WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT PASSED AWAY

Mr. Walter Sterling McPhee Died at His Home Last Sunday Morning

The grim reaper has again taken another esteemed friend and respected citizen in the person of Mr. Walter Sterling McPhee, of Courtenay, who died at his home on Sunday morning, June 22nd, aged 34 years and 5 months.

The late Mr. McPhee was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McPhee of Courtenay, and besides his parents leaves a wife and two children, also three brothers and a sister to mourn his loss, viz: Messrs Horace, Wallace and (Dr.) Judson McPhee and Mrs. Callin.

Twenty years ago, when THE NEWS first started, which was at Courtenay, under the management of Mr. Whitney [who has since passed to the "Great Beyond") Mr. McPhee started to serve his apprenticeship in the printing business at that time, but later on he discovered the occupation did not suit him, so he decided to try something else. He followed the grocery and dry goods business up to the time of his death.

The NEWS extends its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

The interment takes place today, Wednesday, June 25th, in the Presbyterian cemetery, Sandwick, under the auspices of Courtenay Masonic Lodge, of which the deceased was a member.

Thousands of Miners Will Declare Strike in State of Virginia

Charleston, West Va., June 18—A general strike of miners in New River coal field, district No. 29, United Mine Workers of America, will be called next week, according to an announcement to-night of Thomas Haggerty, member of the International miners' board. Fifteen thousand men are employed in the New River field.

The decision to call a general strike was reached to-day at Beckley, W. Va.

Whether 15,000 miners will be idle depends, it is said, upon what concessions may be granted by the operators. It is believed that some of the operators within the next few days will grant terms agreeable to their employees. In all such instances, it is intimated, such operators will be protected when the strike comes.—Sun.

Correspondence.

To the Editor.

Sir:—A short while ago I was advised by two well-known citizens that one of the aldermen had made use of extraordinary words in connection with a fire in the camp; this prompted me to insert an item in The News relative thereto. A day or so later Mr. William Beveridge, while in a peevish mood, and evidently having ascertained that the cap fitted him to perfection, accosted and accused me of having intended the item in question to apply to him, and he at the same time emphatically stated that the whole item was untrue and suggested that the writer should deny the same in the papers. It therefore behooves me to retract which I will proceed to do:

The alderman mentioned in said item is not a wonder; he is not and never was a quiet and secluded individual, and the intelligent portion of the electors did not elect him. So in view of his denial and my foregoing denial, one would be led to believe that he is a noisy busy-body and that the unintelligent portion of the electors are responsible for his election.

In the last issue of the Islander, appears a lengthy communication purporting to have been written and contributed by Mr. Beveridge. He states therein, "He says the alderman is a quiet secluded citizen. It would be better if many more were secluded, especially in the night time, etc."

When Mr. Beveridge uses the words "many more," I presume he means "many more aldermen." Well, he is a member of the Council and ought to know.

He further states that the "Council represent one or two curs," this course statement of his may be true, though when one considers the source, it is difficult to believe. There is, however, a possibility that the printer twisted the words about and that Mr. Beveridge meant just the reverse.

Mr. Beveridge's letter goes on to mention that I advised him of the name of my informant and also adds some irrevelant matters regarding by-laws. Now, taking these assertions, together with his denial of having uttered those famous words, "Let the Boogar Burrn," at first led me to believe that he was outclassing that ancient and notorious unworthy Ananias, but on further consideration of the matter I have come to the conclusion that he is just simply a common or garden variety of prevaricator.

As regards the Council deciding to run the municipality for the benefit of "Harrison," this is certainly very original of them indeed. It would be interesting to know just how many sittings it took them to arrive at such a momentous decision and the number of hours consumed by my friend in uttering his famous speech on "The Liberty of the Council."

A good many people would be very surprised to hear that the Council was running the municipality, for to the most particular observer, it seems to be standing still or using its reverse [illegible]

Yours etc.

Falls Three Storeys and Still Uninjured

Sixteen-Months Old Child Has Marvellous Escape After Headlong Dash to Ground

There is a youngster in Vancouver who bids fair to become one of the greatest acrobats of all time. His name is "Jack" Otton, and he is the 17 months-old child of Mr. H. Otton, of Suite 40, Cecelia court, corner of Seventh avenue and Carolina street. Yesterday "Jack," who is just beginning to toddle, showed signs of coming gymnastic eminence when he climbed to the window of the flat looking out on the street from the third-story window. "Jack" did not trouble to make his bow to the awe-stricken pedestrians in the street He straddled himself on the window ledge and then without any ceremony described a beautiful curve in a headlong dash to the street. Neighbors who had been watching ran out in fright, but "Jack" was neither prone to receive plaudits or take any censure from them.

He just landed squarely on his feet after the dangerous exercise and ran to his mother. The larter was most surprised of all to see that her darling son was not only unhurt, but was smiling at breaking bounds from his home in such a novel way.—Sun

Picture Show and Vaudeville

The Cumberland Hall to be Opened Up With Vaudeville and Moving Pictures on First of the Month

We are informed by the genial proprietor of the Cumberland Hotel, Mr. Wm. Merrifield, that the moving picture outfit formerly owned by Messrs Russell and Webster has been disposed of by these gentlemen to "Doc" Reynolds, of Nanaimo. The "Doc" has had considerable experience in the moving picture business and no doubt will meet with great success in his new enterprise here.

The hall will be fixed up in proper shape; there will be an inclined floor and stationery chairs placed so that everybody will have an opportunity of seeing the entertainments to their satisfaction. The stage is also being fixed up in up-to-date shape with all kinds of scenery so as to make it suitable for dramas and Vaudeville entertainments, as the new management is making arrangements for a circuit of shows which will play between here and Nanaimo every week.

This will be something new in Cumberland, as nothing of that nature has ever been shown here before, and bids fair to be well patronized.

One of the main features of the new management will be the moving pictures, four reels of which will be shown, and produced by the very best talent and supplied by the most reliable film exchanges. Good luck 'Doc.'

Mrs. John Horbury returned home last Sunday by the S. S. Cowichan, from Burnaby, where she had been spending a few days holiday with her daughter, Mrs. Anderson. She was accompanied home by Mrs. Anderson and family.

No, drop it, said Green hoarsely. 'e 'it me first, 'e did—but as for you, you drop it.

Well declared Monday in deep disdisgust at this strange lack of a proper pride in an affair that had occupied many columns of the papers; well, I thought every gentleman naturally liked a little conversation about his own little affairs.

Tastes differ, you see, said Durand; this way, and he led them down the stairs into the kitchen, where a tall thin woman with a flat chest and long bony limbs, her countenance disfigured by a pronounced squint, was busy doing some cooking, while a stout middle-aged man sat sound asleep in a chair by the fire.

Hullo, my dear! cried Durand, give us something to eat, will you, my charmer? Wake up Sneezer, he added, giving the sleeper a shake which elicited only a muffled grunt.

You leave my man alone, Mr. Durand, grumbled Mrs. Crookes, he needs a lot of sleep by constitution, he does, bless him.

Bless him, indeed, said Durand, well, wake up your own dear Ebenezer—only look sharp for Billy Man may be here any minute.

What have we come down here for? asked Monday discontentedly, why couldn't we sit in the drawing-room like gentlemen? For my part, I have inherited aristocratic tastes that make places like kitchens quite distasteful to me.

Then get rid of them, Durand advised him; get rid of them.

Ah, but I'm proud of my aristocratic tastes, returned Monday with an immense complacence; besides, if we was in the drawing-room we could have Miss Joan along with us too.

Oh, said Durand, we want to talk business she must know nothing about.

She'll have to know some day, grumbled Monday, when we're married. And when shall we be married, Dave Durand? You've promised her to me long enough, so you have.

Durand's evil smile came and played upon his countenance, making it ten times more evil than before.

Patience, patience, he said smoothly, a maiden's tender love must not be forced, you know and you must have patience my good friend, before I can call you my dear son—why, what's the matter, Green?

You don't mean, gasped out Green excitedly, as 'er's to marry 'im?

Your remark is a trifle confused—too many pronouns, don't you think? But if you mean to ask if Sid Monday desires to marry my daughter Joan, he does.

And she? asked Green, still in the same excited tones; and she—what does she say?

Ah, she does not know, smiled Durand, while Monday smirked and pulled his collar and straightened his tie; it is a pleasant surprise we are reserving for her.

Well! gasped Green again and then seemed to fall into an amazed silence.

You had better have a care of her, grumbled Mrs. Crooks, who by now had succeeded in arousing her slumbrous spouse; she'll be giving the whole show away one of these days. If I was you I'd put her through it, so I would, or pack her off somewhere with her ma where we should never see neither of 'em no more. They'll be the ruin of us yet, you mark my words.

Ah, but she can be made useful, retorted Durand, and then turned round quickly on Green, whose features still showed his amazement and disgust.

And what are you interested in her for? he demanded; do you want to marry her yourself?

Me? stammered Green in tones of such unaffected bewilderment that even Monday, who had been sitting silent in rising anger became satisfied. Me marry 'er! Me! lor, no.

How fortunate, smiled Durand, my dear Sid, I was almost afraid you were going to have a dangerous rival; I was, upon my word.

Look 'ere, said Green, don't you go a-poking fun at me—or 'er—so there.

I'm sure I apologise, smiled Durand, but now friend Sneezer is awake let us get to business, and first of all about Lady Martin's little affair. The ball is coming off so soon, there is no time to lose, and Billy Man is too uncertain for us to depend on.

They became engaged in deep discussion while Mrs. Crooks put on the table a meal of which they partook heartily. Then one by one they slipped away; first Monday and then Durand, who was evidently the leader among them, and last Sneezer, till all were gone except Mrs. Crooks and Green, who was to take up his position as footman at once.

You had better take 'em up their tea, I suppose, Mrs. Crooks observed to him in a very sulky and grudging tone after some time had elapsed; we has to wait on 'em now, but in a bit—in a bit—

She prepared a tray with much grumbling, and Green, awkwardly enough, for he was not used to such domestic employment, carried it into the drawing room. He had one or two such journeys to make, and when he returned the second time, it was evident he was in a very bad temper.

She never so much as looked at me, he grumbled; one would have thought I wasn't there never so much as looked at me, she didn't, he repeated with vast indignation.

Ah, she's a proud 'un, said Mrs. Crookes viciously; a real proud 'un; but in a bit—in a bit—

And ain't she got a right to be proud? he retorted unexpectedly; she has got something to be proud of, ain't she? And that, he added moodily, is more nor you and me can say, or most other folks as I ever met.

He sat down sulkily in a corner of the kitchen, while in the drawing-room above the two ladies took their tea in a silence almost unbroken. It was not that Mrs. Durand was disinclined to chatter—she was never that—but Joan's face had on it an expression her mother knew well, and that meant that she was thinking deeply.

But at last she spoke, looking up abruptly.

Mother, she said, do you know where that magazine is I showed you—the one with the portrait of Wilton Mayne, the poet, in it?

Dear me, Joan, how you startle me when you speak in that sudden way, said Mrs. Durand, pressing her hand to her heart. It's on the table just behind you I think.

I'm sorry, darling, said Joan penitently, and picking up the magazine she turned slowly to the portrait of Wilton Mayne, which she examined with great care.

I wonder Mrs. Durand babbled on, feeling herself at liberty to talk now Joan had broken the silence. I wonder what the neighbors will think of our footman? Dear me. I'm sure it's very good of David. Only it's such a surprise; but I suppose when a man occupies such an important post as David does in the Secret Political Service of the Government, he is more or less bound to be mysterious.

Joan made no answer, but bent still lower over the portrait she was examining with such detailed and singular care. But after all, her mother believed that tale about the Government Secret Service, so much the better. Joan knew that her own doubts had hardened now into something approaching certainties. Her memory began to return to the past. She had never loved her father, she had always dreaded him, but it was only during the last year or two that such dark and terrible fears had invaded her heart. She remembered well, when on one of his brief visits to them some three or four years before, he had seemed so much astonished at finding that the boisterous school-girl in short frocks had turned into a stately and beautiful young woman. She remembered how, following his surprise, there had come upon his face that hateful smile she had learned to dread so utterly since then.

But through it all she had shielded and guarded her mother as much as possible, and for her part Mrs. Durand seemed inclined to accept her husband's offered explanation of his strange comings and goings and the strange associates he had, that he was in the Secret Service of the Government.

And I don't believe you've heard a word of all that I've been saying, Joan, complained Mrs. Durand pettishly; you seem a great deal interested in that portrait, she added.

Yes, it interests me, said Joan slowly as she put down the magazine and rose to her feet. Shall you be all right, darling if I go out for a little while?

I suppose I shall have to be, returned Mrs. Durand complainingly, but what is taking you out now, Joan.

I will tell you some other time, darling, Joan answered as she left the room to put on her outdoor things.

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED

On Arms and Legs. Caused Running Sores. Would Tear Himself Till They Bled. Like Open Wounds. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

53 Stewart St., Toronto, Ontario.—"When my baby was nine months old he had a lot of pimples come on his arms and legs which used to come to a head, then break and cause running sores. They were bright red spots, which itched and burned so badly that he would tear himself till he made them bleed and they were all like open wounds. They were on his face and arms so bad that I did not like to take him out. He could not sleep or rest anywhere. I tried several things at home and lots of different things people used to advise me, but he did not get a bit better.

"I bathed each place in warm water and Cuticura Soap and then I put some of the Cuticura Ointment on and bound them up in soft rags and he slept better that night than he had for three weeks, and he did not scratch himself once that night. I did that for three days, night and morning, when we noticed the sores were getting drier and healing, so I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and after a week and a few days there was not a blemish on him." (Signed) Mrs. F. West, Feb. 29, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 39D, Boston, U. S. A.

A Smart Salesman

Let me see some of your black kid gloves, said a lady to a shop assistant.

These are not the latest style, are they? she asked, when the gloves were produced.

Yes, madam, replied the shopman, we have had them in stock only two days.

I didn't think they were, because the fashion paper says black kids have tan stitches and vice versa. I see the tan stitches but not the vice versa.

The shopman explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, so she bought three pairs.

Modest

A clerical-looking gentleman, in the hope of obtaining a contribution, entered the office of a newspaper, and, finding the editor in, began:

I am soliciting aid for a gentleman of refinement and intelligence who is in need of a little ready money but is too proud to make known his sufferings.

Why, exclaimed the editor, I'm the only man in town answering that description. What's the gentleman's name?

I'm sorry to say I am not at liberty to disclose it.

It must be me, parson. Heaven prosper you in your good work, said the editor, wiping away a tear.

NEW PISTOLS FOR PARIS POLICE

New Weapon to Deal With Desperate Criminals Is Successfully Used

Paris, France.—The suffocating revolver was used by the Paris police recently for the first time, and its effectiveness was amply demonstrated. The weapon was invented as a sequel to the motor bandit sieges, when it was realized that there was need for some method of overcoming the resistance of dangerous criminals, without so much risk to the police.

The weapon was used in the Passy quarter, where a young creole named Vitale Pothin, belonging to a wealthy family, had suddenly become mad.

Armed with a revolver and several boxes of cartridges he had barricaded himself in his room at a flat, and for several hours had fired at any one who had ventured approach. A policeman had a narrow escape of being shot.

Steel bucklers were then fitted to a couple of detectives, who crept up to a small window and fired the contents of their suffocating revolvers. The room was filled with acrid smoke, and Pothin, half suffocated, made a dash to the window, where he was captured by the detectives.

THRONE FOR WILLIAM

Second Son of King Gustava Selected for Albania

Vienna.—Prince William of Sweden, second son of King Gustava, will be the first occupant of the throne of Albania if the wishes of the triple alliance—Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy are carried out. Dispatches from Cattaro, the seaport of Montenegro announce that the fortress of Scutari is being subjected to a severe bombardment by the Montenegrin besiegers.

Child Eaten by Eagles

Rome.—The Cacciatore Italiano states that a party of hunters have captured two royal eagles, with their young, on the Alps near the Ledro valley. In the eagles' nest were found the bones of a child, as well as the remains of 200 ducks, forty hares, a chamois, a fox and innumerable birds.

DR. TALKS ON FOOD

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork, I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart, and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can palatably but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Anyone who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

ROYAL DOCUMENTS IN BOTTLE

List of Valuable Jewels Once Owned by the French Empress Eugenie

Paris, France.—An inventory of jewels that belonged to the Empress Eugenie was discovered recently at Montlouis, in the Pyrenees-Oriental department, by a young soldier who was taking a stroll near the fortifications. He noticed the neck of a bottle sticking out of the ground, and unearthed it. In it was a document bearing the seals of the Second Empire, dated September 4, 1870, and having the inscription: Inventory of jewels and bank notes entrusted today to M. Manuel Perez to be taken to Madrid and handed over to the Comtesse de Montijo—probably a relation of the Empress. Several items followed:

A pearl necklace presented by the Emperor of Russia value at $100,000.

Two pearl bracelets from the Queen of England, valued at $125,000.

A ruby and diamond parure, from the Shah of Persia, valued at $160,000.

A pearl and diamond necklace from the Grand Duc Constantine, of Russia, valued at $165,000.

Four parures six bracelets and three necklaces, valued at $320,000.

The document was headed Paris, Palace of the Tuileries, and signed by the Grand Chamberlain of the Palace.

When the authorities visited the spot where the inventory was discovered, they found part of a human skeleton, which had apparently been there for more than forty years.

How Time Does Fly

You must remember, said a teacher to his class in ancient history, that these events happened more than three thousand years ago.

Ah, exclaimed an idle boy, too true, too true! Bless me, how the time does slip away.

No man is Stronger Than his Stomach

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N.Y. answers hosts of delicate questions about which every man or woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing.

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefullness and strength of mind or muscle depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which make blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removing the poisons from the blood, and the various organs get rich, red blood, instead of being illy nourished. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over 40 years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form, or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, and a trial box will be mailed you.

The defendant, who was held on the charge of keeping a dog without a license, repeatedly tried to interrupt the evidence, but was hushed each time by the court. Finally the clerk turned to him:

Do you wish the court to understand that you refuse to renew your dog license?

Yes, but—

We want no buts. You must renew your license or be fined. You know it expired on Jan. 1.

Yes, but so did the dog.

Sam the chore man returned from the city with a scarfpin that contained a diamond of no usual size. It was the pride of his heart and the envy of his village companions. He treated all enquiries from them as to its value and authenticity with high scorn.

His employer, after a week of basking in its radiance asked Sam about its history.

Sam, he said, is it a real diamond?

Well, said Sam, if it ain't I've been skun out of a half dollar.

Automobile Aroma

Farmer Hiram was mending the front fence when an automobile whizzed past, emitting a trail of blue smoke from its oil-choked engine.

Farmer Hiram's hand went to his nose. When the car had disappeared far down the lane and the smell had died away he ventured to address the hired man.

Sam, he said, they may be swell city fellers an' all that; but they certainly was smoking some vile seegars.

As an express train was going through a station one of the passengers leaned too far out of the window, overbalanced and fell out. He fortunately landed on a sand heap, so that he did himself no great injury, but with torn clothes and not a few bruises, he said to a porter who was standing by:

What shall I do?

It's all right, don't worry replied the porter. Your ticket allows you to stop off.

Not Tending to Business

A country doctor was recently called upon to visit a patient who resided at a distance. Arriving at his destination he tied his horse to a tree near by, and walked towards the house.

It happened that work was in progress on a new well, of which the doctor knew nothing until he found himself sinking into the earth. He fell just far enough to be unable to get out of the hole unassisted, and yelled lustily for help.

When he was finally pulled up his rescuer remarked: I say, doctor, you had no business down there.

No, I hadn't, replied the doctor.

Don't you know, continued his rescuer, you ought to leave the well alone and look after the sick.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKING A REPUTATION IN THE WEST

Saskatchewan Man Tells How They Cured Him, After Four Months' Suffering from Backache and Other Forms of Kidney Disease

St. Phillips, Sask. (Special).—In a new country where changes of climate and impure water are among the difficulties to be surmounted, kidney trouble is prevalent. It is the kidneys, the organs that strain the impurities out of the blood, that first feel any undue strain on the body. Consequently Dodd's Kidney Pills have been well tried and tested in this neighborhood.

They have stood the test. Many settlers tell of backache, rheumatism and urinary troubles cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mr. Otto Olshewski is one of these. In speaking of his cure he says:

"I suffered from kidney disease for four months. My back ached, I had heart flutterings, and was always tired and nervous. My skin had a harsh, dry feeling; my limbs were heavy; and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"I consulted a doctor, but, as I did not appear to improve, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes, and now I am all right."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always stand the test. Ask your neighbors.

His Request

So you have determined to sue me for breach of promise?

Yes.

With damages.

Of course.

Well, say, I've got just one favor to ask of you. Don't sue me for less than $100,000. I haven't got a dollar in the world that I can call my own, and it might help my credit.

FINDS TIME TO WRITE PLAYS

Millionaire Author Makes Another Millionaire Famous in Classic History His Hero

Paris, France.—J. Salter Hansen has secured the English and American rights of a play by Baron Henri de Rothschild with the appropriate title of 'Croesus.' Baron Henri de Rothschild, who is also a practicing doctor, has several well merited successes to his credit on the Paris stage.

The new play, particularly when its authorship is taken into consideration, is distinctly interesting. Croesus, an immensely rich man, finds in the first act that the woman he loves and on whom he showers money is carrying on an intrigue with a poorer man, whose chief merit, apparently, is his poverty.

BARON HENRI DE ROTHSCHILD

We find him in the next act transacting business, buying pictures, lending his friends money, and very much disgusted at the general wish to extract money from him.

In the last act, disguised as a poor clerk, Croesus is happy. He is engaged to a Paris midinette, and she believes him to be earning $60 a month. But one of his own friends, with money he has borrowed from Croesus, has dazzled the girl, and she suggests that Croesus should play the part in her life which in the first act was played by the friend of the woman he loved. Croesus cannot be loved for himself alone. His money always stands in the way.

Mr. Hansen says that he and Baron Henri de Rothschild will be in London before long to make final arrangements for the production of the play.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little one. They act as a gentle laxative, sweeten the stomach, break up colds and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Alphonse Landry, Upper Caraquet, N.B., says: "Baby's Own Tablets were of great benefit to my little boy and I would advise all mothers with sickly children to give them a trial." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Valuable Antique

An old lady was searching in the dim bric-a-brac shop for something odd to take home with her. Finally she noticed a quaint figure, the head and shoulders of which appeared above the counter at the farthest end of the room. She turned to the clerk and said: What's that queer old Japanese idol over there worth?

The clerk answered in a subdued tone: About $250,000, ma'am. That's the proprietor.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator will drive worms from the system without injury to the child, because its action, while fully effective, is mild.

An Irishman who was too old for active work was offered the position of crossing tender at a small railroad station. He looked dubious as the duties of the office were explained to him and the meaning of the various flags was clearly stated.

In case of danger with a train coming, of course you wave the red flag, said his friend, proceeding with his explanation.

A hard old hand gripped his arm. Man, dear, it'll never do, said Patrick, shaking his head solemnly. I could never trust myself to remember to wave a red flag whin there was a green wan handy.

Sweating System

Swell—Yes, sir, I make all my money by the sweating system—by making the other fellows do the sweating while I rake in the coin.

Friend—I should be ashamed to acknowledge it if I were you.

Swell—Why, there's no harm in being the proprietor of a Turkish bath, is there?

After passing the greater part of the evening with friends, John decided that home was the place for him, and, arriving there, he elected to sleep in the front yard. Next morning happening to look up, he saw his wife observing him from an open window. Shut that window! he yelled. Do you want me to catch my death of cold?

Did She?

Do you know, Ethel, said Grace, I overheard George say to Fred that although he loves me and wants to propose, whenever he is near me he is too nervous to speak?

Ethel—I suppose you will be calling him up on the telephone soon.

Daughter as Debt Security

Anaemic Condition or Bloodlessness

A peculiar pallor or even ghastliness of the skin is the marked symptom of anaemia. The eyelids, gums and lips appear to be almost bloodless. The cause of this condition is the absence of red corpuscles from the blood.

The anaemic patient is usually thin and weak, but may be fleshy and inclined to dropsy. Stomach troubles and weakness of the bodily organs are accompaniments

Red corpuscles must be added to the blood, and this can best be accomplished by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action that it is admirably suited for the use of women and girls suffering from anaemia or other diseases which arise from an impoverished condition of the blood.

It is readily assimilated, enters the blood streams and carries health and strength to every organ of the body.

The vigor of the digestive system is quickly restored, and the food taken into the body is properly digested and nourishment supplied to the whole system.

To get well and keep well you must supply the body with an abundance of pure, rich blood. Nothing can help you so well as

STAR MATADORS OPEN SEASON

Two of Spain's Best Men Vanquish Three Fierce Animals Each

Seville, Spain.—In a blaze of sunshine and a scene of rich coloring such as only a Spanish bull ring can produce, the bull-fighting season for the south of Spain opened last week.

The greatest fight of the day took place in the bull ring at 4 p.m., when Rafael Gomez, nicknamed El Gallo (The Cock) and Ricardo Torres, otherwise Bombita (Firework), two of the greatest living matadors, were engaged to meet three bulls each. Gallo is a born fighter, as were his father and grandfather before him. His total of bulls killed is between 1500 and 2000, and only one bad accident has befallen him.

The yearly earnings of a successful fighter are very large, the average fee being $1350 per fight, but even in Spain Gallo has been paid $1750, while in Mexico this has been doubled.

There was certainly nothing fierce about the bulls during the exhibition. Clods of earth had to be thrown to drive several into the open. Twelve hours before the fight the bulls are separated and shut up in small rooms, without enough space to move, and without food and water. Then when the time arrives the first bull is sent into the ring, always with the sun in his eyes, and for the first time in his life he finds himself alone and becomes nervous and afraid.

Great crowds at the booking office were clamoring for the cheaper seats early in the day and at 3.30 not one of the 14,000 seats was for sale. All concerned in the actual fight drove to the ring in open carriages, and many made their way to the little chapel at the ringside to kneel at the altar before entering the ring.

When the entry of the president and the various other ceremonial preliminaries were concluded a bugle call rang out, and the door of the building opened and the first bull bounded into the ring. He stopped short at the entrance, blinded by the brilliant light. Then looking around he picked out an object and with a fierce bellow and head down made his first charge.

There never was finer work than Gallo did with his second bull. Time after time the bull charged, and without moving his feet, but with a bend of his body he guided the bull past. Sometimes he would do this kneeling, while again he would pat the bull as he charged past.

When the signal came to kill, the matador took his sword and, having worked the bull into position and taken careful aim, waited for the charge. With unerring precision the matador lunged and the bull sank to the ground dead.

VICTIM OF PRIDE-MADNESS

Dublin Jury Finds Her Incapable of Managing Her Affairs

Dublin, Ireland.—The mental condition of a haughty baroness was inquired into by the registrar in lunacy and a jury in Dublin. The lady is Baroness Gousauge, who is at present in an asylum at Nice.

Counsel explained that the baroness was born in Ireland, and in 1882 married Baron von Sternberg, a Russian by whom she had two children, a daughter being now in an asylum.

In 1893 the baroness was declared to be of unsound mind, and was kept under the care of the lord chancellor until 1900, when she went abroad and married her second husband, who also predeceased her.

The baroness had her peculiar form of mental trouble. She had a haughty disposition, and thought no one fit to associate with her. The doctor in the asylum at Nice testified that she was suffering from intense agitation, refused to be washed and refused to go to bed.

She had pride-madness or delusion of grandeur. She thought the waiter was trying to poison her. She had bombarded her solicitor with telegrams, seven arriving in eight days, and thought he and her son were misusing her money.

Baron Sternberg, a son, gave evidence, and the jury found that the baroness was of unsound mind, and incapable of managing herself or her affairs.

REAL DUEL ON STAGE

He and the Barytone Horrify Audience by Fierce and Unexpected Conflict

Paris, France.—The Journal publishes a Madrid telegram reporting an extraordinary and tragic affair which, it is said, occurred recently at the theatre at Argamasilla de Alba, in the province of Ciudad Real.

It appears that the leading baritone Senor Pardo, and the chief tenor, Senor Martinez, attached to the operatic company at present performing in the town, were deadly enemies as a consequence of rivalry in a love affair, and they had agreed to fight a duel to death.

They had, however, decided to await the termination of the operatic season in the little town in order that their rivalry might not interrupt the performance.

The season terminated with a performance of 'Carmen,' and at the close of the third act the spectators were horrified to find themselves the witnesses of a fierce duel between the two singers.

The fight did not last long, the tenor, Martinez, falling dead at the feet of his rival.

The World's Best Liniment Needed In Every Family From Infancy To Old Age

If Your Home Is Without 'Nerviline' Read the Following Closely.

The high cost of living to-day demands economy on every side. Sickness is expensive. Far better to treat little ills before they grow serious. For this reason every home should have handy on the shelf a good remedy like Nerviline, which cures the minor ailments that occur in every family.

For example, when the boy comes in with wet feet and a light cough, Nerviline will cure him. If a cold has settled on his chest, rub on Nerviline and the cold will go.

If something has been eaten that causes cramps, nausea, or diarrhoea, just twenty drops of Nerviline—that's all and cure is effected.

As a liniment for outward application in case of Neuralgia, Lame Back, Sciatica, Lumbago or Rheumatism, it's really hard to imagine how Nerviline relieves and how soon it cures.

Nerviline is nothing new. No, it's one of the oldest and best known remedies. Used in thousands of homes by the people of many nations, simply because it stops pain, cures sickness, and rids the family of ills before they become troublesome. Get the family size bottle, price 50c.; trial size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

Horrid Man

She had just settled down in the most comfortable chair they possessed, to enjoy the latest novel. He knew how comfortable that chair was, because he had bought it himself, for himself.

You are very comfortable wifey dear?

The cushions are easy and soft?

Yes, darling.

You don't feel any jolts?

No, sweetest.

And there is no draught on my lamb?

No, my ownest own.

Then change seats with me.

There! said the young wife proudly, as she deposited the hot plate carefully on the table. That's the first pie that I ever made without any help, all alone myself.

So it is! exclaimed her husband enthusiastically, looking it over critically, meanwhile. And as long as it is the very first, my dear, don't you think that, instead of cutting it, it would be nice to keep it for a souvenir? How would it do to have it framed?

IMPURE BLOOD IN THE SPRING

The Passing of Winter Leaves People Weak and Depressed.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks that vital force and energy which pure blood alone can give.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all-year-round blood builder and nerve tonic, but they are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood. Returning strength commences with their use and the vigor and cheerfulness of good health quickly follows.

There is just one cure for lack of blood and that is more blood. Food is the material from which blood is made, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills double the value of the food we eat. They give strength, tone up the stomach and weak digestion, clear the complexion of pimples, eruptions and boils, and drive out rheumatic poisons.

If you are pale and sallow, if you feel continually tired out, breathless after slight exertion, if you have headaches or backaches, if you are irritable and nervous, if your joints ache, if your appetite fails and food does not nourish nor sleep refresh you, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will make you well and strong. To build up the blood is the special purpose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and that is why they are the best spring medicine. If you feel the need of a tonic at this season give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and you will rejoice in new health, new strength and new energy. Do not let the trying weather of summer find you weak and ailing. Build yourself up now with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—the pills that strengthen.

Ask for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and do not be persuaded to take something else. If your dealer does not keep these Pills they will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SOLDIER HOUSEMAIDS

Vienna Newspaper Tells What Officer's Servant Should be

Vienna.—The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung says that a new service manual for Austrian soldiers who act as servants to officers has just been issued, written by one who has had long years of experience. It is laid down that a soldier-servant must know a housemaid's duties thoroughly and also have a complete knowledge of valeting. He must know how to wait at table, and be an expert at opening champagne bottles. He should also have practice in washing dogs and cleaning out birds' cages. These are his duties in times of peace.

When on campaign or at maneuver time he must, on arriving at a strange place, immediately forage for suitable furniture for the officers' quarters. He should then close the windows and kill all the mosquitos, flies and other vermin, and scatter insect powder on the floor. Such, says the Arbeiter Zeitung, are the duties of the brave defenders of our hearths and homes.

Concrete is the cheapest building material

WHETHER for a silo, a milk-house, or a million bushel grain elevator, concrete is the most economical building material in use today.

Concrete never requires repairs, and the saving in repair-expense alone makes the greater economy of using concrete more apparent every day.

The cost of other building materials is constantly increasing.

The cost of concrete is being reduced.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy.

We have, by reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" Cement so low that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have, from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. This demand will continue to increase—as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement; by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work.

Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

CARE OF THE EWES AT LAMBING TIME

The busiest time in the whole year for the sheep raiser is when the lambs are being dropped, along in the latter part of the winter. The actual profits of the whole year's sheep raising are really being made at this time, and the shepherd is forced to work about twenty-four hours out of every twenty-four for a week or two.

During February and March, and sometimes during the last days of January, the good shepherd finds that practically every hour of his time is being taken up by the lambing ewes. Lantern in hand, he must visit the sheep once or twice during the night. When they are being allowed to run in the open his task is two and three times as difficult as when the sheep are being corraled in sheds and pens every night.

A Minnesota correspondent of American Agriculturist says he finds Shropshires good, hardy sheep, easily wintered. Storms and cold do not affect them as much as some breeds. They also make very good mothers. Last spring he raised 135 lambs from eighty-five ewes. The best time for lambs to come on the average farm is the 1st of May, as the ewes are usually on grass and have lots of milk at that time. The Shropshire wether shown was grand champion at the Chicago International Live Stock exposition of 1912. He was bred by J. and D. J. Campbell, Woodville, Ont.

In order that help and care may be given every ewe and lamb that may need it, try to visit every sheep in the flock about three or four times daily. During the day, if the sheep happen to be on pasture, constant watching is necessary, as the ewes are likely to drop their lambs in some remote part of the pasture.

Early in the winter months in which the lambs are to be expected it is wise to set apart as much of the sheep sheds and shelters as can possibly be spared and divide them off into temporary pens. These should be used for the ewes immediately after they have dropped their lambs. Last year I took a space four feet wide along the east wall of a long sheep shed and fenced it off from the rest of the interior, says a Kentucky shepherd in Farm Progress. By dividing this long space into little pens five feet long I made room for a dozen ewes and their lambs.

A space 4 by 5 is plenty big enough to hold a mother and her lamb comfortably for a night and a day. When a ewe and lamb are brought in I put them in these pens for the night. A little feed for the mother and a bucket of water to help allay her feverish thirst are all the attention she will need for the next twenty-four hours.

When the weather is raw and bad leave them in the pens longer than when the ground is firm and the sun is out. A cold rain on the tender skin of a young lamb is about the worst thing that can happen to him.

The Care of a Churn.

There is a great difference in the appearance of churns after they have been used a while. Some get dark colored and lose their fresh, clean look. Moreover, there is often more or less of a mildewed appearance, owing, it is supposed, to the fact that a much used churn never has a chance to become thoroughly dried out. Neglect to keep it scrupulously clean is fatal to any wooden utensil, since it will quickly absorb odors, and once permeated it is next to impossible to overcome the condition entirely. All the inside of a churn should be regularly treated to a good scalding with boiling water. There is no necessity of so treating the varnished outer surface, which if wiped off with a cloth wrung out of cold water will preserve its pristine freshness indefinitely. A stiff brush is better than a cloth to use in cleansing dairy utensils.

Care of Dairy Utensils.

Flush the separator with plenty of good cold water immediately after use. Take the bowl apart and wash with warm water and washing powder until all parts are cleaned. Then rinse thoroughly with scalding hot water and place them in the clean milk supply tank to drain. Rinse all the dippers, cans, strainers and pails with cold water, then wash them thoroughly with hot water, washing powder and a brush until all traces of milk are removed. Rinse with thoroughly hot water. Never wipe them off with a cloth, as they do not need it, but incline on a clean shelf or over a trough so that the water can drain off readily.

Shoes For Flat Feet.

Flat feet in horses are often caused by allowing the shoes to remain on too long. A shoe for a flat footed horse should be wide in the web and concaved well so as not to touch the sole of the foot. Put a good piece of sole leather beneath the shoe and apply some good horse ointment

FABULOUS TABLE ANIMALS.

Such as Welsh Rabbit, Scotch Woodcock and Mock Crab.

When one comes to think of it, it is surprising how many fabulous animals come regularly to the dinner table or supper table.

Among them, of course, the most familiar is the Welsh rabbit, which in its original form was merely toasted cheese. Some folks declare that the name is a corruption of "rarebit," but this has never been proved.

Then there is the golden buck, which is a Welsh rabbit with a poached egg on top. Chinese rabbit is a Welsh rabbit with rice in it, and a Mexican rabbit (otherwise known as a Spanish rabbit) contains tomatoes and onions.

So much for rabbits. But how many people are familiar with the Cape Cod turkey? Plenty in New England, where codfish goes under that name.

Scotch woodcock is two slices of hot buttered toast, with an anchovy on each slice and a sauce made of half a pint of milk and the yolks of three eggs poured over them.

Less familiar perhaps is English monkey, which is made by soaking a cupful of breadcrumbs in a cupful of milk and adding a tablespoonful of melted butter, a beaten egg and half a cupful of grated cheese, the whole, with salt and pepper added, being poured over toasted crackers.

The mock turtle is one of the most familiar of fabulous table animals, being served in the form of soup. In "Alice's Adventures In Wonderland" will be found a striking picture of this remarkable reptile, represented with the body of a turtle and the head of a calf.

Mock duck is a roll of chopped meat and breadcrumbs baked. Mock crab is made by mixing equal parts of grated cheese and butter, seasoning with salt, pepper and vinegar and adding a few drops of anchovy sauce. The paste thus prepared is spread on slices of dry toast or sometimes served in crab shells.

Last, but not least remarkable, of these mythological animals, known only to the kitchen naturalist, is the corn oyster, which is a small fritter of green corn fried like a real oyster.—New York American.

GOLD NUGGETS.

There Is a Curious Resemblance Between Them and Meteorites.

How do nuggets of gold originate? Sometimes a mass of the precious metal worth a thousand dollars or more is found.—By what process was so much gold compacted into a lump?

An attempt was made not long ago to answer this question. An investigator in Australia cut and sliced and polished gold nuggets with the sole purpose of finding out just what is their structure. The first thing he discovered was that there is one curious point of resemblance between gold nuggets and meteorites. Both, when polished and etched with chlorine water, exhibit a crystalline structure. In the case of meteorites the lines thus exhibited on the etched surface are called Widmannstattian figures, and their presence is said to be one of the most invariable characteristics of those metallic bodies that fall from the sky to the earth.

But it is not meant to be implied that gold nuggets have fallen from the sky because they exhibit a crystalline structure recalling that of meteorites. The resemblance is apparently only superficial, and the crystals of the nuggets differ in form from those of the meteorites.

Another curious fact is that when a nugget is heated in a Bunsen flame explosions take place on its surface. Blisters are formed which continue to swell until they burst with a sharp report and bits of gold are violently scattered about. It is evident that the nuggets contain either gases or some liquids or solids which are easily converted into the gaseous form, the expansion of which produces the explosions.—Harper's Weekly.

Fake Curios.

Dr. Wakeling, the Egyptologist, tells us that it is useless to warn the tourist against the fake curio. He buys and is sold with an unfailing regularity, and hardly any imitation is too gross to deceive him. Dr. Wakeling tells us of a lady who bought a scarab from a boy who assured her that he had himself stolen it from the excavations in the temple of Akhnaton. And she displayed her treasure triumphantly and always with the words, "And I am sure it must be true, for he had such an honest little face"—Argonaut.

No Use For the Doctor.

"Why did you send the doctor away without permitting him to do anything for you?"

"He said he could get me up and out in three days," the sufferer groaned, "and my accident insurance amounts to $30 a week more than my salary as long as I'm disabled."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Business Tip.

She (looking at photo proofs)—Do you mean to tell me that I have such an ugly nose as that? Photographer—My apparatus cannot lie, madam. She—Then for goodness' sake have enough sense to go and get one that can!—Boston Transcript.

Pessimistic Thought.

Every rose has its thorn. And the mean part of it is that the thorn stays on the job when the rose has withered.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Folly often goes beyond her bounds but impudence knows none.—Ben Jonson.

HORSE WISDOM.

Weeks before field work is possible every young horse intended for service next spring should be broken to a dependable quantity.

Except in unusual cases of rush work the teams should cease work in time to cool off before the dampness and falling temperature of evening.

The buyers demand style in drafters as well as weight.

Farm horses that are not to be used through the winter should have a roomy paddock in which to exercise every fair day.

One of the most important things is to teach the colt to walk fast from the very start. Never hitch him up with a slow, unresponsive horse.

When you begin to handle the colts keep it up every day.

BROOD MARE TREATMENT.

Precautions to Observe to Prevent Loss of Foal by Abortion.

More consideration than is the general rule should be given to the treatment of brood mares, writes J. A. Macdonald in Rural New Yorker. As soon as it is known that a mare is safely in foal care should be exercised that she receives no treatment or annoyance that would endanger the loss of the foal through abortion. Sometimes the teasing or annoyance by a stallion or a gelding will cause such trouble. While with foal foods that are of a laxative and distinctly nutritive character should be used. Besides, something more than the ordinary amount of grain should be given, so that the mare's strength is not reduced while supporting the unborn foal. Oats should be the chief and staple article used for grain food, and the mare should have a fair allowance at least twice a day during the winter months.

Along with oats, bran should be freely and regularly used by every farmer who raises horses. Clover hay is preferable to timothy if free from dust. In addition to these, a few roots should be fed daily or every second day at least. If, however, wheat bran is fed liberally roots are not so necessary, because bran is laxative and cooling to the blood, which is the very effect of roots. Raw potatoes are good and very cooling. Not many should be fed in the raw state. I know one man who kept two horses. One was a pretty big horse and the other was a small horse. Raw potatoes were fed every night to these horses, to the big horse sixteen and to the small one twelve. This was a fair proportion.

Brood mares should be kept sharply shod in winter, as a struggle to keep their feet on ice or slippery roads may cause abortion. Cold, icy water is dangerous, as it may cause colic and eventually abortion. Mares in foal, while better for being worked moderately, should be kept out of deep snow. Plunging and struggling in deep snow are very dangerous.

When there is imminent danger of the mare aborting through slipping on ice, plunging in deep snow, hard driving or otherwise, soft feed should be withheld and the mare given kiln dried grain. Whole wheat dried in the oven of the kitchen stove is an old established preventive feed. It has long been a practice with us to feed this dried wheat to the mare after a hard drive or at any time that abortion is apprehended. While I have known our mares to abort several times, I never know any of them to abort after getting preventive feeds of dried wheat. If wheat is not at hand, dried barley is good, or even dried oats.

With care and the exercise of common sense there should be little danger of a mare with foal doing all kinds of work and even driving if she is a general purpose mare.

Tankage For Hogs.

I have fed tankage to hogs of all ages for the last thirteen years with the best results in every case, says John H. Dunlap in Country Gentleman.

It is an ideal feed to use with corn and is highly palatable. It need not be fed in large quantities, one part of tankage to ten parts of corn being a very satisfactory ration. Nothing is better than a warm slop for hogs of all ages during the winter months. It is hard to get them to drink all the water that their systems require during the winter, and if they are given all the warm slop they will drink they will do much better than without it. Though personally I like to feed tankage in slop better than to feed it dry, it may be fed on the ground during the summer months in small quantities, with salt and any other condiments, with good results.

The Profitable Cow.

The cow giving the most butter fat leaves the owner with the most net cash profit without regard to cost of keeping when compared with low producing cows on small keeping cost. This phase of dairy economics is difficult to comprehend by many cow owners. Experiment time and again, however, has proved the assertion. The large producing cow does not consume feed as compared with the small producing cow in the same proportion that the small producing cow does.—Kansas Farmer.

At Farrowing Time.

Cut out the corn at farrowing time and feed alfalfa or some other nitrogenous feed. For a few weeks before and after farrowing the sow would be better off without corn. She needs more nitrogenous feeds until the pigs are weaned.

COMBINED TEXTURES.

This Mode Offers Unlimited Opportunities For Remodeling Gowns.

There is one feature of summer frocks that one can depend upon to materialize—that of the use of combination of two or more fabrics of contrasting texture and color for a suit or dress. It is not a new idea, for last spring the foreign designers attempted to introduce it, but somehow it did not catch on at that time.

There are three really new ideas which have been exploited this season in this scheme of combining fabrics.

ONE OF THE ECCENTRIC DRAPINGS OF PARIS.

One calls for a combination of two materials, a plain and a figured, both in the same color; another for the combination of different materials in contrasting colors. Such a laxity in modes offers the woman with a limited income, who is depending upon the skill of her needlewoman, many opportunities for remodeling old costumes.

The dress pictured will give a hint in this direction to the clever seamstress. It is made of white cotton crape and pale yellow zigzag cloth. The drapery, lifted at the back, is extremely Parisian.

CARE AND USE OF SOAP.

Buy In Large Quantities, as This Commodity Improves With Age.

As water alone cannot render grease soluble, it is impossible to cleanse most clothes without the aid of an agent which is capable of so doing.

The cleaning and solving properties of soap are entirely due to the alkaline constituents, the fatty acids being employed only to modify the injurious property of alkali.

When buying soap it is desirable to procure that made by a well known, reliable manufacturer, as one is less likely to get an inferior article. It is also better to buy it in large quantities, as large quantities are usually sold at a considerable reduction in price, and soap improves in quality and durability by keeping.

Soap may be used as a solid, or it may be dissolved and used as a liquid. In whatever form its action is that of a grease solvent and purifying agent. It is used in the solid or hard state for strong material without color, when its strength may be concentrated by rubbing it on the particularly dirty parts, so that they may be more easily and thoroughly cleansed.

Soap powder is principally composed of soda and water, and as washing soda does not cost more than one-fifth the price of soap powder, it would be more economical for the housekeeper to use that substance with the addition of a little soap solution to the water, which would form a lather equally as well, and the work of cleansing would be as effectual as when soap powder is used.

Magic Cleaning Fluid.

For cleaning delicate fabrics this method is said not to fade or injure the finest color: Grate raw potatoes to a pulp, add one pint of water to one pound of the potato pulp, stir and wash between the hands, then drain the water from the pulp through a fine sieve or cloth. Let it stand in the vessel until the fine white starch settles to the bottom, then pour off the clear water, which is what you use for cleaning. The settlings are used for potato starch for stiffening fine materials. For cleaning, sponge with the liquid, applying until all soil is removed, rinse in clear water and iron on the wrong side. For white silk, which may be passed through the water as through suds, add a very little borax to the water. Party dresses and white cashmeres clean beautifully by this method.

Odorless Lard.

To take away the odor of pork from lard buy leaf lard and while melting put several apples with the skins on, well washed and dried, into the melting pot. It gives the lard a fine flavor, and it can be used instead of butter in almost any pastry.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Olive and Elaine Dickens, granddaughters of the novelist, have recently had a play produced in London, "Beauty and the Beast" is its title.

Miss Dora Keen of Philadelphia, the mountain climber, is a slight little woman of much personal charm, about the last one would pick in a crowd as the conqueror of Mount Blackburn, one of the highest peaks in Alaska.

Miss Josephine Freund, agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad company at Dilley, Ore., has for the third time in six years received the medal for perfect work. In 1907 she received the gold medal for the Oregon lines.

Miss Inez Milholland of New York is one of the best looking suffragists in the entire army under the yellow flag of votes for women. She brings to the cause a diploma from Vassar college and a license to practice law ad libitum in the state of New York.

Miss Katherine I. Harrison, whom the Pujo committee was anxious to summon recently in the hope that she might reveal some of her vast knowledge of Standard Oil secrets, was for twenty-five years private secretary to the late H. H. Rogers and is said to have accumulated more than a million dollars as a result of her rare business ability, coupled with her knowledge of inside affairs.

Sporting Notes.

John J. McGraw has signed a new contract for five years with the New York National league club. The terms are said to be $20,000 a year.

Negotiations are pending for an international contest of 1,500 points at 18.2 balk line billiards between William F. Hoppe, the champion, and Firmin Cassignol, conceded to be the best billiardist of the present day in France.

Howard Jones, Yale 1908, Sheffield, has been appointed head coach of the Yale football team for the year 1913. His appointment marks an important epoch in the Blues' football history. He will be the first salaried football coach for Yale. For years Yale has adhered to the graduate coaching system, with Walter Camp as chief adviser.

CHOICE BUTTER MADE ON THE FARM

E. E. Rockwood in Hoard's Dairyman says of farm buttermaking: I was talking recently with a farmer's wife who makes butter for a private line of customers, delivering it every two weeks.

The process of making choice butter is thoroughly understood by this woman. The quality is ever the same. The color never varies, nor does the salting. Everything about it from start to finish is done by rule. She has a separator run by a gasoline engine. The men separate the milk as they bring it from the barn. The cream is cooled at once and not mixed with that previously separated while it is warm. Churning is done every other day, or three times each week. A barrel churn, with no inside paddles whatever, is used. The cream is ripened by setting it in a warm place, adding a little buttermilk left from the last churning and stirring well. It is considered sufficiently ripened when it "pits" or when a spoon dipped into it is well coated on removal. Such cream pours out like thick molasses. It is strained through a sieve into the churn.

The amount of butter color is gauged according to the amount of cream. A rich tint is secured to the finished product, yet not so high a color as to offend the eye. Salt is sifted and used at the rate of an ounce and a half to the pound. The tastes of the consumers seem to agree on this amount, which is not too much after the butter is worked.

The remarkable vitality and milk producing qualities of the Brown Swiss breed of dairy cattle are indicated by the performance of Ola B., a two-year-old heifer. Handicapped with a broken shoulder, she made an official record with her first calf of 9,009.7 pounds of milk containing 321.55 pounds of butter fat in ten months. Ola B., which is shown with calf, is owned by the Walhalla farms, Middleburg, N. Y.

The winter churning temperature is right around 62 degrees. The cows are Jersey grades and produce a heat resisting quality of fat. Sometimes 64 degrees brings the butter of equally firm texture. When the globules reach the size of kernels of wheat a part of the buttermilk is drawn away and as much water of the same temperature is put into the churn. This is given a few turns and the cork again removed. This time the butter is drained pretty well and then washed with a pail of water at 62 degrees. I should have said that a handful of salt is added to the first water. This assists in separating the globules from the milk and floats them freely on the top. A hair sieve over a pail catches whatever particles run through. Sometimes another pail of water is needed to sufficiently wash out the milk, but all water used is in cold weather tempered to 62 or 64 degrees so as to leave the butter just right to work. Salt is sifted over the granules in the churn and the whole partly worked by revolving the churn. It is finished with a bowl and ladle, all this work being completed and the butter packed in small earthen crocks before it hardens. In summer it is usually set away for several hours after the first working and then reworked to finish the job. This is done because of different temperature conditions existing between the two seasons.

Fattening Sheep With Silage.

Accurate data regarding the value of silage in a ration for fattening sheep and lambs is scarce, but what there is indicates that it is useful. As far back as the early nineties the Michigan experiment station fed some lambs on silage and other foodstuffs. The gist of their findings is to the effect that a mixture of fodders composed largely of a good quality of silage proved a cheap and successful ration for fattening lambs. The Iowa station at Ames made some comparative tests of dry hay roots and silage as roughage for two years. The average of the two years was favorable to the use of silage as a means of cheapening the ration. The lambs from all lots finished into market toppers, but the dressed carcasses showed the silage lambs a little superior on the hook.

Care Makes the Cow.

Breeding in the dairy animal amounts to little or nothing unless the animal is so fed as to develop the cow and so obtain the results of her superior breeding. On the other hand, many calves of scrub breeding, properly reared and fed, will develop into profitable milk producers. The chances, of course, are always in favor of the heifer calf of good dairy breeding being a good milker.

Live Stock on the Farm.
