KILLED BY FALLING TREE

Wm. Kelly Meets An Untimely Death.

NEAR LAMB CREEK CAMP

Was Rolling on Skidway and somehow Failed to Get out of the Way.

William Kelly, a lumberjack working for the Porto Rico Lumber company, was killed outright last Wednesday about noon by a falling tree while working in the camp on Lamb creek about five miles from town. Kelly was rolling logs on the skidway while some other men were falling trees. A tree was fallen which struck a dead tree and this fell across the skidway. The man was warned to get out of the way, but apparently either did not heed or hear the warning. The other men working with Kelly got out of the way and escaped. The body of the unfortunate man was brought to town and the coroner summoned. The coroner did not think an inquest necessary and issued a burial permit. The funeral was held Friday afternoon and in charge of E. T. Marion of the Cranbrook Undertaking parlors. The service was conducted by Rev. Thos. Sowerbutts.

Kelly was about 24 years of age and was a native of Greenore, Ont., where his parents now reside. He had worked about two months for the Porto Rico Lumber Co.

MINERS HAD BIG DANCE

Seventh Anniversary Observed.

McGREGOR HALL FILLED

Movie stands as Probably the Best Organized camp in B. C.

True to its previous record the annual dance given by the Moyie Miners' Union on December 12th was a gratifying success. The hall was nicely filled when the grand march was called at 9:30 o'clock. The dances followed in quick succession until midnight, when all repaired to the Hotel Kootenay and sat down to an excellent spread. After returning to the hall the merry crowd tripped the light fantastic until nearly three a. m. Music was furnished by local talent and R. O. Patterson gave splendid satisfaction as master of ceremonies.

Moyie Miners' Union No. 71 stands as one of the strongest unions in the Kootenays, and Moyie probably stands as the best organized camp in the province. The union has over 300 members in good standing and is in good condition financially. As an evidence of good work it is doing the books show that during the past eight months $1,951 was paid out in sick and funeral benefits. The present officers of the union are J. L. Gibbons, president; Jos. Maclaren, vice-president and Jas. Roberts, secretary.

Christmas Program.

An entertainment will be provided for the Sunday school children of the Presbyterian church in McGregor hall on the evening of December 26.

The Methodists will have their entertainment on Christmas night in their church. There will be a treat for each of the children. They are getting up a cantata in which the children will take part.

At the Catholic church there will be a Christmas tree and the usual midnight mass. At this service solos will be sung by A. P. Macdonald, Mrs. Goupill Mrs. Bonner and Mr. Jones.

Banquet for Kamm.

E. O. Kamm, chief accountant at the St. Eugene office, will leave tomorrow for Trail, where he will be married the following day. His many Moyie friends will tender him a banquet at the Hotel Kootenay this evening.

Gus King Building Mill.

G. A. King, who is now in Spokane, has taken charge of a big lead property in the Metaline district and is drawing plans for a concentrator, which he will begin erecting about the first of the year. It will be a 200 ton mill.

News from Creston.

Last Sunday, Dec. 9th, a lumberjack, whose name is not known, was struck by the C. P. R. locomotive on the westbound express. The man was going on towards Erickson walking the track with a bundle of blankets and whether weary or what he laid across the metals and before the engine could be drawn up he was struck. He was put on the train for Nelson but succumbed on the way to Kootenay Landing and was buried in Creston on Monday.

Friday, Dec. 7th, a grand Social evening was held in the school house under the auspices of the Methodist church, and turned out to be an all round success. The concert commenced at 8 p. m. Mrs. Rose kindly presided at the organ. The talent was good considering the locality. Among the artists were Rev. T. Sowerbutts, Mr. Sheltoe, Miss Olive Ryckman and others.

C. O. Demaurez, the well know watchmaker of Fernie, will be at J. J. Murphy's store in Moyie every pay week. adv.

LONDON—Lead, £19 7s. 6d.

Kingsgate Is Lively.

D. J. Elmer, mine host of the Royal hotel at Kingsgate, was in Moyie for a day this week looking after his business interests.

"Kingsgate is becoming quite a busy place," says Mr. Elmer, "and I am will pleased for locating there. The business has outgrown the present hotel accomodations and I am commencing at once the erection of a new hotel building, which will be 40x70 feet in size. When passenger trains begin running we must be prepared to accommodate the traveling public. There will be a lunch counter in connection. I am told that trains will be running by the 24th of December.

"We need a postoffice at Kingsgate and we are working to have one established."

Vancouver Island Boom.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy states it is the intention of the Canadian Pacific Railway company ultimately in keeping with its program of development on Vancouver island to establish a port of call for the oriental liners at a good harbor on the Vancouver island coast and build a railway across to Victoria or Seymour narrows to facilitate the transportation of mails and cabin assengers of the far east in the journey across the continent. The securing of a northern port by the C. P. R. and the C. N. R forces the C. P. R. to stretch further west than Vancouver if it is not to be crowded out of the race. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy recognizes this, and will use every endeavor to keep pace with them.

Buying More Mines.

James Cronin is again branching out into mining. This week he and N. J. Cavanaugh of Sandon bought the Victoria group of claims near Beasley siding, west of Nelson. The price paid was $100,000, which included some water rights and 320 acres of land. For fifteen long years the property has been located and it has been frequently bonded only to be cast aside, sometimes by well known experts. It is estimated that there are 200,000 tons of copper ore in sight.

Her Sister's Betrothed

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Author of "A Woman's Vengeance," "Which Loved Him Best," "Between Two Loves," "Fairy Gold," Etc.

"It was about that time, then, that you understood what others had long, long aware of—that is, that M. d'Ancel was in love with your sister and desired to marry her?"

"Yes, Monsieur."

"In that case, would it not have been more simple to have had a frank explanation with Mme. d'Ancel? Did you not fear to compromise your reputation by giving a rendezvous to a young man who was supposed to be your fiance?"

Marthe's face turned a trifle paler. After a silence that seemed an eternity, she replied, with a great effort:

"I had grave and personal reasons to act as I did. You must realize Monsieur, that in declaring that I gave a secret rendezvous, knowing the interpretation that might be placed on this meeting, I am not doing an indifferent thing—that I suffer. It seems to me I might well be believed!"

For the first time her calmness was visibly troubled, there was a tremor in her voice, like a suppressed cry of torture and anguish. A sympathizing murmur arose from the crowd.

"Do you not see, Mademoiselle, that this half avowal gives a terrible likelihood to the hypothesis mentioned a few moments ago? To many women, a falsehood under such circumstances is not only excusable but heroic."

"And yet," cried the poor girl, "I have not lied!"

"Admit that you are telling the truth. What time did you go into the park?"

"I had given a rendezvous to Robert for half past three, but, although I went down a little before three, I found him already there when I reached the cross."

"All these details seem well fixed in your memory?"

"They are indeed!"

"No one saw you going out or coming in?"

"No one."

"It is a pity, Mademoiselle, a great pity. I need not tell you how respected and honored you are personally by all who know you, and I assure you that your testimony will have weight with the jury. But if you had the least proof, however slight, to support your words—"

"Then," cried Marthe, in a vibrating voice, "then the accusation would prove groundless?"

"Evidently. But that proof?"

"That proof exists, Monsieur!"

A stifled exclamation arose from every throat. And above this murmur, Marthe heard a woman's sob. Her strength almost deserted her, she recognized Edmee in that weeping woman. She was evidently there with her mother-in-law, lost in the throng, anxiously watching the testimony that would decide Robert's fate. The chalice was full; she must drink it to the dregs!

Order was re-established, and the president once more turned to Marthe.

"What proof have you, Mademoiselle?"

It was only after several unsuccessful efforts that she succeeded in answering. At last, in a monotonous and weary voice, as if she were repeating a lesson learned by heart, she said, painfully:

"I understand, Monsieur, that you admit, as proofs, the account books of merchants, well kept registers, and even household accounts."

"It is true."

"The proof that I bring is my diary; that is, the register of my hidden thoughts, of my most secret sentiments. In it you will find the incidents of July 29th very minutely described. After reading it no one can doubt my veracity."

Instinctively she turned her head. Robert's ardent gaze acted as magnetism. There was nothing to conceal now. Even before the reading of these sheets, Robert understood the extent of the sacrifice, knew that he had been loved, adored by this poor misunderstood young girl. He saw all this on her agonized face. And in that long gaze, she read to the depths of his soul and realized that he knew, that he bowed down before her in spirit, that he blessed her! She saw, also, in this supreme moment, it was not of Edmee he thought, although her sobs had revealed her presence there, but of her, of her only. That instant repaid her for all.

Yet, when the president asked for the diary, she retained it for a moment longer, loath to part with it.

"May I ask, Monsieur, that only the parts absolutely necessary shall be read. I suffer much—"

She could not finish her phrase, but all had understood.

"I give you my word, Mademoiselle. But to prove to the gentlemen of the jury that this is not a manuscript fabricated or the occasion, I shall have to read a few passages taken at random during the months that preceded the day of the crime. Moreover," he added as he turned the pages, "the color of the ink, paler in many places, is a conclusive proof that this journal was written at different times. I see that it dates back to nearly two years ago."

During the reading, she remained motionless, almost as white as a marble statue. It seemed to her that life was dying out within her, that each instant left her colder, that the blood was freezing in her veins. She listened to the expressionless voice of the clerk as he read aloud that all might hear the despairing avowals, the cries of passion, she had written for herself only. Sometimes, the sense did not penetrate into her tired brain, then again it seemed to her that the words re-echoed within her with piercing accents:

"My little Edmee, my darling child, if you knew, if you could guess the thoughts that struggle within me!—Are you really what you seem? But what matters! since you possess that all-powerful charm; since I, though doubting and questioning, still love you; since to spare you a tear, I would weep day and night; since to give you happiness, I would accept perpetual sadness and despair—"

And then again:

"My God! my God! how I suffer! how unhappy I am! how I wish I could die! He called me sister. Was it simply a commonplace word of affection, or was it said with a particular intention? Am I not destined to become his sister some day? Alas!—"

And now her secret belonged to the world. It would be tossed about amidst peals of laughter as children toss a toy balloon filled with air. She could never appear before the world without the remembrance of this cruel day standing as a wall between herself and those who gazed at her. And that was nothing. Robert knew that he had been loved; Edmee knew it also. And nothing, nothing could make them forget this sad love!

Yet, in spite of all, in spite of her personal sufferings, her sacrifice brought her infinite sweetness. Robert was saved and saved by her.

When the reading was at last terminated, a feeling of numbness came over her, and without a cry she fell heavily to the floor.

Marthe Levasseur was very ill, but she did not die. Her aunt nursed her day and night, suffering no one to approach the bedside where her niece, a prey to an ardent fever, talked wildly; her brain ever busy, her eyes haggard and frightened, as if pursued by a nameless terror.

Robert and his young wife no longer thought of the proposed journey. They came every day to the chateau, where they saw no one but the servants. At last, one morning, they were told that the danger was over, that the delirium had ceased. As they refused to leave without seeing Mme. Despois, she appeared, very cold and distant, scarcely deigning to answer their questions.

"It is true the doctor has hopes," she said. "The delirium has ceased. Do you know what she repeats incessantly: O, aunt why did you save me? I long so much for death; I am so weary; I have spent all my strength!" I believe I preferred her delirium to this cry."

"If you knew, Aunt Relie, how much I have wept," murmured Edmee.

"You can do that without effort," said Mme. Despois, dryly.

"I know you will never forgive me. All that has happened is not my fault, and yet without me it would not have been."

Aunt Relie remained inflexible and silent. Robert instinctively threw his arm around Edmee and said:

"I am sure that Marthe is less harsh to this child than you."

"In fact, Robert, she never once mentioned you in her delirium. It was Edmee she called incessantly, as if in the crisis she had gone through, all had foundered, except that instinct of maternity, that need of loving which has cost her so much—"

Before she could be prevented, Edmee escaped from the room, ran wildly up the stairs, and entered the sick chamber from which she had so long been excluded. When Mme. Despois reached it in her turn, followed by Robert, Edmee was kneeling beside the bed, and Marthe, radiant and with eyes sparkling with happiness, was caressing her with her weak, trembling hand.

"I understand it all now," stammered the younger sister, "and will try all my life to remember that there is something above happiness—Tell me that you forgive me, tell me what I can do to merit this forgiveness some day."

"But I have nothing to forgive you, my little Edmee. I have loved you, that is all. Some day, if you have many children, you will give me one—a blonde little girl. I will bring her up and love her so much. There is within me a sentiment of maternal love—"

The young couple finally left for Italy, where their stay was indefinitely prolonged. On the advice of the physician, Marthe also left her dear solitude and went with her aunt to Algeria. She felt the need of leaving the spot, for some time at least, where she had suffered so much.

She recovered her physical strength long before the wounds in her heart closed, but the cure came at last. Marthe acquired a taste for traveling, and her aunt, who was fond of a change, encouraged her. More than a year passed thus, and Marthe recovered her former serenity and was almost contented.

A few months after Robert's acquittal, Captain Bertrand's murderer was discovered. He was a poor soldier who had deserted, exasperated by the harshness of his captain. While almost dying of starvation, he had entered a house with the intention of robbing, and, finding a revolver, the idea immediately came to him to kill the man who was the cause of all his troubles. Later, being arrested for desertion and burglary, he related how he had avenged himself on his commander.

When Marthe finally returned to Cote Boisee, spring was in its full splendor. Mme. d'Ancel was the first to come to the chateau to greet her. There was a moment of embarrassment, but Mme. Despois began to talk rapidly of their travels, and the constraint soon melted away. Marthe was so cordially simple and natural that the past seemed far away and forgotten.

Again, as two years before, the young chatelaine accompanied the visitor to the end of the park. Again while they walked on, their gaze wandered over the sea, the graceful curve of the yellow shore, the thin silhouette of the distant Havre. They seemed equally happy to see each other, to feel the old friendship re-awakening. Mme. d'Ancel, not daring to express all her thoughts, displayed infinite tenderness in her least words, in her least gestures, and Marthe understood it all. It was, however, with a faint tremor in her voice that she finally said:

"Robert has promised to spend part of the summer with me—"

"Edmee mentioned it in her last letter," observed Marthe, with a quiet smile. "She is very proud at the thought of presenting me her little son. But she gives very few details."

And that was all.

When Marthe found herself alone, she seated herself on the bank by the roadside, breathing the odor of the pines warmed by the sun and gazing far away.

Yes, she would see Edmee and Robert once more!

Of all that violent tempest that had swept over their heads, what remained? Neither Robert, Edmee nor herself could forget. But little by little, almost insensibly, the remembrance was becoming less painful and assuming a different character. After a first burst of passionate gratitude, Edmee had again been invaded by a disquieting jealousy, of which she dared not speak, but which her husband understood. Then feeling herself still adored always tenderly petted, what was best in her nature slowly developed. Once in her letters, generally so short and commonplace, she had said: "I believe that I am becoming better, more serious—I owe that to you, Marthe, as I owe you my happiness—"

It was of this Marthe was thinking as she gazed on the blue and smiling sea. Then she arose and walked slowly through the budding forest. The young verdure, so tender in color, the thousand blossoms that filled the air with fragrance, the warbling of the birds, all that spoke to her! Telling her that cruel winter, like sorrow, is not eternal; that all recommences, all aspires toward happiness, and that this happiness comes under many forms.

Her sacrifice would not be fruitless. Having suffered much, she had learned to feel deeply the suffering of others. What mattered the rest? She yearned for death no longer, as she had done during that horrible crisis. She loved life, notwithstanding the shade of sadness which she could not completely throw off, and which had nothing of bitterness, and she found it good to live. Of all the sentiments that had tortured her, there now remained only an infinite sweetness and a passionate desire to see those she loved happy and noble.

And peace having thus come, she regretted nothing.

THE END.

Sun Baths.

Sun baths cost nothing and are the most refreshing, life giving baths that one can take, whether sick or well. Every housekeeper knows the necessity of giving her woollens the benefit of the sun from time to time, and especially after a long rainy season or a long absence of the sun. Many will think of the injury their clothes are liable to from dampness who will never reflect that an occasional exposure of their own bodies to the sunlight is equally necessary to their own health. The sun baths do not cost anything, and that is a misfortune, for people are still deluded with the idea that those things only can be good or useful which cost money. Let it not be forgotten that three of God's most beneficent gifts to man (three things most necessary to good health), sunlight, fresh air and water, are free to all. You can have them in abundance, without money and without price, if you will. If you would enjoy good health then see to it that you are supplied with pure air to breathe all the time, that you bathe for an hour or so in the sunlight and that you drink plenty of pure water.

The Voltaire of the East.

Omar Khayyam was a famous Persian poet and mathematician in the twelfth century, who was employed by the Sultan Malik Shah in revising the astronomical tables and in making a thorough reform of the calendar. He is better known to us as the writer of some 500 epigrams in verses of four lines which are unsurpassed in their pure diction, fine wit and crushing satire. These clever and fascinating quatrains were put into English by Edward Fitzgerald, who in 1859 published "The Rubaiyat of Omar," a rendering marked by exquisite melodiousness and by poetic insight and power. Omar has been called the Voltaire of the east because of his brilliant and pungent wit, while his depth of tenderness and profound thought and his denunciation of the fate which dooms to decay and death what is best and most beautiful in the world reveals much that reminds one of Byron, Swinburne and sometimes Schopenhauer.

Crystal Sky Columns.

An explanation of a curious optical phenomenon, sometimes witnessed on frosty nights, which is called the "pseudo aurora," is offered by a scientist. The phenomenon takes the form of beautiful columns of silvery light standing over electric arc lamps and other bright lights and sometimes appearing almost to reach the zenith. The scientist says that sometimes the evening star has a bright shaft below as well as above, while the rising moon stands in a broad column of light. These appearances are due to floating frost crystals which keep their reflecting faces horizontal. On examination he found that the crystals concerned in the exhibition were thin six sided plates of ice, never more than one millimeter in diameter. When the wind blows, these little plates are upset, and the columns of light caused by reflection from their surfaces disappear.

Greatest of All Cacti.

The greatest as well as the commonest of all cacti is the "soap weed," which grows wherever cacti grow and which is man's only friend in the great southwestern deserts of the United States and in Mexico. It furnishes always a quantity of water when cut. As its name indicates, it can be manufactured into a soap, perhaps the least alkaline soap ever made, even though the weed itself may grow in the center of an alkali desert. Beer is brewed from it, the Indians make a hemplike fiber from it, and horses and men can eat parts of it if the spines are cut away; also when it shoots up its one great arm skyward it tops that arm with one of the most gorgeous flowers in the world.—Argonaut.

New England Arguments.

To argue is as necessary to a New Englander as to eat and to sleep. By nature he rejoices in the opposite side of every question, and he prefers broad, general questions of which he knows only what the daily paper tells him. If he is alone he will argue with himself, and often he will prove to himself that he is wrong and that the argument by which he proves it is faulty.—From "The Balance of Power," by Arthur Goodrich.

"Demicked."

If an American student of etymology should travel through Yorkshire he would be surprised and puzzled at hearing the natives say, "Them taters is demicked." By diligent inquiry he would find out that when the first potato blight came the farmers heard it called an "epidemic," and that since then they have readjusted the word to their own uses.

Chapped Hands and Chilblains.

Zam-Buk a Certain Cure

For chapped hands, cold sores, chilblains etc., there is nothing so effective as Zam-Buk. Mrs. H. H. Rankin, of Appin, (Ont.) says:—

"My hands had big cracks on them which caused me such pain I could hardly work. Whenever I tried to put them near the water they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. They did not seem to be benefited by anything I tried until Zam-Buk was introduced. To my great pleasure within a very short time the Zam-Buk closed up the cracks and healed the sore places. My hands are now white and smooth.

"I recommended Zam-Buk to a friend, too. I think it a splendid household ointment."

Miss E. Heintzman, of Ossington avenue, Toronto, says: "I would advise all who suffer from chilblains to try Zam-Buk. I have suffered from them acutely, and was suffering when I first tried Zam-Buk. I am pleased to say I had only used about three-quarters of the supply when the chilblains were completely cured."

Zam-Buk is a cure for cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, festering sores, bad leg, ringworm, and all skin diseases and injuries. It is purely herbal in composition. All druggists sell at 50c a box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Six boxes for $2.50.

WASHINGTON'S DEATH.

There Was Not Very Much of a "Mystery" About It.

Clement K. Shorter, an English writer of more or less distinction, surprised everybody recently by printing in a London newspaper an article in which he asserted there was a mystery surrounding the death of General George Washington about which Americans hesitated to talk. If there be a mystery we should like to know what it is.

George Washington caught cold when riding over his plantation at Mount Vernon on the afternoon of Dec. 12, 1799. Forty-eight hours later he died.

He was attended by three of the best physicians of that part of the country. He was bled no less than three times to relieve a sore throat, and he was dosed with calomel enough to deprive a healthy man of his life. But what is the mystery?

Enlightened physicians frequently assert that General Washington was killed—that he was bled to death and poisoned with calomel. Tobias Lear, his secretary, says that after the doctor had bled him to the extent of half a pint Washington interrupted with the remark: "The gash is not big enough. Make it wider." And the highly trained professional idiot proceeded to do so. "Does your throat feel any better?" asked the learned leech. "It's very sore," murmured Washington. When the second physician arrived Mrs. Washington tried to stay his murderous hand by protesting that "the general was too old a man to stand much bleeding." "Yes, yes," said the mighty doctor No. 2. "I'll be cautious in blood letting."

And then he proceeded straight to rob his country's father of a full pint of life's most precious fluid. When the third physician had come he rolled his eyes solemnly and said, "I will bleed him." "We both tried that," said the other doctors. "Yes, I know," announced the consulting sage, "but if blood letting does not relieve him I must increase the dose of calomel." After the third bleeding—in which we are not surprised to learn that Washington's arm yielded its life fluid more slowly than it had before—the sore throat continued in spite of the last consulting doctor, and when his wearied body failed to respond to a heroic overdose of calomel the two consulting physicians retired and left Washington to die. Is there any mystery in his death?—Utica Observer.

One Kitchen to a Block.

A co-operative kitchen in the middle of every block to serve all the residents of that block is the latest solution offered for the eternal problem that faces every housekeeper. The plan seems feasible in view of the fact that the new Art club studios have a kitchen in common for the use of a small army of students who occupy bachelor apartments. It has been suggested by economists that a large kitchen be established in every block and that the place be under the direction of a chef, with several assistants. The housewife could take her food there to be cooked, thus saving the price of fuel and keeping the house free from the odor of cookery and besides in many cases dispensing with the cost of dyspepsia tablets and pepsin.—New York Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Reprocessing.

"Reprocessing" is one of the many gentle arts practiced by the people who supply the American nation with food. When canned stuffs spoil they are subjected to treatment that destroys the outward appearances of decay, but makes the food no more fit for consumption, than it was before. The process is applied chiefly to fruits, which are sold after renovation to bakeries and such places, to be made into pies and similar articles. Spoiled fruits are also made into soda fountain sirups. "Reprocessing" plants sometimes constitute a separate department of a factory, and sometimes they are run as an independent institution, which buys up spoiled foods and converts them into marketable products.—New York Tribune.

Wood Coloring.

A considerable industry has recently been developed in Sweden on the basis of an invention made by Joseph Thister, an Austrian, whereby coloring matter is forced into fresh cut wood. It takes the place of the sap and gives to the wood a brilliant color, which does not fade after the wood has become seasoned. Birch, beech, alder, maple, elm and basswood are the varieties most successfully treated. The dye can be forced through lengths of wood as great as thirteen feet. When seasoned and polished the colored wood presents a beautiful appearance and is used for making furniture and also for the fittings of ships and street cars.

Royalty Made No Difference.

King Haakon when he first joined the Danish navy was treated exactly like any other boy. The chief purser issued his mess gear, consisting of an iron knife and fork, a tin spoon, two tin plates and a zinc mug. On his way back to quarters the lad stumbled while going up a ladder, and all these things went flying over the deck, waking the chief gunner from a nap and bringing down on himself a volley of abuse. He then acted as mess boy for the other apprentices and had to fetch their soup, wash the plates and clean up generally.—Philadelphia Record.

Look Out For 1907.

A lama living at Lassa has issued a series of predictions for 1907. "The king of the year," he says, "is Saturn, under whose malign influence meritorious people will suffer and thieves will prosper. Great disorder will prevail. The rich will satisfy their hunger at the expense of the poor, and the earth will quake thrice."

Pepper.

Black and white pepper are from the same round seed of a tropical plant. The white is ground after the black outer skin has been removed. That is the only difference. The white is considered less irritating to the stomach. It is also preferred for dishes consisting of cream and milk, such as oyster stews, creamed potatoes and the like.

Where can I get some of Holloway's Corn Cure? I was entirely cured of my corns by this remedy and I wish some more of it for my friends. So writes Mr. J. W. Brown, Chicago.

A Washington special to the Chicago Tribune says: Once again the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads are under suspicion by the government of violating the anti-trust law.

They Never Knew Failure—Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these Pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the Pills and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

A Capitalist.

A Washington sociologist who has been examining into the condition of the children of the poor whites in the South tells a story of how they are employed in the mills. In Statesboro, N.C., he got talking with a hale and hearty looking citizen, who sat on a dry goods box whittling a stick. "What do you do for a living?" asked the sociologist. "Wall, stranger," accommodatingly replied the hospitable tarheel, "I don't have to do nothin' for a livin' these days, seein' as how I have five bend of gals a-workin' in the cotton factory."

Often what appear to be the most trivial occurrences of life prove to be the most momentous. Many are disposed to regard a cold as a slight thing, deserving of little consideration, and this neglect often results in most serious ailments entailing years of suffering. Drive out colds and coughs with Bickle's Anti-Consumption Syrup, the recognized remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

WOMAN'S STRENGTH IS OVERTAXED

By Work and Worry, but Good Health is Restored by ## Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

With her strength overtaxed by too much work many a woman finds herself weak, nervous, and exhausted, subject to indigestion and headaches and spells of discouragement and despondency.

Under such circumstances Dr. Chase's Nerve Food comes as a blessing of great value, bringing new hope and confidence and restoring vitality to the blood and nerves. Dizziness, heart disturbances, pale, bloodless appearance, smothering, choking sensations, heavy heart beating and palpation are some of the symptoms which give way before the persistent use of this great food cure. The appetite is sharpened, digestion is improved, the form is rounded out to healthful proportions and there is added strength and vigor to replace weakness and disease.

Mrs. John Armstrong, Heather Line, Alta., was in very poor health for over four years after the birth of her first child. She was what might be called a nervous wreck, weak, down-hearted and discouraged. Writing for her, Mrs. D. D. Burger, a friend, of the same place, states: "Mrs. Armstrong had great weakness, heart trouble and indigestion. In fact she was run down in every way and seemed to lose all hope of ever getting well again. She was scarcely able to drag herself about.

"The persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has proven of marvellous benefit to her. She feels real well now, is looking fine and fleshing up, so that one would hardly take her for the same person. You may use her name in recommendation of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for we are all very grateful for what it has done for her and never lose an opportunity of saying a good word for it."

For men who are suffering from headaches, indigestion and sleeplessness, for women who besides these symptoms suffer from weaknesses and irregularities of the delicate feminine organism, for children who are pale, weak and puny, there is, we believe, no preparation extant which will bring about such satisfactory results as the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

For Improvement of Seed.

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution will be made this season of samples of superior sorts of grain to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed stock for distribution is of the very best and has been secured mainly from the excellent crops recently grown at the branch experimental farms at Indian Head, Sask., and at Brandon, Man. The distribution will consist of samples of oats, spring wheat, barley, Indian corn (for ensilage only) and potatoes. The quantity of seeds to be sent will be 4 lbs. and of wheat or barley, 5 lbs., sufficient in each case to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn and potatoes will weigh 3 lbs. each. A quantity of each of the following varieties has been secured for this distribution:

Oats—Banner, Wide Awake, White Giant, Danish Island, Thousand Dollar, Improved Liwogo (white varieties) and Goldfinder (yellow).

Wheat—Red fife, Preston, Pringle's Champlain, Percy, Stanley, Huron and White Fife.

Barley—Six rowed—Mensury, Odessa, Mansfield and Claude. Two-rowed—Standwell, Invincible, Canadian Thorpe and Sidney.

Indian Corn (for ensilage)—Early Orts, Angel of Midnight, Compton's Early and Longfellow (later varieties) Selected Leaming, Early Mastodon and White Cap Yellow Dent.

Potatoes—Carman No. 1, Early White Prize, Rochester Rose, Money Maker and Late Puritan.

Only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barley or potatoes. Lists of names from one individual, or applications for more than one sample for one household cannot be entertained. The samples will be sent free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time before the 15th of February after which the lists will be closed, so that the samples asked for may be sent out in good time for sowing. Applicants should mention the variety they prefer, with a second sort as an alternative. Applications will be filled in the order in which they are received, so long as the supply of seed lasts. Farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. Those applying for Indian corn or potatoes will please bear in mind that the corn is not usually distributed until March, and that potatoes cannot be mailed from here until danger from frost in transit is over. No postage is required on mail matter addressed to the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

ACHING KIDNEYS

Made Sound and Strong by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There is probably no one in the town of Paris, Ont., who does not know Mr. Samuel G. Robinson and who will not readily accept his word when he says that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured him of an obstinate case of kidney trouble after other treatment had failed to give him more than temporary relief. To a reporter of the Star-Transcript Mr. Robinson freely gave permission to publish a statement of his case in the hope that his experience might benefit some other sufferer. He said: "I have suffered from kidney trouble for about three years. Sometimes my back ached so severely that I was unable to work and at times it was almost impossible for me to straighten up. I had to urinate very frequently and often had to get up several times during the night. At different times I was under the care of doctors, but I only got relief for a time. I also tried a number of medicines and back-ache plasters, but none of them helped me and I began to think the trouble could not be cured. One day during a conversation with a friend, he asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, saying that he had used them and they had done him much good. I decided to try the pills and it was not long before I felt greatly benefited. I continued using the pills for some time longer, and I am glad to say that every vestige of the trouble has disappeared, and I am now as well as ever. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a blessing to me and I gladly recommend them to anyone similarly afflicted.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest cure in the world for all the common ailments of men and women—for all weakness and weariness and back-aches, and headaches of anaemia; al the heaviness and distress of indigestion; all the pains and aches of rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia and all the ill health that follows any disturbance of regularity in the blood supply. All these ailments are caused by bad blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich, red blood. They strike straight at the common root of disease. But you must get the genuine pills with the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around each box. Sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by all dealers or the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MILK A PERFECT FOOD.

Contains Flesh Formers and Heat Makers in Proper Proportions—Valancey E. Fuller's Ideas.

While "man cannot live by bread alone," bread in this connection meaning food, neither can he live without food, but his development and health depend not on the quantity he eats, but on the portion of that quantity which he digests. He must digest what will build up the tissues of the body, give animal heat and also muscular power. These foods which will do the first office are called flesh formers, and those which furnish heat and power are called heat makers. All foods contain one of the three requisites, and sometimes all, in varying proportions, says Valancey E. Fuller, lecturer on sanitary milk, New York State Farmers' Institute.

The only complete and perfect food is milk. In it are flesh formers and heat makers in the right proportions properly balanced. The same can be said—of no other food. Those who have lived on farms know that pasture is a perfect food for cattle, and that if any other food is given them in its place it must be balanced by other foods. Milk, is like pasture. It is a perfectly balanced ration in itself, and there is no necessity of partaking of any other food unless we desire it. This accounts for the fact that we can live and do a hard day's work on milk alone, for milk contains all of the nutritive ingredients needed for food and is thoroughly and easily digested. The longevity of the Hungarian mountaineers, who live on milk and whey, is well known.

A quart of good milk contains as much digestive nutrients as are contained in one pound of beef chuck, one pound of fowl, one pound of veal shoulder, one-half pound of beef loin, one half pound of beef ribs, one half pound of mutton leg, nine ounces of veal cutlets, nine ounces of veal loin, two pounds of codfish, two pounds five ounces of solid oysters, two pounds five ounces of bluefish or one pound five ounces of potatoes.

Why Metals Float.

It is a remarkable fact that if a small rod of iron—a straight piece of wire, for instance—is greased, it can be made to float on water. The grease apparently prevents the breaking of the surface of the water, and the iron lies cradled in a slight depression or trough.

Recently one of the United States Government scientists at Washington, experimenting with rods and rings of iron, tin, copper, brass, platinum, aluminium, German silver, etc., found that all metals, even the densest, will float on water when their surfaces are chemically clean. A perfectly clean piece of copper or platinum wire, for example, forms a trough for itself on the surface of the water just as if it was greased. The same is true of a small rod of glass.

The official in question believes the floating is due to a film of air condensed on the surface of the glass or metal, because if the rod is heated to redness and as soon as it cools is placed on water it will sink, but if it is exposed to the air for a short time it will float.

A Boer War Romance.

When the Boer war was waging the ladies of Guelph engaged with thousands of others throughout the Dominion in making articles of wearing apparel to send to comfort the boys in hospitals in South Africa. Among those performing this charitable work was a young lady, Annie Callander, eldest daughter of Alex. Callander, "Hillcrest." She was seized by a whim to place her name and address on a night gown she was making. This ultimately reached a soldier named Thomas Huby of Sheffield, England, and when convalescing in the hospital, he wrote to the address given, thanking the donor of the garment for her interest in the cause. From this originated a correspondence which culminated in the marriage of the two. Recently Mr. Huby came over to Halifax, where he is now stationed. The betrothal of the couple followed, and at the home of the bride's father on Thanksgiving Day the Rev. L. L. Thomas performed the ceremony.

An Outworn System.

"There is no excuse for retaining the credit system to-day. It was necessary when the country was new and settlers hard up but it is not necessary to-day, and the interest of both buyer and seller would be enhanced if it was abolished." This from The Bruce Times is sound sense. The credit system in retail trade simply means that those who pay for their goods have also to pay for the goods of those who never pay. Considering the loss there is through the keeping of books, the bad debts made by giving credit to one and refusing another, beside the inevitable loss by bad debts, it is a wonder that retail merchants do not simply put an end to the practice and by refusing to sell on credit show that they prefer to have the goods rather than a lot of bad debts.

Novel Postal Strike.

Because the postal administration has imposed a duty of 5 pfennigs instead of 2 on postal cards intended for urban delivery the citizens of Hanover have inaugurated a singular strike against the postal authorities. Instead of writing postal cards they all write letters, and, not satisfied with sending their effusions in an envelope, they fill it with newspaper so as to bring the weight of the letter to the maximum of 250 grams. As the envelopes they now use are of the maximum size tolerated, it is easy to obstruct a letter box with only a dozen of such missives. The postal authorities are alarmed at this obstruction of the postal service, and it is probable that the former tariff of 2 pfennigs on postal cards will have to be re-established.

What Restrained Him.

A stranger in a small town wanted the advice of a lawyer and as he was hunting for one one day he came upon a sign which read, "A. Swindle, Attorney at Law."

He entered the office and after receiving the necessary advice said that the lawyer was a fine man, but he wanted to know why he made his name sound so ridiculous and why he did not put his first name in full.

"I would," replied the lawyer, laughing, "if my first name were not Adam."

The Shoes of China.

The shoes worn by the natives in China are made with leather or cotton cloth soles, above which is a layer of rags or paper or feathers, with cotton cloth next to the foot. The uppers are made of cotton sheetings or shirtings, Italians, satins or velvets, dyed either black or blue. Such shoes cost from 25 cents to 70 cents a pair, in gold.

The English Language.

English is spoken by about 150,000,000, and Spanish by about 50,000,000 people. The difference is not due to any inherent superiority of the English language, but to the superiority of the English stock. The English not only have the greater genius for commercial and political co-operation and colonizing, but they have, as well, built up their institutions on an enduring basis of righteousness and respect for law. Spanish is incomparably more musical than English and is practically phonetic, while English is handicapped by its arbitrary spelling. On the other hand, English is often briefer, though not always. Spanish can say "I shall go" in one word—"Iré." The great advantage of English is its double vocabulary, one of Teutonic and one of Latin origin, which enables it to make nice distinctions. It has also acquired the power to assimilate words from every language under the sun. These facts, together with the greater intellectual activity of the English race in many fields of human endeavor, have swelled its vocabulary to startling figures. The "Standard Dictionary" contains over 317,000 words. I do not believe any Spanish dictionary contains half a many.—From "Success Magazine."

Death or Lunacy seemed the only alternative for a well-known and highly respected lady of Wingham, Ont., who had travelled over two continents in a vain search for a cure for nervous debility and dyspepsia. A friend recommended South American Nervine. One bottle helped, six bottles cured, and her own written testimony closes with these words: "It has saved my life."—20

You may succeed when others do not believe in you, but never when you do not believe in yourself.

Do Not Delay.—Do not let a cold or cough fasten upon you as it will if neglected. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will break up a cold and cure a cough, and should be resorted to at once when the first symptoms appear. It can be disguised so that any unpleasant taste it may have will be imperceptible to the delicate. Try it and be convinced.

Man is not merely the architect of his own fortune, but he must also lay the bricks himself.

LITTLE LIVES SAVED.

Many a little life is lost because the mother does not have the means at hand to aid the little one at the first signs of illness. In homes where Baby's Own Tablets are kept the mother always feels a sense of security. These tablets cure colic, indigestion, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babyhood and childhood. Baby's Own Tablets always do good—they cannot possibly do harm. Thousands of mothers keep these tablets in the house and use no other medicine for their children. Mrs. Wm. Brown, Deer Park, Toronto, says: "I find Baby's Own Tablets of the greatest help to my little ones, and would not be without them. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail, at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

He alone is happy who has learned to extract happiness, not from ideal conditions, but from the actual ones about him.

The Rich Man's Goal.

Lorenzo Dow, relates the St. Paul Pioneer Press, on one occasion took he liberty, while preaching, to denounce a rich man in the community, recently deceased. The result was an arrest, a trial for slander, and an imprisonment in the county jail.

After Dow got out of limbo he announced that he should preach at a given time, a sermon about "another rich man." The populace was greatly excited, and a crowded house greeted his appearance.

With great solemnity he opened the Bible and read: "And there was a rich man who died and went to" —— Then, stopping short, and seeming to be suddenly impressed, he continued: Brethren, I shall not mention the place this rich man went to, for fear he has some relatives in this congregation who will sue me for defamation of character."

The effect was irresistible, and he made the impression permanent by taking another text.

MRS. HUNTER'S STORY

Says Results are "Truly Wonderful."

Mrs. I. Hunter, of 111 Raglan Road, Kingston, Ont., says:—"I have suffered with kidney and liver trouble and chronic constipation for some time. I was subject to dizziness, bilious headache, nervousness, drowsiness, pains in the back and side, and a tired, weary feeling nearly all the time.

Mrs. I. Hunter

"I tried almost every medicine, was treated by doctors and druggists with little or no benefit.

"I tried Dr. Leonhardts Anti-Pill, and the results have been truly wonderful. I am so much better. Anti-Pill is a most wonderful remedy."

A New London Hospital.

There is probably no costlier operating-room in the world than that of the hospital opened in London on Nov. 19. The room is made of marble, so as to prevent any accumulation of dust. It has a tessellated floor of Terazzo marble, and the walls are lined with Sicillian marble. Electric heating makes it possible to obtain any desired temperature, and noiseless fans provide ventilation. That the patient may not be frightened by the instruments used in the operation and the presence of so many physicians and medical students, there is an ante-room to the operation hall, where the patient is put under the anaesthetic.—New York Tribune.

EATING CAUSED PAIN

Bileans Removed the Trouble

Mrs. John Whitfield, Swan Lake, Man., says: "I have taken A course of Bileans, and they have done me a wonderful amount of good. I can hardly describe how badly I felt before I took them. I could not eat but what it caused pains. There was a sensation of tightness in my side and my liver was entirely out of order. I could not sleep at nights, suffered also from kidney trouble, and was altogether in a very serious condition. I had been ailing in this way for years, and it is gratifying to find that Bileans were equal to my case.

Bileans cure constipation without causing griping, cures piles, biliousness, indigestion, sick headache, etc., and give strength and energy to run-down systems. All druggists sell at fifty cents a box, or post free from the Bilean Co., Toronto, on receipt of price.

Both the American and British governments are seriously treating the Newfoundland difficulties. There are great hopes that a settlement will be reached before the next fishing season commences.

A Magic Pill—Dyspepsia is a foe with which men are constantly grippling but cannot exterminate. Subdued, and to all appearances vanished in one, it makes its appearance in another direction. In many the digestive apparatus is as delicate as the mechanism of a watch or scientific instrument in which even a breath of air will make a variation. With such persons disorders of the stomach ensue from the most trivial causes and cause much suffering. To these Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are recommended as mild and sure.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Young Jobson is of an exceedingly statistical turn of mind. He got married lately, and at the railway station he had his wife weighed; then he took out a little hand-book and made some calculations, muttering: "Wedding expenses, ——; railway expenses, ——; divide by——. I say, my dear, you have cost me exactly fourpence halfpenny a pound."—Tit-Bits.

South American Kidney Cure is the only kidney treatment that has proven equal to correct all the evils that are likely to befall these physical regulators. Hundreds of testimonials to prove the curative merits of this liquid kidney specific in cases of Bright's disease, diabetes, irritation of the bladder, inflammation, dropsical tendency. ### No Last Words.

Read-Admiral Coghlan, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, whose reputation as a relator of good stories has increased each time he has spoken at a dinner, told a story a few nights ago which was given to illustrate his distaste for being the last speaker.

"Having the last word," the Rear-Admiral said, "reminds me of a story I heard not long ago.

"A certain man died, and a clergyman was engaged to offer an eulogy. This worthy minister prepared a sermon of exceeding length and strength, but just before he entered the parlor to deliver it he thought that it might be advisable to learn what the dead man's last words had been. So he turned to one of the weeping younger sons and asked:

"My boy, can you tell me your father's last words?"

"'He didn't have none,' the boy replied. 'Ma was with him to the end.'"—New York Tribune.

STRENGTH OF THE TIGER.

How This Fierce Brute Kills and Carries Off Its Prey.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game, writes an assistant comptroller of forests at Perah. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken, and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder and nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder, and when the bull turned his head to gore the tiger he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk broken the neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed by a tiger and found the same thing had happened. There were similar marks on the nose and also on the near shoulder, which clearly indicated that this animal had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger killing a buffalo told me they saw the same thing happen; also that in dragging off a heavy carcass, such as buffalo or bull, he gets most of the weight across his shoulder.

This must be fairly correct, as I have often followed a kill, and the marks left indicated that only a portion of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full grown bull which ten men would not move dragged two miles by a tiger in a heavy jungle, where roots of trees and swamp had to be gone through. In no case have I seen the pug marks facing the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves he must carry a portion of the animal over his shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense. Besides, in this country a tiger never faces his prey, but attacks him on the flank, unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem very like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small lamb being tied over a kill about ten feet high, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried, and each time a tiger has come to feed upon the carcass.—London Field.

Copper Kills Noxious Germs.

Copper is a marvelous preventive of disease. If we returned to the old copper drinking vessels of our forefathers, typhoid epidemics would disappear, writes a filtration expert.

Examine a copper cent under the microscope and you will find it altogether free from disease germs. Examine gold and silver coins and you will find them one wriggling and contorting germ mass. Yet copper coins pass through dirtier hands than gold and silver ones. You'd think they'd be alive with micro organisms. But no. Copper kills germs. Diphtheria and cholera cultures smeared on a copper cent die in less than two hours.

The workers in the Revere copper works during the last epidemic of cholera in Massachusetts were immune, though friends and relatives fell on all sides of them. Why were they immune? The copper, with its strange power over disease germs, protected them.

Water alive with cholera and typhoid germs has been placed for an experiment in copper vessels and after standing seven hours this water has been found safe to drink—every germ dead.

We should return to copper drinking vessels. Furthermore, canteens for the use of soldiers and sailors in the tropics, where cholera abounds, should be lined with copper, and thus many a young man's life would be saved.

Copper in the form of copper sulphate will kill off typhoid germs in reservoirs and great bodies of water. It has frequently done so without harming the drinking qualities of the water in any way.

Was Paid $1,000 a Word.

At the Franklin Inn, a literary club of Philadelphia, a young poet, licking his lips, said that Conan Doyle was paid $1 a word.

"That is nothing," said a railroad advertising man. "I know of a case where a man was paid $1,000 a word. Our line used to have at its grade crossings a very long and complicated sign that began, 'Beware of the Engine and Cars,' and then this sign went on with a lot of injunctions and warnings that would have taken five minutes to read.

"In a number of accident cases the claimants for damages declared that our long signs were not clear warnings. Therefore the line decided at last to get a new grade crossing sign, and Judge Paxson was engaged to write one.

"The sign that Judge Paxson wrote cost $1,000 a word, but it was a classic. It remains a classic. It has been copied everywhere. It is as well known among us as 'Father, I cannot tell a lie,' or 'England expects every man to do his duty.'

"The sign that cost $1,000 a word, or $6,000 in all, was the famous 'Railroad Crossing—Stop, Look and Listen.'"

The Word "Humble."

"Humble" is a word that has gone out of fashion during the lifetime of many of us. An Australian paper that is reproducing extracts from its files of fifty years ago prints this advertisement of 1856: "Young woman wants home in an humble family." Nobody sees an advertisement of that sort in the papers nowadays except in the weekly journals of the Irish rural districts, where such announcements as "Wanted, an humble girl," still occasionally appear.

The Easier Task.

The following notice is posted up outside the ticket office of the bathing place on the sands at Eastbourne: "Will the party who is in the habit of cleaning his brown boots on the bathing towels please leave his boots here before bathing, as we would rather clean his boots than wash the towels?"—Japanese Weekly Mail.

New Source of Alcohol.

A new source of alcohol has been discovered in Western Australia. The grass tree, which flourishes so thickly that it has become a nuisance to agriculturists, turns out to be full of alcohol. The fibers of the core yield from five-tenths to one and a quarter gallons of proof spirit a bushel.

Impressive Evidence.

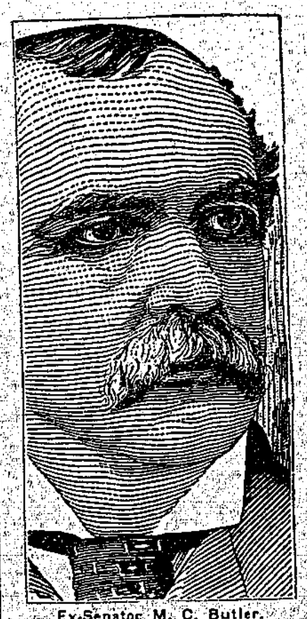
The constable is an observant man, and his observation had its reward at Marlborough street one morning. It was the case of a hansom driver who had run into a four wheeler, and the constable maintained in the witness box that the hansom driver was drunk. "There was a bit of a dispute," said the driver," and the constable admitted as much. "You was a bit doubtful about me bein' drunk, wasn't you now?" continued the driver solemnly. "I was, just a bit," said the constable stolidly, "until I saw you taking down your own number on your coat sleeve."

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA



Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia is often caused by Catarrh of the Stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach, and is therefore a remedy for Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co. as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated.

Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available. Peruna exactly meets the indications.

At the meeting of the Institute of Journalists of Great Britain and Ireland, recently held in Dublin, the retiring president, Major Gratwicke, concluded his address by discussing the kind of news that newspapers might with propriety publish and, disclaiming all prudishness, enunciated the dictum that "a man should not write for the columns of a newspaper that which he would not like his wife or his child, his mother or his sister to read."

A Confusion of Names.

Although Scotia is now known to mean Scotland, it once was the name of Ireland. Two centuries before the birth of Christ Ireland was known to the Greeks as Juvenca. Caesar called it Hibernia, as did also Ptolemy in his map of that island. It is said the Phoenicians first gave Ireland the name of Hibernia, meaning thereby utmost or last habitation, for beyond that island westward the Phoenicians never extended their voyages. Toward the decline of the Roman empire the country began to be called Scotia, a name retained by the monastic writers until the eleventh century, when the name Scotia, having passed to modern Scotland, the ancient name of Hibernia began to be again used.

To Cure Snoring.

"At a banquet," said an editor, "I once heard Jerome K. Jerome make a speech on snoring. I remember that it ended with these words: 'To cure snoring, it is advised that a piece of soap be dropped into the mouth of the snorer. The oil in the soap will lubricate the pharynx and other Latin parts of the throat. This remedy must be applied with caution; otherwise the snorer will arise and lubricate the floor with the person who dropped in the soap.'"

Worship's Dues.

When Dean Swift was called to the living of Loracor he inaugurated the custom of reading prayers on Wednesday and Friday. At the first Wednesday service he waited in vain for any one to appear except his clerk Roger. At length he began, "Dearly beloved Roger, the Scriptures moveth you and me in sundry places," and so proceeded to the end of the service.

CAUGHT COLD ON THE C.P.R.

A. E. Mumford tells how Psychine cured him after the Doctor gave him up

"It is twelve years since Psychine cured me of galloping consumption." The speaker was Mr. A. E. Mumford, six feet tall, and looking just what he is a husky healthy farmer. He works his own farm near Magnetawan, Ont.

"I caught my cold working as a fireman on the C.P.R." he continued. "I had night sweats, chills and fever and frequently coughed up pieces of my lungs. I was sinking fast and the doctors said there was no hope for me. Two months treatment of Psychine put me right on my feet and I have had no return of lung trouble since."

If Mr. Mumford had started to take Psychine when he first caught cold he would have saved himself a lot of anxiety and suffering. Psychine cures all lung troubles by killing the germs—the roots of the disease.

When a couple gets married they form a committee of two, with discretionary powers to add to their number.

"The Missouri Girl" should be the popular play for the times. It is getting so almost everybody wants to be "shown."

The financial column says that "money is easy." But the trouble is the men who have it are not.—Clearwater Leader.

The Cranbrook Herald is the most prosperous looking weekly newspaper in the province, for which Cranbrook's progressive business men are largely responsible.

There is much activity among the Socialists at the coast. In the Nanaimo district J. H. Hawthornthwaite was unanimously nominated last Thursday as a standard bearer in the coming fight.

The Trail News feels jubilant over the resumption of operations in that city. This is the way it puts it: With the big Shay engine at work on the hill between here and Rossland, the "Goat" again doing stunts in the yard and smoke issuing from the massive stacks on the hill, it begins to look as if there would be "Corn in Egypt" for Xmas.

Swindle a man through forgery and you get "pinched." Swindle him through misrepresentation of your goods, make money through deception, and you are accounted a respectable citizen. Poison a man with arsenic, and you swing from the gallows; poison him with adulterated foods, quack medicines and diseased meat, and no "sleuth" haunts your footsteps. Kill a man with a crowbar and you sit in an electric chair. Kill him by overwork and you are called a "captain of industry."—The Vanguard.

The spectacle of two labor organizations fighting each other was witnessed at Schenectady, N. Y., a few days ago when a bunch of members of the Industrial Workers of the World went out on strike. The General Electric company employs 5,000 men, the majority of whom are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which is not concerned in the present trouble. There has been bad feeling between the I. W. W. and the A. F. of L. for some time, and it is understood that the Federation had volunteered to the company to fill the places of the striking I. W. W. men at short notice. The strikers returned to work.

King of All Cough Medicines.

Mr. E. G. Case, a mail carrier of Canton Centre, Conn., who has been in the U. S. Service for about sixteen years, says: "We have tried many cough medicines for croup, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is king of all and one to be relied upon every time. We also find it the best remedy for coughs and colds, giving certain results and leaving no bad effects." For sale by the Moyie Drug & Stationery Co.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

There is no other medicine manufactured that has received so much praise and so many expressions of gratitude as Chamberlain's Cough remedy. It is effective, and prompt relief follows its use. Grateful parents everywhere do not hesitate to testify to its merits for the benefit of others. It is a certain cure for croup and will prevent the attack if given at the first appearance of the disease. It is especially adapted to children as it is pleasant to take and contains nothing injurious. Mr. E. A. Humphreys, a well known resident and clerk in the store of Mr. E. Lock, of Alice, Cape Colony, South Africa, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to ward off croup and colds in my family. I found it to be very satisfactory and it gives me pleasure to recommend it." For sale by the Moyie Drug & Stationery Co.
