A HOME COMPANY.

This Association merits the confidence the Public is reposing in it from the following FACTS.—

The Security offered to policy holders is unsurpassed by any Company doing business in Canada.

It has no schemes of insurance, but the well-established lines, hence the policy holders cannot be misled as to their contracts.

Its statements to the public can be readily understood, its cash statement showing every item of income and how expended.

Its position is ascertained annually from a detailed valuation in which every item of liability is included.

Its progress has been unexampled in the history of insurance in Canada.

Its policies are indisputable after three years, and non-forfeitable after two years' existence.

Its profits are distributed upon an equitable basis. The profits to one class of policy holders are not lessened to give larger profits to any other class, which method affords superior advantages over the uniform bonus plan of distribution.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The back case of a gold watch, stamped with a crown and the monogram "N," has been recovered from the Zulus. It belonged to the ill-fated Prince Imperial.

There was a curious championship match in New York the other day, contestants being the telegragh and the telephone. The test was, the number of words transmitted in in ten minutes, and the telephone came out apparently ahead by sixteen words. But examination showed that many of the words so sent had been incorrectly received, while the telegraph had made no mistkes, and to it, consequently, the victory was awarded.

A serious epidemic of small pox at Preston, England, is bringing modern ideas of the treatment of the disease to the front. A sanitary engineer urges the removal of all patients from homes to temporary sheds. He asserts that he has seen patients, in summer, of course, placed under open sheds, lying upon straw, and not one of them died, neither did the disease spread. Plenty of fresh air is the best thing for the patients, and the possibility of completely burning up the infected premises and everything in them, is the only certain safeguard against infection.

The Queen of Sweden is undergoing peculiar treatment to restore her nerves to a normal condition. Her doctors have ordered her to rise early, make her own bed and dust and sweep the room. She has to take a walk in the garden before breakfast, work among the flowers afterwards, and lead an active outdoor existence all day long. Already the Queen has been benefited by this curious "cure," the "chambermaid treatment," as it is called. The same mode of life might benefit many a woman in this country who has lost her grip on her nerves. "That tired feeling" the advertisements speak of will succumb after a time to a course in bed-making and dusting.

We confess to some surprise at finding in this month's Chambers Journal an article in which it is positively asserted that there are several men in England who successfully practice the finding of water by the use of a "divining rod." Quite a string of instances of their successful operations is given, and the statement is made that they have numerous testimonials from "noblemen, parsons, bishops, officers of the army, engineers, magistrates and others." The writer asserts that he himself has held the rod and felt it curl up in his fingers as a stream or pool of water was crossed, and on one occasion, when he used a pair of pincers to prevent it from turning, the ends (it was Y shaped) split themselves in their effort to curl!

Dr. Lyman Abbot, writing of American materialism says:—I do not ask that men of wealth shall give more money to the Church, which is often stronger when it is poor than when it is rich; nor to the poor and thriftless, whom unearned money only keeps in poverty. I urge that the power to make money, like any other power, is a trust bestowed on the possessor for humanity. The preacher who preaches for his salary, not for the spiritual well-being of his parishioners, is a mercenary; the physician who practises for his fees, not to cure the sick, is a mercenary; the lawyer who pleads for his honorarium, not for justice, is a mercenary; the politician who enacts laws for what he can make, not for the community, is a mercenary; no less the manufacturer, the merchant, the trader, the man on 'change, who transacts his business to make money, not to give the community its meat in due season, is a mercenary. In the history of the nineteenth century, the doctrine that wealth is a trust must stand by the side of the doctrine that labour is an honour and liberty is an obedience. The materialism that threatens the American Church, is not the materialism of Herbert Spencer. It is the materialism of the railroad, the factory, the shop; the materialism that puts thinghood above manhood; that does not know that things were made for man, not man for things—that God gives us, not Irishmen to build our railroads, but railroads to build Irishmen; not Hungarians to dig our mines, but mines to develop manhood in Hungarians;

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

THE PALL MALL ON PARNELL

LONDON, Aug. 14.—In regard to the action of Mr. Parnell the Pall Mall Gazette says: "Mr. Parnell's trick seems to please his supporters and has disquieted his foes, but it resembles playing fast and loose, and we doubt whether it will do its contrivers any good. If Mr. Parnell has discovered the forger who planned the letters published by the Times, then it is no trick, but the execution of a determination long avowed; but his admirers' groundwork for applause is on the trick by which he will be-devil the commission of enquiry. Is this Mr. Parnell's object? It is a false move and Mr. Parnell has changed front in face of the enemy, which is dangerous. The tardy adoption of the course which he refused to take when it would have been useful to his English allies will not be understood. The commission will proceed with the work and Mr. Parnell cannot arrest it; if he refuses to testify before it he will harm nobody so much as himself. As Mr. Parnell's case stands he has no motive to hold his tongue but to challenge inquiry."

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES.

MRS. CORNY INJURED.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 15.—While Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt was riding on Bellevue Avenue yesterday her carriage was run into by a dog cart and Mrs. Vanderbilt was thrown out. She sustained several bruises on her face and an ugly cut on the lip. The latter injury will leave a scar.

THE GREAT COTTON STRIKE.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Eight thousand more operatives at the mills at Blackburn have joined the 2,000 strikers already out. The strike is now general.

AN AWFUL DEED.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 15.—Thos. Lehan, aged 60, about 4 o'clock this morning, killed his wife by jumping upon her while asleep and crushing her to a jelly. Lehan then attempted to kill his 14-year-old son, but the boy escaped and notified the authorities. Lehan was arrested, but refused to speak. It is thought his mind is deranged by ill-luck in business.

EARTHQUAKE.

WINTHROP, Maine, Aug. 15.—A severe earthquake was felt here at 8:20 and midnight last night. No damage is reported.

THE PARNELL SUIT.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Parnell's summons against the Times will be called in Edinburgh on Sept. 13th, when the parties to the action must appear. An order will then be issued to lodge defenses, which will be due Oct. 16th. The issues may be placed before the court for adjustment on Oct. 23rd and the trial will not begin before November at the earliest.

YELLOW JACK.

LEWES, Del., Aug. 15.—The quarantine physicians report that the steamer Ardongorm lost her steward at Havana and her first engineer on the voyage. Both died of yellow fever. The crew at present are all well.

SHORT $20,000.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—A shortage of $20,000 is said to have been discovered in the accounts of Prof. E. L. French, registrar of Wells College.

A FRIENDLY FIGHT ENDS FATALLY.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15. — Joseph Horn, a stable employee on one of the street car lines, challenged Billy Scott, driver, to a friendly sparring match early this morning. Both got badly winded. Horn was knocked down by a light blow and died a few minutes after. Scott was arrested.

YELLOW FEVER IN TEXAS.

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—The governor today received official information from the commander of the United States forces at Kinggold barracks that yellow fever has broken out at Matamoras. Orders were immediately issued establishing rigid quarantine at Brownsville and along the Rio Grande, against the infected city.

QUARANTINE AGAINST FLORIDA.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 15.—At a meeting of the city council this morning, quarantine was declared against the entire state of Florida.

THE PLUMED KNIGHT.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 15.—Blaine, accompanied by his son Walter and a large gathering of political friends left here on the 10:30 train, for Portland, where a reception will be tendered in the city hall this afternoon. The party will be met at the depot by a large deputation and a procession will be formed and reviewed by Blaine. At the reception Henry B. Cleaves will preside. The speakers include Warner, Miller, Nelson, and Dingley.

ARRIVES IN PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, Aug. 15.—The Blaine party arrived here at 1 p.m. The city is crowded with excursionists from all parts. The weather is splendid and immense enthusiasm prevails.

THE REVOLUTION SUCCESSFUL.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A despatch from Port Au Prince, says the resolution has been successful and the Government has been overthrown. The president has taken refuge in an English frigate. Boyton has started a new Government.

A CRISIS IN TURKISH AFFAIRS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 15.—A crisis has occurred here in cabinet circles. The Sultan has refused to sanction the plan of Kiamet Pasha, grand vizier, to borrow £15,000,000 from Turkish banks, which money the ministers of war and marine demand for the purpose of obtaining good soldiers and seamen for the army and navy. The wages of men in both branches of the service have long been unpaid, and this condition is complained of by the ministers. It is rumored that on account of the Sultan's refusal a change will occur in the cabinet, and that Sand Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, will succeed Kiamet Pasha. Gadban Pasha has been sent as special envoy to London on a special mission.

Late Canadian News.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—Jacobs, the Caughnawaga Indian who murdered his wife on Thursday night, was captured last evening in the bush at La Tortue by a detective and brought to this city this morning. He admits his guilt, and probably will plead guilty at the criminal court.

TORONTO, Aug. 12.—Dean O'Connor, of Barrie, the highest Roman Catholic dignitary north of Toronto, will in all probability be the nominee of the Sacred College of the Propagauda for Toronto's vacant archbishopric.

OTTAWA, Aug. 12.—The Canadian government has purchased two 40-pounder guns for the use of the battery at Charlottetown, P. E. I. The battery is at present using smooth bores. The new guns are believed to be already on their way.

A man named George McClurg, of Caradoc, was tried this afternoon on the charge of indecently assaulting a girl named Smith, of Middlemiss. The charge was not sustained by the evidence, and McClurg was acquitted. A second charge was also dropped. McClurg claims it was a case of blackmail from first to last.

Capt. Colville, military secretary to Lord Stanley, expects to leave for Quebec, to join his excellency tonight. Capt. Colville says nothing definite is known about his excellency's movements but he will probably not come to Ottawa until the date of the exhibition. It is rumored that the North American squadron will visit Quebec in a week or two, when the vice-regal hospitality will be extended to the officers.

A dangerous and extensive sawdust explosion took place on last Saturday night about 9 o'clock opposite Gilmour's mill, a short distance west of the mouth of Brigham's Creek. The explosion was one of unusual violence and was accompanied by a roaring noise which could have been heard readily at a distance of half a mile. The sawdust was distinctly seen from the Ottawa side of the river, and the offensive smell was quite perceptible seven hundred yards off.

HALIFAX, F. S., Aug. 14.—Captain Charles Lawson, of the Gloucester schooner Herman Babson, was recently arrested at Holy Road, Northfield, for purchasing bait without a license. Captain Lawson subsequently procured a license and gave a frank statement regarding his obtaining bait, in consideration of which the penalty was mitigated to $100. A native named Purchase who sold the bait to Captain Lawson was also fined $100.

Chilliwhack Council.

The Chilliwhack municipal council held their regular meeting on the 6th day of August. Present, His Worship Reeve Cawley, and Coun. Wells, Chadsey, Wilder, Armstrong and Kennedy. Daily British Columbian

Wednesday Evening, Aug. 15, 1888.

Complaints are made by jurors summoned to do court duty that they are subjected to a great deal of loss and inconvenience by being taken from their business in the city and suburbs and from their farms in the country to attend special sessions of the supreme and county courts in this city, and on showing up at the court house at the appointed time they find no court, but are informed that the case has been postponed. Two cases of this sort have occurred very recently, one, this morning, in the Bole-McNaughten case, postponed till the 28th inst.; the other, the Fagan-Cooper case, on Friday last, postponed till the 16th October next. Both of these postponements have resulted in loss and hardship to the jurymen concerned, who have had to neglect their business and their farms to attend upon a court which did not sit, and, of course, in such cases the jurors have to pay their own expenses, in addition to the further loss sustained. If these postponements, which are continually occurring, are necessary, some means of redress should be provided, so that a failure on the part of the lawyers who are responsible, to notify the jurors in time to save them a fool's errand, might be followed by the speedy recovery by the outraged jurors of a reasonable indemnity from the lawyers causing the postponements. In this way the obnoxious postponements would, we believe, become like angel's visits—few and far between.

The spiritualistic humbug is receiving fresh set-backs in the states all the time. The spirit mediums, too, are having an awful hard time of it lately. A large number are languishing in various jails throughout the country, charged with being No. 1 all-wool-and-a-yard-wide frauds, and, sad to relate, the spirits that condescended to bob around at their beck and call seemed to have retained enough of their human characteristics to desert their mediums just when the latter needed them most. But the strong hand of the law is not all that the mediums have to fear. Judging from the reports in American papers from districts where mediums most abound, even the spirits themselves are having troublous times. According to an American exchange, at Chicago a few evenings since a medium had succeeded in bringing enough spirits out of a cabinet that, if formed into a procession, might have taken twenty minutes in passing a given point. The lower jaws of the audience were resting in their laps with awe, and all went well until the spirit of Joan of Arc appeared and a fresh young man fractured the icy stillness by blurting out in a hoarse whisper, "There's a rat just under the spirit's drapery." Then the spirit of the valorous and heroic Joan of Arc suddenly grabbed for the bottom of her skirts with all the hands she had, and gathering her feet together she jumped fully four feet in the air with a shriek that startled the audience out of their seats. The girlish spirit still further surprised the audience by making a break for the interior of the cabinet with so much enthusiasm as to kick it clean over, and when the lights were suddenly turned up the unfortunate materialized spirit of Joan of Arc was seen sprawling out on the floor and groaning dismally with the weight of the cabinet across the small of her back. One of the spirits playing a week's engagement with a western medium also came to grief a few days ago. The medium had won considerable fame and dollars by causing spirits to come out of her cabinet and float in the air above the heads of the audience. One evening when a particularly big spirit was sailing gracefully about in mid-air, the wire suddenly broke and the heavy weight spirit fell down into the pale, upturned faces of twelve old gentlemen of strong characteristics, but weak necks, and knocked them silly. The heel of the motherly spirit also struck her self-confessed grandchild in the mouth and knocked out four of her front teeth. The old gentlemen were pulled from under the spirit and sent home in a carriage in a more or less dilapidated state, while the spirit still lies in a hospital suffering from three broken ribs and a skinned shin. Spirits cannot be too careful nowadays how they come back and cavort about on this mundane sphere. They will be fooling around until some one of them breaks a leg if they keep on.

The regular periodic inundations, principally in the spring season, of the valleys of the Mississippi and of the Ohio constitute a very serious problem, and one of national importance, to the United States. Our readers have been made familiar in the past with the newspaper accounts of the floods and some of their dire results to life and property, as also the suspension of all sorts of traffic and communication both by land and water in the districts affected, and a consequent loss and inconvenience to the whole country. In an entertaining and instructive article on "Rivers and Valleys," in Scribner's for August, Prof. N. S. Shaler discusses, among other things, the causes leading to these damaging floods, and the best means for remedying the matter, artificially, so to speak. The valleys of most rivers are forest clad, says the writer, a self-evident proposition. These forests, whether in the tropic, temperate, or frigid zones, and like or unlike in other characteristics, in all cases form beneath their branches, and above the soil, a thick, spongy coating, from a foot to two feet in thickness, which affords a natural reservoir for the rain waters, capable of holding in its interstices a rainfall of three or four inches in depth, or from one-sixth to one-tenth the ordinary annual supply. This water is slowly yielded to the brooks; it often requires weeks for a single torrential rain entirely to escape into the open channels which bear it to the sea. Moreover, the fallen trunks and branches of the trees clog the forest-shaded rivulets, making little pools which serve still further to restrain the outgoing of the waters. Thus, in the natural condition of the North American rivers, as well as those of most other countries before man began to clear away the forests, the woods constituted a great system of reservoirs, in which the rains were retained into the period of intervening droughts. When man resorted to the soil as the source of his food he began to clear away the forests and by tillage to destroy the spongy covering of the earth they created, and all the great valleys on the northern temperate zone have been to a considerable extent deprived of their forest covering. In this new state of the surface, the rain-water is no longer held back as it was of old, but runs quickly over the surface of the soil and enters the water-ways, with the result that in times of flood the water rises higher than of old and spreads devastation over a wide area of the alluvial plains, while in times of drought the streams shrink within their waste of incumbering sands and become unnavigable. The writer shows, too, that among other evils, the surface of the soil is becoming impoverished by having its substance washed into the streams. Attention is called to the fact that, as more than half of the original forest covering in the Mississippi valley yet remains, only the beginning of the evils which may be expected has so far been seen. It is estimated that a small area, perhaps not exceeding one-tenth of the original forests, may be retained in their present shape, in order to afford supplies of timber. "It is therefore necessary," says Prof. Shaler, if we have to control these floods at all, to devise some means by which we may imitate the old natural system of water storage which the primeval woods afforded. There is but one method by which this end may be accomplished, viz., by creating artificial reservoirs in which the waters may be for a time retained during the period of floods." The writer adverts to the scheme for controlling the floods of the Mississippi valley proposed by the distinguished engineer, Mr. Chas. Ellet, some years ago. This was a proposition to build certain large dams in the upper waters of the Mississippi system, in which during the times of flood a considerable part of the flow might be impounded, to be discharged into the channels at such times as was needed to obtain a navigable depth of water, Prof. Shaler shows that these may burst in flood times, with peculiarly disastrous consequences, and suggests a slight modification of Mr. Ellet's plan, as follows: "In place of half a dozen great artificial lakes, we should adopt the plan of having many thousands, or tens of thousands, of smaller reservoirs, so arranged that no one would, by its bursting, lead to the destruction of any other. We could by this means retain on the surface of the land a very considerable part of the flood waters which now prove disastrous to the valleys below." The writer estimates that a system controlling, in the manner described, the floods which ravage the valleys of the Mississippi and its large tributaries would probably require a total expenditure of over one hundred million dollars, and would cost annually for maintenance as much as ten million dollars. As the forest continued to disappear, it would be necessary to extend still further the area of the storage reservoirs. "Whether this great task is to be undertaken by the federal government or by associated commonwealths," concludes the writer, "there can be no question that it should be at once entered upon. Every year increases the magnitude of the necessities and the difficulty of devising means to meet them."

AT THE DRESSMAKER'S.

Where the Lord of Creation Appears To Great Disadvantage.

"My dear," said Mrs. Broadaxe, laying her hand affectionately on my shoulder.

I pretended not to hear her and puffed away at my cigar, intent only on my newspaper. But Mrs. B. was not to be baffled by any such little ruses. She took hold of the paper, and gently taking it from my hand, folded it and laid it on the center table.

"What in the name of Tom Scott, Horace Greeley and Sam Jones, did you jerk that paper from my hand for?" I demanded in a voice as much like thunder as I could assume. But Mrs. Broadaxe was not frightened. She is a brave little woman. I tried to be a tiger, but she still wouldn't scare.

She came right up, patted the tiger on the head, and sat down on his knee. Before I hardly realized what she was about, she actually took the cigar from my mouth and kissed me on the cheek.

I knew what was coming and began feeling for my pocket-book. Mrs. B. never kisses for nothing, and what was the use in one holding out, when I knew I would be forced to yield in the end?

"How much do you want?" I asked in desperation.

She smiled and taking my face between her two small white hands said:

"It's not money this time."

"Then what is it?" I asked, trying to be savage again; but it is no use trying to frighten Mrs. B. She is brave.

"I want you to go with me to the dressmaker's this afternoon."

"To the dressmaker's—oh, dear, can't you enjoin some lighter penance on me than that?"

She smiled and kissed me first on one cheek and then on the other—well, I consented.

I was a fool for doing it, but we all become fools sometimes.

We started, and after going a block or two Mrs. B. turned about to give my personal appearance an inspection.

She made me stoop until she turned back the collar of my coat to suit her taste, then she whisked me about, smoothed the wrinkles in my back, brushed the small particles of cigar ashes off my breast and gave me as much attention as if I had been a pet poodle, and finally said I would do—to come on.

We went to the fashionable shop of Mrs. Le Moyne, I following my wife and standing at the door and feeling as if I ought to apologize, or wait until somebody asked me to come in.

Mrs. Le Moyne met Mrs. Broadaxe at the door, lifted her veil, kissed her and got her the best chair, and asked her to take off her wraps; was she cold, and seemed very solicitous about Mrs. B.'s comfort, but did not deign to notice me. Then Mrs. Le Moyne's assistant came and kissed Mrs. Broadaxe and asked about her health. No one kissed me or asked about my health.

I stood in the corner like a new boy at school, until a little seamstress brought me a chair. (I shall always have a warm spot in my heart for that little seamstress.)

Mrs. Le Moyne brought out such a love of a dress, and I soon learned that it was to be Mrs. B.'s. There was a system of measuring, lacing, and some strange talk about polonaise, basques, waists, corsage and a lot of stuff that I could not understand, nor remember now.

All the while I sat in my chair unnoticed by any one. Mrs. B. was the all-important one in that little shop, at that moment. I was sorry I had come, and was thinking of stealing away, when Mrs. B. asked me to sign my name to a check for fifty dollars.

I did so. I would perhaps have done so had it been for fifty thousand. I was cowed. Mrs. Le Moyne thanked me and I rose in my own estimation, for I was good for something.

When Mrs. B. got ready to go, she told me to come on just as she would have called her poodle, and I really expected to hear her whistle to me. I followed her just as a poodle would have done.

Mrs. Le Moyne opened the door for Mrs. B., hoped she would come back again soon, and said her presence was always refreshing; but not a word was spoken to me, and I certainly did not feel very refreshing.

I went home registering cast-iron, steel-banded, rock-ribbed vows never to go near another dressmaker's shop while I lived; and to pray constantly for deliverance from such perdition after death.

If a man wants to know how insignificant he is, just let him go with his wife to a dressmaker's.—[Arkansaw Traveler.

Dakota and the Plug Hat.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press tells the story of a Dakota man who was sitting in the Merchants' Hotel, St. Paul, carefully watching another man who wore a silk tile of the latest pattern.

Finally, he confided to a friend that he was thinking how much money it would take to induce him to wear a plug hat.

He said he might do it for $100, but would tell everybody that he was doing it for a wager, adding that if a man were to wear a plug hat in his town in Dakota he would be tolerably certain to be mobbed.

Morals of Marriage.

Mrs. Gilgall—"I am so delighted to meet you, Mr. Catchpenny. I understand that you have traveled very extensively."

Mr. Catchpenny—"I have been over Europe twice, visited Australia, tramped through a large portion of South America, and have knocked about the United States a great deal."

"You have written several books, I hear."

"Yes; my latest is just out."

"What is the title, pray?"

"The Ethics of Marriage."

"Oh, I see you are a bachelor."

An unrepealed law of New Jersey, passed while the State was a British colony, reads as follows:

"That all women of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, who shall after this act impose upon, seduce and betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects by virtue of scenic, cosmetics, washes, paints, artificial teeth, false hair or high-heeled shoes, shall incur the penalty of the law now in force against witchcraft and like misdemeanors."

HOW A DWARF CAPTURED THE SUN.

An Attractive Red Indian Fairy Story.

Once upon a time there was a dwarf, so very small in size that when he killed a wren—all by himself, too—he thought he was a hero in the first degree, and strutted around in the grass as proud as if he had slain several braves of another tribe in single combat.

He had one-half of the wren—a fair half; none of your irregular fractions—cooked at once for a feast for the whole lodge, and had a mind to make himself a feather coat. And by and by he did another wren to death, and then he got his coat.

But happening to go to sleep one day in the sunshine, the heat made the birds' skins shrivel up so that they became quite uncomfortably small, and the dwarf was furious. He vowed he would pay the sun out.

So he got his sister to plait a rope out of hair, and, having made a slipknot in it, he pegged it down on the side of the hill, close to the top of it, just where he had noticed the sun was accustomed to get up. And, sure enough, when the sun rose next morning, it ran its head right into the slipknot and got caught.

The consternation in nature was prodigious until the dormouse, remarking what was the matter, went and nibbled the plait through and released the luminary, whereupon everything went on just as if nothing had happened.

But the dwarf came home to his sister in high dudgeon. He was not going, he said, to bother himself about suns any more. It was not worth his while. He had more serious matters to attend to. And so he began making preparations for going out on another wren hunt.

Such, in the bald outline, is a red Indian "fairy story," which seems to me to illustrate fairly well the tone of the humor of the aboriginal American.

The hero is a dwarf—and this is an essential point in the folk jests of a people who consider a fine physique the first qualification of manhood—and in his pompous pursuit of very small birds, and subsequent inflation when he is successful in the chase, the leading characteristics of the red man are slyly burlesqued.

He succeeds in an impossible exploit, and in the true spirit of a hero, makes no fuss about it, but when the sun is let go by the dormouse, he affects to think that such trifles as sun-catching are beneath him, and sets himself seriously to the task of killing another wren.

There is a novelty in the flavor of this fooling and a freshness of scene and circumstances that, so it appears to me, make the absurd story attractive.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

The Old Family Turnout.

The vehicles of a place that has long been in one family possession become historic. The wheels and axles of the present "milking cart," relegated now to the farmer's transits over the fields to pastures fair, why, these were once the sparkling belongings of the froggy that went a courting.

The ancient family coach, marking geological periods more accurately than David ever read in the rocks; the coach whose very rumble was known to the villagers before it came to sight, an inseparable belonging of your family; its front seat the throne of such a succession of kings whose reigns you recall as you cannot the Presidents, each of whom taught you more evil than your careful mother could punish out of you—oh, "tales of my grandfather," told to you on that box seat as you rode outside, and your mother and sisters made party calls.

How long you stood dreaming before the dear old ark! Nothing could induce you to sell it, or to ride in it now.

You put one foot on the lower step, open the proud patrician door and look in. You see again that Sunday morning load all stowed; your fresh-checked mother, the noisy clean bib-and-tuckered six, your father, grave and sabbatic, standing as you do now—and you feel your eyes filling; for a thousand other coaches have borne them over land and sea since then, as wide apart, and there have been chariots more ethereal for some.—[Boston Globe.

Cuvier on Tight Lacing.

The great naturalist, Cuvier, was walking one day with a young lady who was a victim of tight lacing, in a public garden in Paris. A lovely blossom upon an elegant plant drew from her an expression of admiration.

Looking at her pale, thin face, Cuvier said:

"You were like this flower once; tomorrow it will be as you are now."

Next day he led her to the same spot, and the beautiful flower was dying. She asked the cause.

"This plant," replied Cuvier, "is an image of yourself. I will show you what is the matter with it."

He pointed to a cord bound tightly around the stem, and said:

"You are fading away exactly in the same manner under the compression of your corset, and you are losing by degrees all your youthful charms, just because you have not the courage to resist this dangerous fashion."—[Washington Republic.

Anecdote of the Late Mr. Vanderbilt.

A retired newspaper man tells of a pleasing experience with Mr. Vanderbilt.

"I went to interview Mr. V.," he says, "and the big man was smilingly silent.

"'Surely you wouldn't hinder a newspaper man making a few dollars,' I said to him facetiously. 'A talk from you is worth a great deal; I made a handsome sum out of my first interview with you.'

"'Well, by George, I like a man who can make money out of me,' said the railway king. 'It takes a smart man to do it; fire away with your questions.'"

Our Venerable Historian.

Historian Bancroft has a library of some 12,000 books. He has been a prominent figure for sixty years; has met and known about all the prominent men of this country, and is one of the few Americans who knew Niebuhr, Bunsen, Goethe, Byron, Kaiser, Wilhelm, and other celebrities abroad.

A resident of Mason Valley, Nev., has mised toward promising cathood three kittens obtained from the nest of a wild cat. They are good ratters.

A Sluggish Liver

Causes the Stomach and Bowels to become disordered, and the whole system to suffer from debility. In all such cases Ayer's Pills give prompt relief.

After much suffering from Liver and Stomach troubles, I have finally been cured by taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills. I always find them prompt and thorough in their action, and their occasional use keeps me in a perfectly healthy condition.—Ralph Weeman, Annapolis, Md.

Twenty-five years ago I suffered from a torpid liver, which was restored to healthy action by taking Ayer's Pills. Since that time I have never been without them. They regulate the bowels, assist digestion, and increase the appetite, more surely than any other medicine.—Paul Churchill, Haverhill, Mass.

INVIGORATED.

I know of no remedy equal to Ayer's Pills for Stomach and Liver disorders. I suffered from a Torpid Liver, and Dyspepsia, for eighteen months. My skin was yellow, and my tongue coated. I had no appetite, suffered from Headache, was pale and emaciated. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, taken in moderate doses, restored me to perfect health.—Waldo Miles, Oberlin, Ohio.

Ayer's Pills are a superior family medicine. They strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, create an appetite, and remove the horrible depression and despondency resulting from Liver Complaint. I have used these Pills in my family, for years, and they never fail to give entire satisfaction.—Otto Montgomery, Oshkosh, Wis. ††

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS THIS DAY.

Notice ..... H. L. DeBeck

Daily British Columbian

Wednesday Evening, Aug. 15, 1888.

Ice cream at the Club. *

The salmon run was very poor again last night.

The str. Yosemite will arrive early on Friday morning with Sells' circus on board.

The str. Western Slope left for Victoria this morning to take the place of the Rithet for two trips.

Girl wanted to do housework. Apply, stating terms, to B. H., Drawer F., New Westminster. dau13tc

Tacoma parties propose to erect a splendid brick building in that city to cover a whole city block.

The str. Maude arrived from Victoria last evening and left for Nanaimo and Comox this morning, in place of the Western Slope.

The str. Richmond left for Vancouver this morning with a full load of grain, fruit, potatoes, poultry and live stock consigned to J. C. Henderson, Vancouver.

Don't fill the system with quinine, to prevent or cure Fever and Ague. Ayer's Ague Cure is the specific for this disease, and leaves no poisons to produce dizziness, deafness, headache, or other disorders.

The social to be given to-night by the ladies of the Methodist church at the W.C.T.U. headquarters, should be borne in mind, as it promises to be one of the hardest fought socials of the season.

We understand that a prominent Westminster business man is soon to erect a large hotel just across the boundary line with inside and outside baths in connection.—Blaine Journal. Who is it?

J. J. Riley, a C.P.R. man, came to Blaine from Whatcom in great haste Monday about 9 a.m. He employed B. N. Kingsley to take him to Westminster at once, as he desired to be there at the ballot on the bonus bylaw. —Blaine Journal.

The str. Irving cleared for up-river ports this morning with 35 tons of freight and a large number of passengers. She will stay over a day at Chilliwhack, leaving there on Friday morning to bring people to the city who wish to see the circus.

Young, old, and middle aged, all experience the wonderfully beneficial effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young children, suffering from sore eyes, sore ears, scald head, or with any scrofulous taint, become healthy and strong by the use of this medicine. Six bottles, $5.

The str. Rithet cleared for Victoria this morning with 30 tons of flour, a large quantity of farm produce and 20 passengers. To-morrow the Rithet will take the Vancouver route in place of the Yosemite, which will be taken off that route to bring Sells' circus to Westminster.

At the C. P. R. workshops, Vancouver, a combined smoker and baggage car is being fitted up for the local service between this city and Vancouver. The protests made by THE COLUMBIAN against the go-as-you-please service are having good effect, and we hope there will soon be nothing to complain of.

When the news reached Whatcom on Tuesday evening that New Westminster had voted the subsidy to the Canfield railroad, the band played charming music and people wore broader smiles—and city lots went up a notch or two. The jubilation of our people was evident and expressed.—Reveille.

Mr. H. McCaw, Custom House, Toronto, writes: "My wife was troubled with Dyspepsia and Rheumatism for a long time; she tried many different medicines, but did not get any relief until she used Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. She has taken two bottles of it, and now finds herself in better health than she has been for years."

A terrible accident occurred at Port Gamble a few nights ago by which a young man named Bryan, employed in the mill, was caught by the edger table and rolled all up into an unrecognizable mass. He was an Irishman by birth and a telegraph operator by profession, but arriving on the sound, and finding no opening in his business, he went to work in a sawmill.—Reveille.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The War Over.

VICTORIA, Aug. 14.—The steamer Barbara Boscowitz has arrived from the Skeena. Everything remains quiet. Green, the constable who shot the Indian Jim and caused the rumpus, is being tried along with some Indians charged with killing other Indians. Jim's father and friends are satisfied now that the constable is being tried. The Indians at the Naas mouth have ordered the American gunboat to stop surveying. The str. Sardonyx is expected to-night or to-morrow from Skeena with "C" battery on board.

Pirates or Smugglers.

The other day there was a fog hanging out over the bay, and while the view was half obscured two sailboats with canvas of a dim dun color might have been seen quietly slipping out of Mud Bay across the international boundary line from British Columbia into Uncle Sam's dominion. Gradually but surely they crept away to the south until they were hidden at last in the mist. No one knows where they were going or what was their cargo, save perhaps their mysterious crews, and they would not care to tell.—Blaine Journal. The above sounds like the prelude to a very thrilling blood-and-thunder pirate story. We are anxiously awaiting subsequent numbers.

Hyack Fire Practice.

The Hyack Fire Company, under command of Chief Corbett, paraded for practice last night. The muster was a large one and the men were active and fully up to their duties. Only a few minutes were occupied in getting up steam and soon a strong jet of water was issuing from the nozzle of the hose line. Capt. Peele's flag staff was the point of attack, but the victory was easy, as the stream of water shot fully 40 feet into the air above the weather-cock. A second stream was turned on, which had the effect of slightly reducing the force, but not to any great extent. Columbia street received a much-needed drenching and the buildings on either side were nicely washed. On the whole the practice was most satisfactory and showed the brigade to be thoroughly disciplined, and able to cope with any fire not of extraordinary proportions.

Foot Ball Club.

A meeting of the foot ball club was held last evening at the court house and was largely attended. Mr. Walker occupied the chair. The election of officers was the first business disposed of and resulted as follows: President, His Worship Mayor Dickinson; vice-presidents, Capt. Bole, Q. C., M.P.P., and Mr. Geo. D. Brymner; sec.-treas., Fred. G. Turner; committee, W. J. Walker, G. E. Parkes, J. A. McMartin, J. S. Clute, jr., L. A. Lewis and C. S. T. Hamber; captain, R. B. Lister; vice-captain of the team, L. A. Lewis. A committee was appointed to communicate with the other clubs of the province in regard to a provincial rugby union organization. The club has now 25 members enrolled and 10 applications for membership have been received. The fees are fixed at $2 entrance and 50 cents per month. The club will be given regular practice on Sept. 1st.

Cricket Match.

Next Saturday a cricket match will be played between the Westminster and Vancouver elevens on the cricket grounds in this city. The Westminster club has been most unfortunate in its matches this summer, and the wish is general that victory will crown her efforts on this occasion. Unfortunately the members have devoted very little attention to practice for several weeks past, there being so many other attractions to occupy their time. On other occasions Westminster cannot be said to have had her best team on the field, but it is to be trusted all differences will be laid aside and that the players selected for the coming match are chosen only for their skill. The following gentlemen will probably compose the team: Coulthard, Miles, Wilson, Woods, Armstrong, Lewis, Green, Chappell, Gifford, Raymond, and Hamber or Smith. This is the strongest team that can be chosen from the club, and it should be able to win the day.

Capt. A. H. Bogardus, Champion Wing Shot of the World.

The name of Captain Bogardus is a household word in the sporting circles of every land. He is the undisputed greatest living marksman; in May, 1875, he carried away the champion medal of the world and all the honors in a memorable contest. Since, through a succession of twenty-five smoke-crowned encounters, he has held undisputed and victorious possession of the everywhere coveted trophy. He is the only man that ever killed 100 birds in as many shots, and who broke 1,000 glass balls in 1,000 shots in all in one hour and six minutes. His remarkable record is without precedent or parallel, and the most expert handlers of the shotgun have tried in vain to equal the least of his well-known achievements. His oldest son is master of the rifle and the acknowledged superior of the most unerring shots known to the sporting world, and the youngest, a boy of only twelve years, while rapidly manoeuvering on roller skates, breakes glass balls (with his rifle) held in his father's unprotected hands, and supplements this amazing performance by ringing a target bell, at twenty paces, sixteen times in twenty seconds. The most marvelous display of shotgun and rifle practice ever seen at one time anywhere. The noted family of crack shots can be seen in connection with the numberless other attractive features of Sells Brothers' Great Hippodrome and Menagerie, in this city, on Friday, Aug. 17th.

The Presentation.

At 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening eleven of the thirteen gentlemen elected to make a presentation to the Rev. Father Horris were assembled in the parlor of the Bishop's palace. Mr. Chas. McDonough proposed that Mr. John Hendry do take the chair. Carried unanimously. On the motion of Mr. A. J. McBride Mr. G. A. Kelly was elected secretary.

The chairman then addressed Father Horris and said: "I have great pleasure in attending here to assure you that I feel you deserve the good wishes of our fellow men. I have known you for many years to be a good kind friend to all who required your aid. You stand very high in public estimation. We are assembled here to present you with an address, and a purse which contains some money that will be useful to pay expenses when you leave us: but we hope to see you again in good health surrounded by your friends in the royal city. The secretary will now read the address

Mr. Kelly then read the following:

REV. DEAR FATHER HORRIS:—We regret to hear that your physicians declare a change of scene is necessary to restore your health and that you are forced to leave us.

After so many years of cordial friendship we approach you now to say—farewell. The members of your church know you are a good priest and a true friend, and the members of other churches in this city know also that you were always a good kind hearted man and a christian gentleman. Therefore all join in wishing you a safe journey, and request you to receive as a small token of respect, the donation presented herewith. Trusting you will be speedily restored to health, and to see and hear you again. We are your sincere friends.

Here follows the names of seventy-five well known citizens.

Mr. Kelly—I am instructed by the treasurer, Mr. Jas. Fitzsimmons, to say that up to this hour the subscriptions amount to $918.

Mr. Fitzsimmons—And before Father Horris leaves to-morrow the amount will exceed $950.

The chairman then took up the address and the purse and presented both to Father Horris, who was evidently overpowered by a feeling of gratitude. Father McGucken came to the rescue, and said: "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen: Father Horris is not in good health. On his behalf I thank you sincerely for your generous gift, and for the kind words of friendship contained in your address. No member of our order is entitled to have or to own property of any kind, but in this case, under the circumstances that compel Father Horris to leave us for a time, you may rest assured that every cent of the money provided for him by you shall be used exclusively for his own use. The sum you have subscribed is very large, but I am not surprised. Every member of our order engaged in missionary duties has been received and assisted by men of all creeds and classes in the province, and in the most generous manner. For favors received our order is very much in debt to the general public. I thank you Mr. Chairman and gentlemen for your kindness on this occasion.

Father Horris who appeared to be completely astonished by the kindness of his friends, assured them that he was grieved by the thought of parting with them, but he hoped to see them all again, prosperous and happy.

At this stage of the proceedings a brother entered bearing a tray on which several bottles of wine were shining. There were no wine glasses but an abundant supply of water-goblets; into these Father McGucken, with the hand of an Irishman, poured the red wine, and in a few minutes the members of the deputation were eloquent. Mr. G. A. Kelly rose and said—In such wine as this you could drink the health of any man, and I say gentlemen, it is our duty to drink the health of our worthy chairman, Mr. John Hendry; a representative man, large hearted, and liberal-minded; he employs and pays hundreds of men in this province, and they all say he is a generous paymaster. His integrity and business-like ability have placed him at the head of our commercial community, and he deserves applause, therefore you will with pleasure drink his health —for he's a jolly good fellow. The toast was drank with all the honors.

Mr. Hendry in response said: "Gentlemen, you know I am not a speech-maker; but I feel pleased in doing my duty, and I am well pleased to be here with you to-night to compliment our old friend, Father Horris."

Mr. Chas. McDonough then proposed the health of "Our Protestant Friends." Mr. A. J. McBride and Mr. Peter Grant were called on.

Mr. Grant said that though he did not represent any of the churches in the community he felt that in speaking for himself in regard to Father Horris he was but giving expression to the feelings of the entire community, that the rev. gentleman as a clergyman and a good citizen was universally esteemed and respected by all classes and creeds, and he regretted very much the necessity for his retirement from the field in which he had so long and faithfully labored. But he trusted that a few months' rest, breathing his native air in the Emerald Isle would restore him to perfect health and enable him to return to his many friends on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. McBride said: "I have the honor to be a brother officer of the Rev. Father Horris. All the officers in the penitentiary will miss him, and no one more so than myself, for he is a sincere, kind-hearted friend.

The company then commenced to talk in undertones, and continued to be eloquent for a few minutes, when the chairman said: "Gentlemen, I believe the business is over, and I now propose that we say good-bye to Father Horris and wish him God-speed." Then followed a general hand-shaking, and in a few minutes the proceedings terminated.

Before the train left to-day the purse had been raised to the handsome sum of $1,000.

A. B. DesRochers, Arthabaskaville, P. Q., writes: "Thirteen years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism in the head, from which I nearly constantly suffered, until after having used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for nine days, bathing the head &c., when I was completely cured, and have only used half a bottle."

The Pacific Mail Service.

The Canadian Pacific railway submitted two proposals to the Imperial government for a service of fast steamers between Vancouver, Shanghai and Hongkong. The first was for a fortnightly service for which an annual subsidy of £100,000 is required for 10 years. The other was for a monthly service and the subsidy asked for was £60,000 per annum. The Canadian government consent to give £15,000 per annum towards the latter. The company claim that in grant of time they can equal all the new service via Bundisi and Suez to Hongkong, that the new route will be one week quicker to Shanghai, and at least two weeks quicker to Yokohama. For the subsidy which has been granted the company will carry the mails between an Atlantic port and the Pacific as well as to and from Vancouver. The company are prepared to pay the usual penalty in case the times agreed upon should be exceeded. The company agree to build steamers to meet admiralty requirements, so that they may be available as armed cruisers within a very short time if so required. The company stipulate that they will carry men and small quantities of materials when required at cost price, and large quantities at lowest rates. It is claimed on behalf of the new arrangement that it would take the fastest British cruiser two months to reach British Columbia from England and it would not carry troops enough to be of use for any purposes of war. By the route via the C. P. R., however, it is asserted, crews for vessels on the Australian coast could be delivered from England in 28 to 30 days, and from Vancouver in 16 to 17 days. The C. P. R. company have, it is understood, given the order for the building of six new steamers, and in the meantime will use temporary vessels.

City Council.

A special meeting of the city council was held last night to take into consideration the offer of the Surrey municipality anent the purchase of the charter ferry from Capt. Grant. Present, Aldermen Elliott, Shiles, Calbick, Hoy, Ovens and Herring.

His Worship Mayor Dickinson explained the object of the meeting and stated that he, together with Mr. Bole and Mr. Corbould, had had a meeting with the Surrey council yesterday morning, and had reached an agreement which was satisfactory to that council and the railway company. This agreement would be laid before the council to be accepted or rejected, but the matter must be dealt with before the lapse of fourteen days, or the by-law accompanying the agreement would become null and void.

The by-law and agreement were read to the council.

After a short discussion the matter was laid over till Monday night for consideration.

The council then adjourned.
