DENMAN ISLAND NOTES

The milk industry has begun, with a large percentage over last year to the condensery at Courtenay. There are rumors current that several other farmers are going to join in the enterprise.

Mrs. W. Baikie and her daughter, Winifred, left by train from Union Bay on a visit to Victoria.

There is some criticism over the long continued silence of the Denman Island Athletic Club having its spacious hall closed so long. Lenton season is now over, so probably we may hear from it in the near future in the usual good old style.

The Misses Bell-Irving spent the week-end at Little River, being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bambrick.

Mr. G. Russell has left for a few months visit to Scotland. We wish him a pleasant trip and a safe return.

Mr. J. Oiliver and C. Delaney, representing the Commercial Review of Calgary, are here in the interests of that publication.

BIG SNAP.

FOR SALE—At a gift price, Player piano, in first-class condition. Buyer gets 50 well selected records free. Apply Royal Bank, Cumberland.

Miss Hazel Frame, teacher in one of the Vancouver public schools, spent the Easter vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Frame.

FOR SALE—Gasolene launch, in first class condition; 3 horse power engine. For particulars, apply at the Cumberland News. Boat can accomodate 10 passengers.

Royston has organized a Conservative Association.

The handwriting is on the wall all right. Saltpetre wouldn't save them this time. The Liberal Sun of Prosperity will soon be shining. There will be no more graft. (?)

It looks as if Austria was just about down and out. The sooner the better. If Austria should sue for peace and get it, then will be the beginning of the end of this gigantic struggle.

One of the windows in the Ideal Store was broken by a rock on Friday afternoon. By whom, and from whence the rock was hurled is a mystery. This place is becoming famous for its chicken stealing, window smashing and store robbing. There may be an excuse for a man stealing something to eat, but there is no excuse for window smashing.

The Cumberland Liberal Association met on Monday evening in K. of P. Hall. The attendance was not as large as usual Mr. Hugh Stewart, the Liberal candidate for Comox, and Mr. John McKenzie, jr., a prominent Courtenay Liberal, were present, and addressed the meeting. Mr. Stewart gave a very interesting account of his campaign away north, and is more than sanguine of the success of the Liberal cause in that portion of the constituency. Arrangements were made for the reception of Messrs Brewster and Oliver when they arrive in town on Wednesday.

We had the genuine April sunshine and showers on Tuesday.

Fifteen carloads of aeroplanes for use of the aeroplane corps of the Russian army will be shipped to Vladivostok, Siberia, aboard the Japanese steamer Hakushika Maru. The air craft will be taken aboard at Tacoma. They came from the east over the C. P. R. passing through Seattle Wednesday night.

Bills of lading covering the consignment have not been received, but it is estimated that each car contains at least ten aeroplanes, a total of at least 150. The value is estimated at between $3,000 and $4,000 each, a total of between $450,000 and $600,000 The aeroplanes are in the "knock-down."

The shipment would have gone by way of Vancouver, but for a [illegible] result that the Hakushika Maru will not call at that port.

COURTENAY RESIDENT HAD CLOSE CALL

Courtenay, April 12.—Robert McQuillan, a resident of Courtenay, narrowly escaped drowning while fishing in the Courtenay river. Mr. McQuillan was fishing from a boat anchored in the river at a part where the water runs swiftly, when the anchor began to drag. He went to the bow to pull up the anchor, and the boat went down by the head and overturned and he was thrown into the water and carried away by the swift current. Two men who were fishing nearby went to his assistance.

The river now is full of trout, and local sportsmen are making good catches of splendid fish varying from one to four pounds.

Charlie Dalton, of the Hotel Cumberland staff, received nasty cuts about the face by the collapse of the stairs when he was going down into the cellar. He fell about twelve feet. It came pretty near being all off with the "Tango Cocktail Mixer;" and another little job for the undertaker. Charlie will have to reduce his weight.

The following is from the Winnipeg Free Press expresses the sentiments of the great majority of the people of Canada in these critical times: "The people of Canada are literally sick over the disgusting revelations of graft and cupidity at Ottawa with relation to the supplying of equipment for our soldiers in the field. The dirty hand of the corrupt heeler has taken toll from everybody. The responsibility of this disgrace rests upon the Borden government. When it made the fitting out of the contingent an opportunity for the exercise of party patronage it made the scandals inevitable.

What Did He Mean?

A gentleman, while at a club in Washington a short time ago, became engaged in a desultory conversation with a prominent financier and representative from the south. The great man is of a most economical habit, and it is difficult for him to talk for any great length of time without touching upon the subject of economy. Sure enough, he suddenly invited attention to the suit of clothes he was wearing.

"I have never believed," said he, opening his coat, the better to display the details of the suit, "in paying fancy prices for cut to measure garments. Now, here is a suit for which I paid eight dollars and ninety-eight cents. Appearances are very deceptive. If I told you I purchased if for thirty-five dollars, you'd undoubtedly believe that to be the truth."

His friend viewed the suit critically for a moment as he replied, "I would, if you told me over the telephone."—Washington Star.

German Ghouls Rob Dead

From the battlefield of Soissons a correspondent sends the story of a German soldier who was shot for stealing watches from the dead.

"When I was almost at the door of the house where I am stopping, this evening, I saw, in the glare of the lamplight from the doorway, a French soldier with a German prisoner. The soldier was looking into the lighted hallway and the German stood dejectedly, with his head down and his right arm in a sling. A Swiss fugitive was with me, a young man from the devastated town of Senlis, and he asked permission of the soldier to speak to the prisoner.

"Don't let the officer see you talking when he comes out of the house," said the Frenchman.

At the first words of the Swiss the prisoner smiled with relief, and, stepping aside in the darkness, seated himself wearily on a stone. He said his arm was broken. In the light I had seen that the sleeve was torn and bloody.

"I'm suffering terribly," he said to the Swiss. "My hand is swoollen to twice the size and I am in terrible pain. I was caught because I was too weak and sick at the stomach to get away. Now, instead of taking me to the hospital, they bring me here. I am very much worried."

"Don't worry," said the Swiss. "The French are very kind to their prisoners. They will take you to the hospital and get your arm well and then they will make you do easy work."

As the two men talked, I noticed the injured arm moving in the bandage. It seemed to me that the sling hung loosely from the neck, instead of being weighted down with the wounded arm.

The French soldier was worriedly keeping his eye on the open doorway, waiting for the officer he had been sent to ask for. My Swiss friend unnoticing, talked on, trying to assure the young German giant that no harm would come to him.

"We've seen hundreds of German prisoners in this town," said the would be comforter, "and not a one of them has been harmed by the French. The two hospitals are full of wounded Germans, and you'll go to a hospital, too."

"But why do they bring me here?" asked the German, almost in a whimper. "I'm afraid they'll shoot me. Help me, if you can," he pleaded.

Then I saw a thing that made me give a half yell. "Look out!" I think I shouted, "His arm is out of the bandage." I thought the German was reaching for a revolver. The Swiss jumped back and shouted to the French soldier. Just at that instant the French officer appeared in the lighted doorway. "Where is that prisoner?" he said. "Here," said the Frenchman, reaching over and taking the German by the left arm. He dragged the prisoner into the light.

We saw then that his arm was not in the sling. Instead it hung, limp and bloody, in a most grotesque position, for the great swoollen fingers of what had once looked like a human hand were in the man's coat pocket.

"Take your hand out of your pocket," said the officer. The upper part of the prisoner's arm twitched with the effort; his face writhed in pain. His arm was broken and he could not move the lower part of it.

"Bring a doctor," ordered the officer. A Red Cross official came and gently lifted the terribly swollen hand from the pocket and put it back into the sling. Then we saw the doctor put his own hand into the pocket and bring out five watches and a small handful of French silver money.

"Stolen from the dead," said the officer. "No wonder he was trying to empty his pocket with that broken arm." The officer examined the watches and found they were all French. "He doesn't belong in a Red Cross hospital," said the officer. "Take him to a cellar. It's finished for him."

And the next morning, after a short court martial, he was shot.

The New Submarines

Armament is to be deplored, but no one is asserting that one nation can disarm while the powers about it continue to build dreadnought and organize new army corps. Therefore, although our military requirements, through the very influence of geographical location, are not so great as those of the other powerful nations, it is still essential that whatever of army and navy we do have should be efficient.

To this end the new submarine has been designed. It is over twice as large as any now in use in the war, and it has a greater speed. In addition, it is fitted with a powerful wireless apparatus, and with the new American device which enables a vessel of this type to stay under water safely for a longer period than those of the other nations. The important part that the submarine has played in the present conflict shows what an importance the little vessels of destruction may have in any conflict of the future. The American navy can perfect the submarine at a cost far less than that entailed by the construction of the super-dreadnoughts, and the new type of submarine is a decidedly forward step towards the ends of both economy and efficiency.—Boston Advertiser.

WHITE AS A GHOST

Pale or Sallow Cheeks One of the First Signs of Anaemia

Pale and sallow cheeks, with blanched lips and gums, and dark circles under the eyes, are the first signs that anaemia has begun its deadly progress. This first warning is followed by great weariness and breathlessness after any exertion. You grow melancholy, have frequent headaches, wake in the morning feeling tired. You become morbid and nervous, starting at the slightest noise, and your heart palpitates violently even on going upstairs. Most girls from fourteen to twenty suffer from anaemia. Neglect to supply new blood to the languishing, bloodless body, means a life of misery—indeed it is an open invitation to that most hopeless of all diseases, consumption.

The new, rich blood that cures anemia and gives new health and strength is readily created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. That is why these pills have cured more cases of bloodlessness and blood disorders than any other medicine. They have made thousands of girls and women strong, well and rosy, with bright eyes and new energy, just because they nourish the body with the new, rich, red blood of health. Here is a typical instance. Miss Laura Dempsey, Auburn, N.Y., says: "For several months I was in a very bad state of health, with many of the symptoms that accompany anaemia. I was pale and bloodless, had terrible headaches, would be breathless at the least exertion. Having tried a number of medicines without relief I naturally became discouraged and began to fear that I was doomed to continued illness. At this stage a friend who had herself been benefitted by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills urged me to try them. I did so and thanks to the pills I am now enjoying the best of health, and feel that I cannot recommend this splendid medicine too highly."

Other weak and ailing girls can also obtain new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER IRON CROSS

Captain of Ship Sunk by British Also Decorated

Captain Aye, of the auxiliary cruiser Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, which was sunk off the west coast of Africa by a British cruiser the latter part of August, has been decorated with the Iron Cross of the first class. In a statement made to the Berlinger Tageblatt, Capt. Aye says he managed to return to Germany as stoker on a neutral vessel.

Word from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, November 12, said that 10 officers from the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, who was on parole, had escaped in a Dutch steamer. They were disguised as firemen. The men had been lodged on a German steamer moored in the harbor at Las Palmas.

Time Has Tested.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has been on the market upwards of thirty years and in that time it has proved a blessing to thousands. It is in high favor throughout Canada, and its excellence has carried its fame beyond the seas. It has no equal in the whole list of liniments. If it were double the price it would be a cheap liniment.

Vandals In King Albert's Palace

A neutral correspondent, writing from Brussels, informs us that all the grounds of the Palace of Laeken, one of King Albert's summer residences, are occupied by troops, but the palace itself was occupied only for three days by officers.

The waiter who was commissioned to bring in their meals from one of the Brussels hotels waxed indignant over the destruction the German officers did among the pictures and old furniture. The officers would only dine at the palace. The order would be to serve dinner for fifty officers at eight and for ten servants at ten. This went on for three days just after the occupation of Brussels.

On the third day dinner was ordered for 6:30 and was accordingly sent, but when the waiters arrived no officers were to be seen, but the place was in a terrible state.

The officers seem to have received marching orders hurriedly, but before leaving the waiter said they cut the paintings with knives, shot holes in the furniture and tore great holes in the carpets.

They reported they had been furnished with a regular calendar of dates, and were due to arrive in London on a specified day, which appointment they would certainly keep.

But the date has now passed, and it is feared that they will incur royal displeasure for not being up to date.

Jolting Ye Benedict

Some time ago there was a meeting of a historical society in a New England town, and during the afternoon a visiting woman was introduced to a member of the local organization, who chanced to be a spinster. Eventually the single blessedness was alluded to.

"May I ask, Miss Smith," remarked the visitor, "if you have any particular reasons for not caring to marry?"

"Well," smilingly replied the spinster, "it may be because I have three things about my house which so closely represented the characteristics of the average man that I am warned against the married state."

"I don't think I quite understand you, Miss Smith," was the wondering response of the other.

"It's this way," explained the spinster; "I have a dog that growls all the morning, a parrot that swears all the afternoon, and a cat that stays out all night."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

"I think I know what brought you here," said the good police court missionary to the very hard proposition who faced him in the dim but by no means religious light of the cell.

"Ah, my poor friend," continued the good man, "why didn't you fight harder?"

"Well, guv'nor, I done my best," said the sad case. "It took six o' 'em to put me on the blinkin' hamberlance."

Didn't Like Cold Steel

A private in the Cameron Highlanders describes a bayonet charge which routed part of the enemy's forces in the battle of the Aisne. The Camerons were a unit in the First Brigade, and on September 14 the Germans attacked the brigade, which had the Camerons and the Coldstream Guards and the Scots Guards on their flanks. At one time the flanks seemed to be getting into a tight corner, and the Camerons resorted to the bayonet. "We had to cover about 200 yards or so," he says, "and the German machine guns were on us, but we kept at it and they scattered. The Prussian Guards were amongst the enemy's forces at this point, and they too preferred flight to meeting the bare steel."

Strategy

Hans and Fritz, two small boys, had gone to the rink to skate. Han's overcoat hampered him and he wanted to get rid of it. The German coatroom person does not check you coat unless you pay your fee. The fee was only a penny, but Hans did not have the penny. He was at a loss.

"Huh, it's dead easy!" spoke up Fritz. "Give me your overcoat. I'll take it to the man at the checking place and say I found it. He'll put it away. When you are ready to go home, you go to him and ask if anybody has turned a lost overcoat in to him. Then, of course, you'll get yours."—New York Evening Post.

How to Find 'Em

It has often been said that a Jew, likewise a son of Caledonia, will grab at money be he alive or dead. Ikey Abramovitch was working in a wood machine shop and run his hand against a circular saw so that two fingers fell off and got in amongst the sawdust. They hurried him away to the hospital, and two of his mates began looking for his fingers among the sawdust, when in walked the foreman. "What in Hades are you looking for?" asked he. "We're trying to locate Ikey's fingers," said one of them.

With a short of contempt the foreman threw a silver dollar on the floor when out from the sawdust wriggled the two fingers, groping for the money!

He—Do you think that money is necessary to happiness.

She—Not if one has unlimited credit.

"Yes," said the storekeeper, "I want a good, bright boy to be partly indoors and partly outdoors."

"That's all right," said the applicant, "but what becomes of me, when the door slams shut?"

He Also Works

Father—My son, I worked my way through college.

'17—Maybe you don't call it work to have to wash my runabout before I can take it out every Saturday afternoon.

The Mouth of Babes

Precocious Child—Mamma, when people get suffrage, does it just come for two or three days and then go away, or does it last a long time, like whooping cough and measles?

Alkali Ike—And so Slippery Sam died with his boots on, eh?

Broncho Bill—No he died with my boots on. That's how he came to die.

She—We women have to stand a lot.

He—Not in the street cars if you're pretty.—Boston Transcript.

FRANCE MAY EXHIBIT

U.S. Will Place Naval Vessel at France's Disposal

A semi official communication from Bordeaux announcing the intention of the government to participate in the Panama Pacific international exposition, says this country's participation will be an expression of the good will of the French toward the United States, and that it is the desire of France to draw yet closer the bonds connecting the two great republics.

The communication says that Myron T. Herrick, the retiring American ambassador to France, recently expressed an earnest desire to see France affirm again her sympathetic feelings towards the American people, and Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition, in a message to Minister of the Interior Malvy, referred to the immense satisfaction caused in the United States by the determination of France to be represented officially.

The communication sketches the character of the French participation, and says that ample spaces have been allotted to French industry and to show the achievements in French art, science and engineering. It announces that the American government has placed at the disposition of the exhibitors a naval vessel which will leave a French port early in January to transport exhibits to the United States free of charge.

"So you have given your wife your word that you will favor votes for women?"

"Yes," replied the man who dislikes argument.

"What are your reasons for doing so?"

"It's cheaper. If I say I'm not in favor of votes for women, it's liable to hurt my wife's feelings so that it will take as much as a diamond necklace to enable me to square myself."—Washington Star.

Gentlemen,—Last winter I received great benefit from the use of MINARD'S LINIMENT in a severe attack of La Grippe, and I have frequently proved it to be very effective in cases of Inflammation.

Yours,
W. A. HUTCHINSON.

The First Symptom

The church of a small town in the malaria country had a hot air plant installed as a porvision for cold weather. On the Sunday when the new appliance was first used, a widow and her yellow skinned, ague stricken son came from their home, several miles away, to attend the service. As luck would have it, the usher escorted the pair to a pew that was directly over a register. Presently, as the janitor fed the furnace in the basement below, the boy boy began to wriggle and twist.

"Ma," he whispered, "I got to go! I ain't feeling well."

"What's the matter?" inquired his mother. "Air you fixin' to have another spell?"

"Yessum; must be," said the sufferer. "I kin fel the fever coming up my laigs."

Seditious Literature

Seditious matter should not be circulated in Canada in time of war. When the justice of Britain's cause is so widely admitted there is a particular argument against the practice. If there are sections of the Canadian public served by seditious matter at this time they should be willing to give it up as a courtesy to the nation in which they are making their living and enjoying the privileges of freedom and peace. The temper of the Canadian people will be aroused to a dangerous extent against foreigners of inimical nationalities unless the pro-German propaganda stops at the borders of Canada.—Montreal Mail.

Caught a Tartar

During a military review at Aldershot last summer one of the foreign attaches had made himself obnoxious to several staff officers by asking ridiculous and often impertinent questions. At last he caught a Tartar. Turning to an old infantry officer he said, "How is it, Colonel, that your bugle call 'Advance' is so very short, while the 'Retreat' is just the reverse?"

"Because, sir," replied the old veteran, "when a British soldier goes into action it only needs a little note from a bugle to make him advance anywhere, but it takes a whole brass band to make him retire!"

ACHING BACK GETS RELIEF QUICK!
ONE RUB WITH "NERVILINE" CURES

Every Bit of Stiffness and Soreness Goes When "Nerviline" Is Used

Pain in back or side is awful hard to reach. Deep in the tissue is a congested or strained muscle. It is a long way for a liniment to go. Liniments you have used have not reached it, and the pain bothers you, whether moving or lying down.

What a pity you haven't tried Nerviline! Penetrating, you ask? Yes, and powerful, too. Nerviline strikes in far deeper than any application you have ever used. You might pay a dollar, ten dollars a hundred, for that matter, but you could not equal Nerviline, either in strength, quickness of action, or permanency of relief.

If you think this too much to say for Nerviline, try it, and be convinced.

If you receive from Nerviline even a little less relief from pain than this advertisement induces you to expect you can get your money back.

The only pain remedy in the world sold under a guarantee is Nerviline—surely it is safe to try it.

Nerviline is sold by druggists everywhere, 25 cents or 50 cents a bottle, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co Kingston, Canada.

Innocents Slain by Teutons

Further charges of atrocities by the Germans in Belgium, including the allegation that a total of at least 2,150 civilians were executed at Tamines, Dinant and in Belgian Luxemberg are made by the Belgian war bureau. Describing the alleged massacres the report says:

"At Tamines 450 men were collected in front of the church and shot down by machine guns, 260 houses were sacked and burned. Many persons, including women and children, were burned in their homes. Others were shot in the fields while endeavoring to escape. The total number of victims is 650."

Similar scenes were enacted at Dinant, the report declares. More than 700 inhabitants were killed and only 200 houses of 1,400 remained standing.

The worst excesses were in the Belgian provinces of Luxemberg, the statement says. "Everywhere the plundering was systematic and complete. The executions in the village of this province alone totalled 1,000. Three thousand houses were burned and the destruction was almost complete. Many Germans, it is alleged were attacked by the populace. The inhabitants say the only possible ground for the crimes was that the soldiers were drunk and took pleasure in inflicting suffering. They were angered by the resistance of the Belgian army, or were under orders to systematically destroy from their superiors."

It is further asserted that at Tamines when the shooting by rifle was too slow, the German officers ordered up a machine gun and those not killed by the bullets from this weapon were finished by bayonet thrusts.

Rubber and Gasoline

Modern warfare imperatively demands the use of countless auto trucks, which in turn require supplies of gasoline and rubber, neither of which can be found in Germany. Of these, gasoline is the most important. There are some oil wells in Galicia, but they are in that part of Galicia which is occupied by the Russians. Scandinavia has no petroleum fields, nor has Denmark or Holland. Unless they can import in some clandestine way, Germany and Austria have to fight entirely on the supply which they at present possess.

It would be surprising if they had enough of this commodity laid by to supply their huge war requirements for a whole year. Should it give out, the collapse of heir field transport would be ruinous. Their armies invading France and Poland would have to be called home to shorten the distance between them and their base of supplies. Rubber seems like a minor commodity until its uses are considered in detail. For the wheels of automobiles and motor trucks, it has no effective substitute. Without it these vehicles would wear themselves out in short order.

It is also essential to the construction of balloons and Zeppelins for observation. Again it is essential for rubber sheets to protect the soldiers when sleeping. There are quite a number of minor commodities, which appear of small moment, but the exhaustion of any of which would cause the breakdown of the army.—Montreal Weekly Witness.

GUARDS WATCHING LONDON

Thirty Thousand Men Sworn In to Protect City From Outside Attacks

London has 30,000 special constables. While the citizens of the world's greatest capital are waiting with anxiety, but without fear, the coming raid of the army of Zeppelins, the special constables are fully occupied groping about in impenetrable darkness, watching for the enemy by the rays of the searchlights which sweep the skies nightly.

They have other duties besides this, however. The men work all over the city in four hour shifts. They are selected from all classes of the community. Here we find an artist who takes his turn at one of the music halls; there the son of a country squire, who is studying science at the London university; again there is a burly city clerk who is engaged in the work of the counting house if any, during the hours he is not doing special duty as a constable.

At some of the stations the "specials" receive post cards calling upon them to take up certain duties at a fixed time and place. If they can't come they have to find substitutes. They have their days on and their nights off, very much like a newspaper man, week and week about. At some stations, however, things are not so easy and regular. Creature comforts are often lacking, but they go uncomplainingly without the necessaries they have a right to demand.

DANDRUFF ON HEAD IN DRY CRUST

Hair Came Out. Scalp Itched and Burned. Scales Like Sawdust. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed In Six Weeks.

The Pas, Manitoba.—"Four years ago I began to lose my hair. It used to come out any time that I combed it. I think it was because my head was full of dandruff. Whenever I brushed it the scales flew off like saw-dust. My scalp also itched and burned and my head was like a dry crust. The dandruff showed very plainly.

THE TERRIBLE COSSACK

Ferocious In War, the Tsar's "Far Riders" Are Tillers of Soil In Peace Time

By repute the Cossacks are among the most terrible warriors in Europe. A troop of English "Tommies" with plentiful machine guns might wreak double the destruction, but Cossacks are preceded by the terror of their reputation. And if cities tremble when they hear that these furious horsemen are on the move, it is quite as much in dread of their proverbially ferocious revenges, when victorious, as of their military prowess.

"Far riders" the Cossacks always have been and far riders they are still. Hordes of them, for the present business of war, have come from the southern frontier of Russia, and the most recent despatches tell of their riding within twenty miles of Cracow, and of a civilian population ordered to decamp. They are reported to have accelerated, by their activity, the retirment of the Germans from Warsaw and Ovangorod from seven miles a day to twenty miles a day.

The Cossacks, two and one-half millions of them, are the human rampart of the Russian empire, flung out in a long line from the Black Sea to the Pacific, along that southern frontier which it has been their traditional office to defend.

In the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the Cossacks had their own semi-republican states, governed by a military chief chosen by their own people. They grew powerful enough to cause the government of Muscovy to quake for its supremacy. Furious wars raged between the two with varying fortunes until the Cossacks were, partly by force, partly by fraud, gradually weakened.

Then, by a cunning stroke of statecraft, the Muscovy Tsars manoeuvred to unite their foes peaceably with Holy Russia and turn their impetuous valor to the defence of their frontiers. Ermak, a Cossack freebooter, to propitiate Ivan the Terrible, offered as a present to Russia the enormous continent of Siberia, which he had in the year 1580 invaded at the head of his horsemen and had captured from Mongols and Tartars. That, too, was something of a "far ride"—5,000 miles. The spot is still shown where, by tradition, Ermak rode his horse into the surf of the Pacific.

It may be questioned whether ever before or since so immeasurable a territory has fallen to so small a party of military invaders. Ermak's present to Ivan the Terrible is larger than the whole of Europe.

So Russia obtained, at the price of some subsequent fighting, to be sure, not only a continent, but an army which has remained loyal. The Cossacks receive special privileges in return for military service lasting from the age of eighteen to thirty-eight. They now muster more than 300,000 fighting men, and, incidentally, they have better popular education than is enjoyed by other Russians.

Contrary to the popular supposition, the Cossack is not an unmitigated barbarian, according to the testimony offered by W. Barnes Stevens, who accords them two chapters in his recent volume on "The Russian Army from Within." In peaceful times they are an agricultural people, living on their own acres, merry, not unkindly, and the possessors of an art of folk song and folk dancing which is reputed to rival that of the Welsh and the Scandinavians.

It is war, apparently, which liberates their ferocity, in which, perhaps, they are not unlike other humans.

Prussian Guards

Frederick the Great originated the Prussian Guards. His ambition was to form a Royal bodyguard of giants, and every country was ransacked by its agents to supply recruits.

The most extravagant sums were offered to men of exceptional inches, and, it is said, an Irishman more than seven feet high, who was picked up by the Prussian Ambassador in London, received a bounty of $6,500.

Not a Direct Answer

A lawsuit was recently in full swing and during its progress a witness was cross examined as to the habits and characters of the defendant.

"Has Mr. M——a reputation for being abnormally lazy?" asked counsel briskly.

"Will you kindly answer the question asked?" struck in the irascible lawyer.

"Well, sir, I was going to say it's this way. I don't want to do the gentleman in question any injustice, and I won't go as far as to say, sir, that he's lazy exactly; but if it required any voluntary work on his part to digest his food—why, he'd die from lack of nourishment, sir."

Say Germans Alone Use "Dum-Dums"

The war office has issued a statement denying German allegations that the British troops have used "dum-dums" or soft nosed bullets, but maintaining that these kinds of missiles have been used by the Germans.

The statement describes the British and German service ammunition as very similar, the bullets being pointed with steel and the envelope coated with cupro-nickel, covering the core except at the base, and conforming with the provisions of the Hague convention.

In the opinion of Sir Victor Horsey, a well known surgeon, this bullet is "probably the most humane projectile yet devised," for the reason that the long, solid point, consisting almost entirely of a hard nickel sheath, precludes as far as possible any tendency toward deformation of shape, while the strength of the sheath prevents the bullet breaking up into fragments, except in very exceptional circumstances."

The statement ends: "There is, however, clear evidence that Germany has not confined herself solely to the use of this unobjectionable ammunition. Her troops in both Togoland and France have been proved to have used bullets with a soft core and a hard thin envelope not entirely covering the core, which type of bullet is expanding and is expressly prohibited by The Hague convention."

CRYING CHILDREN

When baby cries it is because he is unwell—not because he is bad-natured as so many imagine. Crying is the way the little one has of telling of his pains and the wise mother can instantly tell what ails her little one simply by his cry. When baby cries a great deal give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be happy again. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Jas. Gaudreau, Notre Dame des Bois, Que., says: "My baby cried day and night and I was greatly discouraged. I began giving him the Tablets and he was soon happy, healthy and fat." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Zeke's Reformation

Camp meeting was in full blast. Sounds of shouting filled the air. Suddenly Zeke Billiken, Farmer Billiken's "incorrigible" son, leaped to his feet, with tears streaming from his eyes. "I got it! I got it!" he exulted. "I'm through with my evil ways. From this day forth I vow to speak the truth and nothing but the truth!"

"Zeke," said his father feelingly, after supper that night, "I was right glad to hear te speak right out in meetin' that there way today. It warms my old heart to think that at last my son is a good boy. Suppose you start in right now by tellin' me where you are goin' tonight."

Zeke settled his hat on his head.

"Pap, I'll tell you the truth and nothing else, like I swore. I'm jest goin' out to feed the chickens."

"But, Zeke, the chickens has been fed," objected old Billiken.

"Some of 'em I ain't," said Zeke, and closed the door after him.

Long after midnight, in the town's swellest cafe, Zeke was still feeding the chickens."—Detroit Free Press.

An Indian Gift to the Patriotic Fund

The patriotic spirit of the Indians of Western Canada is described in an interesting letter which Mr. W. R. Baker, secretary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has received from a friend, and from which the following is an extract:

"Mr. Graham, inspector of Indian agencies for Southern Saskatchewan, has, through his ability and energy done much to make the File Hills Indian Agency one of the most progressive in Canada. He initiated a colony upon which he placed and is still placing graduates from Indian Industrial Schools. This colony has been quite a successful venture and the young Indians settled there are doing very well. Some grow as many as from eight to ten thousands bushels of grain per year and all (there are over thirty families) are practically out of debt. Well, the people being much alive to the war news, asked so many questions that Mr. Graham decided to hold a meeting of the Colony, which was done. I was, much to my delight, in good enough shape to go with the party and we travelled thither in beautifully decorated cars. I brought along a gramophone and many patriotic records. We played the national airs of Great Britain, France and Russia, and "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" came in for a great deal of praise. Mr. Graham addressed them from behind a table upon which was spread the Union Jack, and explained the causes and progress of the war, lucidly and fully, also the work of the Patriotic Fund and Red Cross Society. A committee was at once formed and all of these young Indians quite voluntarily offered to sell so many bushels each of wheat and oats. They were most enthusiastic and gave cheer after cheer for the kings of the different allied nations, our own beloved sovereign coming in for very loud applause. A few days afterwards Mr. Graham received $500, the result of the sale of grain promised. The young Indian women at once took up Red Cross work—knitting, etc., in a very enthusiastic way. Two of the boys—Aleck Moore and Ed. Swanson—have joined the second contingent. They are graduates of the Brandon Indian School and are dead shots. Among the contributors of the collection to the Patriotic fund, which amounted to $502.10, were Frank Dumont, a nephew of Gabriel Dumont of Riel Rebellion fame, and his two sons."

Indigestion and Headaches

Arising From Constipation, Cured and Regular Habit Established by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

In the western provinces, where so many thousands live far from doctors and drug stores, very many rely on Dr. Chase's medicines to cure disease and maintain health and strength. This letter gives some idea of what perfect control Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills exert over the most common ills of life.

Mrs. H. K. Hewer, farmer's wife, Eastburg, Alta., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from constipation, indigestion, headache and languid feelings. Treatment from two or three doctors afforded only temporary relief, so I turned to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and with most satisfactory results. Headaches have disappeared, regular habits established and general health very much better. Both my husband and I can speak highly of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as we have both been greatly benefitted by them." One pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

In What Spirit

There is something infinitely moving and inspiring in the simple unselfishness with which thousands of the poor and downtroden have rallied to the cry of national liberty, and shown themselves prepared to give their all to a country which, in the past, has given so little to them. Inspiring, too, is the readiness of the well to do, who in peace time, have taken their ease at the expense of others, to risk the loss of lives which have been so full of comfort and happiness, and to embrace with ardor the agonies of war. For the soldiers, rich and poor alike, there is no question of diplomacy or finance; they believe that the principle of freedom is in danger, and they would die rather than acquiesce in the loss of freedom. It is not for us to discuss their political judgment; it is for us to acknowledge and reverence their unselfish courage. The bitter cry of it all is that one tithe of the same spirit shown in peace could make England a happy and healthy nation. Every day of the year there are, on an average, more than 500 casualties in mine, factory, and workshop. Who knows or cares? Far vaster than that number, and far vaster than the casualty list of any war, is the tale of deaths and injuries and diseases spread through the community by overcrowding and underpaying, by long hours and bad food, by destitution and prostitution. We live in a world where youth is robbed of its promise and maidenhood of its joy. Who cares? Who enlists in the longest war of all—the war of social justice? Who takes up arms for liberty at home?—London Herald.

Portugal, now defending her African possessions against Germany, once ceded an important colony to England as a gift. When Catherine of Braganza became the queen of Charles II. part of her dower was the "island of Bombay in the West Indies." Perhaps the Portuguese did not know the value of the territory, and certainly Charles did not, for a few years later he leased Bombay to the East India Company for $50 a year!

May Save Many Soldiers

A preparation which, it is said, will stop almost instantly blood from a wound has ben invented by Prof. Theodore Kocher of Berne, who was awarded the Nobel prize for surgery in 1912, and his assistant, Dr. A. Fonce. The new preparation is called coagulen.

It is in the form of a powder and is dissolved in water before being applied to the wound. The discoverers of coagulen have made a gift of their invention to the armies in the field, and have sent large quantities of the powder to the surgical headquarters of both the German and French armies. The discovery is regarded by medical men as likely to save the lives of thousands of soldiers, since it can be applied by untrained hands, so that the wounded man himself or his comrades might use the solution.

He Needn't Have Worried

Her father (after the ceremony)—My child, I don't see how I am going to get along without you.

Bride—Oh, that's all right, pa. My husband has just confessed that he hasn't enough to start housekeeping, so you won't lose me, after all.

For the Defence

Judge—And you still claim to be innocent, although six witnesses say they saw you commit the crime?

Prisoner—Your honor, I can produce six thousand who didn't see me.

On the Veranda

"I love the bunny hug!"

"I don't know it," said the young man regretfully; "but I'm a bear at the plain old fashioned variety."

And then the moon considerately withdrew behind a cloud.

"Here's a woman who complains her honeymoon lasted only a week."

"What was the matter?"

"His money gave out."—Baltimore American.

Satisfied

Dr. Dasler—How is your practice?

Dr. Grassler—First rate; it couldn't be better. I had more than twelve hundred patients last year and didn't lose a single cent.

Bad Blood

is the direct and inevitable result of irregular or constipated bowels and clogged-up kidneys and skin. The undigested food and other waste matter which is allowed to accumulate poisons the blood and the whole system. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills act directly on the bowels, regulating them—on the kidneys, giving them ease and strength to properly filter the blood—and on the skin, opening up the pores. For pure blood and good health take

Hugh Stewart, Liberal candidate for Comox, hhld a largely attended and representativ meeting at Powell River last night, about 200 being present. Mr. Stewart, president of the Liberal association there, took the chair. No questions were raised and the general feeling appeared to be distinctly favorable to the Liberal interests. Mr. Law, Horiot Bay spoke. Mr. Stewart and party then proceeded to Texada Island, where a very enthusiastic meeting was held, and where the Conservative association are apparently supporting the Liberal candidate almost unanimously. Abraham Planta, brother of Mayor Planta, of Nanaimo, and Mr. McEvoy, are working hard in Mr. Stewart's interests.
