ROCK CREEK NOTES

On Saturday evening a large gathering met at Mrs. Shilcock's house to say goodbye to Miss Crissie Blackadder who is leaving for Vancouver. A merry evening was spent in games, singing, and at its conclusion Miss Blackadder was presented with a set of silver toilet articles together with the following address: "It is with more than a passing feeling of regret that we, your friends in Rock Creek, have met tonight to say farewell to you. You have lived among us for several years, and in that time you have won the respect and real affection of us all. Unfortunately, we cannot always map out our own path in the world, and it is to this that we attribute your leaving us and severing so abruptly the tie which bind all of us in Rock Creek so closely to you. We assure you that your absence will in no way diminish our affection for you and we shall always look forward to the time when you will be amongst us again.

We now ask you to accept this parting gift, which, we trust may serve to remind you of the many pleasant times we have spent together, and as an evidence of our goodwill and best wishes for your future prosperity and happiness."

Miss Blackadder's loss will be keenly felt by everybody in the district for she is liked by all who know her, and all hope that she will before long be among us again.

Another Way To Do It

The following from the Sumas News, might act as an incentive:

"It is a well esablished fact that when it comes to prying a hard-headed business man loose from his toil begotten dollars, it takes a women to turn the trick. A man will make a life and death struggle against another he-human before he will cut the bands of his bundle of kale and distribute the same for the public weal and welfare—and his own. But he'll make a bonfire out of the entire bale if Winsome Winnie wills it. Witness; the average man won't buy himself a new necktie once a year. That is, if he's happily married and isn't trying to make a hit with Mrs. Trubble or Ohyoukid. The old tie is good enough, and he refuses to let go of four bits to buy a new one. But along about the time his birthday rolls around wifey goes to him and puts up a play for a new bonnet, she lands a ten spot without a struggle. Five of it buys the skypiece—or ribbons and flub-dubs doo-dads enough to make over the old one. And she surprises pa with a birthday present of a dozen new ties—and he's tickled most to death.

"The idea of a Woman's Auxiliary for the commercial body of a town has been worked out with great success in many cities of the West."

An exchange publishes the following, and it has its application: "A severe lesson in honesty among those who find lost articles and fail to return or advertise them is much needed. It is either not generally known or the knowledge is disregarded, that an effort must be made publicly to restore to the loser any thing picked up by persons on the street or other places, and until this is done the finder rests under suspicion of having stolen the article in question.

THE LEDGE

Is located at Greenwood, B. C., and can be traced to many parts of the earth. It comes to the front every Thursday morning, and believes that hell would close up if love ruled the world. It believes in justice to everyone, from the man who mucks in the mine to the king who sits on the cushions of the throne. It believes that advertising is the life of trade; and that one of the noblest works of creation is the man who always pays the printer.

The Ledge is $2.00 a year in advance, or $2.50 when not so paid. It is postage free to all parts of Canada, Mexico, Great Britain and the county of Brace. To the United States it is $2.50 a year, always in advance.

A blue mark here indicates that your Subscription has become deceased, and that the editor would once more like to commune with your collateral.

THE man behind the gun has great influence, but the chap behind the dollar seems to be holding his own.

THE yellow streak is now visible in the hills around Greenwood. This is the way nature advertises that winter will soon be once more doing business in our midst.

WE are glad Dick McBride is not going to Ottawa. He is a big production of the great west, and British Columbia without Dick would be like a home with a vacant chair.

THE Fair held in Greenwood last week was a success, in spite of the fact that a few knockers did nothing to help it along. It has done a great deal to advertise the agricultural resources of the Greenwood district, and as the years roll along it should grow larger and better in every way. Events that bring the people together in large bunches tend to broaden the mind, quicken enthusiasm, and educate the masses. We had a good time last week. Let us get up a Winter Carnival, and have another one.

FOR lack of local patronage The Rossland Miner ceased publication about six weeks ago. Then the people got together and induced the editor to resume by giving him 47 local ads, and they will probably never again let their paper die for lack of support. When a paper comes out regularly in a town for a long time the business men grow indifferent, mean and selfish, and think that the editor can live upon ozone, mixed occasionally with bacon and beans. He stands in his own light who does not extend a steady and liberal support to the local press. By helping your paper you help yourself. The Ledge could not exist if it had to live upon its local commercial advertising. More than half of the business men in this town are asleep when ads are wanted for the leading excitement. As it is we have more than double the advertising outside of town that we have in it. This is a record unequalled by any other paper in the world.

Thinking Themes

All the constructive work in human progress has been done by the Will and the Emotions; the intellect is only good for Destruction work. The mind can analyze, it cannot synthesize, it can pull to pieces, but cannot put together. In history you will find the great Doers and Builders to be men of large hearts, violent desires, strong wills and feelings; while the very necessary business of tearing down and removing debris and falsehood and out grown institutions has been done in the main by great brains. The critics of an organization are always more intellectual than the makers of it.

So these two forces balance the one the other. Always Feeling is creating something; always thought is judging, criticizing the thing made. Feeling is absurd as a judge; intellect is impotent as a creator.

It is the Love of God that made the world; it is the Wisdom of God that judges the world. Significantly Jesus is called by the Apostle, "the Power of God and the Wisdom of God." It is because, in the Nazarene was a tremendous force of Emotion that goes on forming system after system, institution after institution; and also a marvelous wisdom which by and by removes these systems and institutions and makes way for better ones in their stead.

Dr. Frank Crane.

"Mad!"

Yes. I'm mad. Quite mad. Raving, roaring, ravenously mad. Mad as a Red Indian, or a South Sea Cannibal, or a trapped rat, or a free tiger, or a hungry wolf—or a——. Curse you, don't look at me like that. But—no; no; don't go away. I want to tell you. I want you to know.

Yes, I killed them. They were mine. What did it matter to anyone? I killed them. I kill them every night. I go through it all again and again, here, on this floor, in this cursed padded cell. Every night. They smile at me now, because they know that I saved them.

They were sweet children all of them. Four dear bright-faced happy little angel-eyed darlings. Until I fell out of work. Until your class—damn you—hounded me down. No, no, I forgot. I'll not shout again. Listen. I got the "sack." I'd been there twenty years and then they put me off. Twenty years. I knew no other work and could get none. My children got thin, and pale, and miserable, and ill. Once bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked happy little scamps became wan, miserable, whining skeletons.

My dear wife worked herself to a sort of ragged ghost. Ha! ha! she did look a freak. Excuse my laughter, but I killed her too, bless her. Yes, I saved her as well. She comes and kisses me every night when I'm curled up in that corner, and we talk, she and I, about the old days. The happy days. The days before I got the sack. Oh, the splendid times we had. The pleasant home-coming from work, the joyous tea time with my merry, hearty, happy children around the table. How she used to tell me of all their dear little funny sayings and doings during the day. Then the game of baiting the bear after tea, with myself as the bear. The romping and laughter, and fun, and noise. And then the bedtime trip upstairs one on each arm and one on my back.

I know about them, though. I remember them Oh! yes. I know of them, and I want you to know of them. It was your class who did it. You are smug visitors, to this place now come to see that we poor creatures are well done by. Well, hear some wisdom from the lips of a madman. Why don't you see that we are well done by before we get here, and then there'd be fewer patients to visit. Damn you, you are too intent upon——. No, no, I forgot. I'll not rave again. Let me tell you all, now I have started. When I lost my job I lost everything. Work, food, fire, light, love, joy, smiles, comfort, everything that was good to have. My furniture went, my clothes, my dear wife's rings. Her wedding ring. Her WEDDING ring. All went. When I came home from failure to get work my children did not run to meet me with merry shouts and laughter. They came whining for bread. Bread. Only bread. And I had none. These children who had always had plenty, wanted bread. When I rushed from the house and took some from a baker's shop; they fell on and devoured it like wolves.

You locked me up for taking the the bread, you remember, and when I came out one of my little ones was dead. Dead. Dead. Dead. You had put him under the ground, and I—his father—had not seen him. The neighbors came in to quiet my ravings, but they soon went out again, Ha! ha! They didn't like my looks.

Later, I saw this little one was better off. He was not suffering now. He was not being starved to death, slowly murdered. "He was better off." The kind neighbors first told me this to calm my violence. And the kind neighbors were right. He was better off. The others should be better off too.

All night long I sat beside them and kissed their cold, clammy faces. I fondled them and nursed them, and sang to them. There they are down there in a row. Look, curse you, look. You made me do it. Look. Look. On that old sack with another old sack over them. That's their bed—has been for months. Look at them all in a row. All dead. All gone to somewhere better than this. I did it. I did it for love of them. I've told you all now. If I could reach you I'd sink my hands into you and tear out your hearts to show you their blackness. You and all your class. Curse you. Damn you. You have——.

The visitors did not wait to hear any more.—Wilfred Moore.

Australian View

Melbourne,—The disappearance of the picturesque figure of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from empire politics is regretted by Australians, but the victory of the Conservative party is greatly appreciated. It is hoped that the way has been cleared for early reciprocity between Canada and Australia. The New Zealand parliament has agreed to a resolution empowering the government in conjunction with Canada to establish four weekly mail steamship service from Vancouver to Auckland for a period of five years. The subsidy of New Zealand is not to exceed £20,000 a year, and the time between ports is limited to nineteen days.

Mr. Deakin in the federal house has tabled a motion of want of confidence in the government in consequence of the preference system introduced by Mr. O'Malley on behalf of the government. It is not expected that the ministry will be defeated, and the move is regarded as merely a tactical one in order to arouse the electorate.

Word has been received here that the Pacific cable board will reduce to one and sixpence a word, messages from Great Britain which if necessary may be delayed 24 hours in transmission. The reform it is expected, will come into force about the next year.

Between Me And Hank

No greater insult was ever offered to God than to say that His highest work—man—made in his likeness—is so base at heart as to merit only damnation. Did you ever ask yourself the question if in all nature there is any other animate or inanimate thing which is not filling the divine purpose? If this be so, then how can man be otherwise? Isn't it just possible that in our chase after the unnatural things of life, we have drifted away from the realities of Life and are in the dark so far as our associations with the Divine should be?

The man who quarrels, is a pestilential wag. The man who holds a grudge is considered narrow, small and insufficiently baked. And yet we are told that long, long ago a man and a women disobeyed God, and God banished the man and the woman and damned posperity. And ever since then man has held a quarrel with God and God has looked with vengeance upon man. It is all so strange—so man-made—so crude and cruel!—Summerland Review.

Hard on the S. A.

The following article which is taken from the Spokesman Review is not only hard on women suffrage, but is a severe knock to the Salvation Army:

The late Robert Ingersoll once declared that biblical authority for anything could be found if one only looked for it.

Perhaps the famous lecturer exaggerated somewhat, but it is interesting in this line to note that Bishop Doane of New York has discovered biblical authority for opposition to one phase of the suffragette movement.

When the president of the National League for the Protection of Purity, who had been granted permission to speak in All Saints' cathedral, proved to be Mrs. Elizabeth Grannis, a women instead of a man, instead of sending her a polite note refusing admission, the bishop quietly turned to First Corinthians, 14:34:

"Let your women keep silent in the churches, for it is not permitted unto them to speak."

Of course, that was an end to it. But with such a precedent established there seems no good reason why opposition to women speaking in churches, at any time or upon any subject, might not be carried on upon the same ground.

Probably this is somewhat exaggerated view to take of this case but that those men who oppose the encroachment of the gentler sex will take a gentler interest hereafter in holy scripture would not be surprising.

The Ways of Wool

When the present tariff law was under discussion Representative Ralph Cole, of Ohio, received many letters and telegrams asking him to see to it that there was a good stiff tariff on wool.

One man in particular in Cole's district was most insistent and persistent. He sent in some kind of a message every day, such as "Protect the wool grower!" "American wool growers must be protected!" "Don't overlook the claims of the wool grower!" and so on.

Finally Cole wrote to this man that he was for highly protected wool and intended to work for it and get it, and that it might be just as well if the telegrams ceased.

Cole heard nothing for three weeks. Then he got a letter from the man who had been pestering him. It read: "As regard the tariff on wool, act on your own discretion. I have sold all my sheep."

A Martyr to Modesty

The question about the rudeness of the nude has received a tragic answer from Kent, England. A hop-picker, returning from a swim, espied some young women near his clothes. Fearing to shock them by emerging in that state with which nature endowed him, he plunged back into the water and was drowned. What a lesson for prudes who teach men to be ashamed of their own bodies!

Live upon the sunny side of life, and keep away from the grouchy, who knows nothing but hard luck stories.

LOWERY'S CLAIM
During the 37 months that Lowery's Claim was on earth it did business all over the world. It was the most unique, independent and fearless journal ever produced in Canada. Political and theological enemies pursued it with the venom of a rattlesnake until the government shut it out of the mails, and its editor ceasad to publish it, partly on account of a lazy liver and partly because it takes a pile of money to run a paper that is outlawed. There are still 25 different editions of this condemned journal in print. Send 10 cents and get one or $2 50 and get the bunch.

About Float.
Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations, all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

Copper Handbook, Vol. X

Vol. X, the tenth annual edition of the Copper Handbook, is just received. The new issue of this work, which is considered a standard authority on the subject of copper and copper mines for the entire globe, has 1,902 octavo pages, containing nearly 1,500,000 words, and, in addition to the miscellaneous chapters, lists and describes 8,130 copper mines and copper mining companies, in all parts of the world, this being the largest number of titles ever listed by any work on mining. The description range from two or three lines, in the case of dead companies, wherein reference is made to detailed descriptions in past volumes at the period of their activity, up to twenty-one pages in the case of the Anaconda mine, which yields, one-eighth of all the copper in the world.

The miscellaneous chapters of the book, twenty-four in number, treat the subject of copper from all possible view points, there being chapters on the history, chemistry, mineralogy, metallurgy, brands and grades, alloys and substitutes for copper, with a copious glossary, and a chapter of statistics ending the book that contains 40 odd tables, thoroughly covering copper production, consumption, movement, prices, dividends, etc. The Copper Handbook is sold on the unique plan adopted nine years ago, the publisher sending the book by mail, prepaid, to any address ordered, without advance payment of any sort, and subject to return after a week's inspection. The price is $5 in a strong green buckram binding with silk headband and gilt top, or $7.50 in full library Morocco. Anyone interested in copper, as a producer, consumer or investor in shares, would do well to write the author and publisher, Mr. Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Michigan, ordering a copy of the new Copper Handbook sent prepaid, subject to approval.

Modern Cannibalism

"The poor man, who deforms himself by toil, who labors for wife and child, through all his anxious, barren, wasted life, who goes to the grave without ever having one luxury, has been the food of others; he has been devoured by his fellow men. The poor woman, living in the bare and lonely room, cheerless and fireless, sewing night and day to keep starvation from her child, is slowly being devoured by her fellow men. When I take into consideration the agony of civilized life, the failures, the poverty, the anxiety, the tears, the withered hopes, the bitter realities, the hunger, crime, the humiliation, the shame—I am almost forced to say that cannibalism after all, is the most merciful form in which man has ever lived upon his fellowmen."—Robert G. Ingersoll.

BOUNDARY MINES

The annual report of the Granby will appear in a few days.

The B. C. Copper Co., are prospecting the Greyhound with a diamond drill.

The Granby has experted and may take over the Maple Bay mines, near Stewart.

James Drum has struck a fine lead of high-grade ore on the Gold Pick. This property lies across the Creek from the Elkhorn.

During the past week the Argo tunnel has been crowded with visitors. The showing on this property is steadily improving.

The Granby is working 300 men at their Hidden Creek mine in the north, and getting ready to build a smelter at Goose Bay. They will probably resume in Phoenix next month.

The British Columbia Copper Co. may acquire more mining interests in the Orient district, aside from the Napoleon. There is no better company for a camp than the B. C. Copper. Its staff does business open above-board, and when they take hold of a new property it is most generally speedily made producer, and a paying one. —Orient Journal.

B. C. MINING NEWS

George Aldous and Nels Larsen are opening up a gold property upon Roche river.

W. C. Fry is prospecting for gold and platinum at the forks of the rivers at Princeton. Years ago he made $90,000 in Cariboo.

The International Coal & Coke Co., Ld., of Coleman, Alta., shows net profits in its report for 1910 of $300,097. The total amount of its payroll for that year was $567,974; average number of men employed, 524.

Charles Camsell, who spent the early part of the summer in the Similkameen, further investigating the diamond occurrences at Olivine Mountain, near Tulameen, and has since taken in the Steamboat mountain section, will occupy the fall with exploration work in the Lillooet district.

At the Wilcox mine, near Ymir, B. C., a plan of development work has been outlined which will occupy a period of two years and will be carried out under the supervision of Arthur Lakes, Jr., of Denver. Money has been secured for a complete development of the mine and no attempt will be made to ship ore until the work outlined is completed, except that taken out during development.

Knew His Business

Susie," said the handsome plumber, laying down his tools, which he had taken up by mistake, "Susie, I love yer!"

"Get along now, do," sniggered the coy kitchen maid. "You're joking!"

"No, I ain't," said the man of pipes and screws. "I mean it, straight."

"Well, why don't you choose a time for love-making when I'm not too busy?" answered the basement Venus, with a pout. Can't you see I'm washing up?"

"All right, Susie; don't get cross. Look here, if I spins out this job so that it lasts till tomorrow afternoon, will you promise to get your work out of the way out of the way so that we can chat things over like?"

"Tomorrow afternoon, indeed!" snapped Susie. "You ain't in a hurray. I must say. What's the matter with tonight?"

"Tonight, in my own time!" retorted the plumber scornfully. "I don't think!"

Seven Rules of Life

Live upstairs if you wish to be in good health. "Up how many flights? Only one flght of seven steps. I will describe them:

First step—Eat wheat, oats, corn, fruits, beef, mutton, plainly cooked, in moderate quantity, and but two meals a day.

Second—Breath good air day and night.

Third—Exercise freely in the open air.

Fourth—Retire early and rise early.

Fifth—Wear flannels next to your skin every day in the year, and so dispose of your dress that your limbs shall be kept warm. Bathe frequently.

Sixth—Live in the sunshine. Let your bedroom be one which receives a flood of light and spend your days either out in the sunlight or in a room that is well lighted.

Seventh—Cultivate a cheerful temperament. Seek the society of jolly people. Absolutely refuse to worry, and above all don't be afraid to laugh. Live above. Sickness cannot crawl up there. Disease prowls about in the basement, rarely does it get "upstairs." —Dr. F. G. Butler, in Chicago Journal.

More Deer

With a view to further enriching the splendid game resources of British Columbia and to widening the field for sport for the large numbers of well known hunters of big game coming to this province every year, the provincial government has undertaken the stocking of Queen Charlotte Islands with deer. Already several fine specimens have been placed on the Islands and more will be captured and conveyed there.

"The climate on Queen Charlotte Islands is eminently suitable for deer and we see no reason why these Islands should not be made one of the finest game preserves in the province," said Mr. Bryan Williams, provincial game warden. "We hope by turning out about 18 or 20 head on the Islands to provide a sufficient number to allow of hunters spending a very profitable season there. A year ago several head of Cariboo were found on Queen Charlotte Islands, altogether different from the species to be found other parts of British Columbia and although several expeditions have been sent there no traces of any cariboo has been obtained since then. The specimens secured on the island have been presented to the museum."

The Great Road

Not for years has the Canadian Pacific Railway had so many miles of new track under construction as they have this year. New lines are being built practically all over Western Canada, and hundreds of gangs of track builders are at work in the various provinces. The C.P.R's net work of new lines is rapidly extending into new districts and as fast as they are built they are being opened for traffic. Since the middle of June five or six new services have been inaugurated, and it is stated that there is several other lines which will be carrying regular trains before the end of November. These new lines are among the greatest inducements to new settlers to open up new districts, as when the services are established they have transportation facilities for getting their produce to the markets. For the incoming settler of next year it is stated that the C.P.R. will rush to completion nearly 400 miles of new lines in Alberta and Saskatchewan. These lines include that from Moose Jaw southwest, 35 miles; Kerrobert northeast, 25 miles; Weyburn branch extension, 21 miles; Estevan branch, 55 miles; Swift Current southeast, 45 miles; Swift Current northwest, 35 miles: Wilkie northwest, 32 miles; Wilkie southeast, 31 miles; Kininvie branch extension, 37 miles; Bassano to Kininvie Jct., 36 miles, and the Kipp branch extension, 27 miles.

HE DID NOT ADVERTISE.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself has said:
"My trade of late is getting bad,
I'll try another ten-inch ad!"

If there be, go mark him well,
For him no bank account shall swell,
No angels watch the golden stair,
To welcome home the millionaire.

The man who never asks for trade,
By local line, or add displayed,
Cares more for rest than worldly gain,
And patronage but gives him pain.

Tread lightly, friends; let no rude sound
Disturb his solitude profound,
Here let him lie in calm repose,
Unsought except by men he owes.

And when he dies, go plant him deep
That nothing may disturb his sleep,
Where no rude clamor may dispel
That quiet that he loved so well.

And that the world may know its loss
Place on a stone a wreath of moss,
And on a stone above "Here lies
A fossil, who did not advertise."

FAMOUS PEOPLE

FANNIE M. LOTHROP

The Author of Our "Famous People" Series

We take pleasure in announcing to our readers that with this issue we begin a series of remarkable, illustrated, biographic sketches of famous people—men and women who are making the history of the times. This series is by Fannie M. Lothrop, the well-known author and the ablest writer in this line in America to-day. For several years she has been a writer and critic on the leading publications of New York and Philadelphia.

For this work Mrs. Lothrop has a double fitness; from the literary side her knowledge of the great people of the day and her original way of putting things, and from the artistic side, her close acquaintance with the world's famous people fits her pre-eminently to select the best possible views of her subjects. To her belongs the distinctive honor of possessing the largest collection of portraits in the world, now numbering over 400,000—a treasury of portraiture unapproached by that of any museum or library in existence. The time, patience, concentration of purpose, industry and systematic attention to detail expended in arranging such a collection is remarkable.

"Mrs. Lothrop," says a famous critic, "has unusual ability in presenting the vital elements of a man's character so cleverly, so deftly, and subordinating dates and details, that from her pen we get in a few lines living biographies that show the real man, his qualities and his life, more effectively than in whole pages by other writers. Some artists can give more in a thumbnail sketch than others can present in a panoramic painting."

Mrs. Lothrop passed her girlhood years in Wisconsin, her native State. Her father, I. F. Mack, a New England gentleman of that class we fondly term "the old school," was a lawyer, educator and thinker of rare power and singular clearness of mind. He founded the public schools of Rochester, N. Y., and was identified with all local movements during his residence there, removing thence to Wisconsin, where he became prominent and wealthy by reason of his legal talent. Mrs. Lothrop's mother is a cousin of John Pierpont, the American poet, who was the grandfather of J. Pierpont Morgan.

For two years Mrs. Lothrop was a student of Oberlin College, standing highest in her class, and a graduate of the Normal College of Chicago, where her musical genius early attracted attention. She is brilliant in conversation and well informed on all topics of the day, though not a "new woman" in any sense of the word. In the library of her home in New York, filled with the best works of the best thinkers, she does all her literary work.

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by W. C. Arsch, at the Department of Agriculture.
