A boiler and pumps were unloaded at the Emma mine this week.

The grocery department in the store of L. A. Smith has been closed.

Fred Axam returned from Spokane on Saturday, much improved in health.

In Phoenix, Pat Mullaly was fined $12 for carrying a gun without a licence.

The Greenwood Fair opens on Thursday, and promises to be a great success.

The moving pictures play an important part of the Fair programme on Friday.

A. L. White has returned to the city from Princeton, and will remain for some time.

The Bertha mine at Bannock City, has shipped a carload of ore to the Granby smelter.

So far this season 22 carloads of fruit have been shipped, from Grand Forks to prairie towns.

Doc Goodeve is mixing nerve bracers, in the thirst slaking department of the Windsor Hotel.

During the Fair, The Ledge office is open to receive cash, cows or cereals for subscriptions.

Mrs. Owen Boyer left last week, to take a course of treatment at the Tranquille Sanitarium.

A new stock of shotguns, rifles, ammunition and hunters supplies has just arrived at Kennedy's store.

A. H. Marcon is spending his holidays shooting, being relieved by W. S. Longhurst of Rock Creek.

The household effects, etc., of Leon Lontier, will be sold by auction at the Court House, on Thursday.

Any surplus will be donated to the Patriotic Fund, after the expenses are paid of the Greenwood Fair.

In these days of civic retrenchment, it does not look like good business, to keep up a police court that does not pay expenses.

H. Whiting of, Kettle Valley, is agent for the best life, fire and accident insurance companies. Drop him a line when you want insurance.

Rev. J. H. Hobbins left for the coast this week. During his absence there will be no service in the Methodist church until further notice.

Dr. Guy, of Grand Forks, will be at the Pacific Hotel, Greenwood, from October 4 to October 14, prepared to execute dental work of any kind.

James G. McMynn is the leading merchant of Midway, and fills orders from any part of the country. See his new stock of groceries and provisions.

Honorables Bowser and Ross, accompanied by J. R. Jackson and Lorne Campbell autoed into town on Saturday evening, and left for Grand Forks next morning.

Mrs. J. Sapples, of Sheep Creek, accompanied by her niece, and daughter Kathleen, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Keady. Mr. Sapples is postmaster at Sheep Creek.

Several stoves have recently been installed in the Windsor Hotel, as helpers to the furnace in the basement. No chance to get cold in that hotel, unless you fall into the ice chest.

Jack Henderson is working the Gold Bug. This claim is about two miles north of Eholt, and has gold and silver values. A young man by the name of Jim McIntosh is helping him in the work.

Charles Haitch has returned from the hills and is again chef at the Windsor Hotel. In the art of cooking he has few equals in the west, and his alimentary efforts will appeal to all gastronomes.

Billy Bowser recently had a bone cut out of his nose, and when leaving here on Sunday he was wearing glasses to keep the dust out of his eyes, and had a wad of batting in one of his nostrils. Otherwise this Napoleon of B. C. politics seems quite fit to tackle anything, not excepting, "The Crisis in B. C." Mr. Bowser is on his way east to visit his mother, and he thinks more of her, than he does of politics.

The man who sends out of his own town for his job printing, clothes, advertising, and other things, when he can do as well, if not better at home is a traitor to his community. He is also an intellectual pigmy, and a fool who should win first prize at an exhibition of idiots. Don't stutter when you read this.

Efforts are being made by the City Council to have five or six hundred soldiers quartered in Greenwood this winter. The city offers free water, house rent, and drill hall. As few towns are in a position to make such a generous offer to the military authorities, it is more than likely that Greenwood will be a minature Shorncliffe this winter.

A meeting of the creditors of the South Yale Copper Co., was advertised to be held in Greenwood this week. The ad appeared in the Nelson, Grand Forks and Phoenix papers, but not in The Ledge. This seems a childish way of doing business. W. E. Hodges, the liquidator, is a wise man and should know that The Ledge has a great circulation. But, then, perhaps, he did not want the people around town, to know the exact spot in this city where the meeting was to be held.

CITY COUNCIL

The Council met on Monday evening.

It was resolved that the building, between Gulley's store and the livery stable, be torn down, unless the owner properly repairs it within 14 days. If the building is not repaired in that period, it will be torn down by an officer of the city, at the cost of the owner of the lot.

The Mayor, Gulley and Wood were appointed a committee to investigate the possibilities of having soldiers quartered in town during the winter.

The city clerk was granted two weeks holidays.

Council adjourned.

MIDWAY

Last Saturday evening the Midway Home Guard, held a concert in the Great Northern Hotel building, kindly lent by J. B. Desrosiers for the occasion. It was a farewell concert in honour of S. C. Studd, commander of the Home Guard, and J. R. Jackson was in the chair. With a neat and appropriate speech Mr. Jackson presented Mr. Studd with a purse of money, donated by the members of the Home Guard.

The Honorables, Bowser and Ross were present, and Mr. Bowser made a brief but stirring speech upon military affairs. After the parliamentary party had left for Greenwood the chair was taken by R. P. Smith. A delightful concert was given by the Misses Borders, Burkmar and Kerr; and Messrs. Studd, Stewart, Summers and Burkmar. After a light lunch the merry party danced until midnight. The Home Guard club will give another concert about the 23rd of October.

Proud

"Proud of 'im, I am," announced an old lady whoses son had just enlisted. "Always done 'is duty by me, an' now 'e's doin' 'is duty by King an' country. I feel right down sorry for them Germans, to think of 'im goin' into battle with 'is rifle in 'is 'and "Tipperary' on 'is lips." "Poor Germans, indeed!" explained her friend. "Pity's wasted on 'em. P'raps you 'aven't heaad of their cruelties. And them Austrians ain't no better." "P'raps I 'aven't," agreed the old lady; "and p'rap you 'aven't 'heard George sing."

Men laugh at feminine folly, but it fools them just the same.

During August 15,121,500 pounds of fish, mostly salmon were handled at Prince Rupert. Beats any other port on the Pacific for fish.

A. E. Blackburn has leased the Abbotsford Hotel in Vancouver. This hotel is seven stories high, and has no bar. It pays without booze.

H. E. Gale, the chief of police at Penticton had to resign, because he gave his landlady trouble in collecting her rent and other complaints.

The K. V. Ry., between Hope and Ladner is now completed. The last spike on this railway will be driven at Ladner Creek, early in December.

The Gunner From Galway is 51 years old, and is still one of the most energetic prospectors on earth. He is also a humorist of rare merit.

Jack Stewart, the railway builder, is now an Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel of the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver. Jack will soon be in the writers class.

It is 23 years ago since John Ward, John King, and Jim Wardner started the Coeur d' Alene saloon. Jim always bought his cigars at a store across the road, four for a dollar, but he drank his own whiskey.

If J. L. Stamford is really serious about mining around Nelson he should begin by fulfilling the promises he made years ago, and by which he obtained money from people who had faith in his word, note and honor.

At Bulkley Canyon, near Hazelton, the trains stop ten minutes, in order to permit the passengers to gaze at the scenery. The scenery is so grand there that you can live on it, with a side order of bacon and banans.

Colonel Welstead

Lt-Colonel Welstead, who lived for many years at Rock Creek was recently killed in a Dardanelles action. The following is from the London Morning Post:

"Lieutenant-Colonel Harry Maryon Welstead, 9th Battalion Lancashire Fusiliers (killed in action at the Dardanelles), was born in September, 1860, and joined the Leicestershire Regiment in 1881. He reached the substantive rank of major in the Leicesters in 1902 and retired six years later, being placed on the Reserve of Officers. On the outbreak of war he placed his services at the disposal of the War Office and was given the command of the 9th Service Battalion of the Lancashire Fusiliers, with the temporary rank of lieutenant-colonel. In the South African War (1899-1902) he first served as adjutant of his battalion. He was present at the actions at Talana and Lombards Kop, and was afterwards in the defence of Ladysmith, taking part in the sortie of December 7. He was also at the actions of Laings Nek and Belfast, and subsequently took over the command of the 1st Battalion of the Leicesters. For his services he was twice mentioned in despatches and received the Queen's medal with four clasps and the King's medal with two clasps. Colonel Welstead was the elder son of the late Arthur Henry Welstead, of Stonely Hall, Kimbolton."

Fame's a Bubble

Man longs for fame at any price, if its for but a day, for one brief hour to cut some ice, and then to fade away. Where are the great celebrities who flourished yesteryear? Their fame was born on every breeze in either hemisphere. Then in the limelight were they all, and honor crowned their names; we hung their pictures on the wall, in large and guilded frames. But for the pictures we've no use, since all their glory flew; oh, what's become of Captain Loose, and where's I-Took-a-Shoe? Today with pride man's bosom thrills, next week his name is Sox; oh, where is Beecham now, whose pills were worth five bones a box? Today the widly touted chap all self-complacent grins; tomorrow he is off the map—and where is Johnny Binns? Man takes an ax and kills a friend, he goes upon the stage; he thinks his fame will never end—he'll always be the the rage; then some one takes a gun and kills some six or eight or ten; the first man's name goes of the bills; and ne'er comes back again. So let us humbly toil and sing, content to be obscure, for fame's a vain and trifling thing that seldom will endure.—Walt Mason.

The Rake

A small, hen-pecked, worried-looking man was about to take an examination for life insurance.

"You don't dissipate, do you?" asked the physician, as he made ready for tests. "Not a fast liver, or anything of that sort?"

The little man hesitated a moment, looked a bit frightened, then replied, in a small, piping voice: "I sometimes chew a little gum."—Colier's Weekly.

An Irishman invalided home from the war was asked by one of his relatives what struck him most about the battles he took part in.

"What struck me most?" said Pat. "Sure it was the large number of bullets flying around that didn't hit me."

EATING fried foods spoils the complexion.

THE pumpkin is off the vine, but the watch is still on the Rhine.

CLEAR more land so that you will have a bigger crop next year.

IT is allright to pick up shells on the sea shore, but not at a country fair.

Do not be mean. Be a man, and always put a stamp on your cheque.

IN a dead town the merchants do not advertise, nor wash their windows.

YOU cannot make a good police magistrate out of a mixture of the hog, mule, and syphax.

WHEN the story of war is written let us not forget the cigarette. It has never missed a battle nor deserted a trench.

THE greed of booze dealers, and the intemperate habits of some people has brought about the craze for prohibition. Prohibition will not cure the liquor evil, but will fatten the blind pigs. All the liquor laws we now have are broken. Why pass another one to meet the same fate? The cure for the liquor evil is freedom. Let it be free as water, and in a year or two there will hardly be a drunkard in the land.

IT has been known for some time that you cannot make a silk purse out of a piece of hog meat. It is also a fact that you cannot make a good, honest, and pleasant judge, out of a petty, spiteful, nosey, vindictive, gluttonous individual. Such fellows by accident are sometimes elevated to judicial positions, when they should be sawing wood in a penitentiary, or looking out from the windows of a lunatic asylum.

JUDGING from a recent article in the Kaslo Kootenaian, the editor of that bright and clever paper, does not think that the people of his own town properly appreciate his literary efforts. Nothing new about this, for no man is very great in the eyes of his neighbors. He must be afar off in order to get the cash and boquets. In Kaslo 22 years ago there appeared an edition of a newspaper that surprised and electrified the universe. Its humor has never been surpassed since the world began, and the front page of that memorable edition has since been reproduced by some of the greatest journals of Europe and America. Still when it appeared in Kaslo, some of the citizens of that pretty burg met in solemn conclave to decide what they would do with the editor. Another case of the Jews and Christ. Some were in favor of lynching, while others thought a coat of tar and goose feathers would be the right dope. However the counsel of the wiser ones, who knew that the editor had a machine gun, prevailed, and the man who made Kaslo famous was permitted to hit the trail for other camps, in which he found many of the same class of thick upper-stoped individuals. Thus it is in this life. We have to die or leave town before the greater multitude awakens.

Ideas of a Plain Man

Doubtless I am imitating somebody in all I do, but why mind? In every thought I think I am possibly rehashing some thought I got from some one else. They say our dreams are but a rearrangement of impressions received in our waking moments.

Every word I used has been used before. "I have a book at home with every word of your sermon in it," said a man once to a preacher after the service. The parson hotly denied it. "On, yes," said the man who was disposed to be funny, "It's the dictionary."

When I amile that is my grandfather, and when I scratch my chin, that is my great grandfather. Doubtless I chew my food like any number of people—among them Mr. Fletcher, let us hope.

When I say this you are reminded of somebody, and when I say that it recalls what somebody else said.

If anyone had to do nothing but what is entirely original he would certainly die, for he could neither go to bed nor get up, eat nor drink.

Let us be thankful if we each have a little flavor that is our own.

"It is imitating somebody to plant cabbages," said Alfred de Musset.—Dr. Frank Crane.

The Toad

The toad lives from ten to forty years, and it can lay over a thousand eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It catches and devours wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, etc. In twenty-four hours the toad consumes enough food to fill its stomach four times. A single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage the toad has saved ten dollars. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardner, and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in the green-house, garden, and berry patch.

Wife's Commandments

1. Thou shall cherish the companion of thy misery.

2. Thou shalt love but me alone, for I am a zealous wife, and a jealous wife, and an angry wife, as occasion rises.

3. Thou shalt look on no other woman except with thine eyes shut, nor shalt thou admire blue eyes, or grey eyes, or hazel eyes, or thou shalt wear black eyes.

4. Remember the Sabbath day more especially the day before the Sabbath day, for that day is above all days.

5. Thy life must be well insured, and thy shalt honor thy mother-in-law, so that thy days will be short in the land of the living.

6. Thou shall arise early each Sabbath morn, light the fire, cook the food and give of the same unto your better half in bed.

7. Thou shalt do the family washing, nurse the baby, sweep the floor, and empty the coal scuttle.

8. Thou shalt be mine, and I shall be any other's I like.

9. Hearken unto thy wife, for her words are wisdom, therefore bestow all thy affection to the comrade of thy pillow.

10. Seek not to spend money; it is a snare: but give all to thy mussis, who won't lay it out, and you too, if you don't.

There will never be a generation of free men until there has been a generation of free women—of free mothers. The rights of men and women should be equal and sacred, marriage should be a perfect partnership, children should be governed by kindness, every family should be a republic, every fireside a democracy.—Ingersoll.

Many Uses For Salt

A pinch of salt on the tongue, followed by a drink of cold water, will cure sick headache.

It hardens the gums and makes the teeth white.

By adding a little salt to the water cut flowers may be kept fresh much longer.

By using very fine, dry salt as one would snuff for colds, hay fever may be relieved.

A shallow teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a cupful of hot water will relieve dyspepsia and indigestion.

Strong salt water will revive an unconscious person quicker than brandy or whiskey.

Salt and pineapple juice will cure mild cases of gastritis.

Salt added to water in which colored dresses are washed will prevent fading.

Smooth flatirons by rubbing over dry salt.

Sprinkle dry salt on carpets and rugs before sweeping.
