MAY CALL ELECTIONS FOR AUGUST

It Is Believed in Some Quarters That McBride May Beat Borden to It

OTTAWA, July 4.—Advices received here today are to the effect that a provincial election in British Columbia is talked of for August.

Except for the trip of the ministerial party to the northern sections of the province, there are no surface indications of an impending election. Premier McBride, however, has made a practice of going to the country considerably before the term of the assembly expires. He took office in June, 1903, and his first general election took place in the fall. Subsequently elections were held as follows: January, 1907; November, 1909; March, 1912. The present house, therefore, has been in existence but little over half its term and has held but two sessions. A general election in August would mean a considerable shortening of the already somewhat brief interval between such appeals, to which British Columbia has become accustomed. A recent report from Ottawa stated tha tthe Dominion government would go to the country in the fall if the results in Ontario and Manitoba proved satisfactory. Possibly Premier McBride is taking a leaf out of Sir Robert's book and beating the prime minister to it.

Profitable Farming

The United States department of agriculture assigns the following as vital factors of the profitableness of farming: (1) Low real estate prices. (2) Farm products of classes deficient in supply. (3) Magnitude of the farm business, measured either by land farmed or amount of labor required. (4) High quality of products. (5) Reputation of the producer—applies especially to the production of pure-bred breeding stock. (6) Advantageous marketing. (7) Productiveness of animals kept. (8) Largest yield with relatively little labor and fertilizer. (9) Low cost of production—involves good farm organization. (10) Stability of profit depends on the staple character of the products.

Activity at Franklin Camp

"Considerable mining activity in the Franklin camp on the north fork of the Kettle river is reported by A. J. Fee, of Vancouver, who is in the camp looking after the work on the Maple Leaf group of claims, owned by himself and his brother, J. B. Fee, of Vancouver.

"Mr. Fee says that the Union mine, on which the owner, Lewis Johnson, and his friends started work last summer, has uncovered a high grade copper ore, and that shipments are daily made from the Union mine. Over 100 horses are engaged on the ore lead and in shipping ore to Lynch creek, a distance of 20 miles, from whence it is taken by the Kettle Valley railway to the Granby smelter. Some samples from the stope of the Union mine which A. J. Fee subjected to an assay ran from $300 to $500 per ton, the gold values being heavy. Mr. Johnson and his associates set to work to develop the mine out of its own earnings, rather than waste time in endeavoring to interest capital for extensive development. The Fee brothers, who have owned the Maple Leaf group for the past ten years, are contemplating work on their own property, which directly adjoins the Union claims.

"As a result of the mining activity at the Franklin camp, the C.P.R is said to be considering building a light line to the camp. At present the ore has to be hauled by team a distance of twenty miles to a shipping point."

BIG INCREASE IN THE PUBLIC DEBT

Between September 1, 1913, and June 6, 1914, the Borden government was compelled to borrow no less than £18,500,000. Taking a pound as equal to $4.87, the total borrowings have amounted to the enormous sum of $90,095,000 in the period in question. Taking the population of the Dominion as an even 8,000,000 thegovernment in ten months has increased the indebtedness of the country by an amount equal to more than $11 for every man, woman and child. Put in still another way, the reckless extravagance and wastefulness of Premier Borden and his colleagues has brought an increase in Canada's indebtedness equal to nearly $60 for every average Canadian family. And this is the government which promised care and economy in the administration of Canadian affairs.

Black Walnuts for Hens

A lady who lives near St. Clair, Ill., and is a successful poultry raiser, says that she secures winter eggs by feeding her chickens black walnuts. Their farm has many walnut trees. They crack up sometimes a bushel at a time for the hens, which industriously pick out every kernel, thus securing the rich oily food needed at this season and getting the exercise of picking among the shells. The rich nut meals serve the same purpose as animal meats for the hens.

The collier Storstod, which rammed and sank the C P.R steamer Empress of Ireland at Father Point recently, was sold on Tuesday in the admiralty court at Montreal for $175,000. It is understood that the purchasers were the original owners. The Storstad was held as security for damages in the sum of $2,000,000, the action having been brought by the Canadian Pacific railway, owner of the Empress, against the collier's owners.

Premier Asquith stated in the house of commons last Monday that the proposals for the reforming of the house of lords would be presented to the commons before the end of the session.

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS UPHELD

Court of Appeals Decides Against Claim of Komagata Maru Hindus

The appeal of the Hindu passenger on the Komagata Maru, Munshi Singh, to the British Columbia court of appeals has failed, and the 352 immigrants on board the ship will have to return with their leader, Gurdit Singh, to the place from which they came. The order-in-council under which the immigration board of inquiry in the cases of the Komagata's passengers have been acting are declared to be valid in every particular. Except in the cases of persons who are Canadian citizens or have a Canadian domicile tere is no power in any court to review or quash any order made by a board of inquiry, as set out in section 23 of the Immigration act.

On all these points the five members of the court, Chief Justice Macdonald, Hon. Justices Irving, Martin, Galliher and McPhillips were unanimous.

Mr. Justice McPhillips, in closing his written judgment, said he was of opinion that the court could make the pronouncement that Canada is a nation, complete in herself, with power to pas any law which the imperial parliament may pass and implement such statutes, and that parliament having acted in a national crisis, all that remained for the court to do, is to see that the law is carried out.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Smith Curtis, one of the leading politicians of the Boundary and Kootenay districts during pioneer days, arrived in the city last Saturday from Savona for a brief visit. Mr. Curtis was minister of mines in Joe Martin's three months' government in 1899. He was given an auto ride around the valley, and expressed surprise at the development of the district. When not otherwise engaged while here, he kept busy talking politics. He left for Vancouver Wednesday noon.

Charles Brown, of Vancouver, arrived in the city last Friday, and spent a week visiting friends here. He still owns some real estate in the city and the valley. Mr. Brown was formerly the leading spirit in the Boundary Iron Works, and while he resided here he erected three or four of the best residences in the city, which are now conspicuous monuments of his enterprise. He also served one term as alderman in the city council.

W. H. Beach, the enterprising Christina Lake merchant who built a private telephone line from the lake to Cascade, has a deal pending for the sale of the line. Mr. Beach says that if the deal is consummated he will put on a first class excursion steamer on the lake, as he has abundant faith that Christina lake will become the greatest summer resort in southern British Columbia before many years.

The city band rendered its first open air concert of the season on the grounds adjoining the public school on Wednesday evening. The program, which was a varied and lengthy one, was much appreciated by the large number of citizens who were present.

A. B. Tweddle, of the department of agricultural, Victoria, was a visitor in the city on Tuesday. Mr. Tweddle was formerly engaged in the nursery and fruit growing business in this city.

Next Wednesday will be Boundary day at the Nelson Chabko Mika celebration, and Mayor Gaw has proclaimed the day a civic holiday in Grand Forks.

C. B Peterson, who returned last week from an auto trip to the Similkameen, states that the roads in the Grand Forks district are in far better shape than in any other section through which he passed.

Henry McIlwaine, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff, Cranbrook, arrived in the city on Wednesday to spend his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. McIlwaine.

Miss Ida Gaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaw, who has been attending school at Kingston, Ont., for the past two years, arrived home the first of the week.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Glossop, of Kettle Valley, were visitors in the city on Wednesday.

Mrs. Dougherty, of the North Fork, left Thursday for Spokane, where she will undergo an operation.

G. M. Fripp made a business trip to Oroville the first of the week.

THREE MEN WERE INSTANTLY KILLED

Buried Under a Fall of Rock and Ground in the Granby Mine

A fall of ground in the Granby mine at Phoenix on Sunday morning caught three men and an electric ore tram in No. 2 tunnel of the mine. J. F. McDougall and William Tatham, two shift bosses, and Frank Riordan, motorman, were the victims. About 1000 tons of earth and rocks covered the men and electric cars. The news spread rapidly through the camp, and in a short time the entire hill was covered by anxious people. As soon as the accident occured the Granby officials, with C. M. Campbell, superintendent, at their head, began the most strenuous efforts to remove the ground and put their big electric shovel at work, as well as every man that could be used. Mr. McDougall has been with the Granby company for nearly twelve years; Mr. Tatham has been a resident of the camp since it was opened, and leaves a family, and Mr. Riordan has been with the company for a long time.

The bodies were not recovered until Monday night. The first body removed from the debris was that of Motorman Riordan, the head and legs being nearly severed from the body. A few hours of work by the Granby people then revealed the body of Shift Boss Frank McDougall, which was not badly disfigured, but it took from early morning on Monday until about midnight to get the body of Shift Boss Tatham, and then only in a very mangled condition.

The cave in of No. 2 tunnel has practically put the Granby mine out of business for a week or ten days, as it will require that length of time to remove the caved earth and put the tunnel and electric equipment in shape.

Protection and Corruption

Probably in no other country in the empire have the interests of the democracy been so studiously neglected by their chosen representatives in parliament, and a supreme proof of that neglect is the miserable, sordid story of political chicanery and intrigue which envelops the history of the Canadian tariff since confederation. Today it is safe to assert that a very large proportion of the politicians of both sides of the house at Ottawa are vitally interested in stifling all attempts to raise the economic issue.—Grain Growers' Guide.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

R. R. Gilpin, customs officer at this port, makes the following detailed report of the customs receipts at the various sub-customs offices, as reported to the chief office in this city, for the month of June, 1914:

FOREST FIRES MINIMIZED

Co-operative Protection Has Prevented Large Losses

The forest fire loss on Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada was smaller during the last season than ever before. On several of the reserves in Manitoba and Saskatchewan fire occasioned no damage whatever, and on the Dominion reserves in the Railway Belt, B.C., the only green timber injured by fire was four acres of young lodgepole pine. Even on the Rocky Mountains reserve in Alberta, with the immense area of 13,373,856 acres, most of which is remote from settlement, fire destroyed only 1,150 acres of young timber, whose present value was small, and mature timber to the value of $150.00. The total area burnt on this reserve was but two one-hundredths of one per cent of the above acreagge, and it is likely, when the reports are complete from the other reserves, which are smaller and usually better protected, that the aggregate area burnt over by fire will be no greater than one one-hundredth of one per cent of the total reserved area. The significance of this figure is apparent by comparison with the corresponding figure for the National Forests in the United States, where the area burnt over by fire in 1913, although admittedly the smallest in recent years, was about 0·03 per cent of the total area.

That the fire loss on Dominion reserves in the West has been so remarkably small is due in large measure to the fact that the Government rangers unceasingly sought, and obtained, the co-operation of all with whom they came in contact, whether settler, Indian, hunter, tourist or packer. The new fire-posters ask for this co-operation instead of demanding it as previously; a plea for it is printed on railway time-tables and on hunting licenses; it is secured from homesteaders by providing them with fire-fighting tools and by connecting rural telephone lines with ranger stations on forest reserves, and even the Indians, many of whom were careless with fire, are now induced to assist in its prevention by being presented honorary metal badges by the Dominion Government. Carelessness is the chief cause of forest fire and by its elimination the greatest difficulty in forest fire protection is overcome.

Pessimists have been converted to optimism through the simple faith of a child.

BROKE OUT ON HEAD, NECK AND SHOULDERS

In Little Blotches. Scratching Caused It to Spread. Hands Had to Be Tied. Cried Day and Night. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Enniskillen, N. B. —"The trouble started when my baby was four months old. Her head, neck and shoulders were a mass of sores. They broke out at first in little blotches, only watery, which the child scratched and caused to spread and form a mass of sores. Her hands had to be tied to keep her from scratching the sores. The eczema caused her to itch and burn and to be cross and peevish. She was disfigured for the time she had it. She cried day and night from the irritation. Neighbors said she would never be cured.

"She was given some medicine to take inwardly but without success. Then a friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I did. I washed the child with Cuticura Soap, dried well, then applied the Cuticura Ointment every day and in a week's time the burning sensation left, the child scratched no more, and when she was eleven months old she was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. John J. McCann, Nov. 27, 1912.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery, because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

A MATTER OF COLOR

C.P.R. Supplies Cooks and Waiters With Complexions to Match Dining Cars

The C.P.R. has disclosed a subtle ingenuity in advertising; nor did this suffer impairment in a comparatively recent instance. The company wanted, to be exact, 670 cooks and waiters for its dining-car service last spring. It has tried the American cooks and waiters by the painful hundred and found them unreliable. It determined to advertise in the "Big Smoke." London is unthinkably cosmopolite. Every race under heaven has its representatives in the world's metropolis. In a delicate way the company announced that it wanted a certain number of fair-haired people and an equal number of dark "complexioned" individuals. The papers began to write about the "red-haired dining-car," and "black-haired dining-car" to such an extent as to cause nothing short of a "thrill" in the general breast. And the requisite number responded—to be exact, indeed, there were at least 2,000 persons, at one time or another, who applied. There was a severe weeding process, with the result that the requisite number were employed and shipped out—fair and dark-complexioned men—to harmonize with the setting of the particular car to which each shade of color should be confined. And it is the fact that the C.P.R. desires, in its aesthetic way, to produce in each dining car what might be called a synthesis as to the color and height and general appearance of the men—the idea being in decorations and general ensemble to present a harmonious whole for the delectation of the passengers. The point of interest is this — that whereas the American cooks and waiters who had aforetime been employed by the company were for the most part unreliable, leaving after two or three months' employment, the men found in London remained the whole season; and at this moment of the entire number 500 are still in the employment of the company. Some left to better themselves; a few went back but the greater bulk are at work quite contented, as the commissioner sent out recently "Answers" and who talked with the men, avouches. These men are Swiss, Scandinavians, Germans to some slight degree, and British. The Swiss speak at least three languages, and are most adaptive. This matter of help on the dining cars is one of the serious problems to be faced by W. A. Cooper, the manager of of the sleeping and dining car service—the difficulty of getting and then retaining the right men; but the experiment of going to London and advertising for them has proved an unqualified success. It seems unthinkably remote to consider the big posters of the early days which announced, rather riotously, the advantage of the C.P.R. in the matter of gastronic enjoyment. The delicate aestheticism which the company now provides marks the apogee of advance and elaboration.

Larger Yields per Cow

During these short winter days when many cows are dry, and the cows that are milking are not giving very much, would it not be wise to lay plans for improvement of the dairy herd? Seeing that the average household consumer a fair quantity of milk daily all through winter, and seeing that the ice cream trade is not by any means dead during the cold months, is it not a pity that there is not more good milk and sweet cream available? Current prices and good demand should prove an inducement to a large number of producers to go in more strongly for winter dairying.

Some of the variations in yields are very marked; it is a common thing month after month to find groups of cows in four adjacent sections averaging one hundred pounds of milk difference, for instance, from 450 by even stages of 100 up to 750 pounds. Many of these poor cows could easily be giving, under better conditions of feed and care, another three or four pounds of fat each per month; after a year or two at cow testing the herds will probably average, as many already have done, considerably more of an increase than that, even as much as forty or forty-five pounds in the year extra per cow.

There is a certain middle-aged bachelor in this town who makes it a practice never to give a tip at a restaurant or cafe. And he boasts that the waiters think as well of him and that he never leaves a table without receiving every attention, obsequious bows and a "Thank you, sir," from the waiter who has served him.

One who doubted this recently did a little gum shoe act after this tipless customer last week, to see if he was telling the truth. And, sure enough, when the luncheon was finished and the exact amount of the check paid, all the polite things happened.

Then the amateur detective approached the waiter.

That man gave you no tip? he said.

No, sir, said the waiter.

And yet you said 'Thank you, sir,' in a loud tone.

Yes, sir. Do you think I want other customers to know that some people don't tip?

Dwarf Plants and Monstrous Flowers

Mr. J. A. Urban, professor of chemistery at the Sorbonne, has had the idea of making seeds germinate after having deprived them of their albumen. Thus, by his own will, he obtains monstrous vegetables. His work is returned in a paper read before the Academy of Sciences by the eminent professor of botany, M. Gaston Bonner. Evidently the albumen of a seed is not its essential part; albumen is only an elementary reserve destined to feed the young plant until its radicle has become strong enough to seek for its own food. But can the young plant do without this alimentary reserve, M. J. Urbain shows that, if put to the test, it can do so, but not without suffering from this privation. M. Urbain's experiments have been made with seeds of the Palma Christi, the poppy, etc. These seeds deprived of their albumen germinated like normal seeds, but produced dwarf, stunted plants with modified leaves and often monstrous deformed flowers. This research of M. Urtain goes to prove the possibility of creating monstrous plants at will.

In the same wa. the late Camille Daresle produced, at will. monstrous chicken by interfering with the normal evolution of the egg, either by varnishing a part of its surface, or by exposing it to a too strong heat.

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Always Have Things to Learn

"For many years I had used coffee and refused to be convinced of its bad effect upon the human system," writes a veteran school teacher. (Tea is just as harmful because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee).

"Ten years ago I was obliged to give up my much-loved work in the public schools after years of continuous labor. I had developed a well denied case of chronic coffee poisoning.

"The troubles were constipation, flutterings of the heart, a thumping in the top of my head and various parts of my body, twitching of my limbs, shaking of head and, at times after exertion, a general "gone" feeling, with a toper's desire for very strong coffee. I was a nervous wreck for years.

"A short time ago friends came to visit us and they brought a package of Postum with them, and urged me to try it. I was prejudiced because some years back I had drunk a cup of weak, tasteless stuff called Postum which I did not like at all.

"This time, however, my friend made the Postum according to directions on the package, and it won me. Soon I found myself improving in a most decided fashion.

"The odor of boiling coffee no longer tempts me. I am so greatly benefited by Postum that if I continue to improve as I am now, I'll begin to think I have found the Fountain of Perpetual Youth. This is no fancy letter but stubborn facts which I am glad to make known."

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. Grocers sell both kinds.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Too Much for Father

In the country is a youngster who is the terror of his parents on account of the questions he can ask. He is a human interrogation point.

One day last week he caught a caterpillar, and as usual, was tormenting the life out of the father about it. Pater is a schoolmaster, and used to the manifestations of his offspring's intellect; but finally he gave way under the fire of questions, and informed the youth that school hours for the day were over.

Silence followed for a minute, and then came, appealingly:

Papa, I want to know just one more thing.

Well?

How did the wiggle on the caterpillar come to be arranged?

The father collapsed.

Warren, Ind.—"I was bothered terribly with female weakness. I had pains and was not regular, my head ached all the time, I had bearing down pains and my back hurt me the biggest part of the time, I was dizzy and had weak feelings when I would stoop over, it hurt me to walk any distance and I felt blue and discouraged.

On an Overhead Trolley

The street car conductor was very impatient. He was waiting for an elderly and very stout lady to board his car, when she suddenly exclaimed: Conductor, conductor, will I get a shock if I step on that rail?

He quietly answered: No, lady, not unless you put your other foot on the trolley wire.

The Girl Bread-winners

What a change has taken place within the last quarter of a century in the method of life of the daughters in the family! From the quiet and secluded home the girls have gone out to office, store or factory to mingle with the great crowd of workers, and whether by brain or muscle, to feel the strain and fatigue of the bread-winner.

This revolutionary change in the method of life has not proved beneficial to health and vigor, and in the surging crowd you find many a pale, anaemic face, and many an emaciated figure.

The blood gets thin and watery, the digestive system becomes deranged, the appetite fails, and the starved nerves tell of their condition by neuralgic pains and bodily aches. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is needed, and nothing can so quickly restore health and vigor to the body and bring back the healthful glow to the wan cheek.

Murphy was assistant cook on board a trooper bound for India. The first morning he forgot to wash the boiler out after breakfast, consequently there were tea leaves on the surface of the soup when dinner was served. To clear himself of the blame he went to the respective messes and said:

In a certain small English village there were two butchers living on the same street. One placarded his sausage at one shilling a pound, and the rival promptly placed eight pence on his card. Number one then placed a notice in his window, saying that sausages under one shilling could not be guaranteed. Number two's response to this was the announcement: I have supplied sausages to the king. In number one's window the following morning appeared an extra large card bearing the words: "God Save the King."

Didn't you see that notice: Dead Slow? inquired the policeman.

'Course I did, returned the Yankee, but I thought it referred to your town.

Gladys—Jack is horrid! When we were out tonight a little bug flew right into my mouth and I asked him of what that was a sign.

Clytie—What did he say it meant?

Gladys—That I should keep my mouth shut.

Lydia found her father in the library.

Father, she said, did Robert call on you this morning?

Yes, he did, replied the father; but I couldn't make much out of what he said.

What do you mean?

Well, explained the old gentleman, I understood him to say that he wanted to marry me, and that you had enough to support him, so I told him to go home and write it out.

What was that party you voted with years ago?

That describes it.

I dunno. It was jes' one of these political surprise parties somebody's always getting up.

High and Low

Naturally the clergyman was annoyed when the waiter asked if the luncheon party would be High Church or Low Church. What on earth has that to do with you? he demanded. A great deal, sir, explained the waiter; if your friends are High Church I must provide more wine; if low church, more wittles!

HOW PEOPLE FEEL When They Have TAPE WORM

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is of pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm.

Each joint is an individual having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon, and causes its victim to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of bowels, appendicitis, and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster, without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms, and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince us of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat, and from three-quarters of an inch to an inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take too long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope or call at 167 Dundas Street. Prof. R. L. Mulveney, Toronto, Ont.

Yes, it took me about six months hard work learning to work this aeroplane.

An Always Ready Pill.—To those of regular habit medicine is of little concern, but the great majority of men are not of regular habit. The worry and cares of business prevent it, and out of the irregularity of life comes dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles as a protest. # MARVELOUS BALSAMIC ESSENCES CURE CATARRH NO DRUGS TO TAKE—A DIRECT BREATHING CURE

Statistics Prove Ninety-Seven Per Cent. of Canada's Population is Infested With the Germs of Catarrh

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national curse. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhozone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every spot that is tainted or weak. You don't take Catarrhozone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapor at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams, the purest antiseptics known to science.

A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial irritation nothing can equal Catarrhozone—every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with a winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size 50c. at all dealers

FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1914

The judgment handed down by the British Columbia court of appeals in the appeal of the Hindu immigrants on board the Komagata Maru is perhaps the most important decision rendered by any tribunal in the Dominion. It is a notice to the world that Canada is a nation. As a self-governing dominion, according to the decision, Canada has a right to make and enforce laws for the protection of her citizens. The exclusion of undesirable immigrants is imperative in molding a moral and vigorous nation, and the people will rejoice to learn that the highest court in the province has decided that the federal government has power to enact laws barring undesirables, even though they come from other sections of the empire, from landing in this country.

Joseph Martin leaves London tomorrow for Canada. He intends to make British Columbia his permanent home. The Liberal party of the province does not feel inclined to slaughter the fatted calf. The Tories, however, appear to be secretly pleased at Mr. Martin's announcement. Evidently they imagine that he still possesses sufficient influence to fire the brand of discord in the rank and file of the party.

Manitoba is today engaged in a general election. Some one will have to be snowed under, in spite of it being one of the dog days.

The men working in Franklin and Gloucester complain of the difficulty of receiving and sending out mail from these camps. At present the only means the North Fork residents have to get their mail is to make a trip to this city or to employ a private courier. The people of this vast territory think that the post office department should adopt the method in vogue on the northern coast, where mail bags are despatched to and carried from the various mining camps free, until these places attain a sufficient permanency to warrant the establishment of post offices.

Why Not Reciprocity?

Government trade statistics for the past fiscal year are decidedly embarrassing to Conservative arguments in regard to the "No truck-or-trade-with-the-Yankess" propaganda During the fiscal year, exports to the United States totalled $200,459,373, a gain of no less than $33,348,991, as compared with the preceding twelve months. Despite the refusal of the Conservatives to take advantage of the American efforts to let down the tariff barriers and give the Canadian farmer freer access to the market of 90,000,000 people, trade has continued to steadily increase even in a year of comparative depression. Even with the tariff barriers still up against Canadian wheat and oats and fish, Canada sent last year to the United States wheat to the value of $6,801,624, oats to the value of $6,802,403 and fish to the value of $6,644,365 Canada sent animals to the amount of $8,518,012 across the line during the last fiscal year. The Canadian farmer and the Canadian fisherman may realize from figures like these what he lost when the reciprocity agreement was turned down.

Mr. Orr, of Brown & Orr, who have cut several thousand telegraph poles up the North Fork during the past year, was in the city the first of the week. He states that the pole market is very good at present, more especially so in the prairie cities, his firm having sent out thirteen cars to Calgary and Edmonton during last week.

A crowded coach load of excursionists went to Lynch Creek on Wednesday afternoon. Fishing is stated to be fairly good up the North Fork, but owing to the heighth of water will not be at its best, until about the end of the month.

Jeff. Davis made a business trip to Spokane on Wednesday.

Airy Persiflage

Mr. Wallace Findley, a former Toronto newspaperman, more recently employed with a Montreal advertising agency, met another ex-Torontonian, to whom he confided that he was about to take a position with the Blank Feather and Down Company.

"Soft job, eh?" remarked his friend.

"Sure," said Mr. Findley, "I'll be tickled to death with it."

"How did you come to land on it?"

"Why, the manager asked me if I knew anything about beds, and when I told him I had been born in one, he engaged me on the spot," answered Mr. Findley.

Not Exactly What He Meant

In the closing hours of the recent session of the Montreal Methodist Conference, one of the clerical delegates arose and thus addressed the assemblage: "Before we adjourn, we should send a letter of condolence to our dear brother S——. He is lying at the point of death, and I am sure we all wish him Godspeed!"

THE HORSE'S POINT OF VIEW

If a horse could talk he would have many things to say when summer comes.

He would tell the driver that he feels the heat on a very warm day quite as much as if he could read a thermometer.

He would say, "Give me a little water many times a day, when the heat is intense, but not much at a time if I am warm; if you want me to keep well don't give we any grain when you bring me warm into the stable, just a half dozen swallows of water, and some hay to eat until I am cool.

"Don't water me too soon after I have eaten my grain, wait an hour. Especially do I need watering between nine and ten at night. I am thirstier then than at almost any other time of day."

He would say, "When the sun is hot and I am working let me br a he once in a while in the shade of some house or tree; if you have to leave me on the street leave me in the shade if possible. Anything upon my head, between my ears, to keep off the sun, is bad for me if the air cannot circulate freely underneath it, unless it is a sponge kept cool and wet. If you treat me as you would yourself, and do not clip off my foretop, you need not have much fear of losing me by a sunstroke.

"If on an extremely warm day I give evidence by panting and signs of exhaustion that I am being overcome by the heat, unharness me, take me into the shade and apply cold water or even broken ice, wrapped up in a cloth or put in a bag, to my head, sponge out my mouth and go over my legs with a cool wet sponge."

He would talk of slippery streets, and the sensations of falling on cruel city cobblestone—the pressure of the load pushing him to the fall, the bruised knees and wrenched joints, and the feel of the driver's lash.

He would tell of the luxury of a fly net when at work and of a fly blanket when standing still in fly season, and of the boon to him of screens in the stable to keep out the insects that bite and sting.

He would plead for as cool and comfortable a stable as possible in which to rest at night after a day's work in the hot sun.

He would suggest that living through a warm night in a narrow stall neither properly cleaned nor bedded is suffering for him and poor economy for the owner.

He would say that turning the hose on him is altogether too risky a thing to do unless you are looking for a sick horse. Spraying the legs and feet when he is not too warm on a hot day, he would find agreeable.

He would say, "Please sponge out my eyes and nose and dock when I come in tired and dusty at night, and also sponge me with clean cool water under the collar and saddle of the harness."

Suspicion Mutual

A carpenter sent to make some repairs in a private house entered the apartment of the lady of the house with his apprentice and began to work.

"Mary," the lady said to her maid, "see that my jewel-case is locked up at once.

The carpenter understood. He removed his watch and chain from his vest in a significant manner and handed them to his apprentice.

"John," said he, "take these right back to the shop. It seems that this house isn't safe."

Fable of Retired Farmer

Once there lived a farmer who worked so hard he was too tired to go to church on Sunday. His hired men refused to stand for the first and last call to sowbelly at 3.45 a. m. and lest before the end of the week. His wife milked the cows and hoed the garden because help was hard to keep. The farmer voted against hard roads, and when he was elected to the school board hired for teacher a young girl just out of high school, because she would take the job for thirty dollars a month. In short, he squeezed the dollars so hard the eagle screamed. He would steal acorns from a blind pig.

When the farmer was fifty he had a half section of good black land in the corn-belt and money in the bank. He moved to town to enjoy a hard-earned rest. But his stomach was so tired of corn bread and bacon that it went on a strike, and the farmer ate milk toast. He conld predict a storm before the first cloud appeared, by the creaking of his joints, and he had to call for help to turn over in bed. One day his doctor said he had made enough money to buy a new touring car, and the farmer died of heart disease.

SHE WAS HELPLESS FOR TWO YEARS

WHY MRS. BALDWIN RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

St. Walburg, Sask.,—(Special).—I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from Rheumatism. These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states. "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbors advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes, and they helped almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backaches, her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs swelled and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

If you will be a brave little girl about having your operation, you shall have the very nicest kitten I can find.

CRIPPLING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

Cannot Be Cured By Liniments—Must be Reached Through the Blood

Thousands of men and women suffer severely from rheumatism. Cruel, crippling pains in the muscles and joints make every movement a torture. Many people think rheumatism is due to cold or wet weather and they try to cure themselves by rubbing liniments on the painful parts. This is a great mistake—the rheumatic poison is in the blood, and liniments and rubbing cannot give more than the most temporary relief. If you are a victim of rheumatism or lumbago you can only rid yourself of it by making your blood rich and pure, for only in this way can the poisons of rheumatism be driven from the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more cases of rheumatism than any other disease except anaemia, just because they make the rich, red blood that goes right to the root and cause of rheumatism. You cannot be well when your blood is impure, therefore, begin curing your rheumatism to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following are the particulars of one of the many thousands of cures to the credit of this health-giving medicine.

Mr. Jeremie Nadou, St. Jerome, Que., says: "A few years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. The pains in my back, arms and legs were terrible. I treated with several doctors but they did not help me, and as time went on I was unable to work and began to think that I would be a cripple for life. While in this trying condition a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try this remedy, and I got a supply of the Pills. I had taken the Pills for several weeks before any improvement was noticed, but once signs of relief came the improvement from that time on was rapid, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until every vestiage of the trouble disappeared. No one but a similar sufferer can imagine the gratitude I feel for this relief from pain, and because I have since enjoyed perfect health I urge other rheumatic sufferers to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How a Bandit Received a Pardon and Employment

By F. A. MITCHEL

I do not hesitate to say that to many educated persons Rome is the most interesting city in the world. She scattered over Europe the seeds of our religion. She formulated our laws. Hardy in her prime, she mingled her blood with barbarians who, when she became old and feeble, inherited her early hardihood of brain and body and begat the European of today.

From my childhood I wished to visit Rome. As boys study with a view to an object, such as a profession or a business, I studied with a view to visiting the Eternal City. I learned to speak Italian and Latin. I read the books of Roman writers that have been preserved to us for twenty centuries in the language in which they were written.

What gave direction to my desires was reading of the hasty burial of works of art to hide them from the overpowering barbarians. Not a year passes without some statue being dug from beneath the surface in or about Rome. I was myself seized with a desire to find some of the treasures that adorned Rome in the days of her grandeur. My object in life may not have been practical, but it is not only practical objects that are absorbing.

I was not permitted to visit the land of my dreams until I was twenty-seven years old. Then I found myself in possession of property which gave me an income of a few thousands a year. Within a month after the receipt of my patrimony I was in Rome.

I had been more than a year in Rome and had studied the references to a number of villas that had been the residences of ancient Romans with a view to selecting one to search for. Finally I stumbled on a record of a very rich man, Manlius Quintus Piso, who had made his money as an auctioneer. Mention was made of a mania coming upon him after he acquired wealth for collecting beautiful works of art. The author I read stated that his villa contained more valuable statues than any other of his time. Among others was mentioned a statue of Diana that had cost its owner a fabulous sum. The location of the villa was given as among the hills lying to the south of Rome across the Campagna. A small stream flowed past it; a high hill was directly behind it. There were other references to the contour of the surrounding country calculated to help one searching for the site. These I studied and, not content with one reference, hunted till I found another description of the villa as it had been before its destruction during one of the earlier invasions of the Goths.

When I had got all the information possible on the subject I packed digging implements in my trunk—I did not dare to let it be known that I was going to make excavations—and went by the electric railway to Frascati, which I made my headquarters. I set out from there the next morning with my implements rolled in a steamer rug bound by a shawl strap.

I spent a week hunting for a location that fitted the description I had gained from the books I had read. Then I spent another week doing some surface excavating. I was digging, the third week, on a spot which I thought warranted more attention than the others when something happened.

"Signor!"

The voice came from behind me. I turned quickly and saw a man standing with a rifle in his hands, which he could bring to his shoulder in a moment. I had been aware of the danger attending being out alone in the country in Italy and had a revolver strung to each hip. But before I could use either of them I would be killed. The man covering me was so respectable looking that I could not realize at once that he was a bandit. But he would have had no object in being ready to shoot me if he were not.

"I presume," he said in excellent Italian, "that you are doing archaeological work. Are you aware that excavations are in the hands of the government?"

"I am," I replied, "but I am hoping to make a discovery that will surprise the government and thus gain immunity from having broken the law."

"I sympathize with you, signor, but as a good citizen it is my duty to inform upon you."

"What sum would induce you to refrain?"

"You are an American, I fancy, from your looks, your dress and the accent with which you speak Italian. Americans are all very rich."

"I have but 10,000 francs a year."

"That implies a capital of 200,000 francs. Surely you can divide with one who has been unfortunate."

"You mean, I suppose, that I am in your power, and you demand a ransom of 100,000 francs?"

"You have stated the case correctly."

I stood thinking for a few minutes what I could do. I had no funds in Italy. The interest on my money invested in America was sent me quarterly. I had spent nearly all of my funds of the present quarter, and it would be two months before I received another remittance. I explained this to the bandit, but it did not appear to make much impression upon him.

"I have never seen an Italian bandit," I said, "but you don't fulfill my idea of one. You look like a gentleman."

I thought I could see him wince.

"You are right, signor."

"May I ask the cause of your being what you are?"

"Games of hazard. I was intending to follow a line something like that you are engaged in, but I not only lost my patrimony; I lost money for others. I became an outcast."

There was a tinge of sadness in his tone as he spoke this which induced me to proceed:

"How would you like to return for a brief season to your original or your intended occupation? I believe that I am on the track of a buried villa that formerly contained valuable works of art. I would be happy to have you join me."

His eye lighted up. The Italian, whatever he is, is artistic in his tastes, and in this man was added the fervor of an archaeologist. I saw that he would love to take a breathing spell from robbery in a work he loved.

"Whose villa are you hunting for?" he asked.

"Manlius Quintus Piso's."

"What data have you?"

I gave him the two authors who had written descriptions of the villa.

"There is another reference," he said. "I came upon it when I was beginning the study of archaeology."

He remembered the description given by an author with whom I was not familiar and repeated it to me verbatim in the Latin vernacular. I saw at once that with the two I had it would bring me much nearer the exact spot for which I was looking.

"Come," I said, turning my back to him, "take these weapons from my belt and do what you like with them. Then join me. We are very near the location of the Piso villa, but not quite. We must go southward about 300 yards."

He astounded me by telling me to keep my weapons and, uncocking his rifle, slung it on his back. Then we started out to pace the 300 yards, moving at an angle with each other of about twenty-five degrees. After pacing the distance each began to dig. We found nothing but dirt where we began, but we made together some fifty holes in an area of about a thousand feet in circumference. About sunset I heard my companion call to me. I went to him and found that he had come upon a pavement. He had been digging in a depression and had gone down about four feet from the surface.

Fortunately the moon rose before the sun set, and, anxious to go as far as possible with our work before attracting attention, we began to throw up dirt in earnest. It was soon evident from the marble pavement we uncovered that we had struck something fine and had not gone far before we came to what proved to be the impluvium (basin), which was in the center of all antique Roman houses. But at the time we exhumed only a small portion of it. By midnight we had come upon several statues, but they were broken in small bits. We worked on, and by dawn I struck a pair of marble feet.

Carefully removing the earth from about a statue lying flat on the ground, I came upon a quiver and a bow. The drapery was feminine. I hurried on, hoping that I had struck the Diana of which I had read. My hopes were confirmed on reaching the head, where above the forehead we found the star which always accompanied representations of this divinity.

That was as far as we deemed it prudent to go. I believed that the discovery we had made would greatly interest the government, to which I proposed to turn it over. After receiving information about my companion that would enable me to find him I hurried to Rome and to the office of the official charged with excavations. He listened to my story with wonder and delight and when I had finished asked me what I would expect for my find.

I told him of the bandit by whom I had been aided, and if the government would pardon him and give him some position that would enable him to make an honest living I would feel repaid for my discovery.

There is nothing more to tell except that the statue we unearthed proved a splendid work of art and was very little damaged. It was removed to the new gallery on the Esquiline hill opened by the government. The bandit received his pardon and employment in the archaeological department of the government.

HE DIDN'T LIKE DRIPPING.

And No Wonder, After He Had Read About Its Strength.

What is dripping?

Everybody knows that dripping is supposed to be the juices, the savory essences, that fall from roasting meats.

That is the supposition. But what really is dripping—the dripping that the poor of England buy by the pound and smear upon their bread in lieu of butter?

The question perhaps will never be answered, but a partial solution is given to it by the fact that a London poorhouse recently bought at $7 a ton thirty-two tons of dripping from—a soap works.

"A little boy," he would begin, "complained bitterly about the bread and dripping that formed his daily breakfast.

"'It'll kill me,' he whined at last. 'I know it'll kill me.'

"'Kill you? What do you mean?'

"'Why, I've been feeling pretty bad lately, and now I know it's all this dripping what's the cause of the trouble. I read it in a book.

"'Some pure food rubbish, I dare say! And what, precisely, did you read in this vile book, silly?'

"'I read,' whined the urchin, 'that constant dripping wears away a stone.'"—Exchange.

HUMOR OF A CANNIBAL.

He Enjoyed It Himself, but It Didn't Tickle the Victim.

A number of natives came to greet us when we landed at Bau, a Fiji island, among them a few whom the consul seemed to know. They volunteered to act as escorts for us and by various expressions tried to convey the idea that they were glad to see us.

A school forms one side of the square. Across from this stands the council chamber, built on the trench where the bodies were roasted for their former feasts. The old headstone against which Cacoban used to dash the brains of his victims still stands, and the anchor and rudder of a French ship wrecked near Bau lie beside it.

Beneath a picture of Queen Victoria I saw an old sword swinging. I examined it and found it was a French weapon, no doubt the arm of the unfortunate French vessel's commander.

During the time thi was going on Jim, Ratu Kadavu's servant, who is a particularly good type of a large, muscular race, approached me, ran his hand around my waist and slowly down my thigh and smacked his lips with a wicked smile. I laughed at this display of aboriginal humor, but not very heartily, for the sword of the French captain still swung before my eyes.—Christian Herald.

Time For the Actor to Stop.

On the subject of playing the same part over an indefinite number of times David Warfield says:

"There is no such thing as playing a part too long. The mellowing process should never cease, but if it does, if spontaneity fails, if the actor feels that he is becoming at all mechanical in the part, he should abandon it at once—for his own salvation.

"The surest danger signal is half hearted applause. From this the actor knows that he has lost an essential quality of the character, and the tragedy of it is he cannot tell what that quality is or how he lost it. An actor may tell a joke a thousand times and provoke laughter, but suddenly it fails of response. That's the time for him to stop."—American Magazine.

A Cure For Mosquitoes.

The people of London have learned of an agreeable way to keep their houses free from flies and mosquitoes. They burn sandalwood, which has a pleasing odor, but one that the summer pests much dislike. The idea comes from the orient, where it has long been practiced.

The sandalwood can be bought at almost any Turkish or Japanese importing house. You prepare it for burning by cutting it into pieces about half an inch thick and three inches long and then bake or dry it in a slow oven for twenty-four hours. You light a piece of the wood and put it in a metal urn or saucer. After it has ignited well blow out the flame and leave the red ember to smolder until the wood is wholly consumed.

"It is very curious to me," said Slithers, "what a musical voice Mrs. Brighteyes has, and yet whenever she speaks in French it is hard and rasping—almost metallic."

"Oh, that's only natural!" said Bingo. "You see, Mrs. Brighteyes learned French by phonograph, and she has mistaken the imperfections of the records for accent."—Judge.

Immaterial and Irrelevant.

A lawyer of Omaha entering an eating house was immediately approached by a waiter, who observed cheerfully, "I have frogs' legs, devilled kidneys, pigs' feet and calf's brains."

"Well," said the lawyer sternly, "you look it. But what's that to me? I came to eat."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WASHING DISHES.

There Is an Art In This Homely Everyday Duty.

THE PROPER EQUIPMENT.

When Washing Cutlery It Is Always Best to Use a Good Silver Soap. This Method Does Away With the Weekly Cleaning.

The art of dishwashing has become almost extinct in this quick going age, when the only way to do a thing is to do it at once and have it soon over. Yet real dishwashing is an art.

Dishwashing requires two dishpans, one in which to wash and the other to rinse the dishes; an abundance of heavy linen towels, some lighter ones for glasses, a good dish mop and dishcloths. The dishcloth should be of strong linen. Stair crash is excellent for this purpose, as it will become soft enough to be flexible and is very durable. Make these cloths about ten inches long, of narrow crash and hem them to prevent the edges from fraying when they are put through the laundry.

First of all, the dishes should be gathered up and properly scraped, then held for a moment under the hot water faucet to take off the first coating of grease. Any dishes or knives and forks used for fish should be carefully wiped with paper, as dishcloths are infected by fish immediately.

Put the dishes in hot suds. Use the dish mop freely and transfer them to the other pan to be rinsed. Let this second pan be very large and have a wooden drainer fitted in two inches from the bottom, so that the boiling water poured over the dishes will drain off them. This is the best and safest way of draining.

In washing the silver use a silver soap and thus avoid the weekly silver cleaning day, with the added inducement that the silver is constantly bright.

Wash spiders, pots and kettles separately and with an iron dishcloth. Pots and kettles should be washed inside and outside and thoroughly wiped before being set away. The coffee pot and tea kettle should be boiled out at least once a week with soda and water to keep them tastelessly clean.

Walnuts as Food.

A London medical journal recently published some interesting facts concerning walnuts as food. According to this authority, "thirty large walnut kernels contain as much food value as two and three-quarter pounds of lean beef." With beef worth approximately 20 cents a pound, this means that each walnut is worth about 2 cents as a food product as compared with beef. That these facts will greatly encourage the production and consumption of walnuts is hardly to be expected. There is some consolation, however, in the thought that when meat has become a luxury, to be indulged only by the rich, the general consumer can keep his dinner very well—somewhat like Peter Pumpkin Eater's wife—in a walnut shell.

Father's Ultimatum.

The father of a large family of children was trying hard to read the evening paper.

"What's that terrible racket in the hall, Martha?"

"One of the children just fell downstairs."

"Well," he replied, turning over another page of the paper, "you tell the children if they can't fall downstairs quietly they'll have to stop it."—Lippincott's.

Showing Him How.

"You young scoundrel!" said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the hand. "I'll show you how to treat your mother!"

And he gave him several bangs on the ears and then shook him until his hair began to fall out.

Her Little Slip.

Departing Guest—We've had a simply delightful time! Hostess—I'm so glad! At the same time I regret that the storm kept all our best people away.—Brooklyn Life.

The Itching Palm.

Gotham—Yes; nearly everybody over there wants a tip.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Flowing Bowl of 5 o'Clock.

When beauty presides at this rite
And pours out the fragrant Bohea
This suppliant won't you invite
To join in your five o'clock tea?
Though sugar and cream can excite
Some envy and malice, maybe,
And cynics cry out with delight,
"So this is your five o'clock tea!"
Still I'll be in my element quite
While you prattle in garrulous glee,
For I know all you say must be right
If you say it at five o'clock tea.
So ask me—I think that you might—
Just give me a chance to agree
That there's not the proverbial "Scot,"
As I'm told at your five o'clock tea.
