THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

VOLUME 26 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., SATURDAY, AUGUST 2, 1884. NUMBER 9

C. P. R. Prospects.

In a number of the Hamilton (Ont.) Times we observe an article on the Canadian Pacific Railway and its prospects which contains some paragraphs of interest. It may be remarked that the Times is a Reform journal, and, like a great many other party organs in Ontario, endeavors to manufacture political capital out of almost every public question. It begins by saying that the Canadian Pacific Railway will in future only run two trains a week west of Brandon, and adds: "There are some thousands of men at work on the railway in the Rocky Mountains, there are some cattle ranchers, prospectors for gold and mounted policemen in the far west, but two trains a week are enough for them. When construction of the railway is finished, how many trains will be required? There will be no traffic in railway supplies, nor in food for the army of navvies. It will be strange, indeed, if farmers go in large numbers to the foot of the mountains when they can find better land 800 miles farther east. The Asiatic trade is an unknown quantity, but it cannot amount to much, judging from the small proportions of the trade that has been done via San Francisco. We believe the Winnipeg Free Press is right in its conclusion that it would be a great deal better if the railway had not yet gone a mile beyond Brandon, say 200 miles west of Winnipeg. There is room and to spare east of Brandon, for all the people who are in Manitoba and the Northwest and for hundreds of thousands more. Some have gone west, leaving unoccupied lands behind them. They will labor under the disadvantage of isolation, and they have failed to relieve the people suffering from that disadvantage in the older parts of Manitoba." The Times then refers briefly to the need for branch railways in that country, extending in various directions from the main line. It thinks that if these lines had been constructed, and the main line allowed to proceed more slowly, the condition of things now would have been very much better both for the railway and the country. "The time will come," it says, "for a large exchange of commodities between British Columbia and the farm lands on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. British Columbia has wood, iron and coal in abundance; also plenty of salmon. The implements for the Northwest farmers on the mountain slope ought to be made in British Columbia, for it is less than 700 miles from Port Moody to the Northwest prairie, and in the matter of distance Ontario would have no chance against British Columbia." But this picture of the future, the Times thinks, is still a long way ahead, and it expresses the opinion that it would much sooner have become a reality if a Reform government had been in power. Perhaps it would, and perhaps not; but there is undoubtedly a good deal of sound sense in some of the opinions expressed by the Times. We have pointed out the disadvantages to the Northwest of rapid railway construction, and have shown how it has prevented British Columbia from receiving anything like the full extent of the benefits which otherwise might reasonably have been expected; and although every person in this province will be glad when the first locomotive from Halifax blows its whistle in New Westminster, it may turn out that we have paid pretty dearly for our whistle after all.

SPIRIT RAPPINGS.—I happened, in the course of our conversation, to ask Mr. Cumberland whether he was an able spirit-rapper. In a moment mysterious rappings were heard from all parts of the room, as if in reply to the question. "You see," said Mr. Cumberland, "I can produce all sorts of knocks and cries, from the still small voice of the infant in the celestial regions to the sepulchral tones of the tormented spirit, whose unearthly groans are so effective. I get the still small voice by dislocation of the thumb," and the still small voice spoke in its most melodious tones. "The sepulchral tones come by a displacement of the knee joint—so," and the sepulchral tones reverberated through the room. "The peronius longus I can now easily work, as you hear, although I have a pair of thick boots on." It was very easily worked, and effectually. —Pall Mall Gazette.

Cholera Germs.

The Canada Lancet contains a translation made by Dr. Workman of Prof. Koch's report on Asiatic cholera in Calcutta. Prof. Koch, and those engaged with him, had every opportunity afforded them to make their researches fully and carefully. One of the principal results achieved is the determination of the nature of the microbes developed in cases of cholera. At least it is determined that they are not of the nature of those in cases of pneumonia, dysentery, phthisis, and kidney disease, or those developed in a number of animals and substances in which bacteria abound. This is believed to be an important step towards solving the problem of prevention of cholera by inoculation.

Another fact of great importance is that whereas in Calcutta, before there was an efficient water supply, the death rate from cholera was 10.1 per thousand of the population, the rate since there has been pure water and plenty of it is 3 per thousand. This fact would tend to strengthen hope in many places in Canada, where water-works have been established, but it is a solemn warning to those people who, in crowded places, continue to use water from tainted wells. It is a warning also to those in small towns and in the country who must use wells to see that there is no chance of the water being polluted from cesspools or imperfectly drained yards.

Prohibition Candidate.

The prohibition convention have nominated Mr. St. John of Illinois for president. The seconder of the nomination was Mrs. Francis E. Willard, who said she knew St. John when he was a little bare-footed boy. The platform reported by the committee acknowledges God in the government, declares that traffic in alcoholic beverages under the laws of the national and state government is productive of crime and pauperism, a burthen of taxation for penal and sheltering institutions, endangering the public peace, corrupting politics, and imposing manifold other evils upon the people. These laws are alike contrary to good laws and contrary to our happiness, and we call upon our fellow citizens to aid in the repeal of these laws and to aid in the suppression of this traffic. The history of the past twenty-four years adds to the conclusion that the Republican party is insensible to or impotent for redress of these wrongs, and should no longer be intrusted with the government. That congress should exercise its undoubted power and prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages in the District of Columbia, the territories of the United States and in all places over which the government has executive jurisdiction. That hereafter no state shall be admitted into the union until its constitution has expressly prohibited polygamy and the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages.

The nomination of St. John was greeted with loud cheers. A picture of St. John was exhibited from the stage amid great enthusiasm, the delegates and spectators joining in the chorus to the campaign song, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah, Our Cause is Marching On." This was followed by rousing cheers. Then the convention joined in the hymn, "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow."

The Cowboy's Real Life.

The cowboy's life is an exciting one, hardy and adventurous. He eats in a tent, lives on his steed, and sleeps under the stars, seldom with blanket or fire. He is an expert with the lariat, fearless of horse or herd. He must be quick, of unerring eye and aim, nerve to try new horses, to venture into wild herds of excited, angry cattle, and dexterous to throw uninjured a refractory animal. It is no small science to catch a horse with the lariat, and a bungler meets no sympathy from the experienced. An experienced hand makes no mistake; he singles out his prey, winds his lariat, twirls the loop—presto—the animal is captured, a cow by the horns, a horse around the neck, and in most cases the captured are resigned to fate.

Erroneous impressions have gone abroad about the cowboys, taken from the lawless banditti of Texas. The men we saw are well-behaved and as careful in speech as any gentleman is. They looked like farmers' boys, and are a fine, hardy set, brave, and from good homes in the east—that is, east from here. Few are from Texas. In seven one was from the Indian Territory, one from Texas, and the rest east of Denver. They, like soldiers, must obey their captain—the foreman, who has the power of a sheriff. Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Brush's foreman, is a college-bred man, and can write as good a newspaper article as any writer in Denver.

Cowboys receive from $35 to $50 a month and board, and have to work generally from early spring till late fall, "laying off" in the winter. If they are saving they make considerable, but usually are generous and improvident, with a grasshopper economy which plays and spends and saves nothing for the winter. Foremen get $100 a month, and even higher wages for a first-class man are not infrequent. The food furnished is excellent. The fire used—in fact camping would be almost impossible otherwise—is of "buffalo chips," which makes a steady, hot fire, and are plentiful and easy of access. Many camps have good cooks and excellent tables, though with tin plates and cups and picnic paraphernalia.

Some of the "boys" looked like men with histories, but most are intelligent young men, and the revolver-shooting, war-whooping cowboy will soon follow the buffalo to the shades of oblivion and Montana, to figure occasionally in the lurid tales of the weekly story papers.—Denver News.

There is a tom-cat in Albany, Ga., which had one rat in his mouth when another ran by where he had been stationed, and he caught the second rat with his feet and held him securely without ever letting go the one he had in his mouth. At another time he caught three mice at one plunge.

The British Columbian.

Saturday Morning, August 2, 1884.

When the Guardian insinuates that the gentlemen who hold the New Westminster & Port Moody Railway charter are unworthy of trust, it is fair to institute a comparison between the person making the insinuation and those upon whose reputation he seeks to throw dirt. On one side we have J. K. Suter; on the other J. S. de Knevett, Mayor Dickinson, Jas. Cunningham, Jno. Hendry, W. N. Bole, Dr. McInnes, and J. H. Coulthard. It is not probable the people of this city will find much difficulty in estimating at its true value the opinion of the traducer in this case.

When sifted to the bottom it is found that opposition to the proposed sale of city reserves comes almost wholly from owners of Port Moody property, or persons whom they have influenced. The object of these persons is purely a selfish one, and we cannot believe that the people of this city are foolish enough to sacrifice their own interest for the hypothetical benefit of such persons. In the first place no person can show by any sound argument that the building of this line will injure Port Moody. In the second place the progress of New Westminster, and not Port Moody, is the consideration which should govern this vote.

Mr. R. W. Phipps, who has been for some time employed by the Ontario government in perfecting measures for the protection of forests and encouraging the planting of trees, recommends the silver poplar as the best for general results. It is, he says, easily propagated, and of very rapid growth. Within twenty years after planting it often produces trees of sixty or seventy feet in height, sixty feet in spread, and with a trunk more than three feet through at the base. One such tree, to Mr. Phipps' knowledge, lately yielded four cords of firewood. When sawn and polished it is of a handsome light yellow color, with a beautiful waving grain.

If the public reserves were sold, the proceeds of the sale would probably amount, in round numbers, to $100,000. This money could be easily invested at 6 per cent., giving an income of $6,000 per annum. Then these lands, which now pay nothing into the city treasury, would be taxed for city purposes, and would yield not less than $1,000 per annum. It will thus be seen that, by simply investing the proceeds of the sale, $7,000 per annum would be added to the city revenue. Besides this these unsightly places, or at least many of them, would be cleared off and improved, adding very materially to the appearance of the city. It is the intention of the council to sell only as much at present as will provide funds for railway purposes, say $55,000. The construction of a railway will increase the value of remaining property about 50 per cent.

It is reported on the streets that if a branch line from the C. P. R. comes to this city, it will be carried down to Coal Harbor, and New Westminster will become nothing but an unimportant way station. Surely no sane person will be deceived by such an objection to the by-law. It is the opinion of the best engineers that the railway will never reach Coal Harbor by way of this city. If it goes there it will be by way of Burnaby Lake, as that route would be very much cheaper than any other. But if the railway does come through this city and pass on to Coal Harbor our position would be even better than with a simple branch. A branch is at best unsatisfactory, because it implies a transfer of passengers and freight at the junction. If the road goes on to Coal Harbor, as these opponents of the by-law declare, the railway service of this city would be complete, for we would not only receive the benefit of all trains passing over the main line, but would have direct connection with the terminus. There is scarcely an important city in the Dominion which is a railway terminus. At Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Quebec, and other cities the principal railways do not terminate, but pass on. We should be much more pleased if this city became a station on the main line than the terminus of a branch so near the final terminus.

Pleasant as syrup; nothing equals it as a worm medicine; the name is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

Owners of property at Port Moody are very active and bitter in their opposition to the proposed sale of public squares. They seem to imagine that if a line is built to this city it will be carried to Coal Harbor, and Port Moody will suffer. Now, when the C. P. R. comes into the hands of the syndicate they will make the terminus wherever the interests of commerce will be best served. It is perfectly ridiculous to suppose that the paltry bonus of $50,000 offered by this city will for a moment influence their plans in which millions of dollars are involved. But, suppose it would injure Port Moody property! Are the people of this city content to throw away the most important advantage ever presented to them for the sake of accommodating a few Port Moody speculators? This matter belongs exclusively to the city of New Westminster, and we advise the ratepayers to consider well the situation before rejecting a scheme fraught with so great present and future consequences.

It is being stated on the street that the gentlemen who hold the New Westminster and Port Moody Railway charter are promoting the reserve sale because they expect to grab several thousand dollars for the franchise they hold. The whole cost of obtaining this charter was about $600, and the members of the company have all along asserted that they had no intention of making money out of it. Mr. Knevett last year stated his perfect willingness to hand the charter over either to the city or the C. P. R. syndicate for what it cost, provided a sufficient guarantee were given for the construction and maintenance of the road. Mr. Cunningham made a similar declaration publicly. The other members of the company are Mayor Dickinson, Dr. McInnes, Messrs. Bole, Hendry and Coulthard. It is easy for any citizen to ascertain the views of any of these gentlemen, and we venture to assert that a majority of them, if not every one, will cheerfully give up the charter to any responsible corporation on payment of the cost of procuring it.

It is scarcely possible that this continent will escape the cholera plague which is now making such serious havoc in Europe. Although quarantine regulations, if strictly enforced, may for a time keep off the disease, it will almost certainly find its way through, and the consequences no one can predict. Scientific investigation, if it has failed to discover a remedy for cholera, or a sure prevention, has at least demonstrated the fact that absolute cleanliness is one of the most necessary precautions. It has been found generally that the disease is most prevalent and most fatal where filth existed, and rarely attacks those who keep their persons and their premises in a wholesome condition. Low, damp places are favorable to the development of the disease, and it luxuriates in defective sewers and obnoxious odors. This fact should not pass unheeded. In view of the probable visitation every person should begin now to prepare for contingencies. The premises should be thoroughly examined; all filth and garbage should be carefully removed and burned or buried; above all, the wells should be carefully tested to see if the water is pure and wholesome, for bad water is almost sure to propagate the disease. Lime, or other disinfectants, should be freely scattered about premises where germs of decomposition may be suspected, and personal habits should be strictly regulated. With pure air, pure water, clean premises, clean persons, and correct habits and diet, the danger of attack from cholera may be reduced to a minimum.

Notice to Mariners!

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a new Channel has been found through the Sand Heads of the Fraser River, with 8 feet at low water summer spring tides.

It is marked with black buoys numbered consecutively from 1 to 9. A red buoy is moored on the South Sand Head. In steering for this channel vessels must keep on the leading marks at Howe Sound to clear the Sand Heads until Garry Bush bears N. E. by E. magnetic and then steer for it; pass ¼ cable distant on the south side of the black buoys, and after passing No. 9 steer for No. 15 fairway buoy and pass it on either side, and thence to Garry Point entrance to Fraser River.

The Sand Heads Lighthouse bears S. 39 deg. E. magnetic, 1 mile 9 cables distant from No. 1 buoy.

There is 5 feet at low water summer spring tides in the old or south channel.

Snowshoe Creek, Cariboo.—The Snowshoe Company, which has been three years engaged in running a tunnel on Snowshoe creek, are nearing bedrock. They have got gravel which prospects ten cents to the pan, with excellent indications.—Colonist.

Another Heavy Sale.—The policy of the local government continues to "ruin" the country. The Hastings Company's property, comprising lots 196 and 181 (304 acres) the mill and outbuildings, store and contents, timber leases, etc., has been sold for $275,000. The logs, etc., were to be taken at a valuation.—Colonist.

Railway Accident.—On Friday of last week, as the train approached a small tunnel above the suspension bridge, the roof of the tunnel collapsed and fell immediately in front of the engine. It was impossible to stop the train, which crashed through the debris, frightening everybody almost to death. Fortunately no person was hurt.

The Island Railway.—It is understood that actual work on the Island railway will be commenced in the course of a few weeks and that the work will be given out in a way that will enable men of small means to compete for limited sections. The plan will be made know shortly. It is gratifying to know that the great undertaking will be commenced so soon and that a large number of laborers will find employment thereon during the fall and winter.—Colonist.

Dangerous.—A number of Indians have camped just beyond the Royal City Planing Mills. Their camp is upon the shavings and sawdust, and there they build their fires. Should the sparks from these fires happen to light among the shavings at night, a conflagration such as has never been known in this city might be the result. It is not right that valuable property should thus be endangered, and these Indians ought to be required to move their camp at once. There is plenty good camping ground elsewhere. The camp is not only dangerous, but it is the scene of very disgraceful proceedings.

Travelers' Vexations.—The strs. Eliza Anderson and Geo. E. Starr have lately become very irregular in their movements, and great is the vexation of travelers thereat. The Anderson announces that she will sail at 8 o'clock in the morning, and the Starr that she will leave right after the Anderson. If at 8 o'clock the Anderson has not secured her quota of passengers, she does not go. Inquirers are told she will go when she gets her number and not before. Those on the other boat get restive by noon, and very impatient and cross by 3 or 4 o'clock. By the time they cannot stand it any longer they change boats, or they go over and buy tickets on the Anderson to make up the requisite number, and then return and take passage on the Starr. The traveling public do not like these irregularities and delays, and disregarding the difference in fares, in a majority of cases bestow their patronage upon the higher priced but more reliable North Pacific, Olympian, Mexico, and Queen of the Pacific.—Seattle Post.

Wedding Bells.—On Wednesday morning the marriage of Maria Amy, the third daughter of the Ven. Archdeacon Woods, and Dr. R. I. Bentley, was solemnized at Holy Trinity church in this city. The service was in accordance with the usage of the Church of England, followed by the celebration of the eucharist, the officiating priests being the Venerable Archdeacon of Columbia and the Rev. Charles Blanchard. The choir for the occasion was formed of the two senior (girls) classes of the Sunday school, one of them being the bride's own class. The hymns were well and heartily sung, Mr. Morey presiding at the organ. The bride entered the church by the west door on the arm of her brother, Mr. Charles E. Woods, and was met at the entrance by her eight bridesmaids, Miss L. Woods, Miss E. Woods, Miss Dickinson, Miss Homer, Miss Pooley, Miss Trew, Miss N. Trew, and Miss Corbould. As the bridal procession entered hymn 350 was sung. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Gordon Gamble, of Victoria, who acted as groomsman. As the bride and bridegroom left church the Wedding March was played by the organist. There was a large attendance of spectators, and everybody was pleased with the charming appearance of the bride. She wore a petticoat of cream figured silk, with train and bodice of nun's veiling, both bodice and petticoat trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms, myrtle and jessamine. Clusters of the same were worn in the hair, under the tulle veil. The dresses of the bridesmaids were of nun's veiling, two pale green, two pink, and four of cream color, cream lace caps, with deep crimson roses; and each bridesmaid carried a basket of beautiful flowers, the gift of the bridegroom. After the service the wedding party adjourned to breakfast at the rectory, which was followed by an "at home," when a large number of friends presented their congratulations. The bride and bridegroom left by the str. Yosemite for an extensive eastern trip. They will go by the Northern Pacific Railway, and will spend several weeks in Ontario. The Columbian offers congratulations and best wishes.

Farewell Address.

At the Blue Ribbon entertainment last Wednesday night there was a good attendance, and the following programme was presented: Chorus by the choir; solos by Mrs. Francis, Miss White and Mr. H. L. DeBeck; instrumental trio by Prof. Francis, Mr. Darcy and Miss DeBeck; readings by Mrs. Jas. Cunningham, and Mr. Fred Howay. At the close of the programme Miss Martha Grant, on behalf of the club, read the following address:

Miss S. J. White, M. E. L.—Dear Madam.—The members of the Blue Ribbon Club of New Westminster, deeply conscious of the obligations under which they are placed to you, cannot allow this opportunity to pass without presenting some acknowledgment of their indebtedness. They wish to assure you that they will ever preserve a grateful remembrance of the kinkness and courtesy which have induced you to contribute in such an important degree to the success of the various public entertainments which they have given during your residence in this city. The valuable aid you have rendered on all such occasions has been to them a source of unmingled pleasure, while the readiness with which you have sacrificed personal feelings and convenience in order to comply with their numerous demands has won for you their unqualified esteem and admiration. Hoping that you will not measure their appreciation of your various acts of kindness by the extent of the accompanying gift, they would desire also to express the wish that your future pathway may be one of continued prosperity and joy, and that the same kind Providence which has hitherto watched over you may add yet many years of pleasure, and reward a life of usefulness by a crown and kingdom which shall never fade. Signed on behalf of the Blue Ribbon Club. W. R. Austin, pres't.; H. L. DeBeck, vice.

Miss White was presented with a very beautiful writing desk, for which she returned thanks in a few appropriate remarks. After the public meeting was dismissed a business meeting was held at which the following officers were elected: Rev. G. B. Allen, president; Rev. C. Watson, vice; Mr. W. R. Austin, 2nd vice; Mr. H. L. DeBeck, sec. It was decided to have no refreshments at the entertainments during the summer.

HOT SULPHUR SPRINGS OF HARRISON LAKE.

Few of the inhabitants of British Columbia are aware that, in close proximity to this city, warm sulphur springs exist of wonderful curative properties unrivalled by many other medicinal warm springs in other parts of the world where multitudes are attracted for health or pleasure. From various causes these springs have hitherto attracted little or no attention, mainly, perhaps, because no analysis of the water has been made, and its medicinal properties have been scarcely known at all. For many generations the Indians have been accustomed to resort to these springs, with the very best results to those who were suffering from various ailments. The following extract from a report to the chief commissioner of lands and works, made in October, 1873, by Mr. John Fannin, is the only public notice we have seen of these springs: "At the foot of the (Harrison) lake, to the right, and about half a mile from its junction with the river, is situated a hot spring,

THE STEAM ARISING

from which can be seen from some distance as we approach it. The existence of this spring has been known for years; but I am not aware that any particular attention has been paid to it, or the medicinal properties of its waters determined. For aught we know it may be as valuable as the hot springs of California, which constantly attract invalids from this country. The Indians have for a long time been in the habit of using it in certain cases of sickness, and the plan they adopt is this: A piece of cedar bark is placed on the ground at the edge of the spring from where the steam is rising, and the invalid, covered with a blanket, sits in a crouched position on this bark for hours at a time; and if they are to be believed, many cures have been effected. To test the temperature of the water we threw in a salt salmon, which was cooked in a few minutes." These springs are situated, as stated in the above extract, at the foot of Harrison Lake, close to the shore line, and the hot water running into the lake mingles with the ice-cold lake water. This makes an admirable place for bathing, as any desirable temperature may be found by keeping close to the shore or a short distance from it. This temperature is preserved during the whole year. The flow is continuous, and probably does not vary to any extent. The distance from Harrisonmouth by steamer is about 12 miles; from Harrison station on the C. P. R. 7 miles; from Agassiz (Ferney Coombe) 4 miles. The situation is being at the extreme western end of Harrison Lake, which has a length of about 50 miles, with a breadth varying from 2 to 4 miles. This beautiful sheet of water is dotted here and there with islands of the most lovely and picturesque character, and the lake is surrounded by grand and majestic mountains, clothed with timber and verdure, and in some cases covered with perpetual snow, the white caps towering aloft and glittering in the sun like so many diadems. Here and there sloping points extend out into the water, and between these are small bays with sand or gravel beaches, affording ample protection from any wind, and forming admirable places for camping or picnicing. The clear green water of the lake, contrasting so well with the various surroundings, makes the scenery charming to a degree seldom if ever equalled by any resort on the Pacific coast. In fact the region of Harrison Lake generally is so distinguished for the variety and beauty of its attractions that it is sure to attract attention as a favorite spot for those in search of pleasure and recreation. Its accessibility, coupled with its other advantages, gives it a prominence which must command attention. Yachting and canoeing are here afforded a greater scope than at any other point we know of.

FINE FISHING

may be found in any of the mountain streams that abound; fair duck shooting is within easy reach; deer and grouse are exceedingly plentiful; and there is nothing wanting necessary to the sportsman, the pleasure seeker, or the invalid. The complete absence of black flies, mosquitoes, or other noxious insects, is another notable characteristic of Harrison Lake. The temperatures of the water of some of the celebrated hot springs are as follows: Baden Baden, 154° Farh.; Carsbad, Bohemia, 122; Teplitz, Bohemia, 120; Paso Robles, Cal., 110; Arkansas Hot Springs, 148; while the hot sulphur springs of Harrison Lake have a temperature of degrees! The water contains sulphuretted hydrogen in large quantities, and an analysis lately made by W. T. Wenzel, Ph. G. M.D., professor of chemistry in the California College of Pharmacy, gives the following result: "Sulphate of sodium, sulphate of calcium, sulphate of magnesium, chloride of sodium, chloride of potassium, alumina, silica." In his report Prof. Wenzell says: "The total amount of solid constituents contained in an imperial wine gallon equals 89½ grains. The character of the water is that of a mild aparient, the sulphate being by far in the largest proportion." Our enterprising citizen Mr. J. C. Armstrong is the fortunate owner of these springs, and we believe it is his intention at an early day to erect a hotel with suitable appliances for a sanitarium so as to afford the people an opportunity of enjoying the advantages of this delightful resort next season. In this we wish him complete success.

The most deadly foe to all malarial diseases is Ayer's Ague Cure, a combination of vegetable ingredients only, of which the most valuable is used in no other known preparation. This remedy is an absolute and certain specific, and succeeds when all other medicines fail. A cure is warranted.

From the Interior.

Rev. R. B. Hemlaw, who arrived yesterday from the upper country, reports crops about Nicola and Kamloops somewhat above the average, and at Spallumcheen they are simply magnificent. Hay will be short at Nicola and Kamloops on account of the dry weather. At Cash Creek the crops are almost a total failure. Stock is in excellent condition, and the late rains have greatly improved the grass ranges. There has been a considerable increase in the quantity of stock since last year. Through the interior generally, especially at Spallumcheen, there has been steady improvement during the past year or two. New settlers are continually arriving, the area of land under cultivation has been enlarged, and new buildings have been erected. The new government road from Nicola Lake to Douglas Lake is nearly completed, and will be a great benefit to the settlers. The people complain bitterly of the carrying monopoly, and assert that, notwithstanding the extension of the railway, it costs more now to carry goods into the interior than it did last year. A petition is being extensively circulated asking for the construction of a road from Nicola to Hope so as to avoid existing monopolies. Throughout Spallumcheen there is no liquor license, except one wholesale, and the people generally are determined that none shall be granted. Mr. Hemlaw is of opinion that Spallumcheen is destined to be the most important and flourishing settlement in British Columbia.

A lady from Syracuse writes: "For about seven years before taking Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I suffered from a complaint very prevalent with our sex. I was unable to walk any distance or stand on my feet for more than a few minutes at a time without feeling exhausted, but now I am thankful to say, I can walk two miles without feeling the least inconvenience." For Female Complaints it has no equal.

From Granville.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

Granville and the country surrounding it seems to be on the eve of a mighty real estate boom. Daily we see the smiling faces of rich land speculators noting the property that is, and may soon be, for sale in this chosen spot. With all its desirability for a large continental terminus, no matter what its detractors may say to the contrary, Granville is the best harbor on the inlet, and the very large tract of land encircling it, at present lying idle, will soon be utilized. The people here are merely waiting for that land boom that is so surely coming in the near future. Late events are a sure harbinger of the grand results that will so quickly follow. Stores, wharves, ware-houses will be built with surprising rapidity, and the hearts of the old residents of this locality will joyously gladden as the pleasing prospect draws nearer of a life of ease and competency—and they certainly deserve it, after their frequent disappointments and toil in the past. "Such is life." On this peninsula nature has been very lavish in all the requirements that will eventually make Granville a large and prosperous city,—good water, good anchorage in the bay, and thousands of acres of dry land gradually sloping to the harbor. This place is 10 miles nearer the sea-board than Port Moody, and is a much better location for a city in all respects. This fact is so well known that it is needless to draw comparisons which could only be very unfavorable to Port Moody. All that we require is a little time to perfect the arrangements that will surely transform Granville into a large, busy, wealthy city. Land within two miles of Granville sells readily at from $100 to $250 per acre, this being rather at its prospective value for private residences, as it has no actual worth for agricultural purposes. Granville has a fine harbor amply protected from the north-east, south-west and west, and certainly requires no breakwater to afford perfect safety to vessels from all winds. Strangers pleasure-seeking greatly enjoy boat sailing on this beautiful bay; and to this is added the comforts of home, blended with the luxuries of first-class hotels, and delightful bathing in the warm salubrious waters of False Creek, which is here attainable. At present there are quite a number of ladies and gentlemen here enjoying this pleasant pastime. Still Granville with all its apparent prosperity has a great need, and it is a most urgent one—that is, the want of a public cemetery, to bury our loved friends and relatives when they cease to be with us in this world. Last year a public meeting was called and three of our most influential citizens were appointed to interview our govt. members upon this subject, and nothing has resulted from that step. At that meeting it was remarked that there was a govt. reserve for that purpose at the southern part of Granville, and bordering on False Creek. Now, Mr. Editor, can you inform us if that piece of govt. reserve cannot be made available for such a good purpose, instead of causing the relations of the dead the unnecessary anguish of mind in seeing their loved ones jolted over a very rough road of 15 miles on their way to Sapperton, and frequently through very inclement weather? It has now become a known fact that nature has made one of the most beautiful cemeteries on this coast on this same piece of reserve that was wisely laid out by the govt. surveyor many years ago. This really pleasant location contains nearly ten acres and is situated on a gentile incline gradually sloping to False Creek, from 20 to 30 feet above high water mark. It has also excellent soil, dry and gravelly. A visit to this charming locality will surely dispel any false ideas about its being too wet. At present this fine piece of land is worked by the indefatigable John Chinaman, who has about five acres under cultivation. John's only complaint is that the land is too dry to raise vegetables successfully. I should say this place is a short half mile from the Methodist parsonage, Granville, and a road can be made with very little expense. Our present govt. have dealt very liberally with New Westminster district, and we are correspondingly thankful; still we earnestly request that this piece of land may be formally handed over to Granville for a cemetery, and that the short term prisoners may be allowed to make a road to it. Want of time prevents further remark on this subject at present.

M. Sheehan, of Oscoda, Mich., writes: "I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on horses for different diseases, and found it to be just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and it is the best Oil for horses I ever used." Observe that the name "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil" is on front of the wrapper, as there are imitations of it.

From the North Coast.

From Tuesday's Colonist.

The steamer Barbara Boscowitz, five and a half days from Skeena river, via all the ports except Nanaimo, arrived last evening, bringing Superintendent Roycroft, one Indian murderer and three Indian witnesses in the Yeoman's murder case. The superintendent reports that after leaving Victoria on the 23rd of last month, with Mr. Elliott, S. M., and Officer Hough, the Barbara Boscowitz reached Skeena river on the 28th ult. Finding difficulty in getting canoes to ascend the river owing to the high stage of the water they proceeded to Naas river, took a canoe and a crew of three Indians from Port Simpson, and went as far as Greenville on Naas river, where they met with much difficulty in procuring Indians to pack into the Forks of Skeena. Had it not been for the praiseworthy influence of an Indian chief they would not have succeeded in getting packers, word having been sent down from the Forks that if any saltwater Indians came up with the officers they would be killed. From Greenville the party went to the head of navigation on the Naas and thence by trail to a point 35 miles below Skeena forks. They passed through a valley from 50 to 60 miles in length, which Mr. Roycroft considers one of the best feeding sections he has ever seen. It is well watered, and timothy and wild hay abound. The hills are low and the land is surprisingly fertile.

The party with the assistance of Mr. Wood, lay missionary, got a canoe and crew which took them on to Hazleton. A report having reached the Skeena-forks Indians that another party of officers were coming over to take the murderer, they imagined the superintendent's force to be a second party, and were greatly alarmed at the idea of being surrounded. Much difficulty was experienced in keeping the packers together, they being greatly afraid of the interior tribes, and wishing frequently to desert. The force reached Hazleton (Skeena Forks) on Thursday, the 17th of July, and found very few Indians at the village, they having gone out to fish. The murderer of Yeomans was also out fishing. The chief was sent for, and he came in the same night. A council was arranged for 10 o'clock the next morning. The whole tribe attended the council. Messrs. Elliott and Roycroft addressed them, saying that the Queen would not be content unless the murderer was given up, and that she never suffered defeat; that the government were thoroughly satisfied the tribe would understand their position and surrender the murderer. That was the reason why so small a force had been sent. After several speeches Mr. Roycroft informed the chief that he would remain in the village till the murderer was brought in. This was done soon afterwards, and the superintendent arrested him at once and led him to the mission-house next door, and disarmed him of a knife. The Indians demurred at the taking of the man, but were told that he would not be surrendered.

Council was held the day following, the Hackelgates and the Kittelas tribes coming to the court fully armed. The guns were left outside at the command of the superintendent, but the Indians carried their knives into the court-room, in and about which there were gathered 300 warriors. Mr. Elliott presided, and after the witnesses for the prosecution had been examined, the murderer was cautioned and advised not to make a defense. But he said: "I felt when I heard my son was dead, and Charley Yeomans had been in the place three days without telling me, that Yeomans had killed my son. Some one told me—it was not my friend who told me, but an evil spirit that entered my heart—to go and kill Yeomans. Then I walked down and stabbed him. I was like a drunken man—furious—when I did it. The knife taken off me by Mr. Roycroft is the one I killed Yeomans with; I feel very sorry; but it couldn't be helped; I will go with the police and see the white tyhee; my friends tell me to kill myself; but I won't do it; I ask all my friends to let me go with the police—not to trouble themselves about me; the white tyhee will look after me."

Mr. Elliott then committed the prisoner for trial, and Mr. Roycroft and Officer Hough conducted the old man and three witnesses to a canoe and left the same evening for Victoria. Mr. Elliott, owing to Mr. Sampare, of the Hudson Bay Co., feeling alarmed at the threatening attitude of the Indians, decided to remain at the Forks until the next day. The next day, Mr. Roycroft afterwards learned, the Indians left town and went back to their fishing stations. Yeomans' most valuable goods have been brought to the mouth of Skeena river, and Officer Hough will remain with them till the next boat leaves for Victoria. The weather was fine during the trip. The heat was intense and the party were greatly troubled with mosquitoes and flies. They enjoyed excellent health throughout. The murderer, who is about 55 years of age and has several children, was committed to prison last night. His conduct was most exemplary on the way down. In going through the canyon where his son was drowned the poor man showed intense grief, crying bitterly and wringing his hands. Supt. Roycroft tied him in the bottom of the boat, fearing that he would jump overboard, and after the canyon had been passed the old man said that but for being tied he would have committed suicide.

Counting Noses.

Republicans claim that Mr. Blaine can be elected without the vote of New York, and base their claim on the following figures:—

Connecticut	6	Nevada	3
California	8	New Hampshire	4
Colorado	3	Ohio	23
Illinois	22	Oregon	3
Indiana	15	Pennsylvania	30
Iowa	13	Rhode Island	4
Kansas	9	Vermont	4
Maine	6	Wisconsin	11
Massachusetts	14
Minnesota	7	Total	203
Nebraska	5

They concede to the Democracy the following States:—

Alabama	10	New York	36
Arkansas	7	New Jersey	9
Deleware	3	North Carolina	11
Florida	4	South Carolina	8
Georgie	12	Tennessee	12
Kentucky	13	Texas	13
Louisiana	9	Virginia	12
Maryland	8	West Virginia	6
Mississippi	9
Missouri	16	Total	193

The Democrats to elect their candidate must carry New York and Indiana or New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. New York, by the nomination of Cleveland may be conceded to the Democracy. Indiana, it therefore appears, will be the great battle ground of the presidential contest of 1884, and Hendricks' nomination is likely to carry that state.

Volumes of Bombast have been published about the multifarious and irreconcilable effects of many proprietary medicines. The proprietors of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery content themselves with facts susceptible of proof. They state their Purifier to be what it has proved itself to be, an eradicator of Dyspepsia, Constipation, Liver and Kidney troubles, and a fine general alterative.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

London, Eng., July 23.—The Canadians won the Kalapore cup at Wimbledon. The score was as follows: Canadian team, 665 points; English team, 660 points; Indian team, 576.

Paris, July 28.—Le Figaro has a bitter article declaring that England never helped, but always thwarted France. Her friendship is false, and her alliance with her hollow. Le Figaro advises France to abandon relations with England, give up her prejudices and hatred and make an alliance with Germany—Germany was an honest enemy—she would be an honest ally.

London, July 28.—The survivors of steamship Laxham, which collided with the Spanish steamer Gijon, report that on the evening of the collision there was a thick fog: The Laxham was going slow, and both steamers were sounding their whistles. The Gijon struck the Laxham amidships, and the latter was nearly cut asunder. The funnel fell and the steam pipe burst. The chief engineer was horribly scalded. Most of the Laxham's crew boarded the Gijon. Capt. Lothian tied his wife and child to himself, and the three were hauled aboard the Gijon. The Laxham sank twenty minutes after the collision. It was not long before the Gijon began to settle. Terrible confusion prevailed. The captain stood with a revolver in his hands, but was unable to keep order. The passengers and crew were fighting for their lives. Boats were lowered, filled to the gunwales, but they could not accommodate half the people. Those fortunate enough to secure places in them were obliged to keep off the others with knives. The Gijon sank bow first. The quarter deck was crowded with men and women, and the captain and officers were standing on the bridge. It is estimated that 130 passengers perished.

San Francisco, July 29.—To-morrow the Alta will publish the following: "Baron Pierce de Bonnemain, who has been entertained in the highest society circles of this city for some time past, and who has until within a few days been stopping at Monterey, has disappeared, leaving many unpaid bills behind. During his sojourn in San Francisco he borrowed of a Frenchman named Vize $4800. This he also failed to return."

Chicago, July 29.—The arrival of a number of sick cattle having been reported at the Union stockyards in this city an examination was made by veterinary surgeons. They agreed that the disorder is the Texas fever superinduced by drinking water strongly impregnated with alkali. The cattle have been secured in quarantine. Another train consisting of 12 cars containing 240 head of cattle arrived this morning. They were branded the same as the herd which were found to be diseased. Fifteen were found dead in the cars, 155 had been thrown out dead on the way, and a great many others were sick. Drs. Paarin and Dewolf declare that th[e] trouble i[s] [illegible] including those of yesterday, were ordered killed, making about 500 head in all. In view of the fact that the cattle were thoroughly quarantined before killing, it is not believed the trouble will extend any further.

Marseilles, July 30.—The sale of melons is prohibited. The cholera is gaining in area what it has lost in intensity. It has made its appearance in some villages previously exempt. Owing to popular prejudice it is dangerous for doctors to walk alone in the suburbs at night, one doctor while visiting a woman who had been seized with cholera being assaulted by her son, who drew a revolver and compelled him to leave the house. Several other doctors have been assaulted.

London, July 30.—A dispatch from Foo Chow to the Times states that there is great excitement in that city among foreigners and citizens. The French men-of-war off the port are under steam and cleared for action. High authority in Foo Chow, however, declares that peace will certainly be maintained.

Paris, July 30.—Advices from Shanghai state that the potentate is pressing the Viceroy of Nankin to obtain from Pekin confirmation of the special commercial rights of France with the southern provinces. The French minister offers to withdraw indemnity claims on China if the privileges of the French are extended.

London, July 30.—German, Austrian and Italian delegates to the Egyptian conference will support a compromise on the Egyptian question. The terms of the compromise are that a reduction of one-half of one per cent. on the interest on the Egyptian debt shall be made if the revenue derived from the land tax does not reach the estimate. Waddington, French ambassador, made a final reference to the convention of the French terms.

Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgil, N. Y., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one application also removed the pain from a sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed—so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty-four hours was entirely cured."

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES!

(Special to the Columbian.)

Marseilles, Aug. 1.—There is a marked decrease in the number of cholera cases throughout the cholera districts. The municipal council resolved to erect a tablet to commemorate the noble sacrifice of doctors and sisters of charity who were victims of the epidemic. Dr. Pairas, who died yesterday, will have a street named after him. There were 7 deaths from cholera in the department of Ardeche.

London, Aug. 1.—A despatch from Foo Chow to-day says there is a great panic there. Foreigners are arming for defence, ladies are leaving, and the French consuls are preparing to go on board the gun-boats.

Madagascar.—The prevalent idea that the whole interior of Madagascar is clothed with immense forests must give way before the recent discoveries of M. Grandidier, a young French explorer, which have been communicated to the French Academy of Sciences. The above idea has been propagated by erroneous charts ever since the middle ages. Grandidier finds that the whole eastern part of the highlands, extending over some two-thirds of it. These hills rise to a height of 7,000 or 8,000 feet, and are intersected by narrow glens and dried up lake beds. They are bare of trees, and for the most part covered with coarse herbage. The western part of the island is a plain, covered with grass or tufts of trees. A belt of timber encircles the whole island near the coast, and trees and grasses fringe the shores. The water courses which traverse the plain take their rise near the eastern side of the island.

Our Story.

A REMARKABLE STORY.

"He did ask for master, ma'am," said the man, "but as master's from home he said he must see my lady. He looks very flustered, I'll say that for him," he added.

To be sure, William had heard the whisper in the air, and was more or less gratified that Mr. Rule should be flustered; but as for his lady, she saw no connection whatever between Mr. Rule's excitement and herself.

"I do not see what good I can do him, William; and it's not an hour at which I ever receive people. I am sure I don't know what he can want with me."

"It's business, I think, ma'am," said the servant, with a little eagerness. He wanted immensely himself to know what it was, and it did not occur to him as possible that his mistress, so much more interested than he, should be without anxiety or concern.

"Business!" said Mrs. John, "what do I know about business! However," she added, "if he is so desirous, perhaps you had better show him up. Your master is always pleased when I pay a little attention to the clerks. He says it does good."

"Yes, ma'am," said William.

Being a reasonable human creature he was touched in spite of himself by the extraordinary sight of this poor, fine lady, sitting in her short sleeves on the edge of the volcano, and knowing nothing about it. It was too bad of master, William thought, if so be— To leave the poor lady entirely in the dark, so that she did not know any more than a baby what the clerk could want with her. William speculated, too, on his own circumstances as he went down stairs. If so be— It was a good place, and he would be sorry to lose it. But he remembered that somebody had said the Sandersons were looking out for a butler.

"Mrs. Vernon will see you, sir," he said, in the midst of these thoughts; and Mr. Rule followed him eagerly up stairs.

But what could Mrs. John do? Her dress was spotted muslin, as most dresses were in those days; it was cut rather low on the shoulders, though she was not dressed for company. She had pretty little ringlets falling upon her cheeks, and short sleeves, and a band round her waist with a shining clasp. She was considered brilliant in conversation, and sang, "We met, 'twas in a crowd," and the songs previously mentioned, with so much feeling that people had been known to weep as they listened. The clerk had heard of all these accomplishments, and as he hurried in, his eye was caught by the harp in its corner, which was also one of the fashions of the time. He could not help being a little overawed by it, notwithstanding his dreadful anxiety. Poor lady! the thought passed through his mind as similar thoughts had passed through William's—would all this be sold away from her? White muslin dressess with low necks have the advantage that they quite seem to separate their wearers from everyday life. We have no doubt that the dying out of chivalry, and the way in which women nowadays insist on doing their business, and most likely other people's too, is in great part to be put down to high dresses and long sleeves. In these habilliments a lady looks not so very much different from other people. She feels herself free to go into common life. But Mrs. John sat there, helpless, ignorant, quite composed and easy in her mind, with pretty feet in sandaled slippers peeping from under the dress. Mr. Rule had time for all this distressed, regretful sympathy before he could stammer out in a hurry his anxious question—or rather his hope—that Mr. Vernon would be home to-morrow—early?

"I am sure I don't know," said Mrs. John. "It would be scarcely worth his while to go away if he was to be back so soon. He said perhaps tomorrow, but more likely next week."

"Next week!" cried Mr. Rule; "then he may just as well stay away altogether; it will then be too late."

"Dear me!" said Mrs. John, politely, willing to show an interest; but she did not know what more to say.

"Perhaps you know where he is, ma'am?" said the anxious clerk—for this was the time when people said ma'am. "We might send an express after him. If he were here things might still be tided over. Excuse me, any information— if you can give me

"Dear me," said Mrs. John, "my husband was going to London, I think. Is it about business, or anything I may know?"

"All the world will know to-morrow," cried the agitated clerk, "unless you can give me some assistance. I don't like to trouble a lady, but what can I do? Mrs. Vernon, to-morrow is market-day, and as sure as that day comes, if he is not here to make some provision for it, we shall have a run on the bank."

"A run on the bank!" said Mrs. John, dismayed. "What does that mean?"

"It means that we shall have to pay every note that is presented to us in gold; and that everybody will rush upon us with our notes in their hands; and all the people who have deposit accounts will withdraw their money. It means ruin," said Mr. Rule, very much flustered indeed, wiping the perspiration from his brow. He had an account himself, and a considerable sum to his credit. Oh, the fool he had been to let it lie there instead of investing it! but then, he had been waiting for a good investment, and, in the meantime, Vernon's was as safe safer, than the Bank of England. He had believed that till to-day.

Mrs. John sat looking at him with bewildered eyes.

"I don't understand," she said. "The bank of course, is for that, isn't it? I never understand how you do it," she added, with a little of the sprightliness for which she was distinguished. "It has always been a mystery to me what good it can do you to take all the trouble of paying other people's bills for them, and locking up their money, and having all that responsibility; but I cannot deny that it seems to answer," she concluded, with a little simper.

The harassed clerk looked at her with a pity that was almost tragic. If she had not been so handsome, and so fine, and surrounded with all these luxuries, it is very likely he would have been impatient, and considered her a fool.

He replied gently:

"I dare say, ma'am, it is difficult for you to form an idea of business; but I am almost forgetting, sitting talking to you, how dreadfully serious it is. If I knew where Mr. Vernon was, I would send a post-chaise directly. We are lost if he is not here. They will say—God knows what they may not say. For God's sake, ma'am, tell me how I am to find him!"

"Indeed, Mr. Rule, I am very, very sorry. If I had known! but I rather encouraged him to go. He was looking so poorly. He was going to town, I am sure—first: and then perhaps to Bath: or he might go across to France. He has been talking of that. France—yes, I suggested it. He has never been on the Continent. But, now I think of it, I don't think he will go there, for he said he might be home to-morrow—though more likely next week."

"It seems very vague," said Mr. Rule, looking at her with a steady look that began to show a gleam of suspicion; but this was entirely out of place. Mrs. John answered lightly, without any perception even of what he could he mean.

"Oh, yes, it was vague! it is so much better not to be tied down. I told him he ought to take me; but it was settled in a hurry, he was feeling so poorly."

"Then he has forsaken us!" cried the clerk, in a terrible voice, which shook even her obtuse perceptions. She gazed at him with a little glow of anger.

"Forsaken you! Dear me, surely a little holiday never can matter. Why, the servants could go on without me for a time. It would never come into Mr. Vernon's head that you could not manage by yourselves even for a single day."

The clerk did not answer; it was all such a terrible muddle of ignorance and innocence, and perhaps of deep and deliberate guilt. But, anyhow, there was the result beyond all uncertainty. The bank must come down. Vernon's, which it had taken the work of generations to build up; Vernon's, which was safer than the Bank of England. Mr. Rule had been a clerk there, man and boy, for about twenty years. He had been one of old Mr. Vernon's staff. He had a pride in the bank as if it had been his own. To give up Vernon's to destruction seemed more than giving himself up. But what could the clerks do without the principal? A lieutenant may fight his ship if the captain falls, or a subaltern replace his leader, but what can the clerks do without the head of the establishment? And he had no authority to act, even if he had known how to act; and every two or three minutes there would come across him the poignant recollection of his own deposit. Oh, the Alnaschar hopes he had built upon that little fortune, the ways in which it was to serve him! He tried honestly, however, to put it away from his mind.

"We could have done well enough on an ordinary occasion," he said, "and Mr. Vernon generally settles everything before he goes; but I thought he was only absent for the day. Mrs. Vernon," he cried, suddenly, "can't you help us? It will be ruin for you too."

She stared at him for a moment without speaking, and then:

"You make me quite wretched. I don't understand. I have only a little money in the house. Would that do any good?" she said.

"How much have you?" said the clerk, in his trouble.

She ran to a pretty ornamental desk and opened it nervously.

"I dare say there may be about twenty pounds," she said.

He laughed loudly, harshly, a laugh that seemed to echo through the large, unoccupied room.

"If it were twenty thousand it might do something," he said.

"Sir!" said Mrs. John Vernon, standing in a fine attitude of displeasure by her desk, holding it open with one hand. She looked like a picture by Sir Thomas Lawrence, her scarf, for she wore a scarf, hanging half off her pretty white shoulders, caught upon one equally white arm, her ringlets waving on her cheek. His laugh was rude, and then he was only a clerk. She was all angry scorn from the high knot of brown hair on the top of her head to the point of her sandaled shoe.

Poor Mr. Rule was as penitent as man could be. He was shocked beyond measure by his own brutality. He had forgotten himself—and before a lady! He made the most abject apologies.

"But my interest in the bank will, I hope, be some excuse. I feel half distracted," he said; and he added, as he backed out at the door with painful bows, "Perhaps, ma'am, if you can think of any means of communicating with Mr. Vernon, you would let me know; or I will call later, if we could send an express; nothing is too much for the chance of having him back to-morrow."

"Well," said the lady, "you are strange ... cannot get on without my ... that one day."

"It is not that, ma'am, it is not that."

"I don't know what it is. I begin to think it is only making a fuss," Mrs. John said.

* * * * * *

Poor Mr. Rule rushed out into the night in a state of despair. It was a summer night, and the streets of Redborough were still full of the murmur of life and movement. He came down from the slope on which Mr. John Vernon's grand new house was situated, into the town, turning over everything that it was possible to do. Should he go to the Old Bank, the life-long rival of Vernon's, and ask their help to pull through? Even such a humiliation he would have endured had there been any chance of success. Should he go to the agent of the Bank of England? He could not but feel that it was quite doubtful whether between them they could make up enough to meet the rush he expected; and were they likely to do it? Would not the first question be, "Where is Mr. Vernon?" And where was Mr. Vernon? Perhaps gone to Bath, perhaps to France, his wife said. Why should he go to France without letting any one at the bank know, saying he was only to be absent a day? There was no telegraph in those days, and if he confided Mr. Vernon's story to the other banks, what would they think of him? They would say that Vernon was mad, or that he had—gone away. There could be no doubt of what they would say. Rule was faithful to his old service, and to the honor of the house which had trained him. He would say nothing about France or Bath. He would allow it to be understood that Mr. Vernon had gone to London to get the assistance necessary, and would come back in a post-chaise before the offices were open in the morning. And perhaps, he said to himself, perhaps it was so. God grant it might be so! Very likely he had not thought it necessary to enter into the matter to a lady. Poor thing, with her twenty pounds! that showed how much she knew of business; but it was very high-minded and innocent of her to offer all she had. It showed there was, at least, no harm in her thoughts.

DR. SPINNEY & CO.'S DISPENSARY,

NO. 11 KEARNEY STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

DR. SPINNEY, well known as the founder of the Montreal, (C. E.) Medical Institute, and late Proprietor of the SPINNEYVILLE INFIRMARY, would most respectfully inform his patients and the afflicted generally, that he still continues to treat chronic and nervous diseases with unparalleled success.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

Remember that procrastination is the thief of time so

COME AND BE HEALED.

It matters not what your troubles may be, come and let the Doctor examine your case. It will cost you nothing for consultation, so please call and satisfy yourselves whether the Doctor understands your case. If he can cure you he will tell you so; if not, he will tell you that, for he will not undertake a case unless he is confident of effecting a cure.

Parties at a distance wishing treatment, by sending $25 and a minute description of their troubles will receive in return a full course of treatment securely packed so as not to excite curiosity.

DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit Five Hundred Dollars for every case of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

P. S.—For diseases of short standing, a full course of medicines, sufficient for a cure, with all instructions, will be sent to any address on receipt of $10.
