Hasn't Got One

A gentleman whose had been lost in an accident was invited to tea. "My dear," said the good lady of the house to her little daughter, "I want you to be very particular and to make no remarks about Mr. J——'s nose." Around the table everything was going on well. Then the child began to peep and looked puzzled. At last she started the company with, "Ma, why did you tell me to say nothing about Mr. J——'s nose? He hasn't got any."

For Maximum War Effort

Registration Day, Saturday, 22nd June, has been decided upon as a necessary preliminary to the exercise of Canada's maximum power in the great conflict in which the world is engaged. It is a necessary preliminary for the reason that the country cannot exert its full strength in any enterprise unless it determines beforehand the measure of that strength. Registration Day will enable the War Administration of Canada to see that, as far as is humanly possible, every ounce of energy available is made to bear upon the issue in Europe, and that the minimum is lost in useless effort. With that accomplished Canada will have reached the peak of her war endeavor and, supported by the unwavering determination of her people will carry on until the foe is finally vanquished.

The Cause requires of every country, as it requires of every individual, the utmost in service. Canada cannot be sure she is serving to the utmost until she clearly understands what her maximum capabilities are. The registration of every person resident in the Dominion, male and female, of sixteen years and over, will provide the information from which can be deduced the extent of Canada's possible war effort.

Cat Catches Gophers

A correspondent in Los Angeles sends us this account of a cat who certainly earns his living:—

A near-by neighbor of veracity has a large yellow cat, five years old, who has brought into the house the past winter thirty-six gophers. I have it from the owner of the cat, so can have no doubt about it. The cat is well fed and a great pet. He does not eat the gophers he brings in. How many more he has caught that he has not brought in they do not know. He brings in mice also, and likes the praise he gets for it, I suppose. Though we are not more than 25 minutes' ride on the electric car from the center of the city, gophers are quite troublesome here, so I think the cat deserves a medal.

A Dead Game Sport

According to one of the German forestry journals, the kaiser, in 1908, killed 1,995 pieces of wild game, including 70 stags, elk and roebuck. At that time he had slaughtered a total of 61,730 pieces of game, more than 4,000 of which were stags, and was the leading exterminator of wild life in the world. As a slaughterer of men, women and children since 1914, however, he has been the foremost exterminator of human life in all history.

Mark Twain on Britain

"Even if Wrong, England Must Be Upheld," He Wrote

None of Mark Twain's letters, idly begun, failed of final significance, and the perception of the lasting verity of the actualities touched upon sometimes took on the character of forecast. Such a strain breaks out in a letter written eighteen years ago to the friend who had hated equally with him the war of England upon the Boer republics.

"Privately speaking, this is a sordid and criminal war, and in every way shameful and excuseless. Every day I write (in my head) bitter magazine articles about it, but I have to stop that, for England must not fail. It would remain an inundation of Russian and German political degradation, which would envelope the globe and steep it in a sort of middle age night and slavery, which would last until Christ comes again. Even if wrong, and she is wrong, England must be upheld. He is an enemy of the human race who shall speak against her now."

Is there any one presently treating or talking of the actual situation who could more clearly and strongly divine our duty toward our motherland, often our stepmotherland, or more strongly urge it? If this is wisdom concerning that little wicked war of England's against liberty 18 years ago, how profoundly wise it is concerning her war for liberty now—her war, our war, humanity's war! Has the truth about Germany been said more clearly, potently finally?—W. D. Howell in Harper's Magazine.

Overseas Postal Rules

A necessary caution has been circulated amongst the Canadians in England about the comparative insecurity of the overseas mails nowadays. In view of the frequent losses of registered mail all ranks are warned that money shouldn't be sent by mail even if registered. When postal orders are sent by mail, care must be taken to fill in the name of the payee in order that a postal note cannot be made payable to bearer. It is important that this warning should be noted by the correspondents in Canada of all ranks.

German Plot to Murder French Revealed

The Tangier correspondent of the London Times lays bare a German plot for ousting French and Spaniards from Morocco. It was proposed to Raisuli and other Moorish chieftains that on the declaration of a German victory in France a revolution of tribes should break out in Morocco. This revolution was to include the massacre and extermination of subjects of all allied powers and be followed by a declaration of the independence of Morocco and nomination of a pro-German sultan.

Her Share

The New-found Wealth and the Tired Wife

On a clear, cool evening in the early spring a man on a horse crossed the ridge of a Kentucky mountain, and, seeing a cabin in the valley, turned his horse in that direction. The cabin was whitewashed and clean. The mountaineer and his family sat on the porch. Several children played in the yard. The stranger arrived at the gate and was invited in and sat down.

"Stranger," asked the mountaineer, "are you interested in our oil up here?"

"Well, no," said the stranger, "I haven't much faith in oil. I hear of these people who suddenly strike it rich, but I never find them."

The old man chuckled and said: "I am one. Yesterday I was poor; today I am rich. I was just asking my family, now that we could have things, what they would rather have. Now John, here, he wants a horse, and Molly wants a new dress, and Susie says she'll take books. By the way, wife, what would you rather have?"

The old lady never hesitated a minute. "Well," she said, "I'm pretty tired cutting wood with a dull ax; I'll take a new ax."—Bubble.

Canadians Now Eat More Fish

Well Over $50,000,000 Worth Marketed Last Year

That there was an increase of over $12,000,000 in the market value of Canadian fish during the year 1917, as compared with 1916, is shown by a summary of the fishing results in the Dominion for the past year, issued by the naval department. The summary states that the market value of the products of Canadian fisheries for 1917 will be well over $50,000,000. The chief contributors to the large increase were the provinces of British Columbia and Nova Scotia, the former with an increase of $8,000,000 and the latter with an increase of $4,000,000. The increase in the value of the fish, although partly due to increased prices, is not altogether so, for, the statement says, there has been a greater quantity of fish produced in most of the provinces.

Ontario shows an increase of over $200,000 for the year. This was largely due to the increased catch of lake herring, which was about 80,000 cwts. greater than last year. The catch of whitefish, trout, and blue pickerel suffered a decrease. In Quebec the cod catch was greater, but that of salmon, mackerel and herring declined somewhat. The higher prices made the value greater than during 1916. The Prairie Provinces increased both the value and the output of fish.

Benjamin Franklin On Daylight Saving

A Suggestion Made in a Humorous Skit a Century Ago Is Adopted Today

Now, when in order to profit by the sun's morning light, we are commanded to advance our timepieces one hour, the views of Franklin on this subject, written more than a century ago, might be of interest. They are found in his well-known "Economical Project," a humorous but practical skit, suggested by his observation during his French mission of the late hour of rising of his Parisian friends. What is here quoted is taken from the very recent scholarly work of William Cabell Bruce, entitled, "Benjamin Franklin Self-Revealed," Volume II.:

"'The Economical Project, is a happy combination of humor and prudential instruction, and was written about the time when the Quinquet lamp was an object of general public curiosity. An inquiry having been started on one occasion in his presence, Franklin says, as to whether its brightness was not offset by its lavish consumption of oil, he went home and to bed, three or four hours after midnight, with his head full of the subject. At about 6 in the morning he was awakened by a noise and was surprised to find his room full of light. At first he imagined that he was surrounded by a number of Quinquet lamps, but on rubbing his eyes he perceived that the light came in at the windows, and when he got up and looked out to see what caused it he saw the sun just rising above the horizon. His servant had forgotten the preceding evening to close the shutters. Looking at his watch and finding that it was but 6 o'clock, and still thinking it something extraordinary that the sun should rise so early, he consulted an almanac and ascertained that it was just the hour for sunrise on that day, and, moreover, he learned from the almanac that the sun would rise still earlier every day till toward the end of June. His readers, he was sure, would be as much astonished as he was when they heard that the sun rises so early, and especially when he assured them that it gives light as soon as it rises. He was convinced of this. He was certain of his fact. One could not be more certain of any fact. On repeating his observation the three following mornings, he found always precisely the same result. . . .

"On the strength of these facts, Franklin enters upon a series of elaborate calculations to demonstrate that, between the 20th of March and the 20th of September the Parisians, because of their habit of preferring candlelight in the evening to sunlight in the morning, had consumed 64,050,000 pounds of candles, which, at an average price of 30 sols per pound, made 96,075,000 livres tournois. An immense sum! that the city of Paris might save every year by the economy of using sunshine instead of candles! to say nothing of the period of the year during which the days are shorter.

"For this discovery, Franklin further said that he demanded neither place, pension, exclusive privilege nor any other reward whatever. He was looking only to the honor of it. He would not deny, when he was assailed by little, envious minds, that the ancients knew that the sun rises at certain hours. They, too, possibly had almanacs, but it does not follow that they knew that it gives light as soon as it rises. That was what he claimed as his discovery. It was certainly unknown to the moderns, at least to the Parisians; which to prove he need use but one plain, simple argument. It was impossible that a people as well instructed, judicious, and prudent as any in the world, all professing to be lovers of economy, and subject to onerous taxation, should have lived so long by the smoky, unwholesome and enormously expensive light of candles, if they had really known that they might have as much pure light of the sun for nothing."

Spies by Submarine

Like Sir Roger Casement, the two German agents who were landed by submarine on the coast of Greece have been caught and executed. In the early days of the war the spy coming and going by U-boat was a familiar figure in sensational fiction, and very likely the thing has happened oftener than we know.—From the Springfield Republican.

Wait for the Third Act

The Third Act of the War Drama Is Where the Villian Gets His

"The first act is ended," says Hindenburg.

The gentleman is in error. The second act has ended. In the first act, if we have not forgotten our melodrama, the diabolical plot is conceived,' the villian makes his plans and vanishes, with every prospect from the hero's standpoint seemingly full of promise. In the second act the villian puts his plans into execution; the curtain falls upon the hero about to perish beneath an onrushing train, or to be blown to pieces by a bomb. Vice is triumphant and the villian gleeful. It is this act that we have just witnessed, with Hindenburg rubbing his hands and chuckling as he looks upon the success of his work.

But the third act is the act where the villian "gets his."

The third act is to come.

Wait for it.—Chicago Post.

Two Years' Illness Cured by Two Boxes

JOSEPH LAROUCHE TELLS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

He Suffered From Cramps in the Muscles and Headaches, But Now He Is Well Again.

Lac Bouchette, Lac St. Jean Co., Que. (Special).—"I can assure you Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well." So says M. Joseph Larouche, well known and highly respected here. For two years he was a sufferer from cramps in the muscles and headaches. He was treated by a doctor, but got no permanent relief till he used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"You may publish my statement that Dodd's Kidney Pills made me well," says Mr. Larouche in an interview. "I was ill two years. I had cramps in my muscles, and suffered from terrible headaches. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

That Mr. Larouche's troubles came from his kidneys is evidenced by the fact that he found a cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are simply and purely a kidney remedy. The reason they are credited with cures of rheumatism, lumbago, dropsy, backache, diabetes and heart disease is that all of these were either kidney diseases or diseases caused by sick kidneys.

Hated Friends

Heaven Is Just and They Get What's Coming to Them

The fellow who buttonholes you, or picks hairs off your coat, and maybe winks a rougish sort of wink, isn't in it with the shoulder hitter and crazy bone crusher. He doesn't appear to be afraid of your breaking away, but wants to be confidential and intimate.

Then there is the fellow who persists in trying to keep in front of you. He necessarily crowds you to the edge of the sidewalk or to the wall.

His understudy is the chap who tries to keep up with you without being able to get your step. Taking about three steps to your two he is forever losing the step and forever trying to catch it. When you try to accommodate your step to his you are apt to find him trying to accommodate his step to yours, so that you only muss up a bad mess.

Don't kill 'em. Heaven is just and they get what's coming to them; maybe not as hot as you would serve it, but they'll get it all right.

There are those who persist in talking when we don't want to talk, or to be talked to. And there are others, notably those who persist in talking, when we want to talk ourselves. It is difficult to say which of these is the worse bore.

"Did your late employer give you a testimonial?"

"Yes, but it doesn't seem to me any good."

"What did he say?"

"He said I was one of the best men his firm had ever turned out."

The Inflation of Farm Land Values

The True Index Is the Profit per Bushel in Marketing Farm Products

A prominent financial paper refers to the "inflation of farm lands." Inflation of this sort might be hard to prove, but if values are set according to the profit-producing capacity of the farm, it should not be difficult.

A favorable resort of those who would prove agriculture's prosperity is that of taking the present price of farm products and comparing it with the price of a few years ago. At once, it is assumed, the wonderful prosperity of agriculture is proven.

This is far from being the case. The true index is the profit per bushel, or pound, or ton, or dozen, or whatever unit of measurement is used in marketing farm products. So far few have had the hardihood to embark upon comparisons of this sort.

Inflation of farm values cannot be profitable.—Weekly Sun.

Who Reads Novels?

English Author Ascribes Chief Interest to Women

In England the public of the novel is almost exclusively feminine. Few men read novels, and a great many nothing at all, except the newspaper. They say that they are too busy, which is absurd when one reflects how busy is the average woman. The truth is that they are slack and ignorant.

They have some historic reason to despise the novel, for it is quite true that the nineteenth century, with a few exceptions, such as Thackeray, Jane Austen, Charlotte Bronte, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Dickens, Scott, George Eliot, the three-volume novel was trash. It dealt generally with some theoretical Polish hero, a high-born English maiden, cruel parents, and Italian skies. Right up to 1885 that sort of thing used to arrive every morning in a truck at the lending library, but if it still arrives in truckloads, it should not be forgotten that other novels arrive, too.

That is what the men do not know. If they read at all you will find them solemnly taking in "The Reminiscences of Mr. Justice X. Y. Z." or "Shooting Gazelles in Bulbulland," "Political Economics," or "Economic Politics" (it means much the same either way up.) All that sort of thing—that frozen, dried-up, elderly waggishness, that shallow pomp, is mentally murderous.

Sometimes men do read novels, mostly detective stories, sporting or very sentimental tales. When observed, they apologize and say something about resting the brain. That means that they do not respect the books they read, which is base; it is like keeping low company, where one can yawn and put one's boots on the sofa. Now no company is low unless you think it is. As soon as you realize that and stay, you yourself grow naturalized to it. Likewise, if you read a book without fellowship and respect for its author, you are outraging it.

But mankind is stupid, and it would not matter very much that a few men should read novels in that shamefaced and patronizing way if they were not so open about it. If they do not apologize, they boast that they never read a novel; they imply superiority. Their feminine equivalent is the serious-minded girl who improves her mind with a book like "Vicious Viscounts of Venice," if she reads novels at all, she holds that, like good wine, they improve with keeping and must be at least fifty years old. By that time the frivolous author may have redeemed his sins.—W. L. George, in Harper's Magazine.

Got His Money's Worth

The conductoress on an English street car had punched the ticket, and, with not a touch of haughtiness, was handing it to the young man. "But miss, I did not get full value with the ticket; I did not have the pleasure of hearing the bell ring" (the punching usually rings a bell). She eyed him for a moment and then replied: "See here, young man, your penny pays for your car ride; the corporation don't guarantee orchestral accompaniments."

It Is a Liver Pill.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver regulators now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Their operation though gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

To Increase Next Year's Production

Manitoba Department of Agriculture to Encourage Breaking More Land

Hon. Valentine Winkler has announced that the provincial department of agriculture is about to launch a campaign of land breaking among the farmers of Manitoba, which, it is anticipated, will increase the wheat production of 1919 by 5,000,000 bushels. A "booster" will be appointed in every provincial riding who will go among the farmers of his constituency and seek to encourage every land owner to break from five to ten acres at the least this summer. New breaking always gives a better crop than old land and if the 51,000 farmers of the province respond the added wheat yield will be enormous.

It is calculated that even if some farmers cannot do any breaking, many others will turn over large areas and the average will be at least five acres each. This would mean a total of 250,000 acres which, at a yield of 20 bushels per acre, would produce the five million bushels of added wheat crop. Such a boost to production would be most comforting to the allies and the empire next year, even if the war is over, it is declared by the provincial authorities.

Hon. Mr. Winkler said that the federal government would share the expense of the campaign on a fifty-fifty basis.

Not a Day To Be Lost

Time for Everybody to Drop Futile Squabbles

The new measures to be applied in Great Britain are drastic in the extreme, and Americans have only to imagine the drafting of men up to 50 years of age, and the total withdrawal from industry of men of 25 or under, to realize the burden which Great Britain has assumed. To assume the new burden was necessary, partly because Russia has dropped out, partly because America has not yet fully come in. It is time for everybody in this country, politicians included, to drop futile squabbles and concentrate on winning the war. Some can fight, some can build ships, some can buy bonds. Neither in fighting nor in industry, nor in finance has this great and powerful nation begun to extend itself. Its strength will tell more heavily every day, but there is not a day to be lost. Even stronger than Lloyd George's appeal to America for haste is his plain statement of the sacrifices which Great Britain must make because we are not yet ready.—From the Springfield Republican.

The Strength That Comes in the Fight With Back to the Wall

Trust the battle line of England, the Indomitable! Of all the peoples of history, none more than the English have shown the strength that comes in the fight with back to the wall. The last ditch is where England fights best and there she will fight best today if forced to it by the most tremendous military pressure the world has ever known. Thank God our boys are fighting at her side, even if it be but a few of them. May they carry to her the assurance of our faith and glory in her. May they sweep aside the ancient prejudices that have made us grudge England her fair meed of trust and honor.—Chicago Post.

The Burden of Anxiety falls on the Women

ALMOST everybody is living under a tense nervous strain during these trying times, but the burden rests particularly heavy on the women in the home. Whatever their employment about the house, the mind has much time to dwell on the dreadful things that might happen.

There is nothing so wearing on the nerves as worry and anxiety. Nerve force is consumed at an enormous rate, and as the nerve cells become starved and depleted you find yourself unable to rest or sleep. You soon get so you can only see the dark side, and become down-hearted and discouraged.

Headaches, neuralgic pains, indigestion and failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions are among the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves and low vitality.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you if you will only give it a chance. We know this from long experience with this great food cure. We have proven it by evidence published in this paper from time to time. It only remains for you to put it to the test.

You may wonder why people are so enthusiastic in recommending this treatment for the nerves. But you will understand after you have experienced the benefits that are to be obtained by its use.

You will find yourself resting and sleeping better, appetite and digestion will improve and you will know again the joy of good health.

Machine Gunners Task

A higher degree of physical fitness is required in the machine gunner than in the soldier of any other branch of the army. Size is not so important as good health and muscular strength. The machine gunner must be capable of carrying his gun, crawling on his hands and knees with it, or running with it if need be.

Crosses on Mount of Olives

In a letter from Jerusalem, telling of a tour of inspection of the Red Cross units with General Allenby's forces, Mrs. Edith H. Phillips says: "They must have made a magnificent fight all up the hillsides, especially Nebi Samwil. There are numerous little crosses on the mountains. Those on the Mount of Olives look sad, but wonderfully impressive."

Nebi Samwil has the traditional tomb of the prophet Samuel and is identified with Mizpah, the city of Benjamin.

Boys on the Farm

What the Boys Have Done and Can Do

Previous experience has shown that there are few of the phases of farm work the older boys cannot accomplish. Their main worth, perhaps, lies in the fact that by attending to the chores, looking after feeding and milking of cows, weeding and such other lighter but necessary farm work, they release the regular farm labor for the more strenuous farm tasks. Reports of work done last year show that the Soldiers of the Soil looked after the hoeing, harrowing, lighter seeding, weeding, raking, mowing, planting, churning, and delivery of cream and milk, general farm chores, feeding of all live stock, and the letters received from farmers who had these older boys assisting them told not only of the good work done but also of the desire of these same farmers to have the boys help another year.

The productive capacity of 25,000 boys on the farm, according to authority, should be equal to at least five million bushels of wheat, if we take the labor of one boy as equal to the cultivation of ten acres of wheat at twenty bushels to the acre; which calculation it would appear is conservative.

Many mothers have reason to bless Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, because it has relieved the little ones of suffering and made them healthy.

How the Kaiser Raises Money

Invitations to Court Functions Could Be Bought by Anyone Who Cared to Pay the Price

Some piquant revelations of the kaiser's efforts to raise money for himself are given by Miss Edith Keen, who spent seven years at the German court.

Miss Keen was engaged eight years ago as a dresser to Princess Leopold of Prussia, the German empress's sister, and during her service she met many great personages of the court, including the All-Highest himself. She only returned to England after great difficulty. "You know too much!" she was told.

In 1908, writes Miss Keen, the kaiser was getting into financial difficulties. Many of the household accounts had not been paid for some years. The kaiser had a heavy personal overdraft at his bankers.

"Ultimately, the kaiser relieved himself of all his pecuniary embarrassments by the sale of some of the royal estates at Potsdam.

"It was at this time that the habit sprang up at the German court of very wealthy people paying large sums to obtain for their daughters some sort of a position about the court, either as a maid-of-honor or lady-in-waiting to the empress. I heard that in the season of 1910 four court appointments brought in £35,000 for the empress.

"It was told by the Princess Leopold that one lady paid the German empress £10,000 to be allowed to accompany the kaiserin to the British court on the occasion of the last visit of the emperor and empress to Windsor Castle.

"Royal warrants were sold at high figures as much as £1,000 being paid by some trade men for a warrant, though some of them never, as a matter of fact, got any royal custom.

"Invitations to great court functions and ceremonies could be bought by anyone who cared to pay the price for this honor. A thousand pounds was the usual fee for an invitation."

A Voice Wanted

Are Men Who Have no Fixed Point of Truth or Honor

Words still fail to tell the daily tale of woe which those who do things in the name of Germany bring to the world. Devilish as are their physical cruelties even more cruel and terrible seem to be the mental tortures which they inflict upon the world. For they are men who have no fixed point of truth or honor, and their deeds and thoughts are an insult to the world's common goodness. Strangely enough there seems no voice among the allies able to scorch with prophetic utterance and to shame before the world these representatives of Germany who on the throne and in its parliament and press and pulpit daily kill all that civilization has won. These attacks on truth go by default. They are accepted in silence. And yet as the Eternal liveth the men who utter these things and so defy Him shall answer for them at some great tribunal. Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?—Public Opinion.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS
How to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain
Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.
He says that a few drops of a drug called freezone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.
This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding tissue.
A small bottle of freezone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.
If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezone for you from his wholesale drug house.

Friend—What do you think of that cigar I gave you?

Trooper—There's something about it that's suggestive of a general.

Friend—How's that?

Trooper—It's rank.

HOW'S THIS FOR CORNS? LIFTS 'EM OUT QUICK
You can peel your corns off, lift them out by the roots, do it without pain and quickly, too, if you first apply a few drops of Putnam's Corn Extractor. Putnam's shrivels up the corn, makes it look like dead skin, uproots it completely. The beauty about Putnam's Extractor is this—it acts without pain—does it's work quickly and costs but a quarter in any drug store in the land. Get it today.

Sunflower Can Be Used as Fertilizer, Fuel and Fodder

The discovery of the economic value of the sunflower, a native of this country, is chiefly due to a foreign people, says Royal Dixon in The Mother's Magazine for April. In Russia today the sunflower has become one of the chief products of agricultural sources. Until recent years the sunflower has been grown in this country chiefly as an ornament and for its seeds, which were used for poultry and bird food. The cultivation of this plant on a commercial scale now forms the latest industry that has engaged the attention of the department of agriculture. Already it has been proved that the sunflower can be grown not only successfully, but also with great profit for fuel, fertilizer and fodder over very extensive areas in the United States.

The Lost Provinces

Alsace and Lorraine Long for Reunion With France

Are Alsace and Lorraine in the German confederation against their will? Yes. The proofs? Here they are: (1) Proceedings of the reichstag from 1871 to 1914 inclusive; (2) editorials and news columns of the papers of Strassburg, Mulhausen, Colmar and Metz, which fairly represent the whole of Alsace-Lorraine; (3) the testimony of ecclesiastics, Catholic and Protestant alike, who know the feeling of the people; (4) the attitude of the land owning and industrial bourgeois class; (5) the widespread refusal of all young Alsatians and Lorrainers of all classes, in the face of exile, confiscation of property and death, to serve in the German armies.

I have resided in Turkey among the Armenians, and have been eyewitness of massacres. And yet I say that contemporary history records no more pitiful, no more heartrending martyrdom than that of the people of Alsace-Lorraine under German rule. For they have had to will to suffer. I wish it were in my power to forget some of the stories told me by all classes of Alsations, the simple record of their family life. If one wants to realize the heinousness of the peace of Frankfort, the absence of the quality of mercy in German official classes, the perversion of natural instincts of German imperalists, let him talk to fathers and mothers and wives and children among cultivated Alsatians and Lorrainers. Let him listen to the young men who have not been able to escape wearing the helmet that is at the same time the brand of shame and the badge of slavery.

To the boys, as they grow to adolescence, German rule has meant either wearing the uniform of the hated conqueror or a life of exile far from loved ones. The girls have no choice. Born and raised in an atmosphere of grief, if they have married, it has been with the prayer that God would spare them the anguish of having sons.

I am not exaggerating. Any Alsatian whose family believed that the higher patriotism was staying in the country and submitting to the Germans would assure you that hell is not too strong a word to describe his life. One mother told me that she gave up all her sons when they reached the age of 13, and has never had them in her home since; another, in the presence of her young daughters, said she would rather see them prostitutes than married to Germans; another, that when her husband was dying, the son, on the French side of the frontier, climbed a high tree in the Vosges to try to look down into the valley of his home town. He knew, and in the mad frenzy of his grief tried to slip by the German guards. But they turned him back.—Herbert Adams Gibbons, in the Century Magazine.

Pencils From Japan

The Creation of a Lead Pencil Industry in Japan

An unthought-of result of the war has been the creation of a lead pencil industry in Japan.

In 1911 Japan imported 65,000,000 pencils, most of which came from America and Germany. But with the opening of the European conflict German sources of supply were cut off and native manufacturers, who had been producing only in comparatively small quantities, seized their opportunity and made the most of it.

In 1914 Japan exported over 9,000,000 pencils, and in 1916 the number had increased to 168,000,000.

There is strong indication that many of the markets won by the Orientals will be held by them after the war, for they have the advantage of very cheap labor. Most of the lead which they use is imported from India and England.

The God of His Ancestors

German Kaiser Is Faithful to the God of His Grandfathers

The kaiser's message to the empress—"By the grace of God the battle has been won. The Lord has gloriously aided. May He further help"—will bring to the minds of many the pious messages which his grandfather, William I., sent to the Empress Augusta in the war of 1870. These were parodied by an English writer in the following rhyme:

The Lord be praised, my dear Augusta,
We've had another awful buster.
Ten thousand French we've sent below,
Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

William II. is faithful to the God his grandfather worshipped, but has added some attributes which make his deity resemble the God of his heathen ancestors more closely than ever.—Portland Oregonian.

No Cattle Embargo

No Such Action Contemplated by U. S. Government on Canadian Shipments

Inquiry by the Canadian Press based on rumors from western Canada that the United States contemplates placing restrictions on the shipment of cattle from Canada into the United States, brought the reply from Washington that no such action was contemplated, at least for the present. Washington officials expressed some curiosity as to the origin of the report, and intimated that, so far as they knew, no embargo was in contemplation. The last list of articles placed under restriction, on April 1, made no reference to livestock.

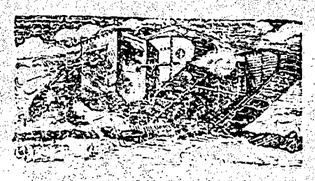
BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS
In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine
One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. There prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia, poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.
You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Province Would Change Name

New Brunswick Historical Society Asks That Acadia Be Adopted

The New Brunswick Historical Society has unanimously adopted a resolution asking that the name of the province be changed to Acadia. It is set forth that the present name is derived from a German state, that the prefix "new" is not scientific since no country remains new, and that there is no resemblance physically between the European and the Canadian Brunswick. The old name of Acadia, adopted by the French from the Indians and applied to New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and part of Maine is represented to be the logical name for the province. It is historical, it is musical and is not German.

Of course, the German association is the real trouble. New Brunswick was not named from any relation that the place or people had with the other Brunswick. The name was probably intended as a compliment to the British dynasty. But Mr. Waterburk, who moved the resolution in St. John, pointed out that the king was getting rid of his German geographical titles and that was a precedent in favor of the change he proposed.—From the Vancouver, B. C., Province.



To drive a tank, handle the guns, and sweep over the enemy trenches, takes strong nerves, good rich blood, a good stomach, liver and kidneys. When the time comes, the man with red blood in his veins "is up and at it." He has iron nerves for hardships—an interest in his work grips him. That's the way you feel when you have taken a blood and nerve tonic, made up of Blood root, Golden Seal root, Stone root, Cherry bark, and rolled into a sugar-coated tablet and sold in fifty-cent vials by almost all druggists for past fifty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This tonic, in liquid or tablet form, is just what you need this spring to give you vim, vigor and vitality. At the fag end of a hard winter, no wonder you feel "run-down," blue, out of sorts. Try this "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce's. Don't wait! To-day is the day to begin! A little "pep," and you laugh and live.
ST. CATHARINES, ONT.—"Several years ago, when convalescing after a serious illness, I took a half dozen bottles each of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription as tonics. I cannot praise these medicines too highly for the benefit I received—my health was completely restored. I always take pleasure in recommending these two of Dr. Pierce's remedies."—MRS. FLORENCE LOGAN, 33 Beach Street.

Prussian Guards Got Dose of Their Own Medicine

Advices received from Germany say four regiments of Prussian Guards suffered severely from their own gas in an attack on Armetnieres when the wind shifted suddenly and blew gas back in their faces.

In order that people may not be alarmed at seeing so many men of crack regiments blinded by gas, orders have been given to remove the shoulder straps and other identification marks from the victims before they are sent back to the base hospitals.

Working Like Niggers

Let the Germans Have It Right in the Neck Every Time

"On, Welshmen, on!" These thrilling words occur in a stirring letter from the front describing a Canadian officer's death. "It was as peaceful as a graveyard and nobody expected what was going to happen. Without the least warning the earth started to tremble and rock, then suddenly appeared to crack into two parts. Out of the rent was belched up a cloud of debris, and trenches and anything likely to give cover disappeared as though by a wave of the magic wand of some fairy queen. The new arrivals hardly knew what to make of it. The older ones knew at once.

"The first man to go down was the officer at the head of the leading company. He was struck with a bullet and dropped on his face. Turning on his side he supported himself on an elbow, and called out cheerily as quoted above. The Fusiliers answered with a hearty cry. 'We'll do that sir,' and then they closed with the Huns.

"The bomb fight was probably the most thrilling part of the whole business. The daring of the men was wonderful, and they didn't forget to let the Germans have it right in the neck every time. Some Huns were working a mchine gun like niggers. Up came our bombing party, and before the enemy could say 'Hoch,' a couple of bombs, nicely planted had sent men, gun and ammunition into the air."

Close To the Fighting Lines

Belgian School Children Hear Guns and the Screech of Shells

One of the most amazing sights along the Belgian front is a school for children which is being maintained close to the fighting lines by the army through General Rucquoy, the chief of staff. Here about 250 little folk whose homes are near by are being cared for during the day in a school which is less than four miles from the German trenches.

Great shells pass with their wicked wail over the heads of these youngsters as they play about the grounds. The detonation of the huge guns is constant, and often the schoolhouse rocks with the vibration. Fleets of German airplanes circle about with their loads of enormous bombs. But the work of the school continues its regular course.

The Red Cross is deeply interested in this unique institution and is helping it in every way possible. Major John Van Schaick, Jr., acting commissioner for Belgium, in a report on the school, said:

"It would appear as if these children ought to be in a highly nervous condition, but in fact they are about as sturdy a lot of little Flemish boys and girls as I have ever seen. They never run when the shells whistle or explode. One of their favorite amusements is to jeer at German airplanes, and they are absolutely devoid of fear. It probably would appear to many people that the duty of the American Red Cross would be to help these children out. Instead, we are giving a new barrack and sending clothing and shoes to help them stay. This is on the theory that it is better for the children to be with their parents than to be sent away. Reversing conditions in former generations, we find that the big towns are the places of danger and the scattered farm places of comparative safety. This institution is a day school, where meals are served and instruction given, and the children live at home."

Indians Are In Big Food Drive

Fall in With Commissioner Graham's Plans Enthusiastically

Preparations for commencing operations on the home production farm, under the direction of the department of Indian affairs, are progressing rapidly. Six tractors have been shipped from Regina to nearby points where the farms will be maintained. Bunk houses and cook houses are now in process of construction at these points.

Indians at the Assiniboia reserve recently sent a delegation to wait upon Commissioner W. M. Graham, and before they left the city arrangements had been made by them for the purchase of three tractors. The Indians are financing the deal themselves and will make all their own arrangements for operating the machines.

Large areas of land are constantly being leased by the department for grazing and agricultural purposes in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Individuals and delegations are steadily coming in to confer with Commissioner Graham in regard to the leasing of these lands.

Tax on Toil

The Most Stupendous Exhibition of Retributive Justice

"Tax laws, unjust and unfair tax laws, have been the source of more misery, more agony, though often voiceless, and finally, more bloodshed and slaughter, than any other form of legislation to which men have given their efforts. The unequal burdens of government, distributed unjustly by those in power, have been the undermining influence of governmental organization time and time again. It was the refusal of the king to listen to his great finance minister, Turgot, which brought on the French revolution. Turgot said to the king, 'I will redistribute these taxes. I will take off the taxes on the necessaries of life, the taxes which are crushing your peasantry and reducing 90 per cent. of your people to poverty and drudgery, and breeding discontent and disloyalty everywhere, and I will lay it on the great estates, the wealth which surrounds you.' The king was pleased, for, while Louis did not have a great mind, he had a better heart than it is usually given to kings to possess. He told the minister to proceed. The minister did not proceed far, however. The wealthy estates demanded an audience with the king on the question of taxes. They asserted they were too heavily taxed; that it would cripple his kingdom and destroy its prestige. The king listened, wavered and in that wavering lost his head. Turgot was dismissed, the taxes were distributed as of old, hunger and want and crime came together and executed their wild system of justice, and lords and satellites and kings paid the forfeit of their crime. The French revolution was the most stupendous exhibition of retributive justice in the history of the human race, and its origin, its source and its moving force were the unjust tax laws of France.—New York Call.

No White Bread in England

Canadian mills are now producing 196 pounds of standard flour from 258 pounds of wheat. In the United States the mills are using 265 pounds of wheat to produce 196 pounds of flour. In France, where they are milling to an 85 per cent extraction, 196 pounds of flour are produced from 230 pounds of wheat, and in England, where the extraction is 90 per cent, they are using only 215 pounds of wheat. The difference between the weight of the wheat and the weight of the flour produced therefrom represents byproducts used for cattle feed. In both England and France from 15 to 30 per cent of substitutes, chiefly corn, barley and rice are required with the wheat flour. The people of Great Britain are not now making any white bread.

Hard for the Stork

One Sunday afternoon when Jones, who had been visiting the zoo, came home, he announced to the family:

"They've got a new baby hippopotamus."

Whereupon his daughter, about 15, burst into a fit of uncontrollable laughter. When she subsided somewhat the father growled:

"What are you laughing at?"

"I was just thinking," giggled the girl, "that that rather kills the stork story."

Sounds From the Earth

In one of his journals, Camille Flammarion gives the height at which sounds from the earth are heard from balloons. The shout of a man was heard distinctly at a height of 1600 feet, the sharp note of a mole cricket at 2500 feet, and the croaking of frogs in a morass at 3000 feet. At 3255 feet a man's voice and the rolling of a cart were distinguished; at 4550 feet the roll of a drum and the music of an orchestra; at 5000 feet the crowing of a cock, the sound of a church bell, and sometimes the shouting of men and women. Nine hundred feet higher still he heard the report of a musket and the barking of a dog. The noise of a railway train penetrated to a height of 8200 feet and the whistle of a locomotive engine to nearly 10,000 feet.—Scientific American.

To Keep Out Flies

A correspondent of the Scientific American is authority for the statement that flies may be kept out of restaurants, stables, etc., by placing a four-bladed wooden ceiling pan just outside the door, or in the entrance, driving the current of air towards the floor. The flies will not pass through the current of air. The door may be always left open and screen doors may be dispensed with.

Act of Kindness

Might we not all resolve that every day we will do at least one act of kindness? Let us write a letter in such terms that the post will bring pleasure next day to some house; make a call just to let a friend know that he has been in our heart; send a gift on some one's birthday, marriage day or any day we can invent. Let us make children glad with things which they long for and cannot obtain, and a thousand other things which we could do within a year if we had eyes to see and a heart to feel and had the will to take some trouble.—Ian MacLaren.

"Blind Jim"

(A truck-horse dropped dead in William Street this morning. The driver said his name was "Blind Jim."—News Item.)

By J. Cobson Miller

"Only a horse, they said.
"A broken, worn-out nag is dead."
The gaping crowd passed by,
Scarce one or two looked on with listless eye.

The driver of the truck—himself grown old,
Stood, nonplussed in the March-wind's cutting cold.
Then suddenly his voice broke to a moan,
And, kneeling down upon the jagged stone,
He wept hot tears, and, fondling the great mane,
He spoke in tones grief-choked and sharp with pain:

"He was my friend, was Jim;
And now, see! Death has come and taken him.
Poor Jim was blind,
And yet I don't know where a horse you'll find,
That did his work as well as faithful Jim.
On many a morning dim,
Before the sun was up, or folks astir,
He hauled his garbage truck—old pals we were.
And never the whip was used upon his back,
For steady, like a soldier on the track,
He stood up to his job, who couldn't see—
He was a great, good friend, was Jim, to me,
Much better than some people that I know.
And now he's dead—laid low . . .
"I almost wish 'twas me, instead o' him—
Poor Jim?"

LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 2 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.
