A GRAIN SYNDICATE.

A Million Farmers Will Form a Syndicate to Control the Price of Grain.

American Snobbery Shines Forth Brilliantly in the Great Anthracite Coal Regions.

The Disappearance of Kimber From Montreal Supposed to be Another Benwell Case.

A Farmers Syndicate.

CHICAGO, April 28.—A gigantic scheme has been hatched here in the shape of a Farmers Co-operative Brotherhood of the United States, with an authorized capital of $50,000,000, divided into a million shares of $50 each. These shares are to be sold to farmers, no man to hold more than one. The object is to enable farmers to control prices of grain.

Shooting Affair.

MADEIRA, Califor., April 28.—August Koening, an old rancher employee, shot and killed Henry Burger, a harness maker, near Firebaugh yesterday. The men had had no previous trouble. Koening left the place of the murder and a posse of men overtook him about two miles distant, and he was shot and wounded while resisting arrest. There was strong talk of lynching him. He was immediately brought to Madeira and his wounds, which are considered fatal, were dressed.

Great Floods.

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—The rumor which prevailed some days ago about the loss of life from the flood in the interior of West Baton Rouge parish is authenticated. Six lives were lost as far as is known, all negroes. Nine miles from Lobdell break the water rose so suddenly that most of the cattle in that section were drowned before they could be got out.

Chinese Captured.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 28.—The deputy collector of customs here has six Chinamen in jail who were captured while crossing the line from Mexico into the United States. They are a portion of a party of 87 landed a few days ago at Guaymas by the steamer from San Francisco. United States Inspector Schell, who is now here, has discovered that another party came up the Sonora Railroad as far as Santa Ana, from which point they started for San Saba with the intention it is thought of crossing into the United States at that point. The force of mounted inspectors along the line seems wholly inadequate to the task of heading off the invading Chinese.

A Modest Demand.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Several leaders in the Socialistic movement, at a meeting held on Saturday evening, demanded that the labor men should insist on having the red flag at the masthead of the city hall on May first. The chairman refused to put any question in regard to the matter and the plan of waving the red flag was dropped.

Quite Romantic.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 28.—The Shoemaker family is one of the oldest and wealthiest in the anthracite coal regions. Their income from the coal royalities alone reach a quarter of a million dollars a year. One member of the family is McDonald and aged about 30, his income is about $20,000 a year. Six months ago it was given out that McDonald was about to marry the daughter of a rich citizen residing on River street; his family received the match favorably. All at once young Shoemaker said that he wold not marry a girl that had been raised in the lap of luxury. He had a terrible dread that he would one day became poor, and then his wife would be no help to him. He proposed to marry a poor girl who in the hour of adversity, if such an hour came, could assist him in earning his daily bread. Annie Lawrence was the girl he proposed to marry, She was formerly employed as housekeeper. When Shoemaker's relatives heard of his intentions they became highly indignant. The court was petitioned to appoint a commision to examine into the young man's sanity and the request was granted. This action of his relatives made Shoemaker all the more determined to marry the girl of his choice. One day last week he and the Lawrence girl took the train for Elmira where they were married. On Saturday Shoemaker returned with his bride. His purpose was to install the latter in his mother's house on Union street. His uncle, John Harrower, was in waiting and as soon as the bridal couple put in an appearance Harrower took the baggage, fired it into the street, and when Shoemaker attempted to enter the house the uncle knocked him down, blackened his eyes and kicked him into the gutter. Shoemaker at once went before Mayor Sutton and had his uncle arrested. There is great excitement in aristocratic circles over the affair. Uncle Harrower says that Shoemaker has degraded himself, but he is not going to do so with the family. His wife will not be admitted to the family circle under any circumstances.

Another Benwell Case.

MONTREAL, April 28.—As the facts accumulate, the disappearance of Thos. Kimber, the young Englishman, from the Grand Central Hotel on the 1st inst., they tend to the suspicion that Kimber, like Benwell, has been foully dealt with. The behavior of Thos. Styles, the proprietor of the Grand Hotel, in the matter has been peculiar and unsatisfactory. Detectives searched the hotel premises from cellar to garret to-day, but not a trace of the missing man was found. Kimber was accompanied from England by two brothers, T. W. and G. W. Harvey, of Truro, Cornwall, England. They are now believed to be in British Columbia and the authorities are looking for them.

The Seized Skins.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—A. J. Porter, United States Marshal for the district of Alaska, is in the City waiting the arrival of the steamer St. Paul, which is expected to arrive here early next month. The steamer will bring 2,600 sealskins, seized by the revenue cutter Rush last year in Behring Sea, from five contraband vessels. The skins, which for some time have been stored in Ounalaska, represent an approximate value of $20,000. They will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, and the receipts will go into the Government treasury. Mr. Porter, who was formerly owner and editor of the Albany, Oregon, Herald, received his appointment last October, and talks interestingly upon leading Alaska topics. One of the matters that are looked forward to with a great deal of interest, said he, is the outcome of the efforts that are now being made in Washington, to extend the land laws in the territory. Besides those owning claims there are only twenty-one people in Alaska who have legal titles to property, and these are people who hold land which was granted them at the time of transfer from the Russian Government to the United States was made. Our mission schools in the districts are in a flourishing condition.

Spain in Danger.

PARIS, April 28.—Thomas W. Palmer, United States Minister to Spain, who is passing through Paris on his way to America, admitted in an interview today that there is danger of a Republican uprising in Spain.

McIntosh Elected.

OTTAWA, April 26.—The election today in this city to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Mr. Perley, resulted in the return of Mr. Macintosh (Conservative), by 866 over the Equal Rights candidate, Mr. Hayard; by a majority of 1,212 over Mr. Chrysler, the Liberal candidate. All sides worked very hard and the good showing made by the Equal Righters has caused great excitement. Large numbers of Conservatives and Liberals left their respective parties to join the ranks of the Equal Righters. The Lower town, the French and Catholic parties of the city, had been greatly in favor of the Liberals. Last night the district was flooded with circulars signed by a number of prominent Conservative Frenchmen beseeching their compatriots to stand by Sir John Macdonald's candidate. Great pressure was brought to bear and at the last moment the French vote carried the day. The victory was with the Equal Righters in the English speaking towns. The latter are jubilant over their partial success. The vote was: Macintosh, 2,463; Hayard, 1,597; Chrysler, 1,251.

PARLIAMENTARY TAILINGS.

Friday's Proceedings.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Following is the conclusion of the actual business of the Provincial Legislature, prior to the prorogation ceremonies of Saturday, and which was crowded out of our last issue:

Mr. Speaker took the chair 8 p. m.

Mr. Duck presented the report of the Public Accounts Committee, also the minority report of the same committee. Mr Duck said the committee had thought it not advisable to report the evidence. It had been so agreed by the committee.

Hon. Mr. Davie wished this decision on the records of the House.

Both reports received and directed to be printed.

Hon. Mr. Davie said the evidence was very voluminous and it would be not only laborious to read, but be of little or no interest to the public.

Hon. Mr. Robson said the time of the House should not be wasted running after the evidence.

Mr. Orr said the two reports differed from one another materially and the evidence should be procured.

Hon. Mr. Robson said there was no difference; if any existed at all, it was that one was tweedle-dum and the other tweedle-dee. (Smiles.)

Hon. Mr. Vernon presented to House some further correspondence that had been called for, in referrence to the North Arm Bridges.

Hon. Mr. Robson presented two messages from His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, the first regarding the Mechanics Lien Act amendment; the second regarding the Royal Jubilee Hospital Bill.

The messages were referred forthwith to committee of the whole.

Committee rose and reported the resolution on the first bill to the House. Report adopted.

The Mechanics' Lien Bill, after a few slight amendments, was passed.

House then went into committee on the Jubillee Hospital Bill, Mr. Duck in the chair. Committee rose and reported the resolution to the House. A slight amendment was also made to the bill and the report was adopted, and the bill passed.

Hon. Mr. Davie moved a number of amendments, on the motion to adopt the report on bill No. 80, intituled "An Act to amend the 'Provincial Voters' Act.'" Committee rose and reported the bill complete with amendments; report adopted, bill read a third time and passed.

The report on the Mineral Bill was adopted after a few slight clerical amendments being made to it, read a third time and passed.

House went into committee on the County Courts Bill, Mr. Anderson in the chair.

Hon. Mr. Davie said that it had been thought best to strike out clause 10. He had consulted far higher legal authorities than he could ever hope to be, and the conclusion arrived at was that this clause should be excised from the bill. He moved the striking out of the clause, which was expunged accordingly. Committee rose and reported the bill complete with amendments. Report adopted, bill read a third time and passed.

House went into committee on the Companies Bill, Mr. Martin in the chair. Committee rose and reported the bill complete with amendments. Report adopted, bill read a third time and passed.

The business of the House having been concluded, the Premier rose and said: Mr. Speaker—Before making the usual formal motion for the last time in this legislature, I desire to make a few remarks. First of all, sir, I wish to compliment you upon the manner in which you have discharged the important function of Speaker. Quick to take up points and firm to maintain them, you have presided with an amount of fairness and ability most creditable alike to yourself and the House, and I am quite sure you were not many days in that chair before every honorable member on both sides of the House became convinced that they had made a wise choice—that you were the right man in the right place. The session now closing is the first during which I have occupied the honorable and responsible position of leader of the House. Conscious of my many shortcomings, I desire to thank the honorable gentlemen on both sides for their loyal, hearty and conscientious support. In the heat of debate some acrimonious things have no doubt been said by most of us; but, speaking for myself, I can only express regret if I have hurt the feelings of any, and I can assure hon. gentlemen that I shall leave this House without hard or unfriendly feelings towards any. During the term now closing three of our number have been removed by death, and God alone knows how many of us may be spared to come back. My most hearty wish is that we may all be spared to come back to the new House and work for the good of our Province in the future as earnestly and harmoniously as we have done in the past. Mr. Speaker, I now move that this House at its rising do stand adjourned till 11 o'clock to-morrow forenoon.

Hon. Mr. Beaven followed the hon. leader of the Government. His voice trembled with emotion and only by a strong effort of will could he control himself as he spoke as follows: On behalf of this side of the House I rise to offer a few parting remarks, as it may be the last time that many of us shall be met together as we are to-night. I have been most agreeably surprised at the ability, integrity and high sense of justice displayed throughout this entire session by Mr. Speaker. In his decisions he has shown a depth of research into Parliamentary law only equalled by the invariable wisdom and justice that have signalized his conclusions. Every hon. member in this House must feel that Mr. Speaker's decisions have done nothing but the strictest justice to both sides of the House. He has shown not the slightest petty partisanship, but has been actuated, as his decisions have shown, by motives of the highest honor and justice. I believe I am the only member, on this side of the House at least, who has occupied a seat in this assembly ever since confederation, (applause and cries of "hear, hear),'' and no matter how I may have differed with the hon. gentlemen on the Government side of the House, and differed most materially, too, in many cases, I trust sincerely that in spite of those differences on matters of public business we may still meet as good friends and gentlemen, in pleasant intercourse. (Loud cries of hear, hear.) We must disagree sometimes, of course, on public matters; that is only to be expected, but I am happy to say, never on personal matters or as friends. I am afraid it is my disposition to say things sometimes that may seem unpleasant and harsh, for I am no hand at dissembling my feelings or thoughts, but if I have said at any time anything that might have hurt the feelings of any honorable member, I am very sorry for it. I hope very many of the honorable gentlemen I see around me to-night will occupy their seats in this House again next session, but I should feel it my duty, should any of the honorable gentlemen opposite occupy the same seats again and hold the same opinions as they have done this session, to oppose them by every means in my power. (Great laughter and loud applause.

Hon. Mr. Robson (deprecatingly and shaking his head)—Ah, ah, my honorable friend must have that inevitable sting in the tail of his remarks. (Roars of laughter and rapturous applause.)

Mr. Speaker then slowly rose and was saluted with long-continued applause. He said: Gentlemen, I feel that I must offer my testimony of gratitude to both sides of the House for the unvarying courtesy with which they have accepted my rulings throughout this session. I feel to-night only sentiments of gratification at the amicable and gentlemanly manner in which the business of this House has been conducted throughout this important session, and, as I already said, gratitude for the kindness and consideration of every honorable member in the House. From start to finish I have always tried to do my duty (applause). That has been my ruling principle in all cases; and I can only say that if I have made any mistakes, they have been, as the old saying has it, "errors of the head, but not of the heart." (Applause and hear, hear). Throughout the session I feel that I have been sustained and buoyed up by the hearty support of honorable members on both sides of the House. Their kind assistance has always been to me, to quote a phrase of Scripture, a "lamp unto my feet" and a valuable guide to my decisions. It pains me to think that it is scarcely possible that we shall all meet here again next session; in the rough, but happy vernacular of Jack, some of us will "miss the number of our mess." (Laughter). I assure you, gentlemen, that I feel very like that mother in the tale, who was going to part with her children for some purpose or other; and had the little ones all ranged out in front of her that she might gaze upon their sweet childish faces once more, and the sight so overcame her maternal heart that, crying, —"come to my breast my children, I cannot part with one of you; I shall keep you all," she gathered them to her heart and abandoned her project. (Laughter, applause and cries of hear, hear). Those feelings I largely experience to-night, but I hope gentlemen, to see you all gathered together again another session. And I assure you that in whatever sphere my path may be cast I shall always do my duty. (Loud and prolonged applause).

Hon. Mr. Robson then arose for the last time this session, and, with his old accustomed dignity, spoke the old familiar motion in a voice that was somewhat tremulous: "Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn."

House adjourned at 10:35 p.m.

Exercises of a slightly convivial nature ensued and a kindly smile (no pun on this work is intended) lit up every countenance in the halls and corridors of the Parliament building. The best of good feeling was manifested by everyone, and all seemed to regret that the hour of parting had come at last. A sumptuous luncheon had been ordered served in the refreshment room by Mr. Speaker, and many of the members and the press representatives partook of the dainty fare with unusual gusto.

With the old Roman actors, the Legislative Assembly as they leave the stage for another year may say, "Vos valdete, ac plaudite."

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE MAINLAND DELEGATION.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN—Sir: — Will you kindly find room for the following letter which I have addressed to the Victoria Colonist and which will doubtless appear in that paper to-morrow? As the report in the Colonist has a semi-official character, I think it is necessary to put on record the fact that it does not do justice to the strength of the position taken by the delegation. Yours. &c.,

J. C. BROWN.

Editor Colonist—Sir:—Will you allow me to say that your report of the interview between this delegation and the Government, is very far from being accurate. Justice is done to neither side and, naturally enough, I daresay, those speakers who were strangers to the reporter suffer more than those whom he was accustomed to "take."

Let me give you just one sample: The Attorney-General having stated that no difference worth mentioning could be proved between the population of the Island and that of the Mainland—neither voters' lists, number of school children nor amount of taxes proved it, I am made to reply that the voters in New Westminster District "and the lower constituencies" were almost exactly one-third of those on the Island—and then the discussion branches of to something else.

Now, my answer was that the voters in the Lower Fraser constituancies numbered almost exactly 500 less than those on the Island, (I find the exact numbers on the 28th April will be—Lower Fraser, 6,556; Island, 7,111), while the public accounts show these constituencies to have contributed to the revenue over $50,000 more than the whole Island; so that, taking the Attorney-General's own means of estimating, it would be fair to call these constituencies equal to the whole Island, and if, as he said, there was no difference worth mentioning between the whole of the Mainland and the Island, it followed that all the Mainland outside the Lower Fraser was not worth mentioning—yet the new bill proposed to give that part eleven members. The whole report may be judged by this sample.

Yours etc.,

J. C. BROWN.

LUND VS. LUND.

The Suit for Divorce and Matrimonal Separation Commenced To-day in the Supreme Court.

(Before Mr. Justice Drake.)

The case of Lund vs. Lund for divorce and matrimonial division was called in this court this morning at 11:45. The court was well filled with spectators and the legal fraternity and all the persons in any way connected with the case.

Mr. A. J. McColl appeared for the plaintiff; Messrs. L. P. Eckstein, J. E. Gaynor and Chas. Wilson, Victoria, for the defence.

The jury was duly sworn and were as follows: Messrs. John Hendry, D. S. Milligan, J. Reece, C. G. Major, C. J. Sim, A. G. Gamble, Geo. Turner, J. W. MacFarlane. Mr. McColl then addressed the jury. The plaintiff, he said, was well known to most of them, as also was Hill the co-respondent. He had begun to live at Lund's house last August, and had, at various times, conducted himself in such a manner and committed the guilty acts which would be explained in detail later on. And they were of such a nature that the jury would have little difficulty in seeing the good grounds there were for divorce. One of the most important things to lay before the jury is the feelings and actions of the plaintiff in the interim between the discovery of the crime and the trial. The plaintiff, as they were probably aware, comes into this court totally unfitted to undergo the ordeal of a rigid cross-examination. The suffering which he had endured in the three or four weeks lately past and the mental torture he had experienced brooding over his wrongs had wrought upon him in a manner most detrimental to his health. It was expected that the plaintiff would have to stand a very severe cross-examination in a charge of cruelty to his wife, but after what he had explained to them it would be next to impossible for the plaintiff to get into the box and show the falsity of that charge. For himself he would ask the jury to bear with him as he had not been in bed for the last two days, and besides, had been unfortunate enough to be unable to procure certain important pieces of evidence. He felt sure the jury would not allow themselves to be led away by any feelings of sympathy or pity that might pervade their minds on hearing the evidence, but come to the proper and only conclusion in regard to the guilt of those parties. He would produce two disinterested and unbiased witnesses and from their evidence the jury would have no difficulty in coming to a conclusion.

This case simply consisted of one of two things; this was either a foul conspiracy or else no doubt of the guilt of the respondent and co-respondent could be entertained. The parties to this case were married in 1883 and have had four children. In November, 1888, Mr. Lund and his wife became estranged and the difference between them was of so aggravated a nature that he had to take his meals out of the house. Hill, the co-respondent, came to lodge in the house last August. Mr. Lund was often out at night and was frequently away from home. He and his wife had not occupied the same room after the birth of their last child. There was a mutual charge of refusal of matrimonial privileges. Mr. McColl then detailed the occurrences of the night of December 22nd last and explained the position of the various rooms in the house and the precautions taken by Lund to overhear the meetings between his wife and Hill.

The case then proceeded. A. O. Lund, sworn, said he was the husband of Mrs. Lund. They were married in 1883 and have had four children. One child died on November 5th last. The first unpleasantness with his wife took place last summer. He was boarding out at that time, owing to being engaged in building a house. There was no particular trouble, and he sometimes took meals in the house. He first knew the co-respondent, Thomas Hill, last August when he came as a lodger to Lund's house. He first began to suspect improper conduct on the part of his wife and Hill last December. On the 22nd of December he came home at 10 p. m., and entered the house by the back door, as usual. While standing in the dining-room, Mrs. Lund suddenly rushed out of the hall holding both hands over her face. She went and leaned on the mantel piece in the dining room and seemed much excited. A moment afterwards he heard someone rush upstairs. At this point Mr. Wilson for the defence, asked that all witnesses be excluded from the court. This was accordingly done. On the 29th of December, he came home at 11 o'clock in the morning, and on going upstairs heard Mrs. Lund in Hill's room. He went out into the hall and saw that Hill's bedroom door was shut. He went down stairs and returned in about ten minutes when he saw Mrs. Lund doing some household work in the rooms.

Shortly after this occurrence he told Mrs. Lund that he was going out to his farm. Immediately after telling her this he went upstairs and made an examination of Hill's bed but found nothing there to excite his suspicions. The same day he took the fastening off the kitchen window. He went to the station on the 31st December, but did not go to his farm; he had never intended going there. He returned home at about 6 o'clock in the evening, next day along with A. G. Johnson and another friend, whom he had asked to accompany him, they tried the cellar door and found it barred and the kitchen window was also secured. He returned next day and entered the house by the back door, lighting a lamp he hurried to Hill's room and found suspicious signs. Next day he went to feed his cows and came home about 9 o'clock in the evening. Between 9 and 10 o'clock he looked through the keyhole into dining-room and saw Hill and Mrs. Lund sitting very close together; Hill was patting her cheek and smoothing her hair and shoulders. Then went up to his room and came down again between 11 and 12 o'clock, looked through keyhole and saw Hill and Mrs. Lund standing near the table; Hill embraced and kissed her several times. Mrs. Lund then turned the lamp out and witness got excited and went up stairs; didn't sleep that night; heard Hill go to bed later.

Court adjourned for an hour.

On resuming, Mr. McColl continued his examination of A. O. Lund, The details of a part of the examination were not of a fit nature for publication, Witness emphatically denied the statement that he had ill-treated his children by refusing them proper food. He admitted that on the night of Jan. 9th he struck his wife. The trouble arose over some silver knives which, she alleged, were a Christmas present from her mother. The bill for those goods was subsequently received by witness from Mr. T. J. Trapp. On witness pressing the matter for an explanation Mrs. Lund began to abuse him and called him an "old stag," "worse than a Siwash" and "a crazy lunatic who ought to be in the asylum." Mr. Lund told her he would slap her if she dared to use such language to him. She continued her abuse and he kept his promise by boxing her ears twice. His father-in-law met him some days after and expressed his opinion on the subject of the assault in vigorous, but inelegant language. Witness had cut away the laths and inner plaster on the wall of a closet between Hill's room and his own so that

SOOTHING-SYRUP & WHITEWASH.

THE Colonist of Saturday last talks in a soothing-syrup sort of a style to what it conceives to be its erring Mainland cotemporaries. Bless its grandmotherly heart! it would plainly rather administer paregoric any day than enquire too closely into the cause of the trouble, with a view to its radical amelioration. It would cry "Peace! peace! where "there is no peace," and slobber over a deadly canker in the body politic with specious varnish, in preference to honestly admitting the sore and endeavoring to provide a remedy.

It appears to be assumed by some of our cotemporaries that the Colonist's articles on Provincial politics are inspired. We can hardly believe, however, that the Governmental afflatus has had anything to do with that paper's leaders on the redistribution question: they are so stupid as to go beyond the Premier altogether in his apologies for the measure. The attitude of the Premier on the Redistribution Bill which his Government formulated, attested by repeated utterances, is briefly, in effect, as follows: "The bill, is not satisfactory "or just, even as a temporary and par-"tial measure, but it was insisted upon "by my Government; it was the best "that they would agree to; therefore I "was compelled to accept it, or resign; "and, to save the country from 'go-"ing to the dogs'—i. e. the Opposition "—I chose the former alternative."

The Premier, of course, claims that he did a wise thing, under the circumstances—that is, by introducing, and half-heartedly supporting, what he knew, and publicly acknowledged, to be an unfair measure, and based on a theory which he (the Premier) emphatically stated, and reiterated, to be a totally groundless fiction—but he, very wisely as well as honestly, claimed nothing for the bill itself; but, on the contrary, took the public into his confidence, freely admitting that the measure was an unfair and an unsatisfactory one, but, that owing to there being no "two peas alike" in the Cabinet, etc., it was the best that could be got at the present time.

The zealous, but foolish Colonist, however, takes a bigger job than it is asked to do, and one which, if persisted in, will exaust all the lime in San Juan, when it attempts, inferentially, at least (even the Colonist has too much sense to do so directly), to whitewash what everyone knows, and what the Premier has admitted, to be an unfair and unjust measure, forced upon the Government and through the House by an unscrupulous sectional majority.

The Colonist states what is not true when it says that attacks and not criticism has been used by the Mainland press in the redistribution question. On the other hand, that paper notably abstains from any attempt at argument bearing on the real question, but contents itself with mere statements and slushy generalities. The Mainland papers have not spoken hastily on the question, and much more remains to be said on the same subject. Whole barrels of Colonist whitewash will avail nothing to hide the real nature of the so-called Redistribution Bill or obscure the points at issue.

IRISH LANDLORD RELIEF BILL

UNDER the celebrated Ashbourne Act of 1885, the landlords of Ireland have already received from the Imperial exchequer £10,000,000, and now Mr. Balfour proposes to take from the same source for a similar purpose another £33,000,000. One of the chief objections raised by the Unionist party to the celebrated Home Rule Bill of Mr. Gladstone was that it pledged the credit of the British taxpayer. The assertion was only half a truth, and, therefore, worse than a lie, but it did its work in the unreasoning excitement of the general election. The Government of the present Premier, Lord Salisbury, is the result. It is edifying to notice that the very men who owe their election to the fact that they posed as objectors to the principle of pledging Imperial funds for the relief of Ireland, and to make Home Rule for that unfortunate country practicable, are now not in the least unwilling to confer upon the landlords, at the expense of the rest of the community pecuniary relief to which they have absolutely no just claim, beyond that which may be equally brought forward by any other citizens engaged in the cultivation of the soil.

The bill is mischievous and of a predatory, kind as it proposes to buy out a small minority, "not for the benefit of the whole community," but for the benefit of the landlord class, or such of them as have made themselves a public nuisance. It is worthy of note that the bill is thoroughly Tory, inasmuch as it is not compulsory but optional as regards the landlord. Thus, if one tenant under a certain landlord wishes to buy his farm, the state, after ascertaining that the landlord is agreeable to the bargain, will advance the money. But, should the neighbor of this man also desire to buy the land he tills, and should it happen that the landlord of this second tenant has no wish to sell, poor Pat will have to leave his farm, or else go on paying rent.

The cool assurance with which Mr. Balfour tells the world that he is merely carrying out by this measure a policy which was in part proposed by the Land Leaguers of 1880, and subsequently adopted (in a measure) by the Liberals in 1884 and 1886, is altogether misleading, and probably intentionally so. In both those instances it was a part of the schemes that a national authority (or in other words an Irish Parliament), sitting in Dublin, should undertake the work of settling matters with the owners of the soil. Moreover, the task of expropriating the lands so entered upon was to be fair, and not merely in the interests of the classes. The expropriation was intended to be compulsory, and quite a different thing from the half-hearted measure at present under consideration, by which if it becomes law, the bad cruel absentee landlord will still be at liberty to refuse to sell, and may still go on demanding his rents, under pain of eviction, which Mr. Gladstone has said is "worse than sentence of "death;" whilst the good landlord, who has always endeavored to do his best by the people, at length disgusted at the tinkering and class policy, which has ever been Ireland's portion (except when for diversion a coercion bill has been under discussion), will sell out and leave unhappy Erin to stew in the political juice concocted by unscrupulous ministers.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Louisina Lottery company at the approaching session of the legislature will submit a proposition to pay the state $12,500,000 for the renewal of its charter for twenty-five years from 1895, when the present charter expires. This amount is to be paid in yearly instalments of $500,000.

A novel and amusing way of introducing the electric light took place at a ball at Evanston, Ill., says an exchange recently. The grand march opened with the orchestra playing the Dead March in Saul, to which tune the gas was slowly turned off and darkness reigned. Suddenly, with the strains of See the Conquering Hero Comes, the room was flooded with the soft and beautiful light of 300 incandescent lamps.

The report of the Department of Fsheries contains some interesting information on the fisheries in the Ottawa district. Most of the fish caught this year consists of carp, pike, perch, catfish, mudpouts and eels. The best grades of fish, such as bass, whitefish, pickerel and maskinongs, have almost entirely disappeared, and there is only one voice to attribute this state of things to sawdust and mill rubbish, which, after filling up the bays, are now spreading to the beds where fish spawn.

Says the Toronto Mail: Of the 212 presbyteries in the Presbyterian church of the United States, 122 have so far voted on the question of revision of the Westminster Confession, and eighty-two of these, representing a large majority of the ministers and communicants of the Church, have declared in favor of revision. The vote as it now stands, we are told, makes it practically certain that there will be a majority of about two to one of all the presbyteries in favor of the proposed amendment of the standards of the church. The General Assembly, at which the matter will be finally decided upon, will meet at Saratoga next month.

Two German engineers, says an exchange, propose to use three continuous platforms moving along the streets side by side. The lowest of these platforms is 4 inches high, and moves at a uniform speed of 5 feet per second. Any ordinary pedestrian can, they state, mount this platform from the ground without difficulty, and from this he can with equal ease step on to a second platform 4 inches higher than the first, and moving twice as rapidly. The passenger thus acquires a speed of 10 feet per second, and, stepping on a third platform in the same way, he is carried at a speed of 15 feet per second, or 10 miles an hour, to his destination, where he steps off in the inverse order.

Emperor William has developed a mania for new uniforms and costumes. He has established a new body guard for the Empress, who are to do sentry duty before her apartments at the palace and are to serve as her escort at reviews and state functions. For palace duty the uniform consists of white Brandenburg coat with cherry-colored facings and huge shoulder knots in black, white and silver; a white waistcoat coming down low, white trousers and "jack" boots. There is also a black velvet three-cornered hat, with cockade and feather in the Prussian colors. The escort uniform is much the same, except that the hat is replaced by a helmet of polished steel crested with a golden eagle.—Ex.

NEW WESTMINSTER.

OFFER FOR SALE FOR A LIMITED TIME, at the undermentioned Prices, the following Properties on terms to suit.

SAPPERTON.

Lots in the Sub-Division of Lot 2, Suburban Block 4, from $200 per lot.

These lots are mostly cleared, and are very sightly, commanding an unsurpassed view of the Fraser River in one direction, and Queen's Park and the upper portion of the City in the other. This property is only about one quarter of a mile from the Brunette Mills, and is the best locality in Sapperton either for residence or speculation.

WESTERN ADDITION.

A few blocks and lots in the Western Addition to the City of New Westminster, Sub-Division of Lot 172, formerly the White Estate.

This sub-division, consisting of 600 lots, was placed upon the market by us a short time ago, and so eager were purchasers to buy that the entire 600 lots were sold out within one month. We are now offering the above property at slightly advanced rates on behalf of former purchasers. Those who missed the chance of buying at first prices have yet an opportunity of investing at prices that cannot fail to yield a good profit. We believe that this is the best speculative property in the City of New Westminster.

SURREY.

5-Acre Blocks in the thriving Municipality of Surrey, midway between the Cities of New Westminster, B. C., and Blaine, Wash., at from $30 to $40 per acre.

This property is situated on the Hall's Prairie road, near the junction of the Langley Road, the Yale Road, and the Clover Valley Road, within 500 yards of the proposed station of the New Westminster Southern Railway. The land is high and dry, and the soil is first-class. Surrey is one of the most prosperous sections of the District of New Westminster, and is at present enjoying quite a boom in real estate; so that purchasers of this property will get the value of their money in good, rich, solid farm land in a locality which at the same time promises an excellent field for speculation.

NORTH ARM.

145 acres in Lot 155, near the North Arm Road, about 2 1-2 miles west of the New Westminster City Post-office, at $150 per acre.

This is fine fertile soil, chiefly prairie, and lies well. It has become a maxim that cities grow westward, and New Westminster is proving no exception to the rule. City lots west of Edinburgh Street, along the North Arm road, have doubled in value in less than a year, while acre tracts have, in the same time, in some instances more than trebled. When the proposed extension of Columbia Street to the Westerly City Boundary is completed, the North Arm will become the best suburban section of the City. Moreover, it is confidently expected by many that the route of the Electric Railway to Vancouver will traverse this section. Our shrewdest speculators are realizing the possibilities of this portion of the City, and the many sales of acre property in the vicinity recently, indicate that land in the direction of the North Arm is looked upon as one of the best places for investment in the District. Prices are bound to advance rapidly.

In addition to the above we have a large list of City and Suburban Property, at moderate prices and on favorable terms, of which we invite examination.

WRITING AS A TRADE.

It's Not Such a Bonanza As Some Are Led to Believe.

Common-Sense Comments by Dr. Edward Eggleston—Of All the Learned Professions Literature Certainly Is the Most Poorly Paid.

The phenomenal sales of many recent books, notably such as General Wallace's "Ben Hur" and Mr. Bellamy's "Looking Backward," have led the general public to believe that the business of authorship must be a profitable one. This impression has been intensified by reports of the great prices paid certain writers for their productions. Examples in point are the handsome incomes attributed to Mark Twain, W. D. Howells, Mrs. Burnett and others of far less note. Consequently the recent statement ascribed to Dr. Edward Eggleston, himself a successful writer, in disproof of this opinion has been received with surprise. Dr. Eggleston, according to a literary journal, holds that there is not a single American author who really makes an income out of his books. Grubb street has become a tradition, but the rewards of the book-maker continue painfully small. Dr. Eggleston writes to a Globe-Democrat correspondent in repudiation of the bald statement thus attributed to him, but in reiteration of the poor financial returns of authorship: "Of course I did not say any thing so preposterous as the words attributed to me in the newspaper in point. This is only one of many illustrations of the crying defect of American journalism at this time. More brains, more precision, more mental training are wanted in the reporter's work. Of enterprising reporters there are enough, men who will find out the secrets of the North Pole, steal an interview with the Pope or the Czar, or penetrate in search of news to a lady's bedchamber. But a decent report of a public assembly, or of an address for which the orator did not himself supply the manuscript copy, I have not seen in a long time. I wish to file a general caveat that I am accountable for no speeches put into my mouth in this way. What I did say before a Congressional committee was that I did not know any author who had acquired a competence by literary work properly so-called. I proceeded to exclude school-books. Mr. Longfellow was a professor and made good investments. Mr. Emerson was poor during the greater part of his life, I believe, though he endured the drudgery of lyceum lecturing, and it is said he only gained a competence in old age by good investments. Hawthorne was driven to drudge for a book-maker like Goodrich and to seek public offices. Mr. Lowell has had other sources of income; Mr. Howells has had, let us hope, a liberal editorial salary; Colonel Higginson published a successful school-book. My very point is that authors are driven from the production of literature, 'properly so-called,' to drudgery or sensationalism by the desire to earn that sufficiency which literature does not give. The newspaper in point may or may not in its critical moments class the profitable juveniles of Miss Alcott, Mr. Trowbridge and Oliver Optic with literature properly so-called. It is a matter of opinion. Mr. Aldrich's admirable 'Story of a Bad Boy,' which I should call literature without a question mark, did not reach the tenth part of the circulation attained by Boston juveniles of a flimsier texture.

"Let me remark, I am combating the notion very prevalent among Congressmen that an author of reputation has opened a bonanza. Of all the learned professions, literature is the most poorly paid. The leading authors must be compared with leading lawyers, doctors and ministers. If you compare a successful author with a country lawyer or the pastor of a village church, you might make a fair showing. But what author ever hopes to attain the income enjoyed, say, by the late Dr. Willard Parker or by Mr. Evarts? The body of working litterateurs who make pot-boilers for the booksellers all their lives and are never known to the newspapers in such a discussion as this, certainly have no hope of more than the livelihood of a very humble professional man.

"For many years I have been accustomed to warn young men off from beginning a literary career, because so few of the literary workers ever attain a competency."

Something Concerning the Acceptance or Rejection of Manuscripts.

It seems a pet idea with some authors to trouble themselves over the oft-mooted question: "Are all the manuscripts which come to magazines carefully read?" There are some manuscripts that go unread, for the reason that their unworthiness is apparent from the opening page and often from the opening sentence. Or their unsuitability will be revealed from their subject title, and it is then that the editorial decision is made regardless of the literary merit which the article may possess. The most attractive and best-composed articles are oft-times the most unsuited for the magazine to which they are submitted. And therein comes the tact of correct application so often lacking with authors. But of the thousands of manuscripts sent to the magazines each year, each one receives examination, some more, some less—precisely in proportion to their relative merit, and of this authors can always feel assured. The funny paragrapher has magnified the editor's waste basket far beyond its normal proportions. In reality, but few manuscripts are consigned thereto, and those which do find their way therein richly deserve the interment. Reputable publications will always return manuscripts where postage is inclosed, except in special instances, and then the declaration is always made in some conspicuous place of the periodical. Authors, as a rule, are safer in the hands of the editor to-day than they were twenty years ago. If the literary supply has increased, so has the demand.

The fact is, whether authors believe it or not, the editor is more anxious to discover merit in a manuscript than is the author to have him. Novelty and freshness are to-day the ruling elements in literature, and the editor is ever watchful for either in all the manuscripts which come under his eye. If authors would devote more time and care to the composition of their manuscripts and less to worrying over what became of them after they reached the editorial desk literature and the reading public would be the gainers. No author need ever invest her soul with anxiety that her manuscript is not read. In these days of sharp literary competition the keenest outlook is required of the editorial room, and a good manuscript or a bright idea need not search long for a market. Well-told stories are not so plentiful that even the most unpromising-looking manuscript can afford to be overlooked. An author can always feel sure of one point—that if her manuscript is returned there is some reason for it, and the cause is generally not very far off or obscure, if search is only made for it. Either the production lacks merit or the wrong channel has been selected for the material. These are generally the two principal reasons. There is a world of common sense in the remark made by a famous author to a young writer who was loudly complaining of editorial unappreciation: "Don't waste so much time blaming the editors; devote more to seeing if any rests upon you."—Ladies' Home Journal.

If the merchants and residents of Columbia and Front streets are desirous of having a street sprinkling service this summer, it will be necessary for them to petition the City Council to pass a street watering by-law. No time should be lost in getting the service introduced, as the present dusty condition of the streets is not only a discredit to the City but a source of constant loss to merchants through damage to goods by dust.

The train last evening from Vancouver was so well patronised that every seat in the car was occupied and even the smoking compartment was comfortably filled, in some cases by those who could not get seats in the regular coach. As this line, Westminster-Vancouver, is one of the best paying branches of the C. P. R. system, there is no reason why more cars should not be put on to accommodate the public who pay so well for the present insufficient service.

On Friday afternoon an examination of barristers of other provinces for admission to the bar of British Columbia was held before Mr. Justice McCreight in this city. FERRY AND BRIDGE.

Mayor Brown and Ald. Shiles Return From Portland --- Results of Their Trip.

Mayor Brown and Alderman Shiles have returned from Portland very much pleased with the results of their trip. They were favored with fine weather, but found that the season was fully as late in the vicinity of Portland as in this portion of British Columbia.

A representative of THE COLUMBIAN called to ascertain the results attained by the trip. He spoke briefly and to the point as follows: "Our investigations at Portland resulted in giving as much important information on both the bridge and ferry questions. The river at Portland, it must be remembered, is only about half the width of the Fraser opposite Westminster, consequently the conditions are different, and much more so when population is taken into consideration. Portland has a population of 75,000 and East Portland 8,000, and yet until a year ago a ferry was the only means of communication between the two communities; about a year ago a bridge costing $200,000 was opened, but the ferry continues to run just the same and does a good share of the business. The ferry steamer is a large double-hull craft, worked by cable, and has a capacity for 65 vehicles, besides which there is ample room for as many foot passengers as may offer. This vessel is run by a crew of two men. Now, I believe we can build a ferry on similar lines to the Portland ferry, and at a cost greatly smaller than the amount estimated by me some weeks ago, and it can be run at no greater cost than the K de K. The ferry would make trips every half hour, and have capacity for carrying from 12 to 20 vehicles, besides foot passengers. This service would suffice until the bridge scheme is worked out."

"How about ice in winter," asked the COLUMBIAN man, "ferry steamers often have to encounter trouble in this way?"

"That," said the mayor, "does not stand in the way. We were informed at Portland that the ice on the Willamette was 6 inches thick last winter, and the ferry went through it with ease. Our ferry will have more powerful engines than the Portland boat, and, consequently, nothing need be feared on the score of ice. I feel certain a ferry can be established and run at a small cost, that would keep up connection with the Surrey side all the year round and give good satisfaction."

"What about the bridge?"

"Well, we will talk more about that later on. The bridge at Portland cost $200,000 and is only half the length that the Fraser bridge would require to be. Nothing much can be said on the bridge question until the matter has been gone into more thoroughly, but we will take steps very shortly in this direction."

W. H. Ladner a Candidate.

In another column will be found Mr. Ladner's card, announcing himself as a candidate for the vacancy in the Commons. Mr. Ladner will interview the electors later and import his views on the various questions that a Dominion statesman is supposed to be posted on. There are now three candidates in the field—to stay, we suppose—Messrs. Corbould, Townsend and Ladner—and it is said Mr. Marshall Sinclair will make a fourth.

Valuable Discoveries.

Capt. Robertson, of Moresby Island, arrived in the city this morning and is staying at the Colonial. He brought with him some samples of shale and sandstone which were discovered on Wednesday last. The sandstone is a very superior article, and ought to prove a valuable piece of property to Capt. Robertson. Enquiries are already being made for it for building purposes in Vancouver and Victoria. The shale was discovered at low water mark, and the samples brought by Capt. Robertson are covered with barnacles. Under this shale coal is supposed to lie, and several gentlemen having knowledge of coal mining feel certain that a good vein will be struck on development. Capt. Robertson has not decided yet as to the action he will take concerning the development of the discovery, but with the possibility of such a great mine of wealth in view he will hardly allow the matter of a few hundred dollars to interfere with ascertaining the value of the prospects.

Anniversary Services.

The members of New Westminster Lodge No. 3, I. O. O. F., attended divine service at the Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the occasion being the 71st anniversary of the order. The procession was formed at the Oddfellows' Hall and marched in double rank to the Methodist church. The members were all dressed in full regalia and made a most handsome parade. The junior members lead the van, while the officers, under the Noble Grand, Bro. R. F. Bonson, brought up the rear. On arriving at the church the procession opened ranks and the officers passed into the church first, followed by the members according to seniority. The members of the order present numbered 60. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. H. White, who took his text from Luke, 10th chap, and 29th verse: "Who is my neighbor." The discourse was a thoroughly interesting one, and pointed out in a graphic manner the assistance man can lend to man. The church was well filled with a most appreciative congregation.

THAT IMPORTANT RAILWAY NEWS.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN—Sir:—That telegram received Saturday from Fairhaven (very likely from Ben Douglas) to the effect that a contract has been signed to construct a wharf on the south side of the river below the Hatchery is of perhaps more moment to speculators in that locality than to the average citizen of New Westminster. Disinterested (?) parties are good enough to still further enlighten the anxious public as to the intentions of this great company and give it out (in strict confidence, etc.,) that this is where the workshops for the Southern Railway will be located and that the company will also run a railway ferry from that point to Westminster. We have had a great many reports of what the Southern Railway Company was about to do, but this is the most ridiculous yet. A railway ferry crossing from Westminster away up the river two or three miles would be a project fit for a lunatic or a land boomer.

No, Mr. Editor, sensible people take very little stock in these reports, as they originate in the fertile brains of certain local magnates, who have no more weight with Nelson Bennett in determining on his plans (as was recently shown by the manner in which he "busted up" that famous agreement between the City and the so-called Southern Railway), than a Bashi-Bazouk has influence over the Czar of all the Russias. Fairhaven is Bennett's city, and there the workshops for the Fairhaven & Southern Railway, and all the other railways that he has control of, will go; and as for running the railway ferry from the City up to the wharf to be built for the discharge of rails, why it is pure rot. The City of New Westminster has had too much humbugging from the Southern Railway Co. already, and, in compensation for the thousands of dollars thrown away on them, will have to be assured some substantial benefits before a single foot of our valuable water-frontage or a dollar more will be voted them again. The Southern Railway Company should go partners with the Government in their redistribution business.

ANTI-REDISTRIBUTION.

The str. Lackme arrived from Portland on Saturday evening with 75 tons of freight, consisting chiefly of flour and feed.

A GREAT OFFER.

Mr. R. Balfour Will Agree to Bridge the River for $150,000.

At the City Council to-night Mr. R. Balfour, the well-known bridge builder, will submit an offer to the board to bridge the Fraser river from a point opposite the pleasure grounds to Brownsville for the sum of $150,000. Since Mr. Balfour first took an interest in the project he has been studying and figuring on the plans and specifications, and has prepared a sketch of the bridge as he proposes to build it. A representative of THE COLUMBIAN had a glimpse at the picture this afternoon, and took the following notes from the specifications: Length of bridge from land to land, 2000 feet each, 3 spans of 150 feet each, 1 span of 118 feet, 6 spans of 100 feet and one pivot draw of 232 feet. The superstructure will be 18 feet above the ordinary level of the river. The swing will be supported by a stone pier 25 feet in diameter, built on a wooden cylinder, filled with cement, and capable of resisting almost any pressure. The remaining piers, when in water over 15 feet in depth, will be built of wooden cylinders filled with cement. The superstructure will be of seasoned fir, planed and painted. The strength of the bridge when completed will be 8 times greater than any possible load that can be put upon it.

Mr. Balfour will guarantee the bridge for one year after it is ready for use, and will also agree to have it complete by next spring.

LUND VS. LUND.

he might hear what was going on in the former apartment. He also dug a trench in the celler so as to get under the dining-room for the purpose of hearing all conversation above. Last January he sent a blind telegram to himself purporting to call him to Vancouver. He pretended to go to that city, but really went to A. G. Johnson's house. Accompanied by Johnson he went to his own house and both entered by way of the cellar. Mrs. Lund was alone in the house. They listened for some time and heard someone enter the house. Lund went up stairs and found Mrs. Lund and Hill sitting room in front of the fire talking. He was afraid to take Johnson up stairs, as, being a stranger he might make a noise. Lund went up stairs and waited in the closet next Hill's room until Hill came up to bed at about 12 o'clock. Mrs. Lund followed about 10 minutes later. She entered Hill's room and went into his bed. Lund did not disturb them, but went down stairs to where Johnson was waiting. He directed Johnson to go up the back stairs while he went up the front way. Witness entered Hill's room followed by Johnson. Mrs. Lund came from Hill's bed towards them, she was en deshabille. Witness then called Mr. Shephard, whose room was next to witnesse's. Lund then went to the wash-stand and produced a certain instrument and accused Hill of the crime. The latter denied the charge. Witness did not use the five-pound hammer he had carried up stairs to break open Hill's door should he have found it locked. Witness ordered Hill from the house telling him that had he (witness) been a good man, Hill might have been seriously injured. Mr. Shephard took the hammer from witness. Witness was very much enraged and would have thrown Hill's trunk out of the window but that the latter said he would go away at once. Witness charged his wife with having made use of certain instruments which she denied. Witness afterwards found the instrument in a wash-stand drawer Mrs. Lund admitted to witness that she had criminal intimacy with Hill five or six times. After the discovery of the pair in flagrante delicto, Johnson had a conversation with Mrs. Lund relating to the affair. This conversation had a conciliatory effect upon the feelings of witness and Mrs. Lund was told by him that she could go up-stairs. She did so and entered Mr. Shepherd's room. That gentleman asked her if she had anything to say to him. She told Mr. Shepherd that she had been criminally intimate with Hill on New Year's night. Mr. Shepherd took down this evidence in writing. Mrs. Lund further admitted to other occasions with Hill in the rooms down stairs. She denied having cohabited with Hill that night although found in his bed. Mrs. Lund asked witness, "Are you going to put me through the court?" he replied, "Lena, I don't know what to do with you."

Cross-examined by Mr. Wilson.—Was married at the age of 35; his wife being 18 years old. A long courtship had preceded the marriage, which was with the consent of the parents of the bride. Rev. E. Robson married them. The bride staid at home the night of the ceremony. She was brought down by her father. The third night after the marriage, the mother-in-law was angry with witness for marrying so hurriedly. There was a mutual agreement between witness and his wife after the birth of their fourth child that they should sleep apart. This was carried out by both parties, until Mrs. Lund, becoming tired of the arrangement, induced her husband, by a stratagem, to return to her. Since the birth of the last child in November, 1888, the overtures, however, had come from witness, and he had been refused by his wife on every occasion. The trench which he had dug to conduct his observations was nine or ten feet long and about two feet deep. Hill had never been ordered out of the house when found sitting and conversing with Mrs. Lund. It was a common thing for the household to gather in the sitting-room, Hill and Shepherd being of the party. Witness never had any suspicion of Shepherd, therefore had never watched him. Until the 22nd of December witness had had the greatest confidence in his wife. After that he set about verifying the suspicions then aroused.

The case was proceeding as we went to press.
