Brief Mention of News of Interest to Enderby District

Boost for Enderby District.

R. A. Chamberlin left for Poltimore, Que., yesterday, to be absent for some weeks.

The first tennis game of the season will be played on the tennis club court next Saturday.

Miss Nellie Hancock and Mrs. Proctor returned from the Vernon hospital on Monday.

Robert Bailey Sr. last week suffered several days from an attack of blood poisoning and erysipelas. He is able to be about again.

Jas. C. English returned from Slocan City last week, where he was engaged in closing a general merchandise business for the creditors.

H. A. Baxter will leave in a few days for Portland, Ore. He will proceed to New York, and later go to Florida, where he expects to winter.

The dog tax is now due. The city is furnishing a bright brass tag to be put on Towser's collar. Buy one and make even the dogs look prosperous.

R. R. Gibbs made a trip to Revelstoke last week and returned with a contract to furnish 300,000 bricks for the new school house to be erected in that city.

Rev. Mr. Gifford has accepted a position as professor in the New Westminster college. His place in the Enderby circuit will be filled by Rev. Mr. Connor.

C. G. Piper, a painter and paper hanger of Old Country training, arrived in Enderby this week, and has taken charge of the painting work of J. F. Turner.

S. Robertson, late of Southern Alberta, this week purchased the 160 acre homestead of A. Stroulger, situated four miles up the Mabel Lake valley, at $25 an acre.

Wm. Ellison has purchased the McVeigh cottage adjoining the pretty Wheeler home on George street, and will continue his tailoring establishment in his new quarters.

Chas. E. Strickland has concluded to cut up his river-shore property adjoining the town of Enderby to the north, in one-acre blocks, and will put the property on the market at an early date.

Mabel Lake valley is developing fast, and the Government would render great assistance to the settlers if the Trinity Valley road to connect with the Mabel Lake road, were open this summer.

The time has been extended until Saturday evening at 7:30 for the receipt of tenders for the construction of the proposed road on the Lawes' hill, also for the removal of the bandstand from the City Hall to the river bank.

The ice cream social and afternoon tea to be given by the Ladies of the Presbyterian church on June 1st, will be given on the lawn at the home of Mrs. F. V. Moffet. Ice cream will be served afternoon and evening. Band in attendance.

A number of Enderbyites took in the sports at Kelowna on the 24th. All report having enjoyed a delightful day and evening. A performance of Gilbert & Sullivan's opera The Mikado, was given in the evening by local talent, and high praise is expressed for the company.

Jas. Johnson wishes the statement corrected. He was not assisted in his suit for 50c against the poundkeeper by Attorney Banton. He conducted the case alone. Mr. Greyell also wishes it to be understood that the troublesome Bossies had lots to eat if they didn't have anything to drink.

H. E. Waby is the only pure-bred stock breeder listed from Enderby in the Dominion Live Stock Directory, just issued, and he is credited with having the largest Red Polled herd in the Dominion. A copy of this directory may be had by any breeder or farmer writing to the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa for it.

Poultry Expert Jull was in Enderby the past week. He has finished a very successful lecture tour over the Province, and reports having organized three associations in the past few weeks, bringing the total number now organized up to ten. The poultrymen throughout the province are exhibiting great interest in the movement to better the condition of the industry.

James R. Linton is closing some of the biggest contracts ever handled in this section, for cedar poles, fence posts and piling. He has just signed up on a three-year contract which will mean about $30,000 a year to our ranchers who have land to be cleared up. Mr. Linton will establish permanent headquarters at Enderby, and operate his various camps from this centre.

For the first time in twenty years the people of Enderby spent a quiet 24th. Every available rig in town—everything but Hezekiah Elliott's ox team, and IT was spoken for—was engaged to carry happy picnickers to the various points of interest in the neighborhood of town. A party of nine enjoyed a delightful day at Mabel Lake; another of 13 picnicked on the grassy banks of the Spallumcheen at the ranch of Frank Hawes; others climbed the Cliff; others fished in the trout holes on Deep Creek, and others of two and no more were scattered in all the cosy nooks along the river and up the canyons. A drenching rainstorm caught many of the parties just at a time when the day was becoming most interesting, and made them scurry for home.

The valuable homestead of H. A. Baxter, situated about six miles from Enderby up the Mabel Lake valley, was sold the past week. Paul Stainer bought 80 acres, Frank Shanky 40 acres, and Frank Ornst 40 acres. These gentlemen are late arrivals. They bring their families with them, and are preparing to erect suitable homes. They are endeavoring to learn where the proposed government road to Trinity Valley will cross their places, so as to erect their homes on convenient sites. Any information the government road superintendent could give them would be thankfully received, as it would enable them to proceed at once with the erection of their buildings.

The baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Hooper died last Sunday after an illness of several days. The illness started with a virulent type of bronchitis, which was followed by complications of the most dangerous type. Dr. VanKieek was called in consultation with Dr. Keith, and every effort made to save the life of the little one. Diphtheria was feared and Dr. Keith sent a culture from the child's throat to the Provincial Board of Health, who pronounced it free from diptheria bacteria. An older child and Mrs. Hooper were also afflicted, but both are now out of danger.

We wish to express to all our heartfelt thanks for the great kindness shown to us in our late bereavement and the illness of our little ones. MR. and MRS. HOOPER

Busy Session of City Council Important Matters Decided

A busy meeting of the City Council was held on the evening of the 18th. Alderman Evans was elected acting mayor and took the chair at the head of the table. There were present Aldermen Blanchard, Hancock and Hutchison.

A. Sutcliffe was present and asked permission to address the Council. He stated that he was of opinion that there had been some misunderstanding in reference to the amount of his remuneration for the work of auditing the 1909 accounts, and asked that the matter might be reconsidered, as he felt that an injustice had been done him in the matter. Action was postponed until the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Golightly appeared and requested permission to close the lane running through his hill property. Matter postponed pending general settlement of thoroughfares in the Lawes' sub-division.

In accordance with the decision of the Council at the meeting on the 7th inst., a profile plan of the proposed road to open up the Lawes property was submitted by Surveyor Williams, showing the grades of the right-of-way selected by the Council. It was decided to call for tenders for the construction of the road 12 feet wide, and the clearing of the right-of-way its full width of 24 feet. Any rock requiring blasting to remove, to be left in place and the road graded up to it. Work to be completed by July 15th. Tenders to be received up to May 25th.

It was decided, also, to request through Mr. Moffet that the petitioners submit a definite statement of the entire scheme of modification which they propose to ask the court to sanction in registered map 188.

Public Library commissioners were appointed as follows: Rev. Mr. Campbell, Rev. Mr. Gifford, Mrs. E. Lawes Mrs. H. N. Hendrickson, Dr. H. W. Keith, W. E. Banton and H. R. Ackman.

In the matter of assisting in the establishment of a Cottage Hospital in Enderby, Ald. Blanchard as chairman of the special committee appointed to investigate, reported as follows:

"We are of opinion that Mrs. Sewell is entirely a suitable person to have charge of such an institution and we consider her premises well suited to the purpose. She informs us that it is her intention to build a bath room as an addition to the house. We recommend that the city provide the furniture for two wards, to be placed in Mrs. Sewell's charge for hospital purposes and to remain the property of the city. We also recommend that the city supply Mrs. Sewell with water free of charge."

It was decided to adopt the report and to carry out the recommendation contained therein, subject to Mrs. Sewell entering into a proper legal agreement which is to govern in the matter.

A list of the necessary articles for furnishing the wards was ordered to be asked of Dr. Keith, with price of each.

Alderman Blanchard proposed that the City Bandstand be removed and set up on the river bank. Council approved of the suggestion and decided to call for tenders for the work

Alderman Blanchard was authorized to purchase the necessary furnishings to complete the basement of the City Hall.

Council confirmed the action of Alderman Evans as acting mayor, in issuing his proclamation regarding the observance of Friday, May 20th, the date of the King's funeral.

A letter was received from Peter Greyell, asking to be relieved of the duties of poundkeeper. Resignation accepted.

It was decided to mow the grass on the recreation ground and place sand where it is needed to level up the ball field.

ONE MAN'S POINT OF VIEW

We heard of an individual the other day who, on being advised to do a thing a better way, surprised his friend by wanting to know if it was a new way, and stating if it were he would have nothing to do with it, explaining that he had no use for anything new. He did not state why he was so opposed to anything and everything new, but intimated that the old way was good enough for him, and his friend had to leave him without the knowledge he so much wished to impart.

One is reminded by this incident of the good old parson who advised his gullible congregation to avoid everything of a "new thought" type of reasoning, and to refuse to believe anything the newspapers had to say about parsons and the churches. It must be admitted that the good old farmer was quite as sincere, and as reasonable as the good old parson. In the measure of the light they had both spoke honestly. To the farmer who refuses to grow, there is no way quite so good as the old way, and to the parson who refuses to see any good in anything that does not bear the earmarks of the particular creed which custom and habit have forced him to believe is the only Simon Pure article, there is nothing quite so bad as "new thought," or "new" anything elsef New thought, or thought of any independent nature, is distasteful to dead parsons just as it is to dead farmers or dead artisans. It really makes very little difference the nature of a man's calling. If he will not he will not, and that's the end o' it. But when he condemns a thing because he does not understand it, or finds fault with another who dares to hold a contrary opinion and express it, that man is a dead man, though it is possible he does not know it, and would refuse to admit it. The world of accomplishment is unknown to such a person.

The good old parson who asks us to disbelieve the newspapers is himself a deceiver, or he would not accuse the press of insincerity. He is working a sort of shell game upon his people and is afraid of being exposed. He must have a great deal of sham in his make-up. We have been in the newspaper business, and more or less closely associated with newspapermen for nearly 25 years. We "jest growed-up in the business." In all that time we have not met a newspaperman who has not shown more downright sincerity in his work than nine out of ten of the parsons we have come in touch with. The difference is this: The newspaperman steps out beyond his readers, oftimes, in an effort to show a better way, while the parson, through habit and bowing to custom, simply follows the popular notions of his congregation and feeds them on sweet-meats that tickle perverted palates.

And as for the note of alarm regarding "New Thought," why, bless you, that is as absurd as it is blind. "The first thing you should know about 'new thought' is that it takes PRACTICE to do anything with it that counts." Elizabeth Towne in the June Nautilus, puts it very nicely when she says, "New thought is a point of view from which you see the world and everything and everybody in it as 'members one of another,' as extensions of yourself. New thought is a light in which you see things as they really are. But new thought is not new—it is as old as the world and older. The only element of newness is its universal recognition. There have been prophets of the new thought here and there through all the ages, but today everybody is catching the new thought view of things."

In short, New Thought is the very thing this good old preacher has been praying for all his life: "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." And coming as it has—from the common people, and not by flare of trumpets and bumptious piety,—it has been condemned just as the Son of Man was condemned, by the parsons of punk piety and false conception.

These parsons of punk piety are soul murderers. I have the greatest respect for the preacher who carries peace, laugh and love about with him in his work. But I have no more respect for him than I have for the man working in the ditch who carries peace, laugh and love about with HIM in his work. And I have no respect for the person of punk piety whether preacher or shovelman, who carries damnation about in pious pills of prayerful cant.

Thomas Dreir says, in writing along New Thought lines: "A while ago I received from a fifteen-year-old girl who lives out west, a letter in which she tole me of the ill-health of her mother.

" 'She is getting better every day, but she would get better faster if the fool women that came in did not always tell her that she 'looks like a ghost,' or 'you look like a dead person.' Mrs. Notham came in yesterday and told her she was looking fine and that one could see that the walks in the open air were doing her a world of good. After Mrs. Notham left, mother sang and laughed and acted better than she had for weeks.'

"The thing that interested me in this letter was the unconscious grasping of the psychological truism that thoughts are things, and that negative thoughts produce negative effects while positive thoughts produce positive effects.

"This woman after a visit from the negative variety becomes more ill. But when a positive visitor that radiates health, good cheer, vim, vigor and energy comes around, she brightens up and laughs and sings.

"And so I ask: Do you go about helping folks toward the grave, or do you help them to more life? Do you radiate cheer, optimism, inspiration, hopefulness? Do you make folks long to see you, to talk with you, to watch your smile."

The thought back of this excerpt on health and happiness, applies with equal force to soul health. The wise parson knows it.

CLOTHING FOR THE NEEDY

Editor The Enderby Press:

Dear Sir: Would you kindly mention through your columns that as we are leaving shortly and have a lot of worn (some considerably and some not so much) men's, women' and children's clothing which we do not intend taking with us, we shall be glad to give it to anybody who really needs it and would care to have it, either through a hospital or similar authority, or on the application of any individual by letter stating what they most require. Knowing that many people who really need the things would feel some natural diffidence in asking for such things, will you kindly say that requests from individuals will be treated in strict confidence and none but the allotee will know who got the things.

The things will be sorted out and ready for distribution about June 5th

Yours truly, W. A. DOBSON.

"We have the making of the finest little town in the Valley at Enderby if everybody will just boost!" said a businessman the other day. He told the whole story. Forget the knocker

Maude De Vere;

OR, THE NEW MISTRESS AT LAUREL HILL.

"She'll never marry the doctor," said Maude, laughing, as she thought of an elegant woman leaving the world of fashion, to be mistress of that house.

Still the idea followed her, and when at last J. C. had bidden her adieu, and gone to his city home, she frequently found herself thinking of the beautiful Maude Glendower, whose name, it seemed to her, she had heard before, though when or where she could not tell. A strange interest was awakened in her bosom for the unknown lady, and she often wondered if they would ever meet. The doctor thought of her, too,—thought of her often, and thought of her long; and as his feelings toward her changer, so did his manner soften toward the dark-haired girl who bore her name, and who he began at last to fancy resembled her in more points than one. Maude was ceasing to be an object of perfect indifference to him. She was an ingaged young lady, and, as such, enttled to more respect than he was wont to pay her; and as the days wore on he began to have serious thoughts of making her his confidant and counsolor in a matter which he would never have entrusted to Nellie.

Accordingly, one afternoon, when he found her sitting upon the piazza, he said, first casting an anxious glance around, to make sure no one heard him: "Maude, I wish to see you alone for a few minutes."

Wonderingly, Maude followed him into the parlor, where her astonishment was in no wise diminished by his shutting the blinds, dropping the curtains, and locking the door! Maude began to tremble, and when he drew his chair close to her side, she started up, asking to what this was a preliminary.

"Sit down—sit down," he whispered; "I want to tell you something, which you must never mention in the world. You certainly have some sense, or I should not trust you. Maude, I am going—that is, I have every reason to believe—or rather, I should say perhaps—well, anyway, there is a prospect of my being married," and by the time this crisis was reached, the perspiration was dropping fast from his forehead and chin.

"Married!—to whom?" asked Maude.

"You are certain you'll never tell and that there's no one in the hall," said the doctor, going on tiptoe to the door, and assuring himself there was no one there. Then returning to his seat, he told her a strange story of a marvelously beautiful young girl, with Spanish fire in her lustrous eyes, and a satin gloss on her blue-black curls. Her name was Maude Glendower, and years ago she won his love, leading him on and on until at last he paid her the highest honor a man can pay a woman—he offered her his heart, his hand, his name. But she refused him—scornfully, contemptuously refused him, and he learned afterward that she had encouraged him for the sake of bringing another man to terms!—and that man, whose name the doctor never knew, was a college-student not yet twenty-one.

"I hated her then," said he, "hated this Maude Glendower, for her deception; but I could not forget her, and after Katy died I sought her again. She was the star of Saratoga, and no match for me. This I had sense enough to see, so I left her in her glory, and three years after married your departed mother. Maude Glendower has never married, and at the age of forty has come to her senses, and signified her willingness to become my wife,—or, that is to say, I have been informed by my sister that she probably would not refuse me a second time. Now, Maude Remington, I have told you this, because I must talk with some one, and as I before remarked, you are a girl of sense, and will keep the secret. It is a maxim of mine when anything is to be done, to do it, so I shall visit Miss Glendower immediately, and if I like her well enough shall marry her at once. Not while I am gone, of course, but very soon. I shall start for Troy one week from to-day, and I wish you would attend a little to my wardrobe; it's in a most lamentable condition. My shirts are all worn out; my coat is rusty, and last Sunday I discovered a hole in my pantaloons—"

"Dr. Kennedy," exclaimed Maude, interrupting him, "you surely do not intend to present yourself before the fastidious Miss Glendower, with those old shabby clothes. She would say No, sooner than she did before. You must have an entire new suit. You can afford it, too, for you have not had one since mother died."

Dr. Kennedy was never in a condition to be so easily coaxed as now. Maude Glendower had a place in his heart, which no other woman had ever held, and that very afternoon, the village merchant was astonished at the penurious doctor's inquiring the prices of the finest broadcloth in his store. It seemed a great deal of money to pay, but Maude Remington at his elbow, and Maude Glendower in his mind, conquered at last, and the new suit was bought, including vest, hat, boots and all. There is something in handsome clothes very satisfactory to most people, and the doctor, when arrayed in his, was conscious of a feeling of pride quite unusual to him. On one point, however, he was obstinate, "he would not spoil them by wearing them on the road, when he could just as well dress at the hotel."

So Maude, between whom and himself there was for the time being quite an amicable understanding, packed them nicely in his trunk, while Hannah and Louis looked on wondering what it could mean.

"The Millennial is comin', or else he's goin' a courtin'," said Hannah, and satisfied that she was right, she went back to the kitchen, while Louis, catching at once at her idea, began to cry, and laying his head on his sister's lap, begged of her to tell him if what Hannah had said were true.

To him, it seemed like trampling on the little grave beneath the willows, and it required all Maude's powers of persuasion to dry his tears, and soothe the pain which every child must feel, when first they know that the lost mother, whose memory they so fondly cherish, is to be succeeded by another.

CHAPTER XI.

She was a most magnificent looking woman, as she sat within her richly furnished room, on that warm September night, now gazing idly down the street, and again bending her head to catch the first sound of footsteps on the stairs. Personal preservation had been the great study of her life, and forty years had not dimmed the luster of her soft, black eyes, or woven one thread of silver among the luxuriant curls which clustered in such profusion around her face and neck. Gray hairs and Maude Glendower had nothing in common, and the fair, round cheek, the pearly teeth, the youthful bloom, and white, uncovered shoulders, seemed to indicate that time had made an exception in her favor, and dropped her from its wheel.

With a portion of her history the reader is already acquainted. Early orphaned, she was thrown upon the care of an old aunt who, proud of her wondrous beauty, spared no pains to make her what nature seemed to will that she should be, a coquette and a belle. At seventeen, we find her a schoolgirl in New Haven, where she turned the heads of all the college-boys, and then murmured because one, a dark-eyed youth of twenty, withheld from her the homage she claimed as her just due. In a fit of pique she besieged a staid, handsome young M. D., of twenty-seven who had just commenced to practise in the city, and who, proudly keeping himself aloof from the college-students, knew nothing of the youth she so much fancied. Perfectly intoxicated with her beauty, he offered her his hand, and was repulsed. Overwhelmed with disappointment and chagrin, he then left the city, and located himself at Laurel Hill, where now we find him the selfish, overbearing Dr. Kennedy.

But in after years Maude Glendower was punished for that act. The dark-haired student she so much loved was wedded to another, and with a festering wound within her heart, she plunged at once into the giddy world of fashion, slaying her victims by scores, and exulting as each new trophy of her power was laid at her feet. She had no heart, the people said, and with a mocking laugh she thought of the quiet grave 'mid the New England hills, where, one moonlight night, two weeks after that grave was made, she had wept such tears as were never wept by her again. Maude Glendower had loved, but loved in vain; and now, at the age of forty, she was unmarried and alone in the wide world. The aunt who had been to her a mother, had died a few months before, and as her annuity ceased with her death, Maude was almost wholly destitute. The limited means she possessed would only suffice to pay her board for a short time, and in this dilemna she thought of her old lover, and wondered if he could again be won. He was rich, she had always heard, and, as his wife, she could still enjoy the luxuries to which she had been accustomed. She knew his sister—they had met in the saloons of Saratoga, and though it hurt her pride to do it, she at last signified her willingness to be again addressed.

It was many weeks ere Dr. Kennedy conquered wholly his olden grudge, but conquered it he had, and she sat expecting him on the night when first we introduced her to our readers. He had arrived in Troy on the western train, and written her a note announcing his intention to visit her that evening. For this visit Maude Glendower had arrayed herself with care, wearing a rich silk dress of crimson and black—colors well adapted to her complexion.

"He saw me at twenty-five. He shall not think me greatly changed since then," she said, as over her bare neck and arms she threw an exquisitely wrought mantilla of lace.

The Glendower family had once been very wealthy, and the last daughter of the haughty race glittered with diamonds which had come to her from her great-grandmother, and had been but recently reset. And there she sat, beautiful Maude Glendower—the votary of fashion—the woman of the world—sat waiting for the cold, hard, overbearing man, who thought to make her his wife. A ring at the door, a heavy tread upon the winding stairs, and the lady rests her head upon her hand, so that her glossy curls fall over, but do not conceal her white, rounded arm, where the diamonds are shining.

"I could easily mistake him for my father," she thought, a gray-haired man stepped into the room where he paused an instant, bewildered with the glare of light and the display of pictures, mirrors, tapestry, rosewood and marble, which met his view.

"Mrs. Berkley, Maude Glendower's aunt, had stinted herself to gratify her niece's whims, and their surroundings had always been of the most expensive kind, so it was not strange that Dr. Kennedy, accustomed only to ingrain carpet, and muslin curtains, was dazzled by so much elegance. With a well feigned start the lady arose to her feet, and going to his side, offered him her hand, saying: "You are Dr. Kennedy, I am sure. I should have known you anywhere, for you are but little changed."

She meant to flatter his self-love, though thanks to Maude Remington for having insisted upon the broadcloth suit, he looked remarkably well.

WHY YOU ARE THIN; HOW TO GET FLESHY.

Discusses Causes of Thinness and Gives New Method of Increasing Weight and Rounding Out the Form.

Prescription Accomplishes Wonders

A treatment which anyone can prepare cheaply at home, has been found to increase the weight, improve the health, round out scrawny figures, improve the bust, brighten the eyes and put new color into the cheeks and lips of anyone who is too thin and bloodless. It puts flesh on those who have been always thin whether from disease or natural tendency, on those who by heavy eating and diet have in vain tried to increase; on those who feel well but can't get fat; and on those who have tried every known method in vain. It is a powerful aid to digestion, nutrition and assimilation. It assists the blood and nerves to distribute all over the body the flesh elements contained in food, and gives the thin person the same absorbing qualities possessed by the naturally fleshy.

Everybody is about the same, but certain elements and organs of blood and nerves are deficient and until this is corrected thin people will stay thin. The nutrition stays in the body after separation by the digestive functions instead of passing through unused, when this valuable treatment of blended medicines is used. Practically no one can remain thin who uses it, for it supplies the long felt need.

Mix a half pint bottle, three ounces of essence of pepsin, and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol. Shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before and after meals. Drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh before beginning.

SPRING REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

Raw, Damp Weather Starts the Pain, But the Trouble Lies in the Blood.

Changeable spring weather, often raw, cold and damp, is pretty sure to bring a time of misery to people who suffer from rheumatism. But it must be borne in mind that it is not the weather that causes rheumatism, the trouble is rooted in the blood—the damp, changeable weather merely starts the aches and often almost unbearable pains going. The trouble must be reached through the blood, and the poisonous rheumatic acids driven out. This is a medical truth every rheumatic sufferer should realize. Liniments, outward applications and so-called electric appliances, never did, and never can, cure rheumatism. The sufferer is only wasting valuable time and money with this sort of treatment, and all the time the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted—and harder to cure. There is just one sure way to cure rheumatism—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly on the impure, weak, acid-tainted blood. They purify and strengthen it and so root out the cause of rheumatism. Mr. John Finnamore, Marysville, N. B., says:—"I was laid up with rheumatic fever for a year, and for eight months of that time I could not go about. My blood had seemed to turn to water, and the pain I endured was at times almost unendurable. Notwithstanding I was under the doctor's care I was not regaining my strength and I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I took altogether nine boxes and they simply worked wonders in bringing back my lost strength. I still take the Pills occasionally as I am working in a saw mill where the work is pretty heavy."

Not only rheumatic sufferers, but all who have any trouble due to weak, watery blood, will find a cure through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It is because of their direct action on the blood that these Pills cure such troubles as anaemia, indigestion, general weakness, neuralgia, and the aches, pains and secret troubles women folk alone know. Give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial, and they will not disappoint you. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

USEFUL HINTS.

A basin of cold water placed in an oven will soon lower the temperature.

Milk will keep sweet longer in a shallow pan than in a pitcher.

A small quantity of green sage placed in the pantry will drive away old ants.

The hands should be dipped in cold water before making pastry.

To polish glass use aquaammonia on cloth or sponge and polish with soft paper.

To preserve flowers put a little saltpetre in the water.

Baking Powder Hint.—To open a can of baking powder, roll under the foot a moment. This breaks the paper and loosens the cover, so that it may be removed without effort.

Good gravy can be made without the use of meat. Brown flour in hot lard or butter, add milk or water, salt, pepper, and enough solid or fluid beef extract to give the desired flavor.

Dressing for fowl or meat is made better by adding one or more tablespoonfuls of fluid beef extract, taking the place of giblets that are usually added, and gives a much stronger flavor.

A WORD TO MOTHERS.

No matter whether baby is sick or well, Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the home always. They not only cure the minor troubles to which babyhood and childhood is subject, but will prevent them coming on if the child is given an occasional dose of the medicine. Mrs. Geo. T. Walker, Mascouche Rapids, Que., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation and other disorders of childhood and am so pleased with them that I always keep the Tablets in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BREAD.

Bread Baking.—No doubt many a woman has found her bread long in rising in the winter after working it on the bread board, which is usually cold. To avoid this, purchase a tin one, heat it before the fire, and you will never find your bread chilled. Instead of using a pan, which chills quickly, but a wide crock. Always heat it on the stove, place the bread in it, and cover with a piece of woolen blanket, with the result the bread is ready to bake much sooner than usual. A slate slab, such as is used for roofing, also makes an excellent bread board, and can often be got for nothing. It can be heated very hot and placed under a crock or pan of dough to assist slow bread in rising in winter.

Nut Bread.—Into four cupfuls of flour stir four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of sweet milk, one and a quarter cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of nuts, two well beaten eggs, vanilla flavoring; this is very stiff. Put into baking pan, let stand twenty minutes, spread a little butter over the top, and bake nearly an hour until done. Try with straw.

Corn Bread.—One cupful of cornmeal, one cupful of flour, one cupful of sweet milk, one egg, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder sifted with flour and meal. One tablespoonful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of melted lard, one teaspoonful of salt.

Fruit or Coffee Bread.—Two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful butter, four eggs, two-thirds cupful of Orleans molasses, and one level teaspoon soda beaten light, one cupful strong coffee, one cupful raisins, one cupful currants, one-half cupful citron, spices to taste, four cups flour, mixing ingredients in order named.

Nut Bread—Four cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of granulated sugar, one cupful of chopped English walnuts, one egg beaten light, two cupfuls of sweet milk. Mix all together, pour in greased pan, and raise onehalf hour. Bake one and one-half hours in a slow oven.

Breakfast Puffs.—Sift together one pint flour, one-half cupful of sugar, one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, teaspoonful of salt. Then add one egg and water enough to stir them up. Bake in gem tins in quick oven. Nice served with maple syrup.

CANDY.

Divinity Candy.—Two cupfuls granulated sugar, one-half cupful corn syrup, one-half cupful water. Cook till it threads a little, then pour in white of one egg well beaten; beat till creamy, then add one cupful walnuts chopped fine.

Toasted Marshmallows.—Toasted marshmallows are delicious served as follows: Place each marshmallow on a square cracker and before placing in the quick oven to toast put a tiny bit of butter on each marshmallow. This makes them brown quickly. Serve as soon as taken from the oven.

Pralenes.—Two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of maple syrup, one-half cupful of cream. Boil until a soft ball can be formed when dropped in cold water. Remove from the fire, adding a tablespoonful of butter, and beat until creamy, putting in a cup of chopped nut meats and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop into buttered tins and set outdoors to cool.

Peanut Brittle.—Two cupfuls of granulated sugar should be put into a granite saucepan and allowed to melt, being stirred constantly to avoid burning. When the sugar is all melted pour over peanuts which have been placed in the bottom of a shallow buttered pan.

Marshmallow Fudge.—Two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of milk, one-fourth cake of chocolate. Boil until a soft ball can be formed when dropped in cold water. Take from the fire, adding a tablespoonful of butter. Let the mixture stand about a minute and then beat until creamy, adding vanilla and marshmallows. Pour in buttered tins and cut in squares.

THE LAUNDRY.

To Whiten Tea Towels.—Save all the lemon hulls, drop them in the vessel in which you boil the towels, add one or two tablespoonfuls of borax, and it will whiten them wonderfully, and there will be a clean freshness about them that is desirable.

Iron Help.—When ironing rub soap on iron to keep from sticking to clothes.

Keeping Shape of Clothes.—To prevent clothes from getting out of shape in laundering, be sure to iron with the straight of the goods. This will pull them into shape and prevent stretching of the bias seams. Especially true of children's aprons that have a bias seam at the sides.

Washing Black Stockings.—Remember the length of time you take to wash white ones and rub accordingly. There is no garment worn requiring the care in cleansing as a black stocking, because you cannot see dirt is no reason there is none. Do not wash in hot water, but lukewarm. Would suggest five minutes to one pair. I have had new stockings ruined in the first wash. Once improperly and hurriedly washed ruins them forever. Linger long at the washboard. Nothing but good soap and washboard is a success.

Little Helps.—Soften Water—Heat but do not boil a boilerful of water; add two tablespoonfuls of lye. In a few minutes a scum arises; remove with a spoon, then add soap and wash same as for soft water. Perfectly harmless to clothes and a saver of soap.

TABLE DON'TS.

The following brief rules should be practiced three times a day:

Do not eat rapidly, and never eat with a knife.

Do not cut up food in small pieces on the plate.

Do not sup soup noisily nor from the end of the spoon.

Do not leave spoon in teacup.

Do not put food on the back of the fork.

Do not put potato skins, fruit parings, or any waste on the tablecloth.

Do not leave the table until meal is over.

Do not read if others are at the table with you.

Do not hesitate to take the last piece that may be offered to you. It is presumed that there is more.

Do not bend over the plate, dropping the head too low, thrusting the elbows out, or sitting with the back turned toward the person in the next chair.

Do not grasp the blade of the knife; hold it by the handle.

Do not pour tea or coffee into a saucer to cool, nor drink from a saucer.

Do not tip the plate to obtain the last remnant of the soup.

Do not bite mouthfuls from bread; always break it.

Do not fasten a napkin at the neck nor tuck in into a buttonhole; lay it in the lap.

Do not play with fork or spoon, or any other article.

Do not take large mouthfuls nor eat too heartily; health demands that you eat slowly. Good manners and health go hand in hand.

Family Cough Syrup

Cures Any Cough in Five Hours.

NEW PRESCRIPTION HERE.

Here is given the most effective cough prescription known to the medical world. It is a mild laxative, too, and this is what a body needs when suffering with cough and cold on the lungs. A cough or cold indicates poisons in the system, causing inflammation and congestion. Nearly all cough syrups relieve, but make the trouble worse by their constipating effects. This prescription not only relieves quickly, but it cures any cough that is curable. Get one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Mix in a bottle. Take for acute cough or bronchitis twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less according to age. A few hours' treatment will cure and heal the throat and lungs of all but consumptives. Cut this out and give it to some friend who may need it to be saved from an early death by consumption.

NA-DRU-CO

Formulae Have Been Well Tried Out

Though the NA-DRU-CO line of Medicinal and Toilet Preparations have been on sale for a few months only, don't think for minute that in buying NA-DRU-CO goods you are experimenting with new or untried preparations.

Their Origin

The twenty-one wholesale drug firms now united in the "National" had all of them lengthy careers, some for fifty to one hundred years, prior to the union. Each firm had acquired or developed a number of valuable formulæ for medicinal and toilet preparations, all of which became the property of the "National".

Since the union our expert chemists have carefully gone over these formulæ and selected the best for the NA-DRU-CO line. Every formula has been carefully studied by these experts, improved if possible, and then thoroughly tested again, in actual use, before we consider it good enough to bear the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

An Example

A good example of what we mean is NA-DRU-CO Nervozone for Brain Fag or nervous break-down. The formula was pronounced the most scientific combination of nerve medicines, but this was enough for us; we had it tried out with a dozen different kind of Brain workers — School Teachers, Lawyers, Bookkeepers—as well as Society leaders and home workers, and everywhere the result was so good that we adopted it as one of the best of the NA-DRU-CO line.

There are therefore no experiments among NA-DRU-CO preparations. We have invested altogether too much time, work and money in the NA-DRU-CO line to take any chances of discrediting it with preparations that might not prove satisfactory. We make absolutely certain that each preparation is satisfactory before we endorse it with the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

Ask your physician or your druggist about the firm behind NA-DRU-CO preparations and about the NA-DRU-CO line. They can tell you, for we will furnish them, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article.

"Money Back"

If by any chance you should not be entirely satisfied with any NA-DRU-CO article you try, return the unused portion to the druggist from whom you bought it and he will refund your money—willingly, too, because we return to him every cent he gives back to you.

If your druggist should not have the particular NA-DRU-CO article you ask for in stock he can get it for you within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

$ Growing $ Hardwood Timber

$ Every reader knows the increasing scarcity of Hardwood Timber and its consequent increase in value in the near future.

$ Hardwood to-day is as absolutely necessary in the manufactures, as coal iron and steel. It simply must be had or the nations greatest industries are at stake.

$$ There are dollars wrapped up in every stick of Hardwood that can be grown to 10 inches or over in diameter—anytime—anywhere—but when it can be grown to this size in 10 years and grown too right on the main lines of railway and within easy reach of the two greatest manufacturing cities on the Western coast, there are still greater values obtainable.

$$ Would you invest, say $500, if we could prove to you by a series of absolutely correct records of Eucalyptus Timber growths? 1st, That these trees will grow to over 10 inches in diameter in 10 years and are worth from $3 to $5 each, 2nd, that the wood is as hard and durable as our Canadian Oak or Hickory, and 3rd, that thousands of dollars are being made by growing this Timber, and 4th, that you are guaranteed three times your original investment at the end of ten years. Would you? Could you? Then write at once to W. E. Dyer, 114 King West, Toronto.

COMET IN EVENING SKY

The long-looked-for, much-written-about, and generally-abused Halley's comet, has at last appeared in the western sky, and has been seen low in the west each evening since the 20th. It will be disappointing to most people. The astronomers have pointed to the coming of this migratory heavenly body as something that would startle the world. Dust storms were promised, meteoric showers and amazing heavenly illuminations were predicted, and then we were to be gently swished by the comet's tail and bathed in a strange gas. But all these things have come and gone without anybody seeing, feeling or hearing them, and now we see, faintly but none the less surely, the fleeing comet, growing fainter and fainter each night, and going farther and farther away, to return again, maybe, in 73 years. It is not much to look at, even if it has furnished pages and pages of matter for the newspapers and magazines. Just a faint nebular glow in the strong moonlight, with no tail distinguishable.

Henry Norris Russell, Ph. D., in the Scientific American, says "the average man will find by far his best opportunity to see the comet, during the last ten days in May. At first its apparent motion among the stars is very rapid, but later, as it recedes from us, it seems to stand almost still in the sky. Its distance from the earth is in round numbers 14 million miles on the 20th, 17 million on the 22nd, 28 million on the 26th, and 45 million on the 31st, so that it will appear to shrink and grow visibly fainter from night to night.

"From present indications it is probable that at first (on the 20th and 21st) the comet will be as bright as the stars surrounding it, and visible at a glance. Toward the end of the month, while the comet each night will appear higher in the horizon, it will be much fainter."

For the first few nights the light of the moon will lessen the appearance of the comet, but later, when the moon is out of the way, the head and tail may be seen, though the comet will be so much farther off that, on the whole, it will hardly be so fine a sight.

On the 18th, the comet passed squarely across the face of the sun. Science hoped to learn much from observations taken on that occasion. "Transits of comets across the sun are very rare," says Mr. Russell. "The most remarkable previous instance is that of the great comet of 1882, which, though so bright that it could be seen close to the sun in broad daylight with the naked eye, vanished completely when in front of the sun's disk, showing that it was practically perfectly transparent."

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK IN B.C.

Few people realize the great opportunities existing in B. C. for the successful agriculturist. Here opportunities are simply unlimited. During recent years so much attention has been paid to the wheat growing opportunities of the three prairie provinces, that comparatively little attention has been paid to the agricultural opportunities of British Columbia. "The fact that most of the land on the prairie does not require to be cleared," says a writer in Successful Poultryman, "and that where there is timber, it is mostly of a light nature, and also that about 90 per cent. of the land in the Pacific province is more or less heavily timbered, is, to a large degree responsible for this condition. But a close study of the situation reveals the fact that British Columbia possesses other advantages, which, in some degree at least, offset the advantages enjoyed by Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. A great many years will flit by before she is able to produce enough agricultural products to supply her home market—a market that is constantly growing and expanding—in some lines by leaps and bounds.

Putting it in round figures, seven million dollars a year is annually sent out of the province for agricultural products. Over two million dollars a year is sent out for poultry and eggs alone. Considerably more than a million is sent out for butter. Condensed milk to the value of two hundred thousand dollars is annually imported. Bacon, hams and cured meats from the outside are annually consumed to the extent of over three hundred thousand dollars. Lard comes along at close to the two hundred thousand dollar mark. And so it continues, all along the line, until the startling total of seven million dollars is reached.

An interesting thing about this large annual importation of agricultural products is that only five million dollars' worth is imported from the other provinces in Canada. The balance is imported from other countries. So that while there is room for tremendous development before British Columbia will be able to produce what she consumes, there is still several million dollars of a market for the other provinces to supply before the production in the province is increased at all.

MANY APPLICATIONS

Here's a handshake through the comet's tail to the Armstrong Advertiser. With its last issue it entered upon its ninth year.

King Edward VII. Laid to Rest in Royal Chapel of St. George

King Edward VII. has been laid to rest with his fathers. With every pageantry of grief, amid mourning thousands, and surrounded by all the outward symbols of kingly power, the body of the dead monarch was borne through the streets of London last Friday, May 20th, and conveyed to Windsor, where it was laid to rest in the royal chapel of St. George.

The night before the funeral was close and dull, and the crowds which long ere dawn broke took up positions in the streets where they could view the procession were apprehensive of a downpour of rain. Their apprehensions were well-grounded, for a thunderstorm broke soon after midnight and for a brief period rain fell heavily. Then the sky cleared of its clouds and when morning broke every prospect indicated a day of bright sunshine for the sad pageant. All through the night the sound of hammers was heard everywhere, hundreds of workingmen having been engaged putting the finishing touches to the mourning decorations along the route and erecting stands for sightseers to view the royal cortege as it passed.

The casket was placed on a gun-carriage and covered with the Royal Standard and the insignia of the rank held by the King in the British army. Following the coffin came the royal mourners, King George, the Queen, the Queen Mother, the Kaiser Wilhelm, and the various reigning sovereign, the princes, nobility and distinguished commoners of the realm as well as the over-sea representatives from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa.

The pageant was one of solemn grandeur and as it passed between the masses of people crowding every point of vantage, the scene was impressive in the highest degree. The booming of guns and the tolling of bells accompanied the movement of the procession, while the bands in turn played "The Dead March from Saul," and Chopin's "March Funebre."

The red-coated soldiers standing with rifles reversed and colors dipped in token of sorrow, made a bright foreground for the sombre-garbed people packed closely behind them. So great was the crush at some points that many broken limbs and other injuries were received. Hundreds of persons fainted, especially women who had been standing for hours waiting.

ENDERBY CHURCH SERVICES

Friday, May 20th, was fittingly observed by the people of Enderby. It was not necessary for more than the formal proclamation by the Governor General making the day a legal holiday and a day of mourning. It was in the hearts of all people to respect the day and honor the King.

From early morning till late at night there was the quiet, inostentatious mourning of a loyal people at the going of a beloved sovereign.

The services in the churches at 3 o'clock in the afternoon were well attended and sincerely participated in. The church decorations were most impressive. Over the altar in the St. George's church, a British flag was tied with crepe, and the chancel rail, pulpit and choir stands were draped in black, and all the book marks were the Royal purple. The cut flowers used were entirely white, entwined with green foliage. It all was so simple, and the harmony so complete that it added much to the impressiveness of the service. Appropriate Memorial Service programs were also provided, which added still more to the solemnity of the occasion, and made it possible for all to enter deeply into the spirit of the service.

Mr. Graham Rosoman read the lesson most impressively, and the address by Rev. J. Leech-Porter was sincerely spoken and heart-felt. The church was filled to the doors, and the singing by the congregation and choir spoke unmistakeable the deep feeling which bottomed the exercises, and was impressed upon the hearts of all.

The decorations in the Presbyterian church were rich, simple and impressive. The union jack hung over the choir loft draped in black, and the choir railing and pulpit were hidden behind deep drapery, artistically tied with royal purple ribbon. Purple lilacs rested in the folds of the black crepe. The harmony was perfect.

Rev. Mr. Campbell spoke most earnestly of the great loss to the empire by the death of King Edward, and told most forcefully of the simple manliness of the King, whose whole life as King was spent in the service of his people; who gave up all that men might hold selfishly dear that he might know his simple duty and do it. Mr. Campbell's words were most impressive in their simplicity, and met a hearty response in the hearts of his hearers. The selection by the choir, and the solo by Mrs. Bell were given with much feeling and were most impressive.

This was a union service, Rev. Mr. Gifford, of the Methodist church, being on the platform with Rev. Mr. Campbell. The church was crowded.

TREES AS DYNAMOS.

They Produce Electricity Says a French Engineer.

Novel experiments showing that electric currents are produced by trees, soil, and water have been carried out by a French engineer, M. Commelin, says The London Daily Mail.

By connecting a plate of copper attached to a tree, and another plate buried in the earth, to a delicate galvanometer--an instrument which records minute currents of electricity--he has observed that an electric current of definite amount passes through it. With two or three trees connected he obtained twice or three times the amount of current, the quantity being proportional to the number of trees.

Electroplating also appears to be possible by means of electricity entirely obtained from the soil. M. Commelin placed two copper plates in the earth about a yard apart, and with the current which passed between them he was able, in an electroplating tank, to deposit 25 milligrams of copper (about one-third of a grain) in 408 hours. Doubtless, therefore, with much larger plates it would be possible to obtain more powerful currents, which might eventually be put to some practical use.

Extraordinary results were observed from the effects of daylight. It was found that if the recording instrument were connected, one end to the soil near a river and the other to the water in the river, a much greater current was generated than in the other cases, but while the instrument recorded 40 degrees at 11 o'clock in the morning, only 25 degrees were recorded in the afternoon.

A YEAR'S RECORD BUSINESS.

Splendid Showing of The Excelsior Life Insurance Company.

Nearly all the Canadian Life Insurance companies have in the past few years shown remarkable growth. The confidence of the people of Canada in their own institutions has been well merited. The managements of the most successful companies have been especially praiseworthy in their efforts to keep down expenses while enlarging their field of operations, adding to their assets and increasing their dividends to policy holders. Canadians have not been slow to recognize the excellent opportunities for safe and profitable investment afforded by these well-managed and thoroughly-supervised financial institutions. The security offered by the regular Canadian companies is second to none. In practically no other line of financial activity can it be said that any company has ever entered into liquidation or failed to meet its obligations in full.

The Excelsior Life Insurance Company has from the first held a position of prominence in those factors which are of essential importance to policy holders. Economy of management, productiveness and security of investments and favorable mortality experience have been the watchwords of its management.

The Mortality Experience of the Excelsior Life is remarkable. The average mortality experience per 1,000 lives at risk for 10 years of all active Canadian companies is slightly over ten and a half per cent. The average of 90 prominent American companies for 1907 was exactly twelve per cent. The Excelsior's average for an entire period of nineteen years is only about four per cent.; and the year 1909 shows the lowest percentage in mortality experience of any year since the company began operations. The experience of the Excelsior in this regard is certainly noteworthy. The importance of a low mortality ratio cannot be overestimated. It is of vastly greater significance to the policy holder than even a low expense ratio.

That Economy of Management has always been regarded in its true importance in the conduct of the affairs of the Excelsior is attested by the fact that Counsellor Tilley made the following reference to this company before the Royal Commission: "I have gone over the salaries; I do not think there is anything to be commented upon except that it has been the effort of the company to keep down expenses."

In some respects, however, the most interesting feature in the results of the Excelsior's business is the productiveness of its investments. During the past five years the average rate of interest earned by all the companies operating in Canada was a shade under five per cent. The average earnings of British Companies from the same source was four and a fifth per cent., while American companies averaged slightly better than the English. The Excelsior Life, however, earned during the same period the remarkable sum of more than seven per cent. on its investments. In 1905 its interest earnings were the highest of any company in Canada and for many years it has not ranked below second place. The far reaching effect of such earnings is too apparent for further comment.

In the year which has just closed the Excelsior increased its Cash Income thirteen per cent.; decreased its Expense and Death Claims Ratio nine per cent.; increased its Assets sixteen per cent.; increased its Government Reserve twenty-three per cent.; decreased its Liabilities thirty-seven per cent., added to its Net Surplus on Policy Holders' Account forty-three per cent. and more than doubled its Net Unalloted Surplus. The total assets for the security of policy holders now stand at $140.00 for every $100.00 of Liability, a most unassailable position all through.

The management of the Excelsior has shown a most praiseworthy conservatism in the selection of new business and in every essential of progressiveness, consistent with the utmost safety. It has given a most remarkable and satisfactory account of itself in the conduct of the company's affairs.

SPRING SKIN TROUBLES.

Are Cured by Zam-Buk.

At this season, scores of people—girls and young women especially—find their faces disfigured by pimples, dark spots, eruptions, etc. The skin needs attention.

Just think what it has gone through! You have been out in rain and sleet and snow. You have been at one moment perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood to "cool off." You have spent hours of the day indoors at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin—except your face—and gone out into a temperature away below zero!

Don't forget that the skin has to do work just as any other organ of the body, and if you overwork it, it gives out. Zam-Buk is the remedy. Smear it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the sallow patches, at night, and notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard, scurvy-like patches are removed. Better color results. The cells of the skin become transparent, and the delicate bloom of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease.

Zam-Buk also cures eczema, ulcers, chaps, ringworm, cuts, burns, bruises, children's rashes, piles, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

THE MEN THAT GET ON.

Those Not Afraid; Courage Must be Mixed With Brains.

"Some men," said a business manager, "are afraid of responsibility, some men welcome it; either sort of man may be good and useful or bad and harmful, according to his special development.

"There are timid men who need somebody always to lean upon, but who under guidance are faithful and effective workers; and then there are men afraid of responsibility who are always irresolute and ineffective, who never can be prodded into anything but the dullest of dull routine work, and who must always stay down close to the ground, men of small account.

"Then among men not afraid to take responsibility you find some who are too cocksure about it, ready to settle any question that comes up to them right off the bat, big or little, going ahead jauntily, slapdash; not a good sort of man this to have at a responsible post.

"Also you have the man not afraid who thrives on responsibility and enjoys the increase of power, but who is cool and clear headed, a man who knows instinctively and logically what is the right thing to do and who then fearlessly goes ahead and does it, a man of brains and courage. A rare combination this, and the man that possesses it gets far.

"For courage is the manly attribute that men most admire; we'd all dearly love to be courageous, to dare; and the man of courage plus brains, the man not afraid to take the responsibility and who has also the downright ability to make good, we cotton to, and him most of us are willing to follow and obey. He can have what he wants in this world, and if he should want it he can have the biggest pair of wings in the world to come.

"If you expect to get anywhere don't be afraid to take the responsibility! But really to get on you want to mix your courage with brains."

CHINA TO REORGANIZE NAVY.

China is planning to spend seven years in reorganizing its navy. The most striking items in its programme will be carried out from 1911 to 1916, when the government will have built 8 first-class battleships, 20 cruisers, 10 gunboats and three flotillas of torpedo boats. China intends to proceed immediately to develop naval bases, expand the naval schools and enlarge the dockyards. She also plans the creation of an admiralty board and the establishment of a new naval academy and to recruit a force of marines.

EUCALYPTUS.

A Rapid Growing Hardwood—Native of Australia, But Being Propogated Very Satisfactorily in California.

The rapid development of the Eucalyptus growing industry in California has been attracting much attention of both the State and Federal Forestry officials, and more recently this interest has spread to the point where many capitalists are investing very largely.

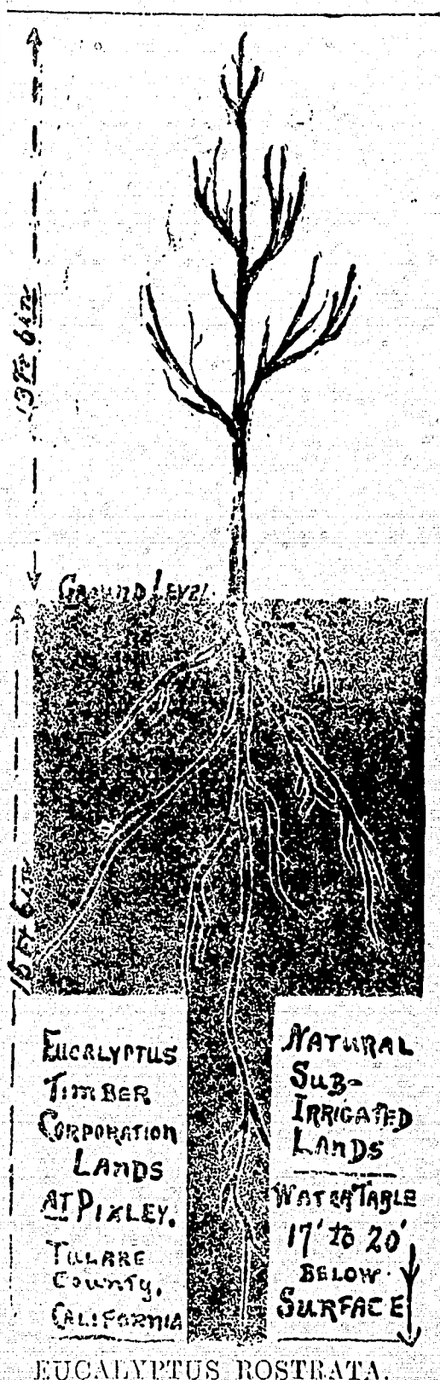
With the one-time almost unlimited forests of native hardwoods, America looked upon the Eucalyptus simply as a supply for certain oils for Medicinal purposes, and but little attention was given to the wonderful growth and the intense hardness of many species of Eucalypts. Recent years, however, have proven the fact that Eucalyptus will grow in California as readily as in its own native country of Australia, and the following quotation from "A Handbook for Eucalyptus Planters," issued by the California State Board of Forestry confirms this statement.

Page (33) Under favorable conditions trees in seeding plantations have reached a maximum development of 5 inches in diameter and 67 feet in height in four years. This represents an average of 17 feet height growth per year, though a growth of 10 to 15 feet in height yearly is the general average. . . . the most rapid seedling growth noted was made by a tree which in nine years reached a height of 125 feet and a diameter of 36 inches.

The Eucalyptus is a remarkable tree—remarkable from almost every standpoint as compared with the native American timber trees. It is an evergreen, but a hardwood. It is one of the hardest of hardwoods, but is a more rapid grower than any of our native softwoods. As a seedling it requires about as much care as a field of corn, and it grows almost as fast, but after two or three years it requires very little attention, and yet will continue its remarkable growth for many years. Even when cut down there is a second growth (like our Canadian chestnut trees), more rapid than the first.

The secret of this rapid growth is due very largely to the tap-root system that nature seems to have worked out to perfection in this species of her many wonderful children. Almost immediately after transplanting into an open field the seedlings develop what is called a tap-root. That is the main central root starts in a downward course and simply keeps on growing until it finds a supply of water.

The following illustration for which we are indebted to Mr. W. E. Dyer, Canadian Representative of the Eucalyptus Timber Corporation of Los Angeles, shows what nature and scientific work will produce in the short space of time stated.



EUCALYPTUS ROSTRATA.

Age, 15½ months; height, 13½ feet; circumference, 13¾ inch at base; tap root, 16½ feet below surface. Planted April 20, 1908. Dug up August 5, 1909.

This is not one of the fastest growing Eucalypts, but is one of the hardest and most valuable for timber products. Regarding this particular species the United States Dep't of Agriculture, Bulletin No. 35, may be quoted:

(Page 77) The E. rostrata is a timber that is very valuable for many purposes. It is very hard and strong—almost as hard as iron, when thoroughly dried. The great usefulness of this timber is due principally to its durability, both under ground and in water.

Baron Von Mueller says that well matured trees of this species, cut at the season when the circulation of sap is least active, and carefully placed for drying, have proved one of the most durable of any timbers of the whole globe.

A gentleman travelling stopped at the house of a pious old woman, and, observing her fondness for a pet dog, ventured to ask the name of the animal. The good woman answered by saying that she called him "Moreover." "Is not that a strange name?" inquired the gentleman. "Yes," said the pious lady; "but I thought it must be a good one as I found it in the Bible." "Found it in the Bible!" quoted the gentleman. "Pray, in what part of the Bible did you find it?" The old lady took down her Bible with the utmost reverence, and, turning to the text, read as follows: "Moreover, the dog came and licked his sores."

CURED OF LAME BACK WHEN 84.

Mr. Samuel Martin, of Strathroy, Ont., passed twenty years of his life in misery, suffering tortures from lame back. He tried nearly all advertised remedies and household recipes, but received no benefit from any of them.

Some months ago, seeing Gin Pills advertised, Mr. Martin purchased a box. The relief which Mr. Martin experienced after he had taken one box, was so great that he knew he had found the right remedy at last. He used two more boxes and is now completely cured.

So effective is their action that many cures can certainly be traced to their use where other pills have proved ineffective.

PRO BONO PUBLICO

(Correspondents will please be brief and avoid personalities. The Editor reserves the right to reject any correspondence or part of correspondence that does not bear on the question at issue, or treats the subject in a personal interest rather than in the interest of the public. Be brief.

Vancouver, May 17.

Editor The Enderby Press:

Dear Sir: Having read Mr. Dobson's article and your comments on my way of doing business, in your issue of March 29th, I will now, with your permission, take a little time to answer it.

In the first place I do not presume to say that my primitive methods of conducting my business are the best in the world; but, so far, I have been able to pay 100 cents on the dollar, and, as Lowery says, 'have never been raided by the sheriff.'

In our school days we read in the old second reader of the man, boy and beast who started for market and took everybody's advice, with the result that the man lost the beast.

While I have been very grateful for all the gratuitous advice I have had thrown at me in the past 20 years in B. C., I have had to sift out considerable chaff from it to get the grain. The largest and most reliable firm of nurserymen in the United States (Stoars & Harrison) dispose of 1200 acres of nursery stock each season through catalogues alone. How about the departmental stores of Canada and the United States? They get the cream of the trade through catalogues only. They simply cater to the intelligent reading class who have the money to pay for their goods and who make it go as far as they can. Any businessman must understand, surely, that these perregrinating salesmen are not travelling around the country for their health, and those that purchase from them are paying dearly for the honor of having them call and doing them the favor of accepting their order. I will venture to say that nine out of every ten people who give their orders to an agent who calls at their door, are those who do not subscribe to or read any horticultural or agricultural paper, nor even the local paper, though they may possibly send a dollar back cast for some story paper.

My first experience with agents selling stock for me was some 15 or 20 years ago, when I was younger in the business. They worked in double harness. One played the sanctimonious act, the other carried a bottle of whiskey. Between them they worked a large and varied clientele—and incidentally me, to the tune of several hundred dollars. After that I concluded to conduct my own business, even if my doing so did not meet with the approval of all other people

Thanking you and my customers in your vicinity for generous support, I remain, Truly yours,
M. J. HENRY.

DEVELOPING THE INDUSTRY

We should like to know what is the matter with the secretaries of the various Associations. We have never had a line from Mr. J. Isherwood, secretary of the Nanaimo Poultry Association; Mr. Wm. Maxwell, secretary of the Ashcroft P. A.; Mr. Geo. S. Robinson, secretary of the Northern Okanagan P. A.; and Mr. J. J. Devine, secretary of the Revelstoke P. A. Do these poultry fanciers take no interest whatever in poultry matters? Do their respective associations not wish them to be concerned in the development of the industry in the Province? Why do local poultry associations exist if they are apparently accomplishing nothing? We have had several communications from Mr. W. H. Dinsmore, secretary of the Vancouver Association, and are in touch with Mr. W. E. Nachtrieb, secretary of the Victoria Association. The Vancouver and Victoria Associations are in excellent standing, but of the others we know not. Monthly reports from ALL of the secretaries would be very interesting to all our readers. We sincerely hope that these gentlemen will realize their responsibility in the building up of a progressive industry.—Successful Poultryman.

JESSIE MACLACHLAN HERE

Jessie Maclachlan, the world-famed Scotch singer, assisted by Barney Nelson, Craighall Sherry and Robert Buchanan, gave a concert in K. of P. Hall last Thursday evening. Unfortunately the audience was very small—the smallest Miss Maclachlan ever sang before—but what it lacked in numbers it made up in appreciation.

Never have we heard in Enderby so sweet a singer as Miss Maclachlan; and never will be heard anywhere a singer of Scotch songs as inspiring as Jessie Maclachlan. She fairly moves the heart a step or two higher and makes the hair tingle at the roots when she gives those grand old patriotic songs of the Heatherland. It is regrettable that so few heard her. It will be many a long day before we shall hear anything so good again, unless Miss Maclachlan and her talented company of entertainers come back to Enderby.

Miss Maclachlan's conception of Loch Lomond, and her recital of the legend of the song, gave her audience a higher conception of the piece than is generally felt. Her Gaelic songs were most pleasing, though but few in the audience could appreciate them to the full. But her "March of the Cameron Men," and "Blue Bonnets Over the Border" captivated all.

Mr. Sherry is a humorist of the highest type. He wins a warm spot in the heart of all the moment he walks upon the stage. If Sherry can not make an audience laugh, it ought to be buried. He was good in everything he gave, but his best selection was his presentation of 'The Deputation to the Scotch Minister.''.

Barnaby Nelson is a tenor robusto of unusual merit; his voice powerful, sweet and clear, and his enunciation perfect. In the concluding duet with Miss Maclachlan, he was heard to great advantage.

Robert Buchanan, solo pianist and conductor, is a superb accompanist, and the selection of Scotch airs of his own composition pleased everybody in the hall.

One of the wisest moves the city Council has made is the purchase of an Ever Ready Chemical Fire Engine. These engines have been tested for several years. They have stood the severest try-outs, and even the small one the Council is investing in will no doubt be the means of saving Enderby many a disastrous fire.

Splendid! Well worth the money! Is the universal verdict of every house-keeper who buys Campbell's Varnish Stain for staining and Varnishing Floors, Woodwork, Chairs, etc. Easily applied. Dries hard. Wears well. A. Fulton sells it.

Parisian Sage Cures Dandruff

If it Don't A. Reeves will Give You Your Money Back

Yes, Parisian Sage, the most invigorating hair restorer, cures dandruff and grows hair. The women of Canada, who have luxuriant hair, know it does, and that is why thousands of attractive women throughout the land are regularly using it.

For years this most marvelous grower of lustrous and beautiful hair was confined to the elite of Europe and New York City, but about two years ago it was given to a select list of druggists, and to-day can be obtained in any city or town in America where society women of refinement dwell.

Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair tonic in the world. It makes the hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant in a few days. It is perfumed most daintily and is not sticky or greasy. It stops falling hair, cures dandruff and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

A. Reeves sells it for 50 cents a large bottle, and guarantees it, or direct, all charges prepaid, by Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg Co., Fort Erie, Ont.
