Brief Mention of News of Interest to Enderby District

F. H. Hale was in the city over Sunday.

The interior of the Bell block is undergoing the painter's artistic touch.

The painters are putting the finishing touches on the City Hall.

Mrs. A. J. Leighton returned from an extended eastern trip this week.

Mrs. Congreve of Sicamous visited her sister, Mrs. Barrows this week.

Ald. Ruttan left this week on the summer's trip to the Fort George district.

Mrs. W. H. Ahier of Mara, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. E. Strickland.

After a rest of two months, the city band resumed operations at the old stand this week.

An addition was added last week to Mrs. Thos. Bell's property, corner of Mill and George streets.

Mr. Polson is adding an addition to the residence recently purchased by him, on Cliff street next to the Press office.

The Tennis Club dance to-night in K. of P. Hall promises to be unusually enjoyable, and the attendance large.

Enderby witnesses in the Dake-Belmont case have received notice that the trial will come off in Kamloops on the 10th inst.

Plant Sale on Wednesday, May 11th by the Willing Workers of St. George church. Ice cream and tea will be served afternoon and evening.

All members of the Tennis Club last year have been enrolled as members this year, and the secretary is desirous of hearing from them.

It is expected that there will be a large gathering of school children at Mara on June 30th, when the good people of that thrifty settlement will give a picnic for all and sundry.

Arrangements for the sub-division of the Flewwelling acreage peoperty adjoining town, are being completed, and it is hoped to have the property on the market in a few days in one-acre blocks.

The moving of the bandstand to the west of the City Hall has made a vast improvement, and with even the little work that has now been put on the grounds the whole corner of the street has been lifted in value.

The lumber mill started the 12-hour shift this week, running from 7 to 9 four nights a week. Everything about the mill is running as smoothly as clock work, and the output is exceeding that of any previous season.

A Dutch entertainment in aid of St. George's Guild, is in the course of preparation for May 17th. Mrs. G. Neve has charge of the arrangements. It will be given in the Parish Hall, and will consist of everything Dutch that will give pleasure to those attending.

At the meeting of the Celebration Committee last Thursday evening, the sub-committees were not able to report a definite program, but it is anticipated that at the meeting of the committees this evening negotiations with outside teams will have progressed far enough to enable the principal events to be advertised.

Geo. Bell the past week sold the Bradley block and the vacant lot between it and the Robinson property, on Cliff street, to A. Burbridge, of London, Ont. Mr. Burbridge is a master baker, and it is his intention to establish a modern bakery in Enderby. He will be here to start the business this month. He will run a candy store and refresshment room in connection, and will do all kinds of fancy baking.

Quietly during the past week, Manager Moffet, of the Columbia Flouring Mills Co., has had removed from the company's property one of the landmarks of Enderby. The residence so long used by the managers of the flouring mills is being torn down and carried away. Twenty-five years ago—or thereabouts—the front part, or living rooms, of this old residence was brought up the Spallumcheen river in sections from Eagle Gorge, where it was built as the first hotel in the Okanagan, or what is now known as the Okanagan. The rear part of the building served as the church in Enderby, and therein thirsty souls met and sang hymns, were refreshed and went away. Lo, we do move!

The road question which has disturbed family relations in the neighborhood of Fortune Meadows for many moons, has finally been settled and the road will soon be built giving a direct road this way through the property recently purchased by Mr. DeHart. The road will pass close to the Hassard home, and will strike the present road near the corner where the road turns in to the Fortune home. Mr. DeHart readily entered actively into the negotiations when he took hold, and all differences quickly disappeared. It is now proposed to continue the road straight to Enderby, along the railway track, through the Indian reserve, thus cutting out the awkward hill near the Fortune crossing, and reducing the distance from this point to Enderby fully one-half a mile. It is pointed out that if this were done, it would be possible for the railway company to build freight spurs near the lumber yard for the loading of cars by the farmers.

Present: Mayor Bell, Ald. Evans, Blanchard, Hancock and Hutchison.

FLOWERS IN THE SCHOOL

The school teacher and school children of North Enderby are to be congratulated on the step they have taken to beautify the grounds. They have long beds of seeds planted, and are, apparently, working earnestly to do away with the barren ugliness of the grounds.

A Snap—One buggy slightly weather beaten; also one cart, never run. Will be sold cheap. W. H. Hutchison.

BABE MASON

Leading Lady of the Juvenile Bostonians. The sale of seats for this excellent company of artists opened this week at Reeves' Drug Store. Do not be late in reserving.

Important Business Meeting of the Enderby Board of Trade

A very interesting meeting of the Enderby Board of Trade was held in the office of Jas. Mowat, last Friday evening. There were present: Messrs. Taylor, Keith, Murphy, Walker, Peel, Barnes, Mowat, Williams, Rosoman and Harvey.

Mr. Taylor reported the great success of the meeting of the Associated Boards at Kelowna, some weeks ago.

Mr. Barnes reported that he had, in company with Mr. Burnyaet, the Government surveyor, visited again the proposed site of the Trinity Valley bridge, and the report of the surveyor as to measurements, etc., substantiated in every particular his report made to the Board at its last meeting.

Mr. Walker reported that he had complied with the request of the Board and had sent to the Westward Ho! magazine an article on the district, together with suitable cuts, for publication in the May number.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. Rosoman, seconded by Mr. Barnes:

Whereas, the urgent need of a bridge and road to afford communication between Trinity Valley and the Mabel Lake Valley has repeatedly been brought to the attention of the Government, and

Whereas, the Government has recognized the urgency of this need and promised to construct such bridge and road, and

Whereas, a large number of new settlers have recently taken up land in the vicinity; now, therefore, the Enderby Board of Trade, in general meeting assembled, has

Resolved, that the Government be urgently requested to proceed with the construction of the said bridge and road during the present year without fail.

Carried unanimously, and the secretary was instructed to forward a copy of the resolution to the proper authorities.

Moved by Mr. Rosoman, seconded by Mr. Peel, that—

Whereas, a generally signed petition has been sent to the Postmaster General by the people of the Mabel Lake District, asking for the establishment of a mail route from Enderby to Mabel Lake, and

Whereas, the opening of the road between these points has already attracted a large number of settlers, and

Whereas, owing to the large acreage available for settlement, many more settlers are likely to come in, and

Whereas, the lumber camps in the said district employ a large number of men permanently; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that we the Enderby Board of Trade in general meeting assembled, do hereby express our entire concurrence with the petitioners as to the necessity of such a mail route, and that our earnest hope is that the Postmaster General will see his way to comply with the request

Moved by Mr. Rosoman, seconded by Mr. Mowat that Mr. F. V. Moffet, for the Columbia Flouring Mills Company, be allowed the use of the west side of the Board of Trade sign on Mill street, for advertising purposes, for the period of one year, at $2.00 per quarter. Carried.

A motion was carried instructing the secretary to write the B. C. University Commissioners, asking them on their tour of inspection of the province, to visit Enderby and investigate the city and surroundings as the possible site of a Provincial university.

Moved by Mr. Barnes, seconded by Mr. Rosoman, that the secretary write the Hon. Mr. Bowser, pointing out the necessity for the establishing of a Government Office in Enderby, and asking if he could give a date on which a committee from this Board could wait on him during his coming touring of the Valley, to discuss the matter with him. Carried.

Moved by Dr. Keith, seconded by Mr. Rosoman, that Messrs. Barnes, Taylor and Walker be the committee. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Barnes, seconded by Mr. Murphy, that the finance committee wait on the City Council and ask for $300.00 for advertising purposes. Carried.

Adjourned.

FOUND DEAD ON THE ROAD

Ed. Simmons, former Provincial Constable, drove in from Vernon Tuesday afternoon, accompanied by T. E. Crowell, who has the erection of the Bank of Montreal building in hand. At the foot of the hill near the Pleasant Valley school house they found lying on the road the body of a young man, and by his side a 22 rifle. The body was still warm. A bullet hole showed in the right cheek and there was the mark of its exit over the left temple. It was apparent from the position of the body the shooting was accidental. They were unable to find anyone who could identify the body at the time, but Constable Skyrme, of Armstrong, was notified and took charge of the body. A pinto horse was found near the body, which the young man had evidently been riding bare-back and with a halter-bridle. Later investigation proved the body to be that of Herbert Haydon.

REVISION OF VOTER'S LIST

The result of the Court of Revision of the Voter's List, held at Vernon last week, tells a story that will surprise many. There were on the list as revised last November, 4,024. From this list a total of 963 names have been removed, 953 at the Court of Revision, and 10 at the request in writing of the voter, leaving 3,061 on the old list. To this were added 127 new applications received since last November, making a total now on the list of 3,188 names. It will be seen from this how badly in need of cleansing our voter's list has been. A drop of 836 names shows conclusively that the voter's list has been carrying a great deal of dead material, and we are not quite so numerous in population as we have thought.

GRINDROD BRIDGE

Up to the present, work on the Grindrod bridge has moved slowly, owing to Mr. Barnes inability to get the donkey-engine on the ground. It was placed in position last week, however, and this week the pile-driving is proceeding. The river has come up rapidly the past ten days, and the strong current is causing some delay in the handling of the floats.

Maude De Vere;

OR, THE NEW MISTRESS AT LAUREL HILL.

His manner was even more pointed than his words, and coloring crimson, Maude replied, "You are disposed to be complimentary, Mr. De Vere."

"I am disposed for once to tell the truth," he answered. "All my life long I have acted a part, saying and doing a thousand foolish things I did not mean, just because I thought it would please the senseless bubbles with whom I have been associated. But you, Maude Remington, have brought me to my senses, and determined me to be a man instead of a fool. Will you help me Maude, in this resolution?" and seizing, both her hands, he poured into her astonished ear his declaration of love, speaking so rapidly and so vehemently as almost to take her breath away, for she had never expected a scene like this.

She had looked upon him as one who would undoubtedly be her sister's husband, and the uniform kindness with which he had treated her, she attributed to his exceeding good nature; but to be loved by him; by J. C. De Vere, who had been sought after by the fairest ladies in the land, she could not believe it possible, and with mingled feelings of pleasure, pain and gratified vanity, she burst into tears.

Very gently J. C. wiped her tears away, and sitting down beside her, he said, "The first time I ever saw you, Maude, you told me 'I did not look as if I meant for certain,' and you were right, for all my life has been a humbug; but I mean 'for certain' now. I love you, Maude, love you for the very virtues which I have so often affected to despise, and you must make me what J. C. De Vere ought to be. Will you, Maude? Will you be my wife?"

To say Maude was not gratified that this man of fashion should prefer her to all the world, would be an untruth, but she could not then say "Yes," for another, and a more melodious voice was still ringing in her ear, and she saw in fancy a taller, nobler form than that of him who was pressing her to answer.

"Not yet, Mr. De Vere," she said. "Not yet. I must have time to think. It has come upon me so suddenly, so unexpectedly, for I have always thought of you as Nellie's future husband, and my manners are so different from what you profess to admire."

"'Twas only profession, Maude," he said, and then, still holding her closely to him, he frankly and ingeniously gave her a truthful history of his life up to the time of his first acquaintance with Nellie, of whom he spoke kindly, saying she pleased him better than most of his city friends, and as he began really to want a wife, he had followed her to Laurel Hill, fully intending to offer her the heart which, ere he was aware of it, was given to another. "And now, I cannot live without you," he said. "You must be mine. Won't you, Maude? I will be a good husband. I will take lessons of Cousin James, who is called a pattern man."

The mention of that name was unfortunate, and rising to her feet Maude replied: "I cannot answer you now, Mr. De Vere. I should say, No, if I did, I am sure, and I would rather think of it awhile."

He knew by her voice that she was in earnest, and kissing her hand he walked rapidly away, his love increasing in intensity with each step he took. He had not expected anything like hesitancy. Everyone else had met his advances at least half-way, and Maude's indecision made him feel more ardent than he otherwise might have been.

"What if she should refuse me?" he said, as he paced up and down his room, working himself up to such a pitch of feeling, that when that afternoon Nellie on the lake shore was waiting impatiently his coming, he on his pillow was really suffering all the pangs of a racking headache, brought on by strong nervous excitement. "What if she should say, No?" he kept repeating to himself, and at last, maddened by the thought, he arose, and dashing off a wild rambling letter, was about sending it by a servant, when he received a note from her, for an explanation of which, we will go back an hour or so in our story.

In a state of great perplexity Maude returned to the house, and seeking out her brother, the only person to whom she could go for counsel, she told him of the offer she had received, and asked him what he thought. In most respects Louis was far older than his years, and he entered at once into the feelings of his sister.

"J. C. De Vere propose to you!" he exclaimed. "What will Nellie say?"

"If I refuse, she never need to know it,' answered Maude, and Louis continued: "They say he is a great catch, and wouldn't it be nice to get him away from everybody else. But what of the other De Vere? Don't you like him the best"

Maude's heart beat rapidly, and the color on her cheek deepened to a brighter hue, as she replied, "What made you think of him?"

"I don't know," was Louis' answer, "only when he was here, I fancied you were pleased with him, and that he would suit you better than J. C."

"But he don't like me," said Maude. "He don't like any woman well enough to make her his wife," and she sighed deeply as she thought of his broken promise, and the letter looked for so long.

"Maude," said Louis suddenly, "men like J. C. De Vere sometimes marry for money, and maybe he thinks your fortune larger than it is Most everybody does."

That Maude was more interested in J. C. De Vere than she supposed, was proved by the earnestness with which she defended him from all mercenary motives.

"He knows Nellie's fortune is much larger than my own," she said, "and, by preferring me to her, he shows that money is not his motive."

Still Louis's suggestion troubled her, and by way of testing the matter, she sat down at once and wrote him a note, telling him frankly how much she had in her own name, and how much in expectancy. This note she sent to him by John, who, naturally quick-witted, read a portion of the truth in her tell-tale face, and giving a loud whistle in token of his approbation, he exclaimed, "This nigger'll never quit larfin' if you gets him, after all Miss Nellie's nonsense, and I hopes you will, for he's a heap better chap than I s'posed, though I believe I like t'other one the best!"

Poor Maude! That other one seemed destined to be continually thrust upon her, but resolving to banish him from her mind, as one who had long since ceased to think of her, she waited impatiently for a reply to her letter.

Very hastily J. C. tore it open, hoping, believing that it contained the much-desired answer. "I knew she could not hold out against me—no one ever did," he said; but when he read the few brief lines, he dashed it to the floor with an impatient "Pshaw!" feeling a good deal disappointed that she had not said Yes, and a very little disappointed that the figures were not larger!

"Five thousand dollars the twentieth of next June, and five thousand more when that old Janet dies; ten thousand in all. Quite a handsome property if Maude could have it at once. I wonder if she's healthy, this Mrs. Hopkins," soliloquized J. C., until at last, a new idea entered his mind, and striking his fist upon the table, he exclaimed, "Of course she will. Such people always do, and that knocks the will in the head:" and J. C. De Vere frowned wrathfully upon the little imaginary Hopkinses who were to share the milkman's fortune with Maude.

Just then a girlish figure was seen beneath the trees in Dr. Kennedy's yard, and glancing at the white cape bonnet, J. C. knew that it was Maude, the sight of whom drove young Hopkins and the will effectually from his mind. "He would marry her, anyway," he said, "five thousand dollars was enough;" and donning his hat, he started at once for the doctor's. Maude had returned to the house, and was sitting with her brother, when the young man was announced. Wholly unmindful of Louis's presence, he began at once by asking "if she esteemed him so lightly as to believe that money could make any difference with him."

"It influences some men," answered Maude, "and though you may like me——"

"Like you, Maude Remington," he exclaimed, "like is a feeble word. I worship you, I love the very air you breathe, and you must be mine. Will you, Maude?"

J. C. had never before been so much in earnest, for never before had he met with the least indecision, and he continued pleading his cause so vehemently that Louis, who was wholly unprepared for so stormy a wooing, stopped his ears, and whispered to his sister, "Tell him Yes, before he drives me crazy!"

But Maude felt that she must have time for sober, serious reflection; J. C. was not indifferent to her and the thought was very soothing that she who had never aspired to the honor had been chosen from all other to be his wife. He was handsome, agreeable, kind-hearted, and, as she believed, sincere in his love for her. And still there was something lacking. She could not well tell what, unless, indeed, she would have him more like James De Vere.

"Will you answer me?" J. C. said, after there had been a moment's silence, and in his deep black eyes there was a truthful, earnest look, wholly unlike the wicked, treacherous expression usually hidden there.

"Wait awhile," answered Maude, coming to his side and laying her hand upon his shoulder. "Wait a few days, and I most know I shall tell you Yes. I like you, Mr. De Vere, and if I hesitate, it is because—because—I really don't know what, but something keeps telling me that our engagement may be broken, and if so, it had better not be made."

There was another storm of words and then, as Maude still seemed firm in her resolution to do nothing hastily J. C. took his leave. As the door closed after him, Louis heaved a deep sigh of relief, and, turning to his sister said: "I never heard anything like it; I wonder if James would act like that!"

"Louis," said Maude, but ere Louis could reply she had changed her mind, and determined not to tell him that James De Vere alone stood between her and the decision J. C. pleaded for so earnestly. So she said: "Shall I marry J. C. De Vere?"

"Certainly, if you love him," answered Louis. "He will take you to Rochester away from this lonesome house. I shall live with you more than half the time, and——"

Here Louis was interrupted by the sound of wheels. Mrs. Kelsey and Nellie had returned from the Lake, and bidding her brother say nothing of what he had heard, Maude went down to meet them. Nellie was in the worst of humors. "Her head was aching horridly. She had spent an awful day—and J. C. was wise in staying at home."

"How is he?" she asked, "though of course you have not seen him."

Maude was about to speak, when Hannah, delighted with a chance to disturb Nellie, answered for her. "It's my opinion that headache was all a sham, for you hadn't been gone an hour afore he was over here in the garden with Maude where he stayed ever so long. Then he came agen this afternoon, and hasn't but jest gone."

Nellie had not sufficient discernment to read the truth of this assertion in Maude's crimson cheeks, but Mrs. Kelsey had, and very sarcastically she said: "Miss Remington, I think, might be better employed than in trying to supplant her sister."

"I have not tried to supplant her, madam," answered Maude, her look of embarrassment giving way to one of indignation at the unjust accusation.

"May I ask, then, if Mr. De Vere has visited you twice to-day, and if so, what was the object of those visits?" continued Mrs. Kelsey, who suddenly remembered several little incvidents which had heretofore passed unheeded, and which now that she recalled them to mind, proved that J. C. De Vere was interested in Maude.

"Mr. De Vere can answer for himself, and I refer you to him," was Maude's reply, as she walked away.

Nellie began to cry. "Maude had done something," she knew, "and it wouldn't be a bit improper for a woman as old as Aunt Kelsey to go over and see how Mr. De Vere was, particularly as by this means she might find out why he had been so long with Maude."

A NICE CALCULATION.

Two very dear old ladies walked up to the window where tickets were to be sold for two popular concerts. They wanted tickets for both nights, but alas! those for the second evening were all gone. This was the more popular entertainment of the two.

"I'm so sorry, my dear!" pattered one of the old ladies to the other. "We did want to go, didn't we, and we wanted to go both nights."

"You couldn't give us two tickets for each night?" inquired the other of the clerk.

"No, ma'am."

"You haven't two seats anywhere for the second night"

"No, ma'am. Couldn't give you nose-room."

A great resolution beamed upon her gentle face, "Then," said she firmly, "give me four tickets for the first night. We will make them do."

"Why, sister," quavered the other, "you going to invite somebody?"

"No," said she, "but if we can't go both nights—" She paused, bewildered, quite out of her calculation. Then a happy thought struck her, and she added, "We'll go twice the first night."

MISTOOK BLINGSBY.

"Well, they've elected Blingsby to Parliament."

"What! Did that soulless, low-down politician—"

"Yes, and he told me he would push your name for local postmaster."

"Oh, Blingsby? Well, I didn't understand the name. That fellow's all right, and I've always said so He's got the makings of a statesman."

ITCHING ERUPTIONS QUICKLY COOLED

Just a few drops of the famous D. D. D. Prescription applied to the skin will take away instantly the worst kind of an itch. We positively know this.

AT THE BATHS.

Robust Old Gentleman (to sick lady)—"When I came here first, I hadn't strength to utter a word, I had scarcely a hair on my head. I couldn't walk across the room, and had to be lifted from my bed."

Sick Lady—"You give me hope, kind sir. How were you cured?"

Robust Old Gentleman—"I was born here."

BE READY TO CURE HORSE AILMENTS,

Because a farmer has to work with his horses and have their services nearly every day in the year, it is absolutely necessary that he be posted on their common ailments and know how to treat their injuries.

It is not out of place to suggest that it is wise to have such a thoroughly good and reliable horse remedy as Kendall's Spavin Cure constantly on hand.

Kendall's Spavin Cure is now and for a long series of years has been a standard horse remedy. It can hardly be too strongly recommended.

In this connection, we want to commend to our readers an excellent little book called "A Treatise on the Horse and His Diseases." This book and Kendall's Spavin Cure ought always go together. The book can be had free at the drug store where Kendall's Spavin Cure is sold or it may be secured by writing to the Dr. B. J. Kendall Company, at Enosburg Falls, Vermont, U. S. A., if you enclose a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

"WHY BE SO THIN?"

Thinness is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural—Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three Pounds a Week.

Every one ought to have some extra flesh on the bony structure of the body, both for the sake of health and self-esteem.

Most thin people are sensitive to the harsh, unfeeling criticisms which are constantly being hurled at them by the more fortunate well-figured persons.

Every one pities a thin, bony horse, but horses don't know it—while thin people are both pitied and ridiculed. It ought not to be so, but it is.

A well rounded figure, be it man or woman, excites admiration; not only for the figure but for the bright eyes, pink cheeks, red lips, and vigorous carriage which accompany a well-nourished body.

Strength, health, beauty and sound flesh abound, if the blood and nerves get enough nourishment out of the food eaten.

This prescription aids nature; helps absorption, digestion and assimilation; helps distribute the blood and nerve elements which make sound flesh. Get the ingredients and make it at home, and see how very fast you gain in weight.

In a half pint bottle, obtain three ounces of essence of pepsin, three ounces syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals and one after meals. Also drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh yourself before beginning.

CURE BY MUSIC.

Medical men are watching with great interest a series of experiments which are being made at the State Asylum for the Insane at Massillon, Ohio, with a view to determining the possibilities of music as a cure for insanity. The first experiment was made recently by means of a piano, and its beneficial effects exceeded all expectations. One of the patients, a girl of seventeen, who was considered hopelessl yinsane, has made extraordinary progress towards sanity since the experiments on her began. She is now believed to be well on the road to recovery.

WISDOM.

Jane—"Henry, what would you do if ye should go to the post-office, buy a stamp, ask the man to stick it on for you and he refused?"

Henry (who is very serious)—"What would I do? Stick it on myself."

Jane—"I should stick it on the letter."

A USEFUL INVENTION.

One of the latest inventions along the lines of gas and gasoline engines is a harvester engine. This consists of a 2½ h.p. air cooled engine which operates the machinery of the binder, and relieves the horses of so much work. This outfit will doubtless be a very familiar object on the Western plains in the near future. (It is manufactured by the Gilson Manufacturing Co., Port Washington, Wis., and Guelph, Canada.)

A TERRIBLE SUFFERER FOR THREE YEARS

But Health Was Completely Restored by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Extreme anguish; pains in the joints that all but drive one crazy—thus may inflammatory rheumatism be described. The victims are to be pitied—to them life is one long torture; they suffer by day and cannot sleep by night. Such was the condition of Miss A. Mercier, of Ottawa, Ont. For three years she was a victim of this trouble and found no relief till she began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"For three years I was a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism. During that time I consulted and was treated by some of the best doctors in our city, but I found no relief in their treatment. I began to despair of ever being well again, when one day a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I procured three boxes and by the time these were used there was enough improvement in my condition to encourage me to continue their use. Three more boxes completely cured me and today I am as well as ever I was. I always keep a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house and would recommend all who suffer as I did to give them a trial."

It was the new blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually made that restored Miss Mercier to health and strength. There is no medicine to equal them in making new blood and in this way they cure anaemia, rheumatism, heart palpitation, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance and many other troubles. Sold by all dealers in medicine or direct at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

When washing sateen, or any cotton goods with a satin finish, rinse in borax water to give a gloss.

Before boiling a ham soak it for twenty-four hours in tepid water, changing the water two or three times.

A machine needle is often difficult to thread. Pass behind the eye a piece of white paper, and the difficulty is removed.

Those who bake at home, and who want a very nutritious bread should add one pound of pease-meal to every fourteen pounds of wheat flour.

A pretty garnish for a boiled fowl is made by boiling either carrot or beetroot, and cutting it into fancy shapes with a vegetable cutter.

A useful machine oil is made of one pint of paraffin and three of olive oil. Mix thoroughly.

A joint of meat will keep sweet for many days longer than usual if wrapped in a fine cloth, wrung out of vinegar and hung in a draught of air.

A coarse net of soft cotton cord is an excellent thing in the nursery. Tie it loosely over a child's cot (giving him room to stand if necessary), and it will effectually prevent him falling from his cot.

MOTHERS FEEL SAFE WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mothers who have used Baby's Own Tablets say they feel safe when they have this medicine in the house, as the Tablets are a never-failing cure for the ills of babyhood and childhood. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no poisonous opiates. Mrs. Walter Barr, Mountain Grove, Ont., says:—"My little boy suffered terribly when teething and from constipation. Nothing I gave him did the least good until I gave him Baby's Own Tablets and these brought him speedy relief. Every mother of young children should keep the Tablets in the home." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bobby—"I've been an awful good boy since I started going to Sunday-school, haven't I?" Mother—"Yes, dear, you've been very good indeed." Bobby—"And you don't distrust me any more, do you?" Mother—"No, dear." Bobby—Then why do you hide the jam?"

Pa—"Yes, my son; the Egyptians were the most intellectual people on the face of the earth at one time; but finally the nation decayed." Tommy—"And what caused them to decay, pa?" Pa—"Smoking too many Egyptian cigarettes, my son."

MAKING TOILET SOAP.

If you doubt the quality of your daintily perfumed 10 cent toilet soaps, or if you have been trying to get along with the emerald and opal tinted sample bargain kind that look nicer than they feel, why don't you try and spend an hour or two, let us say once in three months, in preparing your own toilet soaps? We all have heard that in pioneer days when the nearest store was often as far off as the poles, as far as ability to get there was concerned, people made their own laundry and toilet soaps. Of course, grandmother did a good many things that have almost become a lost art to us, and most of us will admit that a revival of certain ones is not only interesting, but in some cases distinctly economical.

The making of hard soap or laundry soap, which must be done in large quantities and requires a big heating and boiling apparatus, may not interest the city housewife, but face soap being made with olive oil and caustic soda instead of scrap fat and potash as a basis, and which may be stirred up and cooked in an ordinary stew kettle, affords pleasant experiments.

The process and the ratio of ingredients will be exactly like that of hard laundry soap, which you are sure to find described minutely in your household recipe books. But there is a shorter and quicker way of making finely scented toilet soaps and which method is also in use in most factories. Buy four pounds of the best guaranteed pure uncolored castile soap, which is made with olive or cocoanut oil instead of grease. Cut this into thin shavings and boil in enough water until thoroughly liquified. When cooled down to about 30 degrees Fahrenheit stir in two ounces of the oil of bitter almonds and one-quarter pint of rose water, and pour into a square porcelain or graham pan, after it has bubbled for about ten minutes longer. Unless you want fancy molds cut into regular squares about two inches thick.

This soap would be equal in quality to the kind for which you pay from 25 to 50 cents a bar. You would have from twelve to fifteen ordinary sized bars, and counting the cost of the original castile soap and the ingredients your saving would be about $1 or $2, according to the kind of soap you ordinarily buy.

Transparent or glycerin soaps are made by dissolving common hard white soap in alcohol and allowing the moisture to evaporate. The alcohol partly neutralizes the stringency of the lye. An ounce of pure glycerin to a pound of soap is the usual measure and this must be poured into the mixture as soon as the action of the alcohol ceases. If it refuses to become hard through evaporation it must be brought to a boil and tested in cold water until sufficient hardness results. Camphor soap may be made in the same way by substituting oil of rosemary, witch hazel and camphor for glycerin.

FISH DISHES.

Fish Scallop au Gratin. — Peel off skin, remove the bones, and cut in half inch squares one and a half pounds of fresh halibut, place in a frying pan with a gill of white wine, half an ounce of butter, salt and pepper to taste; cover fish with a lightly buttered paper; boil on range five minutes, then set in oven six minutes; mix in a saucepan one and a half ounces butter with two ounces of flour and heat for one minute. Pour in the fish liquor, one gill of milk, and one gill of cream; thoroughly mix until it comes to a boil, then boil five minutes. Add fish with two tablespoonfuls of sherry; cool five minutes; pour the whole into a baking dish, sprinkle a little grated Parmesan cheese over, set in the oven to bake ten minutes, then serve. Any left over fish can be utilized instead of the fresh.

Baked Cod.—Baked with cream sauce. Boil four or five pounds of fresh cod. When cooked drain and shred in fine pieces. Boil one quart of milk, with one onion and a little chopped parsley. Set it aside, mix one cup of butter with enough flour to absorb it. Add this to the milk until it is the consistency of custard. Season with a dash of cayenne and salt to taste. Put a layer of the fish in a baking dish, cross with a layer of sauce, then a layer of fish, until the dish is filled. Have the last layer of cream, cover with fine bread crumbs, sprinkle with pieces of butter. Bake in the oven until the top is nice and brown. Small boiled potato balls covered with cream sauce should be served with this.

Celeried Oysters.—Wash and drain one pint of oysters, dry between clean towels. Season with salt and pepper, dip in beaten egg and broil in one-third cup of butter after rolling in fine cracker crumbs, arrange on a platter, sprinkle with chopped celery, and cover with the following sauce: Blend two tablespoonfuls of butter with two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-quarter teaspoonful each of salt and pepper, then gradually a cup of scalded milk; over all sprinkle a little chopped parsley. Serve on delicate slices of toast. The sauce should be cooked in a double boiler fifteen minutes. Rich and delicious.

DEEP-SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup.

(Cut this out.)

From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and tones up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

IN A COMET'S TAIL.

Earth's Inhabitants Likely to Spend a Few Hours.

Camille Flammarion, the eminent French scientist, writes the European edition of The New York Herald, giving some interesting facts regarding Halley's comet, which is approaching the earth at the rate of 115,000 miles an hour. On April 19, it will arrive at its greatest proximity to the sun, and a month later, on May 19, at 2 o'clock in the morning, Paris time, it will pass directly between the earth and the sun. The Pacific Ocean, Asia and Australia will be in full daylight at the time. The nucleus of the comet at that time will be 15,000,000 miles distant from the earth, and as the tail of the comet has a length of more than 15,000,000 miles, it will reach to our globe and beyond. The result will be that for several hours the earth will be immersed in the great gaseous caudal appendage.

Halley's comet, says M. Flammarion, is not a big comet like those of 1811, 1858, 1861 and 1882, for instance. It is a medium sized comet. But its former appearances show that it is extremely variable. In 1456 it stupefied all beholders. In 1682 there was nothing extraordinary about it, especially as it arrived after the prodigious comet of 1680. In 1759 and 1835 it scarcely impressed anybody but the astronomers.

We can as yet affirm nothing as to its extent this time nor as to its chemical composition. What is most probable is that our terrestrial globe will traverse this gaseous tail as a cannon ball traverses a light fog, this tail, being, so to speak, immaterial, especially at such a distance from the head.

Perhaps there will be noticed interesting electric and magnetic phenomena, manifestations of polar aurora, storms of a new kind, a shower of shooting stars, ethereal glimmerings in the upper regions of the atmosphere, while the observers on the other side of the globe study the passage of the nucleus before the solar disc.

It is probable, however, that the elements in the comet's tail will be so rarefied that, though living for a short time right inside it, the inhabitants of the earth will be unable to discern any difference.

Raw fruit is most wholesome. The juice of an orange may be given to quite young children.

HINTS FOR MOTHERS.

Wash children's heads in a lather of pure soap once a week, if you wish the hair to grow well.

Excitable children should have a thin, dark curtain to their window. They need as much air is possible, but not light.

Porridge is good in cold weather, but to be avoided in warm. Many children who have irritable skins cannot eat it at all.

School-children, whose petticoats are short or who wear knickerbockers, should be provided with mackintoshes and gaiters. The latter are most necessary.

A simple aperient for children is made of senna pods. Steep two or three in half a teacupful of cold water for twelve hours, and drink the liquid at bed-time.

Don't nurse baby. If you accustom baby to be in the cot, or on the floor on a pillow, he will not want to be nursed. Firmness at the beginning will save much trouble later.

To render a child's clothes incombustible soak them in the following solution: Mix one part of sulphate of ammonia with two parts of lime. This preparation will render the fabrics absolutely non-inflammable.

Eating between meals ruins a child's digestion. If he has biscuits, etc., at odd moments it is impossible for him to eat his proper food at the regular times.

For chafed skins nothing is better than the best Fuller's earth. If a child has a delicate skin, always use it after washing.

Baby's bare feet are very pretty, but if you value his health, you will put on little woollen socks. His little feet should always be kept warm.

A delicate baby can often be made perfectly strong by living in the open air. It need not be moved about all the time. Stand the perambulator in a sheltered corner, and let baby sleep there, even when it is cold. He may have a hot bottle and plenty of wraps, and should wear gloves, but given all this he will do far better thus than in a warm room.

SCOTT ACT FOR B. C.

Bill No. 209, known as "An Act to Amend the Canadian Temperance Act," was introduced in the House on April 15th. The purpose of the bill is to make the Act applicable to British Columbia. The Canadian Temperance Act is similar to what is generally known as the Scott Act, and by this amending Act just put through is made to apply in every county into which the province of British Columbia is divided, and includes every town, township, village and other division or municipality except a city municipality within the territorial limits of such county; and "city municipality" means any city municipality or city as defined by the "Municipal Clauses Act," and amending acts.

BRITISH CAPITAL IN CANADA

British capitalists send their agents to Canada in increasing numbers. In the Standard of Empire, it is reported that Mr. F. Norrie-Miller, of Perth Scotland, president of the British Insurance Corporation, who is now in Toronto, prophesies that Canada will soon rival the United States in wealth. Interviewed, he said, "Your tariff alone will be one of the factors in making this country great. By putting a tax on the manufactures of other lands you induce foreign manufacturers to come here and establish factories. Fifty per cent. of the cost of all manufactured articles consists of wages. Plenty of money will thus be in circulation; there will be lots of work, and the surplus goods will be marketed in other countries. There are two things that work together to make a country great—capital and population. Canada is getting the best possible class of immigrants,and the capital is coming."

PRISON REFORMS

The Ontario government has introduced a "reform" into the prison system. A reformatory has been established at Guelph and the prisoners are to be put to work raising crops. The prisoners who can be trusted are being transferred to this new prison. They are not to wear prison clothing. They are to be given good meals. They are to have newspapers. In other words the province of Ontario is going to work the prisoners for the good of themselves. Her prison director has read a little on modern psychology, and has pity for the prisoners. He puts them back on the land and lets them get a little fresh air and a chance to exercise their muscles.

PROSPEROUS BRITISH COLUMBIA

The following items it is well to remember: The funded debt of the province of British Columbia has been reduced by 1¾ million dollars. This debt was, during last year alone reduced by upwards of $2,000,000. The net debt of the province is now less than $1,000,000—it was but $1,050,000 when the Minister of Finance prepared his budget statement three months ago. Last year's revenue exceeded the estimates by upwards of $1,521,224. The province has at present on deposit in the Bank $6,108,709, earning 3 per cent. interest, or $180,000 per annum. The export and import trade of British Columbia is $160 per capita—the largest of any country in the world. The total provincial assessment last year was $104,916,356, to which being added the assessment of the four chief cities —$88,044,279—a total assessment is produced of $192,606,635. This year the total assessments of the province will exceed $250,000,000. Expenditures for the coming year are increased to $7,738,257—by far the largest appropriation in the provincial history.

PRAISE FOR OUR DAIRYMEN

A Victoria despatch states that R. W. Hodson, provincial live stock commissioner, who has but recently returned from a tour of the British Columbia mainland and interior districts in connection with the dairy farm competition in which all dairymen of British Columbia are so deeply interested, speaks with particular appreciation of the very rapid strides that have been made in the Okanagan in the development of the dairying industry along the most modern and progressive lines. The dairymen of that district are not only greatly improving the quality of their stock and seeing to it that their stabling, food, water, etc., are all that could be desired, but they are establishing the latest facilities in plant, aereating all milk offered for sale, dispensing the same in sanitary bottles, and generally proving themselves entirely up-to-date—very far in advance —says Mr. Hodson— of the dairymen of the Victoria and Vancouver districts. The latter are only just beginning to learn the advantages of modern dairy methods.

PAGANS OF THE PEW

"Oh, what a difference it makes to one who has been accustomed week after week, to preach to the sermon-saturated pagans of the pew, to get down and speak to the people who really need your help. Oh, that we might learn the truth which the great founder of Methodism enunciated. 'Go not to those who need us, but to those who need us most.' "

These characteristic words occurred in Dr. Dawson's sermon at Wesley Church, Vancouver, a few evenings ago, and are characteristic because they breath the spirit of the man.—Vancouver Province.

OPENING OF LAWES' ADDITION

Much has been said regarding the road, or the proposed road, which is to open the Lawes' addition, and give buyers of this admirable hill property access to their lots, so that the building of homes there may not be retarded. The City Council are again being petitioned by these property owners, who, apparently, are determined to have one or more of these gazetted city streets opened up.

It cannot be said that this is a new question that the City Council is confronted with. When the money by-law of last year was first up for discussion, this question came up in the Council; and one of the purposes for which the money was raised set forth in the by-law, was "to grade an approach on Sicamous street to a road to be constructed on the Lawes' addition."

That the problem presents difficulties, there is no doubt, but these difficulties must be met and overcome, for this important property must be made accessible to the ratepayers who have been paying taxes on property situated on these gazetted streets, and wish to build thereon.

Last year when it was discovered that it would be impossible to climb the hill by the Gardom residence, an effort was made to get an opening skirting the hill at the foot of the Sutcliffe home and back of the bank property. A survey was made by Mr. Lawes, and a road at much less than 10 per cent. was run from High street to the top of the ridge, along which Mr. Lawes proposed to run a trunk road which would open up all of this addition, and add one of the finest pleasure drives that could be found in the Valley. When the matter was first discussed by the Council it met with great favor, and the mayor and all the councilmen then attending the meetings expressed themselves as willing and anxious to push the road through so as to give an opening to the property, always provided that a 10 per cent. grade could be found.

When the survey made by Mr. G. L. Williams was finished, showing a road was possible at less than this grade, it was presented to the Council, accompanied by a petition asking that the road be opened. The new road skirted the hill back of the bank property and crossed the property owned by Ald. Evans. Ald. Evans refused to allow the road to pass through his property. The estimated cost of the road was $500. In presenting the petition from the property owners asking for the road, Mr. Lawes stated that the only way out of the difficulty was for the city to expropriate a road across the Evans' property, since he (Mr. Lawes) had been unable to get Mr. Evans to consent to an exchange of property or meet the case in any way.

Mr. Lawes offered the city, if they would do this, that, with the city's consent he would (1) Give the city free right of way from High street to point of entrance on the Evans' property. (2) That he would withdraw all roads and streets in the Lawes' addition and lay out the property on a new plan. (3) That he would gazette a public road free from the point where the new road would leave the Evans' property up to and along the section line to Mr. Barnes' boundary. He thus offered to become responsible for the making of all roads on this property except the short new approach from High street across the Evans' property. If this offer had been accepted it would have saved the city more cash than the whole amount of last year's money by-law.

The up-shot was, to use Mr. Lawes' own words, "The Mayor's conscience would not allow him to vote for the city to expropriate roads. Alderman Evans' conscience would not allow him to do anything in the matter but sit down on a progressive move. He did not see why anyone wanted to live on a hill when there was lots of room in the flat. Alderman Peel's conscience would not allow him to let public works by contract. I should have said, in my offer I made it a condition that the work should be done by contract.."

When it came to a vote, the petition was turned down, and Mr. Lawes' offer discharged.

"The Mayor then proposed that a motion be put that the Council pass a resolution that the Council pledges itself to make a road as soon as a right-of-way is found," continued Mr. Lawes. "Before voting for this, I asked them if they realized what they were causing the city to lose by their action, and did they fully understand that if my proposition was turned down the city must legally make its own streets, which were already registered in this addition. The mayor and councilmen said they were fully aware, the mayor adding further that he thought the city could compel me to make all streets on my property."

Map 188, whereon these streets are situated was registered long before incorporation, and therefore the streets, when this addition was embraced in the city limits, became city property, and must be looked after by the city. They ceased to be private property the moment the city extended its limits to take in the addition.

The city, by the foregoing resolution, having reconfirmed the streets in Map 188, already gazetted, Mr. Lawes continued to dispose of lots in the addition on the clear understanding that these roads and streets were duly and properly registered and owned by the city. The frequency of the petitions presented to the Council by these property owners, would indicate that these ratepayers are going to insist upon having access to their property.

ELECTION RUMORS

A dispatch from Ottawa says that rumors are current there that the government intends to appeal to the people this autumn. Color is given to these reports by the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has decided to make a tour of the west in July and August, accompanied by Mr. Graham and possibly Mr. Fielding.

SHOE FOR WOMEN

We would not put our name on these shoes if we did not know them—know just what is in them—know what is back of them.

Our immense factory equipment gives us a tremendous advantage in making these shoes. It reduces factory expenses and enables us to buy material more cheaply, and to secure more skilled and competent labor. And the labor counts for much in the making of a perfect shoe. After all it is pretty nearly the same paint that paints the wagon box that makes the artist's masterpiece. The difference lies in the workmanship—in the use of the materials—and this is where these shoes excel—excel in superiority of workmanship. You will note this in their finished appearance—you will feel it in the perfect fit—you will detect it in their wearing quality, and above all in the fact that Ames-Holden shoes not only fit at the first, but "stay fitted" throughout the life of the shoe.

CAKE.

Molasses Cake—Prepare together two cupfuls of molasses, two of brown sugar, one of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of butter, two beaten eggs, five and a quarter cupfuls of flour. Beat all together. Line a dripping pan with buttered paper and put in the dough. Sift white sugar over the top before baking and bake in a slow oven. This is excellent and will keep for weeks.

White Cake.—Beat together one cupful of granulated sugar with one-quarter of a cupful of butter. Beat for ten minutes, then add one-half cupful of flour; last of all stir in the whites of two eggs beaten to a froth and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake slowly

Cold Slaw.—Put a tablespoonful of melted butter in a stewpan and add to it a teaspoonful of flour; mix and then put in a teacupful of vinegar. Beat one egg, and add to it a teaspoonful each of mustard, sugar, salt, and a half teaspoonful of pepper. Beat all together and stir in the boiling vinegar. Boil one minute. Pour over sliced or chopped cabbage.

Wine Cake.—Beat together two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, and three eggs. Add two cupfuls of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, and one gill of wine. Mix into a firm batter. Put in deep mold and bake in a moderate oven. Frost.

Dried Cherry Cake.—Beat to a cream one cupful of sugar with one-half cupful of butter; add one-half cupful sour milk, one cupful of dried cherries, one teaspoonful of soda, spice to taste, and flour enough to make a stiff batter. Bake in paper lined tins in moderate oven for about one hour.

White Fruit Cake.—Cream well one cupful of butter with two cupfuls of A sugar. Then add one cupful of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, whites of four eggs beaten quite stiff, two even teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half pound of figs, one-half pound of raisins, one-half cupful of almonds crushed, one-fourth pound citron chopped fine, one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Put the baking powder in the flour and mix well before adding to the other ingredients; also flour fruit well before adding. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. One-half cupful of dates can be added if liked.

Burned Sugar Cake.—One-fourth cupful of butter, one and one-half cupfuls sugar (light brown preferred), two eggs, two rounding cupfuls of flour (measured before sifting), one cupful cold water, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, three or four teaspoonfuls of burned sugar syrup. Use common straight tumbler to measure with instead of cup. Cream, butter, and sugar together, break in the eggs, and beat well; add water, burned syrup, and lastly flour which has been well sifted with baking powder. Bake in layers The burned sugar syrup is prepared by putting any quantity desired of granulated sugar in a spider over the stove and stirring constantly until a nice brown, then add boiling water and cook to syrup. Put into a can or any convenient receptacle you have on hand. For the frosting, use one and one-half cupfuls light brown sugar and the whites of three eggs, add a little water and three teaspoonfuls of burned syrup to the sugar, and boil until a little dropped in cold water will "ball." Stir about half this with the beaten whites and allow the remainder to cook a little longer. Beat until cold.

FISH.

Herring Salad.—One and one-half salt herring, two cupfuls of beets, two apples, one salt pickle, two cupfuls of boiled beef, two and one-half cupfuls of potatoes, four or six tablespoonfuls of vinegar, white pepper. Soak herring in water twenty-four hours. Clean well, removing skin and bones. Dry in towel and cut in cubes. Cut in cubes also the pickle, peeled apples, meat, beets, and potatoes. Mix all together and add vinegar, sugar, and pepper. Pack firmly on platter and garnish with finely chopped beets or hard boiled eggs.

Planked Fish.—Now that lent is here a dinner with planked fish as the main meat course will prove a treat. Get a long, oval board sold in stores for baking fish. You will appreciate this board after once eating planked fish. Whitefish or trout are best suited for this purpose. Clean and remove the bone by pulling out the spine. Heat the board, then butter it. Then place the fish on it. Season the fish and put little dabs of butter here and there; then place in oven and bake until done when tried with a fork. When removed from the oven place the board with the fish on it on a platter, put mounds of mashed potatoes on the hot board all around the fish, and garnish with parsley and slices of lemon, and serve at once. With it serve in a gravy boat a sauce made as follows: Melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour. When thoroughly mixed add a large cupful of milk. Place on fire and stir until thick as cream. Then season with pepper, salt, a few drops of lemon juice, and a dash of curry powder.

Oyster Pies.—Line small, deep pie tins with rich biscuit dough, cover bottom with a light sprinkling of flour. Fill pans with raw oysters, liquor included, season well with pepper and salt, dot with butter, and add a few sprigs of parsley and one or two nice stalks of celery cut in small pieces. Sprinkle a light covering of flour over the mixture in pans in order to slightly thicken oyster liquor. Cover with upper crust, in which one or two holes have been cup, to allow steam to escape. Bake in quick oven twenty minutes, or until crust is a nice golden brown. Pie tins about the size of a saucer and rather deep are best. This is an old Maryland recipe and is a delicious way of preparing oysters.

TWO DESSERTS.

California Cookies.—Two and two-thirds cupfuls of flour, three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-third cupful of butter, one-third cupful of lard, one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of chopped figs, one-fourth cupful chopped walnuts, four eggs, one-fourth cupful milk. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream sugar and shortening, add yolks of eggs, milk, fruit, and nuts, mixing thoroughly. Stir in half the flour, add the stiffly beaten whites, and finally the remaining flour. Drop by teaspoonfuls two inches apart on buttered tins and bake in a moderate oven fifteen minutes or until brown. Enough for sixty-five cookies.

Date Pudding.—Cream together one cupful each of brown sugar and suet, add the yolks of two eggs, two rolled shredded wheat biscuits, two-thirds cupful of milk, one and one-half cupfuls of chopped dates, two-thirds cupful of raisins, one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a pinch of soda, and lastly the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Steam two hours, dry off in the oven, and serve with hard or wine sauce. Will serve six persons.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Sprinkle granulated sugar on top of jellies to prevent mold.

Add a pinch of salt to starch. It will keep the irons from sticking.

Dry salt and a brush will take dust off from velvet, plush and heavy embroidery that cannot be washed.

If your rugs curl up at the edges, they can be made to lie flat by dampening the curled edges and pressing with a hot iron.

Nearly all metal teapots will corrode or rust slightly when put away for a time. A woman who travels says she preserves such articles by filling them with flour. It is dry and will not admit the least moisture.

Boiled salad dressing will not curdle, but will be smooth and light if stirred frequently while cooking in a double boiler, with a revolving egg beater.

To beat bread sponge quickly use a large size egg beater. It does the same work as a machine and is quickly cleaned, will also save work in mixing cake batter.

A common crock makes a fine baking dish for young chicken, as it keeps the meat juicy.

To make cabbage crisp shred and drop into a bowl of iced water an hour before using.

To be sure of smooth dressing add a tablespoon of cornstarch to beaten ingredients. Beat all well and cook in double boiler.

A bowl of quick lime left in a damp cupboard will absorb the moisture.

Every coffee pot should occasionally be washed out with a solution of soda and boiling water.

Always keep cheese well covered in a cheese dish. If wrapped in a vinegar moistened cloth it will keep beautifully moist, and retain its flavor longer.

When nursing the sick never permit any one to sit on the bed, or allow it to be jostled in any way. Also avoid any persistent noise, such as dripping water, creaking furniture or doors.

A little healing lotion, which should be kept in the house for every emergency, is this: One drachm of boracic acid, two ounces of rose water. When a child shows any little skin irritation it can be applied with splendid results.

In purchasing a turkey ascertain that the legs are firm and smooth, the wattles a bright color and the claws yellow and supple. A young turkey takes about an hour and a half to roast, a little longer to steam or boil, and a large bird should be from two and a half to three hours in cooking.

When giving baby medicine or a drink of water hold the wrist firmly and the baby will never strangle or choke.

To revive a dying fire scatter on the embers a spoonful or two of granulated sugar.

When rubbers look old, apply a coating of patent-leather shoe polish and they will be like new.

Hominy given long cooking and served as a vegetable with butter is one of the standbys of North Carolina tables, being used in place of potato. The cereal is cooked in a double boiler for an hour or two.

To cut hard jelly squares, use a perfectly clean pair f scissors dipped in cold water. Thus one can cut small pieces more easily than with a knife. Carefully clean and dry the scissors before putting them away.

A kettle-holder to which is attached about a yard of tape is very useful when one is working in the kitchen. Tie the tape to your waist-belt, and then the kettle-holder will be ready to hand whenever you want to take anything hot from the stove.

Coffee stains, even when the coffee has been mixed with cream or milk, may be removed by rubbing the spots with pure glycerine. Rinse afterward in lukewarm water, and press on the wrong side of the fabric (either silk or wool may be so treated) with a warm iron.

In cleaning bric-a-brac, especially china pieces, it is a good plan to use an old shaving brush.

Half a lemon dipped in salt will be found invaluable for cleaning brass and copper utensils.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice to a quart of water will make rice very white and keep the grains separate when boiled.

Encourage children to eat bread made of whole meal ground, not bolted, so that the bran which contains the minute quantities of lime is present.

Pudding cloths should never be washed with soap; soak them in cold water, then wring in very hot water; then dry in the open air if possible before using again; dip them in boiling water; wring tightly and flour well.

FOOD AND MAN.

The pessimistic views expressed by Sir W. Crookes in 1898 concerning an impending dearth of the wheat supply of the world have often since been the subject of comment, and at the recent meeting of the British Association they were again mentioned by Maj. P. G. Craigie in his address to the Sub-Section of Agriculture. He was more hopeful than Sir W. Crookes, but he pointed out the necessity of developing the grain lands of the world, and expressed the view that the most important thing was not to bring the food to the men, but to bring the men to the food; that is to the land capable of producing it. The 1,600,000,000 persons constituting the present population of the globe are concentrated in narrow regions, and large parts of the earth, capable of great agricultural development, are left relatively barren. The best solution of the problem of food supply would be to find a way to induce the surplus population to inhabit and develop the lands now neglected.

A TIGER AT HIS BATH.

A Hunter's Experience in the Indian Jungle.

An interesting account of a tiger-hunt is given by one who had a wide experience in hunting this most dangerous of beasts. Mounted upon elephants, the writer and his companions had been beating the jungle without making a find, until, as they were about to give up the search, a sudden disturbance among the elephants appeared to betoken a tiger near at hand. Giving directions to the others as to the order of marching their elephants, the writer ordered his mahout to turn into the thick feathery foliage to the left in search of a pool of water which he remembered to be there.

There was a slight descent to a long but narrow hollow about fifty or sixty yards wide. This was filled with clear water for an unknown length.

I was just about to make a remark, when, instead of speaking, I gently grasped the mahout by the head as I leaned over the howdah, and by this signal stopped the elephant.

There was a remarkable sight. About one hundred and twenty yards distant on my left the head and neck of a large tiger, clean and beautiful, reposed above the surface of the water, while the body was cooling, concealed from view. Here was our friend enjoying his quiet bath, while we had been pounding away up and down the jungles which he had left.

"Fire at him," whispered the mahout, "or you will lose him! He will see us and be off."

"Hold your tongue!" I answered "He can't see us, for the sun is at our back and is shining in his eyes. See how green they are."

At this moment the tiger quietly rose from his bath, and sat up on end, like a dog. I never saw such a sight. His head was beautiful, and the eyes shone like two green electric lights as the sun's rays reflected from them; but his huge body was dripping with muddy water, as he had been reclining upon the alluvial bottom.

For quite a minute the tiger sat up in the same position. At last, as if satisfied that he was in safety and seclusion, he once more lay dawn with only the head and neck exposed above the surface.

"Back the elephant gently, but do not turn round," I whispered. Immediately the elephant backed through the feathery tamarisk without the slightest sound, and we found ourselves outside the jungle. We could breathe freely.

"Go on now, quite gently, till I press your head; then turn to the right, descending through the tamarisk till I again touch your turban."

I counted the elephant's paces as she moved softly parallel with the jungle, until I felt sure of my distance. A slight pressure upon the mahout's head, and the elephant turned to the right. The waving plumes of the dark-green tamarisk divided as we gently moved forward, and in another moment we stopped. There was the tiger in the same position, exactly facing me, but now about seventy-five paces distant.

"Keep the elephant quite steady," I whispered; and sitting down upon the howdah seat, I took a rest with the rifle upon the front bar of the gun-rack. A piece of tamarisk kept waving in the wind just in front of the rifle, beyond my reach. The mahout leaned forward and gently bent it down. Now all was clear. The tiger's eyes were like green glass. The elephant for a moment stood like stone. I touched the trigger.

There was no response to the loud report of six drams of powder from the "five, seven, seven" rifle, no splash in the unbroken surface of the water. The tiger's head was still there, but in a different attitude, one-half below the surface, and only one cheek and one large eye still glittering like an emerald above.

Upon examination, it proved that there was no hole whatever in the tiger. The bullet having entered the nostril, broken the neck, and run along the body, the animal consequently had never moved.

This tiger, when laid out straight, but without being pulled to increase its length, measured exactly nine feet and eight inches from nose to tail.

THEIR FIRST SHOES.

How an African Boy Managed With His First Pair.

Samuel Adjai Crowther, an African slave boy who became a bishop, delighted to tell to his children the story of how he put on his first shoes. In "The Black Bishop" Jesse Page gives the story in the bishop's own words. Four of the pupils in the missionary's school had been promoted to the position of monitors. This was at Fourah Bay College, under Rev. Charles Haensel.

To give effect to our position, we were allowed to wear shoes. Strong, stout shoes, with very thick soles, were procured and given to us; they were called "Blucher shoes."

On a Saturday afternoon we were called, received a pair each, and were told to wear them every Sunday to church at St. George's Cathedral, a distance of about three miles.

Never having had shoes on before, we began practising in our dormitory that evening. None of us could move a step after lacing up our feet in the unwieldy articles, and consequently we were objects of laughter to our pupils.

An idea struck me at once, which I put into execution. Crawling to a corner of the room, I first knelt down, then holding on to the wall for support, I stood up, and still being supported by the wall, I stepped round the room many times, the others following my example, till we were able to leave the wall, stand alone, or move about without support.

You can well imagine what a burden this was to us, and after losing sight of the college, we sat on the grass, took off the shoes, walked barefooted, and put them on only at the porch of the church. We did the same on returning to college. After some months' practise we were able to move better in them, but complained how they hurt our feet, and would rather be without them. But after some months we invested in the purchase of boots ourselves, and were always careful to buy those that made noise and creaked as we walked, to our great delight and the admiration of our pupils.

"BLUE SIGN" HOTELS.

Look for Blue Signs in Germany if You Want Quiet.

Little blue signboards, bearing recondite devices, are appearing sporadically over the doorways of hotels in various parts of Germany. These are outward badges of the spiritual rectitude of the particular hotel proprietors, men who at the bidding of a new society have called down quietude to be the presiding genius over their establishments. Therefore, nerve-racked travellers should make for those blue signs and enter the portals which they adorn; but the youthful and the giddy aged, who love bustle, clatter and music, will go elsewhere. The new Teutonic Anti-Noise Society's special aim is to enlist hosts who will agree to provide shutters to all bedrooms, so that they may be darkened at will, a sitting room where silence broods over the scene, doors which automaticalls close without banging or creaking, silent dining room service, an alarm system by which a single guest will be surely awakened without calling up every other sleeping wight on the same floor, and to banish the music to an annex entirely apart from the main building. So far so good. But trouble will assuredly arise over the solemn promise to keep a black-list for cuirculation among the Knights of Silence, a list which will bear the names and descriptions of persons cursed with raucous voices, resonant laughs, evil tempers, or any other faults likely to jar the nerves of susceptible people; such objectionables to be rigorously turned from the doors.

EATING SNAKE'S FLESH.

Australian Natives Count Dish of Snakes as Luxury.

Many African tribes count snake flesh among the delicacies, and John Ward says that with the Australian natives "a dish of snakes is a much-esteemed luxury." Many kinds of birds eat snakes. Pigs are particularly fond of them, as also are some deer; but in the old days it was understood that deer only ate snakes in summer, for which reason their venison was at that time poisonous, a sagacious fiction which it was doubtless well to make widely known in times when there was abundant temptation to deer stealing and regulations concerning closed seasons would have been treated with indifference

A VOICE FROM NOVA SCOTIA

STATES THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURES BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Ellie J. Mirk Suffered from this Terrible Ailment for Four Years, but Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Her a Well Woman.

Miscou Harbor, Gloucester Co., N. S., Feb 28 (Special).—That any remedy that will cure Bright's Disease will cure any form of Kidney Disease has long been admitted by the medical profession, and this place furnishes one more undoubted proof that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Bright's Disease. For Ellie J. Mirk, well known here, had Bright's Disease, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"I suffered for over four years from Kidney Disease which developed into Bright's Disease," Miss Mirk states. "I had pains in head and back, and stiffness of the joints. I lost my appetite and suffered from dizziness and shortness of breath. I was weak and languid all the time.

"I was always nervous and could not keep my thoughts from wandering. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. To-day I have not one of these distressing symptoms."

Neglected Kidney Complaint develops into Bright's Disease, Heart Disease or Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure any and all of these. But it's easier and safer to cure the earlier symptoms by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

SHORTSIGHTED WOMAN.

Do what he would, the landlord could never get the rent from his tenant, who, when asked to pay up, went into a long rigmarole about hard times, and made many promises, which always remained unfulfilled.

Sick at heart with hope deferred, he called again the other day, and listened to the same old tale from the lady of the house. It was a trying interview, but the landlord, a very good soul, said that rather than make a fuss about such a small matter, he would make her a present of the house; an offer which was gladly accepted.

When her husband returned from work, she told him what had transpired.

His indignation knew no bounds. "I should think you had more sense than to take it!" he yelled.

"Take it! Of course, I took it!" replied his wife, surprisedly. "Why not?"

"Why, you daft idiot, we'll have taxes to pay now!"

A GOOD COUGH MIXTURE.

Simple Home-made Remedy That is Free From Opiates and Harmful Drugs.

An effective remedy, that will usually break up a cold in twenty-four hours, is easily made by mixing together in a large bottle two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. This mixture will cure any cough that is curable, and is not expensive, as it makes enough to last the average family an entire year. Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

FUTILE DISSENSION.

"So you and your husband are always quarreling?" said the family lawyer.

"Yes," answered the young woman.

"What do you quarrel about"

"I forget the subject of the first quarrel. But we have been quarreling ever since who was to blame for it."

owe their singular effectiveness in curing Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica to their power of stimulating and strengthening the kidneys. They enable these organs to thoroughly filter from the blood the uric acid (the product of waste matter) which gets into the joints and muscles and causes these painful diseases. Over half a century of constant use has proved conclusively that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills strengthen weak kidneys and

GOOD WORK.

The dear old veteran paused in his reminiscences, and his audience began to think he had left off. Vain hope!

"I recollect," he continued dreamingly, "that at the battle of Alma I had a very exciting time. Bullets were pelting upon us like rain, men fell right and left, cannon roared like thunder itself, and, worst of all, the enemy had managed to get within a hundred yards of our position. I was mad with excitement, and wasn't thinking of anything except just fighting for all I was worth. All of a sudden I turned, and found that my regiment had altered its position, and I was cut off—left to the mercy of the enemy, sir."

The veteran paused again; he always does at the most exciting part; he finds it amusing.

"Well, what did you do?" asked an impatient listener.

"Do," said the old fellow sleepily. "Well, I reckon I did a mile in three minutes."

A SHOCK.

One of the first shocks the average young married woman gets is when she puts on a new gown and her husband doesn't know the difference.

A Soothing Oil.—To throw oil upon the troubled waters means to subdue to calmness the most boisterous sea. To apply Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil to the troubled body when it is racked with pain means speedy subjugation of the most refractory elements. It cures pain, heals bruises, takes the fire from burns, and as a general household medicine is useful in many ailments. It is worth much.

It sometimes happens that by the time a young man can afford to marry he doesn't want to.

IS ALL FAIR IN TRADE

Motto Will Not be Adopted by Men Strong in Principle.

We hear men apologizing for their tricks in trade that a man must live. "For a piece of bread that man will trangress." Yes, a man must live—forever.

Never adopt the motto: "All is fair in trade." There are men inflexible in principle, upright and square, who have gone under, but came up again, from all their losses and failures, with a conscious integrity, sustained by the testimony of their associates that, though unfortunate, they were never dishonest.

When Chicago burned down and the earthquake destroyed San Francisco, the business men could go right ahead without cash capital, because they had acquired character-capital. A good man cannot be burned out and the earthquake cannot destroy him.

SHE HAD THIS SORE FOR FOUR LONG YEARS!

How Zam-Buk Healed It.

You can't equal Zam-Buk for sores of all kinds, whether recent or of long standing. That is the opinion of Mrs. Wilson, of 110 Wickinson Ave., Toronto. She says:

"About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face, just about the angle of the jaw. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter, and very troublesome. I went to a doctor, from whom at different times during fifteen years I had received treatment, but the ointment I got did not have any good effect on the sore. I had it cauterized, tried poultices and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and this continued for four years. A sample of Zam-Buk was one day left at our house, and I used it.

"Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased from Mr. Bauld, Druggist, Scollard and Yonge Streets, a supply of Zam-Buk. Each box did me more and more good, and to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed! It has now been healed for almost a year.

Try Zam-Buk for eczema, ulcers, skin eruptions, face spots, baby's rashes, inflamed places, piles, blood-poisoning and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

A LET UP.

"Do they quarrel all the time?"

"No, they entertain company now and then."

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, where the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

Ravages of Consumption

ALL HER RELATIVES HAD DIED OF CONSUMPTION

In the year 1890, 18 years ago, Mrs. G. S. Gesner, of Belle Isle, N.S., was in a sad condition. All her relatives had died of consumption, and there was every indication that she was going the same way.

At this point her husband suggested to try Psychine. The doctor who attended said Psychine was worthless; but it effected a wonderful cure. Eighteen years after in a letter bearing date August 14, 1908, Mrs. Gesner says, "I am better than I have been for years. My lungs have not troubled me since I took your treatment. My physician told me I could not take a better tonic than PSYCHINE, and I recommend it to all who are suffering from Lung Trouble and General Debility."

NEW SETTLERS FLOCKING IN

New settlers, all of a high standard are flocking into Canada now at a rate altogether unequalled in the history of the Dominion. The immigrants are of an excellent type, with plenty of stamina and every indication of adaptability to good citizenship. Very many of them are men of independent means, and practically all of them possess some amount of capital.

A report from Ottawa says the rate of influx is breaking all records, and present indications from shipping offices and other agencies show that the total for the year is likely to be well over 300,000. When the high average of character and material circumstances of these people is remembered, it will be seen that this must prove a notable year for Canadian development.

From Great Britain it is expected that there will be fully 100,000 new settlers, all of the best class of agriculturists, and most of them well equipped with money, or its equivalents, and with working knowledge.

The number of immigrants from the United States will be not less than 150,000 this year. These will consist in the main of farmers from the western states who have sold out their partially exhausted though high-priced holdings there in order to take up the cheaper and far more richly productive land of the Canadian West. The immigration from the United States is already 50 per cent. in excess of what it was at this time last year, though that constituted a record, and certificates and reports to hand show that the newcomers are bringing in $811 for each man, woman and child. This means that for the year the United States settlers alone will bring into this country an aggregate of $125,000,000, and the United States immigration will not be more than one-half of our total immigration for the year.

"Last century's early stages of United States development were not one-fifth part so rapid," says a writer in the Standard of Empire. "Actual records prove that. The twentieth century is said to be Canada's. The difference between express train and stage coach travelling fairly represents the difference in speed of development between the nineteenth and the twentieth century on this side of the Atlantic. Ontario and Western Canada (especially Alberta and British Columbia) are getting the bulk of the new settlers who have arrived so far, but also the Eastern Maritime provinces are getting a better percentage this year than hitherto.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Parishioners and Friends of Mara, North Enderby and Enderby:

I desire to convey to you my most sincere thanks and the assurance of my heartfelt appreciation of the very generous and handsome gift of the cart and harness, with whip and robe of which I have been the fortunate recipient. Valuable as the gift is in itself, yet of far greater value to me is the good will of which the gift is the outward expression.

Praying that God's blessing may be with you all, and that He will be pleased to prosper our mutual endeavors for the advancement of the cause of our most Blessed Redeemer, I am,

Your affectionate friend and Vicar,
JOHN LEECH-PORTER.

The ordinary man is never so anxious to fight as when he feels someone strong enough for the occasion is holding him.

A COTTAGE HOSPITAL

No people could be more liberal in the support of a worthy cause than are the people of Enderby. Never has an appeal been made on behalf of a commendable movement that has not been met—and well met. There is now an opportunity to assist in the establishment of an institution in our midst that will mean more to us than most of us realize. Some time ago when the cottage hospital project was taken up by the ladies, the great objection, or what was considered the insurmountable difficulty in the way, was the fact that at least two trained nurses would have to be employed to ensure the proper care of patients. This difficulty need no longer act as a scarebobbin.

A week or two ago, Mrs. Wm. Sewell and daughters arrived from Frederickton, N. B., to make their home in Enderby. Mrs. Sewell made the purchase of the house formerly owned by Walter Robinson, situated on Mill street, opposite the Ira C. Jones property, corner of High St. Mrs. Sewell and her elder daughter are trained nurses, and it is their desire to establish a cottage hospital in their home. The house is to be provided with all the necessary conveniences for a small hospital, and these ladies will take entire charge.

It is Mrs. Sewell's desire to get such assistance in the furnishing of the wards as the city can give. She proposes that the furnishings shall remain the property of the city, and that the use of them be given her so long as she conducts a hospital. All renovation of the building, and the expense incurred in making the additions she deems necessary, will be borne by Mrs. Sewell, but she feels if she and her daughter give their experience as against the furnishings of the wards by the city, it should be considered just and fair.

Mrs. Sewell is going at it in the right way, and should be given every encouragement. A cottage hospital for emergency cases is greatly needed here, and a better site could not be selected.

A WOMAN'S SENSE OF ECONOMY

A Boston physician was describing a week's drive that he took last fall through some of the most picturesque districts of New England.

"I saw much that was memorable, and heard much that was worth remembering on this quiet, bucolic excursion. I remember an elderly justice of the peace in a beautiful New Hampshire village near Lake Sunapee. I stayed there all night with this fine, keen old man. He amused me and impressed me with his mordant humor.

"During the evening the question of the unreasonableness of womankind came up for discussion. 'Ah,' said he, 'woman is unreasonable, very unreasonable indeed. In fact, there is no living creature so unreasonable as woman. I remember that my wife and I were talking over our affairs one day, and we agreed that it had come to the point where we must both economize.

" 'Yes, my dear,' I said to my wife 'we must both economize—both.'

" 'Very well, Henry,' she said with a tired air of submission to an unpleasant condition, 'you shave yourself, and I'll cut your hair.' "

That dining room floor needs attention. Campbell's Varnish Stain is the most satisfactory finish for all floors. It is tough and will stand the scuff and tread of heavy shoes. Made clear and in Light Oak, Dark Oak and other shades imitating natural woods. Sold and guaranteed by A. Fulton.
