Select Site for B.C. University

Point Grey Selected as New Seat of Learning

The exact location of the University of British Columbia has been selected by the Provincial Government. The site chosen consists of 175 acres almost on the crown of Point Grey and overlooking the sea on three sides. A plan showing the land selected is now being prepared by the surveyor-general and will be published in a few days.

In addition to showing the limits of the university site, the government plan will also present a sketch of what it is proposed to do in the way of laying out the grounds from a landscape point of view. Provision is being made to construct the main college building on the summit of the elevation near the middle of the grounds. Winding walks and drives are shown stretching from the proposed building site to the foot of the hill on all sides, some of them running to the salt water beaches while others extend over to the city side of the grounds.

The recently adopted street car franchise in Point Grey made provision for street car lines running out to the edge of the provincial reserve so it is anticipated there will be plenty of transportation accommodation by the time the university is ready to serve the needs of the young men and women of British Columbia.

Prairie Farmers Are "Wheat Mad"

Says Second Vice-Pres. Whyte of the C.P.R.

In a statement published the other day Mr. William Whyte, second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said: The experience of this season shows the trouble is only farmers are "wheat mad." They have made money raising weat and have done so without the labor entailed in mixed farming. They go away in the winter and leave the hired man to look after the horses. The loss which follows the exclusive raising of wheat is universally recognized. The agriculturist is engaged not in selling the products of the land, but the land itself. He is not so much engaged in tilling the soil as exploiting it. He is taking all out and putting nothing back. This year the company in the west built 600 miles of railway, 56 miles being double track. Next year a similar amount of construction work will be carried out. This year Winnipeg imported twelve million eggs and the C. P. R. is importing for its dinners chickens from Chicago and cream from St. Paul. This shows that diversified farming is a necessity."

The sudden fall in the temperature last weekend has at last given to local skaters the opportunity they were waiting for. Up to a day or two ago, Whittup's pond was the only ice available, but now the rinks are in full swing. Frost sufficient to make good skating is such an uncertain quantity in this district that most people are anxious to take full advantage of it while it lasts.

Fullers' rink, although it has been actually in use for some days, was formally opened last night. There was a large crowd present, and the ice was in fine condition. The Kelowna Band had been engaged to enliven the proceedings.

On Monday last a hockey match was played on Whittup's pond between the Fire Brigade boys and the Shamrocks. The result, after a close game, was a win for the former by 1 to 0.

Farmers' Institute Annual General Meeting

Members Adopt of Reorganizing on More Progressive Lines - Officers Elected for 1911

The annual general meeting of the Kelowna Farmers' Institute was held last Wednesday afternoon there being an unusually good attendance.

The president, Mr. T. G. Speers presented a report on the past year's work, which from various courses had not been quite so successful as might have been. He complained of the lack of interest shown by members who failed to attend meetings when notified. He thanked the Institute for the honor they had done him in appointing him president during the past year, and hoped that the coming year might be one of greater progress.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Speers as retiring president.

Mr. Colin Smith, who at a recent meeting was appointed delegate to the Central Institute convention at Victoria, which takes place next week, asked about the Oregon box which was being advocated by some fruit growers in the valley. He wished to know if the institute desired him to support its use when the matter came up before the convention.

The matter was discussed at some length, and it was finally decided that Mr. Smith be asked to seek further information on the subject when in Victoria.

A long discussion ensued on the financial standing of the Institute. The statement as presented showed a deficit of $4.34.

Mr. W. H. Raymer, to whom a considerable sum of money should have been due for rent, said he had not rendered any statement of rent due for some time past chiefly because he had not been able to keep track of the meetings many of which had been held in his absence without notifying him. As the Institute was short of funds however, he offered to forego any rent which was due to him up to the present time.

This generous offer was received with applause, a hearty vote of thanks being accorded Mr. Raymer for his kindness.

The next business being the election of officers, Mr. T. G. Speer said that he regretted he would be unable owing to other business to accept nomination as president for the coming year.

Mr. C. S. Smith asked that the election of officers be postponed until consideration had been given to certain proposals which were to be made respecting the reorganisation of the Institute. The Institute, he said, had not for some time past been in a very flourishing condition, and some few of the members had got together lately to see if they could not formulate some scheme by which it could be put on a better footing, and made the success which it ought to be in a district like this. They had tried to put their ideas into some convenient shape to submit to the present meeting, and had drawn up certain suggestions which he hoped the members would discuss.

Briefly the scheme sought to extend the usefulness of the Institute by holding meetings and demonstrations at various points in the country. The director appointed in each district would look after the meetings held there, see that a record was kept of the meeting, and that transportation was provided from Kelowna and back for the lecturer or demonstrator.

The proposal met with hearty support and the resolutions on being submitted to the meeting were carried unanimously.

Mr. Smith considered that reorganization on these lines would result in a very much larger membership. They had at present some 67 members on the books, where in a district like this they should have three or four times that number.

Mr. M. Hereron agreed with the proposal, but he considered that the directors should be appointed at once instead of leaving their selection to a future meeting as had been suggested.

It was decided to proceed at once with the appointment of officers and directors. The following were elected:

President—Dr. Dickson.
Vice-Pres.—H. W. Raymer.
Sec.-Treas.—John Leathley.
Director for Kelowna—L. Holman.
Director for Okanagan Mission—C. Smith.
Director for Benvoulin—D. McEachern.
Director for Rutland — J. W. Woolsey.
Director for Ellison—M. Hereron.

It was found impossible to elect a director representing the K. L. O. bench at the time. It was left for the directors to fill the vacancy at an early date.

Knighthood for Mackenzie and Mann

Railway Magnates Receive New Year Honors.

Among the New Year honors conferred by the King are the following: Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., to be K.C.M.G. The following are are appointed Knights Batchelors: Hon. C. T. Townsend, chief justice of Nova Scotia; Wm. Mackenzie, president of the C.N.R.; D. D. Mann, vice-president of the C.N.R.; Geo. C. Gibbons, K.C.; and Thos. Tait, late chairman of the board ofrailway commissioners, of Victoria, Australia.

Mr. N. D. McTavish is the retiring school trustee, and it is not expected that he will stand for reelection. The name of Mr. Bigger has been mentioned as a probable candidate.

Vernon's by-law to raise $1000 for repairing the old public school for purposes of a Y. M. C. A. was voted on last week and lost by one vote. The by-law to raise $6000 to instal water meters all over the service was also lost.

Mr. S. T. Elliott's automobile raffle has had to be withdrawn. Someone has evidently been drawing the attention of the authorities to it, and the scheme has been declared illegal. The money is to be returned to those who purchased tickets.

Reports and appropriations for various public works are already coming into the Provincial Works Minister, Hon. Thomas Taylor, in connection with the preparation of his annual contribution to the estimates, always the heaviest of the provincial list. It is roughly estimated that the demands upon the department this year will aggregate in necessary expenditure considerably more than fifty per cent. in excess of last year's — which were far and away the heaviest yet on record.

The B. C. fruit exhibit during its stay in the United Kingdom has been shown at twenty-five different places Six of these were cattle shows at which no prizes were given. In tne remaining nineteen British Columbia has been awarded twelve gold medals and three silver medals, not including several awards which fell to it at the Royal Horticultural Society, a list of which has already appeared.

It is probable that this will be the last display of fruit sent by British Columbia to the Old Country for a number of years, the Royal Horticultural Society having decided that no more exhibitions in which British Columbia will be able to compete shall be held until 1914.

Performance of the "Messiah"

By the Musical and Dramatic Society

On Tuesday evening last the Kelowna Musical and Dramatic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. H. W. Whitehead, gave a highly successful rendering of Handel's "Messiah." To many people Christmas seems hardly like Christmas without an opportunity of hearing the great composer's beautiful masterpiece, and the decision of the Society to produce the "Messiah" was hailed with delight.

The first part of the evening was taken up by a choral concert, which opened with an orchestral selection, Mendelssohn's "Pilgrims' March." Mr. Ferrier, who is a new addition to local musical talent, sang "Nazareth." This was followed by the chorus, "O gladsome Light" (Sullivan). A soprano solo, "The Gift," by Mrs. P. Brooke, who was in particularly good voice, and a selection by the orchestra brought the first part of the programme to a close.

After a brief interval selections were given from the "Messiah." The oratorio is, of course, too long to give more than a very small portion. The selection, too, had to be made with an eye to the principals available, but sufficient was given to show the beauty of the work and to make one long for more. Most of the best-known numbers were taken.

The tenor recitative, "Comfort ye," and the solo, "Every Valley," were well sung by Mr. Good. Mr. Macbean, who was to have taken the bass solos, was unfortunately suffering from a cold, and the part had to be omitted.

The bulk of the work fell on Mrs. Brooke, soprano, and Miss Cockrell, contralto. Mrs. Brooke's voice is well adapted for this class of music, and her rendering of "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and also of "Rejoice," were especially appreciated by the audience. The contralto solos in the "Messiah" have a richness of sympathetic expression and emotional quality which was well brought out bv Miss Cockrell in "He was despised," "He shall feed His flock," and "O Thou that tellest."

The chorus, although lacking somewhat in weight of numbers, especially noticeable in the triumphant "Glory to God!" was yet well balaanced, and showed evidence of careful training. The orchestra was rather incomplete, but ably supported the choir, and desides did some fine work in the overture and the beautiful Pastoral Symphony. Mr. Macbean plaped first violin, Miss Laidlaw, second. Mr. Tollit presided at the harmonium, and Mr. Boyd at the piano.

Altogether the production reflects great credit upon the Society and we should be glad to hear that the "Messiah" was to be made an annual event.

Ontario was voting Monday on Local Option. The result shows that 58 bars will be closed.

Several skating parties have during the week made the trip out to Rutland, where there is some good ice on the small lake there.

Mr. Jas. Harvey and Mr. Robertson returned Friday last from their trip to California.

Mr. D. Leckie has signified his intention of again standing for a seat in the council. The names of Mr. W. J. Mantle, Mr. J. T. Campbell and Mr. R. A. Copeland are also rumored, but no definite statement has been made.

John McSorley, charged with offering indignities to the body of an aged man, was brought up for hearing at Jarvis, Ont., and committed to the country gaol to await trial. The body was shipped to a Montreal cold storage warehouse as poultry.

Fierce Fight With Anarchists in London

Hold Hiding-place Against a Force of Police and Soldiers - Six Dead and Many Are Wounded

London was the scene of a most startling and desperate encounter Tuesday, which seemed scarcely credible. Holding at bay for hours hundreds of policemen, troops and guardsmen, a band of alleged anarchists, almost in the heart of the city maintained their defence until their fortress collapsed under the attack of flames and burned the criminals in the ruins. Six bodies were found in the wreckage.

Several firemen were injured and a number of persons were wounded by the bullets of the beseiged. The affair, which constitutes one of the most remarkable criminal outbreaks London has ever known, took on the demensions of a battle. It began early and continued until the afternoon when the civil authorities at last were masters.

Vast crowds gathered in the streets leading to the scene of activities while word of the desperate character of the fighting ran throughout London, causing widespread excitement and alarm. At one time the beseiging party called for more guns but these were not brought into action. The Home Secretary, Mr. Winston Churchill, appeared when the fightihg was at its height.

The anarchists, who recently had slain two policemen, occupied a four-story brick house on Sidney street, a narrow thorougfare. The police discovering their headquarters, surrounded the place and were met with a volley of shots, two detectives being wounded, one seriously. One hundred shots had been fired when the house caught fire and the fire brigade was summoned.

The police, after locating the men, and anticipating trouble, had ordered the houses in the immediate neighborhood to be vacated before daylight and throwing a line of officers around the square had allowed no one to approach within a hundred yards of the scene of the expected battle.

The police lines had been drawn so tightly together that the inmates han no chance to escape. The police were satisfied that the place contained the two murderers wanted and were satisfied also that the assassins were fortified in the house and were supported by a number of friends. Since the murder of the policemen in the tunnel in Houndsditch, the entire police force of London has been watching for the anarchists.

Trouble started this morning when Sergt. Leeson who was watching the premises was fired upon and wounded in the lungs. In an almost incredibly short time a cordon of police armed with revolvers appeared and was met with a volley from rapid firing revolvers. Police Superintendant Ottaway took charge of the reinforcements and police guards from all parts of the city poured in and took up positions commanding the house. Wherever the officers appeared a volley of bullets shattered the pavement.

A detachment of sixty men, with one offiicer and three non-commissioned officers of the Scotch Guards from the Tower arrived and were severed with ball cartridges. They fired a few rounds into the building. There was a lull for five minutes and then the beseiged started firing again. It was impossible to tell the number of the beseiged party. They were armed with rifles and revolvers and fired with great rapidity.

Detective Sargent Leeson was commanding the suspected building from the rear when he was shot. His brother officer helped him up a ladder and over a wall at the back of the yard adjoining, while the house continued to fire upon the party.

As the situation became more serious, the onlookers were driven back and a square hurriedly cleared for a radius half a mile about the scene. The soldiers hept up a fusilade directed at the windows of the house and the men within responded continuously.

Meanwhile loads of straw were hurried to the place for the purpose of starting a fire and smoking out the beseiged men. Piles of straw were lighted near the building and the flames soon comunicated themselves to the house, the fire brigade was then summoned and divided its energy between puting out the blaze and trying to flood out the outlaws by streams of water thrown in through the windows.

A corps of nurses was brought to the vicinity and treated the wounded, among wnom were a few spectators who had been struck by spent bullets.

Rutland News.

(From our own correspondent.)

The "City" of Rutland one of the day dreams of the optimists living within the shadow of Black Mountain, is already beginning to take more definite shape. Following the steady movement of lot holders into the district during the past year, and the consequent increase in the numbers of the rising generation, it has been found necessary to increase the school accommodation, and the teaching staff with the opening of new year session. At the close of last session there were close upon sixty pupils on the roll, and several new settlers with large families are moving or have just moved into the district, making increased accommodation absolutely necessary. The Department of Education at Victoria has notified Mr. S. Sproul, the secretary, of their intention to erect another large room similar to the one now in use. The Rutland Hall building, adjoining is to be rented meanwhile, and an assistant teacher has been engaged. Mr. J. W. Harris, who has recently been in charge of the day school at Summerland, and who comes from the Old Country, with firs class certificates, has been appointed principal, with Miss McGee of Benvoulin assistant.

Rutland is not behind when good poultry is being judged, as was evidenced last week at the Ashcroft show, where Mr. A. E. Harrison's buff Orpingtons carried off high honours. Sending four birds he brought home four awards; two firsts, one second and one third. He is also showing at Enderby and at Summerland.

The Misses Hunter, who have been spending Christmas in town returned this week to their various schools.

The various sections of the Public school and High school are are now with the opening of a new term, established in the new building. This leaves the old school vacant. Some effort has been made to have the building, which is government property, transferred to the city, so that use might be made of it as a Y.M.C.A. or gymnasium, but so far without any result.

Mrs. Welsh of Didsbury, Alberta, is at present staying with Mrs. Gaddes.

Mr. G. Whittaker was taken to the Hospital Wednesday as a result of the explosion of dynamite which he was attempting to thaw out. Whittaker was working with the gang at present engaged on the new road into Glenmore and in thawing out some sticks of dynamite a portion exploded, throwing him to the ground. Fortunately he was not very seriously injured, and is suffering more from shock and several slight burns.

The Boyer-Muirhead dispute, involving questions of salary, commission and other funds, which was aired in court this week, was dismissed, each bearing his own costs.

A BOOSTER?

The Summerland Review prints the following:

A gentleman from the east, travelling through B. C. recently, made the acquaintance on the train of a booster from the Okanagan. The talk travelled over the Portuguese situation and dwelt on the possibilities of the C. P. R., but the Okanagan man finally brought it round to the, to him, only topic; the way things grew where he came from.

"I hear they grow tobacco at Kelowna," remarked the stranger who had seen an exhibit of the weed at New Westminster exhibition.

Thi gave the Okanagan man his opening.

"Yes," said he, "they grow tobacco there and good tobacco, and there is going to be money made on the smokers in the Okanagan. Why, there is a chap named Tait at Summerland who last year had some Calabash seed sent to him. You know what Calabash are? Those gourds they make the big yellow pipes of. Well, he planted the seed and grew some of the finest Calabash this year you ever saw and next year he's going to do a little Burbanking between his Calabash plants and the tobacco plants at Kelowna, and all the people will then have to do is to cut off a Calabash gourd, stick a straw in the other end and smoke up, for it is figured out that the pulp of the gourd will be full of fine cut tobacco."

Since then the man from the east is getting his information of the country from government pamphlets and personal observation.

Mr. Masson Russell, of West Bank who has been appointed delegate for his district to approach the government on the subject of the conservation of water for irrigation purposes, leaves for Victoria on Saturday morning.

A coast paper says that Joseph Christien is now the oldest resident of the Okanagan; he took up his residence there in 1861, when with the exception of two Roman Catholic priests there was no other white resident of the valley.

A new Roman Catholic church was dedicated at Armstrong last week with appropriate ceremony.

MATHEMATICS.

Used to Locate an Aerolite That No One Had Ever Seen.

Arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry are not romantic, but they may accomplish things which greatly impress the imagination. By means of them a professor at Yale university found a few years ago an aerolite that no one had ever seen.

It appears that a photographer in Ansonia, Conn., was occupied in taking pictures by the aid of a telescope of a comet which was invisible to the naked eye. When his negatives were developed one of them revealed the fall of a meteor. It was too small an object to attract the attention of the unaided eyes, but its line on the photograph indicated that it must have come to the earth.

The picture was shown to an astronomical professor at Yale. Ascertaining the point of observation and reckoning with the aid of the data which the photograph itself supplied, he made a calculation which proved that the meteor must have fallen in the neighborhood of a reservoir some two miles north of Danbury, Conn. There the aerolite was found in the very place indicated by the calculation. It was oval in form, measured fifteen and a half inches in length, seven and a half inches in diameter and weighed twenty-six pounds. It was sent to the museum of Yale university, where it serves not only as an illustration of the nature of the vagrant bodies of the skies, but testifies also to the wonders of calculation which it is possible for mathematical science to accomplish.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

DROPPING ASLEEP.

The Way Mother Nature Charms Away Our Consciousness.

How do we go to sleep? How does Mother Nature charm away our consciousness? First of all she throws her spell on those centers of our bodies that preside over the muscular system, causing one group of muscles after another gradually to collapse. Thereafter various powers of mind succumb in regular order. First we lose attention and judgment, then memory goes, and imagination wanders away in reveries of its own. Ideas of time and space cease to control thought as gentle sleep, the nurse of our life, draws nearer. Then comes the turn of the special senses, beginning with sight. Eyelids close, and eyeballs turn upward and inward, as if to shut out all light, the pupils contracting more and more as slumber steals over us.

The turn of the ears comes; the power of hearing fades away. The heart beats and breath is drawn more and more slowly. The heart beats from ten to twenty times less frequently each minute, or 5,000 times less during the night, while breathing is not only slower but much more shallow than during waking hours. Temperature falls by perhaps 2 degrees, and the body loses three times less heat than when awake. And so at last sleep covers a man all over—sleep that shuts up sorrow's eye.—London Express.

Both In Front and Behind.

A police magistrate recently learned that it is possible to be back of a person even if you are in front of him. The means of this startling intelligence was a stout German conductor, witness to a "breach of the peace" that occurred aboard his car.

"You were on your platform and yet you say that the prisoner was in back of you?" said the puzzled magistrate.

"Ya."

"Was the prisoner in the car?"

"Ya."

"Well, then, he must have been in front of you."

"Nein," said the man patiently. "I am the conductor."

"Then," exclaimed the magistrate, "you were on the rear platform. The prisoner was in the car. Now, how in heaven's name was he in back of you?"

The conductor smiled sweetly.

"My back was turned," he said.—Philadelphia Times.

Lived Up to Her Name.

Apropos of the eternal domestic question, an Englishwoman relates this experience: "I engaged a maid named Pearl, and as I simply couldn't ask a Pearl to fill the coal scuttle or to holystone the doorstep I said: 'I would rather call you by some other name. Have you a second one?' 'Yes,' replied the damsel brightly, 'my second name is Opal.' So I stuck to Pearl. At one time I all but engaged a maid named Hermione, but upon asking her, 'Have you a black dress, white caps and aprons?' she replied acidly: 'Yes, I have, but I'm not going to wear 'em. Ma didn't christen me 'Ermione for to wear a livery.'"

Not Necessary.

A country bridegroom, when the bride hesitated to pronounce the word "obey," remarked to the officiating clergyman: "Go on, mister. It don't matter. I can make her."

Still Grieving.

"So she has lost her husband? Has she recovered from her grief yet?"

"Not yet. You know how slow those insurance companies are in settling."

- Provincial and General News -

Local option leaders announce that despite the severe setback experienced in Prince Rupert and in Chilliwack, petitions for a reference to the people of the question as to whether or not the Canadian Temperance Act shall be substituted for the present provincial high license and strict regulation plan will at once be circulated in New Westminster and the Slocan district.

Chilliwack, since the result of the Scott act vote has doubled the price of town liquor licenses.

An interesting feature of King George's coronation will be the provision of a third throne for Queen Alexandra. This will be placed on the left of the King's coronation chair, Queen Mary's being on the right. The two Queen's chairs will be identical in height, and each will be two steps lower than that of the King.

Winnipeg is having fine frosty winter weather, the thermometer standing at only 42 below.

The Millenium of peace and good will is not yet in sight. The year 1911 opens under conditions that must cause the advocates of universal peace much concern. Insurrections in Mexico and Honduras; threats of revolution in Spain; the fate of the new republic of Portugal in doubt; discontent in Greece; Korea sullen and discontented; China and Japan at dagger points; Britain and Germany, watchful and suspicious; the United States and Japan sparring for wind; Russia dormant but preparing; Turkey full of plots and assassinations; Austria only awaiting the death of the aged Emperor; and riots and strikes disturbing the peace of France. In no country under the sun does tranquility and prosperity prevail to a greater extent than the fair land we have the good fortune to live in.

A bulletin the census office issued gives the total area of field crops grown in Canada this year as 32,711,062 acres, and the value of crops as $507,185,500, compared with 30,065,556 acres and a value of $532,992,100 last year. Wheat, oats and barley had last year a total area of 18,917,900 acres, with a value of $289,144,000, and this year, with an area of 20,992,900 acres, the value is only $248,738,300. The decrease in value is $40,405,700, which is $14,599,100 more than the decrease for all field crops, and a lower production of 18,591,000 bushels wheat, 58,686,000 bushels oats and 9,981,000 bushels barley through drouth and heat in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, from an area sown greater by 1,857,300 acres, accounts for the whole loss. The yield of wheat, oats and barley this year in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta is 277,021,000 bushels, compared with 364,279,000 bushels last year.

In the Chilliwack police court Henry Kipp, fruit-grower, Chilliwack, and Jacob Zinck, fruit-grower, Sardis, were, on information laid by Dominion Fruit Inspector D. M. Robertson of New Westminster, each fined $20 and costs, or in default one month's imprisonment for violation of the Fruit Marks Act. The former was charged with falsely marking boxes of fruit, thereby giving a false representation of the contents of the boxes and the latter with false marking and false packing.

In bright but bitterly cold weather, the striking car men of Winnipeg made a demonstration in numbers last week, parading the streets, six hundred strong, headed by a brass band. No incident marked the march. The strikers rely on getting solid union support.

The snowfall has been heavier this week than in any week for many years. It has been a long time since there has been snow on the level as deep as at present. This is generally taken to mean that the country is practically assured of sufficient moisture to make next season a good one.

A GOOD POSITION

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of wireless or railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country, there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R.R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinatti, O., Portland, Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

It is the intention of the Canadian Pacific management to instal in the coming year, another two thousand miles of telephone to replace the telegraph in the operation of trains. The amount of mileage already installed is 2254, the circuits in different parts of the system ranging from a little over a hundred to something over 300 miles.

While returns are not yet complete it is estimated at the department of immigration that the total arrivals in Canada for the year just closed have been approximately 350,000, of whom 150,000 came from the United States. It is estimated that the immigration in the next twelve months will touch the half million mark.

An authority attributes the defeat of the local option law in the prairie provinces to the vote being taken at the opening of the curling season. The West is full of enthusiastic followers of the roarin' game who could hardly be expected to substitute ice water and sundaes for the time-honored beverages that pertain to the sport.

In the recent dairy farming competition for the province, the much-coveted gold medal and trophy cup have been awarded to J. M. Steves, of Steveston, the silver medal to Alexander McQuarrie, of Armstrong, and the bronze medal to A. C. Wells, of Sardis. This competition was instituted about one year ago and has excited the greatest interest among dairy farmers since its inception. The cup is held for one year by each fortunate winner, but upon being thrice won (not necessarily in successive years) becomes the personal property of the winner.

Plans have been drawn in the Vancouver offices of the C. P. R. for the building of a tunnel under the city to connect the False Creek yards and shops of the company with the wharves and depot on the waterfront.

The railways are preparing for a big legal battle in resistance to the enforcement of the Lavergne Dual Language Act, which was passed by the Provincial Legislature of Quebec last session and came into operation on the 1st of Jan. The act compels all railway and transportation corporations to issue all railway tickets, rate books bills of lading, accounts and other documents in both English and French. It is pointed out that this will involve the companies in an enormous printing expenditure, for which there is no necessity whatever, as all public announcements in districts where French is spoken are published now in both languages.

A development of the suspension of the Farmers' Bank of Canada was the arrest of W. R. Travers, the general manager, on a charge of having made false statements in returns to the minister of finance and receiver general regarding the affairs of the bank.

YOUR MEMORY.

If It Seems to Fail You Just Give It a Good Jogging.

Memory does not "fail" (except in loss of all the faculties); it simply gets weak and languid for want of use, just as the physical organs do. People often say "My memory is failing" when it is really as good as ever if they would give it a chance.

A word, a date, a name, an incident, comes up, or, rather, fails to come up when you want it. There seems to be no possible way of remembering it. You make two or three efforts, give up and say, "There's no use; it's gone from me."

Nonsense! It hasn't. It is there just as much as it ever was, only there are a lot of things over it. Keep at work, bring your will to bear upon it, try and try and try, and after awhile you can get it.

And, better, you will find that the exercise required in remembering it will help you next time and that a little toil and determination put together will accomplish wonders in the whole range of faculties.

Look over your memory, see where you are most deficient and exercise it in that respect. You can do it at any odd time, while you are walking, riding, resting after a day's work, listening perforce to a dull speaker. Don't let a few failures discourage you. The long corridor of recollection lined upon both sides with valuable material will be opened for you because of your importunity if you use it.—Exchange.

BARGAIN HUNTING.

The Strenuous National Game of the American Women.

There is always something impressive about a crowd that is swayed by a single emotion. You get an impression of force, says Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine. These women, who a few moments ago had been quiet shoppers, formed a mob. They swayed and pushed as though moved by a common impulse toward a table where were the embroideries. From their throats came a little dull growl, a curious noise—the whisper of a mob.

The noise of a mob in joy or in anger or in fright or just its restless murmur as it waits is different from any other noise that comes from the human throat—quite distinct, of a curious animal timber. I heard it once on the occasion of the throwing of a bomb, again from a crowd waiting for a bank to open and a third time in a theater when fire had been called, and now here it was in miniature from a couple of hundred women waiting to buy ten cent embroideries.

They were poor women with shawls and baskets, women with babies in their arms, women with threadbare clothes carefully brushed, who must think before spending each dime in the dollar, but for once indulging in the great sport of American women—bargain hunting.

Edward Everett.

Edward Everett was one of the most purely literary of all American orators. Among the more eminent scholars and statesmen of our land no one has ever been more deservedly honored for intellectual power, purity of character, public and private, and for clearness and perception of judgment than Everett. To the efforts of Edward Everett more than to any other one person is to be credited the raising of funds sufficient to purchase the home of Washington at Mount Vernon. He delivered a lecture on the character of that great man more than a hundred times and gave the proceeds to the Ladies' Mount Vernon association. He personally placed over $60,000 in the treasury. It is probable that his oratory won for benevolent purposes at least $100,000.—St. Louis Republic.

The Oldest Reliable Date.

It used to be supposed that the most ancient civilization of which real records had been found dated from B C 3500. This had relation to Peru and its earliest known inhabitants, but Dr. Eduard Mayer, professor of ancient history at the University of Berlin, studying the Egyptian calendars on the monuments in the state museum of the German capital, discovered that the date B C. 4241 is frequently cited as that in which the early Egyptian astronomers first calculated their solar year from the rising of the star Sirius. This is by far the oldest reliable date in the history of the human race.

The Word "Belfry."

The word "belfry" had originally no connection with "bell," an idea which is now intimately associated with the term. The first meaning given is "watchtower," from the middle English "berfry," a watchtower. The first part of this word is connected with "borough," the second with "free." As the practice grew of hanging "bells" in such towers people reminded themselves of the fact by changing the word "berfry" into the modern "belfry."

No Chance.

"Why don't you ask that young man up to tea some evening, dear?"

"I don't believe it would do any good, mother. He's a confirmed bachelor."—New York Journal.

A College Pun.

"Can your horse jump?"

"I don't know. I never asked him."

"Really! Why not?"

"I'm afraid he might take a fence."—Harvard Lampoon.

Appropriate.

"What do you suppose is the song of the desert?"

"I don't know, but I should think it would be 'The camels are coming.'"—Exchange.

A CURIOUS WATCH.

Made by a Clever Workman on a Challenge From Royalty.

Some years ago the czar, hearing of the marvelous inventive genius of a Polish mechanic, determined to put him to the test and accordingly caused to be forwarded to him a few copper nails, some wood clippings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire and a few cribbage board pegs. The box was accompanied by the request that the Pole should transform these unpromising articles into a timepiece.

It was a challenge and one that few watchmakers would have cared to take up. But it would have taken a harder task than this to daunt the Pole. He set to work on the unpromising materials and out of them fashioned a watch that was quickly dispatched to the czar. Just eight hours after he began his work of transformation the watch started on its journey to St. Petersburg, where it arrived safely, to the great delight of the czar.

It was a most unique timepiece, its case being made of china and its works composed of the material that had accompanied the old cup. Yet it kept good time and had to be wound up only once in three or four days. So pleased was the czar that he sent for the Pole and conferred upon him several distinctions, besides granting him a pension.—New York Press.

A TRAGIC OLD CUSTOM.

Human Beings Once Walled Up In Building Foundations.

The practice of putting money under the foundation stone of a new building is the shadow of an older tragic custom. The money stands theoretically for the ransom of the human being who by ancient superstition should have been buried in its place. Otherwise, it was held, the building would not stand firm and endure.

There was a time when this particular kind of human sacrifice had a vogue extending to most parts of the world. Even in England skeletons have been found imbedded in the bases of castle walls, and there is record of one German fortress at the building of which a child was bought from its mother with hard cash and walled into the donjon tower, the unnatural mother, according to the story, looking on the while. Effigies of human beings are still used in some parts of Europe as harmless substitutes, and in remoter and more ruthless places the old custom crops out from time to time in all its grim reality. Within the last century two children, a boy and a girl, were, it was reported, walled into a blockhouse by some laborers at Duga, Asiatic Turkey.—Westminster Gazette.

Millais' Faith in Himself.

The artist Millais, writes J. E. Reid, was as open and frank as a boy in expressing his belief in himself. When the Leyland collection was on view, previous to its dispersal, Millais went to see it and openly asserted that his "Eve of St. Agnes" was the best picture there. This egotism was part of his character, a thing it was impossible to resent on account of the manner in which it was expressed. Millais never lost the self confidence of youth. In this respect, as in many others, he remained a boy to the end. Neither was the egotistic note confined to art matters. His public speeches were invariably about himself. His conversation on all subjects was impregnated with the essence of a sincere conviction of his own authority to speak. He liked to be always right, and such were his grasp of realities and his power of reasoning that it required very strong evidence and a very clever argument to convince him that he was wrong.—Youth's Companion.

Flogging at Eton.

On more than one occasion Dr. Hornby, the famous headmaster at Eton, is said to have flogged the wrong boy by mistake. A boy thus victimized was asked why he did not attempt to exculpate himself or offer any explanation. "If you had not been complained of," said the tutor, "why did you not say so to the headmaster?" "Well, sir," he replied, "I thought that if Mr. — had not complained of me some other master might have done so." The young scapegrace was so seasoned a campaigner that he was prepared to take a flogging without asking captious questions, as all in the day's work.—From "Eton Under Hornby."

The Story of Four Uncles.

"I have four uncles," writes a correspondent, "who are all widowers. Uncle Sam and his wife used to fight, Uncle Tom was always flirting, and Uncle Joe was ruined by his wife's extravagance. Uncle Martin alone loved his wife, and when she died he was broken hearted. Still, he is the only one who married again. He married a girl who has all the qualities he used to proudly boast his wife lacked. Men are funny and grow funnier as you know them better."—Atchison Globe.

The Limit.

Worthless Husband—Going to leave me, are you, Moll? Didn't you take me for better or worse? Long Suffering Wife—Yes, but you are absolutely the worst. I didn't take you for that.—Chicago Tribune.

A QUAINT CUSTOM.

Passing of Winter Marked by Burning of the Boegg.

Switzerland still preserves some interesting customs, one of which is the spring fete annually celebrated by curious and quaint ceremonies. One would hardly think that in such a hustling commercial city as Zurich its citizens would find time for "keeping up" the memory of an affair that must date back to primitive times. But a day is set apart every year for just such a festival, called the "Burning of the Boegg," which traditionally marks the "Passing of Winter." It is also called, locally, "Sechselauten," meaning "six o'clock ringing feast," because its commencement is announced by the cathedral chimes at that early hour.

The festival this year began with a procession of boys and girls toward the great public square. The boys, dressed as pierrots, dragged the car on which the portly toy snow man stood. The pierrots were followed by knights in armor, members of various guilds in their picturesque costumes, cow herders, fishermen, clowns and others. The Boegg was a huge figure made of wood, covered with cotton wool, and stuffed with crackers and gun powder. The procession wound through the streets on either side of the river Limmat, and made its way to the square.

The figure, emblematic of spring, followed and was greeted with the welcoming cheers of the throngs gathered to witness the ceremony. Maidens in appropriate costumes escorted the triumphal car bearing the Goddess of Spring.

The procession ending its march, the Boegg was placed on an immense pile of wood. An intermission in the ceremonies occurred for lunch. In the afternoon a more important procession and function took place. The city guilds, in quaint attire, formed in line, each member dressed in the costume of his craft, as in the medieval days. These were followed by a long line of highly decorated floats, among the most noteworthy being those representing the Golden Calf, the Ceres, and the Goddess of Harvest. The citizens played practical jokes on each other during the day. When the procession reached the square the throng was immense. Near the Boegg stood several men, ready, at the prearranged signal, on the stroke of six o'clock, to blow up the figure after it had been set on fire. When the sound of the explosion was heard the people cheered, for it was an intimation that winter's reign was over, and that spring had begun.

The flames leaped up and were reflected on the placid surface of the lake, where, from the innumerable boats, fireworks added to the liveliness of the scene.

The guild houses, of which Zurich has many handsome examples, were thrown open to visitors, and the evening was devoted entirely to dancing and banqueting. Then the celebrants retired, ready next morning to resume their usual business.

Would Run No Risks.

Mrs. Crestfield's telephone bell rang the other evening, and, putting the receiver to her ear, she heard the voice of an intimate friend at the other end of the line talking excitedly.

"Oh, Mrs. Crestfield," said the voice, "isn't it dreadful? My little Ann has diphtheria!"

"How awful!" was the response. "Is she in the house?"

"Of course," replied the voice. "I have a trained nurse for her."

"If she is in the house," said Mrs. Crestfield, "I must ask you to hang up the receiver at once. I have small children of my own, you know, and diphtheria is so contagious! I don't want to seem unsympathetic, but I will not run any risks!"—New York Times.

Why He Was Sad.

Jones' rich grandmother died, and Jones seemed unnaturally depressed and sad. His friend tried to cheer him.

"She left a last will and testament, I suppose," said Jenkins carelessly.

"Oh, yes," said Jones, raising his head at last, "she left a will and testament!"

"Ah," chimed in Brown, "you were always a friend of hers! Of course your name was mentioned?"

"Yes," answered Jones, bursting into floods of tears, "my name was mentioned, boys. I—I am to have"—

They hung expectant, while more sobs choked back his words.

"I," he declared at last, "am to have the testament!"—London Scraps.

The Herring Line.

A senator apropos of fame said at a Washington luncheon:

"What is fame, after all? Kipling when he lived in Brattleboro took a trip to Montpelier, and the first evening he came down to the hotel dining-room he overheard this dialogue between two waiters:

"First Waiter—Do you know who that is, George?

"Second Waiter—No. Who is it?

"First Waiter—That's the celebrated Kipperin.

"Second Waiter—What's he done?

"First Waiter—Hanged if I know. Fish line, ain't it?"—Washington Star.

Looking Ahead.

Josephine, aged ten, has a decided lisp. She is also very fond of attending the matinee. The other day she was giving a spirited story of the play to Marion, who was aged nine.

"My mamma says it isn't good for little girls to go to the theatre," said Marion, with an air of self righteousness. "I'm not ever going till I'm eighteen."

"Humph!" retorted Josephine without any hesitation. "Th'pose you die when you're theventeen, then you'll be thtung!"

Basket-Making Venture.

The initial stage of what may prove to be a new and important Natal industry has been reached in Maritzburg where a company has been floated to promote basket-making. Some 12,000 osier cuttings have been planted on a property near Edendale, and it is intended to import skilled artisans from England to teach the natives the art of basket-making according to modern methods.

ATTACKED BY SHARKS

A Whale's Terrific Battle With a School of Thrashers.

AN AWE INSPIRING CONTEST.

The Unequal Fight Was Ended by the Death of the Courageous Mammal, Who Was Torn to Shreds by Her Ferocious Assailants.

Early one morning while engaged in building new quarters for the light house keeper at Breaksea Island, near Rottnest, Western Australia, the contractor and his men noticed a bull whale, with a cow and calf, passing the island some distance off. They watched them with interest for awhile, noting the immense size of the two parents and the methodical regularity with which columns of water rose from their blowholes and then resumed their labors.

An hour or so later—about 9 o'clock, to be exact—the men were startled by an extraordinary noise, apparently coming from the eastern end of the island, a noise unlike anything they had ever heard before. Dropping their tools and staring toward the east, they beheld such a sight as it falls to the lot of few people to witness. There, not 500 yards from the shore, was being waged a battle to the death—a fight between the great cow whale previously seen and a school of thrasher sharks. The calf was swimming about distractedly, but the old bull had disappeared, having basely deserted his family at the first approach of danger.

The sharks, as though acting in accordance with some preconcerted plan had completely surrounded the two whales and, apparently realizing that nothing was to be feared from the calf, concentrated all their efforts upon the cow. Again and again they charged in upon her, their jaws snapping, tearing at her mighty sides until the sea was red with blood. Meanwhile the cow lashed her tail furiously, hurling up sheets of reddened water and occasionally crashing down with terrific force upon one of her voracious opponents. Maddened with pain and rage, she dashed this way and that, but the sharks hung to her side with a persistency and ferocity that made the fascinated onlookers shudder. Now and again the wildly lashing tail would catch one of the assailants, driving it beneath the waves—no doubt killed or disabled—but the remainder rushed in undismayed, tearing viciously at the mammal's bleeding flanks or butting her with the force of battering rams.

Presently the spellbound spectators realized two facts—first, that the calf had disappeared in the melee and, second, that the tortured whale was undoubtedly becoming weaker. It was obvious that the unequal struggle could have only one ending. Still, however, she fought on doggedly, winning admiration and sympathy by her exhibition of hopeless courage. Altering her tactics, by a supreme effort she hurled her whole great bulk clear of the water for a moment, and the fascinated onlookers beheld the sharks hanging from various parts of her gleaming body by their serrated teeth. Then down she went again with a crash like thunder, and for an instant whale and sharks were buried amid masses of foam, heavily colored with the poor mammal's lifeblood. Rising again, she essayed another change of plan, making for the rocks and desperately striving to rub off the clinging sharks against their edges. But the thrashers were equal to the occasion. While those on the outside maintained their grip, the others dived under their enemy and charged her anew, tearing at the whale's side in an ecstasy of ferocity that was bloodcurdling to witness.

More and more feeble grew the whale's struggles, and at last, to the heartfelt relief of the spectators, for her death fight had been terrible to behold, the great body turned over and sank beneath the red tinted water. The unequal battle was over, having lasted from 9 o'clock until noon, an awe inspiring a contest as man was ever privileged to witness. The men went back to their work greatly impressed by the unique spectacle, and expressions of sympathy for the whale were heard on every side.

Forty-eight hours afterward the whale's body, which had in the meantime become distended with gas, rose to the surface and exploded with a roar like a miniature powder magazine, causing the startled people to rush to the shore to discover what had happened. On examination of the remains it was discovered that every shred of the outer flesh of the whale had been torn off by the sharks, who had doubtless gone off to repeat their tactics upon some other hapless leviathan.—Victor Pitt-Kethley in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What He Sold.

One of the witnesses in a case in a Dublin court was asked, "Did you sell Major Studdert a horse?" "No, sor." "Did your father sell Major Studdert a horse?" "No, sor." "Did your grandfather sell him a horse?" "No sor." "Well, then, did any member of your family sell Major Studdert anything?" "Yes, sor." "Who did, then?" "I did, sor." "And what did you sell Major Studdert?" "I sold him a mare sor." The counsel sat down, and the court roared.

Politeness is like an air cushion—there's nothing in it, but it eases the jolts wonderfully.

BUZZARDS' NESTS.

The Same Ones Are Rarely Used Two Consecutive Seasons.

The flight of the buzzard is as well nigh perfection as is possible to find. In fact, he might be called the most perfect aeroplane in existence. To see him soaring between the bare hills, with a vast green fertile valley below him and with the spring sun lighting up his brown plumage as he slowly sails around with outspread pinions, is a sight never to be forgotten.

The buzzard usually chooses a ledge on a cliff for an eyrie, but in certain parts of Wales there are a few well used nests in trees, and as they are generally used by some bird of prey each season they grow to an enormous size. The buzzard does not, as a rule, use the same nest two consecutive seasons, but returns to it the third, and after that allows another season to elapse before occupying it again.

Two nests are often constructed in one dingle, and an amusing incident happened a few years ago in one of these places. The hen laid one egg in each nest, and, as it was quite impossible for her to sit on both at once, we did her a good turn by placing one of these eggs in the nest with its companion. The result of our kindness was that a collector passed by about two hours afterward and put both eggs in his collecting box.

When I thought the matter over I came to the conclusion that that old buzzard was not half such a fool as we took her to be, and if we had left the eggs as we found them the bird might have had a chance of rearing one youngster.—Country Life.

A STRANGE REVERSAL.

Napoleon and Wellington and an Exchange of Residences.

In the days before the Suez canal was opened to the world St. Helena was a frequent port of call for British vessels bound to and from India and the far east. This custom, explains Harper's Weekly, was caused by the need of obtaining supplies for the long voyage, and it was therefore for this reason that the ship which on one occasion bore the Duke of Wellington, then Sir Arthur Wellesley, returning to England from India, touched at the island. The great commander spent one night at Jamestown at the house of a Mr. Balcom.

Ten years later Napoleon Bonaparte landed to begin his six years of exile and was assigned to the same room that his conqueror at Waterloo had occupied. This coincidence came to the knowledge of the duke at Paris during its occupation by the allied forces, and he dispatched the following letter to the British officer then in command at St. Helena:

"I am very much obliged to you for Mr. Simpson's book, which I will read when I have a moment's leisure. I am glad you have taken the command at St. Helena, upon which I congratulate you. You may tell 'Bony' that I find his apartments at the Elysee Bourbon very convenient and that I hope he likes mine at Mr. Balcom's. It is a droll enough sequel to the affairs of Europe that we should change places of residence."

His Quick Wit Saved Him.

An ancestor of the great Tolstoy was an officer in the Russian army and a great mimic. One day he was impersonating the Emperor Paul to a group of his friends when Paul himself entered and for some moments looked on unperceived at the antics of the young man. Tolstoy finally turned and, beholding the emperor, bowed his head and was silent.

"Go on, sir," said Paul. "Continue the performance."

The young man hesitated a moment, and then, folding his arms and imitating every gesture and intonation of his sovereign, he said:

"Tolstoy, you deserve to be degraded, but I remember the thoughtlessness of youth, and you are pardoned."

The czar smiled slightly at this speech.

"Well, be it so," he said.

Willing to Pay.

When the British square at the battle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian desert, was penetrated by the dervishes one of them attempted to spear a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to hear no more of the case."

Obedient.

"Well, my little man," queried the minister who was making a call, "do you always do as your mamma tells you?"

"You bet I do," answered the precocious five-year old, "and so does papa."

Papa Was Seen.

She—You will ask papa, will you not, or must I? He—Oh, I have seen him. Fact is, he made the suggestion that it was about time for me to propose.

Conceited.

Gyer—That fellow Pufkins reminds me of a ball of twine. Myer—What's the answer? Gyer—He's completely wrapped up in himself. San Francisco Star.

Scottish Labor for Grand Trunk Rly.

Mr. W. Stewart, of the firm of Foley, Walsh and Stewart, the contractors for the mountain sections of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which will represent an outlay of many millions of dollars, has left for Scotland to secure labor for the gigantic undertaking.

There is very little labor available on the Pacific coast and public sentiment will not tolerate, neither will the Dominion or Provincial Governments sanction the importation of Asiatic labor. Mr. Stewart is hopeful of getting the five thousand men he needs to build the road through the mountains. He says these men, accustomed to the mountains of their native land, will make first class settlers after the road is constructed.

"They will cost us more" said Mr. Stewart, "than Asiatics would have done, but the railway and the country will have the advantage of five thousand acclimatized settlers of the finest race the world has produced."

Summerland Pays Tribute to Rutland.

Mr. J. W. Harris, who for some time has been master of the town school in Summerland, has been offered, on the recommendation of Mr. Miller, the district government school inspector, the position as head master at the school in Rutland, near Kelowna. Mr. Harris has accepted this position, and will commence his duties on the 3rd of January. Rutland is a growing district, and a new school will be erected there in April next, of which Mr. Harris will have control. —Summerland Review.

Next Wednesday is the day for the first sitting of the Provincial Legislature.

Over 1071 people have been indicted at West Union, Michigan, for selling their votes, some of them for only trifling sums. Of this number 377 have already pleaded guilty. It is strange that women should desire so much what men value so little.

THE MIRROR TONIC.

When a Peek Into a Hand Glass May Help a Patient.

The looking glass, whether a plus or a minus quantity, plays a more important part in the sickroom than most nurses and physicians give it credit for.

"All things considered, I think it a good plan to give a sick person a chance to look at himself occasionally," said a prominent doctor recently. "Of course the indulgence must be granted with discretion. If a patient is really looking seedy a turn at the looking glass is equivalent to signing his death warrant, but if taken at a time when braced up by some stimulant or a natural ebullition of vital force a few minutes of communion with his own visage beats any tonic I can prescribe. It thrills the patient with new hope. It makes him feel that he isn't quite so far gone as he has thought and that possibly a fight for life is, after all, worth while. Being thus sensitive, a persistent withholding of a mirror convinces the patient that he must be too horrible for contemplation, and he promptly decides that the best thing for him to do is to give up the ghost and get out of the way.

"That is one of the mistakes hospitals were apt to make up to a few years ago. When I was a young fellow getting my first practice after graduation I served on the staff of several hospitals, and in all, especially in the free wards, those aids to vanity were strictly forbidden." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE TIPPING HABIT.

It Was Worse In the Eighteenth Century Than It Is Now.

The tipping habit is bad enough nowadays, but in the eighteenth century it was a greater evil than it is at the present time. A writer in the Cornhill Magazine tells some stories to illustrate the old condition of things.

In Edinburgh in 1760 tipping became such an evil that the Society of Clerks enacted that all servants should be forbidden to take tips and members be forbidden to give them. This example was followed by other clubs and societies. Today there is a rule in most clubs against feeing the servants.

An eccentric Irish gentleman, Lord Tanffe, used to attend his guests to the door, and if they offered any money to the servants who were lined up with the guests' baggage the host would say, "If you give, give it me, for it was I that did buy the dinner."

A well known colonel while sitting at dinner inquired the names of the host's servants. "For," said he, "I cannot pay them for such a good dinner, but I should like to remember them in my will."

Another eccentric gentleman after patiently redeeming his hat, sword, cane and cloak to the very bottom of his purse turned to the two remaining servants who were waiting obsequiously, each with a glove, and said affably: "Keep those. I will not trouble to buy them back. They are old and not worth a shilling."

A King's Trick.

King Gustavus III. of Sweden had been frequently invited to the little court of Schwerin. In 1783 he paid a visit to Germany, and as soon as the Duchess of Mecklenburg heard of his approach she prepared fetes in his honor. But Gustavus, who disdained the petty courts of the small rulers, sent two of his attendants--a page named Peyron and Desrouges, a valet who had formerly been an actor—to be entertained by the duchess. The two personated the king and his minister, Baron Sparre, and sustained the characters throughout. They accepted as their due all the homage meant for their master, danced with the Mecklenburg ladies who were presented to them, and Peyron went so far as to ask one of the ladies for her portrait. Meantime Gustavus was enjoying himself elsewhere in secret.

Richmond Castle.

Richmond castle was originally one of the strongest of Norman keeps. It was probably founded by Alan Rufus, one of the sons of the Duke of Brittany, who took a prominent part in the suppression of the Saxons. At a later age the castle passed into the possession of Edmund Tudor, who married Margaret Beaufort and became the father of Henry VII. Henry was born Earl of Richmond, and he bestowed the title upon the magnificent palace which when king of England he built upon the banks of the Thames. Thus the Richmond beloved of cockneys has a comparatively modern origin. The curfew, by the way, is still rung from the tower of Richmond castle at 6 a. m. and 8 p. m., a custom "that has continued ever since the time of William the Conqueror."—London Globe.

Game In Manchuria.

The long haired tiger is found throughout Manchuria wherever there is hilly country, but is never found on the plains. It is extremely difficult to bag and is by no means numerous. In addition to tiger the following game may be found in Manchuria: Bear (black and brown), wapiti, Sika deer (two species), roedeer, serow, wild pig, leopard and lynx. All, however, are scarce and hard to bag, with the exception of roedeer and pig. —London Field.

It All Depends.

Teacher—Now, boys, here's a little example in mental arithmetic. How old would a person be who was born in 1875? Pupil—Please, teacher, was it a man or a woman?—London Gentlewoman.
