THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

VOLUME 24 — NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1883. — NUMBER 37

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, Nov. 7, 1883.

Our Governor-General.

The Marquis of Lorne and his royal wife have left Canada for their island home. When it was known that the imperial government had appointed the queen's son-in-law governor-general of Canada, there were serious doubts in many minds respecting the propriety of the selection. The people of Canada are thoroughly loyal to the mother queen, but they have too keen a sense of their own freedom and independence to permit themselves to be made the lackeys of royalty. It was feared that the royal princess, the daughter of a very dignified queen, would bring to this new land customs and ideas repugnant to our unpretentious etiquette. It was hinted that the marquis had had no experience as an administrator, and that his appointment had been made not on the ground of personal fitness but because he had married the queen's daughter. It was rumored that a royal court would be established at Ottawa, and that none who lacked the requisite ancestors or the proper costume would be allowed to enter the royal presence. The governor and the princess have come and gone, and it is gratifying to know none of these calamities have happened during the period of their administration. It may be true that embarrassments have arisen with respect to matters of etiquette. Rumors of this kind have frequently found their way into a portion of the press, and some things have been said which, if true, do not reflect credit upon the good taste of the Princess Louise. But these things may not be true. Indeed, they are probably false, and the result of the failure of shoddy aristocrats to thrust themselves into places where they did not belong. In the absence of all proof to the contrary we prefer to believe that the princess conducted herself and her household with the utmost propriety during her residence in Canada. And this is saying a great deal. The court of Great Britain is a poor school in which to educate girls for Canadian society. We are not without etiquette in this country. Our manners are simple and our inclinations modest, but Canadians are by no means destitute of good breeding. But of court manners we fortunately know little. This country is not old enough or rich enough to strut about with royal airs; and if it were both old and rich we are not sure that it would become better, or happier, or more prosperous by the possession of an etiquette more elaborate and costly than that which now prevails. The advent of a princess has not perceptibly disturbed our customs. So far as we know the Marquis of Lorne and his royal wife have assumed no airs of superiority. They have been dignified, but courteous and kind. But what is of more consequence to us as a nation, the governor has manifested always an earnest desire to promote the welfare of the country he was sent to govern. And his efforts in this direction have been both intelligent and successful. By his tongue and his pen he has accomplished a great deal for Canada. He has invariably spoken well of us and our country, and his utterances have carried with them the weight of honest conviction. This country has grown vastly in favor abroad during the administrations of Lord Dufferin and Lord Lorne, and the result is shown in the improvement of our public credit and the increase in immigration. It may be said with perfect justice that the Marquis of Lorne has discharged with singular wisdom and tact the duties of the highest responsible office he has held for the past five years, and has been ably supported by his amiable wife. The Marquis of Landsdowne is now Governor-General of Canada. He enters upon his office under most favorable circumstances. Canada has made vast strides in wealth and progress during the past ten years, and there is every probability that she will continue to advance. We hope the new governor will bring to her aid whatever ability he possesses, and that when his term of office expires he may carry away the same cordial good will that has marked the departure of his illustrious predecessor.

Gigantic Railroad Scheme.

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Articles of incorporation of the U. S. Central Railway with a capital of $75,000,000 was filed to-day in Denver, Col. The head business offices will be in this city. The road will be, when completed, said Chief Engineer Col. Lyman Bridges, to an associated press representative, the most important event to the people of California since the Central Pacific was opened. Among the shareholders are W. W. Walker, President of the St. Louis and Hanibal Railroad; John Sharp, President of the Utah Central; Richard King, of the National Bank of Commerce, N. Y.; Jno. L. Deveredge ex-Governor of Illinois; John C. Short, President of the American Insurance Co., N. Y.; D. E. Garrison and Alva Mansur, of St. Louis; E. Randall and A. Cooper, of Denver; R. P. McDonald, Jr., president of the Pacific Bank; A. L. Bancroft, M. D. Kelly, Charles Kohler, A. D. Sharon of San Francisco, and other prominent business men and capitalists of this coast and the East. The company is a consolidation of the San Francisco & Ocean Shore, California Central & Denver, Hot Springs & Pacific Railroad Companies. The road will be standard gauge, and will run from San Francisco to Denver, via Santa Cruz, crossing the Southern Pacific at Minturn, through the foothills of Fresno and Mariposa to the Big Trees and the Yosemite, over the Sierras at the headwaters of the San Joaquin River, tapping the eastern slope at Candelaria, Belleville, Benton, Aurora and other mining camps, over the Columbus Borax Meadows to Crystal Springs, Nevada. From there a branch line will be run south to a junction with the Atlantic and Pacific. Continuing on from Crystal Springs the main line will go to Iron Springs, Utah, from where a second branch will be built to Milford, the southern terminus of the Utah Central, making connection with the Union Pacific. From Milford the road runs in an easterly direction via Hall's Ferry and Morrison to Denver. It is already located 800 miles east from San Francisco, and 200 miles west from Denver and will, when completed, be the shortest and over the easiest grades between the two cities. The terminus in this city will be on the north beach; and should there be nothing to prevent an entrance to this city, it is expected that this road will prove a formidable competitor to the Central Pacific. If the City authorities refuse to give the company a franchise, they are prepared to purchase a right of way, the determination being to avoid if possible all necessity of crossing the bay. It is proposed to commence work at both ends and push on the construction as rapidly as men and money can do it.

What Infidelity Does Not Do.

The following extract from the St. Louis Christian Advocate is an able answer to Ingersollism, and the arguments of his infidel followers:—"Has infidelity ever raised a man or woman from the haunts of vice, and made his or her life clean? Has it ever taken a drunkard from the gutter, the gambler from his cards, the fallen from a life of shame? Has it ever found a man coarse and brutal in character and life, and made him a kind husband and faithful father? Has it ever gone out into the heathen lands, and found a people ignorant and barbarious, delighting in rapine and murder, and by the power of its teachings lift them out of their degradation until they adopted the customs of civilized nations? Is there in all the history of infidelity a story of its moral triumphs that will match the regeneration of the Fiji Islands under the labors of the Wesleyan missionaries? Has it added anything to the sum of human happiness? Does it bring one ray of comfort into the chamber of death, filling the soul of the dying with peace, and the hearts of weeping friends with hope? The religion of Jesus Christ has done all these things. The tree is known by its fruits."

The United States Richer than Great Britain. — Statisticians have pronounced the United States to be not only potentially, but actually, richer than the United Kingdom. Counting the houses, furniture, manufactures, railways, shipping, bullion, lands, cattle, crops, investments and roads, it is estimated that there is a grand total in the United States of $49,770,000,000. Great Britain is credited with something less than $40,000,000,000, or nearly $10,000,000,000 less than the United States. The wealth per inhabitant in Great Britain is estimated at $160, and in the United States at $995. With regard to the remuneration of labor, assuming the produce of labor to be 100, in Great Britain 56 parts go to the laborer, 21 to capital and 23 to Government. In France 41 parts go to labor, 36 to capital and 23 to Government. In the United States 72 parts go to labor, 23 to capital and 5 to Government.—London Times.

A young girl was caught kissing her sweetheart a few nights ago. Her mother took her to task for such actions, but the girl silenced her by this quotation: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do you even so unto them." The old lady wilted. Memories of old were brought forcibly to mind.—Deseret News.

Bad Drainage. — There is nothing more productive of disease in a neighborhood than bad drainage. Open the culverts and sluiceways and purify the locality. The obstructions in the human system may be remedied in a similar manner by Burdock Blood Bitters, which opens all the outlets of disease through the Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys.

A Good Introduction. — J. Kennedy, a merchant in Dixie, about three years ago introduced Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam to his customers by trying it in his own family for Coughs and Colds. Being pleased with results, large sales followed and it is now the favorite remedy in that neighborhood.

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, Nov. 7, 1883.

An Early Session.

It will be seen by reference to an advertisement elsewhere that the provincial legislature is called together for despatch of business on the 3rd of next month. This action is taken, we presume, mainly to submit the settlement bill in its amended form and have it passed through the house early enough to admit of its reaching Ottawa when the House of Commons meets. There are other advantages in an early session. It will set at rest forever some questions which appear to be disturbing the minds of some people in the province. It will also give members a much better opportunity of going to and from the capital, and it will give the local legislature a chance to have its wishes more promptly laid before the federal parliament.

Thanksgiving Day.

To-morrow will be observed throughout the Dominion of Canada as a day of thanksgiving. That at least one day in the year should be set apart for such a purpose by the national government is most becoming. Canada recognises in her laws and government the existence of a Supreme Being who is ruler of the universe. However widely we may differ from each other with respect to forms of government and church discipline, it may be said that as a nation we all believe in one God. The present year has been one of great prosperity and expansion over the whole Dominion. We have been protected from national calamities, while our interests have been steadily advancing. British Columbia has abundant reason to be grateful for the mercies of the year. It has been one of unusual prosperity to this province. Our population may be set down as less than 50,000, and it would not be too much to say that in solid wealth each individual has gained at least $200 during the year, which would add $10,000,000 to the wealth of the province. If it be true that Providence presides over the destinies of individuals and nations, it is proper that national thanksgiving should be made for national blessings. And while we return hearty thanks to the Giver of all good, let us not be unmindful of the duties we owe to the poor and unfortunate. To-morrow should be a day in which the poor shall be specially remembered. If Providence has given us wealth and happiness and contentment, there comes with these things an obligation from which we cannot honestly escape. It should be a pleasure as well as a duty to assist those who have been unfortunate, and heaven smiles upon every act of disinterested charity. We hope to-morrow will be a glad day to every person in British Columbia.

Australian Annexation.

It seems that the grand annexation policy of Australia is not to be accomplished after all. The Australians went to work without consulting the British government, they supposed that if by any quiet means the annexation could be done before serious complications arose, nobody would take the trouble to interfere. When the matter came under the notice of the imperial government a protest was issued. But the people of Australia kept right on with the matter in hand. Possibly they supposed that Great Britain entered the protest as a kind of official duty, but did not mean it. Late advices would seem to indicate that in this they were mistaken. A London telegram says that the colonial secretary, Lord Derby, has written a letter to the chief promoter of the New Guinea Exploration and Colonization Company, emphatically protesting against further encroachments upon the rights of the inhabitants of that island. He calls attention to the fact that the ministry has on several occasions condemned the project of annexing any of the South Pacific islands to Australia, or in any manner assuming to establish control over any of these islands at variance with their present system of government. In some of these, particularly the island of Samoa, German, British and American Consuls have at times exercised their influence, jointly or separately, and treaties exist which practically grant to certain of these islands the rights of independent states. Therefore, if General Mc Ivar persists in the forcible seizure of any of the specified territory, or in any manner disregards the rights of the natives or colonists now occupying these islands, even though such operations may be conducted under the British flag and ostensibly in British interests, the government will at once instruct the British Commissioner and Commander of the Western Pacific squadron to interfere and forcibly put down any fourther movement toward the prosecution of the scheme. This will be done, says Lord Derby, so effectually as to discourage any further attempts to set at defiance the expressed policy of the home government.

Chinese Exclusion.

The San Francisco Bulletin writes most gloomy things about the practical working of the Chinese exclusion act. It says the act is virtually a dead letter, and that there is danger of a worse Chinese invasion than ever. The act aimed chiefly at the exclusion of the lower classes of Chinamen. Its object was not so much to keep the celestials out of America as to prevent the keen competition which was bringing ruin to the American working man. The bill, therefore, permitted the immigration of merchants and traders who brought with them a certificate from the Chinese government. This is the loophole through which the crafty sons of the flowery kingdom seek to thrust themselves. For some time past hundreds of them have been arriving at San Francisco for the purpose of staying. The revenue officers pounced upon them with the utmost self assurance, but the celestials blandly shoved under the official nose certificates under the great seal of China! It is alleged that these certificates are a fraud, and that the Chinese government are a party to it. It is broadly asserted that hundreds of men who came with traders' certificates belong to the lowest class of Chinese paupers, and that many of them are nothing but slaves sent out by the masters whose property they are. These fellows are dressed up in a new garment and provided with a certificate at the expense of their owners in China. As soon as they have passed the inspection of the San Francisco customs their new clothes are taken off and they enter the labor market of California. This is all contrary to both the letter and spirit of the exclusion act; but there seems to be no present remedy for the deception. A Chinaman is not easily identified, and for ways that are dark he is very peculiar. It is most difficult to prove that a man is not a trader, and it is not easy to fly in the face of a properly executed certificate. The gravity of the situation is quite alarming. It would seem that Chinese trickery is likely to prove more than a match for American intelligence. The Bulletin recommends that the customs officials refuse to permit any Chinaman to land and justify this refusal on the ground that the China government have connived at a fraud and broken treaty faith. In the present embarrassed condition of China this might be the easiest, if not the most honorable, way out of the difficulty.

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, Nov. 7, 1883.

PASSENGERS.

Per str. Yosemite, from Victoria, Nov. 6.—Mrs Onderdonk, Mr Hall, Mrs Cran, Mrs Leiser, Miss Ladner, Mrs Collishaw, Miss Martin, Mrs Hill, Mr Bovaid, Judge McCreight, Newland, McGaw, Leiser, Bruce, McLean, Sullivan, O'Carroll, Rev Hall, J D Campbell, Murphy, Fraser, Perkins, W Ladner, Ferris, Kimball, Rev Dowler.

Per str. Irving from Yale, Nov. 5.—Mrs Haney, Mrs Lehman, Mrs Ward, Mrs McLeod, Mrs Toops, Mrs Misth, McLellen, Havens, Simonds, Beauman, Wilson, Ashwell, Bartlett, Cawley and 70 others.

DIED.

WILES.—At the Royal Columbian Hospital on the 4th inst. Fred Wiles, a native of Indiana. U.S., aged 33 years.

Read Mr. Edmonds' new advertisement in this issue.

The COLUMBIAN will be sent by mail to the end of 1884 for $3.

There will be no meeting of the Blue Ribbon Club to-night.

After several days of rain the weather yesterday was bright and pleasant.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer registered 40° in the shade.

Mrs. Smith, wife of Rev. R. H. Smith, died suddenly at Victoria last Saturday.

Capt. Pritchard, who died at Victoria lately, left an estate valued at $250,000.

The county court will meet in this city to-day. Mr. Justice McCreight will preside.

The proceeds of the concert at Ladner's Landing last Wednesday night amounted to $93.75.

The steamer Irving brought down 85 passengers on Monday night, and 122 head of cattle for Mr. Greaves.

The str. Yosemite arrived from Victoria at 1.10 yesterday afternoon with 114 tons of freight and a good passenger list.

The str. Eliza Anderson will make regular trips between this city and the sound, leaving here every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Justice McCreight came up from Victoria yesterday, and we understand he will now become a permanent resident of this city.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer now issues an eight-page Sunday edition. The Intelligencer is an excellent newspaper and is one of our most welcome exchanges.

A few nights ago Mr. Robt. Williams, of Chilliwhack, had 17 sheep killed out of a flock of 40. This is supposed to have been the work of a pair of cougars.

The Free Press wants Nanaimo to be made an independent port of entry. At present it is only an outport of Victoria. The suggestion seems to us a very proper one.

The rails are now connected between Port Moody and Maple Ridge. Mr. Onderdonk went over the road on a hand car a few days ago from Port Haney to Port Moody.

The chief engineer of the fire department wishes to acknowledge, with many thanks, a contribution of $50 from Messrs. Laidlaw & Co. for services rendered at the late fire.

It is stated that Hanlan, the great Canadian oarsman, will come to Victoria after his San Francisco match. A challenge from some of the New Westminster blades might bring him to this city.

We have received an excellent wood cut picture of the new Colonist building in Victoria. The building presents a very fine appearance and is a credit to its proprietor and an ornament to the city.

The leaves are rapidly disappearing from the trees. Maple leaves in this country usually measure about 10 inches to a foot in width, and some of our streets are literally covered with these beautiful fruits of autumn.

The reeve and clerk of Chilliwhack go down to Victoria this morning to attend a case of appeal against the municipality. Some of Mr. Vedder's effects were seized for taxes, and he appeals to the supreme court. The case will probably be tried this week.

Rev. G. B. Allen, of Grace Church, Petaluma, who has been paying a visit to Bishop Cridge, preached last Sunday morning and evening to large congregations in the Reformed Episcopal church, Victoria. We understood that the rev. gentleman will preach at the Court House, in this city, next Sabbath morning and evening. See adv.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION. — Mr. Jno. Hendry was elected by acclamation last Saturday to fill the vacancy in St. George's Ward caused by the resignation of Mr. Dickinson. The citizens made an excellent selection.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS.—For the month of October the customs house receipts at this port were as follows: Customs, $10,728.30; other revenues, $125.56; total, $10,853.86. For same period last year, $15,781.54; decrease, $4,927.68.

THE BRANCH RAILWAY. — In reply to his despatch respecting the New Westminster and Port Moody Railway, Mr. J. A. R. Homer, M. P., received the following telegram from Mr. Sandford Fleming: "Telegram handed to directors of Pacific Railway. They will give it best consideration."

COUGARS AT SUMAS.—For some time the people of Sumas have been suffering from the depredations of a pair of cougars. Five calves belonging to Messrs. Stevenson, Hall, and Mrs. Lewis have been killed. The settlers turned out recently and made a search for the animals, but without result. It is believed that one of them has been poisoned.

THE STRIKE.—According to latest advices from Nanaimo the strike continues. The miners have agreed to go to work at old figures if Mr. Dunsmuir will at once withdraw all the Chinamen. This he declines to do, but promises to withdraw them gradually. When the difficulty has been reduced to this point, surely there is room to hope for a satisfactory adjustment.

BOUNDARY LINE BILLS.—The Globe of 24th October says: "Notwithstanding the soothing assurances given by Sir Alexander Campbell when in British Columbia, the bills incorporating the Fraser River Railway Company and the New Westminster Railway Company have been disallowed. No reason has been assigned for this latest exercise of the veto power. The Governor-General acted upon the report of the Minister of Justice."

SHIPPING ITEMS.—Str. Yosemite for Victoria and str. Irving for Yale left Saturday morning. Str. Reliance left for Yale Sunday morning. Str. Eliza Anderson arrived from the sound early on Monday afternoon. The str. Dunsmuir left for Nanaimo on Monday. The str. Irving arrived from Yale at 9:30 Monday night. The str. Yosemite arrived from Victoria at 1:10 yesterday afternoon, and str. Reliance from Yale at 4:30.

NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY. — N. W. Ayer & Son's Newspaper Annual for 1883 is one of the most complete books of the kind we have yet seen. It contains a list of nearly every newspaper published in the United States and Canada, the population of the principal cities, towns, villages, counties, states, and provinces, together with much valuable information concerning the area, resources and industries of the various provinces and states. That part relating to British Columbia is fairly correct, although not altogether free from error. The book, as a whole, is very creditable to its publishers.

FROM THE SOUND.—The str. Eliza Anderson, Capt. Wright, arrived from Seattle and Port Townsend on Monday afternoon. She had a small freight and some passengers. She also carried an excursion party from Olympia, where the territorial legislature is now in session, composed of the following: H. Copley and H. H. Herngate, members of the House; J. W. Adams, J. W. Robertson and J. E. Edmiston, members of the Council; M. T. Crawford, chief clerk of the House; Jno. DeTrire, asst. clerk of the Council; Jas. Crawford, watchman; and Mrs. Edmiston. The party have been inspecting our city and surroundings, and will return by the steamer this morning.

THE BARBER CASE.—The government agent at this city sent Constable Burr up the river on Saturday to make enquiries about the missing man. He found that Barber had been at Port Hammond on the morning of his disappearance, where he sold a beef head to some Chilliwhack Indians about 8:30. He left there in his boat and proceeded down river. An Indian woman wanted to buy some beef from him, but he refused to sell, saying he was going to take it to New Westminster. The woman remarked that the boat seemed very top-heavy. We have before stated that Barber was exceedingly awkward in a boat, and it seems probable that in attempting to adjust the beef he fell overboard. Mr. Burr went up to Langley on Monday to make further inquiries.

CITY COUNCIL. — Council met on Monday night. Present, His Worship Mayor Dickinson, and Couns. Johnston, Ferris, Deane, Elliott, and Hendry. Coun. Hendry made the necessary declaration and took his seat. Mr. Bole applied for an increase of salary as police magistrate. Coun. Johnston gave notice that he would move to increase the salary to $750. The telephone company were granted permission to erect poles within the city limits. The fire company applied for exemption from road tax. The following accounts were presented: Fire Co., $16.10; Wm. McColl, $3; J. Wise, $31.75; Jas. Kennedy, $15; A. Peele, $20; J. Taffandale, $23; W. H. Keary, $9.87; Woods & Turner, $72.50; J. R. D. Walker, $1.50; W. Holmes, $7.50. The clerk reported that he had notified all property holders on Queen's Avenue and St. John street to build sidewalks. It was resolved that these sidewalks be 8 feet wide. On motion of Coun. Deane the city barrister was allowed $250 for extra services. Coun. Ferris gave notice that at next meeting he would move for a grant of $100 to the Fire Co.

A QUERY ANSWERED.—People often ask when is the best time to take a blood purifier? We answer, the best time is now. Burdock Blood Bitters does its work of purifying, regulating, and toning the system at all times and all seasons. Purity in all things is always in order when required.

From the North Coast.

The str. Otter, which arrived at Victoria on Saturday, reports dull times at Omeneca. At Alert Bay she found Supt. Todd, who had been on the track of Anderson, who murdered Hesse at New Westminster some time ago. Anderson was reported by the Indians to be dressed as an Indian and to be heavily armed. He had visited their camps round Fort Rupert and Alert Bay, and was said to be working northward in a canoe. The country is very difficult, however, and the superintendent had not been successful, though the reward offered was $500. The Otter had a good freight, bringing 2,000 cases salmon from Duncan's cannery, Metlakahtla, 1,000 from J. Reid, Smith's Inlet, and about 200 barrels salt salmon from J. McDowell, Bella Coola, 6 bales and 8 boxes of furs consigned to R. Cunningham. Mr. Cunningham brought down $1,600 in gold dust, which he obtained from McDame and party, who have discovered a new creek, a tributary of the Skeena, above Kitlass. The party panned out from $8 to $20 to the day to the hand below a cañon and after buying an outfit at Mr. Cunningham's store started back to winter on their diggings. They will put in sluices and expect big results. At Metlakahtla the villagers tore down the frame of another building which Rev. Mr. Collinson's Indians were erecting. All parties are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the new Indian agent.

The Canada Pacific.

TORONTO, Nov. 1. — Considerable speculation has been caused here by the report that the Canada Pacific railway syndicate has discontinued the road on Rocky Mountain section of their line and discharged 4,000 laborers. Only a week ago Manager Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific, confidently spoke of the completion of the road in two years' time. A correspondent interviewed Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, one of the original directors. He said he did not think the Canadian Pacific would abandon the building of their line through the Rockies for two years. He said they had recently put a large force of men on the eastern section from the river Nipigon to the Pique river, north of Lake Superior, and if they had decided to abandon work they would hardly continue it at the eastern end. He had intended to build this line through the Yellowstone Pass in the Rocky Mountains, but the Canadian Pacific had decided to try Kicking Horse Pass, some (one hundred and) fifty miles further south.

From Okanagan.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

OKANAGAN, Oct. 26.—The land boom attains more vigor day by day; when and how it will terminate is not known. During one week, lately, over 7,000 acres were taken between purchase, application and preëmption at Mr. Lambly's office. In a year, or two at outside, none will remain in the government's hands, should the present rate continue. Intending purchasers will do well to look about ere it be too late. There are looming up two great drawbacks to the interests and development of the Spallumcheen and Okanagan valleys, viz., the improvement of the channel of Spallumcheen river to Shuswap lake and the building of a wagon road from Belvedere to connect with the C. P. R. at Shickmouse narrows. In the present state the steamers cannot ascend the river during low water in the fall. This can be surmounted by constructing wingdams of cedar piles, which would throw the water into a narrower and deeper channel. Freight both ways is thus delayed every fall for weeks and sometimes months, a grievance that can be overcome by an outlay of less than $5,000. A petition to the Dominion government praying for the improvement is being discussed. The wagon road is an absolute necessity as there is no winter outlet to the railroad. The expense of building it would be trifling, the distance not exceeding 15 miles, and the route lies along the level valley of the river, in many places not even a tree to obstruct. Now is the time to see to it, so that an appropriation may appear in the estimates and the road completed next season. Until such road is built Spallumcheen and the whole Okanagan valley is doomed to their annual dormant season, which they now enjoy, extending from the closing till the opening of navigation. When opened the heavy teaming now done in the busy summer can then be carried easier and cheaper on sleighs. The local sawmill is doing a rushing business in rough and dressed lumber. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Mr. Postill's energy. He contemplates soon to add a flour mill; success to his enterprise. Altogether, this has been a very satisfactory season from a commercial point of view. Cattle have raised over 50 per cent., hogs about 25 per cent., and grain about 50 per cent. Such an increase is very inspiring and many anticipate a proportional advance next season. The settlements, too, have received a very material increase to their populations, a noteworthy feature being the arrival of both married and single ladies. There is room and a hearty welcome for many more. The latest arrivals are Miss Genia, a sister of Mrs. Christian at the mission, and Miss Haack, niece of Mr. Herman Wickers of Spallumcheen. On the 10th Oct. was the first frost that formed ice, and on the 11th a shower of snow reminded the residents towards the northern end of the valley of the approach of winter; it fell in rain at the mission. The weather has been very fair since. On the summits of the mountains lies a little of the "beautiful" which adds a finish to the surrounding scenery now clothed in autumnal glory.

Sharp Railway Competition.

THE N. P. AND C. T. JOIN HANDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—The powerful rivalry that the alliance of the Northern Pacific railway will offer to certain railways in Canada is becoming apparent. It is (a prominent Canadian Pacific railway official informs your correspondent) forming an alliance with the Grand Trunk, which road has an independent line to Chicago, and the official in question said he had no doubt the rivalry would be carried on to Ontario, and to the uttermost mile of the Canadian Pacific. The Canadian Pacific, having by its peculiar charter managed to keep the Grand Trunk out of Northwest Canada, the former have now made arrangements with the Northern Pacific which will hurt the interests of the Canadian Pacific. The Northern Pacific in conjunction with the Grand Trunk, is looking to the New York and West Shore for a New York outlet, and it is more than possible that the Air Line division of the old Great Western, now a comparatively useless section of the Grand Trunk, will be utilized by the West Shore, Delaware & Lackawanna to reach Detroit, and make connections with the Northern Pacific steamers for Duluth. The Grand Trunk is talking of building a line to Duluth to facilitate the dispatch of business with the Northern Pacific, and also with a view of getting the Canadian Northwest in time by that route. They claim the charter of the Canadian Pacific will have to be altered in time and the monopoly of the northwest they now enjoy be broken, as with the increasing settlement of the country there will be ample business for two lines there, and, indeed, as many American and other railway companies as desire to locate lines in the country.

The Maple Ridge Cases.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—In an editorial on magistrates' courts in your paper you stated that it was under a by-law regulating the liquor traffic that the action against Mr. Isaac was brought. Sec. 84 of the Municipality Act, 1881, says that the Reeve shall be a Justice of the Peace and shall have jurisdiction over all municipal matters. Was the violation of that by-law not a municipal matter? And Sec. 89 says all fines and penalties collected under or by virtue of any by-law, whether collected by any municipal officer, Justices of the Peace or general police, shall be paid over to the treasurer. Some time ago several Chinamen were taken from Maple Ridge to New Westminster and heavily fined for selling liquor and opium without a license, not a cent of which fine was paid to the municipal treasurer, and I suppose Mr. Isaac's fine will go the same way. A little information on the above subjects will greatly oblige yours respectfully, MAPLE RIDGE RATEPAYER.

[In the article referred to by our correspondent the reasons why the Isaac case could not be tried before a Maple Ridge bench were clearly stated. The reeve was a witness in the case and could not, therefore, sit on the bench. With regard to the fines, they should undoubtedly go into the municipal treasury, and we presume they will be handed over to the treasurer as soon as they have been collected. As Mr. Isaac has appealed against the magistrates' finding, however, a considerable time may elapse before the cases will be disposed of. In the case of the Chinamen to which our correspondent refers, no fines were paid, and the Chinamen were committed to prison where they are now undergoing punishment. These facts, we presume, are a sufficient answer to the enquires of our correspondent.—ED.]

A Roman Catholic's Letter.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—You have a crowd of correspondents in the interior ready to supply you with the latest news; but they require to be trained. They ought to know that truth is not always news; and that what is not truth is nonsense or something worse. These are facts that ought to be stated plainly to rural newspaper correspondents who cannot be trusted to draw on their imaginations for material to illustrate reports.

In your issue of the 31st ult. there is a letter written by your correspondent at Hope, who seems to be a mixture of mirth and malice. He sneers at the Roman Catholic missionaries and insinuates that "they collect large sums as tithes from the Indians and go away with well filled sacks." Your correspondent knows as well as I know that the money imposed as fines on Indians for whiskey drinking is used for the benefit of the Indians themselves; in repairing their churches and assisting their poor. And he knows that the life of a Roman Catholic missionary in the interior of this province is described by men of the world as a life of misery. Well filled sacks, indeed! I never saw their sacks full of anything but lice. They travel through the country on the mission of charity, packed like mules with blankets and pans. And these are the men your worthy correspondent refers to as "money gatherers." I will not say that he is a bigot or a fool; he tries to be amusing, and may be wholly ignorant of the subject to which he refers. A modern village newspaper correspondent would think it a good joke to write a letter from the moon and say it was "like Sumas well stocked with ducks and geese." Your correspondent permits a portion of the truth to escape from his prejudice. In his letter to you he says "the result of the visit of the Roman Catholic fathers has been a surprise and a satisfaction to creditors who keep stores." Old debts due by Indians written off as "bad" have been discharged, and this unexpected good luck is connected with the visit of the Rev. Fathers.

Your correspondent may not be a bad fellow after all. If he will make enquiry amongst his Protestant friends he may learn to respect the self-sacrificing missionaries of the Roman Catholic church. One of the first Protestant missionaries who tried his hand at converting the natives in this province had a wife, a very amiable lady, and she loved him dearly. He went out on the message of charity. He was back in two months covered with lice. The good lady was really afraid of the flock her pastor had taken home and she would not let him in with them. He had to go away and return to her in a new suit.

The life of a missionary among the Indians is a life of misery and those who endure so much for the love of God ought to be let alone. A gentleman would not laugh at misery, and the man of feeling who can think must respect the man who volunteers to be miserable for the love of God.

I am a Roman Catholic, but I subscribe for your paper. I know it is the Methodist church organ, but you are not a bigot or a fool, and you seem disposed to give all men fair play. Therefore I wish to see the COLUMBIAN enjoying an increased circulation. A REAL OLD ROMAN.

[The COLUMBIAN is certainly no more the organ of the Methodist church than it is of any other church. We believe in the utmost liberty of conscience, and we are always prepared to aid, impartially and vigorously, all churches that are engaged in the defense and dissemination of pure morality and religion.—ED.]

A WONDERFUL RESULT.—A single bottle of Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup has frequently destroyed from 100 to 200 worms. It is pleasant to take—no other carthartic being required. Tape worms have also been removed by it, of 15 to 35 feet in length. It is effectual for all varieties of worms, afflicting both children and adults.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

LISBON, Oct. 20.—The mail steamer from the Congo River arrived to-day. By her it is learned that the arrival in the Congo country of Sir Frederick Goldsmid on the 18th September created a sensation there. In answer to enquiries Sir Frederick stated that the object of his journey was to examine the work already done, but if any difficulties occurred rendering action on the part of the English Government desirable he would endeavour to obtain it. It is reported that M. De Brazza, the French explorer, has arrived at Stanley Pool without sufficient appliances to enable him to proceed further up the Congo River. M. De Brazza will probably meet Stanley when the latter returns from Stanley Falls. It is expected that the greetings between the two rival explorers will be cordial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. — Delegate Singheizer of Idaho arrived this morning and will not return home until after the adjournment of Congress. He reports that Idaho is rapidly increasing in wealth and population. The perplexing problem at present in Idaho is that of Mormondom, three counties in the Territory being under their domination. Each year showed the evil increasing. The people of the East had no idea of the power of this evil, and from observation he felt sure, if they needed, they could muster 100,000 armed and fully equipped fanatics, eager to do battle for their faith. One remedy against the encroachments of the Mormons would be to disfranchise them, and if this failed, harsh measures should be resorted to.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Moody, the evangelist, begins a mission of six months at Islington, London, to-morrow. Services will be conducted in an iron church built for the occasion, which will seat 5000 persons.

DUBLIN, Nov. 3.—Lord Mayor Dawson returned from Londonderry last evening and was received with great enthusiasm, by a procession with bands of music and torches, who escorted him from the station to his residence, where Sexton addressed the multitude and denounced the treatment of the Lord Mayor in Londonderry.

ATHENS, Nov. 3.—Many districts in Thessaly are still flooded. At Athens the rains have ceased. The fate of many villages is still unknown.

HONGKONG, Nov. 3.—Disorders arising from the hostility of Orangemen and Nationalists continue and breaking windows is general. The Nationalists stabbed to-day Road, and the beating of persons is frequent. On all sides revolvers and other weapons are used.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3—Latest accounts from Afghanistan show the country to be in complete anarchy, the Exchange without funds, troops demoralized and as mere playthings in the hands of Prince Bebeloff, who originated the device of a wreath with a broken chain, one of the floral offerings at the funeral of Tourgeneiff.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A dispatch from Londonderry states that a man handed a parcel to a dock policeman last evening requesting the officer to deliver it to another constable. The parcel was placed in the dock yard and exploded.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—The Sonora and Milton stage was robbed at eight o'clock this morning, three miles east of Copperopolis, Calaveras County, by a single highwayman, who secured $4713 in retort gold, shipped at Sonora, and which was en route to this city. Particulars of the robbery are very meagre, the only intelligence being that contained in brief dispatches to Wells, Fargo & Co. Detective J. A. Hume and the stage was due in Copperopolis half an hour after the robbery. A posse immediately organized at Sonora and Copperopolis, and an energetic effort will be made to capture the daring road agent. The stage carried no messenger, but the driver generally went armed. This is the first robbery on the route since 1881, when Charles P. Wiebachk stood up the stage about the same place. He obtained an iron box, but could not open it. He was hunted down by detective Hume and posse, and got a term in San Quentin.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 3.—At the election of officers of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union to-day, Miss Francis E. Willard was unanimously re-elected president amid the greatest enthusiasm. Resolutions were adopted which declare the taxation of the liquor traffic wrong in principle and favor prohibition legislation. A call was made for abolition of such internal revenue as relates to the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors, and they ask for legal protection from the encroachments of the liquor traffic. All these were adopted unanimously. Interest culminated on the discussion of the resolution endorsing the sixteenth amendment, and committing the convention to woman's suffrage. After a long debate, participated in by a large number of delegates it was temporarily tabled, and another taken up, condemning the sale of intoxicants on board railroad dining cars, which was likewise largely discussed and finally referred back to the committee. Other resolutions advocating the increased circulation of temperance literature, the equality of morals in both sexes, and prohibition of the sale of tobacco to minors, were adopted unanimously; as also with intense earnestness a resolution pledging the support of the union to the political party favoring prohibition. The remaining officers of the convention were then unanimously re-elected.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Nov. 3. — Edward Richards, 46 years old, an inmate of the National Soldiers' Home, has been asleep 29 days. He went to Northern Wisconsin on furlough in September and was engaged as a nurse by the sheriff of Bayfield Co. who one day found him asleep. He could not be awakened and was brought to the home in a comatose condition. He is regularly fed by an attendant and swallows anything put in his mouth when held up by attendants. He can walk, is sensitive to touch on the bottom of his feet, and draws up his limbs when tickled. In the early part of the present year Richards slept from February 28th to March 16th.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 5.—The Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise arrived to-day and were heartily cheered as they drove to the town hall. The corporation presented an address and gave a luncheon in their honor.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The day after the meeting of the chamber of deputies it is said that orders were sent to Admiral Courbet to push operations into Tonquin so as to make the Chinese government show the course it intends to pursue, so that France can take definite action.

A WRONG OPINION.—Many a dollar is paid for prescriptions for some disease that never troubled the patient, and when the sole difficulty was worms, which a few of Freeman's Worm Powders would remove. These Powders are pleasant, safe, and sure, contain their own carthartic, and are adapted for children and adults.

ANOTHER WITNESS. — A. Chard, of Sterling, testifies to the efficacy of Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which he used for a badly injured knee joint. It is the great household remedy for inflammation, pain, soreness, lameness, etc., and is used both internally and externally with infallible success.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. (ap4eotly)

Our Story.

NELLIE'S MEMORIES.

As we passed along the old familiar streets, something impelled me to lean out of sight and touch Dudley with trembling hand, till the mournful impulse passed, and I could raise my eyes from Rill's golden curls, and answer Dudley's bright sweet smile as he whispered—

"Courage, Nell, we are nearing home."

The aspect of the country had changed since we left; the cornfields, then proudly waving with ripening ears ready to harvest, and gay with poppies and blue cornflowers, were now nothing but stubbly fields, with the fallen leaves lying damply heaped up in the ditches; with here and there an ungleaned stalk rotting in the mold.

The church-yard trees were bare, save for the firs and cypresses that guarded the still white tombs, and the horse's hoofs trod crisply on the yellow and crimson leaves that strewed the path and road; now and then one fluttered redly in at the window and pelted our faces softly, as we leaned out to catch the first glimpse of home. As we turned the corner by the parsonage and came in sight of the grass lane, there was a waving of straw hats, and a joyous pealing of boyish huzzas from the stile; and then the carriage stops; some one wrestles furiously with the fastening, till the door is jerked open, and Halcot plunges in head foremost, to treat me to his roughest and most loving hug, and Charlie followed with his shy girl's kisses.

"What, is the grand new rule in vogue?" says Dudley, laughing, as Halcot half bashfully extends his hand; "I think I must transgress for once;" and his lips touch the boy's brow lightly. Then three pairs of hands help me over the stile; and while Charlie and Seymour linger behind with Dudley, Halcot, with his arm tight round my waist, impels me furiously along the sunny lane, talking so fast all the while, that words trip one over the other, and I have not had the slightest notion of what he is saying. I am trying vaguely to find a clew to what he is telling me about running, and scores, and long-stop, and somebody bowled out, when he turns—and at the same moment somebody takes hold of me and brushes my cheek with a soft mustache, and I look up half laughing into Bruce's handsome face, while he holds me out at arm's-length more fully to survey me.

"Welcome home, old Nell; how we have missed you, to be sure! why, what a sunburnt little gypsy, and looking quite pretty too," and he smiles down at me with kind pleasant eyes, that remind me somehow of Charlie's. I have never in my life seen Bruce half so demonstrative, but I release myself at last, for I see Loo's dear beautiful face in the doorway, and in another moment she has clasped me in her arms.

When at last I sit down in my low chair by the garden window, I can hardly believe it is only two months' absence; only two months, yet how changed the dear old drawing-room looks to me; how narrow, how low, how shabby even, with its faded chintz and heavy paneling, and then, as if ashamed of the unconscious thought, I praise the bouquet that Louie has so tastefully arranged in my own particular vase and kiss the bright face that bends over me. Five minutes later and I would not exchange it for Hurst Hall and all its grandeur; for Loo is kneeling by me holding my gloves and chattering saucily, and Seymour has my cloak, Halcot is pulling at my bonnet-strings, while Charlie, red in the face and breathing hard, is tugging ruthlessly at my boots, under a mistaken impression that they are goloshes. I can scarcely see them all now for the tears that dim my eyes, and make but poor answers to Bruce's gay bantering remarks, seeing which Loo proposes my adjourning up-stairs to my own room and making a quiet toilette, which is not to be done apparently, for they all swarm up after me and peep out of odd doors and passages, while I turn the handle rather listlessly, if truth be told, for I have a lingering remembrance of my rosebud room.

"Loo, Loo, what does this mean?"

What does it mean indeed! this pretty new room with its delicately stenciled green paper, and moss carpet, fresh dimity hangings, and new chintz coverings. I look up at the ceiling, but its snowy surface gives me no clew, or the pretty dressing-table with its vase of light chrysanthemums, or the mantle-piece cleared of its antique rubbish, with a beautiful bust of Purita in the centre; and then I look at Loo, but she shakes her ruddy head unconcernedly and contemplates herself in the glass with an air of great serenity.

"Loo, Loo," I cry, flying to her and squeezing the fair fresh face between my hands, "this is your doing; let me thank you, though it is but poorly enough, my dear, for this pretty, glad surprise. How you all spoil me, and you, my precious sister, as much as any."

She patted me affectionately on the shoulder. "There, there, I am pleased you like it, but it is Bruce's doing as well as mine; he is equally indebted to your thanks;" and following her eyes I became aware of a shadow on the threshold, and a face peeping slyly round the corner, and in a moment had my arms around his neck.

"I say, don't strangle me, my good child, don't; what are you up to? oh, my collar!"

Then as I released him, "If she has not taken all the starch out, and it is my favorite one, too;" but for all that the corners of his mouth were going delightedly. "Now, what's all this excitement about?"

"Oh, Bruce, you dear good fellow!"

"Well, I'm sure I don't object, but why these affectionate terms? oh, keep off, do," and he waved his hands helplessly.

"He pretends ignorance, Nellie, but he has done as much as I."

"Fie, what a story-teller you are, Loo; you know you bought the carpet and the chintz."

"Yes, but all the rest is yours. He came and helped me choose everything, and used to sit and read to me while nurse and I worked; you can't imagine what a kind thoughtful boy he has been."

Bruce seemed to think these additional praises so fraught with danger to his personal appearance, that he retreated backwards, sparring all the while, till he fenced himself in with a towel horse, where he felt his collar and remained passive.

"We have long thought that it was a shame your having the shabbiest room in the house; why, Dudley's and Bruce's are much better; and as to mine, I always thought I ought to make it over to you, especially since aunt's legacy enabled me to furnish it so hansomely. So," continued Loo, "we could not bear your coming back to such a poky little place after visiting at such a grand house as Hurst Hall must be; so Bruce was generous, and we just set to work with a will and got it all done last night. I've not been able to attend to those nursery arrangements, Nellie."

"Never mind, there is plenty of time; Mrs. Graham does not come till Thursday.

"Who is this Mrs. Graham, Nellie, that you are always writing about?" asked Bruce; but Louie would not let him enter on that subject, and by dint of much coaxing, got him out of the room, while I rested and refreshed myself, so that I was better fitted to meet the merry party down-stairs; for it was a merry party as far as the boys were concerned, whatever the others felt. It seemed to be tacitly agreed among ourselves that each should bear his and her burden as cheerfully as might be, and though Louie saw me shiver slightly as I passed the closed-up room, she only drew me on quicker, and no one noticed Dudley's brief gravity when he took the place that had not yet become familiar to him. I was not allowed to sit at the tea-tray, but had the guest-chair between Dudley and Bruce, with the three happy boys' faces opposite, and Loo's smiling eyes peeping round the urn. Scarcely had we seated ourselves, and the decorous grace been chanted by Charlie in a sing-song voice, with a loud Amen from Rill, followed by a clamorous demand for jam, than Halcot burst violently into the subject he had commenced in the lane.

"My dear boy," I cried, interrupting the incessant "I says" and "he says," "I can't understand what you are talking about. Who was bowled out, and when?"

"Why, Damon, to be sure," replied Bruce, mischievously; don't you know his Pythias is head of the school, Double-first, Dux, Monitor, whatever you call it."

Seymour's face lighted up with an ingenuous blush.

"Yes, indeed; Louie told me the grand news, but I forgot for the moment to congratulate you; I am very glad, Seymour, dear, very, very glad, though you have left our poor Halcot so far behind."

"No, indeed," exclaimed the boy, eagerly; "he's top of his class, and has got a history prize."

"History, indeed!" cried Halcot; a precious lot to compare with your Greek and Latin prizes, to be sure; not that I grudge you them, Seymour; of course you got them; every one knows you are heaps cleverer than I."

"I'm a year older," said Seymour; who looked quite uncomfortable at his friend's humble avowal of inferiority. "I'm sure you would work twice as well if you were only more ambitious."

"Never mind, Seymour," laughed Bruce; "you've bowled him out in prizes, and he's scored you up at innings. Nellie again looks mystified; I refer to the grand cricket match between Dr. Merton's boys and the Grammar School; Halcot made the greatest number of innings, and Seymour only five—so you see our Hal beats him hollow at cricket——"

"And at every other game too. I'm no match for him there;" and it was evident from Seymour's bright looks that this sense of inferiority was very palatable to him.

At this point of the argument Halcot suddenly became violently red, and exchanged meaning glances with his friend.

"Now's your time," whispered Seymour, and Halcot, clearing his throat and gulping down something, broke out with—

"I say, Dudley, I have been thinking a good deal about it, and I've made up my mind that I want to go to sea."

"Want what?" asked Dudley, aghast, rousing himself from a reverie.

"I want to be a sailor," said Halcot, decidedly. "I'm sure it's the life I'm suited for, and I hope, Dudley, that you will please to let me."

Louie uttered an incredulous exclamation, and Bruce elevated his eyebrows ironically, while both the boys grew hot as fire.

"Come here to me, my boy."

Halcot obeyed readily, and Dudley put his two hands kindly on his shoulders, and thoughtfully scrutinized the bonnie sunburnt face before him, the old tired look coming back as he did so.

"This is a grave proposition, Hal, and so suddenly started as to almost take my breath away. Come, now, tell me as quietly and clearly as you can, what are your reasons for supposing yourself fitted for a sailor's life?—quietly, mind, so that I can understand you."

Thus adjured, Halcot commenced, but the flurry of his mind communicated itself to his words, which tripped up each other in long unfinished sentences, so breathlessly delivered, that Bruce put his hands up to his ears, and Dudley signed a piteous protest for silence.

"My dear boy, I can't make out a word of what you're saying; we shall never get to understand each other at this rate. Steady, Hal; tell me honestly, whom have you been consorting with, or what books of wonderful adventure have you been reading lately, so as to make you enamored of the hardships and dangers of a seafaring life?"

Said Halcot stoutly, "It is not the books so much, Dudley, as that I feel I'm just cut out for a sailor."

"Nevertheless," returned his brother, smiling, "I will trouble you for their titles. Come, Hal, you are always frank with me; tell me what you have been reading since I went away, in the holiday time, you know."

Halcot reluctantly complied, naming as he did so several of Captain Marryat's, Cooper's, and Mayne Reid's, and as the memories of his favorite authors rose before him, he cried enthusiastically, "Oh, Dudley, I can't bear the idea of being shut up in a little place like this all my life; I should like to see the foreign lands and wonderful sights these men talk about; fancy being among the icebergs, or seeing the Aurora Borealis, or the Southern Cross, and all the great creatures that live in the sea, and the water-spout, and the——"

"I see—I see, Halcot; love of adventure the first potent reason; now for the second."

"Don't you think that a good one, then, Dudley?"

"A thoroughly boyish one, peculiar to most lads of your age; now for the next motive."

Halcot, however, commenced fumbling with the buttons of his waistcoat, and appeared confused.
