For Mayor

To the Electors of the City of Cumberland:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

Having been requested by a requisition signed by a large number of electors to offer myself as candidate for Mayor and, after careful consideration, have decided to accept nomination. I have served you seven years as an alderman If elected, I will look after the best interests of the city and citizens, and will do my duty without fear or favor, notwithstanding what may have been said to the contrary.

I will address you publicly and go fully into the matter before election day.

Soliciting your votes and influence for a thorough business and up-to-date method of conducting the affairs of your city.

I am, Yours Respectfully,

T. E. BATE

Announcement

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the request of a large number of ratepayers of this city I am a candidate for Mayor in the coming municipal election, I cheerfully submit my conduct of the affairs of the mayor's office during my short incumbency of ten months for your approval or rejection. If approved, I assure you I will continue to give the best of my ability and very earnest attention to the duties of the office. Awaiting your judgment, I am.

Respectfully Yours,

J. N. McLEOD

Obituary.

It is with deep rerret that we announce the death of Anne, wife of our respected fellowtownsman Mr. Joseph Shaw, which sad event took place on Monday evening at the residence of her son-in-law Mr. L. W. Nunns, after a long and tedious illness. The deceased lady who was 71 years of age was a native of England, and had been a resident of this country for a number of years. She leaves beside a husband, three sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a dear old mother in Israel. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of L. W. Nunns, Maryport Ave.

Surely we will be able to select six men and true out of the ten who are offering themselves for glory and no pay as our representatives at the council board for 1912. The same may be said of those seeking school trustee honours. For the honour of being chief magistrate we have the present incumbent, Mr. J. N. McLeod, and Mr. T. E Bate, both up-to-date and prosperous business men, either of which when elected will no doubt fill the bill.

Courtenay Conservatives Elect Officers.

The Comox Conservative Association held their annual meeting in the Agricultural Hall, Courtenay on Monday evening. The following officers and executive were elected:—

President, Sam Calhoun; Vice, J. R. Johnston; Sec., W. Duncan; Treas., W. McKean.

Mrs. John Jack is back at the old stand after spending a few days wih her niece Mrs. John Lockner, Union Bay.

Election "Jabs."

Tom and Jack have their war paint and feathers on.—Something doing.

It is victory or death with TEB and the followers of TEB.

The greatest civic battle in the history of Cumberland is now on.

Remember the "Norman" conquest is likely to occur again.

Marshal Bickle is making every effort to turn the enemy's flank.

Who says that this good old town doesen't get a "move on" at election time?

This is the season of the year that for-get-me-nots (bills) are plentiful.

DEAR SIR, OR MADAM,

I respectfully submit myself to your consideration as a candidate for Alderman.

I have considerable knowledge of the requirements of our city, having been for a long time resident here, and having already served you one time in that capacity.

I shall in all matters concerning the welfare of our city use whatever judgment or ability I may have to further its best interests.

Your support will be appreciated,

CHAPTER XV.

IT is dawn in the valley of the Sweetwater. The outfit of Sweetwater ranch has gathered for the round-up and the drive to the railroad. In the absence of her husband Echo Payson had assumed complete charge of the ranch and with the help of Sagebrush had carried on the work just as she thought Jack would do, hoping against hope for his return in safety and hiding her sorrow from those about her.

Under a clump of cottonwood a chuck wagon has halted. Many of the boys on the round-up are still asleep, the night herders returning to camp. The cook, Parenthesis, has started his preparations for breakfast.

Parenthesis is mixing dough in a dishpan set on the tailboard. Sagebrush kneels near him, putting on his spurs preparatory to saddling up, as he goes on the first relief.

"Wake up Texas an' the other boys, Fresno," ordered Sagebrush. The Californian threw away the butt of his cigarette and shook each man by the shoulder. With much yawning and rubbing of eyes the men crawled from their sleeping bags. Dashing cold water into their faces from a basin beside the water barrel, they drank copiously of the coffee which Parenthesis poured out for them.

"Mostly all the boys are in now, ain't they?" asked Parenthesis, looking about the group.

"Yep," answered Sagebrush. "We'll finish brandin' the calves today. I reckon Fresno will have to take charge of the drive. I can't leave the ranch until Jack gets back."

Show Low was the only sleeper who had not responded to Parenthesis' call. That worthy walked over and gave him a kick which brought forth a grunt, but no other sign of an awakening. Returning to the fire, Parenthesis took a tin cup and poured himself out a cup of coffee.

"Heard any word from him yet?" he asked as he gulped the beverage.

"Nothin'," replied Sagebrush grimly. "Slim wrote from Fort Grant he was on the trail, but the 'Paches were out, an' they wouldn't let him leave the fort till the soldiers went with him."

"Slim hadn't oughter gone an' left things the way he did. Buck McKee is gettin' a lot of bad men together an' 'lows he is goin' to run fer sheriff himself," growled Fresno. "I got my eye on that Peruna."

"Peruna! Who's he?" asked Texas.

"One of Buck's outfit," answered Fresno. "He is mighty slick with the runnin' iron an' brandin' other folks' calves."

"We can't be too careful," warned Sagebrush. "Things is strained to the bustin' point, an' any promise of gun play is goin' to set off a whole lot of fireworks."

Show Low was on the verge of waking up. This he did by gradually increasing the volume of each snore and breaking it off with a whistle.

At the very moment Sagebrush suggested gun play Show Low snorted his loudest.

"What's that?" asked Sagebrush, grabbing his revolver.

"Show Low. He's a regular brass band when he gets started—from the big trombone down to the tin whistle," laughed Fresno.

"It's a wonder he can sleep alongside of that noise."

"He can't," Fresno volunteered. "He'll wake himself up in a minute. He's off now."

The snores of Show Low grew more frequent until he climaxed his accompaniment of sleep with one awful snort, which awakened him. "Eh, what's that?" he yelled as he bounded to a sitting posture.

"Didn't I tell you?" queried Fresno.

Sagebrush grinned and slowly arose, gathering up his saddle and rope.

Swinging one over each arm, he started toward the corral, saying: "Come on, boys; we got a lot to do today. Git your hosses."

The night riders were coming into camp, meeting their comrades with grunts or in a few words telling them what to guard against in some particular part of the grazing herd.

The sun had risen. The cattle were on their feet [illegible] the short, sweet grass, moving slowly toward the river.

"Work!" growled Show Low. "Darn me if I ain't commenced to hate it!"

Fresno picked up his saddle to follow his foreman, but paused long enough to fire this parting shot at the cook: "Say, Parenthesis, if them biscuits you're makin' is as hard as the last bunch, save four of 'em for me. I want to shoe that pony of mine."

Parenthesis threw a tin cup at Fresno, who dodged it. Punching the dough viciously, he said: "Darn this housekeepin'! Gets a feller's hands all rough. It's enough to spile the disposition of a saint."

His soliloquy was interrupted by Buck McKee riding up to the wagon from the Lazy K outfit, which was camping a mile below them.

"Hello, cookie! How goes it?" was his greeting.

"You wind it up, an' it goes eight days," Parenthesis bellowed, his temper fast reaching the breaking point.

"Jack Payson ain't back yet?" Buck asked, paying no attention to the bad humor of Parenthesis.

"Not that I knows on."

The cook rolled the dough with elaborate care.

"Nor Hoover?"

"Ain't seen him," he replied curtly.

"Well, they hain't comin' back, either. They pulled it off pretty slick on us fellers. Hoover he lets Payson go an' makes a bluff at chasin' after him. Then they gets off somewhere, splits up the money an' gives us the laugh."

Parenthesis turned on him in anger and shouted: "I'll bet my outfit against a pair of green socks that either one of 'em or both will be back here before this round-up is over."

"You will, eh?" snarled Buck. "Well, we're jes' waitin' fer 'em. We'll swing Payson so high he'll look like a buzzard, an' as fer Hoover—well, he's served his last term as sheriff in this here county—you hear me shoutin'."

"Eh, what's that?" he yelled.

McKee cut his pony with his quirt and dashed away in time to escape an unwelcome encounter with several members of the Sweetwater outfit who were riding back to camp.

The men were riding out their new string of ponies today. As each passed Parenthesis flung a gibe at him. He had resumed his breadmaking when Polly rode up to the wagon.

"Yep, fer straddlin' a hoss."

"Hello, Parenthesis!" was her greeting. "What is the matter with you?"

"Nothin'. This here housekeepin' is gettin' on my nervous system some fearful." Parenthesis struck the dough a savage whack and added, "I ain't cut out fer housekeepin'."

"You've been cut out all right," retorted Polly, glancing at his legs, "whatever it's for."

Parenthesis was not abashed. "Yep, fer straddlin' a hoss," he proudly replied, as if that were the chief end of man.

Polly, thus balked in her teasing, tried a new form of badinage.

"Say, the boys are all braggin' on your breadmakin'. Won't you give me your receipt?"

"Good cooks," said Parenthesis, "never give away their receipts. Brings bad luck to 'em next time."

"Aw, come now, Parenthy, tell me, an' I'll let you make my weddin' cake."

"Will you? An' let me put in whatever I want fer jokes on the boys?"

"Yep, everything goes."

"Oh, I'll give 'em somethin' to dream on, you can bet your sweet life—soap fer Fresno's finger, clothespin fer Show Low's nose, lard fer Slim! It's a swop. Miss Polly!"

"Well, out with your great secret of breadmakin'."

"Well, Miss Polly, I take flour an' water an' sourin's an' a pinch of salt"—

"Flour an' water an' sourin's an' a pinch of salt!" repeated Polly, totting the list off on her fingers. "Why, so do I, an' so does every one. It must lie in the workin'. How long do you work the dough, Parenthesis?"

"It must lie in the workin'," repeated Parenthesis solemnly. "Why, I work it an' work it"—he continued with exasperating slowness.

"How long do you work it?" asked Polly impatiently.

"Till my han's look purty clean like!" said Parenthesis, holding up his floury paws.

"Then you've got a day's work still before you!" snapped Polly, huffed at seeing herself the victim of a chaffing that she herself had begun. "I won't bother you any longer. So long!"

Parenthesis, however, desired to continue the conversation. "When is this here hitch between you an' Bud comin' off?" he asked.

Polly drew herself up proudly and, speaking with assumed haughtiness, replied, "We're figurin' on sendin' out the cards next month."

The cowboy's eyes twinkled. "Well, I'm a-goin' to give up cigaroot smokin'."

"What for?" asked Polly in surprise.

"Goin' in trainin' to kiss the bride."

"That's nice!" said Polly, beaming.

"Yep, have to take up chawin', like Bud Lane."

Polly was saved from having to answer by Sagebrush galloping up to the wagon.

"Put on your gun!" he shouted to Parenthesis.

Asking no questions, the cowpuncher obeyed his foreman. Trouble was brewing; that he could plainly see. All he had to do was to obey orders and shoot when any one tried to point a gun at him.

Turning to Polly, he cried, "Where's Mrs. Payson?"

"She come over with me, but stopped to look over the tally for those cows that are goin' with the drive."

More to himself than to Parenthesis or Polly, Sagebrush said: "I wish she'd stayed at the ranch. This range is no place for women now. Buck McKee an' his outfit has tanked up with Gila whisky, an' they're just pawin' fer trouble."

"What's come over people lately?" asked Polly.

"It's all along of Hoover goin' away like he did an' leavin' us without a sheriff or nobody that is anybody makin' a bluff at law an' order!" cried Sagebrush.

"It's got this section back twenty years," observed Parenthesis.

"That's what it has," agreed the foreman. "Fresno reports that he found that Peruna of the Lazy K outfit slappin' the Lazy K brand on one of our calves. There ain't nobody can maverick no calves belongin' to this outfit, not so long as I'm ranch boss an' captain of the round-up. We've got to take the law in our own han's an' make an example of this bunch right now."

Sagebrush meant what he said. He was gathering re-enforcements from his own men. He knew that the boys of the Allen ranch would side with him, and he felt that there were enough lovers of law and order in the county to declare themselves against the high handed methods of Buck McKee and his followers.

"Come on, you fellows!" shouted Show Low as he rode past the wagon up the range.

"What is it now?" asked Sagebrush.

Over his shoulder Show Low shouted: "We all had a run-in with that Buck McKee's bunch. Fresno's laid out with a hole in his shoulder. Billie Nicker's cashed in. I've got some of the Triangle boys, an' we're goin' to make a clean-up."

"You ain't goin' to do nothin' unless I say so. We don't want no range war. We'll git the man that did the killin'. Come on!" commanded Sagebrush.

Polly galloped after the men, saying, "Gee, I'll miss something if I don't hurry up!"

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

BURIED TREASURES

You remember the story of the old man who when he was on his deathbed, called his sons to him and told them that a great treasure was buried on the farm.

After he died the sons dug that farm deep, from one end to the other, finding no gold or silver, they planted it and in the Autumn they discovered what the old man meant. The treasure was there, but its name was Digging and planting.

Then you, no doubt, remember another story of an old man who, on his deathbed, called his sons to him and told them to try to break a number of sticks that (in the story) lay near the bed. They could not do it, but when the old man told them to untie the bundle and try each stick seperately, they broke them without trouble.

And the story goes on, making the old man say:

"Now boys, if you work together, no one can overcome you; but if you quarrel with one another and seperate it will be as easy to break you as it is to break one stick from the bundle."

Which, in its way, was a fortune for the boys.

II

Now, there is another story which you have not heard, it is also about an old man and his three sons. Only this man was not on his death bed. He was a lively old man attending to business every day.

From the time his boys were old enough to understand, he talked to them about the Great Gold Mine. At first the boys did not know just what he meant. But he told them wonderful stories about the Great Gold Mine and made them curious about it.

When the oldest boy was twenty-one he took him to one side and told him where the Great Gold Mine was to be found. Then he gave him some money, and a blessing and told him to go away and dig in it.

When the second boy was twenty-one he took him aside and told him the same thing.

And when the youngest boy was twenty-one he told him the secret, and he left home as his two brothers had done, to dig in the Great Gold Mine.

Each boy was directed to stay away five years and report on his twenty-sixth birthday.

The first one was on time to the minute and the father asked him:

"What have you dug out of the mine?"

"A grocery store and a fine business," he said.

Boy No. 2 was also punctual. And the father asked him as he had the eldest:

"What have you dug out of the mine?"

"A college education and a professorship."

When the birthday of the third boy came around he failed to turn up.

The old man looked up and down the street every day expecting him to return. A week went by and still he did not come.

Then a letter came, and in this letter the youngest boy said:

"I came out here five years ago and put the money you gave me into a gold mine; fifty per cent. profits guaranteed annually. I have been working for two dollars a day, waiting for the mine to pay, but it has failed, what shall I do.?"

The old man telegraphed the boy:

"Remember what I said five years ago. Begin again. Father."

Just ten words in all, you see, and no extra charge.

Now, what was it the old man told the boys about the Great Gold Mine?

It was this:

The richest mine in the world is in a man's head. The best modern machine with which to dig in this mine is Thought. The best tools to use are Work and Trust. No man has ever been buncoed who took stock in the mine on this basis.

He was quite a simple old man, as you see. And he knew that at twenty six a boy still has a good chance, even if he has five years learning how to begin.

In Mining Business

"I think you said, Rastus, that you had a brother in the mining business in the west."

"Yes, boss, that's right." "What kind of mining—gold mining, silver mining or copper mining?" "No suh, none of those; calcimining."

Many a man is in great fear that he will get all that is coming to him.

NA-DRU-CO Tasteless

Cod Liver Oil Compound

THE "building-up" value of Cod Liver Oil is well known, but its drawbacks have been its nasty taste and indigestibility.

Na-Dru-Co Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound has the nutritious qualities of the Cod Liver Oil, without the slightest disagreeable flavor. In it the Oil is skilfully combined with Extract of Malt, Extract of Wild Cherry, and Hypophosphites, making a splendid tonic as well as a valuable food.

Valuable Water-Power

It is stated that the Canadian Pacific Railway has secured a valuable water-power in British Columbia, which it will utilize in the near future for transportation purposes. The water-power secured is on the Adams River, which flows out of Adams Lake and into the South Thompson river, near the west end of Shuswap Lake. Reports have reported that it is capable of developing 100,000 h.p., at two points between Adams Lake and its confluence with the South Thompson. The Canadian Pacific Railway it is stated, has in view the generation of power for the electrification of a portion of its lines through the mountains. This step will not be taken for some years yet, of course, but the railway has secured the power with an eye to the future.

ARE YOU AS WELL AS A YEAR AGO?

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS POINT THE WAY TO HEALTH AND STRENGTH.

Ask yourself the important question whether you are as strong as you were a year ago, as bodily fit as you would be. Many a reader has to confess "No." Some weakening ailment has during the past year laid hold of the system, unfitting you for the duties of life and seriously clouding the outlook of the coming days. It may be rheumatism with its sharp twinges of pain, indigestion, headache, nervous debility, depression and lack of energy, or the pains and ailments which only common folk know. It is well to know that all these weakening disorders arise from an impoverished condition of the blood. Renew and enrich your blood and all your troubles will cease. This is a strong statement, but it is made on the testimony of thousands who once suffered, but who have gained health and strength by the aid of the new, rich blood supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We can quote thousands of cases similar to the following: Mr. Jos. Grandmaison is a young man well known in the town of St. Jerome, Que. He says: "For a couple of years I began to find my strength failing, but did not dream that the trouble was serious. As I grew weaker I began to doctor, but it did not help me. The least exertion made my heart palpitate violently, my stomach seemed out of order and my whole system became so run down that I was finally forced to quit work. I had now been doctoring for over six months and was very naturally growing discouraged. At this juncture I read of a case similar to mine, cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. I took the Pills faithfully for about two months; gradually growing stronger and at the end of that time I was as well as any man could be. I shall always praise the medicine that raised me from despair to the blessing of good health."

Sold by medicine dealers everywhere or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Common Good

There are hours in every life and lives in every generation which belong to the common good. No life, indeed, belongs anywhere else except as by devoting it to the individual self it tends to make that self more fit for individual service. We must get to give, we must climb that we may lift, we must be strong to aid the weak; that is the law of the kingdom.

FOR HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS

Zam-Buk is so Very Useful.

Read How Beneficial it Proved in This Case

Mrs. H. Sawyer, of Keene, Ont., writes:—"My husband is engaged on a farm, and one day, while chopping wood, the top of the axe broke and fell off, cutting a nasty gash. The wound was so bad that we first thought that we would have to get a doctor, but we finally decided to dress the cut with Zam-Buk.

"Well, the Zam-Buk treatment proved a great success. It not only eased the pain but it prevented inflammation; and right from first applying Zam Buk, the cut began to heal. It is now completely healed and my husband says he would not be without a box of Zam-Buk in the house, for we are sure it saved us a great deal of expense."

Over and over again Zam-Buk has been proved to be the worker's best remedy. As soon as applied to a cut, a burn, a scald, or any skin injury, it relieves the pain and it sets up healing. It also prevents blood-poisoning or inflammation. It is a sure cure, too, for eczema, piles, ulcers, old wounds, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering, running sores, eruptions, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Its absolute purity, also, makes it the ideal balm for babies.

Zam-Buk Soap should be used along with the balm for washing all sore places. The soap will be found excellent for baby's bath, even where being used.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. a box, and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c. tablet, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

EVERY PLACE ON THE WIDE PRAIRIES

TELLS OF CURES MADE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Thos. Griffin, of Peace River Landing, Tells how he Got Rid of His Rheumatism—Honestly earned popularity.

Cold Springs, Peace River Landing, Alta. (Special).—Just why Dodd's Kidney Pills retain their wonderful popularity is easily shown by a trip across the prairies. Every town, village and postoffice has at least one man or woman who is ready to tell of pains relieved and strength restored by the great Canadian Kidney Remedy. Let Thos. Griffin of this place add his statement to the hosts already published.

"When I came to this part of the country," says Mr. Griffin, "I was troubled with a bad back and Rheumatism in my shoulders and hips. I sent for six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief at once. I also recommended them to my eldest son who was confined to his bed from Rheumatism.

"Now I know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine for Rheumatism and the Kidneys. I recommend them to every person I hear complaining of not feeling well."

Dodd's Kidney Pills made their popularity by curing sick Kidneys. They keep their popularity by keeping on curing sick kidneys.

In Holland, the rights of parents are strictly maintained that a man or woman under thirty years of age may not marry without their consent.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is compounded specially to combat dysentery, cholera morbus and all inflammatory disorders that change of food or water may set up in the stomach and intestines. These complaints are more common in summer than in winter, but they are not confined to the warm months as undue laxness of the bowels may seize a man at any time. Such a sufferer will find speedy relief in this Cordial.

The Origin of Restaurants.

The restaurant of the present time had its origin in the first French Revolution towards the close of the eighteenth century. And the reputation of the French for cookery and the delicacy of taste in eating as well as in producing tempting dishes and morsels dates practically from the same time.

That revolution meant ruin to many noble families, and meant ruin also for their chefs, so some of the latter hit upon the idea of opening houses where dainties prepared by their skilled hands could be obtained. If the experiment succeeded the chefs would be as well off as when in service. The idea was pleasing to the public, the restaurants did a large business, and the proprietors had no reason to regret the revolution from a monetary point of view.

Then it appeared to others that the people might appreciate being educated up to this fine cookery and many books of the culinary art were published, and sold well. One of the most noted of these was "The Gourmand Almanack," which appeared in 1769.

Restaurant really means 'restoring' and was applied to these places because you went there to have something to revive and restore your failing strength.

Good News.

"What did ma say to you when you came in?" inquired Johnny of his friend who had come to tea.

"She said she was very pleased to see me."

"I'm glad," said Johnny in a relieved tone. "'Cause she said this morning she hoped you wouldn't come!"

ADMIRAL TOGO'S TRIP.

It Led Him to Appreciate the Hospitality of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

(Japan Gazette, September 26.)

On his return trip from England, which he attended as one of the suite of the Imperial Japanese delegation to the coronation, Admiral Count Togo travelled across Canada by the Canadian Pacific Railway—which has been called the "Alliance Route," and was, therefore, rather appropriately chosen on this occasion by this distinguished representative of an embassy between the allies. By instruction of the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Admiral Togo was the guest of the Company throughout, and every effort was made to make his trip pleasant.

The Admiral took the private car "Canada" at Niagara Falls, proceeding to Banff and thence to Vancouver. The "Canada," it should be explained, was the car specially built for the present King and Queen of England, a few years ago, when they made their notable Canadian trip.

On arrival at Vancouver Admiral Togo telegraphed to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy his heartfelt thanks for the services and arrangements accorded him on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and assuring the president that his trip had been exceedingly pleasant.

It is evident that such indications of a broad spirit of hospitality as that shown by the Canadian Pacific Railway on this occasion makes materially for the promotion of pleasant international relations, and Admiral Togo is only one in a long list of distinguished Japanese who have thus travelled over the Canadian Pacific. Indeed, it may confidently be stated that attentions of this kind to one so much respected and beloved as Admiral Togo are deeply appreciated in the highest quarters in this country.

ONE SINGLE PILL GAVE GREAT RELIEF

FOUR BOXES CURED HIM

Plessisville, Que.

"I suffered from Kidney Trouble for several years, and tried numerous remedies and doctor's prescriptions without permanent relief, my case being chronic. After seeing about Gin Pills, and, as it is a well known fact that Juniper without alcohol is excellen for the Kidneys I decided to try Gin Pills. One sigle pill gave me great relief. I have now taken almost four boxes of Gin Pills and find myself completely cured. No more bad humor—increase in weight—clear eyes—fresh color—more strength and vigor. This is what Gin Pills have done for me."

C.P.R. Largest Steel Rails Consumer

It is understood that the Canadian Pacific Railway is in the market for 50,000 tons of steel rails. This would seem to strengthen the statement that the Canadian Pacific is pushing its new Western lines to completion. Building, as it is now, nearly two miles of new track every working day in the year the C.P.R. is probably the largest individual consumer of steel rails on the continent.

A Plea for the Lonely

The merry world goes round, time flies, and we eagerly grasp every pleasure that comes within our reach; but how often do we pause and consider the lonely ones, of whom there are so many in our midst? At our dery doors there is someone who needs a cheering word and a helping hand. It is not money or alms that are wanted, but human sympathy.

You who have dear ones around your hearth cannot realise what it means to be a stranger in a strange city with none to extend a friendly hand. Riches may buy false friendship, but poverty bars even that, and the lonely toiler finds none who care or sympathise, and the path is hard indeed.

The girl in the office lives, maybe, ust alone in rooms; fine folk don't ask her out because she is in business; and just the same applies to the boy at the desk. But they are human, and doing their duty bravely. Both lives would be brightened if you asked them to your house and tried to banish the homesickness and loneliness by sympathy and friendliness.

Won't you try and bring a little cheer to lonely hearts that come your way? You won't have far to seek them if you wish to play the better part. Never mind if the lonely ones are not in what you call your "set"; they are your brothers and sisters in the eyes of God, and not can excuse your neglect of their claims.

Fit-Rite

An Outward Sign of Inward Quality

The splendid appearance of a "Fit-rite" suit is the result of the careful, honest way in which it is made. A handsome outward appearance is of no value, unless it has the sterling material underneath to back it up.

It is the care taken in this particular that makes the "Fit-rite" a good suit all through. The hidden parts are given the same attention the surface receives. It retains its shape because the shape and style are built right into it.

Look over a "Fit-rite" suit and examine the quality of the material and tailoring. It is an honest effort to supply good clothes at a reasonable price.

Either call at the store or send us a post card bearing your name and address, and we'll give you a copy of the "Fit-rite Style Forecast," containing the latest news of fashion tendencies for the coming Fall and Winter.

Uses Only Cuticura Soap for Prize Baby

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby, and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by the use of poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, Calif.

Although Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 6H, Boston, U.S.A., will secure a liberal sample, with 32-p. book on the care of skin, scalp and hair.

How to Preserve the Teeth

Teeth are composed of three different substances, dentine, which is chiefly calareous, being the most important part. Care must be taken to preserve the enamel which is the outer covering, because it preserves the others.

Acidity injure the teeth and in countries where many sweets are eaten, thereby causing acidity, early decay is noticed.

In places where the water lacks lime, false teeth are almost universal in quite young people. This is seen in many parts of Australia and South Africa. The very best dentifrices are often the most simple and inexpensive, chalk and orris root combined being almost unequalled.

Carbolic tooth powders are not suitable in every case, but most preparations containing a form of peppermint may be used without hesitation. The tooth brush should be used after every meal, especially when meat forms part of the menu.

If a hole appears in the tooth and it is not possible to have it attended to at once, the best cleansing agent and decay preventative is a small piece of cotton wool dipped in tincture or myrrh and inserted in the cavity. Many dentists do this to a tooth before stopping it; the wool should be changed daily.

An excellent mouth wash is made from two parts water and one of myrrh or myrrh and borax.

Strawberries are well known as dental beautifiers.

Very cold water is not good, neither is very hot water.

It is not wise to retire to rest without cleansing the teeth.

When people suffer from gastric acid or nervous illnesses, it is very difficult to preserve the enamel and crusta petrosa, the latter being the Latin name for a bony tissue which connects the teeth to the socket, therefore care must be taken of the general health as well as local attention to the mouth.

Countless have been the cures worked by Holloway's Corn Cure. It has a power of its own not found in other preparations.

Education Better Than Cash

Don't let the boys go to work merely because the first excitement of money earning is on them. Don't let them heedlessly sacrifice themselves that your own burden may be a trifle lighter. Your family is standing still when you do that sort of thing and not progressing as a Canadian family ought to progress. Look to the future of your boys, not to your present ease. They do not realize what they are missing but you do—especially if you have missed the higher education yourself. The evolution of the family is one of the finest things anyone can play, and it is one in which anyone may take a hand. Better hold to the old ideals and keep the boys in school. Your self-respect will increase if you do, and the harder it is for you to do it, the more satisfaction you will have from your achievement.

Bolivian Production of Tin

Bolivia produces one-quarter of the total tin output of the world. Recently its tin sold for $1,000 a ton. The wealth accruing to the Andean Republic from this source would be a simple arithmetical problem if this price was constant. Fortunately during the past two years the value of a ton of tin has never gone much below $750, and at that price the Bolivian tin miner is assured a good profit, despite the difficulties of transportation.

Certain economic factories operated against the highest exploitation of tin in Bolivia, especially the necessarily heavy freight charges, the dependence on the price of Straits tin, the export duty and the fluctuation of the Bolivian money. In time most of these handicaps will be overcome and the proceeds of the tin miner of Bolivia proportionately increased.

AN AERIAL WARSHIP

Zeppelin Airship Co. Turning Out Monster for German Army

A great aerial war vessel is being built for the German military authorities at the Zeppelin Airship Company's works at Friedrikshafen. Undeterred by the long series of catastrophies which has overtaken steerable balloons of almost every description, the German War Office is continuing its strenuous endeavors to build an aerial navy which will give Germany the undisputed command of the air, and the new cruiser will be larger and more powerful than any aerial vessel yet built exclusively for military purposes. She will, in fact, be only eight yards shorter than the monster passenger airship Schwaben, recently completed by the Zeppelin Company, and will be built on the same general lines.

The main difference will be the absence of the huge passenger car, which is swung amidships on the Schwaben, and which on the military vessel will be dispensed with. The extra margin of lifting power thus acquired will be utilized to carry the weight of armament and ammunition, for the new war vessel is to be equipped with artillery in the shape of light machine guns. The vessel will have a total length of 133 yards and three Maybach motors, two of which will be six-cylinder machines, developing 150 horsepower each. She will be propelled by four screws, two at the stern being four-bladed and two mounted over the forward car being two-bladed.

The vessel is estimated to attain a nominal speed of about 45 miles an hour. The preliminary trials of the new aerial cruiser will probably take place within the next few weeks.

Minard's liniment cures garget in cows

One of the worst things we have to answer for is the habit of putting by-words into everything we say. It weakens our talk, belittles us in the eyes of those who love us, and ties us hand and foot against a good clean way of speaking. It is like throwing pepper sauce right into the eyes of people of good, clean, sensitive hearts. Let's break ourselves of this miserable habit.

The Kidneys Wear Out

But Many People of Advanced Years have learned how to keep these organs healthy by using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY - LIVER PILLS

The kidneys are often the first organs of the body to cause trouble. Their work of filtering the blood is greatly increased by excessive eating or by the use of highly seasoned foods and alcoholic drinks.

As advanced age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's Disease is soon developed and the end comes quickly.

Fortunately a great many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

This medicine is entirely different from ordinary kidney treatments, and invigorates the action of the liver and bowels. To this combined action is attributed its remarkable success.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Lambton county, Ont., writes:—"I want to testify to the wonderful curative properties of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Seventeen years ago I began the use of this medicine, when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."

The Farmer's Workshop.

Have you ever stopped in your work to consider the importance of a workshop on the farm? If you have not, you may be obliged to do so sometime when you break an important thing while in the midst of a busy season, and must go six miles for repairs. Whereas, if you had a workshop of your own right at home, you coud make the necessary repairs yourself at very small cost.

To have a workshop with all necessary tools for repair work is far more important than it is given credit, for, it can be utilized to make profit for you in many ways. During the long winter months there are many articles you could fashion into things of usefulness. I know farmers who, in their own workshop, have turned out harrows, doubletrees, hog racks, mudboats, and other articles various and numerous. Some are made for neighbors and generously paid for. The desk at which I am writing this was made in our own workshop by my brother, who is handy with the tools. He has had orders for bookcases from neighbors who have seen the work. I mention this as an illustration, that you may see what profits may be realized from hours spent in the workshop.

At one time we were threshing wheat, when, without warning, the feed board of the separator was smashed to smithereens by the belt flying off. "No more threshing today," the boss of the outfit said. "I've got to go to town to have this thing repaired."

"Give it to me," said the owner of the farm, and he took the wrecked feed board to his workshop, and out of new material he made one as good as the broken one. In an hour the machine was humming at work as merrily as ever before. The workshop is a valuable asset to the farm; it saves money to the farmer in many ways, as those who have one can testify.—J.A. Raiser, in Farm Journal.

MOONEY'S BISCUITS

ONE TIRED WOMAN AND ONE LITTLE OVEN

You have probably been there yourself—perhaps are right now.

Bright women all over Canada are getting away from this. They welcome MOONEY'S BISCUITS as a most acceptable substitute for their own bread and biscuits.

MOONEY'S PERFECTION SODA BISCUITS

are the crispest, creamiest crackers made. Better still, they are baked in Winnipeg; right at your very door. They come to you fresh as the product of your own oven.

You can have them in air-tight packages or sealed tins as you prefer.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Mrs. B. S. Baker, East Margaretville, N. S., writes: "No mother would recommend for her baby any medicine of which she was not absolutely sure. A baby's life is too precious. A mother is always pleased to recommend to other mothers something that has been valuable in restoring the health of her own child. That is why I can highly recommend Baby's Own Tablets. They cured my baby who was suffering from constipation and I feel that I cannot praise them enough. I would advise all mothers with sickly babies to give them a trial, well knowing what the result will be." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Of course a farm is very much of a problem; good cultivation, good stock, good tools and a good system of work are parts of the problem. If you leave any of them out, you will have a lot of difficulty in "working it" correctly.

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, &c...

If youth could only know the value of its opportunities that come but once and pass so rapidly, it would be saved from any mistakes and failures of life, and from much of the bitterness and grief, the despair and gloom that often come with old age.

To this late day wolves do a vast amount of damage in Russia. The loss of the people in domestic animals through the depredations of wolves amounts to $10,000,000 every year.

Beware of Matchmaking

Matchmaking is a dangerous business. Literally it is so, for these little light-makers often burn their own fingers. If a mistake is made the couple are apt to blame the persons who brought them together and led them into matrimony. To recommend anyone for a husband or a wife is a very responsible business, and it is as a rule, best left alone.

A Pill for All Seasons.—Winter and summer, in any latitude, whether in torrid zone or Arctic temperature, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills can be depended upon to do their work. The dyspeptic will find them a friend always and should carry them with him everywhere. They are made to withstand any climate and are warranted to keep their strength. They do not grow stale, a quality not possessed in many pills now upon the market.

Largest Banquet in the World

The greatest banquet in history took place on August 18, 1889, when the forty thousand mayors of France sat at a table in the Palais de l'Industrie, in Paris. There were three relays of about 13,000 guests each. To prepare the feast required 75 chief cooks, 15,000 waiters, scullions, cellar men, and helpers, 80,000 plates, 52,000 glasses, knives, forks and spoons in proportion, 40,000 rolls, and fish and meat and fowl by the ton.

Foolish Question

The editor of the woman's page was on his vacation and the sporting editor had jumped into the breach.

Worms in children, if they be not attended to, cause convulsions, and often death. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will protect the children from these distressing afflictions.

A Hint to the Shy

Shyness comes through lack of confidence, and to overcome shyness it is therefore necessary to overcome this feeling of diffidence and gain more confidence. There is nothing like quiet thought to help in the attainment of self-confidence, and the shy or timid person will gain much by taking a few minutes quiet and thought each day, during which time the mind is fixed on the cause of the shyness or flurry. Be determined not to become shy or nervous and reason with yourself as to why you should not become thus agitated.

Determine to rule yourself by your own thoughts and by your own reasoning powers.

"Technically, yes. We begin arguing about that time."

Sores Heal Quickly—Have you a persistent sore that refuses to heal? Then try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the dressing. It will stop sloughing, carry away the proud flesh, draw out the pus and prepare a clean way for the new skin. The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

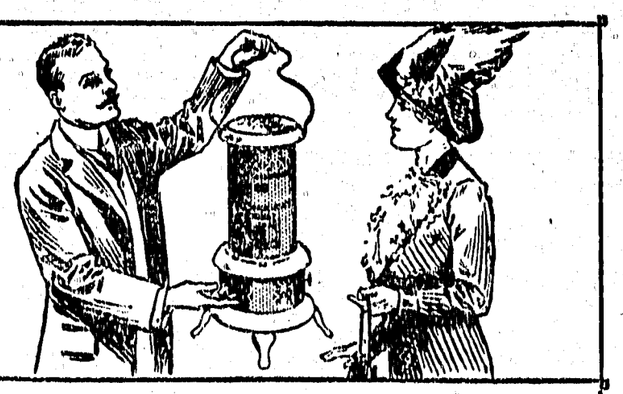
WINCHESTER

.401 Caliber

Self-Loading Rifle.

This new Winchester is reloaded by recoil, the repeating as well as the firing mechanism being under control of the trigger finger. A bullet fired from it strikes a blow of 2038 pounds—force enough to topple over the biggest game—penetration enough to reach the innermost vital spot. The wonderful in operation and powerful in execution, this rifle is neither complicated in construction nor cumbersome to handle.

It Hits Like The Hammer Of Thor.



An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

The Cheever Twins

They Were Outwitted In Their Practical Jokes.

By CHARLOTTE PERKINS.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the Cheever twins chose to dress exactly alike, when they shaved their mustaches and when Enoch exchanged his gold seal ring for Joseph's diamond, then their wives could not tell them apart, much to the mirth of the joke loving brothers. Of course the twins were accustomed to having strangers confuse their identities under the most ordinary conditions, but when they were clever enough to puzzle the two women who knew them best they rejoiced accordingly.

"Bet you," grinned Enoch one day as they lunched together downtown.

"Bet you," returned Joseph, with a significant smile.

That night Mrs. Enoch Cheever met her husband at the door of their flat and returned his proffered kiss. Instantly there flashed over her the conviction that this was her brother-in-law, but her face did not betray her discovery.

He hung his hat on the tree and came into the brighter light of the dining room. He stood there a moment, rubbing his hands with the gesture which was a marked characteristic of his brother's. For a moment Madge Cheever wavered in her opinion. She scrutinized gray suit, shirt and tie and ring, but they were all just as her husband had worn them in the morning.

"You look pleased, my dear," observed Joseph as he sat down in Joseph's chair and ladled the soup.

"I am," returned Madge with heightened color and much spirit. "You recollect that man, Mr. Benson, who called the other evening?"

"Benson?" repeated Joseph vaguely. "Oh—ah—um—yes. What about him?"

"Well, he says he will accept your offer."

"Offer—ah, yes, my offer!" repeated Joseph uncertainly. Then with a desire to drop the subject of the unknown Benson he added hastily, "I'll see Benson about it tomorrow."

"WHAT'S THIS ABOUT BENSON?"

"But he is coming this evening, Enoch," protested Madge innocently.

"What in the deuce is he coming here tonight for? I've an engagement at the lodge—got to initiate a few chaps." Joseph Cheever carved the roast with calm precision, serving Madge with paper thin slices of rare beef.

"You know I like it well done and quite thick, Enoch," she complained, but she did not permit him to change it. His evident perturbation was sufficient for her amusement. Then she returned to the subject of Benson.

"It doesn't seem to me you're treating Joe quite right in that Benson matter, Enoch," she remarked after a little pause. "The very idea of your furnishing that man capital to go into business across the street from your own store! It's all very well for you, because you will have a share of profits either way, but what about poor Joseph?"

"Yes," echoed Joseph, wide eyed, open mouthed. "What about poor Joseph?"

"Enoch Cheever!" shrieked Madge suddenly. "You are not eating tomatoes after what the doctor said?"

"Piffle!" snorted Joseph testily. He was thinking of his brother and the wily Benson, who had once been their head salesman and who was anxious to start another shop in competition with his former employers.

"Enoch Cheever!" cried Madge once more. "The very idea of your speaking to me in that manner! If you do not apologize at once I shall telephone to father to come up here!"

"Why—why, what did I say?" demanded Joseph, uncomfortably aware that he could not face, unflinching, the cold, black eyes of Mrs. Enoch Cheever's father.

"You said 'piffle,' and you never used such an expression before in your life—not to me. Of course I know Joseph talks to poor Ada that way, but I won't stand it!"

Mary entered the room at that moment, and while she removed the dishes and placed the dessert before her mistress there was an uncomfortable silence between Mrs. Enoch Cheever and her mischievous brother-in-law.

When they were alone Joseph said meekly: "I apologize, Madge. I was really thinking of something else." And then, with a sudden accession of dignity, he added: "I think you are mistaken about Ada. I am sure Joe doesn't act like such a brute as you suggest."

Madge tossed her blond head. "I know what Ada tells me in confidence," she said loftily. "I am sure that she is sorry she ever married your brother."

"Sorry—she—ever—married me—him?" asked poor Joseph, aghast.

"You know she had lots of chances to do better," pursued Mrs. Enoch Cheever complacently. "Joseph is nice looking, and he wouldn't be that if he didn't look so much like you Enoch. But he isn't clever one little bit, and you know Ada adores cleverness in a man."

"I suppose so," admitted Ada's husband, neglecting his pudding.

"That Ned Laurieson—you remember the fellow who was so wild about Ada's dark blue eyes? Well, you know he went on the stage after she refused him, and he has become a great actor. I don't suppose Ada has ever told Joseph about the affair, because I think she still feels a sort of—er—attachment, don't you know, dear." Madge smiled fondly at Joseph, who managed a sickly grin in response.

"I dare say she does," he said gloomily. "Sort of slender, willowy chap, I suppose." The Cheever brothers were inclined to stoutness, with thinning hair on top of their kind heads.

"He has an adorable figure," gushed Madge, suppressing a desire to give way to laughter, "and the thickest wavy hair and"—

"And a thick head, too, I'll warrant," blurted the indignant Joseph, forgetting his role.

"Why, Enoch, dear, are you jealous? I am not in love with Ned Laurieson even if Ada—oh, well, we went to the matinee yesterday to see him. I wish you could have been there."

"I only wish I could have been there!" threatened Joseph, rising in his wrath and pacing the floor.

"I can feel the thrill that shot through me when he made love to the heroine," murmured Madge with a faraway look in her eyes.

"I could pass him a few thrills that would put him out of the show business for good and all," growled Joseph, jerking on his gloves and reaching into the hall for his hat.

"I don't see any reason for your losing your temper over your brother's affairs," complained Mrs. Enoch. "I am sure if Joseph only treated Ada half as well as"— She paused significantly.

"Half as well as—what?" demanded Joseph impatiently.

"Half as well as you treat me, Enoch," said Enoch's wife with shining eyes. "If you could only talk to Joseph I am sure that"—

"Talk to him, madam! I'll read him a lesson he'll not soon forget." And Joseph Cheever, for once stirred out of his easy going ways, shot out of the door and into the down dropping elevator, hopped on a car and went to the appointed rendezvous with his brother at their club.

After the door had closed behind him Mrs. Enoch Cheever threw herself down on a couch and laughed until the tears rolled down her cheeks. Then she went to the telephone and called a number.

In the meantime Mrs. Joseph Cheever had passed through a similar scene with her brother-in-law, for she had received immediate news of the mixed identities from her sister-in-law before the Enoch Cheever dinner was served.

"Well, Ada," a very much perturbed Enoch was saying, "I am sorry you feel called upon to pity my brother's wife, but Madge has always seemed to me to be a happy woman."

"But of course, dear Joseph, you have never known of her tenderness for Ned Laurieson, the actor. Poor Madge! I am so sorry for her. And it does seem too bad, Joseph, that you should have entered into that questionable deal with Benson at this time, for it isn't fair to Enoch, as I said before, and"—

"Woman," interrupted Enoch solemnly, "if there is any peace in the world hold your tongue! I am going out to settle several matters and will not get home till late."

He disappeared as rapidly as his brother had done in another apartment a short while before and jumped on a car for his club. There he met Joseph in one of the small writing rooms, and the two brothers, who had never disagreed since their childish quarrels, now glared at each other fiercely.

"What's this about, Benson?" sputtered Joseph threateningly.

"That's just what I was going to ask you," retorted Enoch. "And do you know Ned Laurieson, the actor?"

They stared at each other, bewildered, not at first comprehending the situation. Then a great light broke over Joseph's face, and he slapped his knee. "Stung!" he yelled excitedly.

When Enoch had gathered the import of the situation he fell into a Turkish rocker and gasped for breath. "And they had it all cooked up between them beforehand against the next time we played that trick on 'em," laughed Enoch as the two, much relieved of their jealous fears, compared notes. "What can we afford to do, Joseph, now that Benson isn't going to run a store across the street and put us out of business? Pretty cute in 'em, eh?"

"I was thinking," rejoined Joseph, "that we might afford each to buy half of that touring car we were looking at the other day. And, say, that would be a surprise worth while, eh?"

"Yes, considering how meanly you treat your wife," chuckled Enoch.

"How about Ned Laurieson?" demanded Joseph inquisitively.

"Piffle!" returned Enoch complacently, and then they both laughed some more.

A FABLE.

THE hen remarked to the mulley cow
As she cackled her daily lay
(That is, the hen cackled): "It's funny how
I'm good for an egg a day.
I'm a fool to do it, for what do I get?
My food and lodging. My,
But the poodle gets that! He's the household pet,
And he never laid a single egg yet,
Not even when eggs were high."

The mulley cow remarked to the hen
As she masticated her cud
(That is, the cow did): "Well, what then?
You quit and your name is mud.
I'm good for six gallons of milk each day,
And I'm given my stable and grub,
But the parrot gets that much—anyway
All she can gobble—and what does she pay?
Not a dribble of milk, the dub!"

But the hired man remarked to the pair:
"You get all that's comin' to you.
The poodle does tricks, and the parrot kin swear,
Which is better than you kin do.
You're necessary, but what's the use
Of bewailin' your daily part?
You're bourgeois; work's your only excuse.
You can't do nothin' but jes' produce.
What them fellers does is art."
—Calcutta (India) Capital.

A Disgrace.

There is in Washington an old "grouch," whose son was graduated from Yale. When the young man came home at the end of his first term he exulted in the fact that he stood next to the head of his class. But the old gentleman was not satisfied.

"Next to the head!" he exclaimed. "What do you mean? I'd like to know what do you think I'm sending you to college for? Next to the head! Why aren't you at the head, where you ought to be?"

At this the son was much crestfallen, but upon his return he went about his work with such ambition that at the end of the term he found himself in the coveted place. When he went home that year he felt very proud. It would be great news to the old man.

When the announcement was made the father contemplated his son for a few minutes in silence, then with a shrug he remarked:

"At the head of the class, eh? Well, that's a fine commentary on Yale university!"—Lippincott's.

Woman's World

First Woman In China to Practice Medicine.

DR. YAMEI KIN.

Is it possible for an eastern woman to enjoy western education and training and remain characteristically oriental? This is a question frequently asked by Europeans interested in the education and progress of eastern women.

To see Dr. Yamei Kin, China's first woman doctor, and, better still, to hear her speak in perfect English of her hopes for the further progress of Chinese women, is to answer the question in the affirmative. Dr. Yamei Kin stands for the well balanced oriental woman, familiar with the science, learning and methods of the west, but losing none of her own nationality.

She is typically Chinese in appearance. There are the pale complexion, the dark hair, the small dark eyes, twinkling with fun. Small in stature, but alert and active in body and mind, Dr. Kin wisely retains her Chinese dress.

It is more than twenty years since Dr. Yamei Kin took her degree at the Women's Medical college, New York, now merged into Cornell university. The years spent in the west have taught her much besides a wonderful command of the English language and a knowledge of medicine and surgery. She does not approve of all she has heard and seen, but she recognizes that modern science is the greatest gift of the west to the east today. In method there must be adaptation rather than adoption.

She is now intrusted by the Chinese government with the organization of a medical department for women in northern China, a huge task which calls forth her splendid abilities. A start has been made at Tientsin. A hospital, dispensary and medical school are in existence. How they came into being is characteristically Chinese. Land, on which were some very ancient buildings, was allotted to Dr. Kin for her new organization, with an assured revenue. That was the government's part; she was to do all the rest. "You must make your own plans and carry your scheme to success."

This meant that she had to be her own architect and engineer and carry out the work with the aid of a few ordinary workmen. There were the water supply to be planned and sanitary work to be done, as well as demolishing some of the old buildings replacing them with new ones and adapting others to her purpose.

The transformation was worked. The architect and engineer are now sunk in the doctor and director. Dr. Kin's aim is to make sure progress and lift the people step by step to better sanitation and hygiene. In her establishment she maintains Chinese customs so far as possible and introduces only such western methods of sanitation as are indispensable. Her students enter for a two or three years course; their method of life is Chinese, also their food, which Dr. Kin shares with them in order that she may be the first to complain if anything should be wrong.

Nothing Like Personality.

Nothing like personality, if you know how to assert it. Clerks have not forgotten the dear lady who wrote to her husband: "I am just crazy over the Thousand Islands. How long can I stay?" It was personality, pure and simple, that won for her the enthusiastic response, "So glad you are having a nice time! Don't hurry. Stay a week on each island."

More gossip this, but with his own ears the clerk once heard a farmer's wife pay a most generous and inspiring tribute to personality. Concluding a tirade in disfavor of an aunt, she blurted: "I know what I'll do to her! I'll—I'll—visit her!"—Clerk of the Day in Boston Evening Transcript.

Origin of High Heeled Shoes.

Mme. Pompadour was a very small woman, but to make herself look tall she built her hair up high and wore the first pair of high heeled shoes ever made. The high heels that were invented for her have been accused of many crimes to the foot, but physicians now seem agreed that "broken arches" may be produced by any sudden shock such as jumping from a car. Children who jump the rope a great deal sometimes have this disease of the foot.

HE LIVED THERE ALL RIGHT.

Father Got a Side Light on Son's College Habits.

ARTHUR LEFEVRE, the well known Texas author, said in Victoria apropos of the Texas prohibition campaign:

"That reminds me of a happening at the University of Virginia during my student days in '84.

"There was a Baltimore freshman at the varsity whose father got several letters about his boy's wild ways—about his fondness for peach and honey and such like heavy drinks. These letters grieved the old man to the heart. He wrote to the freshman and in reply got a general denial of all the charges.

"Evidence, however, continued to pour in, and finally the father decided on a secret journey to Charlottesville. He timed himself to arrive late at night. It was, in fact, 2 o'clock in the morning when he rang the bell of his son's boarding house.

"In response to his ring a woman in a yellow bathrobe appeared, lamp in hand.

"'What do you want?' she demanded, peering suspiciously into the darkness.

"'Madam,' said the amateur detective, 'is this the residence of ——?' and he mentioned his son's name.

"The woman's grin relaxed, and she answered indifferently:

"'Yes, he lives here. You can carry him right in.'"—Kansas City Star.

His Saving Perhaps.

The late Bill Barlow, editor of the Laramie Boomreang, believed no less in accurate than in humorous journalism.

"You can't achieve your effect," Barlow once said in an address in Douglas, Wyo., "unless you're accurate. Uncertainty and inaccuracy will spoil the finest effect, whether it be comic or whether it be pathetic.

"I remember a funeral in Tin Can. The Widow Wagg had lost her third in a poker dive. George Jones, D. D., delivered the funeral address, and an eloquent and moving address it was, but George, in his inaccurate way, hadn't made sure whether it was her third or her fourth that the widow Wagg was burying.

"Hence he spoiled a grand oration with these concluding words:

"'And now we commend to the divine mercy this widowed handmaid who hath been bereaved again and again and again'—

"George hesitated, frowned, and added, 'And perhaps again.'"—Human Life.

Didn't Think It Permissible.

"I think," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that our minister is going too far. Did you hear his sermon last Sunday?"

"Yes," replied her hostess as she finished sealing a letter to her daughter, the Duchess of Ramshead. "Both me and Josiah put in fifty dollar bills when the contribution was taken."

"I don't like the habit he has fallen into of anathematizing the rich."

"Mercy! I hadn't heard about him doin' that. I didn't think anybody was allowed to anathematize people unless they had appendicitis or somethin'.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Points for Mothers

In the Nursery.

Fresh ripe fruit without sugar is very wholesome, especially if eaten in the early part of the day. So much sugar is often added to stewed fruit as to make it undesirable for some children, especially those subject to skin trouble.

To make an attractive screen for the nursery get a light bamboo screen (an old one will do) and remove the silkoline with which these are usually covered. Substitute dark red or green cambric and cover it with colored pictures, pasted on so that each panel is given over to one kind, such as flowers, animals, children, etc. The screen will prove its value in the early morning hours when the baby will lie and look at the pictures instead of starting an untimely concert.

A pretty crib cover may be made from a yard each of white and pale blue or pink flannel. On the colored flannel embroider a flower and bow-knot design, on the white a conventional border and a large central monogram. Bind the two together by means of wide satin ribbon and put the bow or rosette in one corner, with the colored side considered as the top.

When a child eats or drinks anything that is hot enough to burn the mouth give him a teaspoonful of pure olive oil, telling him to hold it in his mouth as long as possible before swallowing it.

One Mother's Experience.

A wise young mother who seems to have excellent control over her little ones let fall a few words of wisdom at a "mothers' club" recently.

"When my babies are tired at night and it's time for them to go to bed," she said when another mother asked her how she succeeded so well in getting her children to bed without a row, "I never say 'Get ready for bed at once and put away your playthings immediately,' for that will call forth tears and a protest against the strict command. Instead I say, 'Nearly time for bed, so put away your playthings in a few moments.' In this way they have fair warning, and they are seldom unwilling to go when the final signal comes. That's my very simple method."

It is well for young mothers to remember this one mother's way, for it's the keynote of the real understanding of the child heart. Sympathy is a quality children never fail to understand and appreciate. Imagine a mother being told by some one in authority to put down her book without finishing the one chapter which is the most interesting in the whole book. Would it not at least save a frown of impatience to be told to finish the chapter first?

Helping Backward Children.

Many mothers would be perfectly willing to help their children with their school work if they only knew how.

If a child is slow to read and spell it will help to say, "Shut the d-o-o-r," "Get me a b-o-o-k, please;" "Your hair is b-r-o-w-n," "Your eyes are b-l-u-e." Then encourage the child to tell you something the same way, even if it is only "Look at the c-a-t."

If there are some new words to spell give the child an old newspaper and a pair of scissors and let her cut out the letters and form the words who, been, work, etc. This will impress the letters on the mind more than repeating them.

To tempt children to read rouse their curiosity by putting a picture in the middle of the sentence, as the (rat) went into a hole.

Tell a story and spell a word occasionally, as: Once there was a dear little (rabbit) and it had long (ears). It went for a little (walk) one day in the (field), etc.

Ten Commandments For Baby.

Give the baby its food at regular hours.

Give the baby water.

Give the baby no medicine unless prescribed by the doctor.

Give the baby a tub bath every day.

Do not put warmer clothes on the baby in the summer time than you wear yourself.

Keep a window open night and day in the baby's room. Colds come from closed windows, not from open ones.

If the baby does not gain weight see the doctor. Something is wrong.

Do not rock the baby to sleep. Put it down and let it cry itself to sleep.

Boil all milk before giving it to the baby.

If you cannot employ a doctor apply to the nearest police station.

Teaching Chivalry.

"My little boy has always been very chivalrous in his attitude toward me," said a mother recently. "This trait I make use of now when he comes from school saying, as most small boys do at one time or another, 'I don't like the teacher.' I talk about the large number of little boys the teacher has under her charge, how tired she must get, how much she needs strong manly little boys to help her, and my son decides at once that he'd like to be a brave, strong knight to protect the teacher. He always goes back in a helpful frame of mind."

WATCH FOR THE BIG SIGN

A. McKINNON McPhee Block, Cumberland

HOW WILL YOU VOTE?

This week every voter will be called upon to assume his part in the direction of the public affairs of the town for another year. Remember that your vote is not merely a matter of favor or friendship discharged on election day, but it is to bear fruit for good or ill to the whole community throughout the year. It is not a sufficient qualification for a candidate for public office in which the moral welfare of our citizens is concerned, that he be genial and friendly, a jolly good fellow, or even a close personal friend. Even unimpeachable purity of personal life, indispensable as that is, must be coupled with a clear vision of duty and a strength of conviction that will stand as a bulwark in the maintenance of law and decency against the ever aggressive forces of evil which will run riot in any community where it is not strongly repressed by the moral strength of our appointed guardians and administrators.

We cannot afford to be indifferent to the moral aspects of the issue. Any loosening of the leash of the law which alone holds in check the hell-hounds of immorality and vice is a menace to the sanctity of our homes and the welfare of our best citizens, our young men, which may bear bitter fruits of dissoluteness and the disappointment of fond hopes long after we shall have forgotten the occasion. Do not shirk your responsibility. Take your part in the campaign. The indifference and aloofness of men of the highest sentiments because of unpleasant clamor and dust of the contest has handed over many a campaign to the less scrupulous who are never slow to see their advantage. Select your candidates, not for friendship or favor, but in the fear of God and for the highest service they will render the community, and then support them in the campaign with the high enthusiasm of a mission to your fellows, untouched by any selfish motive. Such a spirit will raise politics, either local or general, out of the slime, and ennoble it with the grace of Christian service. With this spirit you will vote right.—From Grace Methodist Church Calendar.

STORMY MEETING OF CONSERVATIVES IN COURTENAY

The meeting of the Conservative Association on Monday evening in the Agricultural Hall, it is safe to say will be the main topic of conversation in Courtenay for some time. And the old saying that the best laid plans are wont to gang astray, was never better exemplified if rumour is correct, than on the same evening, when in a body almost half of the meeting, composed principally of citizens from the upper side of the bridge were practically forced to leave the hall. Personal vituperation, principally of Mr Bates, was in evidence from the beginning. The former president of the Association, Mr. Byron Crawford, being delayed, Mr Calhoun called the meeting to order. The minutes of the last annual meeting having been read a motion was made that the officers of the Association be elected for the present year—and here the fun began, over the delicate point as to whether people who had not joined the Association were entitled to a vote at the present meeting. Mr O.H. Fechner was of opinion that before the officers of the year were elected, individuals wishing to join the Association be given an opportunity to do so. But this was vigorously opposed by members of the Association, who upheld the view that as the present meeting was the annual meeting and advertised as such, anyone wishing to join in time to have a vote at the annual meeting had been given ample time to do so, and that they should have done so had they wished to have a recognised standing at this meeting: but that now, until given an opportunity to pay their subscription at the close of the meeting, they would have to take the same rating as casual outsiders who of course expected to have no weight in the affairs of an association towards which they had not contributed. Reasonable enough, don't you think; and yet the storm of protest that arose almost took the roof of the building. Why? Because the ground was cut right from under the feet of a clique present, who, rumour has it, were itching to run the meeting, elect the officers, transact the business, and pat themselves on the back for the successful operation of "Tammany Hall" tactics in Courtenay.

Clean, bright and wholsome, low in water and carbohydrates, but containing nearly double the amount of fat and protein, pound for pound, than the ordinary feed stuffs in local use, it and compared in price with what is asked for other feed stuffs, is triple protein value for your money. Its superiority lies in the fact that feeding it increases both the total digestible matter and the amount of fat and protein in the daily ration

Meets all the Requirements of a Profitable Dairy Feed

And Saves you 40 to 50% on Feed

You should not be without it. Malted grains, fresh and sweet from the brew kettle, drsed in a continuous vacuum process by

CUMBERLAND

This is the first spring in the history of Comox District that the local demand for eggs has been equal to the supply. Nothing pays better than poultry, if they are rightly managed. Begin with the little fellows and feed them CHICK FOOD, which is a mixture of bone meal, wheat, oats, corn and other grain, cut and blended in the right proportion to make them thrive and grow.
