only telegraph wire left working was that to Otter Point, and it worked but badly. Considerable damage was done to houses and fences. The round house of the E. & N. Railway was blown down. Several trees too were blown across the track. The damage done to the Russell station neighborhood alone is estimated at from $1,000 to $1,500. The Chemainus and Koksilah rivers are much swollen. Cars are, however, running both ways on the E. & N. Railway. The storm reached its height about 9 o'clock on Monday night and was succeeded by a dead calm. No loss of life is reported.

THE INSURGENTS and the Peixotoists keep "pegging away" at each other in Brazil with praiseworthy industry; but the artillerymen on both sides are such marvellously bad shots that but little damage seems to be done beyond waste of powder, save when Peixoto gets some of his enemies into his hands. Then he has them ranged up in a row and shot promptly by his troops at close quarters. An especially savage execution of some young naval cadets, who had revolted, or were suspected of an intention of joining the rebel fleet, was reported some days ago. Admiral Mello's flag ship is again in the harbor of Rio, having sailed past Peixoto's batteries without sustaining damage, as he did before when making his escape from Rio harbour. These Brazilian gunners would probably not hit a haystack if it was floating past. The Nictheroy is reported to be unseaworthy, its officers inefficient, and its men badly treated and discontented. On both sides they are boasting what great things they are going to do in a few weeks.

WELLINGTON ITEMS.

It was pay-day at the mines yesterday.

The company is putting down a sidewalk in front of their houses, which was badly needed.

The death rate in Union during the year 1893 was about 1 per cent. Union is certainly strength.

At the Methodist concert the Rev. Maitland of Nanaimo was chairman, Mrs. Leighton of Nanaimo was the leading vocalist, Mrs. Patton of Wellington being the fair accompanist.

St. Matthews' church was packed to the doors on Monday evening to witness the ceremony of confirmation by Bishop Perrin. His Lordship spoke very feelingly and gave some excellent advice to those who had been confirmed.

Mr. John Matthews, on behalf of the parishioners, presented the Rev. Flinton, who is retiring from the parish, with a valedictory address and a purse of money. In reply Mr. Flinton thanked them very much for their kindness; adding that he was loth to leave Wellington, as he had not only built up the church to its present efficiency from a congregation of only three, but had also the tie of his child having been born there. Mr. Flinton leaves to-day.

The basket social given by the Finlanders in their hall on Saturday evening was a decided success, both in attendance and financially. The auctioneer ably wielded the hammer, disposing of the many articles on sale in an incredibly short space of time. Fishing then came in order; our correspondent catching a rusty jack-knife and a second-hand necktie on his hook. The band playing severel airs closed the first part of the entertainment. Dancing was then begun and kept up till the hour when witches walk and graveyards yawn; then the baskets were opened and the edibles brought forth being duly discussed and digested, thus ending a very pleasant gathering.

REVELSTOKE, B. C., Jan. 16—Weather 6 p.m., cloudy and mild, strong northeast wind. Them. 33. Appearance of snow.

A Tribute in Type.

We ought not to let the occasion pass without paying a tribute in type to Constable Gibbs, who so magnanimously advocated his brother constable's claim for preferment in place of himself at the City Council meeting on Monday night. Constable Gibbs said, that if one man was considered enough, he hoped the Council would prefer Constable Brown as he had two children to keep while he, Gibbs, would find work elsewhere. As such instances of personal repression are rare, it becomes both our duty and pleasure as fellow citizens to note such.

Horse-power of a Whale.

The horse-power of a whale seems almost as funny as the horse power of a donkey engine, but an interesting study of the horse-power of the whale has been made by the eminent anatomist, Sir William Turner of the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, in conjunction with John Henderson, the well-known Glasgow shipbuilder. The size and dimensions of a great whale stranded several years ago on the shore at Longriddy furnished the necessary data for the computation of the power necessary to propel it at the rate of twelve miles an hour. This whale measured 80 feet in length, 20 feet across the flanges of the tail, and weighed 74 tons. It was calculated that 145 horse-power was necessary to attain the speed mentioned.

The Colonist of yesterday says: The rumor has been current for some days to the effect that negotiations are pending between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the promoters of the Victoria and Sidney road, the result of which will be a combination of interests, whereby C. P. R. business will be handled over the Victoria road in connection with the new steamers from the Mainland. Parties interested in the local road decline to speak for the present, but should there be any foundation in fact in the rumor, it must soon materialize, for construction work of the V. & S. line is all out completed, the rails yesterday having been laid to the brickyard. This makes the ine continuous between that point and Sidney, and the remainder of the work will be pushed along without delay.

C. O. O. F. BANQUET.

The Delegates Dine Sumptuously at the Wilson.

After transacting some important business during the session just closed, the delegates and officers of the district meeting met all together last evening at the Hotel Wilson, to discuss things more delectable.

When the company had got through a dinner of ten courses and thirty-one items, the speech making was started by Bro. H. A. Mace, of Golden Lodge, who was president of the convivial and amicable assemblage. This he did by proposing the old and patriotic toast of The Queen and Royal Family, coupled with the name of Captain Dillon, who responded and proposed the United States, which was responded to by Bro. Gillson

The next toast, the Governor General of Canada, coupled with the name of Bro. G. Norris and Bro. Finlay, who both responded.

Bro. Dr. Farwell next gave a speech.

The toast C O O F., coupled with and responded to by Bros. McIntosh, Ramsay, P.D D.G.M. and Dwyre, D.D G.M.

A song was sung by Bro. Leroy, applause.

Toast of the Provincial Grand Lodge, coupled with the name of Bro. Fullerton, who responded.

The toast of the C.O O.F. in general, coupled with and responded to by Bro. Ramsay.

A song was then given by Bro. Dillon.

Toast the "Manchester Unity," coupled with the names of P. P. G. M. Bro Tagg, who responded, as also did Bro. M. G. Clark.

Song by Bro. Rev. E. W. Miller.

The toasts of Mayor and Council, coupled with the names of Bro. Ald. Cocking and Bro Thompson, assistant city clerk and both responded.

On a speech being called for from ex-Mayor Hilbert, he responded.

Being called on, Bro. W. T. Fullurton, D S, gave a song; Mr. W. B. Garrard also gave a song.

The toast of the Press, coupled with the names of Messrs. G. Norris, Garrard, W. Dean and McKenzie, who all responded, with the exception of W. Dean, who was absent.

Bro. Levi then gave a song.

The toast of kindred societies, coupled with the names of ex-Mayor Hilbert, Bro. Dillon and Bro. Farwell, was responded to by all of them.

A song was then given by Bro. Gray and the toasts of the clergy responded to by the Rev. C. E. Cooper and Rev C. G. Miller.

The toast "Our Guests," responded to by Bro's. Levi, Certer and Jarvis.

"The Ladies" was responded to by Bro's. Se Roy, Morcross, W. Norris, Thompson and Ramsay.

The banquet was over, but the banquetters were still in session at an early hour this morning.

The remainder of the toasts and speeches will appear in to-morrow's issue.

Not So.

Mr. Tagart desires us to contradict the statement, inadvertently made in yesterday's issue of this paper, that he was about to leave the employ of the New Vancouver Coal Company. He has been granted leave of absence for a few months, to prosecute some private interests, and will, early in the spring, go up to live upon his ranch at Errington. We regret the error into which we were led, and gladly give publicity to this correction.

OVER THE BOUNDARY.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 15.—The accommodation train from South Orange, N. J., crashed into the rear of an express train from Dover, which had slackened speed on account of the fog. Two cars of the express were telescoped, and fifteen passengers in these cars were known to have been killed, and twenty-five are terribly mangled. The shrieks of the wounded could be heard for a long distance and the greatest excitement prevailed. The express usually stops at Roseville, but this morning, owing to the fog, she ran by so slowly that she was boarded by some 50 of the residents of Roseville, who were waiting on the South Orange accommodation. Most of those who boarded the train were men doing business in New York, and the dead and injured consist chiefly of these passengers.

A woman who claims to be the widow of Charles Stewart Parnell is living in Opelika, Ala., having come there several months ago, she says, to escape the persecutions of her enemies. She appears to be well supplied with money, but nobody seems to know where she came from.

Boys playing near Pleasantville, O., discovered in an old culvert a robbers' den. Nearly a peck of watches and chains, jewelry, silverware and money was found. There is no trace of the robbers. The property has nearly all been restored to owners in various parts of the country.

The commercial cable to-day paid off $400,000 of bonds in New York, being the remainder of its original issue of $3,000,000, which has been retired out of the surplus earnings.

George Holsworth was accidently shot at Stockton, Cal., late last Saturday afternoon by his sixteen year old son. The two were out hunting, the son raised his gun to shoot and it was prematurely discharged, the load of shot entering the right leg of the older Holsworth, a little below the hip. Amputation may be necessary.

LINES ON A CYNIC.

He daily trod the ways of busy men,
Silent, serene; and in the city's mart
They often marked his placid features, when
They could not read the anguish in his heart.
Inscrutable, and grave of mien, to all
Save me he seemed a man of marble wrought,
But I, I knew his calm was but a pall
Wherewith to shroud the skeleton of thought.
Was not his secret writ upon his brow,
In one sad symbol pitifully plain?
That furrow was not turned by Time's dull plow.
Rather a sworn cut deep by deathless pain.
He daily paced the city's populous ways,
But through his heart a sad and hopeless song
Went ever singing, and his patient gaze
Was fixed on something far beyond the throng.

THE LOVERS' STRATAGEM

(By Eric St. C. K. Ross.)

CHAPTER I.

At this moment her father was heard calling—"Georgy, I say."

"Yes, papa," she returned, and hurried out to him.

Evelyn seated himself again at the table, but on this occasion at the side farthest from the centre of the room. He was by no means in an enviable mood, and leaned his face upon his hands.

Clara now drew from her purse some bank notes, and was examining them, when Lady Franklin returned and leant over her sweet companion's shoulder.

"His noble spirit bowed to this," murmured Clara, "Ah! at least here I may give him comfort," and she sat down to write. Then she halted abruptly saying:—"But he will recognise my hand."

"What bill are you paying, Clara?" asked Lady Franklin, softly, toying with a bank-note. "Going to send this away?" "Hush!" murmured Clara, drawing the lady away from Evelyn's vicinity. "Oh! Lady Franklin," she added, "you are the kindest of human beings. This is for a poor person, I would not have her know whence it came or she would refuse it. Would you? No,—he knows her handwriting also!"

"Will I—what?" asked Lady Franklin, "give the money myself?—with pleasure! Poor Clara—Why this covers all your savings, and I am so rich!"

"Nay, I would wish to do all myself!" returned Clara. "It is a pride—a duty—it is a joy; and I have so few joys! But hush! —this way."

And she drew Lady Franklin into the next room, and had some conversation in a low tone, while Evelyn, thinking himself alone raised his head and almost murmured aloud—

"And thus must I grind out my life for ever!—I am ambitious, and poverty drags me down—I have learning, and poverty makes me the drudge of fools!—I love, and poverty stands like a spectre before the altar! But, no, no—if, as I believe, I am but loved again, I will—will—what?—turn opium-eater, and dream of the Eden I may never enter!"

"But Evelyn must be sure not to know I sent the money to his nurse," said Clara returning with Lady Franklin.

"Never fear," returned the elder lady, I will get my maid to copy and direct this—she writes well, and her hand will never be discovered. I will have it done and sent instantly."

And the good-natured lady retired upon her kindly mission. A servant now announced Sir Frederick Blount and retired. Clara had seated herself by the table near the centre of the room. The Baronet, was a dandy of the first water, with light hair, a receding forehead, and an eye-glass. The reader will have gathered something of his character from Lady Franklin's mimicry. His clothes were as gaudy as an acknowledged member of a good family might wear. The coat had broad silk braid round its edges, he wore a tremendously large gold cable chain across his buff waistcoat, his trousers were of the very lightest tweed, and of a good pronounced shepherd check pattern, while his fingers were covered with glittering rings.

"No one in the woom," he lisped, as he came in, and Clara rose and stood close beside her chair. "Oh! Miss Douglas!" he went on. "Pway don't let me disturb you. Where is Miss Vesey—Georgina?" and as he spoke he coolly appropriated Clara's chair and sat down, whereupon Evelyn, who was enraged, handed the young lady another chair, and muttered betwnen his teeth, "Insolent puppy!" The three were now seated.

"Ah! Sir Frederick," said Clara, "shall I tell her you are here?"

"Not for the world," cried the baronet. "Vewy pwetty girl this companion!"

"What did you think of the panorama the other day, cousin Evelyn?" asked Clara.

Evelyn here read aloud—

"I cannot talk with civet in the room,
A fine puss gentleman that's all perfume!"

"Rather good lines these."

"Sir!" cried Sir Frederick, rising.

"Don't you think so?" asked Evelyn, offering him the book, and adding in an explanatory tone, "Cowper."

"Cowper!" echoed Sir Frederick, declining the book.

"Cowper!" repeated Evelyn, solemnly.

"Strange person, Mr. Evelyn," said Sir Frederick, shrugging his shoulders, to Clara. "Quite a chawacter! Indeed the panowama gives you no idea of Naples—a delightful place. I make a wule to go there evewy second year. I am vewy fond of twavelling. You'd like Wome (Rome)—bad Inns, but vewy fine wuins; give you quite a taste for that sort of thing."

Here Evelyn again read aloud—

"How much a dunce who has been sent to roam Excels a dunce that has been kept at home."

"Sir!" cried Blount indignantly, rising again.

"Cowper!" returned Evelyn, offering the book.

"That fellow Cowper says vewy odd things," cried Sir Frederick. "Humph! It is beneath me to quawwell. It will not take long to wead the will, I suppose," he proceeded to Clara, and quite ignoring Evelyn. "Poor old Mordaunt, I am his nearest male welation. He was vewy eccentwic. By the way, Miss Douglas, did you ever wemawk my cuwickle?" He now approached the young girl closer, and became, if possible, more condescending and familiar. "It is bwinging cuwickles again in fashion. I should be most happy if you will allow me to dwive you out. Nay, nay, I should, upon my word," and he endeavored very awkwardly, but not the less earnestly, to take her hand as a servrnt entered and said—

"Sir John will be happy to see you in his study, Sir Frederick;" and having made the announcement, he retired.

"Vewy well!" exclaimed Sir Frederick. Then he murmured to himself, "Upon my word, there is something vewy nice about this girl." Having delivered himself of so much, he made a few stammering steps in the direction of the door, and then proceeded with his method of self-communing—"To be sure I love Georgina, but if this one would take a fancy to me —" Here he paused thoughtfully, and then added, "Well! I don't see what harm it could do me! Au plaisir!" And away he went stumbling over the rug near the threshold in his endeavor to walk with becoming dignity.

CHAPTER II.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

Alfred Evelyn got up with an air of relief, and Clara uttered a sign "signifying the same," as the fashionable Sir Frederick left the room. After this there was a lengthened silence which was at last broken by Evelyn, saying in a low tone of voice—"Claro!"

"Cousin!" was the young girl's reply.

"And you, too, are a dependent," he said.

"But on Lady Franklin, who seeks to make me forget it," returned Clara.

"Ah, but can the worldlforget it?" cried Evelyn. "This insolent condescension; this coxcombry of admiration; more galling than the arrogance of contempt. Look you now, robe beauty in silk and cashmere; hand virtue into her chariot; lackey their caprices; wrap them from the winds; fence them round with a golden circle, and virtue and beauty are as woman's holiest blessings. Strip them of the adjuncts; see beauty and virtue poor, dependent, solitary, walking the world defenceless; oh, then the devotion changes its character; the same crowd gather eagerly around—fools, fops, libertines—not to worship at the shrine, but to sacrifice the victim!"

"My cousin, you are cruel!" exclaimed Miss Douglas. "I can smile at the pointless insolence—"

"Smile," he murmured; "and he took your hand! Oh, Clara, you know not the tortures that I suffer hourly! When others approach you—young, fair, rich—the sleek darling of the world; I accuse you of your very beauty—I writhe beneath every smile that you bestow." Here Clara was about to speak. "No, speak not! my heart has broken its silence and you shall hear the rest. For you I have endured the weary bondage of this house; the fool's gibe; the hireling's sneer; the bread, purchased by toils that should have led me to loftier ends. Yes, to see you—hear you—breathe the same air—be ever at hand—that if others slighted, from one, at least, you might receive the luxury of respect—for this—for this I have lingered, suffered and forborne. Oh, Clara! we are orphans both—friendless both; you are all in the world to me! Turn not away; my very soul speaks in these words—I love you."

"No, Evelyn—Alfred. No!" she cried. "Say it not—think it not—it were madness."

"Madness!" he echoed. "Nay, hear me me yet. I am poor, penniless; a beggar for bread to a dying servant. True! But I have a heart of iron! I have knowledge, patience, health, and my love for you gives me at last ambition. I have trifled with my own energies till now, for I despised all things till I loved thee. With you to toil for, you step to support, your path to smoothe; and I—I, poor Alfred Evelyn, promise to win for you at last rven fame and fortune!" Here he took her hand. "Do not withdraw your hand; this hand—shall it not be mine?"

"Ah, Evelyn," she murmured. "Never! never!"

"Never!" he cried in amazement.

"Forget this folly," she entreated, "our union is impossible, and to talk of love were to deceive both."

"Because I am poor?" he exclaimed bitterly.

"And I, too!" she cried. "A marriage of privation, of penury, of days that dread the morrow. I have seen such a lot. Never return to this again."

"Enough, you are obeyed," he said sadly. "I deceived myself; ha! ha! I fancied that I too was loved. I, whose youth is already half gone with care and toil; whose mind is soured, whom nobody can love; who ought to have loved no one."

"And if it were only I to suffer, or perhaps to starve," she murmured to herself. "Oh, what shall I say?" she added aloud. "Evelyn, cousin?"

"Madam."

"Alfred—I—I—"

"Reject me," he murmured.

"Yes! It is past," she moaned, and hurried out of the room.

"Let me think," he murmured, sinking into a chair. "It was yesterday her hand trembled when mine touched it. And the rose I gave her; yes, she pressed her lips to it once when she seemed as if she saw me not. But it was a trap, a trick, for I was just as poor then as now. This will be a jest for them all! Well, courage! It is but a poor heart that a coquette's contempt can break."

As he spoke he went up behind the table and took another chair, as a servant entered, ushering in Lord Glossmore.

"I will tell Sir John, my lord," said the servitor, going out at the inner door.

Evelyn took up a newspaper as the peer moved a chair away from his neighborhood, and murmured—

"The secretary, hum!" Then aloud, he said patronizingly—"Fine day, sir. Any news from the East?"

"Yes," returned Evelyn, who never could resist a good opening, "all the wise men have gone back there."

Mr. Stout was at this moment announced by another footman.

"Ha! ha!" laughed the peer. "You are wrong, for here comes Mr. Stout, the great political economist."

As he spoke, Mr. Stout, a very portly and decided looking man indeed, came heavily forward, saying—"Good morning, Glossmore."

"Glossmore!" murmured the peer, indignant at the familiarity of the other. "The parvenu!"

"Afraid I might be late, been detained at the vestry," explained Stout. "Astonishing how ignorant the English poor are! Took me an hour and a half to beat it into the head of a stupid old widow with nine children that to allow her three shillings a week was against the rules of public morality!"

"Excellent!" cried Evelyn. "Admirable! your hand, sir!"

"What! you approve of such doctrines, Mr. Evelyn?" exclaimed Lord Glossmore. "Are old women only fit to be starved?"

"Starved?" cried Evelyn, "popular delusion! Observe, my lord, to squander money upon those who starve is only to afford encouragement to starvation."

"A very superior person that," remarked Mr. Stout.

"Atrocious principles!" cried Lord Glossmore. "Give me the good old times when it was the duty of the rich to succor the distressed."

"On second thoughts, you are right, my lord," Evelyn continued. "I, too, know a poor woman, ill, dying, in want. Shall she, too, perish?"

"Perish! horrible! in a Christian country. Perish! heaven forbid!" said his lordship.

"What then will you give her?" asked Evelyn, holding out his hand.

"Ehem! Sir, the parish ought to give," returned his lordship.

"By no means," shouted Stout.

"By all means," cried Glossmore.

"No, no, no. Certainly not!" shouted Mr. Stout, with great vehemence.

"No, no! But I say yes, yes!" persisted the peer. "And if the parish refuse to maintain the poor, the only way left to a man of firmness and resolution, holding the principles that I do, and adhering to the constitution of our fathers, is to force the poor on the parish by never giving them a farthing oneself."

"No, no," proceeded Mr. Stout.

"Yes, yes," cried the peer.

"Gentlemen, perhaps Sir John will decide," said Evelyn.

As he spoke, Sir John and others were heard approaching.

CHAPTER III.

'OLD MORDAUNT'S WILL.

LADY FRANKLIN approached majestically and gracefully on her brother's arm. After them came Georgina, attended by Sir Frederick Blount, who every moment seemed about to trip himself up by treading upon her train. In their wake followed a page who instantly withdrew, presumably satisfied that his mistress was no longer in danger of being swamped by the young baronet whose sight was no doubt obscured by his eye-glass. "How d'ye do! Ah!" cried Sir John. "How d'ye do, gentlemen? Ah, Stout! This a most melancholy meeting! The poor deceased!—what a man he was!"

"I was chwistened Fwedewick after him!" said Blount. "He was my first cousin."

"And Georgina his own niece—next of kin!" exclaimed Sir John—"an excellent man, though odd—a kind heart, but no liver! I sent him twice a-year thirty dozen of the Cheltenham waters. It's a confort to reflect on these little attentions at such a time."

"And I, too, sent him the Parliamentary Debates regularly, bound in calf," was Mr. Stout's remark. "He was my second cousin—sensible man—and a follower of Malthus; never married to increase the surplus population, and fritter away his money on his children. And now— —"

"He reaps the benefit of celibacy in the prospective gratitude of every cousin he had in the world!" said Evelyn.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Lady Franklin. "Hush! hush! decency, Lady Franklin; decency! cried Sir John.

A servant at this juncture announced—"Mr. Graves. Mr. Sharp."

"Oh! here's Mr. Graves," exclaimed Sir John. "And that's Mr. Sharp who brought the will from Calcutta." Mr. Graves, attired as usual in funeral-looking black, approached in a very melancholy manner. Mr. Sharp seemed to be as sharp as his name, for as soon as he appeared to have mastered the "bearings" of the room, he went straight to the sofa, and began to prepare his papers for the interesting ceremony about to be enacted. Meantime Sir John took Mr. Graves by the hand, and said—

"Ah! sir. Ah! Mr. Graves!" while Georgina with admirable feeling and forethought raised her handkerchief to her eyes.

"A sad occasion," proceeded Sir John.

"But everything in life is sad," moaned Mr. Graves, as two servants came in with wine and other light refreshments, which they proceeded to hand round, beginning at Lady Franklin.

"Be comforted, Miss Vesey," proceeded Mr. Graves. "True, you have lost an uncle, but I have lost a wife—such a wife—the first of her sex—and the second cousin of the defunct. Excuse me, Sir John," he continued, raising a great white handkerchief to his eyes.

"At the sight of your mourning"—Sir John had changed his attire—"my wounds bleed afresh."

Here the servants approached with wine and sandwiches.

"Take some refreshment," said Sir John, gently. "A glass of wine."

"Thank you!" returned Mr. Graves, sipping the wine; then suddenly emptying the glass, he said, almost eagerly and with a twinkle—a momentary lighting up—of his dark, dark eyes, "Very fine sherry! Ah! my poor sainted Maria," he went on in his usual lugubrious tones, "sherry was her wine; everything reminds me of Maria."

Leaving Sir John, he approached Lady Franklin, who was seated at the table, and said—

"Ah! Lady Franklin, you knew her. Nothing in life can charm me now;" and as he was turning from her ladyship, he was heard to murmur to himself, "A monstrous fine woman that."

"And now to business," said Sir John Vesey.

At the word "business," all the servants retired. Sir John proceeded in a voice in which dignity was admirably blended, with just the right measure of sorrow befitting the occasion.

"Evelyn, you may retire."

IT'S RATHER HARD . ˙ .

∴ It is hard to see goods go at such prices and expected profits cut down bel w zero. The peculiarities of the season are not pleasant doses to take, but take them we must—so the knife is used, and prices are cut down fine.

∴ "Money talks," but it is reticent a good deal of the time just now. Still, if you deal with us the bargains talk and keep money along in the general conversation.

∴ We wish every lady in the district to know about our Bargain Counter. It's a dandy. Why, madame, there's goods on these same counters, that come in for every day use, at prices which we cannot again duplicate—goods that we feel it a "crying shame" to sacrifice Still we have to do it, and our customers are the gainers.

∴ We have just sorted up in D. & A. Corsets - all sizes now in stock.

A Visit to the Old Jail.

The present jail will soon be a thing of the past, yet, though the new building will be an improvement, the accommodations of the old stand-by are much better than would be imagined from viewing the structure outside. Yesterday, by the courtesy of Sheriff Drake, a TELEGRAM representative was showd around the interior and saw unveiled the mysteries of locking and unlocking the cells and the details of the cooking and washing establishments At present there are about 40 prisoners in the jail, 14 or 16 of whom are in the chain gang, the remainder being kept in the building. The exercise yard is of quite a large size and surprises one, as its dimensions would not be imagined from an outside view.

An elevated platform extends along the upper side of the yard upon which the guard patrols during the time the prisoners are having their exercise, the same platform with an addition being used as the gallows when the extreme penalty of the law has to be administered. Each cell has accommodations for three inmates and are heated by stoves. The food supplied is wholesome and probably better than some unfortunates have to put up with outside; the cooking is done by one of the prisoners who, in cases of sickness at night is able to get assistance from outside, by simply knocking at the door, having his bed near the kitchen and not being locked up. The Salvation Army leave papers at the prison every week, and the Y.M.C.A. also supply reading matter to the prisoners, who fully appreciate the kindness. A separate cell is provided for klootchmen, and another for new arrivals, called the "Bummer's Cell," where the new comers are kept till they receive the uniform with the conspicuous "N.P.," when they are drafted off into the other compartments. Before closing up for the night the Sheriff examines each prisoner's bedding, etc., and he is then locked up for the night. In their exercising hours, especially Saturday afternoon, the prisoners indulge in games of all sorts in the yard.

Mr. Drake very kindly explained the whole routine to our reporter, who took his leave, not wishing to remain as an inmate of that institution.

THE TELEGRAM job plant is now in position to do all kinds of job printing on the shortest notice. We have a large stock of all kinds of papers on hand and will guarantee to suit our customers in stock and work.
