Pope Leo XIII.

Helen Ayr Saxton, in the Chicago Current of a recent date, gives some interesting biographical sketches of the present pope as a youth and a man, from which we quote the following:

"Gioachimo Vincent Raphael Ludovico Pecci, now better known as Pope Leo XIII, comes of a long line of nobles, of men and women who have been for generations educated, refined and in many ways distinguished. The picture he draws of his boyhood is an attractive one. He is said to have been a "gentle, patient, clever little lad," and to have worshiped his mother, the Countess Anna Pecci, a woman of rare and beautiful character, who was early taken from her family. Her third son, now Cardinal Pecci, speaks of her with great affection and reverence. He says: "She was most devoted to the poor. She was always woking for them. * * * She was the soul of every good work of piety and beneficence that was set afoot in the town. Indeed, she started many of them herself. But all this active outside charity never made her neglect her home duties. She lavished on us all a mother's most devoted tenderness."

The father, Count Pecci was wholly in sympathy with his wife, and the home life was such as to develop whatever was best and most lovable in the little ones who grew up within that pleasant circle, and to be to them in after years the tenderest of memories and an abiding influence for good. There were six children, Gioachimo, or Joachim, being the youngest. He is said to have been the readiest of all at his books. He early gained honors in Greek and prizes for original Latin verses. One of his schoolmates at Viterbo and Rome, writing of him soon after his election to the Papacy, says:

"I can bear witness to the fact that while yet at Viterbo he won our admiration, not only by his quick intelligence, but still more by the singular purity of his life. During our Humanities course we were rivals, and there each time I saw him he impressed me as being all life and intellect. All through his studies in Rome he never sought social gatherings, conversazioni, diversions or games. His work-table was his world; it was paradise to him to be plunged in the study of science. From his twelfth and thirteenth years upward he wrote in Latin prose and verse with a facility and an elegance that were wonderful in one so young."

In 1830 young Pecci entered the Gregorian university as a theological student. In 1832 he received his degree of Doctor. After that time he always signed his name "Joachim." His unusual abilities met with speedy recognition. In 1837 Gregory XVI appointed him one of his domestic prelates, and in the following year sent him as delegate or governor to the province of Benevento.

The province had passed through various changes of government, and was in a very disordered condition. Cut off from the central authority, situated among the Apennines, and remote from the more important lines of communication, it had become the headquarters of the brigands who infested the neighboring territories. Bands ostensibly organized for the defense preyed upon the towns. The nobles filled their castles with armed retainers, and these lived upon the country. All found it easier and more profitable to keep on good terms with the brigands than to side wih the authorities against them. The Papal rule was mild and fatherly, imposing no heavy burden of taxes, and Benevento became a refuge for smugglers, political offenders, outlaws of all sorts who were hiding from the justice of their own governments.

To bring order out of this confusion was no small undertaking for a young man. Older men, of greater experience and higher dignity, had attempted the task and failed. But in his previous position as a high officer of the Roman government Pecci had gained some knowledge of the state of affairs in Benevento and the nature of the men with whom he had to deal, and he decided upon quick and determined measures. With the pontifical troops at his disposal he made a sudden attack upon the principal strongholds of the brigands and smugglers and soon had the most notorious and dreaded of the offenders in chains, much to the relief of the people.

The young governor did not content himself with merely removing the evils. He studied how to make good take their place. The people of Benevento were soon relieved of their heaviest burdens. Law, order, peace and security were firmly established. Agriculture and commerce sprang into new life. Good roads and markets were opened. People went about their business and pleasure without fear of violence and outrage. Less than three years of wise statesmanship and true political economy sufficed to work the transformation.

He subsequently filled other places of honor with great credit and satisfaction, was finally, in 1853, made a cardinal, and on the death of Pius IX in 1878, discovering that the cardinals intended to elect Pecci went to one of the oldest and most reverend members of the Sacred college and said to him:

"I must address the Sacred college. I fear they are about to commit a sad mistake. People think I am a learned man; they credit me with possessing wisdom; but I am neither learned nor wise. They suppose I have the necessary qualities for a pope. I have nothing of the kind."

The other replied: "As to your learning, we, not you, can best judge of that. As to your qualifications for the Pontificial office, God knows what they are; leave it all to Him."

At the third balloting forty-four votes were recorded in favor of Cardinal Pecci. This was more than two-thirds majority, and the choice of the Sacred college was decided.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

THE "TIMES" LIBEL SUIT.

LONDON, July 5.—The sudden manner in which the O'Donnell libel suit has come to an end is a matter of astonishment to those who were anticipating rare and startling disclosures of the methods and secret business of the Irish National League. Mr. Parnell's testimony has been looked forward to with great interest and numbers are disappointed at this abrupt finale of what was expected to be a long drawn battle. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge indeed gave the trial its death blow at the very beginning by refusing to allow, as he said, the truth or falsehood, of the alleged libels against other people to be tried in this case. In summing up the case Lord Coleridge did not spare Mr. O'Donnell, against whom he launched most caustic shafts and for whose actions he expressed almost contempt. "I am surprised," he said, "that any man calling himself a man, should, for his own purposes, whatever they may be, want, or attempt to try a case as this one has been tried."

THIS MORNING'S DESPATCHES.

THE MEN WIN.

PITTSBURG, July 6.—It appears this morning that the iron workers will be successful in resisting the reduction in their wages. Moorhead & Bros., of the Ætna, and the Vesuvius Iron Workers Co. signed the amalgamated scale late last night. The Newport Iron and Steel Works, at Newport, Ky., has also signed and resumed work this morning.

ON TRIAL FOR TREASON.

LEIPSIC, July 6.—Herr Deitz, Herr Appel and the wife of the first named have been on trial here on a charge of treason, having sold information to the French government of the construction of German strategic railways. The verdict is expected on Monday.

ATTACKED BY PIRATES—CATTLE DISEASE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—The str. City of New York, from China and Japan, brings news that a Chinese passenger boat, having on board about 80 passengers, from Amoy for Tung Wa, was attacked by pirates when near her destination and six men shot. The remainder became panic stricken and rushed to one side of the junk, capsizing her, and four more were drowned. The pirates then made off, and have not yet been captured.

The cattle epidemic in the Philippines still continues, and grave fears are expressed of its giving rise to disease among mankind, owing to effluvium from the large number of corpses of animals. It is almost certain that in districts where the epidemic more especially prevails there will be a scarcity of food owing to the want of oxen to plow the fields. In one instance the possessor of 1200 head of cattle lost them all in a few days.

HORSE THIEVES.

BENKLEMAN, Neb., July 6.—Horse thieves have been operating in Dundy and Cheyenne counties extensively of late. Sheriff Buckwald struck the trail of a gang and followed it to a head in Colorado. He came across the thieves, John Bonfield and Mike Langlin, last night. They were armed with Winchesters. Langlin resisted arrest and was shot dead by the sheriff. Bonfield then surrendered.

SHERIDAN STILL IMPROVING.

DELAWARE BREAKWATER, Del., July 6.—The wind and weather became favorable for a quiet trip this morning, and the steamer Swatara, with General Sheridan on board, sailed for Sandy Hook. The generals condition remains good.

PASSENGER LIST.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Passengers per S. S. Mexico for Victoria: J. B. Cooper, P. R. Murphy, J. Porter, J. R. Goodall, A. McNaughton, H. Urquhart, J. Urquhart, C. Hatch, J. Bain, Miss Tiffany, Sister of Charity, T. J. Williams.

A LIFE FOR A LIFE.

SANTA ROSA, Cala., July 6.—An Indian known as McElarney Jim has been arrested for confessing to the murder of another Indian named Dick, on Wednesday night. Dick killed Jim's brother about a year ago and was acquitted. Jim said the law would not punish Dick so he thought it rest with him to avenge his brother's

A LUCKY DOCTOR.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A bill was introduced in the senate to-day to pay Dr. Bliss, who was one of the attending physicians to President Garfield, the sum of ten thousand two hundred dollars, being the unexpended balance of the amount appropriated by congress for the expenses of Garfield's sickness.

THIS AFTERNOON'S DESPATCHES.

A BIG WAVE.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The City of Rome, which sailed from Liverpool on June 27th, arrived last evening and came up to her pier this morning. It was reported by her officers that at noon on July 1st, during a heavy head sea, the vessel shipped a huge wave which carried away her bowsprit and stove her forward bridge. Of the seamen on duty there were several seriously injured.

THE DEADLY PISTOL.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—At inquest held to-day in the case of the boy Chas. Barks, who was shot and killed last Monday by a toy pistol in the hands of his playmate, Benny Hoppe, the bullet wound in the head was fully accounted for, but the bad wound in the child's breast puzzled the coroner. Young Hoppe and the witnesses claim the pistol was discharged only once. In the police court this morning Hoppe's examination on the charge of manslaughter was remanded for a week.

FORFEITURE BILL.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The land grant forfeiture bill passed the house today by a vote of 177 ayes to 8 nays. The bill as passed is a substitute for the senate bill. The bill provides that all lands heretofore granted by congress to any state or corporation to aid in the construction of railways not constructed within the time specified in the act making the grant for completion of such railway, shall be deemed forfeited to the United States.

WRECKED.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 6.—Early this morning four cars of Forepaugh's circus train, bound for New York, were wrecked in a dark tunnel, under Central street, this city. Three circus employees were badly injured, two fatally. Three horses were killed and two cars ruined.

A DYNAMITE PLOT.

CHICAGO, July 6.—J. A. Bauereisin, an officer of the Aurora division of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, was brought to Chicago this morning under arrest by a deputy U. S. marshal. He is charged with complicity in an alleged dynamite plot against the Burlington railway. Three arrests were made last night. Bauereisin states that he knew nothing of the charges preferred against him and that his arrest was a total surprise. He said he had been quietly at home since the strike began, except two days that he had attended the committee meeting at Chicago.

Police Court.

Before H. Mathers, J.P.

John Kelly, charged with being drunk and incapable, was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $2.50 and costs.

Ah Chow, charged with having stolen chickens in his possession, was remanded till to-morrow. Constable Pearce was patrolling Columbia st. about 2 o'clock this morning and when near Mr. H. V. Edmond's residence he descried a Chinaman making his way carefully along the street with a bag on his back. Stepping back from the sidewalk, the constable waited until the celestial was opposite when he stepped out and seized him. Ah Cow was surprised but made no attempt to escape as he saw that was useless. When asked what he had in the bag the Chinaman said he was out selling chickens. The constable investigated the bag and found two plump chickens, and on searching the person of the thief found three eggs. As the explanations were not satisfactory Ah Cow was taken to the police station. He will be up for trial tomorrow.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

Daily British Columbian

Friday Evening, July 6, 1888.

Our cotemporary, the Vancouver News, expresses great dissatisfaction at the dilatoriness of the Vancouver city council with respect to steps being taken towards the construction of the bridge across False Creek. He says, very properly, that the delay in getting this improvement commenced is causing people to get impatient and is undoubtedly causing an injury to the interests of the community. Our cotemporary, very naturally, manifests great impatience also. He is running a paper. Newspapers require interesting items to make their papers readable, and the details of the progress being made in a scheme which, if consummated, will prove of such great advantage to Vancouver, certainly would provide some very interesting matter for the readers of our cotemporary. But we do not think it is judicious to try to force the city council who have the matter in hand to hurry things any faster than they think it is desirable in the interests are honorable men and undoubtedly are working in the interests of the city. The organization of such a bridge, the providing the capital for its construction and the elaboration of all the details incident thereto are not matters so easy of accomplishment as some people suppose. Men who carry through these projects successfully are not generally accustomed to give the public the details of a matter until it is completed, and when no risk can be incurred by the publication of the particulars. While our cotemporary is pining for some signs of progress in the construction of this very important bridge (so to have an interesting item to make his paper readable), the "honorable men" aforesaid may be scheming desperately (always in the interests of the city) to abandon the bridge altogether (in the interest of the city) and run a tunnel under False Creek instead. We do not think our cotemporary need be anxious as to any danger of this scheme not being pushed through in a manner which will contribute not only to the success of Vancouver, but of Westminster and this portion of the province generally, which is interested. And if our cotemporary will permit us to give it a hint (as we live in Westminster, and run the Westminster organ here, of course, we know a great deal more about our cotemporary's business than he does himself, and take a far deeper interest in Vancouver's interests than he can possibly do), we would say that the arrangement that will probably be arrived at will be a tunnel under False Creek, with a satisfactory system of derricks and donkey-engines at both ends for hoisting passengers and other truck out of the holes, as a bridge constructed in the substantial and permanent way that would be necessary, would be an enterprise too costly to be undertaken at present. This piece of information we get from the highest authority, so our cotemporary is evidently not in the confidence of the lieges of Vancouver. It is not copyrighted, however, and our cotemporary can have it, without credit, for an "interesting item" so as to make his "paper readable" for his Westminster readers.

"A perfect town is that in which you see the farmers patronizing the home merchants, the laborers spending the money they earn with their own tradesmen, and all animated by a spirit that will not purchase articles abroad if they can be bought at home. The spirit of reciprocity between business men and mechanics, tradesmen and laborers, farmers and manufacturers, results every time in making a town a perfect one to do business in."—Whatcom Reveille. We would say, "amen," to the foregoing, but think it strange that our cotemporary did not add to the catalogue of business proprieties which go to make up a perfect town—"and in which you see the merchants, lawyers, real estate agents, laborers, and business men of all descriptions, who require a newspaper or anything in the printing line, patronizing their own local paper, instead of helping to build up the newspapers of some rival town and sending their job orders across the continent." But "where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise." The people of the enterprising Bellingham Bay town are probably a great deal too shrewd to "do such things," and our cotemporary, quite likely, never heard of such stupidity being practised, and might not believe the following authentic legend which at great pains and expense we have deciphered from some musty MS. in our possession. The edges of the MS. aforesaid are worn with age, and we have been unable to make out plainly the names of places, etc., where the comedy-tragedy was enacted, but the following is a free translation from the original:

Chapter I.

Once upon a time, very long ago, there was a thriving town which some jaw-breaking potentate was so good as to christen in its infancy Retsnimtsew. This city with the hard name was situated in the large, broad, diversified and delightful country of Albumlochsitirb. Nature had done much for both city and country, but some of the inhabitants of the city, especially, were very verdant—all grown over with moss. There was an enterprising newspaper in that town called the Naibmuloc which spent over a thousand pieces of silver called "cart-wheels" right in the town every month. It also furnished the citizens with all the latest news, and helped very much to advertise and build up the city and the country by calling attention to their resources and defending them from the false accusations of jealous rivals. It would have enlarged its business and spent much more money in the place, besides advertising Retsnimtsew very materially by showing that it had the best and largest newspaper in all Aibmulochsitirb; but the silly inhabitants, failing to appreciate the benefit of a live newspaper to their town, and not grasping the fact that the "character of a people is shown by their journals," patronized to a considerable extent the newspapers of other towns, which spent their money in other towns, and even went so far as to send orders for printing which they required to [illegible] Otnorot. They were in the habit of sending large orders to this place, and if they had given the same large orders at home, they would probably have got the work done just as cheaply, but even if they had paid a few cents more the money would have come back to them again, because it would have been kept circulating in their own city, besides helping to build up a paper which more than anything else would have given them a good name abroad. But the proprietors of newspapers in the rival towns in Aibmulochsitirb, and the chief men of the great printing establishments at the other side of the world, in the place called Otnorot, waxed beefy, and they laughed horribly in their sleeves as they scooped in the cart-wheels, double-eagles, and toad-skins of the misguided people of Retsnimtsew, and they said hoarsely: "Ha, ha! these simples do pay tribute unto us; therefore we shall increase, but they shall decrease." But the merchants, business men, &c., of Retsnimtsew didn't "catch on" worth a cent, but still kept on "giving themselves away" as before.

Chapter II.

The chronicles did say that there were some in Retsnimtsew who were wise, and gave their enterprising paper a fair support, and others who gave it a partial support. To these spake the Naibmuloc, after careful figuring with a piece of charcoal and a shingle: "It's a poor rule that won't work both ways; or, in another dialect, 'what's sauce for the goose is likewise salad for the gander.' Don't you perceive, O inhabitants of Retsnimtsew, that you are paying a few cents too much on every purchase of the necessaries of life which you make at the stores of the tradesmen in this town. You also pay more than you need to for all manner of work, professional and manual. Now, we have an idea which, if carried out, will bring you much gain. Take our advice. If you have any of your neighbors working for you and supporting themselves and their families in the town, "fire" them and hire instead the nasty but cheap Chinee; if you require any professional services get them at the neighboring town, Revuocnav, and all your provisions, clothing, and other necessaries of life, send large orders, and you can get them a few cents cheaper at the other side of the world, in the place called Otnorot, for, of course, other cities, getting your trade, in addition to their own, can afford to give you better terms than their own citizens get. By so doing they extend their trade, and hope to absorb you altogether after awhile." And the inhabitants of Retsnimtsew who read the Naibmuloc harkened unto the oracle, and did accordingly.

Chapter III.

And "the goose hung high" in Restnimtsew. The shutters also were put up, and it was one perpetual holiday. And about the time of the hay harvest (for men did cut hay upon the principal streets with sickles and jacknives) the inhabitants of Retsnimtsew said with one accord, each to his fellow: "What boots it to stay any longer in this wilderness? Our money is all in Revuocnav and at they other side of the world, in the place called Otnorot. Behold let us hie us to where our treasure is. And they hied, some went to Revuocnav, but the greater part "counted the ties" to Otnorot, for they were too poor to ride. And they live in tents unto this day in the suburbs of Otnorot. But owing to the cold weather they are fast becoming extinct.

* * * * * * *

And now nothing is heard in Retsnimtsew but the melancholy croak of the lonely bullfrog, the gentle soughing of the Chinook zephyrs among the tall hay, and the monotonous drip, drip of the water from some rust-eaten hydrant, varied at irregular intervals by the muffled crash of some old building sinking into ruins and the doleful complaining of the owls and the bats who are thus disturbed.

A lady writes: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was compelled to wear a shade over them, and, at times, was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—James Eccles, Poland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health.—W. Keeler, Amherst, Mass.

I suffered from Constipation, which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me, completely.—D. Burke, Saco, Me. ††

TELEGRAM.

OTTAWA, 27th March, 1888.

To LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BRITISH COLUMBIA, VICTORIA.

Your Government should issue public notice cautioning persons going on Sealing expeditions to refrain from assertion of their rights by force, and from taking on board arms and ammunition in excess of their usual requirements. The whole matter is engaging the attention of Her Majesty's Government and forms the subject of diplomatic negotiations now in progress. Any intemperate action in the meanwhile would be most detrimental to British Columbian interests and might lead to serious complications and be followed by grave consequences to those concerned.

WHO IS THE WIDOW?

WILL MARLBOROUGH TAKE A DUCHESS FROM AMERICA?

Dame Rumor Again Busy with This Interesting Subject—A Sketch of the Duke and His Surroundings.

(Copyright 1888.)

There is no peace for the Duke of Marlborough. The gossips won't let him alone. They persist in it that he is contemplating matrimony, and private advices from London tend to confirm the suspicion. Since the Duke has been in America no word has escaped his lips about his plans, but it is known that Blenheim Palace, the the duke's home, is being swept and cleaned and put in condition for the coming of some one of importance. All the world loves a duke, even if he is a very, very bad duke, as Marlborough is, but when the duke is a lover as well, he becomes doubly interesting. Those who are au fait in matters concerning the heart, say that the duke has actually asked a rich widow to become his wife. Mrs. Louis Hammersley, blonde and beautiful, with $5,000,000 in her own right, is said to be the woman. Mrs. Marshal D. Roberts, a trifle mature, but worth $20,000,000, and the possessor of rare jewels and an envied social position, is said to be the woman. Mrs. Susan Stevens, worth a good many times her weight in gold, still charming although a grandmother, is said to be the lucky woman. In fact every widow with a fortune is spoken of as the future duchess.

It may interest people who read these lines to know that the duke's name is never coupled with that of any widow who isn't wealthy. The duke has no use for a woman without a fortune. He is a bad man, loaded up to the ears with debts, and he wants some one to pay them. He wants money, and in its place he offers a palace in England and a royal crest. The Duchess of Marlborough ranks ninth from the Queen of England. Her position is an enviable one, and Blenheim Castle is one of the most famous as well as picturesque homes in Victoria's domain.

And so when all things are considered it would not be so surprising if his highness should find a mate in the highway of fashion and folly in New York.

It may interest some of my feminine readers to know that the duke is the descendant of one of the oldest families in England. The originator of the title of Duke was John Churchill, and he was made an earl and a duke by Queen Anne for his victories over the French and Bavarians in the Netherlands. Previous to that time the Churchills had been a powerful family in the country. They came from Ashe, in Devonshire, where the first Duke was born. After the Battle of Blenheim, in 1702, the queen and parliament wished to honor him for his brilliant services. The queen made him a duke and parliament voted him £500,000 ($2,500,000) to build his house. The site selected for this mansion was at Woodstock, in Oxfordshire, eight miles northwest of the famous University City. Woodstock was the residence of the early English kings. Edward the Black Prince was born there. Elizabeth was a prisoner there, held by Queen Mary. Chaucer died at Woodstock, and it was made famous in connection with the fair Rosamond. The £500,000 to be spent in erecting a mansion suitable to be the home of the hero did not nearly cover the cost. Sir John Vanbrugh designed the residence and parts surrounding it. The palace, called Blenheim House, after the famous battle, is a magnificent one, and with the exception of the Duke of Devonshire's palace, at Chatsworth, and Baron Rothschild's house and park at Mentmore, is the handsomest in England. The palace stands on a hill, and from its magnificent views of the whole county of Oxford and of parts of the adjoining counties can be had. The length of the principal front part from wing to wing is 348 feet. The entire palace is big enough for the owner to entertain 150 guests. The interior of the palace is magnificently decorated. The banquetting hall is enormous, and when filled with guests and lighted it presents a gorgeous sight. The great hall is a lofty and grand apartment in good proportion. The entire structure is built in the Italo-Corinthian style. The Blenheim House collection of pictures and statuary was considered one of the finest in England. Since the palace was first built the dukes have given a great deal of attention to art. The late duke added to the galleries very largely. The present duke does not seem to fancy pictures much, and in order to relieve himself of financial embarrassment two years ago, he ordered the pictures to be sold. The sale was a memorable one, and purchasers went from all parts of the world. Among the famous pictures that were in the collection were "The Young Augustine and Pope Gregory," by Titian; "Europa," "Esther" and "The Massacre of the Innocents," by P. Veronese; "St. Jerome," by Tintoretto; "The Magdalen," by C. Dolce; historical subjects by Rubens, portraits by Rubens and Vandyke, and "The Woman Taken in Adultery" and "Isaac Blessing Jacob," by Rembrandt.

The manor of Blenheim Park embraces a circuit of twelve miles. The park itself has 2,940 acres. Around the palace it is laid out in grand style. The lawns, walks and flower beds are kept in beautiful style, whether the Duke is residing at the palace or not. In the conservatories are a very choice collection of rare plants, and the vineries and hothouses provide rare fruits all the year round. The wooded land in the park is beautiful, and abounds in game and deer. The present Duke is very fond of horses, and the stock in his stables is very fine. He also has some very good cattle and large flocks of sheep.

In the grounds stands a triumphal arch and a column 130 feet high, surmounted by a statue of the Duke of Marlborough.

The estate of the Marlboroughs is very large. The first Duke wanted to be wealthy, and in that desire he was backed by his wife. The Duke died first, and left a fortune which his wife increased to some $15,000,000 when she died in 1744. This fortune was largely invested in real estate in the West End of London, and has increased enormously in value. The house now occupied by the Prince of Wales—Marlborough House—was originally the London house of the early dukes.

Lord Randolph Churchill is the younger brother of the Duke. Marlborough is as sharp as a Damascus blade. He is a ready writer, a good talker, and is well informed on every subject. He has devoted a great deal of time to the study of America and its institutions. He has had many exciting escapades, and his reputation is about as bad as it could be, but he is a duke, and if he wants a rich American widow—well, he will probably help himself.

That is—don't you know?—if what a little bird on the other side of the Atlantic is twittering does not come to pass, it may be, says this interesting creature, that preparations at Blenheim are for the return of its former mistress. The Duke was divorced from his wife at her suit; now, says gossip, he being a better man than he was, she has forgiven him the cause of her proceedings against him, and make her the second time his wife.

PROPERTY SAFE IN NEW YORK.

A Famous Bank Robber To Be Liberated in a Few Months—No More Safe Crackers—Bank Burglars Go West.

"The last remnant of the greatest band of bank robbers that the country has ever produced will be at large in a few months," said Police Inspector Thomas Byrnes to-day during a chat over the remarkable decrease in big crime in New York city. It is a fact that New York is getting to be a highly moral city. The Manhattan Bank robbery was the last great steal. It is also many years since any professional cracksmen have dared to venture into the precincts sacred to financial interests about Wall street. The arrests made this year number more than they did ten years ago, but the crimes committed are by a large percentage of a petty nature.

From 1872 to 1876 many banking institutions in all parts of the country were robbed by the most daring methods. During these four years the gang headed by Jim Dunlap, to whom Inspector Byrnes referred above, stole nearly $4,000,000 in cash and marketable bonds. Detective Sergeant Paul Reilly, of the Central Office, who has taken no small share in putting down crime, remembers Dunlap and his pals well. In the latter part of 1867 a smart young man was convicted of grand larceny in Illinois and sent to the penitentiary. He was handsome and well educated, and because of his ability to swindle people he was called "Hustling Bob." His right name was Robert Scott. While in prison he came in contact with an old and hardened criminal who was known to the police of Europe as well as those of this country. This man was the notorious Tom Reilly or "Scar-faced Tom." He it was who headed the great gang of bank burglars. Taking a fancy to Scott, he met him in Chicago after his term expired and introduced him to Dunlap. Reilly was not a bank robber, but he always declared that he could tell just what line of crime a man was best suited for, and he advised Scott and Dunlap to become partners in the business of bank burglary. Dunlap was young and bright. He brought Scott to this city and made him acquainted with one Connors, a promising crook always on the lookout for big stakes. This trio formed the nucleus of the celebrated band of professional safe crackers. Soon after they robbed the Tells City Bank in Louisville of $300,000. Because of the shrewdness of the gang the detectives were baffled. George, Miles, Edson and others became members of the firm of Dunlap & Co., and they robbed right and left. The Pittston (Mass) bank lost $400,000 through the efforts of Dunlap and Scott, and then the great Northampton bank robbery occurred. Arrests followed, and Edson gave his associates away. Connors walked out of Ludlow Street Jail, and has never been seen in these parts since. Billy Porter is in Paris living like a sybarite, Red Leary is dead, and the others have either reformed or gone to parts unknown. Scott and Dunlap were convicted and sent to imprisonment for twenty years each. Scott died of consumption five years ago, and now Dunlap is about to enter into the world again. He is supposed to have hid several hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds before he was arrested, and he laughingly informs his keepers that he intends to lead the life of a gentleman when he comes out. Among the other bank robbers who have found New York too hot for their comfort are Frank Buck, alias "Buckey" Taylor; Jim Burnes, Billy Burke, John Curtin, William Coleman, Rufe Minor, Emanuel Marks, alias Minnie Marks; Charles Fisher, John Price, Charley Hicks, John O'Brien, Joe Parish, Bill Vosburg, John Irving, alias "The Greek;" Charley Adams, William Robinson, Frank McCoy, alias "Big Frank;" Peter Lathy and Ike Marsh. Not one of these men has even attempted any "crooked" business in New York since Inspector Byrnes has been at the head of the detective force. A few of them have reformed, some are in prison, but most of them are never heard of. They have quietly disappeared. Inspector Byrnes believes that the day of organized professional crackmen is at an end so far as New York is concerned. Of course there is always danger of a move in that direction by the younger generation of crooks. This is attested to by such prominent citizens as the Rev. Dr Howard B. Crosby and Elbridge T. Gerry. These gentlemen have paid considerable attention to the subject. The detective force is so conducted that a professional criminal cannot walk the streets of this city for five hours before every member of the force is on the look out for him. It is not that such people are deterred from committing crime because they have grown better. They are simply watched so closely that they know full well the moment they attempt any "business" they will be arrested. Some years ago the financial quarter of the city was so poorly protected that bank burglars and bank sneaks found it an easy matter, to walk off with large sums of cash and securities. In ten years, however, not one dollar has been stolen in that quarter by professional criminals. All the robbery that has been done in that time may be laid at the doors of bank cashiers and other attaches of the institutions fleeced. The detective bureau in Wall street and the system in which the quarter is patrolled night and day makes it almost impossible for any one but the trusted officials of the banks at banking institutions to do any stealing. It is the same in other sections of the city. The dry goods district is almost burglar proof.

The famous forgers who formerly made millions of dollars by their skilful penmanship have either died or ceased operations. A few have gone West, as have some of the bank burglars. A very few have reformed. At any rate they do not dare attempt their former means of obtaining wealth in this city. The notorious William E. Brockway is the last of the fraternity of professional forgers. Anything done in that line in these days is generally traced to either a clerk or a partner of the person whose name is forged. It is true that the records show that the number of sneak thieves and pickpockets is still very large, but the promptness with which they are arrested is materially lessening their number. Several are sent to Sing Sing or the penitentiary every day. They are for the most part burglars, the smart sneaks and the pickpockets having emigrated to the West.

What the Average Watch Is.

The average watch is composed of 175 different pieces, comprising upwards of 2,400 separate and distinct operations in its manufacture.

The balance has 18,000 beats or vibrations per hour, 432,000 in thirty days, 5,184,000 in one year; it travels 148,100 inches with each vibration, which is equal to 9 3-4 miles in twenty-four hours, 292 1-2 miles in thirty days, or 3558 3-4 miles in one year.

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

For the five months ending May 31st, 1888, the figures are as follows:—Gross earnings, $4,652,394; working expenses, $3,929,463; net profit, $722,931. For the five months ending May 31st, 1887, there was a net profit of $552,633. The above does not include the earning or expenses of the South-eastern railway.

The Northwest Indians.

Rev. Father Edmond Gendreau, O. M. I., bursar of the University of Ottawa, has left Ottawa on an extended tour in the Northwest Territories and British Columbia. It is understood the rev. gentleman goes at the special desire of Sir John Macdonald and as the accredited agent of the Canadian government, for the purpose of enquiring into the condition and treatment of Catholic Indians throughout those vast regions. There can be no doubt that our Northwest Indians are in an uneasy and dissatisfied state of mind, and it would be well to ascertain just what causes this condition. It would be natural that a race which has nothing to do but be fed would be contented, but this does not seem to be the case.

Teachers' Institute

The first session of the fourth annual convention of the teachers' institute opened yesterday morning. The president addressed the teachers at some length, complimenting them on the work of the past year. His address was followed by a few remarks from Inspector Wilson. The session was occupied principally with the enrollment of new members and the election of officers. The following were elected for the ensuing term: President, S. D. Pope; first vice-president, Miss A. D. Cameron; 2nd vice-president, W. C. Coatham; 3rd vice-president, G. Stainburn; secretary, D. E. Kerr; corresponding secretary, Miss L. A. Barron; Treasurer, E. F. Doran; J. P. McLeod and Miss Gowen, additional members of committee of management. The attendance at this session was large.

Still Another Railroad.

To several gentlemen, among them Mayor Dickinson, Mr. Van Horne, while in Vancouver, stated the C.P.R. intended building a line from Vancouver, via Westminster, to Seattle. When the road is to be commenced was not stated, but it is to be presumed, in view of the action being taken by other companies to build roads in the same direcion, that operations will not be long deferred. It is thought by many of our citizens that a deputation should wait on Mr. Van Horne and ascertain exactly what the C.P.R. intend doing, where the crossing will be made on the Fraser, and the proposed route from the south side of the river to the boundary. With two new railroads running into Westminster, besides the many new industries springing up, there is certainly a bright lookout ahead for the royal city.

The Hot Springs Railway.

It is rumored the C.P.R. will build a branch from Agassiz to the Harrison Hot Springs. This line would prove a boon to tourists and would also have the effect of largely increasing the number of visitors to that famous resort. It will be only a few years till Harrison Lake is the greatest health and summer resort on this side of the continent, and as the country grows and the wonderful curative powers of the hot spring become more widely known it is bound to become the Saratoga of the Pacific coast. As the springs become more fashionable larger crowds will be drawn there yearly, and the action of Lieut.-Gov. Schultz, of Manitoba, and many others, in building beautiful summer residences there will be followed by hundreds of our wealthy people. The sooner the C.P.R. builds this branch line the sooner it will prove profitable to them. Such an attraction as the Harrison Hot Springs at the extreme western end of the main line will prove a good advertisement to the Canadian Pacific Railway, and direct many passengers over the road that would otherwise take the American routes.

Prize Studies on Tornadoes.

The American Meteorogical Journal, desiring to direct the attention of students to tornadoes, in hopes that valuable results may be obtained, offers the following prizes:

For the best original essay on tornadoes or description of a tornado, $200 will be given.

For the second best, $50.

And among those worthy of special mention $50 will be divided.

The essays must be sent to either of the editors, Professor Harrington, Astronomical Observatory, Ann Arbor, Mich., or A. Lawrence Rotch, Blue Hill Meteorogical Observatory, Readville, Mass., U. S. A., before the first day of July, 1889. They must be signed by a nom de plume, and be accompanied by a sealed envelope addressed by the same nom de plume and enclosing the real name and address of the author. These independent and capable judges will be selected to award the prizes; and the papers receiving them will be the property of the journal offering the prizes. A circular giving fuller particulars can be obtained by application to Professor Harrington.

The Fool Killer Wanted.

The Port Townsend correspondent of the Post-Intelligencer gives the particulars of a most unfortunate shooting accident which occurred on Lopez Island last Saturday: A person named Wyatt, who hails from Seattle, and who has been on the island a few days, started out on a deer hunt. In a grain field, about a quarter of a mile from the town of Lopez he saw something move, which he supposed to be a deer, fired, and seriously, probably fatally, wounded Miss Henrietta Blake, an estimable, young and comely lady. Miss Blake was accompanied by her sister Martha, who screamed when her sister fell, and Wyatt, mistaking the noise for the cry of a startled deer, fired again, shooting Miss Martha Blake in the body and face. He then discovered his mistake. The young ladies were conveyed home, Miss Henrietta Blake rapidly sinking, and her sister dangerously, if not also fatally wounded. A physician was sent over from this city yesterday. The feeling among the islanders is very strong against Wyatt, and considerable talk of lynching was heard. He was immediately placed under arrest by Sheriff Reilly, of San Juan county, to await the consequences of his criminal carelessness.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr Hyde

Last night the Geo. M. Woods Dramatic Co. presented "Sweethearts" and "The Dead Shot" at Herring's opera house to a fairly well filled house. The play of "Sweethearts" though a pretty piece and well acted, does not contain sufficient scope for such a really good company as appeared last night. The acting of Mr. Geo. M. Woods and Miss Marguerite St. John both displayed theatrical abilities of the highest character, and the other members of the company ably sustained their parts. To-night "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be put on the boards, and in this play the company may be expected to do justice to themselves. From New York to San Francisco and up the coast to Victoria they have met with most flattering success and have received high praise from the best critiques.

Mr. Wood's version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is generally admitted to be superior in every way to the other attempts that have been made to dramatize this greatest work of Stevenson. To those who have read the novel it will be sufficient inducement for them to see the play to-night, and to those who have not we can heartily recommend it as a play of the greatest interest, and one that will not prove a disappointment.

Cod and Halibut Fishing.

The news comes from Seattle that the schooner Mollie Adams arrived there on Monday from Cape Flattery, having been gone from Seattle about one week, and returned with 45,000 pounds of halibut. Although the weather was so rough this trip that they could fish only two days and a half the crew succeeded in capturing the largest cargo the schooner ever brought to Seattle. This cargo, as the previous cargoes, will be sent to eastern cities. The schooner sails again for fishing grounds as soon as the cargo is shipped. The Americans are working up a very extensive trade with the large cities in the east, shipping cod and halibut packed in ice. It is time British Columbians should awaken to the fact that unless they tap the eastern market soon the Seattle shippers will have formed a connection which will be hard to break. The American fishing schooners go as far north as Queen Charlotte Islands, where the best cod banks on the coast are generally supposed to lie, and are said to return with immense catches. With our superior fishing grounds, and equal, if not superior, facilities for the transshipment of fish to the eastern market, it will be our own fault if this important industry is lost to the province. Let some of our wide awake fishermen take hold of this branch of the industry and they are sure to be handsomely rewarded.

As Others See Us.

No city in the Dominion has a more healthful site than New Westminster, B.C. It is built upon a slope rising gently from the river bank, and the many buildings appear tier after tier one above the other, with numerous spires of churches here and there. The landscape from these heights, with the snow-capped mountain range in the distance, is among the most picturesque that can well be imagined. The land in the valleys is rich and fertile. Some of them are rather low, and are apt during high water to be overflowed, but they are too valuable to be left long in such a plight, for the construction of a few dykes will obviate the difficulty; they must ultimately all be available for agricultural purposes. Immense trees of cedar, Douglas fir, western hemlock, soft maple and other varieties cover the land, but there are also open areas which are now used for grazing large herds of cattle and sheep. Amongst the business blocks might be mentioned the post-office, Masonic block, the Colonial and Queen's hotel blocks.

The river is navigable for ships of moderate draught, and the rise and fall of the tide is about six feet. Here also is the centre of the fish and fish-canning industry, a dozen of these canneries being situated on the river in a radius of some fourteen miles, and two for the freezing of fish. As I have already stated, there are valuable tracts of timber in the neighborhood, and there are three large saw-mills here. Up to 1881 Westminster made but little advancement; now this is all changed, and for the past six years the growth has been both substantial and steady. A good deal more money has been spent during the past two years than in former periods of its history, and most of the buildings recently erected are substantial. In short, no city that I have seen has a brighter future before it than this same city of New Westminster.—Thomas Gordon Oliver in the Monetary Times.

Late Canadian News.

RODNEY, Ont., June 30.—The schr. Edward Blake, on which W. J. McGarigle escaped from Chicago last season, went ashore five miles south of this point during a storm. The schooner had been anchored to better ride out the heavy gale blowing, but the chain soon parted, and she at once drifted into the shore. She was scuttled and assistance summoned from Port Colborne, which is now on the way here. She was taking a cargo to Detroit.

OTTAWA, July 1.—To-day was the first day of the fiscal year, and according to government advices everything points to a year of exceptional prosperity in Canada and the States. Customs receipts are favorable, and the revenue of the post office department is increasing. Railway receipts show a good condition of affairs; reports of banks are very favorable, but a great deal depends upon the crops. The prospects in the Northwest and older provinces just now are favorable, but much depends on the weather.
