THE DISTRICT CAMPAIGN

Heavy Marching and Sharp Fighting in the District by the "Noble Eight."

In the First Week's Campaign Only One Battle Lost by the Independents.

Several More "Solid" Sections Scored. Our War Correspondent Assumes the Defensive.

LADNER'S, June 7.—Taking up the line of march on Friday morning, the regiment of candidates advanced slowly and cautiously on Hall's Prairie, where it was expected the next skirmish would take place. The only reason, however, for the slowness of the march was the horrible condition of the roads, which are almost impassable at places, and dangerous in the extreme. Finally the carriage bearing your correspondent met with an accident, placing it hors de combat, and the occupants in the unenviable necessity of making their way on foot for three or four miles to Mr. H. T. Thrift's ranch, where new spars had to be purged before the march could be resumed.

On reaching the school house at Hall's Prairie, only three electors were found to be present, the notice of the meeting having only arrived that day. No meeting was held, and the route was taken up for Surrey Centre, which was reached safely and in good time.

SOLID SURREY.

The meeting was held at the Town Hall, at 7 o'clock Friday evening, Mr. Wiltshire presiding. There was a large audience present, and one of the most earnest met with on the trip. Messrs. Henderson, Herring, Kirkland, Kitchen, Punch, Sinclair, Sword, Thompson and Glover addressed the meeting and all were given a good hearing. Mr. Punch and Mr. Kitchen were the favorites, but the audience was certainly very impartial. The Independent platform evoked the greatest enthusiasm, and it was plain that the Surrey farmers had a strong leaning in that direction. It was admitted the Independents put forward the soundest arguments, and that the ticket would poll a very large vote on the 13th. Surrey is solid.

THE FIRST REPULSE.

The first victory for the Government candidates was obtained at Elgin. This place turned out to be strong Robsonian and for the first time in the campaign the Government men felt real happy. At least three-fourths of the audience favored the Government candidates, and as a consequence these gentlemen favored the policy of the Government more strongly and more honestly than at any previous meeting. Apart from the speeches made by the candidates, addresses were given by Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Davidson, the chairman. The latter gentleman had been put in the chair for the reason that he was a strong and able supporter of the Mainland Rights policy. He was too good a man to be given a chance to speak on the platform in defence of his principles, and he was voted into the chair. After the candidates had addressed the meeting, however, Mr. Davidson's friends insisted on his speaking, and he complied. He gave an able and eloquent speech, endorsing the Mainland Rights platform, and pointing out that the only salvation for this section of the Province was the sending of straight Independent men to the House. Mr. Davidson's speech was well received, and had an excellent effect.

THE DELTA MEETING.

The Ladners meeting turned out to be the second largest since the opening of the campaign, that of Chilliwack only equaling it. Every seat in the Town Hall was occupied, and a large number of ladies were in the audience. Mr. E. Hutcherson occupied the chair and Mr. H. M. Rich was appointed secretary. The meeting was good in every respect, and the Delta farmers did themselves honor by giving every candidate a fair and patient hearing. There was a slight attempt on the part of certain persons to interfere with the general good order that prevailed, but this was confined to only a very small knot, and the whole meeting frowned down the nuisance and it failed in its object.

Mr. Henderson took the platform first and explained his policy. He favored the Government for many reasons. It was progressive and liberal, and conducted in the best interests of the people. On the matter of redistribution he was in accord with the Independent candidates, and would oppose any measure not in the interests of the Mainland. Mr. Henderson was liberally applauded on taking his seat.

Mr. Herring was the next speaker and went into his policy in detail. If elected he would advocate the borrowing of a large sum of money to be spent on roads, bridges and dyking throughout the District. He would endeavor to have the education act so amended that the power of cancelling a teacher's certificate should be taken from the Minister of Education, and vested in the trustees. The speaker had hardly finished when a bunch of firecrackers was exploded outside the door. This caused some amusement which, however, soon died out.

Mr. John Oliver cross-questioned Mr. Herring on his policy, and then turned to personal matters, but was quickly called to order by the chairman.

Mr. Kirkland received a storm of applause on taking the platform. He came before the audience as an old resident of the district, and closely connected with its growth and prosperity. He had seen a great advance in the prosperity of the district in the last eight years, and this, to a certain extent was the outcome of good government. He promised to support the Government in all good measures and those which were benificial and just to the district or to the general welfare of the Province. Some parts of the district, perhaps, had been overlooked by the Government, but its policy on the whole had been progressive, and it had endeavored to develop the district and its resources. He would be an independent supporter of the Government. It had been said that he should have adopted the straight Independent ticket, but he did not think so. Were he not in the confidence of the Government he would not be in a position to take his place in caucus. The greatest part of the business of the House was done in caucus, and were he barred from that he would not be able to guard the interests of his constituents so well. The Opposition was powerless, and he could not see any advantage in being an Independent. But at the same time he would not be bound or gagged by the Government. If elected he would work for the interests of the whole Province alike. He also favored the borrowing of money for the opening up of the agricultural portions of the Province; also the loaning of money by the Government to the municipalities for the dyking of overflowed lands. Time being up the speaker took his seat amidst hearty and continued rounds of applause.

Mr. Kitchen was not well and did not feel in good form for speaking, but made an able address all the same. He came out squarely on the Independent ticket—not Opposition—for the Opposition had no policy, and he would not pledge himself to the Government for many reasons. The Mainland had asked for redistribution, but it only got an amendment to the constitution in the shape of tacking three new members to the Island and giving the same number to the Mainland. But the difference was that the Mainland was entitled to what it got, while the Island was not. The bill was an injustice to the Mainland, and Hon. Mr. Robson admitted it, but he allowed it to become law all the same. The Premier blamed his colleagues for this bill, but he asked the people to return members who would support the present cabinet and keep it in power. This was hardly consistent if Hon. Mr. Robson wished to give the Mainland its just rights. If the district returned Government supporters there would be no chance in the next four years of obtaining a just redistribution measure, consequently if this was done the people would have no right to complain, it was the result of their own doings. [Applause.] The proper way to do would be to send a full ticket of straight Independents, who would join with the other Independents and form very probably, the balance of power in the House. There was a certainty that the next House would hold a large Independent following. He strongly favored the borrowing of a large sum of money for public improvements, but would not favor such a measure until such time as there was sufficient Mainland force in the House to see that we get our just share of the money. [Great applause.] If the money was borrowed now the Island would get the lion's share of it, but Westminster District would have the lion's share of the loan to pay. If elected he would endeavor to have the land retained for the actual settlers, and not given over as it is at present to speculators, who hold it for selfish purposes and thus prevent the development of the country. [Applause.] He also promised to have the tax on wild lands largely increased so that speculators would be forced to sell. In conclusion Mr. Kitchen asked the electors not to vote for the loaves and fishes, but to send good Independent men to the House, and let Mr. Robson go to Cariboo. Great applause greeted the conclusion of his remarks.

Mr. Punch was well received. He spoke shortly, but to the point, proclaiming himself an Independent. He had been largely interested in the development of the District, and had a good knowledge of its wants, consequently he was in good position to forward its interests in the House. If elected he would endeavor to have the District divided into ridings, so that the representation would be more equal and fair. A free traffic bridge between Brownsville and Westminster would receive his hearty support; also a bridge over the Pitt River. He was strongly opposed to Chinese immigration, and would introduce legislation to keep the evil within narrow bounds. (Applause.) He thought a railroad from Hope to Ladner's should be one of the first things in the way of improvements. The borrowing of money for roads and bridges was necessary, and he would support any good measure in this line. The redistribution measure was an injustice to the Mainland, and there was only one way of getting out of the difficulty, and that was by sending straight Independent members to the House. Hearty applause was awarded Mr. Punch when he bowed his adieu to the audience.

Mr. Sinclair followed and gave a very good speech, dwelling on the main points in his address and announcing the policy he would adopt if elected. After Mr. Sinclair had finished speaking Mr. John Oliver asked him what encouragement it was to farmers to have city men coming out to represent them. Mr. Sinclair replied that he had sold out his grocery store and was now as much a resident of the District as of the city. Mr. Oliver then enquired of Mr. Sinclair if he did not think there were many farmers throughout the District better able to represent the constituency than either of the city men. To this Mr. Sinclair replied in the affirmative and then took his seat amidst much laughter and merriment.

Mr. Sword was warmly welcomed when he took the platform. He appealed to the electors on the straight Independent ticket, and did not believe Mr. Robson should be returned from this constituency (slight applause). If we returned Mr. Robson, we would be endorsing his action in the redistribution measure, and that one could not do.

Mr. Robson had said a pocket borough of the Government should be the constituency of the Premier and he agreed with the honorable gentleman and thought he should be given to Cariboo. He was minister of mines and that was the right place for him. The speaker wished it to be distinctly understood that he came out as an Independent—not Opposition—and would not ally himself to any party until he first found that its principles and policy were worthy of support. But in any instance he would be bound to no party. The argument had been used (and he thought it cowardly), that to defeat the Premier would result in the reducing of appropriations for this District. He did not believe any Government would dare to follow such a policy; but at the same time he was certain lots of votes would be cast for the Hon. John Robson out of fear. Regarding the work done in caucus, he thought there was a little too much done in this way; the floor of the House is the place for legislation to be formed, not cut and dried in secret session and then shoved through by party strength. Had there been more Independent members in the House when the Redistribution Bill was drawn up, more about the measure would now be known. Mr. Robson said he could not get the bill through as he wished it, consequently there must have been a great power behind the throne, and it was the duty of the electors to return Independent men who would destroy power by avoiding allegiance to party. Mr. Sword's remarks were loudly applauded.

Capt. Thompson was the last speaker. He came before the electors as a free and Independent supporter of the Government, or that portion of it which favored the Mainland, but not the section that forced the Government to pass the Redistribution Bill. He was prepared to join with the other candidates in bringing about just Government. Mr. Robson had said that if given a large Mainland support he would appeal to the country on the Redistribution question if necessary. He would support all just measures for Mainland and Island alike, and try to put an end to sectionalism. It rested with the electors to return the proper men. If Hon. John was rejected it would weaken our hands (slight applause). He was not blind to the fact that there were many faults in the Government, but he would not support those faults, and would not be tied hand and foot to party. He favored a general policy of improvements for the Province at large, and asked the electors to return him on the 13th. Much applause greeted the conclusion of his speech.

This concluded the speeches of the candidates, and calls were made on Mr. Thos. E. Ladner and Mr. Arthur to address the meeting. Both gentlemen declined to speak, and then Mr. John Oliver was called on.

Mr. Oliver said he had been called on probably because he had lots of cheek. The speakers all agreed that the redistribution bill was not right, and he was in accord with them, but at the same time he would advise the electors to return the Government supporters. The business of the House is framed in caucus, and our representatives should be in it. He then criticised the policy of the mining act and public improvements, and laid down what he considered a proper policy for the Government to adopt. Then Mr. Oliver turned on THE COLUMBIAN and said he had good authority for saying the reports of the political meetings throughout the district were not correct; further, that THE COLUMBIAN had published an item which was a direct insult to the whole people of this constituency, and lastly, that the need of a really good newspaper in this district was badly felt (Laughter.)

Calls were made for Mr. Glover, who promptly responded, and thanked the audience for the opportunity of refuting the charges made by Mr. Oliver. In the first place the reports of the meetings in question were all authentic, and not a word in them was anything but truth, and he defied any gentleman present at those meetings to say otherwise. Owing to the lack of time and space the reports were necessarily short, but all statements were correct. He knew where the information given Mr. Oliver emanated from, and considered it a mean trick as it placed that gentleman in a very unjust position. It was all the result of the change of platform or policy made by Capt. Thompson, whom the speaker had had occasion to correct at Langley Prairie. He did not wish to go into particulars in this matter on the grounds of personal friendship, but every word could be proven by the most respectable citizens of Langley if necessary. Regarding the insult to the farmers by THE COLUMBIAN he knew nothing about it, not having seen the article in question. At this point the paper containing the item was handed to Mr. Glover, who saw at once that it was a piece of reprint from the Victoria Times and not a COLUMBIAN editorial. When this fact was pointed out to the audience a general titter went round at the indignation displayed by Mr. Oliver.

Mr. Oliver rose and said it was an insult all the same, and THE COLUMBIAN had no right to print it.

Mr. Glover responded saying it was nonsense to talk about suppressing the liberty of the press, for the liberty of the press ensured the liberty of the people (applause). Every newspaper copied from other journals; if they did not there would be little news in it. As far as concerned the general policy of THE COLUMBIAN, it was admitted by all that it always defended the best interests of the farmers throughout the district and for the last three years at least had done all that it possibly could towards making known the great advantages and resources of the Province at large and Westminster district in particular. Of course some people might not like THE COLUMBIAN; but they are not forced to take it, and those taking it and not satisfied are welcome to cancel their subscriptions at any moment.

Capt. Thompson rose and said he wanted to deny that he had ever changed his opinions, and would "throw the lie in his teeth." He also considered THE COLUMBIAN reports highly colored.

The following motion was introduced: Moved by W. McKee and seconded by Mr. T. E. Ladner: That this meeting agrees to support Hon. John Robson and the Government candidates.

The chairman put the motion and asked for a show of hands. Eight went up in its favor and thirteen against. At this there were cries of "lost, lost."

The chairman, however, declared the motion was carried by two to one, which decision was received with cries of "no, no."

A gentleman in the audience rose to his feet and declared that the motion did not carry for he had counted the vote. This was warmly supported by several others, and no one but the chairman spoke to the contrary. After a vote of thanks to the chairman and secretary the meeting adjourned.

VICTORIA NEWS.

A Big Fire at the Corner of Government and Fort Streets Does Great Damage to Property.—Shipping Movements.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

VICTORIA, June 9.—Last night at 9:45 fire was discovered in the brick block at the corner of Government and Fort streets. In a few minutes the flames forced their way through the roof. The steam engine and hydrants were soon pouring several powerful streams upon the flames and in half an hour they were under control. For two hours, however, the fire engine continued to pour water into the building before the fire was totally extinguished. The fire was confined to the second story of the building. W. J. Quinlan, dentist, was the only occupant of the second story and he had rooms in front, the back part being vacant. He suffered damage from the water and smoke. George Morrison, druggist, was flooded out. His loss is heavy, but covered by insurance. Johnston, the seedsman, sustained damages by water; no insurance. Henry Short, gunsmith, heavy damage to stock by water, but covered by insurance. Flint & Williams, real estate, was flooded out, loss slight. The fire is believed to have been incendiary.

ANNUAL SCHOOL REPORT.

The Annual Report of the Secretary Received---An Important Resolution Passed.

The annual Public School meeting was held this morning at 11 o'clock at the City Hall, Mayor Brown, ex officio chairman of the Board of School Trustees, presided. It was not so largely attended as its importance demanded. The following interesting report for the year was submitted by the secretary of the School Board, Mr. John McKenzie:

To the school electors and others of New Westminster City:

Had the time for the presentation of the annual report of the school affairs of the city not been fixed by law your trustees would gladly postpone the matter until the excitement incident to a general Provincial election should have subsided, but it is possible that the inroads made upon your attention in regard to this question may be a Providential safety valve to your thoughts and anxieties.

We may remark, that it is but just to all the Governments of this Province since 1872 to concede that although complaints of delinquency were sometimes heard, yet there has been a marked steady advance in educational matters, perhaps more than proportional to the increase of population and expansion of our Provincial industries. One town vies with another, one country district with another, in respect of school facilities.

New Westminster City has made some progress in the extension of the system, and improvement in internal affairs during the past year, but the rapid progress of late, calls for still greater enlargement in buildings, etc.

At the beginning of the school year additional strength was made to the Central school, and the West Side school was provided for the rising needs of that portion of the city. Both that school house and the one at Sapperton are now, however, far too small, and provision has been made for the immediate enlargement of them. The Central school must ere long be replaced by a commodious brick structure. It is difficult to press upon the Government to provide matters from any future point of view—the past is taken as a basis of action; but we have the reality of a prosperous city—a condition upon which safe calculations may hereafter be made.

During the year the grounds at the West Side school have been well cleared and fenced; the interior of the Central school has been somewhat improved; while the municipal construction of the streets and sidewalks has very much added to the general appearance of the school property.

The internal work of the schools has been very satisfactory. Eleven boys and eight girls passed the entrance examination to the High School.

There has been a steady increase in the number of pupils attending the public schools. The total number of different pupils enrolled in the year ending 30th June, 1889 was 415, to which add Sapperton, 43, making a total of 468.

During the present year there have been registered as different pupils at the Central school, 480; at Sapperton, 55; at the West Side, 65; making a total of 600, or an increase of about 140.

The High School has continued its accustomed work with vigor, but as yet no assistant has been provided. This omission is much to be regretted, particularly when it has been demonstrated over and over again that our school deserves encouragement. The number of pupils who distinguish themselves abroad in subsequent work, is increasing; but as regards this matter the growth of the city assures the increased strength and efficiency of the institution.

Two of the staff of the public schools have resigned during the year—one to cheer the heart and mould the destinies of a new householder—the other to study Blackstone's commentaries—We are pleased to know that both are well.

JOHN MCKENZIE,
Secretary.

Mr. J. B. Kennedy called attention to the fact that no mention of disbursements had been made in the report, and the secretary explained to the effect that all moneys were in the treasury at Victoria, and that the school board had sent vouchers for all disbursements which had all been paid, and which would appear in due time in the public accounts.

On motion, the report was adopted as read.

Rev. Mr. Jamieson called attention to the disparity that existed between the salaries paid to teachers in this City and in Victoria, and introduced the following resolution:

Whereas there is the following difference between the payment of teachers in the schools of this City and city of Victoria, namely—per month—

We are of the opinion that this inequality is unjust and invidious, and has been too long continued, and as we know of no reason for this state of things either on the part of the parents or the children, nor in the qualifications, efficiency, or character of the teachers, nor in the expense of living, we hereby protest against the continuance of this favoritism to one city of the Province. We submit that a difference of $1,020 a year, in the salaries of eleven teachers in favor of Victoria is very unfair, and we call the special attention of the Hon. John Robson the minister of education, and the representative from this City in the legislature, to this matter.

2d. We are also of the opinion that as the female teachers have to pass the same examination as male teachers, and the result of their labors are subjected to the same test, and no allowance made for them in any particular, and as there is no such discrimination against them in the country schools, they should be paid the same salaries in the city schools as are paid to male teachers in similar departments. Carried.

This concluded the business, and the meeting adjourned.

More "Coagulated Blood."

The "dexter optic cord" got in its deadly work again yesterday; this time a gratuitous slander upon our noble river. When every effort is being made, every nerve strained to organize an institution in this city that should have existed long ago a rowing club, the local fable manufactory must grind out the assertion that "the swiftness of the current must materially interfere with that amusement." When people are so lazy that they will not try a thing for themselves, they fall back and say it cannot be done. Truth's statement in this connection is incorrect in every word but this is nothing more than usual. If it be true that "Truth is found at the bottom of a well," would that somebody would clap the cover on the local well or fill the old thing up with water and drown the croaker in the basement.

☞ By returning the Hon. Mr. Robson or any of his avowed supporters, the electors would be practically endorsing the Redistribution Bill of last session, and such an action would weaken their hands ever after, when striving for their just representation in the House.

THE DAILY COLUMBIAN

MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 9, 1890.

VOTE ON THE WINNING SIDE.

THE Robson Government, as at present constituted, has lost the confidence of the country, and cannot survive the elections. The Independent party, which will contain a number of the best and ablest men in the country, will hold the balance of power in the next Parliament, and control the Government and the legislation in the interests of the whole Province, and not in the interests of cliques, rings, sectionalists, and boodlers. The following table, computed on the Colonist's classification of the candidates, made after the nominations, fully sustains our assertions above, that the Independents will hold the balance of power after the elections. We have published this table before, but its importance is ample apology for bringing the facts therein contained before the electors again:

	MEM'RS.	GOV'T.	OPP.	IND.
VICTORIA CITY	4	2	2	0
ESQUIMALT	2	1	1	0
VICTORIA DISTRICT	2	2	0	0
NANAIMO CITY	1	0	0	1
NANAIMO DIST.	2	0	1	1
ALBERNI DIST.	1	1	0	0
GULF ISLANDS	1	0	1	0
COMOX DIST.	1	0	0	1
VANCOUVER CITY	2	0	0	2
WESTMINSTER CITY	1	0	0	1
WESTMINSTER DIST.	3	0	0	3
YALE DIST.	3	1	0	2
LILLOOET DIST.	2	1	1	0
CARIBOO DIST.	3	3	0	0
WEST KOOTENAY	1	0	0	1
EAST KOOTENAY	1	1	0	0
CASSIAR DIST.	1	0	1	0
Totals	33	14	7	12

It will be clearly seen by the above table that the People's Party will easily hold the "balance of power" in the next Parliament. By combining with the Opposition, the Independents will have a majority of five over the Government, and, counting them with the Government, the Opposition proper would, of course, be in a hopeless minority.

Reviewing the analysis, it will be seen that we have divided Victoria City's representation of four equally between Government and Opposition. It is conceded on all hands that Messrs. Beaven and Grant will be returned in the Capital City, and even Dr. Milne's election is spoken of as very likely, so that we are well within the mark in claiming two out of the four members for the Opposition.

Esquimalt, according to all accounts, will very probably go, as we have put it, one Government and one Opposition, Mr. C. E. Pooley representing the former, and Mr. H. Helgensen, beating Mr. D. W. Higgins, and winning a seat for the Opposition. Victoria District, with its two members, we have given to the Government, as we have not much reason to expect the return of Mr. J. W. Carey, the single Opposition candidate.

Cowichan, we have also, necessarily, counted Government, as none but Government candidates are in the field.

Nanaimo City, we have, of course, put down as Independent, as Mr. T. Keith, who was elected by acclamation for that constituency, came before the electors on the Independent ticket, and is so marked by the Colonist.

Nanaimo Dist., it will be seen, according to the Colonist, could not muster a single Government candidate, so we have allowed it one Opposition and one Independent.

Alberni necessarily goes to the Government, there being only two Government aspirants for the newly-created seat.

The Islands of the Gulf we have given to the Opposition, there being two Government candidates, and one Opposition, and the latter, Capt. H. J. Robertson, of Moresby Island, being a man of considerable force and ability.

Comox, with its three candidates, one for each party, we have given to the Independents; it is almost certain to go either Opposition or Independent, we have reasons for believing.

Coming to the Mainland, Vancouver City is first on the list, and we have counted its two members as Independents. They are certain to be either Independents or Oppositionists. Just here we would notice that the Colonist has classified Mr. F. C. Cotton wrongly, as that gentleman, we are convinced, has not tacked himself to the Opposition party, but, if elected, will be found in the ranks of the Independents.

Westminster City, we need hardly say, we have the best of grounds for marking Independent, as Mayor Brown's election, ever since his candidature, has been a foregone conclusion, and it is only a question of the extent of his majority, which will be a rousing one.

We feel amply justified in anticipating that Westminster District will return the full Independent ticket of three, and we would remark that the Colonist is again wrong in classing Mr. T. E. Kitchen as an Oppositionist, or, for that matter, Mr. Sinclair either. Both are Independents.

We have counted two out of the three Yale District members on the Independent ticket, as Mr. Semlin's election is assured and that of Mr. Irwin very probable, and both will be found in the Independent party in the House.

Lillooet District's representation of two we have divided between Government and Opposition, which is a reasonable forecast, with the information at our disposal.

Cariboo we have given to the Government, necessarily, as none but Government candidates are running.

West Kootenay, it will be seen, goes Independent by default.

East Kootenay we have given to the Government, although Colonel Baker stands about even chances of being defeated by Mr. Law, the Opposition candidate.

Cassiar from information obtainable, is almost certain to return Mr. R. Cunningham, the Opposition candidate, who is a man of great prominence and importance in the community. Besides, Cassiar is a kind of Opposition preserve, being the late constituency of the redoubtful Mayor Grant of Victoria, who has chosen on this occasion to contest the Capital constituency.

The reader can compare our computation and analysis of the probable results of the approaching election with his own idea of the situation and probabilities. We submit that our figuring is reasonable, and the result will not vary a great deal. It will be seen that three or four members more than we allow can be conceded to the Government, and still the People's Party will practically hold the "balance of power." The outlook is certainly most encouraging. All who cast their votes for the Independent tickets, will not only be on the right side, but on the strong side as well.

The Curse of the Plains.

A western correspondent of the Toronto Empire says: It is estimated that no fewer than 170,000 wolves are roaming at large in Russia, and that the inhabitants of the Vologda last year killed no fewer than 49,000 and of the Kazan district 21,000. In our Northwest the wolves are not like the European ones, of a very dangerous character. The coyotes are, however, at times troublesome on the prairies, especially to flocks of sheep. Some time ago Sir John Lister-Kaye imported a number of Belgian and French wolf hounds and Scotch deer hounds for the purpose of hunting down these coyotes, and other breeds of dogs have also been tried with fair success. By means of these the number of coyotes has been much reduced, as many as seventeen having been brought down in a single day on the Cochrane ranche. The hounds are, however, scarcely fast enough, and with a view to giving them a greater turn of speed, Mr. Dangerdon, veterinary surgeon of Calgary, has just imported two of the fastest and best bred grey hounds ever shipped from England.

The Old Beaver.

Mr. Cohn will soon wreck the veteran steamer Beaver, now lying on the rocks near Vancouver, of which Mr. Henry Saunders, of this city, is the owner. His plan is to form a company with a capital stock of about $2,500—which amount would be required to do the work—divided into shares of $100 each. He would take five shares himself, Mr. Saunders would probably take as many, and Capt. Rudlin and another prominent sea captain would also "go in." It was suggested to carefully remove the machinery, and place it on exhibition at the capital, Victoria, as an example of what the engines of the first steamer on the Pacific were like. Such an exhibition would, no doubt, draw well, while the woodwork would be converted into canes and other souvenirs which would, no doubt, find a ready sale. Another plan would be to raise and repair the old steamer, and keep her at anchor in the harbor of Victoria to be visited by every tourist for generations to come. As soon as he is sure of enough support in the work, Mr. Cohn is ready to commence operations.—Colonist.

HEARTSEASE.

I found a faded pansy on the page
Of an old book, long lost, one winter day;
Its velvet heart was dim with dust and age;
The beauty of its tints had passed away.

Why did my eyes gaze through a mist of tears
Which dropped on that dead flower in tender rain?
Because, unbidden from the vanished years,
Old hopes, old dreams, old joys came back again.

Faded away my quiet fireside nook.
And, on the wings of memory swiftly borne,
I stood 'mid purple pansies by a brook
That sung and sparkled in the summer morn.

Rough winds no longer shook the dripping trees,
Whose leafless branches smote my lattice pane;
I heard instead the drowsy hum of bees
Among the roses in a winding lane.

June's mellow sunshine lay on all the land:
I saw the starry eyes of daisies shine:
And from the fingers of a clasping hand
This purple pansy found its way to mine.

Ah, me! To think of all the lonely tears
My eyes have wept since that blue summer day,
When, flushed with trembling hopes and girlish fears,
In this old book I hid my flower away.

You know my story, little pale Heartsease!
As long as time rolls on such things will be;
Death laid his hand upon life's golden keys,
And all their melody was hushed for me.

Yet, dear, dead flower, although the old, old pain
Still dims my sight and makes my heart beat fast,
I know that God will wake for me again
In years to come the music of the past.

—E. Matheson, in Chambers' Journal.

FOGG'S INVENTION.

Dire Results of an Attempt to Use His Flying-Machine.

For several days Fogg had been at work in the barn, with doors locked, and a mantle of secrecy seemed to be thrown over every thing he did, both outside and in.

Mrs. Fogg questioned him in vain. All she could elicit from the man of mystery was divers strange and awe-inspiring grimaces which were calculated to infuse the beholder with the belief that the manipulator of said grimaces was the victim of a severe attack of cramp colic.

Mrs. Fogg, in an unguarded moment, confided to a few of her most intimate cronies her fears that her husband was a little bit off in his upper story, and these busy-bodies speedily circulated the report that Fogg really was crazy.

It was believed, of course, and children fought shy of the Fogg domicile, especially after dark. Fogg's grapes, which were just getting ripe, escaped depredators as they had never done before, and Fogg wondered greatly thereat, but was far from suspecting the real cause of this miracle.

And still, day after day, Fogg labored on in the security of the barn, his nearest neighbors amusing themselves by listening to the pounding of his hammer, and remarking to one another that it was too bad, the affliction that had befallen Fogg.

One evening Fogg rushed into the presence of his wife and exclaimed, triumphantly:

"It's done, at last!"

Mrs. Fogg straightened up and looked at her husband.

"What is 'done at last,' Mr. Fogg?" she asked.

"Why, the flying-machine, of course," was the reply.

Mrs. Fogg regarded her husband pityingly, for a few moments.

"Mr. Fogg," she remarked, finally, with a rising inflection, "do you mean to say that you have gone and wasted two weeks' valuable time trying to build a flying-machine?"

Mr. Fogg said that he did mean it, but as for the time being wasted, he denied this, and he entered into such a spirited and eloquent explanation of his great invention and its workings, that Mrs. Fogg herself became enthused to such an extent as to allow of her being prevailed upon to go down to the barn and take a look at the machine.

What she saw there it will be impossible to describe with any degree of accuracy. Only Fogg could do that, and, I verily believe, if he were sitting here in my place, doing the describing act himself, that he would be unable to do the case full justice. Suffice it to say that he had constructed a thing having a wicker frame, made so as to just fit upon his back, after the fashion of a saddle, with straps or bands to buckle around his body, while two monstrous wings, also made of wicker-work and covered with thin cloth, were attached to the frame, and on each side, by hinges. On the lower side of each wing were two stout leather loops, through which the operator was to thrust his arms and by means of which he was to work the wings up and down when in the act of flying.

It was a great invention—so Fogg said, and he ought to know something about it, having made the machine, but Mrs. Fogg was skeptical. Women always are skeptical and suspicious of any thing which they do not understand, you know.

But Fogg was so enthusiastic that Mrs. Fogg couldn't find heart to give vent to all the doubts which she experienced regarding the power of this thing to overcome the force of gravity and sail through space like the birds of the air, with a passenger—presumably Fogg, dangling beneath like a huge worm in the bill of one of those same birds; so she held her peace, kept still, serene in the thought that if Fogg, in his flight through space on the back—or rather, beneath the body—of his wild, untamable flying-machine, should accidentally knock the cupola off the state house on Venus, or butt his brains out against the southwest corner of Jupiter, he would have no one to blame for it but himself.

But Fogg experienced no misgivings; had no fears. He was so tickled over the successful completion of his flying-machine that he slept scarcely a wink that night, and he was up with the larks next morning, making preparations for what he thought was going to be the greatest lark of his life.

After breakfast he got his flying-machine out of the barn, and, accompanied by Mrs. Fogg, went down back of the hog-lot to a high bluff which was there. From this point Fogg decided he would take a rise in the world, and in the estimation of his neighbors and the public at large as well.

It was his intention to fly out over the river, circle around over the village, and return to the starting point with great eclat and flapping of wings. Yes, that was the programme Fogg had mapped out, but, owing to certain unexpected developments, he—but there! we'll go ahead and tell you all about it.

Fogg took off his coat and got down on his hands and knees, while Mrs. Fogg placed the flying machine upon his back and strapped the same securely to his body. Then Fogg ran his arms through the loops on the under side of the wings, arose to his feet, took up a position on the edge of the cliff, and was all ready to do the great flying act.

Mrs. Fogg looked over the edge of the cliff to the ground thirty or forty feet below and shuddered.

"Joshua," she said, "you had better give up this foolish notion of yours. If you jump over there you'll be killed sure."

Fogg was feeling rather dubious himself, but he wouldn't let on to his wife

"Oh, pshaw!" he said, "there's no danger whatever. That's where the beauty of my invention comes in. Without it, to jump off of here would surely result in a broken neck, but with it there is not the least danger—so here goes!" and suddenly spurring himself on to the deed, he shut his eyes, gave a big flap with his wings and jumped with all his might straight out into space, while Mrs. Fogg gave a scream and fell to the ground in a faint, her last thought being that she was a widow and would have to wear black for six long months.

Fogg had flattered himself that all he would have to do would be to flap his wings and sail through the ethereal blue, but he soon found that he had bit off more than he could chew. He flapped his wings just once—before he sprung over the bluff. After that he couldn't make the 'tarnal things flap to save him. The wind, as he shot down through space, quickly turned the flappers up edgewise, and, try as he would, Fogg could not get them down again. He was as helpless as a spitted frog, and very much resembled one.

Down he went, for, it seemed to the falling inventor, an eternity, or the larger half of thirteen minutes, at least. He heartily repented of ever having invented, but repentance had come too late to do him any good. A vine, growing upon an outjutting portion of the bluff, caught Fogg's feet, and turning him a complete somersault, landed him in the bushy top of a big elm tree growing at the foot of the bluff, and inventor, flying-machine and all went crashing through the branches of the tree like a baby hurricane, the bewildered Fogg alighting finally on his intellectual cocoanut in the mud, going in up to his shirt collar and whopping over onto his back, where he lay still, dazed, senseless for the time being, while leaves, twigs and small branches of the tree, severed by the great inventor and his wonderful flying-machine in their somewhat hurried descent, showered down upon him and almost buried him from view.

Here he was found presently by his wife, who had recovered from her fainting fit and hastened down to the foot of the bluff by a roundabout route, and she managed to bring the unlucky inventor to and get him to the house and to bed, where he remained for a week.

He was a badly demoralized and dilapidated specimen of humanity. Every muscle and tendon in his body was strained, his nose was knocked out of plumb, several fingers and a thumb were broken, and, to crown all, his backbone had "telescoped" when he alighted upon his head, thus causing a loss of about six inches in height—no small matter to a man only five feet tall to start with.

The flying-machine had caught between two limbs of the tree as it came down, and, the straps breaking, had become disengaged from the inventor, and it remained there a source of wonderment and terror to the birds of the forest until Fogg was able to navigate again, when he came down, secured the great invention, took it to the house and chopped it up into kindling wood.

Fogg may at some future time be again taken with the fever for inventing, but if he is he will probably not try to invent another flying-machine. Should he do so, however, one would be perfectly safe in betting big odds that he will get some one else to give it the first trial.—S. A. D. Cox, in Drake's Magazine.

NOTES FOR NATURALISTS.

THOUGH the cavity of the whale's mouth is big enough to contain a ship's long boat, the gullet is not larger than a man's fist.

THE elephant's teeth are its unduly developed upper incisors; those of the walrus are its upper canines, and so are those of the wild hog.

THERE are two birds at the London Zoo that have great reputations as ventriloquists. One is a crane-like bird called the trumpeter and the other is the emu.

THE Sneezewood of South Africa, commonly called Neishout, produces wood as hard and handsome as mahogany, the sawdust of which is said to cause violent sneezing—hence the name.

AN electric vegetable is said to have been discovered in India which has the power of affecting the magnetic needle at a distance of twenty feet when the weather is favorable. In rainy weather it has no electric influence whatever.

THE African teak tree is noted for its beautiful and valuable wood, and is often called African oak. This tree is similar to the East Indian teak, but must not be confounded with it, for the Indian teak tree belongs to an entirely different family.

THE blue ageratum, which is cherished in England as a border flower, was introduced into Ceylon by an English lady, where it spread so rapidly, running wild in the island, that it now costs more than $1,250,000 annually to keep it down in the coffee plantations.

THE spider's mouth is quite a complicated affair. It has fangs for holding its prey, masticatory organs for bruising its solid food, and a sucking apparatus for taking up the fluids. Quite as complicated is the mouth of the mosquito, which consists of the lances, the saws and the pumping-tubes.

IN London specimens of Mexican dry moss were shown before the Botanical Society that were green and flourishing, although they had been shut up for three months in a dry place. These plants are said to have the power of rolling up in a ball when dry and becoming apparently dead, only to bloom again, however, when exposed to moisture.

THE Indian soap tree is said to be extensively used in South America for washing purposes, and on the Florida coast two species grow which are said to contain Sopanin, so common in several species of this genus. The hard, round nutlets, or seeds, of some of the species are used for making rosaries, bracelets, necklaces, etc., and a few species have edible outer coverings to their fruits; but the seeds are poisonous.

AT a late meeting of the Royal Botanic Society an interesting sweet-scented fern from the society's garden was exhibited. The perfume closely resembles that of fresh hay, and, like it, is retained after the frond is dry, and lasts for many months if not years, imparting its fragrance to any thing in contact with it. The secretary thought it might be grown as a source of perfume by amateurs, if not commercially.

The Seat of Government.

Washington was not the seat of the United States Government until 1800. The seat of Government was at Philadelphia from September 5, 1774, till December, 1776; at Baltimore from December 20, 1776, until March, 1777; at Philadelphia from March 4, 1777, to September, 1777; at Lancaster, Pa., from September 27 to September 30, 1777; at York, Pa., from September 30, 1777 to July, 1778; at Philadelphia from July 2, 1778, to June 30, 1783; at Princeton, N. J., June 30 to November 20, 1783; at Annapolis from November 26, 1783 to November 30, 1784; at Trenton from November, 1784 to January, 1785; at New York from January 11, 1785 to 1790, when it was removed to Philadelphia and remained there until 1800, when it was removed to Washington.

A Grip on Tomatoes.

The Yankee has got the grip on canned tomatoes, and even if a raw carrot is dropped into a can occasionally to fill up the consumer overlooks it on the ground of accident. American tomatoes are now sold in every country on the globe, and are as familiar in Borneo as in Chicago.

The war in the District came to a close for the week on Saturday night at Ladner's and the candidates spent Sunday in town. They resumed their work of canvassing again this morning. Commencing at Richmond and the Delta Islands.

VOTE FOR THE TICKET.

Electors of Westminster District, don't forget that Westminster City will send a first-class Independent man to the House, by an overwhelming majority; Vancouver City will send two good and able Independent men, no other could be elected in that city. It remains with you to make up the "solid six" by electing the three staunch Independent men before you—Messrs. Kitchen, Punch and Sword. Do not waste your votes, then, by "splitting," but vote the "straight" ticket. As you will see, by a table and an analysis in the editorial columns, on the second page, the Independent party will be the winning party in the elections all over the Province, and will hold the balance of power in the next Parliament.

The "Bon Accord" will be up from Victoria next week and Mr. Munn says that she will be one of the best cannery boats on the river.

The tug Pilot, which returned to Victoria Thursday night, reports the fur seals thick just outside the cape. The American schooner Teaser was spoken, in good luck. She had all her boats out, in good weather, and was making a big catch.

There will be a meeting of the Bicycle club on Wednesday evening next in the office of Messrs. Mowat & Sloan, when the matter of formal organization will be brought up. A full attendance of those who intend to become members is requested.

A mare owned at Crown Point, Ind., has just foaled a colt by George Gordon, pacing record 2.27½. The mare was 30 years old the day before her colt, her first one, was foaled. The mare and Grattan's Jessie appear to be the champion aged producers.

Fears have been expressed that the river channel will be in danger of shoaling up just below the new wharf at Herring's Point, rendering it unapproachable by ships of deep draught. The engineers on the work say such fears are groundless.

The Assize Court was resumed this afternoon before Chief Justice Sir Mathew Baillie Begbie, when the Houston murder case was brought on. The whole afternoon was occupied in taking the testimony of the first witness, which has been crowded out of this issue.

During the past year there has been an increase of over 240 pupils in the public schools of this city, there being now 600 children attending the schools. Of these 420 are attending the Central school, 55 at the East End school, while 65 were in attendance at the West End school.

It is a singular fatality that every Sunday for the past month or so has been rainy while the rest of the week has been fine. These weekly showers, however, have done inestimable good to the crops and vegetation generally. The farmers say it is model growing weather and hope it may last.

It is a pity such a pretty little stream as the Brunette, so near the city and so suitable for boating a considerable portion of its length, should be permanently blocked up. Were this charming spot thrown open to the public it would prove a valuable addition to Westminster's attractions, and there is no reason in the world why it should not be.

Mr. Matsada Sorakichi, the famous champion Japanese wrestler, has been bestowing photographs of himself among his friends and admirers in Vancouver. Matsada looks like Homer's description of Achilles, when stripped and ready for the "deadly grip and ursine hug." He is one mass of hard, firm muscle; good looking and good tempered withal.

The Vancouver crew is training hard for their work on the 28th, which, from all accounts, will be of the "cut out" variety. The Seattle crew is one of the most formidable amateur crews on the Pacific Coast, and the Vancouver men are not undervaluing them at all, but getting down to good earnest work while there is yet time. The betting in Vancouver is 2 to 1. An immense crowd will witness the struggle.

The written examinations at the high school commenced this morning under the direction of the inspector of schools, who represents the Superintendent of Education, and will continue until to-morrow evening. The examinations in the public school for entrance into the high school will be commenced on Wednesday morning next and continued the following days until finished. Several pupils will present themselves for examination.

☞The electors of Westminster District should not forget that Hon. Robson stated, at Brownsville, on Friday, May 30th—in his speech immediately after the nominations—that, unless the electors returned two "straight" Government supporters from the District, with himself, he could not continue to represent them (even if elected himself) but would be obliged to say "Good-bye!" Will the electors stand this sort of dictating?

The Louise arrived from Victoria this morning at 11 o'clock, bringing 120 tons of freight and the following passengers: Judge Begbie, G. Clyde and wife, Miss Shaw, Mrs. Byron, Miss Whiteside, Miss Lord, Mrs. Hutcherson, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Ladner, Miss Savage, Dr. Brenton with four non-commissioned officers and two insane seamen from H. M. S. Amphion, Tallice, Dr. Bole, Kirk, Kirkland, Oakley, Young, Blanchard, Hemming, ton, Hammond, Nevel, Revs. Lemmens, Van Nevel, Bennet, Dewsuap, Dixon, Wadhams, McDowel, Tascot, Arthur, Southerby, Bain, Savage, Girard and wife, Todd, True, Hendry, Russel, Anderson, Smith, Well, Newland, Mayne, Swift and twenty others.

The Colonist reports that preparations are going on for the proposed change in the quarters of "C" Battery, the present barracks being required for the purposes of the coming exhibition. At considerable expense the building has been laid out and fitted for its present objects, the ground floor being occupied by the men and the galleries by the officers. The arrangements for the latter were made at considerable individual expense, and there is a possibility that after the partitions, etc., have been torn down, they may require to be renewed later on, since, so far, the new quarters at Macauley's Point are not sufficient to accomdate all the rank and file, many of whom will, for the present have to go under canvas.

A Striking Coincidence.

The Toronto Globe, in a report of a great political meeting at Stratford, Ont., on the 30th ult., says: "Mayor John Brown, a good name for a meeting for forwarding the cause of justice and liberty, occupied the chair, and conducted the meeting with tact and judgment." And we may add—a good name for a parliamentary representative in a great crisis.

Vandalism.

A gentleman living in the upper part of the city says that the two ornamental knobs or balls at his garden gate were knocked off last night, and he has good reason to surmise, maliciously, and by means of a club or other heavy instrument. There seems to be a gang of these vandals about town just now, and if the police desire the best thanks of the community they will lay hands on the vagabonds at an early date. The scoundrels do not confine their devastating attentions to garden gates, however, several instances of branches having been torn from cherry, apple and pear trees being reported. It is to be hoped that the first of these desecrators caught will be dealt with by the bench in such a manner that the private property of our citizens will not suffer molestation from the same cause for many a day to come.

HE SAID IT.

Capt. Thompson Declares He Did Not Go Back on the Government; But Honest Witnesses Say He Did.

At the Langley meeting of the candidates for election to the Provincial Parliament, Reeve Maxwell put the following question to Capt. Thompson: "Do you believe the Government sincere in its promise of a just redistribution measure, and do you think that promise can be depended on?" In reply Captain Thompson snapped his fingers and said: "It is not worth that."

At Langley Prairie the same evening Capt. Thompson declared to the meeting that he had a full and direct promise from the Government on a certain matter, and on being asked by Mr. Glover how it was his confidence in the Government had grown so marvellously in a couple of hours, he replied that he had never doubted it, and further denied his answer to Reeve Maxwell. A Matsqui gentleman, Mr. C. J. Sim, who had been present at the Fort Langley meeting, stepped forward and fully endorsed the statement of Mr. Glover, which Capt. Thompson did not further attempt to deny. The best evidence in the country can be adduced to substantiate THE COLUMBIAN'S report of the question and answer, and yet Capt. Thompson took the platform at Ladner's on Saturday night and denied it, and "threw the lie in his teeth." THE COLUMBIAN will take the trouble to get abundance of proof in this matter. Lots of proof is forthcoming and will be produced in due time. Capt. Thompson aspersed the Government's sincerity and will not be allowed to deny it unchallenged.

Youthful Burglars.

For some time past some of the bad boys of Vancouver have been scheming to burglarize all the houses in New Westminster and sell their plunder in the pawn shops of their adopted city. There were two gangs, one of which was to do all the robbing, while the other one was to do all the selling. Accordingly, Saturday was chosen as the day on which to begin operations, and the morning train on that day brought the young rascals, who put up at the Occidental Hotel on Columbia and Begbie streets. All went well until some one about the apartments of the hotel up stairs observed one of the boys seek shelter under a bed in a rather accelerated manner, and, thinking all was not right went to summon someone to assist in capturing the robber, when, in the meantime the boy rushed to the window, jumped a distance of some 15 feet to the balcony below, climbing down one of the posts to the street and the two made good their escape to the terminal city, by the road. Upon information being laid, Chief of Police Pearce took a trip to Vancouver yesterday, and with the aid of one of the police of that city captured Arthur Davie, William Davie and Ed. Chapman, ranging in ages from 11 to 13 years, and after some difficulty brought the lads to this City last evening, lodging them in the Station, thus preventing them from attempting any more robberies in this City for at least a time. The articles found in their possession, taken from the Occidental, were a gold scarf pin, a quilt, a post office bank book, a looking glass and several other articles of more or less value. All three boys are well known to the Vancouver police, and one of them, William Davie, was flogged but a short time ago by order of the court at Vancouver for having been one of the participants in a burglary case in that city.
