THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

VOLUME 24 — NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1883. — NUMBER 25

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, Sept. 26, 1883.

A Favored Region.

We sometimes complain of dry weather, and sometimes of rain. The past summer has been one of extraordinary drought, and if the usual equilibrium is to be maintained the coming winter may be unusually wet. Fires occasionally destroy the forests, and floods sweep over certain portions of the settled country. Aside from these British Columbia seems particularly free from those phenomena which leave death and destruction in their track. During the whole of the past summer a large part of the United States has been devastated by floods, hurricanes and cyclones. Millions of property have been destroyed, whole communities have been blotted out, and many lives have been lost. We have no hurricanes in this country, and no cyclones. We are also free from earthquakes. Although a very mountainous country, of vast extent and varied climate, British Columbia has no fear of the forces which lie beneath the surface of the earth. Occasionally a slight shock may be felt, but the earthquake itself does not visit our shores. And we are also remarkably free from pestilence. Once or twice since this province became civilized, it has had small pox; but the disease was confined chiefly to the Indians, and its spread was probably more the result of carelessness and uncleanness than from any other cause. It is admitted by all comers that we have a climate unsurpassed by any region on the continent, and our freedom from the plagues from which others suffer may possibly have something to do with this fact. It is said that people accustomed to earthquakes can predict their approach from certain peculiar conditions of the atmosphere. The atmosphere of British Columbia undoubtedly contains ingredients which are not universal. It is a well known fact that a case of hydrophobia has never been known on the Pacific coast. We have never seen a cause assigned for this, but one would naturally expect to find the cause in the condition of the atmosphere. The air in this country is remarkably pure, and free from miasma. People who make their home in British Columbia may do so with the assurance that they stand upon a foundation which never crumbles, and that no atmospheric disturbances will ever occur to interfere with their peaceful and prosperous existence.

Chinese Commercial Aggression.

A Philadelphia dispatch says that R. C. Spicer, a wealthy resident of the Pacific coast, just returned from Victoria, remarked: "While in Victoria I was informed that a delegation of celestials were buying up a great portion of available building lots in the suburbs. I discovered that these Chinamen represented in themselves not only a large amount of money, but they were vested with authority by hundreds of their fellow countrymen throughout the United States to invest their capital as they thought best. In New York a silent but powerful force is day by day gathering strength, that, ere long, will place Chinamen on a financial footing with hundreds of American retailers and small property owners in that city. Take Five Points for instance. Gradually the Chinese arm of proprietorship is extending around it, and even to-day there are numerous tea stores owned by Chinamen in that section."

Niagara to be Utilized.

A Buffalo despatch says: The problem which has for some time enlisted public attention, namely, how to utilize the enormous power going to waste in the Niagara river, is one step nearer a solution than it ever was before. E. Baker, a Boston engineer, arrived in Buffalo yesterday morning to look over the field and take preliminary steps toward an introduction of his apparatus. It is claimed by this gentleman that a power equivalent to that furnished by 500,000 horses can be obtained by submerging his motor in the midst of Niagara river, a force sufficient to pump all the water to generate all the electricity and to run all the machinery in the city of Buffalo, and this too without going to Niagara Falls for a head of water.

Clerk of the Court—"Owen Doherty. Are you Owen Doherty?" Prisoner (with a merry twinkle in his eyes)—"Yes, begorra, I'm owin' everybody."

"Could you lind me the loan of a pipe an' tobacky?" said Pat; "I have a match."

A Child's Prayer.

A Jefferson City special to the St. Louis Republican says:

Gov. Campbell today issued a pardon to Eli Burnett, of Bates county, who was, at the July term, 1882, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for grand larceny. The pardon was granted upon a petition which sets out that the crime committed was Burnett's first offense, and that, the law having been sufficently vindicated by a year's imprisonment, if given his liberty he would lead an honest life; and further, he is the father of a little, motherless, sickly girl, who is thrown upon the world, and who needs a father's care and attention. The petition is signed by the prosecuting attorny, sheriff and recorder of the county, ex-State Senator Bradley, and a large number of prominent citizens of Butler county, among whom are bankers, physicians, attorneys, merchants, ministers, farmers and other trades and professions.

The Governors's order recites as follows:

"Granted for the reasons given in the within application signed by the prosecuting attorney, prosecuting witnesses, and the officers of the county and leading citizens, and especially upon the application and tearful supplication of his six-year-old motherless little girl."

The petition was presented yesterday by the sister of the prisoner, who was accompanied by the little child. While the Governor was reading the petition the little girl quietly approached him, and, attracting his attention, said, with streaming eyes and trembling lips:

"Please sir, let my papa go home with me."

The Governor was greatly affected by this simple prayer of the little orphan, and with difficulty controlled his feelings. It was no put-up job, no acting; simply the earnest pleading of a weak little child for her papa. Whatever he might do to others, to her he was all in all. Too young to know of crime, she only knew her father had been taken from her and was in prison, and she wanted him.

The Governor, however, did not allow his feelings to sway him in the matter, and declined to act in the case until he had duly considered it, but kindly told the little one he would see what he could do for her by morning. When she left she took his hand and said:

"Please let me have my papa."

This morning the sister and child again called on the Governor, and the child renewed her pleadings for her father's release. The Governor, not having decided on granting the pardon, told the little one she could go home on to-day's train and he would send her word what he would do, but she replied,

"I cannot go home again without papa."

Following this they took their departure and went out to the penitentiary. About an hour later the Governor came to the conclusion that the circumstances of the case, the strong recommendations, and particularly the need of the child for a protector, warranted executive clemency, and ordered the pardon. Immediately upon its being signed he dispatched a messenger to the prison with it, so the little one's heart might be made glad and her burden of sorrow removed as soon as possible.

The sister of the prisoner says never a day has passed since the imprisonment of Burnett that the little girl has not wept for her father and fretted for his return.

Two Inches from Death.

The engineer of the train which reaches this city from Norristown at 11 o'clock at night had a thrilling experience on Wednesday. His train left Norristown with every prospect of reaching Nith and Green street station on time and without incident worth mention. The train was rushing on at the rate of about thirty miles an hour, and was within half a mile of Conshohocken when the watchful engineer was horrified at seeing a man lying within a hundred yards ahead of his engine, and with his head apparently on the rail. The air breaks were put down, the engine reversed, and every effort made to stop the train before the wheels reached the man's head. It was too late. On the engine rushed—on a hundred yards before the train could be stopped. When it came to a standstill the conductor, engineer, and a number of passangers went back to pick up the mangled remain of the unfortunate victim. Imagine their surprise upon discovering that the man was neither dead nor mangled, but sleeping quietly alongside the track, not at all disturbed by the racket which had been recently made by the passing train. His head was on a tie not more than two inches from the rail, and the wheels of the train must have passed over it within less than that distance. His body was stretched along the sleepers just outside the rail. The conductor woke him up roughly, and asked him what he meant by thus courting such a horrible death. "I don't want nothing but a little nap," said he, "and I don't see why a feller can't go to sleep out in the air in the country without getting hauled about like he was a thief."

When the danger of his position was pointed out to him he only said: "Well, I guess I had better get out a little further." He was finally driven off and warned not to attempt such a nap again. He went off grumbling, and not at all grateful. Engineer Ober says he never saw such a man. "I believe," said he, "that that fellow could have slept on top of one of the volcanoes of Java during an earthquake."—Philadelphia Record.

There is no preparation before the people to-day that commands their confidence more, or meets with a better sale than does Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry—the infallible remedy for all forms of Summer Complaint.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will never fail you when taken to cure Dysentery, Colic, Sick Stomach, or any form of Summer Complaint. Relief is almost instaneous; a few doses cure when other remedies fail.

The political contest being over, the popular vote of the people is now cast in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry—that matchless remedy for Cholera Morbus and all Summer Complaints.

Port Moody incorporation.

If another application is made for the incorporation of Port Moody, as intimated, we hope the promoters of the scheme will not resort to the subterfuges made use of on a former occasion. If there are bona fide citizens enough at Port Moody to constitute a municipality, and they are agreed upon the propriety of incorporation, we suppose incorporation will be had. But it cannot be obtained by means of bogus leases. Such tactics are unworthy of the terminal city, and they will not succeed. The bona fide residents of Port Moody should well consider, however, whether they will gain anything by incorporation. We are decidedly of the opinion that they would not. The community is altogether too small and its resources are too limited for carrying on the affairs of a municipality successfully. Before a respectable revenue could be raised taxes would be very heavy, and we have yet to learn what advantage is to be gained. We have not only denied that story already, but have shown on the authority of Mr. J. C. Hughes and Constable Sharpe that it was impossible. Its repetition can do no harm except to those who are silly enough to proclaim themselves as wilful falsifiers.

The Branch Railway.

We have several times drawn attention to the necessity of railway connection between this city and the C. P. R., and pointed out the importance of immediate action. The more one reflects upon the subject the more clearly must it appear that the progress and development of this city can never be assured without railway connection. We are glad to learn that the directors of the New Westminster & Port Moody Railway Co. are beginning to show signs of life, and there is a probability of some action being taken towards the construction of the road. The company was incorporated last year, and the authorized capital is $200,000, which, it was estimated, would be sufficient to build the road. It is the general opinion that this road should connect with the C. P. R. somewhere about the Coquitlam river bridge. The distance to that point is, we believe, about 8 miles, and there are no serious barriers in the way of road making. The cost would be very much less than the cost of a road to Port Moody, and the accommodation would be equally good. The only serious question which presents itself is that of ways and means. It may be fairly presumed that all are agreed upon the necessity of the work, but there may be difference of opinion concerning the mode of its accomplishment. Where is the $200,000 to come from? We believe the people of this city may make up their minds that no such road will be built by private enterprise unless it is subsidized by a municipal bonus of some kind. The scheme is proposed wholly in the interest of the city, and the city will certainly be called upon to give it a subsidy. It has been suggested that property-owners should be asked to subscribe sufficient to build the road. When built it would undoubtedly add to the value of city property from fifty to a hundred per cent., and it would pay the holders of real estate to hand over one-third of their property rather than lose the road. But would they do it? We are afraid not. Some might, and those who refused would receive the same benefit as those who consented. In a scheme which involves the welfare of the whole community it would be just and proper that every citizen should be assessed in proportion to the interest he has at stake. We do not know how large a bonus would be required, but if it does not exceed $50,000 we are of opinion that a by-law granting it would be carried. Not long ago it was suggested by the COLUMBIAN that some of our city reserves should be sold. We have more public squares and gardens than we shall ever make good use of. It was suggested that a proper title be obtained to these waste lands, and that a large portion of them be sold for the benefit of the city. In this way a large sum might be realized, and it has been suggested to us that the proceeds of the sale should be applied towards the railway bonus. We believe this way of meeting the difficulty is worthy of serious consideration. At present these public reserves answer no useful purpose whatever. They bring no revenue to the city, and they are of no benefit to anyone. If they were sold, the proceeds might materially lessen the railway bonus to be borrowed; and these properties would yield a large revenue to the city in the shape of taxes. There seems to be an opinion in some quarters that this railway should not be built until the question of the C. P. R. terminus has been absolutely settled, as grave doubts exist on that subject. We think this would be most unwise. The terminus will undoubtedly remain at Port Moody for some years at least, and it is of the utmost importance that the railway from this city should be constructed with the least possible delay. If connection is made with the C. P. R. at the Coquitlam, a change of terminus will not affect our road at all. But if the C. P. R. is completed and put in operation before we make connection with it, this city will at once lose her position as mistress of the mainland trade. She cannot compete successfully with Port Hammond or Port Moody without railway connection. Delay, therefore, means disaster. There is everything to be gained and nothing to be lost by prompt and energetic action. Next year the C. P. R. will be in operation from Port Moody to Yale, and it is quite likely the bulk of the interior traffic will go over that road. At the same time it is believed there will be direct steamboat connection between this city and the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railway on Puget Sound. New Westminster will then be in a position to do the wholesale trade of the mainland on more advantageous terms than Victoria. But can she expect to compete with Port Hammond, if the steamers choose to make that their headquarters? Goods coming over the Northern Pacific must be sent by steamer to this city, transhipped and sent by another steamer to Port Hammond before they could reach the railway for the interior. Every transhipment means an additional expense; and if the steamers went direct to Port Hammond goods would be delivered there just as cheaply as at this city. But we have before pointed out that if there was railway connection between this city and the C. P. R., we would at once become the practical terminus of both the C. P. R. and the steamboat lines. To secure this position we should strain every nerve. We shall be glad to receive for publication the suggestions of any person who may wish to discuss the subject of railway connection and how to secure it. In the multitude of councillors there is wisdom.

A CARD.

To the Citizens of New Westminster:

GENTLEMEN,—In resigning into your hands before the expiration of my term the trust reposed in me by you at the beginning of the year it is necessary that I should explain my reasons for doing so. When I accepted the position of Mayor of this City I did so with a full knowledge of the responsibility that would devolve on me in carrying out the duties connected with the office and with a determination to the best of my ability to carry them out in an efficient manner. Whether I have done so or not is not for me to say; but it must be evident that without the confidence and support of the Municipal Council those duties cannot be effectively discharged. A case has recently occurred in which necessary support required was denied me, and my confidence in the Council is therefore shattered. I cannot consent to remain in the position of Mayor of the City with the responsibility on my shoulders of carrying out the laws in force here with the feeling that the Municipal Council might nullify or impede my action, and my only course, therefore, is to resign.

HENRY V. EDMONDS.

MCNAIR.—In this city, on the 24th, John Alexander, only son of D. McNair, aged 1 year and 3 months.

ANDERSON.—At Burrard Inlet, on the 23rd inst., John Anderson, aged 30 years.

Weather continues charming, warm days and cool nights.

Men have commenced on the Columbia street improvement.

The pile driver began work at the steam ferry wharf on Monday.

The str. Irving brought down 100 bales of hay on Monday night for Victoria.

Work will be commenced this week on the wharf across the river to adapt it to the ferry.

Mayor Edmonds publishes a card to the citizens, which will be found in another column.

The steamship Sardonyx is advertised to leave San Francisco for this port next Saturday.

Yesterday there was a good deal of smoke in the atmosphere, probably coming from the sound.

The ship Morris has completed discharging rails at Port Moody, and will take on a cargo of lumber.

It cost the Northern Pacific $80,000 to drive its last spike, but it will get well advertised for that sum.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Blue Ribbon club will be held in the Skating Rink to-night.

During the first 2 months of the year over 143,000 persons have lost their lives through accidents and plagues.

The str. Yosemite did not arrive from Victoria until about 7:30 last night. She was detained by thick fog in the gulf.

They are going to grow oysters at the Gorge, near Victoria. Mr. A. J. McLellan has gone east for an oyster to start the thing.

The first half of the road from Bonson's Hotel to the wharf at Port Moody is completed, and the other half is progressing.

We are informed that a party of surveyors engaged in locating the railway from Washington Territory to the C. P. R. have reached Matsqui.

Coal is reported scarce at Nanaimo, the demand being in excess of the supply. It is to be hoped the mines will soon be able to fill all orders.

Last Saturday Dr. Masters, who had been liberated on bail, was re-arrested at Granville and sent to the city gaol. It is said the magistrates had no authority to accept bail, and application must now be made to the judges of the supreme court.

The walls of the agricultural hall are nearly completed, the roof is finished, and the building is receiving its second coat of paint. Nearly half the fence has been put up. The building will present a very good appearance, but we can't say as much for the fence.

Last Friday night Miss Williams entertained the members of her school in the upper part of the public school building, which has just been finished. The room was handsomely decorated, the refreshments were abundant, and a most enjoyable enjoyable evening was spent.

Capt. John Anderson died very suddenly at Burrard Inlet last Sunday night. The cause of death is believed to have been heart disease. For 5 or 6 years he has had charge of the steam ferry at the inlet, and was well liked. He was a Swede, and leaves a wife and one child. The remains were interred at this city yesterday afternoon, under direction of the I. O. O. F. and A. O. U. W.

Mr. Sandford Fleming and party came down as far as Harrison river on Monday, and last evening arrived at this city in a canoe. Mr. Fleming examined the whole railway line, and will go over to Port Moody this morning, taking a steamer there for Victoria. The party consists of Mr. Sandford Fleming, Principal Grant of Kingston, Mr. S. R. Fleming, and Mr D. Leigh of Calgary. They were at the Colonial hotel last night.

STEWART'S CATHEDRAL.—A Garden City, L. I., telegram says: The great Cathedral of Incarnation and St. Paul's School, founded by Alex. T. Stewart, was completed to-day. The cathedral has been in course of erection five years and cost $2,000,000. The school cost $1,000,000, and is believed to be the finest structure in the world. It has accommodation for 500 pupils. The organ in the cathedral cost $100,000. The cathedral interior presents a beautiful appearance. The altar was made in Antwerp, the statues in Florence and the windows in London.

EXCURSION AND SALE. — Persons wishing to visit the Chilliwhack Agricultural exhibition on the 4th prox. are reminded that the str. Adelaide will leave this city for Chilliwhack on the morning of the exhibition, and that tickets for the round trip may be had from Mr. Trapp for $1.50. Only a limited number of persons will be taken on this steamer, and tickets should be secured in time. During the exhibition Mr. Trapp will hold an auction sale on the grounds, when a large lot of miscellaneous articles will be offered. Farmers will also have the opportunity of securing Mr. Trapp's services as auctioneer for anything they may wish to dispose of.

THE FRONT ROAD.—The front road between this city and Sapperton is just now suffering from the infection of decaying salmon and putrid offal. The smell is terrible, and, with a northwest wind, must be dangerous to the city. The whole bank of the river is occupied by Indian huts, and these people are chiefly responsible for the condition of the river front. It seems to us that the Indians should not be permitted to establish themselves within the city limits at all. They have no proper conception of sanitary regulations, and are in many ways objectionable. Any person passing over the front road just now will be able to judge of their habits from the character of the odors.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION. — In consequence of the resignation of Mayor Edmonds, for reasons which are stated in another column, an election will be held next Saturday. The proper course for the ratepayers would be, under the circumstances, to re-elect Mayor Edmonds by acclamation.

CHILLIWHACK EXHIBITION. — We have been requested to say that the C. P. N. Co.'s steamers will carry passengers and produce to and from the Chilliwhack Agricultural Exhibition for one full rate. The shipping receipt for produce and stock must state that they are for exhibition. The company's offer is a liberal one, and should materially add to the success of the show.

RAILWAY DIRECTORS.—At a general meeting of the New Westminster and Port Moody railway held last week the following gentleman were appointed directors: J. S. K. DeKnevett, Robt. Dickinson, J. H. Couthard, L. R. McInnes, Jno. Hendry, Jas. Cunningham, W. N. Bole. The directors elected the following officers: J. S. K. DeKnevett, president; Robt. Dickinson, vice-president; W. Norman Bole, secretary.

SHIPPING ITEMS. – Strs. Yosemite and Irving left for Victoria and Yale on Saturday morning. Str. Enterprise arrived from Victoria Saturday night at 8:30. Str. Reliance left for Yale at 10:30. Str. Eliza Anderson, from Seattle, and str. Dunsmuir, from Nanaimo, arrived on Sunday afternoon. Str. Rithet arrived from up river on Sunday night and went round to Port Moody. On Monday night str. Reliance arrived from Yale at 7:30, and str. Irving at 10:30. Str. Enterprise left for Victoria at 8:30 Monday night. Str. Rithet arrived from Port Moody yesterday morning and proceeded up river with steel rails. Str. Eliza Anderson left with pleasure party for Seattle at noon yesterday, and str. Dunsmuir left for Nanaimo at 1 o'clock with lumber. Str. Yosemite arrived from Victoria yesterday afternoon at 7:30.

CITY COUNCIL. — Council met on Monday night. Present — His Worship the Mayor, and Couns. Haslam, Curtis, Ferris, Johnston, Deane, and Elliott. Several communications were presented, and the following accounts: Jas. Taffandale, $17.25; Hoy & Fry, $51.62. The board of works reported that they had engaged J. S. Macdonell to superintend the work on Columbia street. A culvert was ordered on Columbia street at McNeely street. The board of works were authorised to make plans for cribbing on Columbia street. Tenders for St. Patrick street were received, but not accepted, and the clerk was instructed to ask tenders for grading the street 20 feet wide. The mayor moved, seconded by Coun. Curtis, that one-half the fine in the recent cases for selling liquor without license be granted to Constable Knight. The motion was opposed by all except the mover and seconder, and was lost. The mayor thereupon tendered his resignation, and a new election for mayor was ordered for next Saturday. The finance committee were instructed to engage some person to collect the cattle tax. After some other business the council adjourned till next Monday night.

DRAINS.—Last spring a square board trough was put down on Agnes street, extending west from Mary street, for the purpose of carrying away the sewage. It was left open at the top, and very soon became partially filled with stones and sand. During wet weather this box drain gave no trouble because the run of water was sufficient to keep it comparatively clean. But when the dry season came, the wooden trough was filled to a considerable depth with filth which, under the action of the sun, sent off exhalations of the most sickening description. All summer this pestilential drain has been suffered to remain in a beastly condition, polluting the whole neighborhood. We have several times publicly called attention to the nuisance, but there it remains to this day. Now the board of works are putting down a similar drain box in front of Mr. Cunningham's residence, on the same street. They seem to imagine that the first one was a success. If the members of the board would hold their noses for a few seconds over it some evening, or any time during a sunny day, they might learn something to their advantage. It is a monstrous shame and disgrace to permit this horrible nuisance to remain during all these months without an attempt to apply a remedy. Before committing another blunder the board should take some steps to rectify the first.

EXCURSION FROM SEATTLE. — The steamer Eliza Anderson, Capt. Tom Wright, arrived here on Sunday afternoon with a private excursion party from Seattle, composed of the following ladies and gentlemen: H. L. Yesler and wife, Jno. Leary and wife, ex-Gov. Ferry and wife, Jno. M. Blanchard and wife, Mrs. Polhemus and children (Alameda, Cal.), Mrs. Cleveland (Washington, D. C.), A. Burgert, Theo. H. Thomson (correspondent Seattle Post-Intelligencer), Mrs. S. D. Howe, Mrs. J. M. Pearlman, Capt. Geo. D. Hill and wife, Mrs. Judge Burke, M. J. Carkeek and wife. The party left Seattle on Thursday morning, and visited Hood's Canal, Port Townsend, Victoria, and San Juan Islands before reaching this port. On Monday they drove over to Port Moody to see the terminus. They were pleased with the trip but somewhat disappointed at the terminal city, where they expected to find quite a business community. In the afternoon they boarded the steamer and went up river, intending to inspect the Pitt River bridge. Some difficulty was found at the mouth of Pitt River, and the party proceeded up the Fraser as far as Christian Island, a short distance above Stave River, where they anchored for the night. Yesterday forenoon they returned to this city and proceeded on the home stretch, intending to take in Bellingham Bay, Whatcom, and some other places. During her stay here the Eliza Anderson entertained the excursionists and citizens with a number of popular airs played on the steam calliope which she carries on deck. It was a jolly crowd, and the members appeared to enjoy their trip amazingly.

W. J. Guppy, druggist, of Newbury, writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is just the thing for Summer Sickness. I sold out my stock three times last summer. There was a good demand for it." Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is infallible for Dysentery, Colic, Sick Stomach and Bowel Complaint.

The Mayor's Resignation.

We regret very much that Mr. Edmonds has resigned his position as mayor of this city, and we regret still more the circumstances under which that resignation took place. The circumstances were fully stated at the meeting on Monday night, and are briefly as follows: Some months ago Constable Jackman reported to the mayor that he had reason to believe an illicit liquor traffic was being carried on in the city, and that he might be able to secure a conviction if one half the fine were made available for that purpose. The mayor brought the matter before the members of the council, and it was agreed that the constable's suggestion should be adopted. Constable Jackman did not succeed, however, in getting a case. Constable Knight was appointed some time ago, and made a similar application to the mayor, who informed him that it would be all right. Last week Constable Knight brought cases against two of the houses of ill-fame, with which our city is cursed, and secured a conviction in both instances. In each case a fine of $150 was imposed by the police magistrate, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Ferris, a councillor and a magistrate, came down from the bench to plead the cause of these women. At the next meeting of the council a resolution was moved by Mr. Ferris and seconded by Mr. Elliott, forbidding the clerk of the police court to pay any portion of these fines to any person except the city clerk. This resolution was carried, the mayor being absent at Port Moody at the time. On his return the mayor proposed a resolution at the council meeting last Monday night to the effect that half these fines should go to Constable Knight, as had previously been agreed. The mayor explained the circumstances and showed that the action he proposed could not be avoided without breaking faith with the constable and through the constable with the person who gave information. But the council would not listen, and the motion was voted down. Mr. Curtis was the only member present who sustained the mayor: Mr. Dickinson was absent. Under these circumstances the mayor tendered his resignation, and it was accepted. It has long been reported that there were people in this city selling liquor without license, and doing other things for which no license could be obtained. Some people have blamed the constables for permitting these things to exist, while others have held the mayor responsible. The people will know now where the responsibility really lies. In the cases of these women the constable has done his duty, and the mayor has endeavored to sustain the constable, but the council expressly declares that if convictions are secured against these illicit houses the constable will have to foot the bill himself. It is idle for these men to say that they do not approve of paying informers. If they know anything at all about police business they must know that it is practically impossible to secure convictions in such cases without the employment of informers. We have no sympathy whatever with the person who lays information for the sake of reward. He may be as bad as the person whose conviction he seeks to secure; but these characters have to be employed sometimes against the law breaker. Does any member of the council suppose that Constable Wiggins or Constable Knight could purchase liquor in any of these houses? If they cannot they must of necessity find some person who can, or how is a conviction to be reached? The council's action simply means that they do not wish these houses to be disturbed, and that action has resulted in the resignation of the mayor and Constable Knight. It remains for the people to say whether they approve of the course pursued by the mayor in this matter, or of the council.

From Boston Bar.

FATAL ACCIDENT—TWO LIVES LOST.

(By Telegraph to the Columbian.)

BOSTON BAR, Sept. 25.—On Sunday night last about 9 o'clock a small canoe containing 2 Indians and 1 white man while crossing Fraser river near Salmon river capsized, drowning a Chaoumox Indian known as Captain and the white man Andrew Buchanan a railroad tie cutter, a young man of about 25 years. He is said to leave a relative living near Clinton. The night was an extremely dark one and the river at that place very rapid and dangerous, which must account for the lamentable occurrence. Both Indians and the whiteman were quite sober at the time of the accident. Indian Captain disappeared at once; Buchanan held on to the canoe for over 2 miles, then dropped off from sheer numbness and exposure. The Indian saved had a rope fastened to the canoe around his hand to which he held on for over 5 miles, being then rescued by some Indians who heard his cry for help as he passed the ninth crossing and who put out in a canoe and thus saved the poor fellow more dead than alive.

From Alaska.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept.—Dennis, one of the men shot in the late Indian trouble, is still alive; but the doctor says he cannot survive long. All is very quiet in camp. All the miners are at work in the basin. Millon is working several roasters with good success on the Bear ledge. They have stripped the ledge of the whole length of the claim and find a solid body of quartz for the entire distance. Treadwell is still at work on his claim running the lower tunnel. He shipped this month his usual $2500 from his stamp mill. Dugan and party, who went to Yukon this spring, has sent Indians out for winter supply of provisions, they intending to winter in the interior. They report very rich finds of placer diggings that will pay $150 per day to the man. One other party has just returned from the same section of the country who report $20 diggings. All who have returned are preparing for an early start back in the spring to work their several claims. News from the Scheffiin brothers from Nowekakata, about 800 miles up the Yukon river, reports rich placer diggings. Salmon fisheries all over Alaska are doing a good business at present. All have as many fish as they can handle. Mr. Hopkins, of Naha bay, seems to be the only party lamenting his lot; but workmen who are with him state it is his own want of management which causes his ill-luck. Alaska was visited on the 9th inst. by a severe gale of two days' duration, doing much damage. The fish houses of Hopkins were totally destroyed.

Bridget Gallagher.

HER $30,000 CLEARS HER HUSBAND OF MURDER.

Bridget Gallagher is happy now, and can boast of being the first woman who went from the United States to the Queen's dominions and ran a jury to suit herself. It will be remembered that Bridget and her husband went to Victoria some time ago to reside, and after living there a while Bridget left her husband there to attend to business matters, while she came to Portland to look after her interests here. A few days after she left her husband, Lavin, became engaged in a drunken quarrel with a man, and in his mad frenzy struck his opponent with a sand-bag, killing him. He was at once arrested, and Bridget was notified of the fact. It didn't take her long to act. She quietly gathered up $30,000 of her accumulated wealth, and boarding the steamer announced her intention to clear her husband if it took every cent of it. The manner in which her efforts in this direction have been crowned with success is a matter of suprise to every one. The charge of the judge to the jury was almost unreasonably strong, but notwithstanding that fact a verdict of "Not Guilty" was brought, which so exasperated the judge that he ordered Lavin turned loose, and advised him to sand-bag the jury, much to the amusement of Bridget, who coyishly closed one of her eyes and remarked sotto voce that Ireland had made one portion of the queen's dominion very tired that she knew of.—Portland Mercury.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—In looking over the prize list of the B. C. Agricultural Association's exhibition for this year I find much to be pleased with, and trust the farmers, manufacturers and others on the mainland will come out strong and win many honors. I would like to know, though, whether the prize given by Hon. Jno. Robson is only for such articles as may be exhibited in section 8; and whether in section 11 the last two classes, 40 and 41, are to be confined to entries in that section, or are intended for all sections. Also, when is the annual election of officers to be held, as nothing appears in the constitution touching that point?

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

HONGKONG, Sept. 18.—A correspondent says the French are in difficulty through a want of troops. Many Chinese are deserting to the "black flag." Lang, their chief, is very powerful, and France may have to negotiate with him. Foreigners have been seen fighting on the side of the "black flag." General Boet admits that he was unable to hold his position after the last fight. The French are still buying steamers and horses.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Wm. M. Evarts, who returned from the Villard excursion yesterday, is enthusiastic about the country traversed by the Norther Pacific, its resources and its future. He said he was introduced to a new form of topography when he saw the vast plains of Montana. The agricultural resources of the country are limitless, and while it may not exactly become the granary of the world, it will certainly furnish us all the bread we can eat. The time will come when the greater portion of the Northern Pacific will have to be double tracked, owing to the demands for transportation the rapidly growing population will make upon it. The road was good and was easy to build. There are few grades and obstacles to be contended with. When it is remembered that the outlet of the road is 600 miles near to Japan than San Francisco, it will be seen what advantages the Northern Pacific route has. The harbors of Puget Sound and the entire upper coast are good.

HONGKONG, Sept. 21.—Gen. Bouet says he resigned his command because his position was intolerable, and on his arrival in France he will make a report of the situation. The French have suffered another check in Tonquin by yellow flag allies, being defeated near Hoi Hona.

CANTON, Sept. 21.—Tide waiter Logan is imprisoned in the British Consulate at Canton. He is charged with being concerned in originating the recent riots. He will be tried on Tuesday. If he is acquitted an outbreak of Chinamen is expected. The viceroy visited all the foreign consuls in Canton and expressed deep regret at the riots. His position is one of great difficulty. If friendly with the foreigners he will be certain to incur the wrath of the populace.

CANTON, Sept. 21.—Somethin akin to a revolution has made its appearance at the Imperial palace of Pekin. It is backed by popular demonstration. The people denounce the authorities, who do not seem energetic enough to suit the popular wish.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The rivers of Tonquin will soon be full and the French forces in Hanoi may then be placed in a dangerous position, as their gunboats will be unable to steam up to town. It is rumored that Hanoi will be evacuated.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Carey is very depressed and speaks of O'Donnell in bitter terms. She says he was an Invincible and believes he went for the purpose of murdering her husband.

ROME, Sept. 21. — An enormous crowd witnessed the ceremonies attending the commemoration of the entry of Italian troops into Rome. In an address alluding to King Humbert's visit to Vienna, it was mentioned that the ancient enmity between Austria and Italy had turned to sincere friendship. At its close a wreath was placed on the tomb of King Victor Emmanuel.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21. — Advices from Prof. Nordenoksjold's expedition to Greenland were received via Thurso, Scotland. These state that the expedition started from Antleikvich on Sept. 4th and reached a distance of 360 kilometres inland, attaining a height of 7000 feet above the sea. This is the first time human beings have penetrated so far into Greenland. The region is a desert. Scientific data obtained show that along the northwestern coast a cold stream flows, which induces a very low temperature; but on the eastern shore the weather is not so severe, and the coast is accessible to steamers in the autumn. The expedition will return via Reekaveek.

The Sun Dance.

BARBARIC SPECTACLE ON THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

A Qu'Appelle correspondent of the Winnipeg Times gives a graphic account of the celebration of the sundance by Pie-a-Pot's band, near Fort Qu'Appelle. He says: The sun dance—why called I could not find out—had commenced the previous evening. The first part of the performance was the elevation of a brave to the top of the center-pole of the tent, where he was secured, and a fire with plenty of smoke was lit underneath. He stood this preserving process through the whole night. The performing tent occupied a space away from the other tents. The interior was fantastically decorated with elaborate barbaric art. Right opposite the center-pole facing north a space about two feet wide was left. The first tier was gayly decorated with banners, flags, buffalo horns, feathers, a stuffed ermine, pictorial and moral pocket handkerchiefs, the Star-spangled banner, Union Jacks and cotton prints, all arranged in an artistic manner that would have gladdened the heart of Oscar Wilde. On approaching the circus you were politely informed that if you wanted to see the show you would have to produce 50 cents towards Pie-a-Pot's exchequer. Paying the fee you were permitted to step over a poplar pole and get as good a position as you could to witness the performance. Around the tiers above mentioned were packed as close as they could stand a row of squaws, fantastically and hideously painted, whose office was to furnish the wind instrumental music of the orchestra of home-made whistles, gayly painted and decorated with feathers, colored hair and ribbons. They bobbed up and down, emitting from their instruments a short, jerky whistle not at all unlike that uttered by an ungreased axle. They presented in some cases a comical and in one noted instance a ghastly appearance. The tent inside the tiers was occupied by the drums, while squaws furnished the chorus which filled the space towards the entrance. The orchestra, whose leader was squatted with the drums and wielded a rattle as a baton, was in full blast when we arrived. The monotonous beat of the drums, the screech of the jerky whistles and the wild vocal accompaniment lent to the scene a certain charm; more so when the low, and not unmusical, voices of the squaws came out in a solo.

The torture had been applied to the victim just as we arrived, and the old Medicine Man was taking off the mesmeric influence with an eagle's wing. Wrapped in a blanket the victim was led to the chief Pie-a-Pot, who lazily reclined at the opening in the centre of the tiers smoking, eating and drinking tea alternately. The next victim was now brought forward; his only clothing a piece of blanket wound around his waist. His body was smeared with a dirty white paint. A few of the older braves endeavored to shield him from the vulgar gaze, while the medicine man was performing the cutting operation. Taking a knife, two incisions of about two inches long and about half an inch apart were made on each breast, and a small skewer inserted thus forming a loop. The use of the two shaganappie ropes hanging from the pole was now apparent. The ends of these ropes were securely fastened to the skewer and the victim was ready for the performance. The Medicine Man now waved over him the eagle's wing, made passes, touched his forehead repeatedly, then, placing a banner in each hand, gave him a shove and launched him out. The ropes tightened, the flesh of the breasts extended, and the poor fellow danced wildly from side to side, chanting some low whispered words. At last, as if weary, he gave a bound and threw himself back, when the flesh gave way with a sharp crack, which could be distinctly heard above the din and clamor of the band. There he lay extended at full length, two streams of blood flowing from the lately inflicted wounds, a ghastly sight. He was immediately taken up; the Medicine Man performed over him and led him to the tent pole against which he leaned his head for a short time, moaning all the while. In a few minutes he received his banner and was duly declared a brave. One brave, braver than the rest, was promenading around the camp dragging after him a large buffalo head fastened by raw hide strings to the fleshy part of his shoulders. Another was bobbing up and down with the whistles with two cords fastened through the muscles of the arms. It is said that these barbaric rites were performed upon a child of some 7 years old, on the first opening of the dance. Neither the orchestra nor the victims taking part in the ceremonies are permitted food, drink or rest during the 96 hours the dance lasts. There being no victim ready to go up when some sight-seers happened to arrive, the genial Pie-a-Pot got his own son, who had already been through the mill, to again undergo the torture for the sum of $10. This is our boasted civilization when such scenes are permitted to be enacted in the midst of one of the finest settlements in the territory!

THE OLD COMMODORE.—This is a story about the Vanderbilt family: They were sitting on a hotel piazza at Saratoga when a somewhat over-dressed lady approached and claimed his acquaintance. The Commodore rose and talked affably with her, while his wife and daughter sniffed the air with scorn. "Father," said the young lady, as the Commodore resumed his seat, "didn't you remember that vulgar Mrs. B. as the woman who used to sell poultry to us at home?" "Certainly," responded the old gentleman, promptly, "and I remember your mother when she used to sell root beer at three cents a glass over in Jersey when I went up there from Staten Island peddling oysters in my boat."

Our Story.

NELLIE'S MEMORIES.

The conversation that day at dinner turned on the same politics over which Dudley and Mr. Rivers had argued during luncheon. Herwald took up the subject hotly, and the talk waxed so warm, and to me tedious, that I was glad to leave them to wrangel it out over their wine, and to go and sit on the terrace by myself. At our cozy tea-table, however, Dudley resumed the subject by asking Herwald why he did not enter into public life and stand for the next election.

"The election took place, my dear boy, while you were loitering in the north; and even if it were not, I should hardly dare to do so after stringent orders from two London physicians not to do anything involving great mental or physical work for the next two or three years."

"Are you jesting, Herwald?"

"On my honor, no; what makes you think so? You know I did not pick up as readily after that fever at Cairo as I ought to have done; and then I had a replase or two, and so Allan bothered me to go to Willis and Collins for advice before I started northward, and precious advice they have given me."

"Oh, I dare say your estate furnishes you with ample employment."

"My dear fellow, I believe you; there is not another landholder, I am sure, so plagued by his tenants; mine are so confoundedly independent; they get an idea into their heads and stick to it, and 'not all the king's horses and all the king's men' can drive the self-will from these Lancashire men."

"Well improvised; poor old Herwald, these are hard lines."

"Are they not?" he returned, looking very much as if he liked them. "I shall have lots to do during the winter; there are thorough repairs wanted in two or three of my tenants' houses, which I shall like to superintend myself; and then there are my plans for the new schools. I am my own architect."

"That's capital; I did not know you were so clever."

"Oh, I always had a taste that way, and now I shall turn it to account."

"Are you building them at your own cost?"

"Yes," he said quietly, "it is a memorial; I like it, and I think he would too, better than a painted window or a grand marble monument."

"Far better," we both acquiesced.

"I am glad you think so. Clive is so pleased; the old ones are dilapidated to such an extent that the rain comes through on the children's heads, and in addition to that you know we work a large farm of our own; you remember I pointed it out this afternoon."

"What, the one with the quaint old gabled roof, and the low stone walls lined with holly-bushes?"

"Yes, the same, Holly-bush Farm, we call it; there is only a bailiff in it now, but I want to put Allan in possession."

"What a windfall for him! does he know of your kind intention?"

"He does, but he will not hear of it, which is the more provoking, as he has a decided taste for farming, and is far too fine a fellow to be wasting his years in pampering the whims and fancies of a spoiled aristocrat; I am ashamed of myself for having him."

"I wonder he can so stand in his own light; why, the possession of a farm like that would be the making of him."

"Yes, but he says houses and lands are wasted on him, and that nothing can induce him to settle down, for it would drive him mad."

"Why so?" I asked curiously, but Herwald changed the subject abruptly.

"I hope Clive will be at the Cedars to meet you; he is a particular friend of mine; I know you will be pleased with him."

"I suppose we shall hear him to-morrow."

"To be sure; he will conduct the entire service, as his curate is away."

"Have you many friends about here?" I inquired; "who do you consider your next-door neighbor?"

"Oh, the Traceys of Milbrook House, half-way down the hill; but as good luck will have it, they are away at Paris, I believe."

"You don't seem to like them."

Herwald made a face of disgust.

"What is the matter with them, pray?"

"Matter! why there are six girls and three or four boys, the brothers only a degree more odious than their sisters; I've had to cut two or three of them rather rough, for they used to be eternally riding my horses, haunting the billiard-room, and borrowing my guns; and as they are a fast, ungentlemanly lot I did not choose to put up with it. And as for the sisters——"

"Well, what of them?" asked Dudley much amused.

"Why, you will never believe it," continued Herwald, growing very red; "but every one of them made love to me after a different fashion, aided and abetted by a manouvering mother."

"This is amusing, go on," said Dudley, who, stretched full length in the satin couch, was enjoying himself mightily: "how did they set about it, and were they not handsome enough for you."

"Oh, they were well enough looking; the eldest draws beautifully, and was always talking to me of high art, and of her never-to-be-forgotten winter at Rome; the second, Lucinda, was of sentimental cast, quoted Byron and Moore, wore long ringlets, and kept an album; the third was decidedly "horsy," and was always riding to hounds on a piebald charger; and as for the fourth and the prettiest, Flora, her sole thoughts were of balls, picnics, and junketing, a more empty-headed little butterfly never frittered life away; the two last, the twin harpists and pianists of the establishment, as their mamma called them, alternately played or warbled Italian ditties to our supposed content; I have a vivid remembrance of their thin arms and scraggy throats at this moment."

"What a charming family? Who are your other friends, Herwald?"

"Oh, I have hosts; there is old Dr. Mowbray, who lives in the red brick house opposite the Traceys, with his pretty niece Sophy, she is unfortunately engaged to her uncle's partner, young Greaves; then come the St. Clairs, one of whose sons, Hubert, went to college with me, and their cousins the Willoughbys, a nice family of girls and boys, who have lately come to the Grange; and the Rivers, and the Wallaces, and Sir Ralph Percy, and Major Hurlstone, and lastly and best, the Vaughans, once of the Grange and now of Rose Cottage."

"I never heard you mention them; who are they?"

"Arthur Vaughan is the best friend I have in Lancashire; he and his sister, Miss Milly, to whom I must introduce you one of these days, as she is a great favorite of mine, used to live with their mother at the Grange. There they resided in luxury; Arthur rode his own horses, went to college with me, and was to have shared my Eastern tour, when it was discovered all at once that his guardian had made ducks and drakes of his money, speculated largely, and the upshot was, that the Grange, which had been in their family for more than a hundred years, had to be sold: the Willoughbys bought it, and the widow and her children retired to a little cottage that belonged to them, and Arthur, with his fine education and gentlemanly taste, was obliged to accept the post of daily tutor to the Willoughby boys, and to teach in the same house where he had once been master. I think this broke the mother's heart—she was a proud woman, and a Spaniard by birth—for she died about six months after their removal to Rose Cottage; so the brother and sister live quite alone now. Come, have I gossiped sufficiently for your ladyship's benefit? because if I have, I will go and play."

And so the innocent woman-killer, by his own account, groped his way to the organ, and soon one of Beethoven's divine symphonies floated through the room; Dudley and I followed him, and the rest of the evening was spent happily in music.

The next day was Sunday, and after breakfast Herwald asked me if I should mind a long walk to church; on my replying that I should enjoy it greatly, he said:

"I am very glad of that, for I have a strong objection to have the horses out on Sunday; not that they are much worked, but I like Williams to go to church with his wife and children, and enjoy his day of rest as much as I do; and then I can listen to the fourth commandment with a clear conscience, and not fancy there are harsh commentators in the servants' pew; and now put on your bonnet, Nellie, for we will take it leisurely this lovely morning."

The walk was long but exceedingly pleasant, and I was quite sorry when we reached the church, and the minute hand of the belfry clock gave us no excuse for lingering in the shady church-yard. Many a kindly greeting did Herwald exchange on the way with man, woman, and child; and though the rough Lancastrians never doffed or touched their caps, as southern breeding would have taught, yet the "good-mornings" were as heartily said, and the strong, powerful faces lit up pleasantly at the sight of the young master; even the sturdy shepherds' dogs seemed to know him, and wagged their fagends of tails affectionately as he passed.

The church was nothing particular in point of architecture, and was chiefly remarkable for its numerous monumental tablets and two superb windows, the gift of Herwald's ancestors. In spite of the glorious sunshine without, all was sombre and shady within, with a dim, religious light, and the roomy square pew into which Herwald inducted us, with its purple baize lining, struck me as resembling a good-sized sarcophagus and about as cheerful. High as it was, however, I saw Maud Rivers' tall figure pass into the pew opposite, rustling in silks and with a wreath of jasmine resting on her satin hair, and I was just thinking in my own mind what a pity it was that girls nowadays wore flower-gardens on their heads instead of the decorous church-going straw bonnets of old times, when Herwald touched my arm, and said—

"That's Hubert Clive?" and raising my head, I saw a tall, fair, effeminate-looking man with heavy-lidded eyes and a proud, weak mouth.

And this was Hubert Clive, Herwald's great friend. I felt bitterly disappointed; I remembered the minister's granite face, and Mr. Egerton's powerful head and benevolent countenance, and I felt I could never care for a clergyman who could look round on his congregation with those sleepy, half-vailed eyes. Just then the sun emerged from a passing cloud, and a host of dazzling prismatic colors from the painted window tinged his robes and circled his fair hair with a glory of violet and crimson. Herwald whispered enthusiastically—

"Doesn't he look like the angel Gabriel, Nellie?" and, for all my dislike of talking in church, I could not help answering indignantly—

"Angel Gabriel, indeed, with those long, well-trimmed whiskers."

I thought Herwald would have burst out laughing.

Mr. Clive read the service in a singularly melodious but monotonous voice: his enunciation was perfect, every syllable audible from one end of the church to the other, and that without the slightest effort; but the want of variation in tone, of power, of deep feeling even, were such that I would have preferred the most faulty style, if it were only combined with earnestness of manner, to his.

Just such was the sermon. I thought of Mr. Egerton's harvest discourses and sighed. Here was a sermon faultless in composition, learned even, arguing great knowledge of the Scriptures, rich with quotations from the fathers, prolific of godly wisdom; but oh how cold, delivered in that lifeless manner, in that measured tone! Once only did it amount to eloquence, once while speaking of "the rest that remaineth," the eyes opened, looking bright, dark, and vivid, and the voice rose and waxed warm and loud, carrying us along with him into realms of beautiful thought; till it broke off hastily in a way that was strange and abrupt, and with a low-spoken blessing, almost inaudible, the congregation was dismissed.

"What a charming discourse," said Maud Rivers, with her foot on the carriage step, as we passed, "what a superior man and scholar is our dear Mr. Clive!"

"Yes," said Herwald, "he is a wonderful fellow," and we walked on.

"Well, what do you think of him, Nellie?" asked Herwald, as we turned into the road.

The tone was so enthusiastic that I could not bear to damp it; I thought of the angel Gabriel and held my peace, hoping that Dudley would answer, but he was walking on ahead deeply pondering, perhaps of "the rest that remaineth."

"Well, speak out, why do you hesitate?"

"Because I scarcely know how to answer you; Mr. Clive's reading and sermon would have been beautiful, if it had not been so cold."
