About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

Strike on Lucky

It is only a prospect, but the Lucky mining claim near the S. & B.C. railway station is the greatest attraction among mining men here just at present. This has come about by the recent strike of ore assaying 91 ounces in silver and $4.80 in gold to the ton.

This ore was broken in a shallow winze in a 25-foot tunnel and at a vertical depth of not more than 19 feet from the surface. It is evidently the apex of a bonanza shoot, as it widens with every foot of sinking. In the floor of the tunnel where the rich streak was discovered it was a narrow seam, but now it has widened to more than a foot. Between walls there is at least six feet in width of ledge matter, with the pay streak next to the hanging wall which is smooth and separated from the ore vein by talc.

The Lucky claim has lain practically dormant for years, until Sam Kerr, John A. Johnson and Mark Shields started to work on it a few weeks ago under a lease and bond from Bert Skinnell, Joe Funnel and Mr. Kerr, the owners.

The work now being done on the Lucky is in the nature of prospecting the ore vein. If the showings turn out half as good as indications point with a little more sinking, it is the intention of the operators to start a new tunnel which will give them a depth of nearly 100 feet. At the present workings there is no dumping ground and mining is being done under a big disadvantage.

This strike was made off of the belt of what is termed as the main ore zone of the camp, which to a great degree makes the discovery of more than ordinary importance to Republic.—Republic Journal.

Wm. McAdam, of Edmonton, president of the Skeena Copper Co., Ltd., arrived at the Red Rose mine last week where he has seven men working on a tunnel. He expects to remain on the property for some little time and watch developments.

The M. R. Jamieson copper holdings on the summit of Skeena mountain have been bonded by a syndicate of Edmonton and Cobalt men who are expected in to look over the property very soon. These claims have had some very good surface showings of high grade copper. Although they are located over the summit they are only seven miles from the Skeena river and a good trail goes to the property. This is the first time Cobalt men have become interested in copper in this district.—Omineca Herald.

His Last Request

"Pat," said the priest, "you're drunk, and I'm going to make you stop this right here. If you ever get drunk again I'll turn you into a rat—do you mind that? If I don't see you I'll know about you just the same, and into a rat you go. Now you mind that."

Pat was very docile that night, but the next evening he came home even worse drunk than ever, kicked in the door, and Biddy dodged behind the table to defend herself.

"Don't be afraid, darlint," said Pat, as he steadied himself before dropping in a chair, I'm not going to bate ye. I won't lay the weight of my finger on ye. I want ye to be kind to me tonight, darlint, and to remember the days when we was swatehearts and when ye loved me. You know his reverence said last night if I got dhrunk again he turn me into a rat. He didn't see me, but he knows I'm dhrunk, and this night into a rat I go. But I want ye to be kind to me, darlint, and watch me, and when you see me getting little, and the hair growing out on me, and me whiskers getting long, if ye ever loved me darlint, for God's sake keep yer eye on the cat."—Selected.

Vest Pocket Essay

The weather is the starting crank of the world's conversation. If there were no weather to talk about, half of us would only be able to converse when we found something to say, and would consequently be dumb a large part of the time.

The weather is what the atmosphere hands to us from day to day. All weather is procured by atmosphere. When the air is clear, we have a fine day, and the fact is mentioned 1,000,000,000,000 times in conversation. When the atmosphere is curdled, we have clouds and rain which are just as easy to talk about and use up a large vocabulary. When the atmosphere moves swiftly from place to place we have gales and cyclones and political campaigns. When the atmosphere is heated, to a trifle below the boiling point by the sun, a man will leave his work and walk five blocks in order to lean against a friend in a cool, clinky place and help him say, "Phew!"

The weather accounts for most of the variety in life on this sphere. It is weather which makes a Hottentot content with a suit of clothes which he can fold up and put in his ear while bathing, and it is weather which makes the Eskimo eject the polar bear from his warm furry skin and move in himself to stay continuously until he dies. It is England's weather and a wide range of description required to do it justice, which has made the literary centre or the world. It is the six months of superheated Texas weather which makes a Texan fight in September at the wiggle of a whisker, and it is the celebrated tepid climate of California which enables the native son to reap four crops of tourists a year.

Weather is divided into four seasons in the temperate zone—light overcoat, shirt sleeves, thicker underwear and ear-tab weather Weather is responsible for a great many millionaires, including coal men, ice men, summer resort proprietors and makers of sneeze cures and throat coolers. But it also unmakes a great many rich men, including circus owners, peach growers and chicken raisers. Mr. J. P. Morgan was supposed to boss a large part of creation, but he was small potatoes beside the weather, which exercises a controlling influence over baseball, crops, the clothing business, parades, picnics, county fairs and summer parks. It also casts the deciding vote in many elections and can tie up a railway system more thoroughly than a dozen walking delegates. On the whole, weather must be an undesirable thing. We never hear of the weather in heaven, while hell is supposed to consist almost entirely of climate.

For First Time

A little Salmon correspondent of the Dawson News tells the following story of how a Ross river Indian recently gazed on a horse for the first time in his uneventful career. The story, in part is as follows:

It probably will be news to many people that there are in the Yukon many Indians who have never seen a horse. Yet such is the case. Recently, in the last week, there came into Little Salmon, Joseph Cote, who has a trading post at the mouth of the Ross river, and with him came an Indian bearing the name of Sousa. He is about twenty-seven years old, but never in his life had he seen a horse before. Walter Lamb, who manages the Taylor, Drury, Pedlar Co. post at Little Salmon, has a team there for banking wood, and great was the curiosity of Sousa when the time came for the horses to come home. He eged up to them very carefully, and looked them over. "Have a ride?" said Lamb, and brought a horse near. Sousa could stand it no longer, but ran for shelter as fast as he could to the cabin, whence he looked in safety at the strange beasts.

There was another excitement in connection with the horses. The travellers had ten dogs with them, none of whom had seen a horse before. In the spring, when the crust will hold a man on small snowshoes, but not a moose. The moose breaks through and is held back by the crust. The nearest thing to a horse that the dog has seen was a moose, and, when the horses came in, the dogs tried to break their chains and get at the horses, and it took three men with blacksnakes to change their idea on the subject.

Will Refine in Canada

In a reply made to Sir Robert Borden who has asked the International Nickel Company to establish a nickel refining plant in Canada, the company stated: "We will grant your request and erect in the Dominion at such point as seems in our judgment most economical for operation, a plant for the refining of nickel of such initial capacity as will secure to Great Britain and Canada within themselves the production of finished nickel to the extent of their requirement."

This is the direct result of the action of the Provincial Mining Department of Ontario who have a commission investigating the nickel industry for the purpose of ascertaining if nickel cannot be refined in Ontario. The International Nickel Company anticipates the report an action of the Ontario government.

New Mineral District

A new mineral belt was discovered last year in the vicinity of White Sale and Emerald lakes south west of Ootsa lake. Benson a Smither's man, has a large interest in there and also J. M. Lynch and the probability is that considerable work will be done on the ground.

Up to the present access to the district has been by way of Houston but to handle ore over that route is impossible. Last season a route was cruised over the district towards the coast and a very economical scheme for transportation which will land the ore at the head of Dean Channel, can be secured.

The Lead Mountain mineral claims consist of five groups and a total of 27 claims. The showings are numerous and strong, and the indications are that another important camp is to be built up in that district.

Assays from a number of samples gave values in gold, silver, lead and copper with total values from $46 to $175 a ton.

The White Sale lake property is zinc and more or less work has been done. Further development will be undertaken this year.—Omineca Herald.

Gold Mine Comes Back

In the days when New Mexico was a hinterland an Indian showed some specimens of rock he had found on Baldy Peak to white men who recognized them as copper ore and who, guided by the Indian, found the ledge and located a prospect. The men doing development work on this copper prospect in 1866 found placer gold and traced it to its parent ledge. The placers yielded $2,250,000 and the gold mine about $1,150,000, but the rich ore was exhausted in a few years, and for over 40 years desultory prospecting for other ore bodies was carried on with notable results.

In recent years prospecting based on the geologic relations of the old ore body resulted in the discovery of a new body of rich ore, which has yielded nearly $250,000 in 10 months and is still producing.

To Ship Antimony

A letter to the editor of the Star from Robinson Station, twenty-two miles south of Whitehorse, tells of the considerable activity there in mining circles. James Powell, formerly of San Diego, Cal., has bonded for $20,000 six antimony claims from Cochran and Becker and two antimony claims from Becker & Patterson, the consideration in the latter deal being $16,000. These two claims are on what is known as Chieftain Hill. From Adam Birnie, Powell purchased one claim outright for $5,000. This is known as the View Mineral claim.

On the various properties above mentioned work began about the first of March, from 18 to 20 men being employed. The editor's informant says Powell is ready to bond any antimony claim that shows merit and located in a radius of forty miles of Robinson Station.

Powell left for the outside last week but will return within six weeks prepared to start active operations at once.

The death rate in the United States for 1914 was 13.6 per thousand, the lowest ever recorded in this country. The figures, however, do not cover the entire United States, but only the estimated population of the registration area, some communities have inadequate death registration systems.
