LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

PILOT BOAT SUNK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—Late last night the pilot boat T. M. Allen collided with the bark Sir William Wallace, outside the heads, and the Allen was sunk. No lives were lost. The Allen was worth $12,000. The owners of the lost vessel will not sue the Wallace as they acknowledge it was a plain case of accident.

Three new cases of smallpox to-day.

A DESOLATED COUNTRY.

NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 5.—A gentleman who has recently visited the scene of earthquake troubles in the Montezuma District of Sonora, says that as winter advances the shocks become frequent and severe. There are now but few people left in Bavispe and vicinity, except those who are there for the purpose of investigating the phenomena, and the soldiers. The place has the appearance of an immense wreck, and a volcanic eruption is daily expected.

OFFER OF HELP.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Daily News prints this morning a despatch sent from Rome stating that advices from Massowah declare that Rosalulu, with a band of 40,000 followers, has offered to join the Italians on condition that he shall be created the Negus of Abyssinia upon the defeat of King John.

DILKE WILL CLEAR HIS CHARACTER.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Sir Charles Dilke expressed his views as to his returning to parliament last night at the Liberal Club dinner given at Hammersley. He said he hoped to be able to vindicate his honor to the courts, but failing in this he could only trust that the day would come when his countrymen would discover the true nature of the fabrication which had misled their judgment concerning himself. Then, and not until then, would he re-enter public life.

Reliable information from Brussels states that the authors of the forged letters which were sent to the czar have been ascertained to be a clique of financiers who were desirous of facilitating the Bulgarian loan. The Brussels authority for this statement says that the Orleanists are innocent of any participation in the forgeries.

NO CHANCE OF SUCCESS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Mr. Rice, of Minnesota, introduced a bill in the house to-day to admit free of duty the products of Minnesota forests belonging to American citizens and sawed in Canada.

C. R. Hall, Grayville, Ill., says: "I have sold at retail, 156 bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case, with a badly ulcerated throat, after a physician penciling it for several days to no effect, the Eclectric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately.

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON THE C. P. R.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—Information was received here this morning of a disastrous accident, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, a few miles west of White River. The telegraph agent at one of the stations on the line failed to cancel a freight train as he had been ordered to do and it collided with another freight train, on a trestle work ninety feet high. Both trains fell from the track into the abyss below, and two engineers, two firemen and two brakesmen were instantly killed. The other hands were seriously injured.

AN INVENTOR DEAD.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Wm. Emerson Baker, familiar as the inventor of the sewing machine that bears his name, died yesterday, aged sixty years.

TYPOS ON A STRIKE.

QUEBEC, Jan. 6.—All the French printers in this city are on a strike for nine hours per day, and increase in wages. They are backed up by the Knights of Labor, with whom the local Typographical Unions are connected. The English papers are all paying the wages demanded and having adopted the 9 hour system are not much affected by the strike. Some of the French papers have temporarily suspended publication and others print half sheets only.

ENERGETIC TEMPERANCE WORKERS.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. Jan. 6.—Intelligence has reached here from Macisonville, County seat of Madison Co., that a body of armed citizens calling themselves "Reformers," shot and killed Bill Bolo last night, and then hanged "Red" Paige and another man whose name is not known. Alf Whitten a friend of Bolo, was attacked and driven from the town. Bolo and his friends were in favor of maintaining saloons. Sheriff Black has applied to Governor Ross for troops. A state of terror prevails.

THE GREATEST TRANS-ATLANTIC SCHEME.

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—The official announcement is made that the Dominion government will soon provide a fast line of ocean steamers to cross the Atlantic in conjunction with the Canadian Pacific Railway. This will abolish the existing subsidies and facilitate travel and transfer of freight, so that by this plan the passengers and mails leaving Liverpool will be in Chicago by the time New York people are being landed there. The government in company with an English syndicate, will put on five steamers of 7,000 gross tons register and 13,000 horse-power, with a capacity for 425 saloon and intermediate and 1,000 third class passengers. They will have a maximum speed of twenty knots, draw 27 feet loaded, with a lifting capacity of 13,000 tons. They are to carry no heavy freight but will have accomodations for light and perishable produce. It is estimated that the establishment of this service would entail on expenditure of $6,000,000 and that each round trip would cost from $55,000 to $75,000.

PISTOLS AND COFFEE.

TUSCOLA, Ill., Jan. 6.—Last night after services at Mount Gilead church, eight miles southeast of this city, William Cruzan, son of a farmer in that locality, and Elijah Ulms, fought a duel at short range to settle an old grudge. Ulms' shot failed to take effect, but Cruzan lodged two bullets in his opponent, one of which passed through his breast, causing a mortal wound. Cruzan left suddenly for other parts.

THIS AFTERNOON'S DESPATCHES.

INTERFERENCE CAUSES MURDER.

UKIAH, Cal., Jan. 6.—John Watham was shot and killed here by Clarence White. The murder is the result of a divorce case pending in San Francisco, of George White against his wife, who is a sister of Clarence. Watham was a confidential friend of Geo. White, who is a millionaire, and is said to have aided the latter as witness in two other divorce cases in which the millionaire was one of the parties. In the pending case Watham is stated to have led Mrs. White into a compromising position and thus procured evidence to enable White to secure a divorce.

ANOTHER BOAT RACE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—A match has finally been arranged between Henry Peterson, a California oarsman, and O'Connor, the Toronto champion. The race takes place on March 18th, on San Francisco Bay. The course is 3 miles and the stakes $2,500 a side.

PASSENGER LIST.

A HARDENED MURDERER.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 6.—Nathan B. Sutton was hanged here this morning. Sutton was a farmer and shot and killed his neighbor, Alex. Martin, for allowing his cattle to wander on Sutton's land. Sutton this morning arose early and ate a fish breakfast. In reply to the question as to how he felt, he said "I never felt better." Mrs. McNeal, a charitable lady, called at the jail and prayed. She asked Sutton to pray for the forgiveness of his crime. He said, "I have no remorse and felt justified in killing Martin because the cattle trespassed on my land. I would rather go to Hell and give Martin a poke in the pit, than go to Heaven." Sutton walked firmly to the gallows, and when the jailors were adjusting the straps Sutton took hold of the noose saying, "I want to look at that necktie." At 12:16 the trap fell.

THE SITUATION UNCHANGED.

READING, Pa., Jan. 6.—The railroaders and miners strike is unchanged in appearances and indicates a crisis. The men are confident of ultimate success, while the railroad company and collieries say they can get plenty of non-union men to keep the business going. General Manager McLeod said, this morning, he had nothing to give out to-day and knew of nothing of interest to publish. It is certain, however, that something in the manner of a compromise with the men must be made in a few days as the scarcity of coal is becoming alarming. Every mail brings protests from the large business people.

INJUNCTION SERVED.

OMAHA, Jan. 6.—Yesterday an injunction was served on the state board of transportation, issued from the Circuit Court of the United States, in favor of the Union Pacific Railway Company. The injunction orders the board to desist from making, issuing, serving or in any manner attempting to fix, publish or enforce rates of tariff on freight and passengers over the Union Pacific or Omaha and Republican Valley Railroads, whether interstate on domestic, and from in any way intermeddling or interferring with the rates of tariff charged by the road.

RETALIATION DEMANDED.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—A mass meeting on Tuesday, under the auspices of the national fishery association, adopted a resolution of sympathy with the fisherman of New England in the existing fisheries trouble, declaring that Canadian fishing vessels should be denied in our ports any rights which Canada denies to our fishermen, and calling upon the president to exercise the retaliatory powers vested in him by the forty nineth congress. They protested against any re-establishment of one sided reciprocity with Canada and against the prosal to admit Canadian fish or other products free of duty.

Amos Hudgin, Toronto, writes: "I have been a sufferer from Dyspepsia for the past six years. All the remedies I tried proved useless, until Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure was brought under my notice. I have used two bottles with the best results, and can with confidence recommend it to those afflicted in like manner."

Daily British Columbian

Friday Evening, Jan. 6, 1888.

From an Ottawa despatch which will be found among our telegrams to-day, it will be seen that the Canadian government has decided upon a most important step in connection with transatlantic traffic. With a line of such magnificent steamships as are mentioned in the telegram, no other route will be able to compete for mails, express, and passenger traffic between Great Britain and Canada and the northern states. It will place the Canadian Pacific Railway in a much better position than it now occupies for securing the through trade both of the Atlantic and Pacific.

As an inducement for the people of Richmond to undertake the construction of roads and bridges leading to Burrard Inlet, it was stated publicly the other day that the city of Vancouver would do what no city in the province had yet done—establish a public market. The COLUMBIAN has for years been urging upon the people of Westminster the importance of establishing a market in this city, but without result. If we propose to keep the large and valuable trade hitherto carried on with surrounding settlements, we shall have to move forward or take the risk of finding that trade drifting away from us into other channels. It will not do to rest content upon the knowledge of our splendid geographical position and other advantages which ought to enable us to compete successfully with all other centres of trade. These advantages which nature bestowed upon us are of great importance, but they will not compensate for the lack of enterprise. Farmers have been complaining for years that there are no facilities offered here for the disposal of their agricultural produce. They are often compelled to pack it about the streets from door to door, and after patience has become exhausted sometimes they dispose of it at a price far below its value because the only alternative is to take it home again. Such instances have occurred and will keep on occurring so long as the people neglect to provide a market. We have heard more than one disgusted farmer declare with emphasis that he would never again bring a pound of produce to this city, if he could possibly help it, because of the vexations he had experienced in endeavoring to find a purchaser. The cost of a market need not be a serious matter; and we are persuaded that if it were once established, the city would find it one of the best paying investments ever made. If the coming council does not develop energy enough to deal with this most important matter, the citizens must call a public meeting and give such instructions as will meet the exigencies of the case. There ought to be no time lost either.

A gentleman who lives back of Maple Ridge informed us yesterday that he has been living there three years on a ranch he took up, and has over 60 acres under crop; but to this day so little has been done for roads in his direction that it would be impossible to reach his place at any time of the year with a loaded wagon. In the place where he lives there are now twenty families who are as badly off as himself with respect to roads. This is a case which seems to call for action on the part of the authorities, both government and municipal. There is, perhaps, no rural municipality in the province that has been settling up and developing more rapidly within the past two years than Maple Ridge. But, unfortunately, like some of her sister municipalities, the people of Maple Ridge have not always been perfectly harmonious in their opinions and actions. Indeed, they have on several occasions displayed a remarkable disposition to disagree, and some of them have even been open to the suspicion of having been influenced by selfish motives more than by patriotism. It has too often happened that the expenditure of appropriations from the municipal revenue has been determined by the section where the wires can be pulled with the greatest success, rather than by the actual requirements of the settlement. We believe, however, that in this respect Maple Ridge as well as some other municipalities, has been improving, and the time may not be far distant when sectional jealousies and selfishness will give place to more patriotic sentiments. Every new settler who chooses to take up land in a region remote from the avenues of travel cannot expect to have roads constructed for his individual benefit; but when a settlement springs up with as many as twenty families connected with it, there ought to be means devised for bringing that settlement into communication with some market. We have no doubt the government will, as far as its resources permit, supplement the appropriations of the municipality in such cases. We have spent a good deal of money in inducing people to come to this province as settlers: we must not neglect to furnish them, when here, with every reasonable advantage within reach of the municipal and provincial resources.

Perfect Hair

Indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. W. Edwards, Coldwater, Miss.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from debility and loss of appetite; if your stomach is out of order, or your mind confused; take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine will restore physical force and elasticity to the system, more surely and speedily than any tonic yet discovered.

For six months I suffered from liver and stomach troubles. My food did not nourish me, and I became weak and very much emaciated. I took six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was cured.—J. M. Palmer, Springfield, Mass. ††

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

THE IRRESISTIBLE SPELL.

"I will not be untrue," she said, and her dark eyes flashed. "I love you, but I shall not marry you."

"And your reasons?" he asked in a voice that trembled despite his strong efforts to control it.

She looked at him quietly, pityingly, and her answer rang through his very soul.

"Because you would make my life one long regret. Because, far in the years to come, I foresee such utter degradation for you as would make the life of any woman mad enough to give her happiness—her fate—to your keeping a life of such misery that the grave would be a welcome refuge."

"You love me, and yet you can say this to me?"

"I could not have loved you had I dreamed of this before. As I say, I will not be untrue. I believed in you wholly. I thought you the only one I had ever known who had touched my heart, who could awaken in me the love a woman gives but once in her life. I yielded myself gladly to the knowledge of this feeling, for I could not mistake your manner, your feelings to me. I saw my influence over you with none of the triumph of a coquette, you well know, but with the quiet happiness of a woman who loves truly, entirely, herself. But for the late knowledge that the fatal cup, which has ruined thousands and tens of thousands, is not strange to your lips, my heart would be wholly yours."

"But, Margaret, your influence has such power over me; under it, what can I not conquer? Blessed with your love, what might I not become?"

The beautiful lips lost their firmness of expression, and quivered with strongly expressed feeling.

"I have no faith in my power," she said sadly. "God only knows how intensely I pity you, but I should go mad if I were forced to pity my husband. I must esteem, respect, as well as love the man to whom I give control of all my future."

"Is there no hope for me?" he passionately exclaimed. "Are you so cold, so hard, that you deny me all trial—that you refuse to believe for you I should conquer, would conquer, all that stood between me and my dearest hopes of earthly happiness? Margaret! Margaret! no human creature but yourself can save me. If you refuse to listen—to believe—I care not what gulf bears me to oblivion."

"I dare not listen to you," and great tears rolled down her cheeks; "I dare not take upon myself such vows as bind our earthly fates, and feel in my heart how entirely we shall yet be separated in all true union. I must say to you, I have no faith in the influence of any woman as opposed to the deadly infatuation of one who indulges in the appetite for strong drink."

"You condemn me, then, to ruin?"

"I condemn you to ruin! God forbid! Harry Norton, it all remains with yourself. I cannot conceal from you that I think you have a hard battle before you in life. To conquer that appetite—to determine that you will not yield, and to abstain from all that tends to tempt, to awaken desires for stimulants, no matter how weary, how worn you are with the struggle—demands the strongest will, the greatest self-sacrifice, the prayerful spirit, the Christian life. Are you capable of all this? If you doubt yourself at all, in mercy never tempt a woman to share a drunkard's life—to behold herself the mother of children who will never know the beauty, the holiness, the protection of home.

"You think I exaggerate your faults. You do not know all that is burned as with the stamp of fire upon my memory. The years roll back, and I see a young, trusting, credulous girl, who knew neither herself nor her needs in life, wedded to a man whose earthly prospects seemed fairer than those of most men. But this girl, so innocent, lovely, and trusting, learned soon—ah, too soon!—that her whole life was sacrificed to one whose taste for the accursed stimulus of liquor far exceeded his love for the woman he professed to adore. Year after year passed on, adding to this fatal taste additional strength. No caresses of sweet-voiced lovely little children, no delights of home, were half so dear to this man as the one infatuation of his life.

"This girl, always mature in mind, and far his superior in nature, left no means untried to save him. She was very attractive in manner, conversation, and person, and all her attractions were put in force to save him. She concealed his habits of intemperance for years. She kept his faults to herself. She never breathed aught against him. She upheld him, strengthened him, counselled him. If woman's influence could have saved him he would have been saved.

"I have seen her home taken from her. Her children and herself wandering from one place to another, as she could best earn their support; and this man, seemingly devoid of human feelings, leaving her to her own resources, while wealthy relations cared for him.

"This woman was very near and dear to me, and nothing upon earth could induce me to put myself in subjection to the possibility of such a fate. You have my true friendship my best wishes for your welfare, my sincere prayers that you may conquer in this fiery trial, but I dare not give you more. God only knows how hard this is for me to say to you. How willingly would I share your fate in poverty, in any ordinary trial of life; but I dare not, for mine own soul's sake, say I take your life, whatever it may be, for mine. And so, Harry, let us speak of this no more."

She held out her hand. He caught it. He drew her impulsively towards him. He held her for an instant closely.

"Margaret," he said, "let me kiss you once."

And before she could reply his burning lips touched her pure cool brow.

"God bless you, Margaret, whatever becomes of me!"

In another instant he was gone.

She passed through the garden-walk into the pleasant porch, and stood a moment before the open parlor-window, where an old gentleman rested in an easy-chair.

"It is a lovely night, father," she said; "but I will go to my room, I believe. I am very weary to-night. Good-night!"

"Good-night, my daughter!"

And Margaret went as usual with her stately step to her chamber door; but once within its solitude, and the proud resolved spirit was bowed in bitter sorrow.

How she had loved this man! And her whole frame shook with the sobs she dared not vent loudly, and the tears rained down the proud beautiful face. Must she thus condemn him, and was there no hope for him?

He was a student of medicine, studying of late with her father, and an eager, apt student. He had come into the quiet life of this girl as a bright sunbeam. His quick active intellect aroused her from the ordinary routine of her usual life.

His tastes harmonized with her own, and she had given him her heart entirely.

Then, one day, she learned that the fatal habit of stimulating his energies when exhausted by study or fatigue had become a necessity to him, and the interview we have just related was the decision at which she had arrived.

She was a girl of no ordinary character. Her clear good sense, with the intimate knowledge of her friend's life, taught her to doubt the influence she could wield against the triumphal Juggernaut, whose victims can never be numbered.

Harry Norton left the village for the distractions of a life in a great city. Now and then news came to him as a clever successful practitioner, accompanied with doubtful surmises as to certain changes in his habits of life—vague speeches, meaning, perhaps, much or little.

Margaret's life flowed quietly on; her father, yielding to the infirmities of old age, demanded her care and attention.

Perhaps close observers might detect a shade of sadness now and then in those clear grey eyes, but she was not one of those who live solely for their own pleasure, and no one in all the village was more relied upon in sorrow or trouble as a kind sympathizer than she.

A young clergyman who settled in the parish was soon observant of this strong, self-reliant nature—this tender daughter and kind friend.

Margaret was not doomed to live a solitary life. She found much to esteem in Mr. Eldon, and at last much to love; and one bright spring morning she stood with him at the village altar as his bride.

As she entered the carriage a packet was given to her, and opening it, she found a wedding-gift—a brooch formed of a large pure pearl, finely set, and a letter.

The letter was as follows:

"MARGARET,—You are a pearl among all others in my memory, and I beg you to accept this symbol of yourself as a gift from an old friend. You were right, Margaret—no man, knowing himself a slave to intemperance, should ever tempt a woman to share its curse. What can I write you of my life? Only that there are times when I am mad—when no reason remains to me—and then I come out of this valley of the shadow of death, and I see you, strong, pure, so far away from me. Your words come back to me, and I know you were right when you chose to walk apart from one so unworthy. Do not believe that I do not struggle, but a power stronger than I controls me. I can rejoice in your happiness, and I know that I was once blessed with your love—that my true self was once dear to you. But purity, rectitude, were dearer to you than aught else, and he who failed of these could not hold possession of your heart. That one worthy to be your guide, your staff through life has won you, awakens no selfish feeling in my heart. I have said that I can—I do—rejoice in your happiness."

Happy bride though she was, tears filled her eyes. She pitied him very tenderly, and pitied him all the more because of her own happiness.

The years rolled quietly on with her; children were given to her love and care. In the pleasant village home where her childish days were passed she lived the contented life of a happy wife and mother.

It was towards the close of a bright summer day that Mr. Eldon came slowly up the garden-walk, and Margaret, hastening with tender welcome to greet him, saw at once, from his face, that he bore unwonted news.

"Margaret," he said, "I wish you would come with me to see a dying man who wishes to bid you farewell. You have never forgotten Harry Norton. It is he."

It was not calmly she could think of the interview. Her hands trembled as she tied the strings on her bonnet; tears filled her eyes, and she leaned heavily on the arm of her husband as he related to her the story of his summons to the house where Harry Norton, feeling his days were numbered, had come to bid her farewell—to die.

The setting-sun was glorifying all things; the distant mountains and rivers were bathed in golden light. They enter the chamber of the dying man. The same golden atmosphere filled it; from the open window came the soft summer air, the glad notes of singing birds.

"You are good as ever, Margaret," Harry said faintly, "to come; but I felt that if you wished me God speed, I might more safely cross the dark river. You cannot know—no one can know but its victims—the irresistible power of the disease which bears me to my grave. It is a disease—a madness with so me—and I have been one of those fatal ones. If I could say with supernatural power: Touch it not when first you feel the accursed thirst, or you are lost! But who would believe me? God alone knows!"

Long and tenderly Margaret and her husband talked with him, listened pityingly to his account of the struggles he had made so uselessly against what he believed to be a madness, and soothed and comforted by them, he passed quietly, resignedly—nay, thankfully, into the other life, the "great beyond."

Insects in the Ears.

Few troubles are more annoying or more productive of serious difficulty, if not removed, than insects in the ears. Lying upon soft meadow grass, or sleeping upon a camp-bed of fragrant spruce, bugs of different denominations seem possessed with a desire to inspect our auricles. Once inside, their frantic efforts to escape cause such agony that people have gone temporarily crazy with it.

This may be instantly stopped by pouring the ear full of sweet-oil, which suffocates the insect, and he is easily removed later by a syringe and warm water. Avoid intruding pins, etc, into the ears. Much harm may thus be done to their delicate mechanism, and little to the cause of all the trouble.

If oil is not readily accessible use water which is almost as good.

Earache in any form may be quickly relieved by filling the organ with chloroform vapor from an uncorked bottle, vapor only, not the liquid; and mamma's bag should always contain a small vial of it, as it is useful in many ways.

Ten drops upon a lump of sugar is an excellant remedy for hiccough or ordinary nausea, and I have recalled to life more than one person pronounced dead from sunstroke; with a half-teaspoonful, clear, poured down his throat.

Signaling Apparatus.

A highly interesting signaling apparatus has just been examined at the Station Montpasnasse, Paris. On opening the door of a compartment, a bell box in the guard's van indicates the number of carriage, also of the compartment, and a which side the door was opened. When the train stops all doors instantly open on the side the passengers have to alight should any door on the opposite side be opened, it would be signaled by the bell ringing. In case of danger communication can be made without opening the door by simply pressing a knob, with the same effect.

A Sluggish Liver

Causes the Stomach and Bowels to become disordered, and the whole system to suffer from debility. In all such cases Ayer's Pills give prompt relief.

After much suffering from Liver and Stomach troubles, I have finally been cured by taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills. I always find them prompt and thorough in their action, and their occasional use keeps me in a perfectly healthy condition.—Ralph Weeman, Annapolis, Md.

Twenty-five years ago I suffered from a torpid liver, which was restored to healthy action by taking Ayer's Pills. Since that time I have never been without them. They regulate the bowels, assist digestion, and increase the appetite, more surely than any other medicine.—Paul Churchill, Haverhill, Mass.

INVIGORATED.

I know of no remedy equal to Ayer's Pills for Stomach and Liver disorders. I suffered from a Torpid Liver, and Dyspepsia, for eighteen months. My skin was yellow, and my tongue coated. I had no appetite, suffered from Headache, was pale and emaciated. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, taken in moderate doses, restored me to perfect health.—Waldo Miles, Oberlin, Ohio.

Ayer's Pills are a superior family medicine. They strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency resulting from Liver Complaint. I have used these Pills in my family, for years, and they never fail to give entire satisfaction.—Otto Montgomery, Oshkosh, Wis. ††

HEAD OFFICE, TORONTO, CANADA

A HOME COMPANY.

This Association merits the confidence the Public is reposing in it from the following FACTS:—

The Security offered to policy holders is unsurpassed by any Company doing business in Canada.

It has no schemes of insurance, but the well-established lines, hence the policy holders cannot be misled as to their contracts.

Its statements to the public can be readily understood, its cash statement showing every item of income and how expended.

Its position is ascertained annually from a detailed valuation in which every item of liability is included.

Its progress has been unexampled in the history of insurance in Canada.

Its policies are indisputable after three years, and non-forfeitable after two years' existence.

Its profits are distributed upon an equitable basis. The profits to one class of policy holders are not lessened to give larger profits to any other class, which method affords superior advantages over the uniform bonus plan of distribution.

Liberal Conditions as to Residence and Travel.

The str. Rainbow got as far as Ladners last night from where the captain telegraphed for instructions. He was ordered to return to Victoria although the trip up could have been made without damage to the steamer.

The case against Edward Curran, for committing a breach of the Sunday Observance By-law, has, on request of counsel for defendent, been adjourned until the 16th inst. Until the magistrate's decision is given the hotel and saloonkeepers promise to respect the by-law.

The Sealing Company which we spoke about some time ago is likely to become an accomplished fact in the near future. Several monied men, who know what a good thing is when they see it, have the subject under consideration, and something definite is shortly expected to be heard from them.

Acknowledgment.

The directors of the Royal Columbian Hospital beg to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of $155 collected by Mr. Thos. McNeeley among the people of Ladners. This is a very handsome amount and the good people of Ladners are to be complimented on their liberality.

The Weather.

Last night the thermometer registered 11° above zero, the lowest this year. In Victoria the thermometer registered 19° and in Nanaimo 18° above zero. The indications at present lean towards milder weather with good possibilities for snow within the next 24 hours. The cold snap in the interior still continues.

Advance in Freight Rates.

It is proposed to advance the freight rates from New York to San Francisco, Portland, Victoria and other points on the Pacific coast on the first of January, to the following bacis on classes one to ten inclusive, vis: $4, $3.20, $2.50, $2.20, $1.80, $1.60, $1.40, $1.30, $1.20 and $1.10 per 100 lbs. This advance will be followed by a corresponding one from Canadian points to Victoria, Westminster, Vancouver and other British Columbia points.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Reform Needed.

Yesterday morning when the police court opened there was no fire in the room, and the temperature was below freezing point. This morning the same state of affairs was in existance. It must be someones duty to start the fires and keep the room in a proper state of cleanliness, but the place is never fit to be in except when county court or supreme court is in session. This thing should be looked after, as it is not fair to anyone whose duties require them to be present during the sitting of the police court.

Public Meeting.

In response to a requisition from a number of citizens, Mayor Dickinson has called a public meeting in the Drill Shed at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening. We do not know the particular subjects that will come before this meeting, but there are several matters which need discussion and call for prompt action at the present moment. If this city wishes to reap the full advantages of its position and resources, it will have to wake up. We hope the discussions to-morrow night will be marked by wisdom and practical good sense.

Another Libel Case.

The crop of libels is increasing, and now it is the Victoria Times that is called upon to put up $10,000 at the instance of Mr. D. W. Higgins, M. P. P. This action comes from a statement which appeared in the Times in which, plaintiff alleges, it is insinuated that he got a commission on the contract for supplying uniforms for the Victoria police force. At the present time the following libel cases are in the courts: Hon. Judge Walkem vs. the Colonist, which has been appealed to the supreme court of Canada; Hon. Jno. Robson vs. the Guardian; Hon. Robt. Dunsmuir vs. the Vancouver News; D. W. Higgins, M. P.P., vs. the Times; Mayor Fell vs. the COLUMBIAN. In the last case action was begun nearly three years ago, but has not been followed up.

Brick Making.

During the year 1887 there have been made at the brick yard of Manahan Bros., in this city; 1,500,000 bricks. The yard is situated on the glen near the penitentiary, and the firm employs 23 men.

Beckett & Co., of this city, have turned out 2,000,000 bricks from their yard at Port Haney, where they employ 40 men.

There are two other yards at Port Haney, which have probably made about 1,000,000 bricks.

The five yards near Victoria report an aggregate of 8,000,000 bricks for the season.

In the vicinity of Vancouver there are three yards, but we have not been able to learn the extent of their operations. Probably they may have turned out 2,500,000 bricks.

The total product of bricks in the province during the year will probably be over 15,500,000, worth about $150,000. Of that quantity about 7,000,000 were made in the district of Westminster.

The Thompson River Bridge,

The new government swing bridge over the Thompson river at the east end of the town is completed. The structure is 1,000 feet long, with a span of 120 feet, and an opening of 50 feet, erected at a cost of about $7,000 by contractor D. F. Adams, of Victoria, under the supervision of Mr. Arthur Stevenson, superintendent of roads and bridges for Yale district. The bridge is constructed of wood, erected on piles, and is twenty-seven feet above low water. The work was begun in November and completed in less than two months. There is a straining beam truss on the approaches to the bridge and on the main span a Howe truss, with suspension sway rods. The bridge was built in every particular according to the specifications and is a first-class piece of work, being among the best in the upper country and highly creditable to Contractor Adams. It provides convenient access to a large district on the North Thompson and will prove a great advantage to the residents of that section as well as the business people of Kamloops.—Kamloops Sentinel.

C. Chadwick, of Arcadia, Wayne Co., writes: "I have had severe attacks of Asthma for several years. I commenced taking Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The first dose relieved me in one hour. I continued taking it in teaspoonful doses for a few days, and have not had an attack of it since, now nearly one year.

Customs Returns.

For the year ending 30th June last, the value of goods exported from the province at the three principal ports was as follows: Victoria, $2,094,384 (of which $100,215 was not the product of Canapa); Nanaimo, $1,141,494; Westminster (including Burrard Inlet), $230,589. A large part of the goods exported through Victoria are the produce of the Mainland, including gold and fish of the value of about $1,600,000, and animal products valued at $380,126. The imports were: At Victoria, imports, $2,970,088; duty collected, $778,558; Westminster, imports, $398,533; duties collected $67,042; Nanaimo, imports, $142,471. The total imports were valued at $3,532,684, and the total duty paid was $877,189. Compared with the year ending 30th June, 1886, there is a decrease of $3037, which is accounted for by the largely increased consumption of Canadian goods in this province. The inland revenue collected at Victoria for the past year amounted to $78,334. The customs duties paid at Vancouver for five months ending with November amounted to $24,710. During the 16 years ending last June, British Columbia has paid $9,431,415 in customs duties.

Leather Tanning and Boot and Shoe Manufacturing

The only tannery on the Mainland is situated at Sapperton, one of the suburbs of this city. It is known as the "Mainland Tannery" and is owned by Mr. James Rousseau. The principal lines of leather manufactured are skirting, sole, harness, calf, kip and upper. The goods turned out by the Mainland Tannery will compare very favorably with the lines manufactured by tanneries in the east, and they are admitted to be the best manufactured in the province. In skirting leather, Mr. Rousseau's make commands the highest price on the market. The tannery building is 29x77 feet and is fitted up with everything necessary for turning out the best lines of leather. During 1887 the tannery manufactured about 25,000 lbs of leather, valued at $10,000. These amounts are largely in excess of the previous year, and it is expected this years business will show a large increase over the figures of 1887.

In boots and shoes Mr. Rousseau manufactures nothing but hand made work. During the greater part of the year 14 men were employed, who turned out in all $16,000 worth of hand made goods. These goods were principally disposed of in Mr. Rousseau's retail store on Columbia st.

Cigar Manufacturers.

The Mainland Cigar Factory, Wm. Tietjen, proprietor, is the largest establishment of the kind in the province. The quality of goods manufactured, ranges from the middling brands to the best. Strange as it may seem the most expensive brands are in greater demand than the cheaper, though no cheap cigars are made in the establishment. Mr. Tietjen does not employ Chinese labor, but skilled white labor only. Twelve skilled men are employed who turn out about 40,000 cigars each month. During 1887 15,000 lbs of raw leaf tobacco were imported, which is valued at $12,000. The price of tobacco imported runs from 70 cts. to $1.40 per lb., which includes the finest Havana leafs and the best Sumatra wrappers. The number of boxes imported was 3,000, valued at $1,200. During the year 500,000 cigars were manufactured, valued at $32,500. The value of the goods speaks for the quality. The average price per 1000 cigars for the year was $65. Notwithstanding the increasing competition from eastern manufacturers and the cheaper grades of goods to contend against, the business of the Mainland Cigar Factory has been largely added to during the past year and continues to grow steadily.

James Harling commenced manufacturing about six months ago and is therefore only getting properly started. He has imported 2,000 lbs of raw leaf tobacco, valued at $1,500, and 1000 boxes valued at $200. Since commencing business he has manufactured 50,000 cigars valued at $3,000.

CITY ELECTIONS, 1888.

To the Electors of St. George's Ward

GENTLEMEN:—At the request of several electors I have consented to accept nomination as one of the Councillors for St. George's Ward for the year 1888. As my interests lie entirely within the City of Westminster, and I own neither property nor business beyond its limits, it will be my interest as well as my pleasure to help forward as much as possible the development and substantial progress of this city, if you should do me the honor of making me one of your representatives in the council.

Very truly yours,

dde21td T. R. PEARSON.
