THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

VOLUME 24 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1883. NUMBER 38

The New Governor's Farewell.

Before leaving the motherland to assume the governorship of Canada, the Marquis of Landsdowne was presented with an address from the town council of Londonderry. His reply gives one the impression of a man possessing fluency of speech, and fully impressed with the importance of the commission entrusted to him by the Imperial authorities. Having referred to the sum contributed by Canada towards relieving the distress in Ireland, he said: "And when I think, to use the words of your address, of those "ties of blood and brotherhood" which unite you to the people of Canada, it would be strange were it otherwise. Why, I believe it is the case that in Canada out of every four or five persons in the Dominion, one at least is of Irish blood. (Cheers.) You will find Irishmen among the stalwart pioneers who have carried civilization into the remote wilderness; you will find Irishmen among the enterprising men of business who have brought to Canada the measure of prosperity which she now enjoys, and among the statesmen who have regulated her progress and framed the institutions under which she has succeeded so admirably, and I believe that the share which Irishmen have taken in the progress of the Dominion is one which is not likely to diminish. We know that the area, boundless in its fertility and in its limits, which Canadian enterprise has lately opened up to the settlers and colonists—we know that that boundless area is open to those who choose to pass towards it from this country, under the most liberal and most attractive conditions (applause), and I think you will agree with me when I say that emigration, conducted under such conditions, need leave no bitter memories behind it, need cause no suffering, but may, on the contrary, add to the solidity and strength of the Empire, by retaining subjects whom it might otherwise lose. In speaking of the connection of Ireland with Canada I cannot help being reminded of the fact that one of the most successful of my predecessors was an Irishman and Ulsterman—I mean Lord Dufferin—whom I believe your predecessors in office entertained on his departure as you are good enough to entertain me, and who has not only won for himself the affections of the people of Canada, but also served his country with the utmost distinction in each one of the four quarters of the globe. It will be my endeavor to follow in the footsteps of Lord Dufferin and Lord Lorne, who, by their close attention to the people of Canada, have won for themselves their appreciation and esteem. (Cheers.) It will be my endeavor to do what I can to promote the progress and the welfare of the Canadian community, and to cherish that loyalty which appears to be of indigenous growth on the Canadian soil. (Applause.) This is a moment when my thoughts naturally are directed towards the possibilities of the future which lies in front of us; but I cannot, as one long connected with Ireland and deeply interested in her welfare, avoid casting one glance behind me as I leave her shores, and I rejoice to think I am leaving her shores at a moment when the cloud of trouble which has for some time past obscured the face of the land appears to be lifting off many parts of it. (Cheers.) I am aware that it was a partial cloud, and I am aware in your neighborhood public confidence has not been disturbed. (Cheers.) Lady Lansdowne and I have had a most agreeable experience in a part of the country remote from yours, and inhabited by a race differing from you in origin and religion—we have had a most agreeable experience of what the conduct of an Irish neighbor can be. I say that because I would be sorry to leave an impression in your mind that the people of Ireland were open to any charge of the sort. (Cheers.) Let me, then, on the point of my departure, express my hope that nothing may occur to impede and interrupt the improvement which we can already detect, and that if we are to have differences and rivalries, they may be conducted under conditions creditable to both sides. (Cheers.) Differences and rivalries political differences and political rivalries—we must always have. They are the life blood of the very political life of a country like this (hear, hear, and opposition). But I do say this, let these differences and these rivalries be conducted in such a manner that there may arise supreme a desire to do nothing which could sully in any way the name of the glorious Empire which we have inherited from our forefathers, which Irishmen have done so much to build up, to which Canada has contributed, and of which the people of Canada, with all the exuberance of their young development, are proud to write themselves members. (Cheers.) Sir, I return you, in Lady Lansdowne's name and in my own, our hearty thanks for your kindness. (Long and continued applause).

Peck's Bad Boy and His Pa.

HE BREAKS PA OF MASHING FEMALE CLERKS.

"What is it that I hear about your father creating a panic in a drygoods store," said the grocery man to the bad boy, as he took a butter tryer and ran it into a pumpkin a few times. "They tell me that he had about one hundred female clerks treed on the shelves and on the counters, and all of them screaming bloody murder and that a floor walker hit him over the head with a roll of paper cambric, and somebody turned in a fire alarm. How was it?"

"Well, if you will keep a watch for pa at the door I will tell you all about it," said the boy. "Somebody has told pa that I was at the bottom of the whole business, and when a man loses confidence in his boy, and rolls up a trunk strap and carries it habitually, it stands a boy in hand to keep his eye peeled. You see, pa has been in the habit lately of going to a store a good deal and lally-gagging with the girl clerks. Any girl that will smile on pa, and looks sweet, catches him, and he would sit on a stool in front of the counter ten hours a day, pretending to want to buy some kind of fringe, or corsets, or something, and he would fairly take the arm off the girls. Ma didn't like it at all, and she told pa he ought to be ashamed of himself, 'cause the girls was only making a fool of him, and all the people in the store were laffing at him, but pa said for her to shut her yawp, and he kept on trying to find excuses to go to the store. Ma told me about it, and she felt real sorry, and it made me mad to see an old man, old enough to have gout or paralysis, going around mashing clerks in a store, and I told ma if she would let me I would break pa up in that sort of business, and she told me to go ahead and make him jump like a box car. So t'other day ma gave pa a piece of ribbon to match and a corset to change for a larger size, and a pair of gloves to return because the thumb of one of 'em ripped off, and told him to buy four yards of baby flannel, and see how much it would cost to have her seal skin cleak relined, and to see if her new hat was done. Pa acted as if he didn't want to go to the store, but ma and me knew that he looked upon it as a picnic, and he blackened his boots and changed ends with his cuffs, and put on his new red necktie, and shaved himself, and fixed up as though he was going to be married. I asked him to let me go along and carry the packages, and he said he didn't mind if I did go. You have seen these injy rubber rats they have at the rubber stores, haven't you? They look so near like a natural rat that you can't tell the difference unless you offer the rubber rat some cheese. I got one of those rats and tied a fine thread to it, with a slipnoose on the end, and when pa got into the store I put the slipnoose over the hind button of his coat tail and put the rat on the floor, and it followed him along, and I swow it looked so natural I wanted to kick it. Pa walked along smiling, and stopped at a ribbon counter and winked at a girl, and she bent over to see what he wanted, and then she saw the rat, and she screamed and crawled up on the shelf where the boxes were, and put her feet under her and screamed: 'Take it away! kill it!' and she trembled all over. Pa thought she had gone into a fit, 'cause she was paralyzed on his shape, and he turned blue, and he went on, 'cause he didn't want to kill her dead; and as he walked along the rat followed him, and just as he bowed to four girls, who were standing together talking about the fun they had at the exposition the night before, they saw the rat and began to yell and climb up things. One of them got on a stool and pulled her clothes tight around her ankles, so a live rat couldn't have got in her stocking, let alone a rubber rat, and the girls all squealed just like when you tickle them in the ribs. Pa he looked scared, as though he was afraid he was breaking them all up with his shape, and he kept on, and another flock of girls saw the rat, and they jumped up on the counter and sat down on their feet, and yelled "rat." Then the others yelled "rat," and in a minute about a hundred girls were getting up on things and saying 'shoo,' and one of them got up on a pile of blankets and the pile fell on the floor with her, and the men had to dig her out. Pa's face was a study. He looked at one girl and then another, and wondered what was the matter, and finally the floor walker came along and seen what it was, and he took pa by the collar and led him out of doors, and told him if he ever came in there again he would send the police after him. I had gone by the time pa had got out on the sidewalk, and he picked up the rubber rat and found it was hitched to his coat, and he went right home. Ma says that he was so mad that he stuttered, and she thinks I'd better board around for a day or two. She tried to reason with pa that it was intended for his good, to show him that he was making a fool of himself; but he does not look at it in that light. Say, do you think it was wrong to break him up that way? He was going wrong entirely."

Mr. W. R. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville, writes: "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches, wind puffs and cuts, and in every case it gave the best satisfaction. We use it as a household remedy for colds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down and applying it occasionally."

The British Columbian.

Saturday Morning, Nov. 10, 1883.

A Trick, of Course.

For some months the opposition organs have been demanding an early session of the provincial parliament. The professed purpose of this demand was to afford an opportunity for the house to express its opinion on the settlement bill, which these organs pretend to think should be rejected. But the real purpose was, apparently, the hope that by some means the government might be defeated. Certainly the professed object was not the true one, for no sooner is it announced that an early session will be held than the organs begin to tell us that this sudden calling together of the legislature is a trick! Within the past month several public meetings have been held at Nanaimo, and one at another place on the island. The Nanaimo meeting, as well as the other, passed resolutions in disapproval of the settlement bill. Whether these resolutions really expressed the sentiments of the voters we do not know. It is quite possible the Nanaimo meeting at least may have been considerably influenced by the peculiar circumstances which existed at the time. The miners had for some time been on strike. Nanaimo depends almost wholly upon her coal mines, and everybody's interests were affected by the strike. When people are suffering financially they are almost certain to be down on the government. That fact has been seen over and over again in the history of Canada. But these resolutions, whatever prompted them, gave great comfort to the opposition organs. They professed to see in them the entering of the wedge which would assuredly split the government and open the doors of office to their own crowd. They urged the electors of every constituency in the province to call public meetings at once and pass similar resolutions. So far their appeals have been fruitless. Not one meeting of electors has been held on the mainland, except the one held some months ago in this city. We are inclined to think now that that meeting was called for the purpose of passing resolutions in condemnation of the settlement bill. It was to be the initial opposition meeting, to be followed by others throughout the country. But the explanations made by the government on that occasion were so satisfactory, and the charges made by the opposition spouters were so ridiculous, that it was plainly seen the meeting would not condemn the government policy. The intended resolutions were, therefore, discreetly withheld, and the movement was admitted to be a failure. The early session leaves a very brief period in which to work up an opposition sentiment, and the organs therefore denounce it as a fraud. Of course they are not consistent, as consistency is generally understood. They are perfectly consistent, however, with their own record.

Needed Legislation.

Less than a month will elapse before the members of the provincial legislature meet for the despatch of business. The defeat of the late government while the house was in session left very little opportunity for the present ministry to formulate a policy before they had to face the legislature. That policy, when announced, however, embraced some of the most important questions that have yet engaged the attention of the people of British Columbia. A government which could accomplish so much in so brief a period may reasonably be expected to do a great deal at the approaching session. They have had time for mature deliberation, and the speech from the throne ought to contain many things of great provincial interest. And the province has great need of legislative reforms. Grievances are met with wherever we turn, and it is within the power of the legislature to remove many of the things which are producing effects injurious to the interests of the province. The settlement bill will undoubtedly come up for discussion. The misapprehensions under which the house labored during the last session were such that the bill did not obtain federal sanction. In the mean time the visit of Sir Alexander Campbell to this province has, we presume, enabled our government to arrive at a definite knowledge of the changes required, and the bill will be amended so as to meet the wishes of the Dominion government. It is understood that the amendments will be very slight, and will not at all affect the scope of the bill. There seems to be a disposition lately manifesting itself in certain quarters to question the advisability of confirming this bill. The opposition (at least the honest opposition) comes wholly from Vancouver Island, and is directed against the provisions for the construction of the island railway. It seems to us a great pity that these people had not sooner discovered the iniquities of the bill. In principle the island railway arrangement is the same as has been advocated and approved of for some years on Vancouver Island, and everybody supposed that the people of Victoria and Nanaimo were perfectly willing and most anxious to give away the railway belt for the railway. The government settlement bill was framed upon that supposition, and it was passed by the house without calling forth any protest. The government are fairly committed to the bill. They have arranged with the federal government for its approval, and it is difficult to see now how they can withdraw it. On the strength of it $120,000 have already been paid by the Dominion into the provincial treasury. We are inclined to believe that the government will be fully sustained by the house on the settlement bill. We hope some arrangement will be made for the revision and consolidation of the provincial statutes. It is a commonly expressed opinion among lawyers that the laws of British Columbia are the worst in the Dominion. It does not require much legal training to discover that our laws are in a fearful state of contradiction and uncertainty. It should be one of the government's first concerns to put these conflicting laws into such shape as will make them intelligible, and prevent the serious complications which are constantly arising in the courts and elsewhere. The land laws should also be consolidated and simplified, and the laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors need to be reconstructed. We are nearly a century behind the rest of the Dominion in this respect. The legislature should pass a Sunday law. At present the English Sunday law is supposed to be in force in this province, but in a great many respects it is unsuited to our circumstances, and fails to accomplish the object intended. The immigration policy of the government has been very successful, and we hope it will be extended and perfected. Some people assert that the immigration agencies are a failure. We know they are not, and hundreds of people in this district are willing to testify to their importance and efficiency. There are several other important matters which should engage the government's attention, some of which we shall refer to in our next issue.

For all troubles of the Throat, use Allen's Lung Balsam. See adv. in another column.

The Royal City Planing Mills Co. are building a new wharf 66x66 feet on the east side of the mill. Between this and the land will be filled in, giving altogether an addition 66x166 feet. The piles are all driven, and planking will be begun at once. Messrs. Gilley, Mooney & Co. have the contract.

The new Lay torpedo which was tried some months ago near Constantinople, was tried four weeks since in English waters. It went off at the start with a great rush, accomplishing the first half-mile in two minutes and eighteen seconds, a much quicker rate than had been anticipated. After completing a mile it was brought back in good condition.

RAINFALL.—During the month of October the rainfall at Ladner's Landing was 2.34. At this city it was 3.53, which is 2.30 less than the mean for the last 8 years.

PORT HAMMOND WHARF.—Messrs. Gilley, Mooney & Co., of this city, have taken the contract for the construction of the C. P. N. Co.'s wharf at Port Hammond. The pile driver will be towed up to-morrow morning, and a scow with about 50,000 of lumber from the Dominion Sawmill Co.'s mill. The wharf is to be 50 feet long.

SHIPPING ITEMS.—Strs. Yosemite and Irving left for Victoria and Yale on Wednesday morning, and str Eliza Anderson for the sound. Str. Dunsmuir left for Nanaimo Wednesday evening. Str. Reliance left for Yale Thursday morning. Str. Yosemite arrived from Victoria at 4:30 yesday afternoon. Str. Reliance arrived from Yale at 6:30 last evening.

THE NEW POST OFFICE.—It was expected that the new post office would have been occupied long ago, but it still stands vacant. The internal fittings are now complete, but there are no stoves, and there is no coal. We understand that a new stove and the necessary pipes will be sent up from Victoria some time before the end of next year, and a man will be sent either from Victoria or Ottawa to put the stoves up and start them. Of course nobody in New Westminster keeps stoves or pipes, and we have no workmen here who could be entrusted with such a complicated piece of mechanical engineering as would be required to start a post office stove. The Dominion government agent in this province sometimes does strange things.

U. S. ELECTIONS.—It is claimed that the U. S. elections held on Tuesday were immensely in favor of the Republican party, who are reported to have carried New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Minnesota, and Nebraska. If these reports are correct Republican stock may well be looking up. General Butler is defeated in Massachusetts by 17,000.

NEW TUG.—The Royal City Planing Mill Co. have decided to build a new tug, and work has already been commenced. The tug will have the following dimensions: Length of keel, 75 feet; length over all, 82 feet; breadth of beam, 15 feet; depth of hold, 6 feet. She will be provided with a powerful pair of engines, capable of doing heavy towing. Mr. Maloney will superintend the building, and it is expected the tug will be completed some time in February.

HYMENEAL.—We congratulate our friend Mr. Frank S. Barnard upon his union with Miss Loewen, one of Victoria's fairest and most accomplished daughters. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father, on Pandora avenue, by Rev. Mr. Jenns, in the presence of the relatives of both contracting parties and a few friends. The newly-made couple left for Portland this morning. They have our best wishes for a long and happy life. At 10 o'clock last night the Victoria Leiderkrantz serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Barnard at Mr. Loewen's residence. The bride and groom bowed their acknowledgments from the verandah. The Leiderkrantz were then invited to enter and were hospitably entertained.—Colonist. The COLUMBIAN offers sincerest good wishes to Mr. F. S. Barnard and his bride.

CLOSE SHOOTING.—Two city physi*cians were returning from a profes*sional call some 10 miles in the country yesterday morning. They had a double-barreled team and a double-barreled shot gun, as grouse were reported plentiful. After proceeding a short distance a grouse made its appearance on the road. One of the doctors took the gun and going within easy shot fired four times without effect. The grouse got disgusted and flew away. The other doctor determined that he would give an exhibition of his marksmanship which would make his professional companion weep. He took the gun with great confidence and told the teamster to drive on. Very soon grouse No. 2 popped up serenely, and Dr. No. 2 cocked his gun and made ready. It had been arranged that he would shoot from the wagon. But the grouse kept running along the road in front of the horses, and the doctor became excited. Fortunately he was holding the gun with the muzzle pointing upwards, for in his excitement he pulled the trigger and off it went! And the grouse went too. His aim was too "lofty," and a "cloud" seemed to hang over the spirits of the pair during the remainder of their journey.

County Court.

Court opened on Wednesday, Mr. Justice McCreight presiding. There were very few cases of any public interest. The following is the list:

SHORE v. FINDLAY, DURHAM & BRODIE.—Action for $13.68 Judgment for $10. Messrs. Corbould & McColl (instructed by Mr. Drake) for dfts.

D. W. MILLER v. E. GREYELL.—Action for $129.71. Judgment for plf. with interest and costs. Messrs. Corbould & McColl for plf.

CUNNINGHAM v. ADAIR.—Action for $431.56. Confessed. Messrs. Corbould & McColl for plf.

METCALF v. G. W. WILLIAMS.—Action for $48. Withdrawn. Mr. Bole for plf.; Mr. McColl for deft.

JAS. KNOX v. D. WOODWARD.—Action for $132.50 as the value of a quantity of potatoes sold by dft. as agent for plf. to the Moodyville Sawmill Co., in respect of which plf. claimed that dft. had not accounted. The defense was that the company had credited dft. with $50 only on account of the potatoes, it being alleged that a large portion of them were bad, that the plf. had been informed of this, and the dft. had offered to pay over to plf. the $50, which he refused to accept. His Lordship held that dft. had done all that he ought to have done in the matter, and that the question of the value of the potatoes lay between the plf. and the company. Judgment for dft. with costs. Mr. Bole for plf.; Mr. McColl for dft.

F. HENDRY v. MOODYVILLE SAWMILL CO.—Action for $500. Adjourned till next Tuesday.

The Canadian Pacific.

(St. Paul Pioneer Press.)

General Manager Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific, answered last evening to the questions:—

"How is construction progressing?"

"Finely. We are satisfied. The road will be completed to the summit of the Rocky Mountains, 902 miles west of Winnipeg, the first week in November, and on the eastern work we have got to a point 40 miles east of Red Rock, or 105 miles east of Port Arthur."

"Will you work all winter on the eastern division?"

"Yes. We will keep 9,000 men at work there. It is only a question of men and nitroglycerine, and we are shoving them in as fast as we can use them."

"When will the road be completed?"

"Two years from this month, or in October, 1885."

"Do you look for a large immigration next year?"

"We have well authenticated assurances that there will be a large Scotch and English immigration into Manitoba and the North-West next spring; and in a word, Canadian Pacific affairs were never more promising and its future more surely guaranteed."

Thanksgiving Offering.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Will you kindly allow us through the medium of your invaluable paper to return our most grate*ful thanks to those gentlemen who with* exemplary kindness received our invasion of their sanctums on Thanksgiving Day, and who responded so generously to our call for charity. Our receipts were $49.25, and the money will be used for the purpose specified—to procure a more suitable bed for those patients who are unable to move about in the Royal Columbian Hospital in this city. We trust the hospital board will accept our efforts for the alleviation of suffering in the same spirit in which it has been made.

MRS. MCNAUGHTEN,
MRS. BUNTE.

Administration of Justice.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—It must be very gratifying to the public to have at last the hard fought for, long expected and much needed boon—a resident judge in New Westminster. The time is appropriate to point out the urgent necessity for a reformation in the mode of conducting court business in this city, and for the removal of a grievance long felt and lamented. The injury inflicted upon the public by the utterly inexcusable waste of time has become simply intolerable. There may have been a time when two or three days dawdling around the court house was not a matter of much concern to those who had little else to do. But the time is gone past when five days should be spent in doing the work of three, if only our judges had waked up and realized the fact. Men are busy now, and their time is far too valuable to themselves and the country to be thrown away for nothing; and it is hoped—indeed it is confidently expected—that our new judge will consider the injury that would be inflicted upon so many busy men—grand jurors, petit jurors, suitors, witnesses, &c.—by the continuance of the dawdling practices of the past. For instance: 1st, Court business ought to commence promptly at the hour appointed; and that hour ought to be as early in the day as possible. Men cannot attend to other business because it is "court day," and why should the quarter or the half of the day elapse before the hour of business arrives; and then another whole or half hour be spent in waiting for the judge to come sauntering along. And why should judges unfit themselves in the evening for getting up at a reasonable hour in the morning like other men and getting to work? 2nd. Many people say that the judge should not waste the valuable time of the public with so much useless talk in the course of a trial, or when addressing juries. He may very safely take it for granted that the people know something. It has not been an uncommon thing for a judge to stop the examination of a witness to spend about ten minutes in repeating over and over again that a "prisoner is not to be held guilty for the intention to do so and so; you must prove that he actually did it!" The people here are not trained lawyers, but neither are they children or fools. 3rd. Much time ought to be saved by having the witnesses within reach when they are required. Why should it be necessary, or be allowed by the judge, to wait fifteen or twenty minutes to find a witness, or to get another prisoner in when one is disposed of? A little forethought and preparation would have everything in readiness, as we have seen it in the "old country," where the courts would do as much business in one day as our courts usually do in three—even allowing for the difficulties with the Indian and Chinese witnesses. 4th. Another great waste of time has often taken place in the passing of the sentences upon convicted prisoners. Where twenty or thirty minutes would have sufficed to pass all the sentences on the evening of the last day of the assizes, we have seen the court adjourned to the next day at 11 o'clock or 12 for that express purpose; and then two hours or more spent at most painful and laborious efforts to utter a mass of moralizing verbiage that was as unedifying as it was useless, even injurious to the unfortunate culprit. PRO BONO PUBLICO.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—It is believed that the suspension of work on the Canadian Pacific railway will retard progress for four years.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Lord Lansdowne has received several letters threatening his life.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Observer, in a leading editorial, demands that the government take notice of the Fenian avowal and steps looking to the arrest, extradition and trial of O'Donovan Rossa and his New York colleagues. The underground railway companies, whose property has been immensely *prejudiced by explosions, have deter*mined to unite in a demand upon the government for a thorough investigation of the boasted connection of Fenians with the explosions.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The British cabinet have decided that the dispute between China and France has reached the verge of open warfare. Most explicit and positive instructions, looking to the proper and thorough conservation of British interests, were yesterday and to-day issued to all the departments. Rumors are current in the city to-night that orders have been issued to the naval commanders to resist all the attempts on the part of the French to blockade any Chinese port where there exists actual British interests.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent says: In an interview with a prominent statesman of Russia the latter pictured the position and prospects of the nihilist, and said that Vera Philipora, recently arrested at Karkhoff, was the actual head of the nihilist executive com*mittee. She has written a voluminous* confession, showing that she and another woman, who chose South Russia as their field of enterprise, alienated the allegiance of army officers, forty of whom have been arrested. The nihilists are miserably weakened in men and means, *having lost many promi*nent members. The arrest of Vera Philipora is the worst blow of all. They now regard Lauroff, in Paris, as their chief. The campaign will now be conducted from without.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Waddington, Ambassador to England, in an interview expressed his belief that the Tonquin question would be the cause of extended negotiations between France and China, but would not cause a rupture.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Northern Pacific road gives notice that it has allowed 150 pounds of first-class baggage with every first-class ticket, both on through and local business. The Union Pacific road allows 150 pounds as far as Ogden, but the Central and Southern roads allow but 100 pounds with each ticket.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—An explosion occurred this morning in Monkfield colliery, Lancaster. One hundred and ten miners were in the colliery. Twenty persons have been rescued, some badly hurt. It is impossible to esti*mate the number of persons killed.* Parties are searching for missing miners. Searchers traverse a distance of a quarter of a mile before reaching the scene of the explosion.

New Process for Butter and Cheese.

A new process in butter and cheese making known as the vacuum process, is in use at Colchester, Vt., and shows results of much interest to cheese makers and creamery men. Large horizontal cylinders, into which the milk is put, are heated by steam to a temperature of 105 degrees in a few minutes' time, then the steam is turned off and cold water applied, reducing the milk to 40 degrees. When the cooling process is begun an air pump is applied, exhausting the air in the cylinder till the gauge shows a pressure of about thirteen pounds. The milk stands for eighteen hours, and is drawn off into a vat, where the buttermilk remaining after the cream has been churned is added, and a process, differing little from the ordinary acid process, converts the milk into cheese. The vacuum it is said, results in the extracting of offensive odors and destructive germs from the milk, and facilitates the rising of the cream. Analysis shows that only one and a half per cent. of fat remains in the skim milk; but nevertheless the cheese is not poor, but shows 16 per cent. of fat, and 8 per cent. of milk, sugar, and extractive matter. This result has not been explained, but the theory is advanced, that in the process some of the albuminoids are changed to fat. The financial results of the new method of treatment are very encouraging, one hundred pounds of milk yielding four and a half pounds of butter, and nine and one-fourth pounds of cheese.

Henry Clement, Almonte, writes: "For a long time I was troubled with chronic rheumatism, at times wholly disabled; I tried anything and everything recommended, but failed to get any benefit, until a gentleman who was cured of rheumatism by Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, told me about it. I began using it both internally and externally, and before two bottles were used I was radically cured. We find it a household medicine, and for croup, burns, cuts and bruises, it has no equal."

The Catastrophes of the Year.

One of the most remarkable features of the year has been the unusual number of catastrophes from disturbances in the bowels of the earth. It would almost appear as if the powers of nature were determined to get rid of the human race in two or three successive destructive efforts. Hardly had the world time to be startled by the great calamity which laid the chief towns of the pleasant Italian isle of Ischia in ruins and killed many hundreds of their inhabitants, before it was again astounded by the stupendous volcanic disturbances in Java, that overthrew cities, cast up large islands where before there were no islands, and overwhelmed many thousands of people. Now has come to hand the news of a terrible earthquake in Turkey in Asia, in which it is not yet known how many thousand people have been plunged into eternity by the falling ruins of their towns and villages. This earthquake, which has devastated a large part of Anatolio, is reported to have spread eastward in a direct line from the island of Khios, or Scios, or Chios, which, it will be remembered, was visited by an earthquake in April, 1881, that destroyed towns and villages, killed over 4,000 people, and covered the whole island with disease and destitution from which it has not yet recovered. The town of Chesmeh and all the line of villages extending between it and historic Vourla have been destroyed, and there is reason to believe that the line of destruction spread to the southeast of Smyrna, and thence through the greater part of Asia Minor. A rough estimate places the loss of life at 2,000 souls, but, as the region affected embraces innumerable towns and villages and a large pastoral and nomadic population, the loss of life will probably prove ultimately to be much greater. All the provinces of Asia Minor are volcanic in their nature, an evidence of which is the numerous hot springs that burst through the earth from west of Beiramitch and appear even in Armenia. Earthquakes have been frequent in that district probably for thousands of years, and are treated by the inhabitants with a good deal of that fatalistic indifference which characterizes the Oriental. This last terrestrial disturbance bids fair, however, to be the most disastrous that has occurred in Armenia during this century. Terrible distress will follow among the surviving population, and it will certainly be made none the less by the notorious apathy of the Turkish Government.—Philadelphia Press.

MOST EXCRUCIATING are the twinges which rack the muscles and joints of the rheumatic. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, by promoting increased action of the kidneys, by which the blood is more effectually depurated, removes through the na*tural channels certain acrid elements in* the circulation which produce rheumatism and gout. The medicine is also a fine laxative antibilious medicine and general corrective.

The State of Europe.

The unusual activity displayed in the naval and military arsenals of the great European Powers clearly indicates the strained condition of the relations of the countries to each other. The Powers are evidently preparing for a no very-remote contingency; for a war that, wherever it may begin, will surely involve, sooner or later, the whole of Europe, and that may, possibly, spread throughout the civilized world. It is well known that German finances have been for some time at a very low ebb, and that a great war has been regarded as the only means of escaping from national bankruptcy. The attitude of France since the downfall of the second Empire has obliged Germany to exercise sleepless vigilance, and to maintain an immense military establishment in the highest state of efficiency. This has enormously increased the public burdens and stimulated the emigration of the most adventurous and industrious of the German people, who, in this way, sought deliverance rom overwhelming taxation and the claims of military servitude. How great the loss thus sustained by Germany may be readily estimated by the ever-increasing German population of the United States—a population which for persevering industry, frugality, and cultivated intelligence has no superior in the world. Germany is far from being wealthy. Her national resources are limited, and they are limited still more by the policy which obliges the very flower of her youth to enter the army for several years, when they ought to be training for their life-work in the field, the factory, and the counting-house. Thus the Empire is brought into difficulties that will severely tax the wisdom of her most sagacious statesman. Bankruptcy she will not seek, but war, the only other alternative, may lead to that which she wishes to avoid. France is her only possible antagonist. But the France of to-day is not that of Sedan. True she has been pursuing adventures in Tunis, in Madagascar, in China, and elsewhere; but are not these merely attempts to engage the public attention and to occupy her troops until the supreme effort is to be made? Russia evidently thinks so, and hence the massing of Russian legions upon the German frontier. During the last Franco-Prussian war Russia tore up the Treaty of Paris, that excluded her from the Black Sea; and now she is preparing to tear up the Treaty of Berlin. She chafes under the provisions of that treaty that deprive her of the gains of San Stefano and interposed Austria between her and the fruits of Plevna. In such a complication England cannot remain an unconcerned spectator. The Eastern Question will be re-opened. Gladstone will not call upon the country to make war to prevent the dissolution of the Turkish empire. If anything is done by England it will be to hasten the departure of the "official Turk," "bag and baggage," across the Bosphorus, and to prevent his place being forcibly occupied by Russia. Meanwhile vast masses of men who have no personal interest in the objects struggled for will be hurled against each other in deadly conflict; myriads of innocent lives will be sacrificed; the fruits of industry, the trophies of civilization, and the restraints of humanity and religion will alike be disregarded and trampled in blood; and all this, merely to further the purposes and to gratify the ambition of kings and statesmen! The war cloud is steadily gathering, thick and heavily, over Europe. How soon it may burst, is not for us to predict. This, however, is certain, that whenever or wherever it does so it will affect, in an unexampled manner, the interests of the whole human race.—Globe.

MRS. A. Nelson, Brantford, writes: "I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia for eleven years. Always after eating, an intense burning sensation in the stomach, at times very distressing, caused a drooping and languid feeling, which would last for several hours after eating. I was recommended by Mr. Popplewell, Chemist, of our city, to try Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and I am thankful to say that I have not been better for years; that burning sensation and languid feeling has all gone, and food does not lie heavy on my stomach. Others of my family have used it with best results."

Room for the World's Population.

A writer of a recent article contributed to a London paper, is concerned lest there should not be standing room for the world's population much longer. It is useless to anticipate the time when placards will be set up in all civilized countries, "Standing-room only." There are now living on the globe about $1,400,000,000 people, according to the estimates of some of the most accurate statisticians. We have no means of knowing how large the population of the globe was two thousand years ago. Indeed, if we look for statistics we can find no accurate estimate of the population of the globe five hundred years ago, The accurate statistician did not appear until the present century—that is, the scientific man who made it his exclusive business to study the world's data. A few German scholars are devoting their time to questions of population, and to other data of nations. They have, as a result, more exact facts than were ever in possession of scholars before. But with all the data at command, it is not clear that there is a larger population now living on the globe than there has been at any former period. We know this, that where there were formerly dense populations there are now only a few scattered people. There are the ruins of great cities in deserts, Balbec, Palmyra, Karnak, Carthage, Troy and a score of other great cities have disappeared, and their cites are now traced only by fragments of temples and theatres.

In the valley of the Nile, within a radius of fifty miles, with the largest Pyramid as a center, there is one vast cemetery which never attracts the attention of a tourist unless he digs beneath the surface. The dead near the ancient city of Thebes are laid in tiers several feet deep. Millions have been embalmed and laid away there. Africa, according to recent statisticians, contains 200,000,000 inhabitants, or one-seventh of the population of the globe. Yet there is evidence that two thousand years ago the population of Africa was much larger than it is today. There was an old civilization which culminated in such cities as Carthage, and all the valley of the Nile had been much more populous. The desert has probably encroached upon a large area of once fertile land in Africa. But if that continent were all within the influence of civilization it is probable that another hundred million of people could be sustained there. Of course there is a civilization in name which does not conserve human life. But the higher civilization which abhors the slave trade, and which demonstrates with what comfort a dense population can live, as in Belgium, would make room, probably, for a third more population than is now found in Africa.

There is the great empire of China, which according to the judgment of many careful observers, has not a population so great by one hundred millions as it had five or six centuries ago. The population has been reduced by famine, war and pestilence. A few years ago a famine occurred in some of the remote provinces of China, caused by drought. The estimated loss of life as a result of that famine varied from seven millions to ten millions of human beings. The great cities of China appear to be in a state of slow decay. What might be the result of a system of railroads as extensive as those o
