City Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of the city council was held in the council chamber last Monday evening. All the members were present.

A reply from R. F. Green to a letter written by the city clerk re the flume appropriation was read.

The tender of J. B. Lawson was the only one received for building the flume. It was rejected and the matter submitted to the board of works committee. T. B. Folliott made up an estimate of the cost of labor and material required for the work, and the council decided to take the matter in hand, appointing Alex. McMillan foreman of the job.

The services of Wm. Walmsley, as scavenger, were dispensed with, $15 due him ordered to be paid in full settlement of account to date, and the contract cancelled. Geo. Waite was engaged as city scavenger at a salary of $90 a month.

The Health Officer was instructed to see that all backyards were cleaned up as soon as possible.

A motion was passed consolidating the offices of chief of police and fire chief into one to cut down expenses.

A motion was passed to the effect that all saloons where dances of a doubtful chararter are held in future, the said saloon to forfeit its license on the charge being proven.

The above is by no means the exact wording of the motion, but implies practically the same meaning.

A communication was read from R. Jalland asking the council to have D. J. McLachlan's house, projecting out on Cody avenue, moved back, and to have the fire by-law enforced. The requisition was filed and Mr. McLachlan ordered to remove the building.

Police Court Proceedings.

The entire tenderloin district were up before Magistrate Lilly Tuesday on the charge of keeping houses of ill-fame. All pleaded not guilty but one and the rest were remanded until Thursday.

On Wednesday two of the damsels appeared before the magistrate, one sueing the other for an account of $32. The defendant claimed the amount was only $7 and placed a number of scraps of paper before the judge to substantiate her cause. The plaintiff produced her account in a similar manner and the amounts were figured up and compared on the back of an empty cigar box. Judge Lilly on looking over the evidence could find nothing conclusive one way or the other, and finally a compromise was agreed upon, which ended in the defendant being forced to pay the plaintiff $14 and costs.

But this was not the end. The denizens were preparing to leave the court room when the judge casually asked them if they did not sell liquor. They replied they did, and the result was a fine of $50 each or 90 days in jail. This caused a twitter of laughter among the spectators, and the magdalenes left the court lighter in purse but wiser in the technical points of British Columbia law.

The adjourned case of the tenderloins came up on Thursday afternoon before Judge Lilly. The majority having paid fines in the meantime, only five appeared to answer the charge laid against them. One established her innocence and was let clear, one fined $12 and the other three liberated on suspended sentence as to their future behaviour.

Lizzie Brown poured out her defence in the vocabulary that only the dark race are gifted, and her oft repeated expression, "Oh, I'se good," caused a roar of laughter from the spectators. Lizzie's eloquent pleading did not have the desired effect on the wily judge, and was let go on suspended sentence, with a warning of a double fine if she appeared in court on the same charge in the future.

THE LOCAL GRAFT.

Miss M. Radcliffe held a enjoyable birthday party on Monday evening.

Rev. Wood, of Kaslo, preached in the Methodist church here last Sunday.

The building season commenced this week with Thos. Brown remodelling the front of his store.

The I. O. O. F. will hold their annual ball in the Miners' Union hall on Friday evening, April 26th.

W. C. Yawkey, of the Minnesota Silver Co., arrived in town Tuesday on a visit to the Ivanhoe mine.

R. H. Trueman, photographer, left on Tuesday for other points. He will be in Sandon about the middle of May.

S. Campbell, formerly K. & S. Ry. agent here, has been appointed head train dispatcher for the O. R. & N. R.

Rev. Mrs. Roberts and two children, New Denver, were the guests of Mrs. and Rev. A. M. Sanford the past few days.

The C. P. R. depot platform has become the rendezvous of happy mothers and smiling babies these sunny afternoons.

Helmcken's resolution favoring the establishment of lead refinery and a bounty of $5 per ton on lead was passed unanimously in the provincial legislature on Tuesday.

Miss Mary McRae, who has been laid up with typhoid fever for about a month, is now able to be out again. Miss McRae left this morning for Nelson, to visit friends and recuperate.

The Reading Room social held last Thursday evening was a very enjoyable affair. The time was spent with all kinds of games, interspersed with music and songs. About 10 o'clock refreshments were served by the ladies.

The second call for tenders on the flume extension resulted in one application for the work. The council finally decided to carry on the work themselves and appointed Alex. McMillan to oversee its construction. The work was commenced last Tuesday.

Harry Payzant, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever in the hospital for some time, took a change for the worse the early part of the week and his life was dispaired of. It was decided to call in Doctor Power to examine the patient, and at latest reports, though still very low, hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church desire to gratefully acknowledge the kindness of the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly volunteered their services for the concert on the 11th inst. Also to the very large and appreciative audience, who by their presence made the concert a very flattering success, socially and financially.

Wm. Karr received a telegram on Wednesday informing him of the tragic death of his brother Dave, who was shot and instantly killed at Innisfail, N.W.T. No particulars were given, but a report has reached town that an Italian was the perpetrator of the crime. Mr. Karr left on Thursday morning for the scene to be present at the funeral.

J. G. McGuigan, the well-known mining man, who fell from the fourth storey window of the Imperial hotel at Portland, Oregon, last week, succumbed to his injuries on Tuesday morning. His remains were taken to Spokane for burial. He was a member of the Elks, and the funeral arrangements were conducted by that fraternal organization.

The Grand Forks Gazette has issued a very creditable illustrated number of the Kettle river valley city. The specimen is well written and the illustrations first class, as well as the advertising patronage. One thing that strikes us very much is the enterprise of the townsite company of that place, who do all they can to bring its many possibilites before the public and help to encourage every line of business with gratifying results.

D. J. Robertson paid a visit to his store here this week.

The Greenwood Miner came to hand this week enlarged to eight pages.

Mrs. Dr. Gomm arrived home from Victoria on Thursday, after a few weeks visit with her parents.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Waite died on Thursday. It had been ailing for some time with lung trouble.

Albert Karr, clerk in E. R. Atherton's store, accompanied his brother William to Innisfail, N.W.T., where he had been hastily summoned by the sad death of their brother.

For Sale.—A neat five room cottage, with furnishings, good outbuildings in connection, situated near the Star gulch and very convenient to city. Apply on the premises to H. DILLEY.

There are five patients in the hospital at present. Frank Stack and T. Barber, of Three Forks, ailing with la grippe and pneumonia, were admitted this week. Four patients having recovered were discharged during the past few days.

James J. Godfrey received word on Tuesday from Angus McInnis, the mining recorder at New Denver, that he had been appointed deputy recorder for this district. The Sandon section of country covers a large territory of mineral, and this is a good move on the part of the government to have a deputy located here, it will save prospectors and mining men the trouble of going to New Denver to do their recording.

MINES AND MINING.

The Sunset at Jackson Basin shipped 20 tons from Whitewater this week.

The Black Prince and Phoenix group joined the list of Slocan lake shippers this week.

W. W. Warner will probably lease the Miller Creek and work it in conjunction with the Wonderful nearby.

The Ivanhoe concentrator is the scene of bustle and activity just now, the rain of last week furnishing sufficient water to run the machinery full time. When lit up at night and viewed from the K. & S. track it presents a very picturesque and imposing structure.

The Payne mine has ceased shipping for a while and reduced its large force to about 40 men. These are employed in development work in No. 8 tunnel and in thoroughly prospecting the mine pending an amicable settlement of the present smelter difficulty.

W. W. Warner, who leased the Wonderful a short time ago, claims to have struck the ledge this week, the search for which has been carried on for a number of years but all in vain. Mr. Warner believed the ledge had been crossed in the lower tunnel and put men to work there crosscutting. His conjecture seems to have proved correct, as after driving in about 21 feet the ledge was encountered between well defined walls. No ore has been found yet, but from indications it is expected to be laid bare at any moment.

Delegation at Ottawa.

On Monday the British Columbia delegation waited upon the government, all the cabinet being present, and the B. C. M.P.s, Messrs. Galliher, Maxwell, Ralph Smith, Prior, Earl and Senator Templeton, were also there.

The speakers were all mining men—Messrs. Geo. Alexander, David Heap, H. E. Croasdale, G. O. Buchanan, M L. Grimmett and J. R. Robertson.

What the delegation asked for was a a bounty of $5 per ton on refined lead for five years; equalization of the duties on the lead industry; a liberal policy—that is virtually a free trade policy—in respect to railways; portfolios of mines; representation in the cabinet; and the mint.

Hon. Clifford Sifton favors the refinery, and Sir Wilfred Laurier promised to consider the matter.

Mayor Pitts Will Resign.

It is reported on good authority that Mayor Pitts will hand in his resignation at the next meeting of the city council. This is to be regretted, as he made a good conscientious mayor, but under the existing condition of affairs the position is not an enviable one, and no other course was open to him. There are many improvements needed in the city, but under the present laws of taxation the necessary money cannot be raised satisfactory to carry on the work. In view of the present condition of things there are two ways out of the difficulty, either to obtain municipal taxation on real estate and personal property by an Act of parliament or hand the city charter back to the government. No one would like to see the latter course adopted, and the former would be hailed by all with delight, as the city could then force the payment of taxes on an equal basis which at present is an utter impossibility. Then, and not till then, can Sandon take her right place among the cities of this fair province, and become in reality what just now she is only in name—the Silver City of the Slocan.

Hotel Arrivals For the Week.

Denver—F. Patterson, Greenwood; E. B. Morrison, Portland, Ore.; J. Knel, Trail; E. Gallaher, Nelson; J. A. La Clair, New Denver; A. M. Banting, Whitewater; M. Falconi, M. Falconi, J. Sareth, New York.

SPRING WEATHER.

IS YOUR SYSTEM IN SHAPE TO CARRY YOU SAFELY THROUGH?

The Practice of Taking a Tonic in Spring Is Descended from Our Wise Forefathers and Has Good Medical Endorsement—A Few Suggestions Regarding Health.

The practice of taking a tonic during the inclement weather of early spring is one that has been bequeathed us by our forefathers, who lived in days when a sturdy constitution and vigorous health meant even more than they do to-day. The custom has the highest medical endorsement, and the healthiest people are those who follow it. Thousands, not really ill, need a tonic at this season. Close confinement in badly ventilated houses, offices, shops and school rooms during the winter months, makes people feel depressed and "out-of-sorts." Nature must be assisted in throwing off the poison that has accumulated in the system else people fall an easy prey to disease and are subject to many discomforts from boils, eruptions, and similar troubles. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine known to medical science. These pills make rich, red blood and strong nerves. Through their use in springtime, jaded, listless, easily tired men, women and children, are made bright, active and strong. Evidence of the wonderful health restoring virtue of these pills is given by Mrs. J. Langlois, 659 Lafontain street, Montreal, who says:—"Before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was under the care of two doctors, who told me my trouble was developing into consumption. I was very pale and feeble; had no appetite and could hardly stand on my feet. I was very much discouraged and thought death was staring me in the face. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and finally decided to try them. After I had used three boxes my appetite was much better, and I felt a little stronger. I continued the use of the pills for three months when I felt fully cured. When I began using the pills I only weighed 92 pounds, and when I discontinued them my weight had increased to 119 pounds. I also gave the pills to my baby, who was pale and sickly, and they made him a bright, rosy, fleshy child. I think there is no weak or sickly person who will not find benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

It is a waste of money to experiment with other so-called tonics which are all cheap imitations of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Insist upon getting the genuine, and if they are not sold by your dealer send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid, at 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Beauty Requires Sleep.

Nearly all the great beauties of the world have testified to the value of sleep. Under its influence every muscle is relaxed and all care dispelled. The heart beats slower, gaining new vigor for the waking hours. A midday nap, if only for a few minutes' duration, is wonderfully refreshing, and it is generally conceded that sleep during the earlier hours of the night is far more beneficial than that obtained after midnight.—Maude C. Murray-Miller in Woman's Home Companion.

A Distinction.

"You have a good deal of assurance to come to me for charity," said the man of the house, "with your face all bunged up from fighting. You're nothing but a bruiser!"

"No, sir," replied the seedy vagrant, who was not wanting in spirit. "The other feller was the bruiser. I'm the bruisee."—Chicago Tribune.

A CIRCUS QUILT.

The amount of pride, interest and questions one small boy will develop in a circus quilt is immeasurable. Kept for grand occasions, like a convalescence for instance, the mother will have cause to bless it. Some latitude in materials is allowable, but some fabrics wear better and look as well to the last, therefore should have preference. Any quilt liable to be used in infectious diseases should be made of fabrics which can be boiled.

There are various methods of making the circus quilt. A piece of solid color goods, whether silk, woolen, canvas, tapestry stuff, linen or cotton can be used and subdivided into squares or other shapes by stitches in embroiders as desired.

Also patching of odd pieces and colors is desirable. On these squares the animal or clown, etc., can be outlined, appliqued, cross-stitched or solidly embroidered or left defined by embroidering the background only. Around the squares a herring-bone, feather-stitch, or any suitable stitch can be run. The animals should by all means be of natural form and color and a wide variety be shown.

The centre could appropriately shown a circus tent clown.

A border design should show the entire circus parade.

Elaborate productions of this model may be done in silk on silk or woolen foundation and be finely interlined and quilted. In cross-stitch on canvas the animals will look less natural.

In flax embroidery on linen the result will be beautiful and imperishable. A cheap and good one can be made from those ever accumulating scraps of muslin which, dyed with cotton dyes to any shade, offer as wide range of tints as is needed. If previous to washing it may be immersed in sugar of lead water the colors will neither run nor fade.

If you make such a quilt be sure to invest in a copy of some exhaustive work on natural history.

Why It Reconciled Them.

Kind Lady (visiting prison)—Poor men! I suppose it is quite a relief to you, however, that your wives are permitted to see you once a week.

Spokesman—Yes, indeed, lady; it's sort o' reconciles us to jail life.

Kind Lady—Ah, how touching!

Spokesman—Yes; you see, de warden won't let dem come in but de once a week.—Baltimore American.

Lyddite as a Dye.

Very curious is the action of lyddite on trees. This explosive is, it seems, not only damaging, but an excellent dye of a light mustard yellow color.—London Express.

CARROTS.

The vegetable which deserves much more attention on account of its wholesomeness is the much-neglected and often-despised carrot. Food experts, however, now agree that carrots constitute a valuable food, and it is to be hoped that they will more often be seen on the ordinary table. Carrots are obtainable almost the year round, and the mistake made by most persons is that of supposing that as soon as they grow somewhat larger they are no longer fit for any purpose except to flavor soups. The trouble is not with the carrot, but with the cooking of it, and that is common to cooking of almost all vegetables grown under the ground, they are not cooked enough. Old carrots, moreover, require to be boiled in two waters, keeping plenty of it on them all the time. Then when carefully drained, they may be chopped into smaller pieces and well seasoned with butter, salt and pepper, or the regulation white sauce may be added to them with good effect.

A savory and appetizing flavor may be imparted to carrots by first frying them in butter until they are slightly brown, and then adding some sugar and cooking a little longer. Enough water to boil them is then poured over them and they are then cooked until tender.

If, however, the family taste is too fastidious for stewed carrots, carrot croquettes may be made after a cooking-school recipe. A dozen small croquettes can be made from four large carrots. They should be boiled until tender, drained and rubbed through a sieve. Add one cupful of well-cooked thick white sauce, using for it two heaping teaspoonfuls of flour, mix, season highly, and when cold and firm, mould and finish as for other croquettes.

When small, young carrots are obtainable, they are delicious cooked with green peas, either fresh or canned. The carrot should be boiled, scraped and cut into thin circles and then into strips. They should then be mixed with the boiled or heated peas with a cupful of well-seasoned white sauce added to the whole.

When the flavor of carrots is really agreeable to the family, puree of carrots will find a welcome place among the cream soups which now form part of the daily menu in many households.

AHEAD OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Thomas Fleming Says New Zealand Is Moving Too Fast.

New Zealand is looked upon as the most progressive country in the world as regards experimental government. Labor is protected there by hard and fast laws, while all differences between employer and employe are settled by arbitration. Even women can vote at electoral campaigns as well as all men who have reached the age of 21. Here also is an old age pension, while Government ownership is now ancient history, so far as the little colony is concerned.

"Progress may be all very well," declared Mr. Thomas Fleming, an extensive miller and grain merchant at Invercargill, Gore and Winton, N. Z., who is spending a few weeks in this country, "but I think the Government is doing too much. The labor legislation savours too much of class, and I doubt that the Arbitration and Conciliation Boards are doing much good."

HARD ON THE FARMERS.

The labour laws, explained Mr. Fleming, are very hard upon the farmer. They set the number of hours his hands are to work, fix the scale of wages to be paid by him, restrict him regarding the employment of boys, etc. "Why, it would be just as fair and equitable to legislate what a farmer is to receive for his produce."

All shops in New Zealand must close at six o'clock and at one o'clock at least one day during the week. It is contrary to law for a storekeeper to sell even a loaf of bread after the hours of closing.

"Our Government runs nearly all the railways. I believe in Government ownership of railways, but I don't think the railway should be under the governing power of the day. They should be controlled by a non-political board of three expert commissioners, as was formerly done." Besides operating the telegraph and telephones, the Government also runs a life

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

This department competes successfully against the various insurance companies.

Woman suffrage, says, Mr. Fleming, makes very little difference in the elections.

This experimental Government, he declares, is frightening away capital. "I am inclined to think that we are drifting on to socialism. We are going too fast for the good of the country."

Confederation with Australia is not in sight yet, though a commission has been appointed by the N. Z. Government to investigate the advantages of such a union.

The Queen and Jenny Lind.

There is a pretty story told of Queen Victoria and Jenny Lind which shows how the modesty of two women, the queen of England and the queen of song, caused a momentary awkwardness which the gentle tact of the singer overcame.

It was on a night when Jenny Lind was to sing at Her Majesty's Opera House that the queen made her first public appearance after the memorable Chartist day.

For the great artist, too, this was a first appearance, for it was the beginning of her season at a place where the year before she had won unparalleled fame. It happened that the queen entered the royal box at the same moment that the prima donna stepped upon the stage. Instantly a tumult of acclamation burst forth.

Jenny Lind modestly retired to the back of the stage, waiting till the demonstration of loyalty to the sovereign should subside. The queen, refusing to appropriate to herself that which she imagined to be intended for the artist, made no acknowledgment.

At length, when the situation became embarrassing, Jenny Lind, with ready tact, ran forward to the footlights and sang "God Save the Queen," which was caught up at the end of the solo by the orchestra, chorus and audience. The queen then came to the front of her box and bowed, and the opera was resumed.

A Common Form of Indigestion

Which cannot be cured by ordinary stomach medicines—The kidneys, liver and bowels become deranged—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

By far the most important part of digestion takes place in the intestines, as has been repeatedly shown in cases where the stomach has been removed and the patient has lived and digested food without the aid of the stomach.

It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver and the kidneys.

There is fullness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in the back and shoulders, flatulency and constipation, frequently alternating with diarrhoea.

In cases of intestinal indigestion the liver and kidneys usually become clogged and sluggish in action, and poisonous impurities are left in the blood, which should be removed by these filtering organs.

Mr. Joseph Blackwell, Holmesville, Ont., says; "I derived more benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills than from any other medicine I ever took, and can highly recommend them for stomach troubles. I was in a terrible state and could hardly work at my trade. I tried most every kind of medicine and doctors, until I was tired of doctoring, and before I used one box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I could see that they were helping me, and after taking a box and a half, found that I was cured."

There has yet to be a remedy discovered that is so prompt and thorough in curing intestinal indigestion as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And as this is the most common and severe form of indigestion, it can well be claimed that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most successful treatment extant for indigestion and dyspepsia.

It is not unusual for persons who have long been suffering from chronic indigestion, biliousness and constipation to be thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which have by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. You may be skeptical, as others have been before you, but a single trial of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will convince you of their unusual medicinal value. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Shaves of a Lifetime.

Beard appears to grow at the same rate and to follow the same rules of personal conduct as the hair of the head. So if a man began shaving when he was 16 and lives to be 70 years old he will have cut more than a little bit off the top. If he could keep in position all he has thrown away, a head of hair 35 feet long and a beard 27 feet long, all in one bunch, would enable him to travel with a circus summers and sit in a store window to advertise a hair restorer in the winter.

FREIGHT RATES.

We fully agree with the most of what Mr. Drewry says in a communication in another column of this paper. There is no question but that the C. P. R. has been milking the people, the country over, from its inception just as any other railway company would have done had they the country all to themselves. The policy of the C. P. R. is, of course, to discourage the erection of smelters and refineries, as it gives the road a long haul on the bulk (ore) instead of the smelter body bullion; but this should in no way delay the erection of refineries in Canada. The country in not without competing roads on footing to extend, if business is waiting for them, and the idea is for the people to create business. Once a refinery is under way mining will take new life, and if C.P.R. rates then stand in the way of profitable shipping, it will be for the people to see they get fair play, either through competing roads or government intervention with present ones.

While dealing with this subject it may not be unprofitable to refer to the probability Mr. Hyam who appears to have broken away from the American Smelter Trust, erecting an independent smelter somewhere on the Crow's Nest Southern (Hill's road) extended, which would break up the C. P. R. milking most effectually. If the people found that a healthy competition, there should be no difficulty in extending it to other parts of the country.

In any event the people now know there is no possibility of the country's making progress under existing conditions. If it is C. P. R. rates that prevent the American smelters from handling our ores. they are likely to remain so until the people make a move. If, with a Canadian refinery under way, C. P. R. rates still strangled success by demanding too much for the transport of bullion, the people or the government would only have to try another expedient that would be more effective.

When the C. P. R. was first built through Manitoba, the farmers had to pay about 28 cents on wheat, which gave the C. P. R. all that was in the business. Step after step was taken by the farmers in their own protection until now they have a 10 cent rate, which they consider reasonable. By looking closely after their own interests the people of the Kootenay can secure the same concessions in ore or bullion transport, and their duty is to keep at it until mining is made steady and profitable, and then all other kinds of business will prosper accordingly.

John Houston was in Nelson for the Easter recess of the Provincial Legislature and almost every issue of the Tribune during that time contained references one way or another to spellbinders. John seems to have been entirely under their influnce while in the House, and no doubt thought it would ease his mind a little to sail into them when a good distance away. He made himself the laughing stock of the legislature during the debate on the charter for Hill's railway to the Crow's Nest coal fields, and was the only member who opposed it. John had his desk covered with notes bristling with points for a brilliant speech—the speech of his life it is said, and was waiting for one Smith, who was speaking in favor of the measure, to conclude, when he would thunder it out. Smith having delivered his speech resumed his seat, and all eyes were rivetted on the member for Nelson, but that individual made no attempt to rise to the astonishment of the assembly—he was spellbound. After waiting some time the motion was read and carried. In the midst of the applause which greeted it passage John come to, with a hazy recollection of what was going on, and was disgusted to find his carefully compiled speech was too late to be delivered. In his rage he glanced fiercely around him, blurted out "Pretty sharp practice, that," grabbed his hat and walked out of the House, amid a roar of laughter from the whole assembly. This accounts for the spellbinder phrases in the Tribune lately.

For some time past the Chinaman up the gulch had a column advertisement in his paper to fill up space about Noah being the first advertiser, he advertised the flood, thinking the people would believe him to be such a smart fellow to conceive such an orginal idea. That it was a good one we freely admit, but no credit is due the Paysneak scribbler in the matter. He has bad symptoms of kleptomania in the newspaper line, clipping out spicey articles, forgetting to credit them, and passing them off as his own. In this case he stole it from the pages of the specimen book of Barnhardt Bros. & Spindler, type founders, Chicago. The few who read his sheet and see his insulting references to religion and matrimony, know too well he does not believe in God, and much less that He commissioned Noah to advertise the flood. Now, everybody knows the whole world at that time said Noah was a fool, and the residents of Sandon today say McAdams is too, only they express it in much stronger terms, but the fact remains that Noah told the truth, which the gulchite could not do if he tried until the old patriarch and another flood came.

RHEUMATISM

As experience stands, the most promising way to treat an old settled rheumatism is: to set up the general health.

Whatever makes health, in other respects, is good for rheumatism.

We don't say it will cure it. Sometimes it does; sometimes it don't.

Your chance is better with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil than with anything else now known.

By and by there will be a sure cure; it will make a big noise in the world when it comes

We'll send you a little to try if you like.

The Bridal Feast

Is not infrequently followed by a long, lenten period of enforced fasting and fleshly mortification. The cheek grows hollow, the eyes are dull and deep ringed, and the step is slow and languid. There is an "all dragged-out feeling," which makes life an utter burden. The great functional changes which follow marriage are not usually anticipated, or the wifely suffering might be avoided.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best friend of weak and sickly women. It cures the womanly diseases that rob the eye of brightness and the step of lightness. It tones up the system and establishes the womanly organism on a basis of sound health.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotics. Accept no substitute. There is no other medicine "just as good" for weak and sickly women.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Goss, Wayne Co., Ky. "Could not do my work part of the time. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

Young married women will find a lasting friend in Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. It contains 1008 pages and is sent free (in paper cover), on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Cloth binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dardanelles Meeting at Victoria.

Adjourned annual meeting of the shareholders of the Dardanelles Mining & Milling Co., Limited, Non-Personal Liability, held in Victoria, B. C., on the 25th day of March.

The following directors were appointed: F. Peters, Sir C. H. Tupper, Col. W. S. Ray, J. J. Smallcross, J. T. L. Meyer, Capt. C. E. Clark, W. J. Trethway.

The following resolution was moved by the Hon. Edgar Dewdney, and seconded by Mr. J. T. L. Meyer:

Resolved, that it is advisable and the directors are hereby authorized to sell and transfer to a new company, to be formed and called the Dardanelles & Okanagan Mining Co., Limited, the whole of the mineral claims, crown granted and otherwise, and all the other assets of this company, upon the following terms:

(a.) The new company to become liable for and to pay all the debts of this company.

(b.) Every shareholder in this company shall be entitled to receive one share in the new company for every share held by such shareholder in this company, provided he complies with the requirements hereinafter stated.

(c.) The capital of the new company shall be $1,500,000, divided into 1,500,000 shares of ten cents each.

(d.) The shares in the new company taken up by shareholders shall be considered as paid up to the extent of five cents on each share, and shall be assessable for the balance.

(e.) Shareholders in this company desiring to take shares in the new company shall so inform the secretary, in writing, by registered letter, stating the number of shares such shareholder intends to take, and at the same time remitting the sum of one cent for each share subscribed for, such notification to be given, and money to be paid on or before the 15th day of May next.

(f.) The balance of the uncalled amount of these shares shall be called up, if necessary, at the discretion of the directors of the new company, but no call to be for more than one cent a share, and calls to be made at intervals of not less than two months.

(g.) The balance of the shares in the new company not taken up by the shareholders of this company shall be placed in the treasury of the new company, and may, from time to time, be disposed of in such a manner and at such prices as the directors of the new company shall deem advisable.

Before the actual formation of the new company a provisional transfer may be made to trustees who shall be bound to carry out this resolution; the trustees shall be selected by the directors of this company. Carried unanimously.

Before this resolution was passed, it was explained to the shareholders' meeting by the chairman that the effect of the resolution would be that such shareholders who did not take stock in the new company would lose all interest in the assets now owned by the Dardanelles Mining & Milling Co., and that by taking shares in the the new company, they would retain an interest in its assets.

The Smelter Situation.

To the Editor,—The southeastern portion of British Columbia depends for advancement of its mineral wealth, therefore, anything which tends to check mining affects adversely all other business Excessive freight rates and smelting charges are two of the principal factors now restraining mining development.

An examination of the situation without prejudice must tend to convince anyone of ordinary business acumen that the Canadian Pacific railway is responsible for the existing condition commonly known as "the smelter trouble."

The C. P. R. is the chief smelter owner in southeast British Columbia, and ores can at present reach Canadian smelters only over its lines. The building of these railways was largely assisted by grants of money and land, so that the C. P. R. has grown strong and by pressure forced the sale to it of the Trail smelter.

The next step in the process of milking the country has had some light thrown upon it by the publication and admission of the statement that $6 per ton was charged by the C. P. R. for freight, etc., on ore from Moyie to Creston, a distance of forty-seven miles, while but $3 per ton was charged by the Great Northern from Creston to Great Falls, a distance of five hundred and thirty-two miles.

May this not give rise to the belief that the C. P. R. has demanded, and, has until lately, obtained, an unearned profit on lead ores going to United States smelters from British Columbia—looking on this country as a preserve upon which no encroachment could be permitted except for value received? And is not this the reason why United States smelters are not buying British Columbia lead ores?

Again, the C. P. R. has actively opposed the building of spurs from United States railway lines into British Columbia. But it is now published that opposition to the construction of a spur from the Great Northern railway to Fernie has been withdrawn in consideration of of the relinquishment by the Crow's Nest Coal company of the condition that the coal lands granted as a subsidy to the Crow's Nest railway, (C. P. R.) should not be opened up for a number of years.

Does not this on the face of it point to a deal whereby the United States smelting trust, through the Great Northern railway company, agrees that in consideration of free access to the coal and coke at Fernie, British Columbia shall be left as a "preserve" for the C. P. R., it being in a position to supply its own coke to its own smelters to which the ore would be hauled over its own railways? Would not this create an ideal condition of affairs—for the C. P. R.?

If any inclination to give fair freight and treatment rates on ores had been evinced, the people might well join the C. P. R. in still further fortifying itself against outside attack. But on the contrary, immediately following the cessation of purchase of British Columbia ores by the United States smelters, the smelting charges in British Columbia were raised about two dollars per ton.

That lead smelting is a very profitable business is evidenced by the latest report of the Hall mines, Ltd., which shows its small lead stack has for several months paid from profits nearly all the working expenses of the Silver King mine. The rates charged by the Hall mines are the same as those charged by the C. P. R. at the Trail smelter, and it is not to be supposed that the ore is hauled to the Hall Mines smelter free of charge. The C. P. R. therefore reaps a double profit; and when its smelting capacity is enlarged sufficiently, may at its leisure by a simple juggling with figures as to the smelting and freight proportions of charges, prevent the Hall mines or any other smelter than its own doing business.

This exposes the weakness of the position of the whole lead mining industry of southeast British Columbia.

Under existing conditions, does it not appear folly on the part of the people to propose taxing themselves in order to pay a bonus on lead refining without guarantee of a substantial reduction in freight and treatment charges?

If this bonus were granted, would it not go into the C. P. R. treasury either as bonus on lead refined or freight for the long haul of the product to market?

A solution of the treatment of ores at reasonable cost might be arrived at by the fixing of a fair mileage rate for all ores, cokes, fluxes, and bullion. This being done, any person or company having the necessary capital might with safety establish a smelter in a locality where ore, coke, and fluxes could be economically assembled. Since the ores form the greater part of the weight smelted, the smelters would naturally be in their neighborhood in order to save freight charges on the valueless constituents (about 50 per cent. or more) of the ores which pass off in slag. This saving would permit the opening up of low grade properties of no value under present conditions, employing large numbers of men contributing effectually to the advancement of this richly endowed country.

If this fixed mileage rate was guaranteed, the C. P. R. might then refine at a fair profit the lead bullion from various smelters and thus secure the profit of the haul on the product of the ores, without forcing payment of heavy freight charges on waste.

Therefore, before asking for a bonus on refined lead, does it not seem better policy to assist lead mining by demanding that no corporation shall have the power of enforcing payment of freight on thousands of tons of waste matter as is now done each year through uncontrolled freight charging power?

GIRL COAL-HEAVERS.

Novel Occupation of Japanese Girls, Who Help Load Coal Vessels.

Young girls in Japan are employed to perform a task which cannot be done in the same time and with the same ease by any other body of work-folk in the world. They are engaged at the different ports in loading the large steamers with coal. The coal barges are swung alongside the vessel from stem to stern of which are hung a series of platforms, the broadest nearest the base and diminishing as they rise. On each of these platforms a girl stands. Men on the barges fill baskets containing about two buckets of coal each, and pass them to the girl standing on the lowest platform. She passes them to the girl above her, and a continuous and unbroken line of baskets pass into the vessel from ten in the morning until four in the afternoon. The girls will handle from sixty to seventy baskets of coal per minute, and over one thousand tons of coal a day. This really arduous toil they perform as if it were mere play, for they keep up a running fire of jokes, and their laughter is continuous. They often break into a song, the notes of which are clear, melodious and stimulating.

CURED.

No, said the man in the mackintosh, my wife doesn't give away any of my old clothes or sell them to the ragman any more. I cured that habit effectually once.

How was that? they asked him.

When I found she had disposed of a coat I hadn't worn for several weeks I told her there was a letter in it she had given me to mail the last time I had it on. And it was no lie, either, he added, with deep satisfaction

THY FACE.

Thy face is always near to me,
  Though thou art far away;
It is a beacon bright and fair
  To cheer me on my way.
It is a star to guide me through
  This busy world of pain,
A beacon bright to rest with me
  Until we meet again.

The vision bringeth me fond hopes
  Of better days in store;
It whispers of a time to come
  When we shall part no more.
Then rest with me, oh, vision bright!
  My only hope thou art;
My only joy, my only grief,
  Is when we are apart.

Thy face, ah, me, 'tis always near;

WOMEN IN OLD EGYPT.

They Shared With the Men All Their Pastimes and Pleasures.

In ancient Egypt monogamy was practiced, although it was not enjoined by law. There is no evidence of the existence of a marriage ceremony, but the marriage contract secured to the wife certain rights, one of which was that of complete control over her husband, who promised to yield her implicit obedience! Nearness of relationship was no barrier to wedlock, the union of brother and sister being quite common.

Women, both married and unmarried, participated with the men in all the pleasures of social intercourse. They took part in the public festivals, shared in banquets, drove out in their chariots and made pleasure excursions on the Nile. At banquets the guests were entertained chiefly with music and dancing. Singing was also an esteemed accomplishment, and the more solid part of their education must have been attended to, as women often held important offices in the priesthood. They presided at births and officiated as mourners at deaths and burials.

Ladies of rank occupied their spare moments in embroidery and in the cultivation of flowers, of which they were passionately fond and which were lavishly used on all festive occasions. Women of the humbler classes were employed in spinning and in the rural districts in tending cattle and sheep and in carrying water, the heavier employments being left to the men.

This halcyon state of affairs lasted only during the days of Egypt's greatness. During the period of her decline her daughters were fearfully downtrodden and degraded. The hardest manual labor was assigned to them, and they suffered cruel punishments for the crimes of their fathers, husbands or brothers, as the case might be. Sometimes they were publicly beaten with sticks, at others thrown into dungeons or sent to work at the mines, where the miseries they endured were so great that, as the old historian tells us, they longed for death as far preferable to life.

Baked Bananas.

For breakfast take as many bananas as are required, cut a small piece of the peel from each end and cut two or three gashes in the peel. Put them in a baking pan and bake them from 15 to 20 minutes in a quick oven. Lay them on a hot platter. In eating them baked in the peels, split them lengthwise and take the pulp out as you would that of a baked potato, using cream and sugar on them.

Shetland Women.

There is a carrier in Shetland that does almost the work of the Shetland pony. That is the Shetland woman. All the manure for the crofts, comprising thousands of tons of gathered seaweed, the millions of fish in the operations of landing and curing and a large portion of the peat, is carried, not on ponies' backs, but on the backs of women in the universal "kashie" of the islands.

This is a creel made of twisted and woven straw like the "maysies." It is also written "cassie." Its pronunciation is best indicated in the spelling "kyshire," or "kishie." Shetland women step off nimbly with from 70 to 80 pounds weight in their "kashies," but knit, knit, knit forever and forever. Peat is the principal burden, for there is no wood fuel in Shetland.

Unprofitable.

The Conductor's Ready Answer.

The Metropolitan Street Railway company has in its employ a philosopher in the person of a Broadway conductor. It was late in the evening, and his car on its up town trip had reached the vicinity of the city hall. As it passed one of the taller office buildings a stout woman, clutching him by the arm, exclaimed:

"Oh, conductor, how many stories high is that building?"

"'Leven," laconically replied the conductor, without so much as an upward glance. The woman sank back with a sigh of satisfaction.

Just then a small man with a large traveling bag rushed in almost out of breath.

"I say, conductor," he gasped, "what time can I get to the Grand Central depot?"

"'Leven," was the quiet reply.

"That's good," commented the small man, evidently relieved.

At this juncture another man climbed aboard that wanted to know about what time the car would reach the Gilsey House.

"'Leven," again replied the conductor, with a weary look.

When questioned as to the uniformity of his answers, he replied:

"Yes. You see, if you hesitate about answering 'em, they git worried, but if you have an answer ready they're satisfied. Now, about this time of night, I always say '11 'Leven.' It's a good, handy number, easy to say. Other times I use other numbers. I allus have a lot of stock answers on hand. It saves time and trouble.

Pranks of Printers.

A compositor, chronicling the career of a mad dog, says:

"We are grieved to say that the rabid animal, before it could be shot, severely bit Mr. Sampson and several other dogs."

An advertisement announces:

"For sale, a splendid young mare—would suit nervous old lady or gentleman with long black tail."

The editor of a prominent biweekly observes:

"The essay we publish in this number was written by a well known writer—now for many years in his grave for his own amusement."

A leading daily, recording the wrecking of a bark, says:

"The only passengers were W. J. Smith, who owned three-fourths of the ship and the captain's lovely daughter."

Hard Question.

"The world is round, and it goes round, Uncle Rastus," said the small grandson of the old colored man's former owner. "Don't you understand about it?"

"No, honey, I cyan't say I does," admitted Uncle Rastus, surveying the well varnished apple with which his little guest had illustrated his argument. "W'at holds de world up? Dat's w'at I'd like to know, chile."

"Why, it goes round the sun, Uncle Rastus," said the boy eagerly, "and the sun holds it up by the law of attraction."

"Um! Honey, I reckon you ain' gone quite far 'nough in yo' reasonin yet," said the old man, with a smile of patronizing good nature. "In dat case, w'at would keep de world up when de sun's done gone down? Answer me dat, chile."

His Company.

"They say 'a man is known by the company he keeps.' Do you think that is always true?"

"Well," replied the man who had once backed a theatrical enterprise, "I know one man who was known as a good thing by the company he kept."

SPITTING SHOULD STOP.

The Most Prolific Means of Propagating Disease.

One of the worst and most uncleanly habits indulged in by some people is spitting. Many people spit anywhere, everywhere and always. If this habit were only filthy it would not be so objectionable, but it is one of the most prolific means of propagating disease in every community. Spitting in public places should stop. The National Sanitarium Association in its campaign to check the spread of consumption, tuberculosis, claims that expectoration on the sidewalks for ladies' dresses to wipe up and carry into their homes or to dry into dust and float into the air; expectoration in public halls, conveyances, places of amusement, on floors, carpets and in dark corners of hotels and private dwellings, must cease if we ever hope to check this terrible disease which is responsible for so many deaths and so much suffering. Ladies should wear shorter skirts, and those who must expectorate should use paper handkerchiefs, which should be burned after using. There are three important facts about tuberculosis which should be kept in mind:—

1. It is a communicable disease and is distinctly preventable.

2. It is acquired by the direct transmission of the tubercle bacilli from the sick to the well, usually by means of dried and pulverized sputum floating as dust in the air; and

3. It can be largely prevented by simple and easily applied measures of cleanliness and disinfection.

Why Roads Are Crooked In China.

The Chinese road is private property, a strip taken from somebody's land. This is done much against the will of the owner, since he not only loses the use of it, but also still has to pay taxes on it.

One consequence is that it is wide enough for only one vehicle, and carts can pass one another only by trespassing on the cultivated land. To prevent this the farmers dig deep ditches by the roadside. As the surface wears away and the dust blows off it gradually grows lower, and after awhile it becomes a drain for the surrounding fields. A current forms in the rainy season, which still further hollows it out, and thus has arisen the proverb that a road a thousand years old becomes a river.

Those whose lands are used for roads naturally prefer to have the roads run along the edge of their farms instead of cutting across them, and this accounts for the fact that Chinese roads are often so crooked that one may have to go a considerable distance to reach a place that is in reality but a few miles away. This always interests the stranger.

How the Car Got There.

The other day at Twenty-sixth street an inspector "hopped" on the front platform of a Madison avenue electric car bound down town. He said to the motorman:

"Where the dickens is this car goin?"

"Why, to the Brooklyn bridge, of course."

"Get off and look at yer signs."

The motorman did so and discovered that the sign on the front hood of the car read, "One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street," the sign on the right side of the roof read, "Second avenue," and the sign on the rear hood, "Astor place." The conductor and motorman between them having adjusted the signs, the inspector permitted the car to proceed.

STRONG TOWNSHIP SENSATION.

The Restoration to Health of Wm. Doeg Who Had Not Left His Room in Years Rheumatism of the Worst Kind Completely Cured.

(Sundridge Echo.)

The Echo has taken the trouble to investigate the circumstances and can vouch for the truth of the following interesting story in its every particular.

Almost everyone in this neighborhood knows Mr. Wm. Doeg. In 1878 Mr. Doeg moved from the Township of Osprey, in Grey County, to lot 19 in the thirteenth concession of Strong Township. He has since made many friends, and all who know him speak of him in the highest terms.

Some time after he came to this part he was stricken with rheumatism. It gradually grew worse and worse till for the last four years he has been a confirmed invalid, and as a consequence has not been seen in town at all. He has sat night and day in his chair, unable to move or walk a step for months. The pain never left him. It commenced in his back, and the torture he had to bear was terrible. From his back it would sometimes move to other parts of his body. His knees were fearfully painful at times. The truth is, that for four long years the poor man did not have a single moment's respite from the racking of this dreadful disease.

Mr. Doeg says: "It makes me shudder to look back upon that awful four years, even the thought of it is dreadful. How I ever lived through it I do not know, but I thank God that he has at last restored me to health and strength with nothing of the rheumatism left but the memory of it.

Mr. Doeg is a changed man. Hale and hearty he now enjoys every moment of his new life to the full.

How did the change come about?

This is the question which Dr. Doeg is most delighted to answer. He had tried the treatment of several physicians and had used almost every medicine known as a cure for rheumatism, but he got no relief.

"I gave them all a fair chance, too," said Mr. Doeg, to The Echo, "but nothing seemed able to give me even temporary relief. I grew despondent and despaired of ever leaving that dreadful pain behind me.

"One day I read in a newspaper the testimonials of some who said they had been cured of rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I hand't much faith in anything by this time, but I sent for one box of the pills and commenced. I noticed an improvement and kept on, and look at me now."

Mr. Doeg certainly doesn't look like an invalid now, and it is hard for one who had not seen him in his sick room to believe that six months ago he couldn't walk.

"Have you any objections to making and signing a written statement of the whole thing for publication in The Echo?" was asked Mr. Doeg.

None whatever, I will be glad to do so, for I want every person suffering as I was with rheumatism to know that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them, and I do hope that my statement will be read by all such unfortunates.

This is Mr. Doeg's written statement:—

For four years I suffered excruciating torture, during which time I was scarcely an hour free from pain. The trouble commenced in my back, where it often remained stationary for months, and so intense was the pain that I could not lie down or take rest, but had to sit night and day in a chair. The pain would then remove to other parts of my body, and when in my knees I was unable to walk, and confined constantly to my room. I was treated for rheumatism by several doctors and also tried many medicines without receiving any benefit. Almost in despair I feared I would never again experience the pleasure of being free from pain.

Last spring my attention was directed to some remarkable cures of rheumatism effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, recorded in the public prints. I procured a box, and soon found that they were doing me good, so I kept on, till now I can say I am a new man entirely free from pain, and have continued so for over six months, being able to attend to my daily duties on the farm and feel strong and able for work.

I verily believe this great change has been effected by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I think it my duty to make this statement public for the benefit of anyone afflicted as I was. Wm. Doeg, Sundridge.

This is a plain unvarnished statement of fact, as we found it, and every reader of The Echo, especially those who know how bad Mr. Doeg was, will agree that it is a case without parallel in the history of the community.

A Bunch of Gloom Chasers From the Yonkers Jester.

Mrs. Yeast—Did you say your husband is fond of fish?

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Yes. He likes to lie about 'em.

Bacon—I'd like to know what that man ever did for his town?

Egbert—Why, I heard he refused to buy his boy a drum once.

"No amount of vaccination," remarked the observer of events and things, "will prevent a man from getting a bad dose of his wife's first biscuits."

Church—Isn't it lonesome up there where you're living now?

Gotham—Lonesome? Well, I guess not! There's not a day passes that there are not a dozen bill collectors up there!

Bill (fishing in a leaky boat)—I say, old man, there must be a hole in the bottom of his boat.

Jill (rolling up his trousers)—Then why doesn't this water run out?

Yeast—I just saw your wife in the other room.

Crimsonbeak—Talking?

"Yes. I heard her say as I passed that she had arrived at a conclusion."

"Well, she hasn't done anything of the sort. She's talking yet."

She—I think that doctor is just as mean as he can be!

He—What's he done?

"Vaccinated me on the right arm, and I can't use it at all."

"It might be worse."

"I can't see how."

"He might have vaccinated you on the tongue."

It is believed that the true story of George Washington and the chopped down cherry tree is as follows:

Father—Did you chop down that cherry tree, George?

George—Yes, father, it was I.

"And for why, my son?"

"Didn't I hear you say only last week that the tree was only an expense to you, sir?"

"You may have, my hopeful."

"Well, father, I was only trying to cut down your expenses."—Yonkers Statesman.

WOMEN IN OLD EGYPT.

They Shared With the Men All Their Pastimes and Pleasures.

In ancient Egypt monogamy was practiced, although it was not enjoined by law. There is no evidence of the existence of a marriage ceremony, but the marriage contract secured to the wife certain rights, one of which was that of complete control over her husband, who promised to yield her implicit obedience! Nearness of relationship was no barrier to wedlock, the union of brother and sister being quite common.

Women, both married and unmarried, participated with the men in all the pleasures of social intercourse. They took part in the public festivals, shared in banquets, drove out in their chariots and made pleasure excursions on the Nile. At banquets the guests were entertained chiefly with music and dancing. Singing was also an esteemed accomplishment, and the more solid part of their education must have been attended to, as women often held important offices in the priesthood. They presided at births and officiated as mourners at deaths and burials.

Ladies of rank occupied their spare moments in embroidery and in the cultivation of flowers, of which they were passionately fond and which were lavishly used on all festive occasions. Women of the humbler classes were employed in spinning and in the rural districts in tending cattle and sheep and in carrying water, the heavier employments being left to the men.

This halcyon state of affairs lasted only during the days of Egypt's greatness. During the period of her decline her daughters were fearfully downtrodden and degraded. The hardest manual labor was assigned to them, and they suffered cruel punishments for the crimes of their fathers, husbands or brothers, as the case might be. Sometimes they were publicly beaten with sticks, at others thrown into dungeons or sent to work at the mines, where the miseries they endured were so great that, as the old historian tells us, they longed for death as far preferable to life.

A Kentucky Thought.

"It is very impressive," said the sentimental young person, "to look out on the ocean, to think of that immense body of water which forms so large a proportion of this earthly sphere."

"Yes," answered Colonel Stillwell of Kentucky, "and what most impresses me, sir, is the wisdom of nature in putting salt into it so that it couldn't be mistaken for a beverage."

Lyddite as a Dye.

Very curious is the action of lyddite on trees. This explosive is, it seems, not only damaging, but an excellent dye of a light mustard yellow color.—London Express.

Fond Recollections.

"Did you enjoy the story of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp when you were a child?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Blykins. "I often look back on those happy days of innocence when I could read yarns of wonderful mechanical inventions like that without being tempted to put up my good money to help form a stock company."—Washington Star.

A Distinction.

"You have a good deal of assurance to come to me for charity," said the man of the house, "with your face all bunged up from fighting. You're nothing but a bruiser!"

"No, sir," replied the seedy vagrant, who was not wanting in spirit. "The other feller was the bruiser. I'm the bruisee."—Chicago Tribune.

THE FAD OF ORDERING DRUGS.

A Freak of Women That Makes a Morgue Necessary In a Drug Store.

When the woman in black handed two prescriptions to the drug clerk, she said: "I'll call for the medicine some time this evening. Give me a check, please."

Before handing her the identification check the clerk figured for a moment. "One dollar and a quarter," he said. "It is customary to get a deposit on a call order that amounts to more than 50 cents."

The woman flushed indignantly. "Well," she said, "to be frank with you, I don't feel like paying it. I've been buying medicine and things at drug stores for a good many years, and this is the first time I have been asked to put up a deposit. It is such an absurd request. You don't suppose for a minute that I'm going around getting prescriptions filled just for the fun of the thing, do you?"

The clerk sighed meekly. "Well," he said, "maybe you're not, but there are plenty of women who do. I hate to ask for a deposit. I'd almost as lief be cheated out of the money. I told the proprietor so. 'It looks small,' said I. 'Can't help it,' said he. 'We can't afford to mix three or four bottles of expensive medicines every day for women who make a fad of ordering drugs compounded that they never intend to call for.' And that's just what a lot of you women folks do," added the clerk, with a defiant attempt at self vindication. "Just look at this." Here he opened the door of a large cupboard at the rear of the store and pointed to the many rows of labeled bottles therein. "This is what we call the morgue," he said. "Every drug store has one. It is filled with the aftermath of the medicine fad. There must be upward of 300 bottles in that cupboard which are worth on an average 50 cents each. Every one of them has been ordered by women, the majority of whom probably never had any intention of calling for the concoction. Some of this medicine has been here for months. It probably never will be called for, but we shall keep it for an indefinite period anyway. Drugs once mixed are a dead loss to us, and we might as well hold them and thus take chances on final redemption as to throw them away."

"But what makes people order medicine that they never intend to use?" asked the woman.

The clerk sighed. "The Lord knows," he said. "What makes people run to any senseless fad? This is all of a piece, I suppose, with the mania that induces people to consult a doctor when there is nothing the matter with them, only it is less expensive. Doctors' bills generally have to be paid, whereas medicine can be compounded free of charge unless a deposit is demanded from all except regular patrons. Not all these bottles you see here were filled from new prescriptions by any means. Many of them were made up from copies of old prescriptions that were filled originally at other stores in good faith, and I doubt not that many of the compounds held in storage here could be duplicated in the morgue of many another drug store that has not yet adopted the deposit system."

The woman in black laid down her $1.25 meekly. "I suppose I can't blame you for being cautious," she said.

Prospectors Starting Out.

A number of prospectors and miners have left for the hills in other sections of the country for the past two or three weeks. A great many are going to the Lardeau to work claims they have there. The Kettle river seems to be one of the principal points this season for prospecting, and in all other sections it is possible to find Sandon prospectors, either looking for mineral or doing assessment work on their claims. Every week there are men leaving for Klondike and Cape Nome. In several parts of the country the snow has remained on the hills longer than any year previous, and as a result it will keep back the prospecting until the snow goes, which will be all of a month yet. Last fall some rich finds of gold were brought in from the Kettle river and Fort Steele districts in last year's prospecting and they will be worked this spring with small staffs of men.
